threshing-sledges spiked with iron.

4 Therefore will I send fire upon the house of Hazael,

fire that shall eat up Ben-hadad’s
palaces;

I will crush the great men of Damascus

and wipe out those who live in the Vale of Aven

and the sceptred ruler of Beth-eden;

the people of Aram shall be exiled
to Kir.

It is the word of the LORD.

These are the words of the LORD: 6

For crime after crime of Gaza
I will grant them no reprieve,

because they deported a whole band of exiles

and delivered them up to Edom.

Therefore will I send fire upon
the walls of Gaza,

fire that shall consume its palaces.

I will wipe out those who live in Ashdod

<sup>a</sup> top of Carmel: or choicest farmland.

1.1: Title. Sheep-farmers: see 7.14 n. Tekoa: a small town southeast of Jerusalem. Uzziah reigned over Judah about 783–742 B.C. and Jeroboam (II) over Israel about 781–746 B.C. Earthquake: see Zech. 14.5.

1.2–2.16: Judgment upon Israel and surrounding nations. After an opening threat (v. 2; compare Joel 3.16), the oracles traverse the nations surrounding Israel. On a map, the reader will see how the LORD’s judgment circles closer and closer until it strikes Israel (2.6). The episodes alluded to in these oracles are now unknown. 3–5: Damascus: a long-time enemy of Israel. Gilead: Israelite territory east of the Jordan. Hazael and Ben-hadad are royal names. Aram: Syria. Kir: see 9.7 n. 6–8: Gaza, with Ashdod, Ashkelon, and Ekron, were Philistine cities. Edom: see

- and the sceptred ruler of Ashkelon;
I will turn my hand against Ekron, and the remnant of the Philistines shall perish.
It is the word of the Lord GOD.
- 9 These are the words of the LORD:
For crime after crime of Tyre
I will grant them no reprieve, because, forgetting the ties of kinship,
they delivered a whole band of exiles to Edom.
- 10 Therefore will I send fire upon the walls of Tyre,
fire that shall consume its palaces.
- 11 These are the words of the LORD:
For crime after crime of Edom
I will grant them no reprieve,
because, sword in hand, they hunted
their kinsmen down,
stifling their natural affections.
Their anger raged unceasing,
their fury stormed unchecked.
- 12 Therefore will I send upon Teman,
fire that shall consume the palaces
of Bozrah.
- 13 These are the words of the LORD:
For crime after crime of the Ammonites
I will grant them no reprieve,
because in their greed for land
they invaded the ploughlands of Gilead.
- 14 Therefore will I set fire to the walls of Rabbah,
fire that shall consume its palaces
amid war-cries on the day of battle,
with a whirlwind on the day of tempest;
- 15 then their king shall be carried into
exile,
he and his officers with him.
It is the word of the LORD.
- These are the words of the LORD: 2
For crime after crime of Moab
I will grant them no reprieve,
because they burnt the bones of the king of Edom to ash.<sup>b</sup> Therefore will I send fire upon Moab, 2
fire that shall consume the palaces
in their towns;
Moab shall perish in uproar,
with war-cries and the sound of trumpets,
and I will cut off the ruler from 3
among them
and kill all their officers with him.
It is the word of the LORD.
- These are the words of the LORD: 4
For crime after crime of Judah
I will grant them no reprieve,
because they have spurned the law
of the LORD
and have not observed his decrees,
and have been led astray by the false gods
that their fathers followed.
- Therefore will I send fire upon 5
Judah,
fire that shall consume the palaces
of Jerusalem.
- These are the words of the LORD: 6
For crime after crime of Israel
I will grant them no reprieve, because they sell the innocent for silver
and the destitute for a pair of shoes.
They grind the heads of the poor 7
into the earth
and thrust the humble out of their way.
Father and son resort to the same
girl,
to the profanation of my holy name.
Men lie down beside every altar 8
on garments seized in pledge, <sup>b</sup> to ash: or for lime.

vv. 11–12. 9–10: Tyre: a Phoenician seaport. 11–12: Because Edom occupied Judah's territory after the latter was conquered by the Babylonians in 587 B.C., the two became bitter enemies. Edom lay south of Judah and southeast of the Dead Sea; its main cities were Teman and Bozrah. 13–15: Living adjacent to Gilead, east of the Jordan, the Ammonites had sporadic hostilities with the Hebrews. Rabbah: the Ammonite capital. 2.1–3: Moab was south of Ammon. 8: Garments seized in pledge (as collateral) were to be returned to the owner at night

and in the house of their God<sup>c</sup> they drink liquor got by way of fines. 9 Yet it was I who destroyed the Amorites before them, though they were tall as cedars, though they were sturdy as oaks, I who destroyed their fruit above and their roots below. 10 It was I who brought you up from the land of Egypt, I who led you in the wilderness forty years, to take possession of the land of the Amorites; 11 I raised up prophets from your sons, Nazirites from your young men. Was it not so indeed, you men of Israel? says the LORD. 12 But you made the Nazirites drink wine, and said to the prophets, 'You shall not prophesy.' 13 Listen, I groan under the burden of you, as a wagon creaks under a full load. 14 Flight shall not save the swift, the strong man shall not rally his strength. The warrior shall not save himself, the archer shall not stand his ground; the swift of foot shall not be saved, nor the horseman escape; 16 on that day the bravest of warriors shall be stripped of his arms and run away. This is the very word of the LORD.	For you alone have I cared 2 among all the nations of the world; therefore will I punish you for all your iniquities. Do two men travel together 3 unless they have agreed? Does a lion roar in the forest 4 if he has no prey? Does a young lion growl in his den if he has caught nothing? Does a bird fall into a trap on the 5 ground if the striker is not set for it? Does a trap spring from the ground and take nothing? If a trumpet sounds the alarm, 6 are not the people scared? If disaster falls on a city, has not the LORD been at work?<sup>d</sup> For the Lord GOD does nothing 7 without giving to his servants the prophets knowledge of his plans. The lion has roared; who is not 8 terrified? The Lord GOD has spoken; who will not prophesy? Stand upon the palaces in Ashdod 9 and upon the palaces of Egypt, and proclaim aloud: 'Assemble on the hills of Samaria, look at the tumult seething among her people and at the oppression in her midst; what do they care for honesty 10 who hoard in their palaces the gains of crime and violence?' This is the very word of the LORD. Therefore these are the words of the 11 Lord GOD:
---	---

Israel's sins and threatened punishment

3 LISTEN, ISRAELITES, TO THESE WORDS that the LORD addresses to you, to the whole nation which he brought up from Egypt:

An enemy shall surround<sup>e</sup> the land;
your stronghold shall be thrown down
and your palaces sacked.

<sup>c</sup> Or gods.
<sup>d</sup> If disaster . . . work?; or If there is evil in a city, will not the LORD act?
<sup>e</sup> shall surround: prob. rdg.; Heb. and round.

(Deut.24.12-13). 9: The Amorites (Gen.15.16) were Canaanites. 11-12: Nazirites vowed to abstain from wine (see Num.6.2-4).

3.1-6.14: Israel is pronounced guilty. The three parts of the section begin with the word "Listen" (3.1; 4.1; 5.1).

3.1-15: Promised destruction. 2: Cared: see Hos.5.3-4 n. 3-8: A series of causes and effects in the form of questions. V. 7 is in prose, and is regarded by some as a later addition since the passage is mostly in meter. 9-11: The imperatives in v. 9 are plural, perhaps addressed to the prophets who are directed to Ashdod and Egypt as witnesses in a lawsuit against Samaria,

- 12 These are the words of the LORD:
 As a shepherd rescues out of the jaws of a lion two shin bones or the tip of an ear, so shall the Israelites who live in Samaria be rescued like a corner of a couch or a chip from the leg of a bed.<sup>f</sup>
- 13 Listen and testify against the family of Jacob.
 This is the very word of the Lord God, the God of Hosts.
- 14 On the day when I deal with Israel for all their crimes, I will most surely deal with the altars of Bethel: the horns of the altar shall be hacked off and shall fall to the ground.
- 15 I will break down both winter-house and summer-house; houses of ivory shall perish, and great houses be demolished. This is the very word of the LORD.
- 4 Listen to this, you cows of Bashan who live on the hill of Samaria, you who oppress the poor and crush the destitute, who say to your lords, 'Bring us drink':
- 2 the Lord GOD has sworn by his holiness that your time is coming when men shall carry you away on their shields<sup>g</sup> and your children in fish-baskets.
- 3 You shall each be carried straight out through the breaches in the walls and pitched on a dunghill.<sup>h</sup> This is the very word of the LORD.
- 4 Come to Bethel—and rebel!
 Come to Gilgal—and rebel the more!
- Bring your sacrifices for the morning, your tithes within three days. Burn your thank-offering without leaven; announce, proclaim your freewill offerings; for you love to do what is proper, you men of Israel! This is the very word of the Lord GOD.
- It was I who kept teeth idle in all your cities, who brought famine on all your settlements; yet you did not come back to me. This is the very word of the LORD.
- It was I who withheld the showers from you while there were still three months to harvest. I would send rain on one city and no rain on another; rain would fall on one field, and another would be parched for lack of it. From this city and that, men would stagger to another for water to drink, but would not find enough; yet you did not come back to me. This is the very word of the LORD.
- I blasted you with black blight and red; I laid waste<sup>i</sup> your gardens and vineyards; the locust devoured your fig-trees and your olives; yet you did not come back to me. This is the very word of the LORD.
- I sent plague upon you like the plagues of Egypt; I killed with the sword

<sup>f</sup> or a chip . . . bed: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>g</sup> Or baskets.
<sup>h</sup> a dunghill: prob. rdg.; Heb. the Harmon.
<sup>i</sup> I laid waste: prob. rdg.; Heb. to increase.

Israel's capital. The latter was ringed by hills. 12: This bitterly ironic statement means that the Israelites who will be rescued from the impending catastrophe will be merely a scrap, hardly worth the effort. 14: Altars had projecting corners, called horns, possessing special power. 15: The houses symbolize the corruption of wealth. Ivory: luxurious decorations.

4.1-13: "Prepare to meet your God." 1-3: The cows of Bashan are the rich Samaritan women. Bashan was famous for fine cattle (compare Ezek.39.18; Ps.22.12). 6a: Idle: lit. "clean," never soiled by food. 6b: Hag.2.17. 7: Deut.11.17. 10: Plagues: compare Exod.7.14-11.10; 12.29-32.

- your young men and your troops of horses.
I made your camps stink in your nostrils;
yet you did not come back to me.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- 11 I brought destruction amongst you as God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah;
you were like a brand snatched from the fire;
yet you did not come back to me.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- 12 Therefore, Israel, this is what I will do to you;
and, because this is what I will do to
you,
Israel, prepare to meet your God.
- 13 It is he who forges the thunder and creates the wind,
who showers abundant rain on the earth,<sup>j</sup>
who darkens the dawn with thick
clouds
and marches over the heights of the earth—
his name is the LORD the God of Hosts.
- 5 Listen to these words; I raise a dirge
over you, O Israel:
- 2 She has fallen to rise no more,
the virgin Israel,
prostrate on her own soil, with no
one to lift her up.
- 3 These are the words of the Lord GOD:
The city that marched out to war a thousand strong
shall have but a hundred left,
that which marched out a hundred strong
shall have but ten men of Israel left.
- 4 These are the words of the LORD to the people of Israel:
- Resort to me, if you would live, not 5
to Bethel;
go not to Gilgal, nor pass on to Beersheba;
for Gilgal shall be swept away
and Bethel brought to nothing.
If you would live, resort to the 6
LORD,
or he will break out against Joseph
like fire,
fire which will devour Israel with
no one to quench it;
he who made the Pleiades and 8<sup>k</sup> Orion,
who turned darkness into morning
and darkened day into night,
who summoned the waters of the sea
and poured them over the earth,
who makes Taurus rise after Capella 9
and Taurus set hard on the rising of the Vintager<sup>l</sup>— he who does this, his name is the LORD.<sup>m</sup>
You that turn justice upside down<sup>n</sup> 7
and bring righteousness to the ground,
you that hate a man who brings the 10
wrongdoer to court
and loathe him who speaks the whole truth:
for all this, because you levy taxes 11
on the poor
and extort a tribute of grain from
them,
though you have built houses of
hewn stone,
you shall not live in them,
though you have planted pleasant
vineyards,
you shall not drink wine from
them.
For I know how many your crimes 12 are
and how countless your sins,

<sup>j</sup> who showers . . . earth: prob. rdg.; Heb. who tells his thoughts to mankind.

<sup>k</sup> Verse 7 transposed to follow verse 9.

<sup>l</sup> who makes . . . Vintager: prob. rdg.; Heb. who smiles destruction on the strong, and destruction comes on the fortified city.

<sup>m</sup> his . . . LORD: transposed from end of verse 8.

<sup>n</sup> upside down: prob. rdg.; Heb. poison.

11: Compare Gen.19.24–28. 12: An oath, in which the threat (this is what I will do) is unspecified. 13: The verse is hymnic in style.

5.1–6.14: Death and exile. A miscellaneous group of poems unified by their pessimistic outlook. 1–2: The poetry of v. 2 has in Heb. the rhythm of the dirge.

5.4–15: The possibility of life. The hope that the LORD holds out is hedged with qualifications. Bethel and Gilgal were shrine towns in Benjamin; Beersheba a shrine town in Judah. As in

- |  |  |   |
|--|--|---|
| you who persecute the guiltless, hold men to ransom and thrust the destitute out of court. 13 At that time, therefore, a prudent man will stay quiet, for it will be an evil time. 14 Seek good and not evil, that you may live, that the LORD the God of Hosts may be firmly on your side, as you say he is. 15 Hate evil and love good; enthrone justice in the courts; it may be that the LORD the God of Hosts will be gracious to the survivors of Joseph. 16 Therefore these are the words of the LORD the God of Hosts: There shall be wailing in every street, and in all open places cries of woe. The farmer shall be called to mourning, and those skilled in the dirge to<sup>o</sup> wailing; 17 there shall be lamentation in every vineyard; for I will pass through the midst of you, says the LORD. 18 Fools who long for the day of the LORD, what will the day of the LORD mean to you? It will be darkness, not light. 19 It will be as when a man runs from a lion, and a bear meets him, or turns into a house and leans his hand on the wall, and a snake bites him. | The day of the LORD is indeed darkness, not light, a day of gloom with no dawn. I hate, I spurn your pilgrim-feasts; I will not delight in your sacred ceremonies. When you present your sacrifices and offerings I will not accept them, nor look on the buffaloes of your shared-offerings. Spare me the sound of your songs; I cannot endure the music of your lutes. Let justice roll on like a river and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream. Did you bring me sacrifices and gifts, you people of Israel, those forty years in the wilderness? No! but now you shall take up the shrine of your idol king and the pedestals of your images,<sup>p</sup> which you have made for yourselves, and I will drive you into exile beyond Damascus. So says the LORD; the God of Hosts is his name. Shame on you who live at ease in Zion, and you, untroubled on the hill of Samaria, men of mark in the first of nations, you to whom the people of Israel resort! Go, look at Calneh, travel on to Hamath the great, then go down to Gath of the Philistines— are you better than these kingdoms? | 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 6 2 |
|--|--|---|

<sup>o</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. places to before those skilled.
<sup>p</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the star of your gods.

vv. 21–27, Amos rejects Israel's ritual worship. 14–15: The word seek (resort, vv. 5–6) reflects the ritual practice; the prophet insists that such seeking be fully genuine and not merely formal. Amos goes beyond mere adherence to tradition, demanding instead a new attitude: Hate evil and love good.

5.16–27: Rejection of the cult. 18: The day of the LORD: see Joel 1.14–15 n. 21–27: The prophet rejects the entire system of ritual, denying (vv. 25–26) that it was truly part of Israel's legacy from the formative Wilderness period. Justice and righteousness should replace the unacceptable ritualism.

6.1–7: "Are you better?" Calneh, perhaps the same as Calno (Isa.10.9) and Kanneh (Ezek.27.23), was a town in northern Syria. Hamath, an important Syrian center, was captured by the Assyrians in the 720s. Gath, one of the five Philistine cities, was destroyed many times.

Or is your<sup>q</sup> territory greater than theirs?<sup>r</sup>
 3 You who thrust the evil day aside and make haste to establish violence.<sup>s</sup>
 4 You who loll on beds inlaid with ivory and sprawl over your couches, feasting on lambs from the flock and fatted calves,
 5 you who pluck the strings of the lute and invent musical instruments like David,
 6 you who drink wine by the bowlful and lard yourselves with the richest of oils, but are not grieved at the ruin of Joseph—
 7 now, therefore, you shall head the column of exiles; that will be the end of sprawling and revelry.
 8 The Lord GOD has sworn by himself:
 I loathe the arrogance of Jacob, I loathe his palaces; city and all in it I will abandon to their fate.
 9 If ten men are left in one house, they shall die,
 10 and a man's uncle and the embalmer shall take him up to carry his body out of the house for burial, and they shall call to someone in a corner of the house, 'Any more there?', and he shall answer, 'No.'
 Then he will add, 'Hush!'— for the name of the LORD must not be mentioned.
 11 For the LORD will command, and at the shock the great house will be rubble and the cottage matchwood.

Can horses gallop over rocks? 12
 Can the sea be ploughed with oxen? Yet you have turned into venom the process of law and justice itself into poison, you who are jubilant over a nothing<sup>t</sup> and boast, 13
 'Have we not won power<sup>u</sup> by our own strength?'
 O Israel, I am raising a nation 14 against you, and they shall harry your land from Lebo-hamath to the gorge of the Arabah.
 This is the very word of the LORD the God of Hosts.

Visions foretelling doom upon Israel

THIS WAS WHAT THE LORD GOD SHOWED 7
 me: a swarm of locusts hatched out when the late corn, which comes after the king's early crop, was beginning to sprout. As they were devouring the 2 last of the herbage in the land, I said, 'O Lord GOD, forgive; what will Jacob be after this? He is so small.' Then the 3 LORD relented and said, 'This shall not happen.'

This was what the Lord GOD showed 4
 me: the Lord GOD was summoning a flame of fire<sup>v</sup> to devour the great abyss, and to devour all creation. I said, 'O 5
 Lord GOD, I pray thee, cease; what will Jacob be after this? He is so small.' The LORD relented and said, 6
 'This also shall not happen.'

This was what the LORD showed me: 7
 there was a man standing by a wall<sup>w</sup> with a plumb-line in his hand. The 8
 LORD said to me, 'What do you see, Amos?' 'A plumb-line', I answered, and the Lord said, 'I am setting a

<sup>q</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. their.

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. yours.

<sup>s</sup> You . . . violence; or You who invoke the day of wrongdoing and bring near the sabbath of violence.

<sup>t</sup> a nothing and power: Heb. Lo-debar and Karnaim, making a word-play on the two place-names.

<sup>u</sup> a flame of fire: prob. rdg.; Heb. to contend with fire.

<sup>v</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds of a plumb-line.

6.8-14: Punishment of Israel. The reduction of Israel to rubble (v. 11) is to be accompanied by the demoralization of the people. 13: Nothing and power represent city names; see Tfn. t. 14: Lebo-hamath was in the north, the Arabah in the south. The enemy overruns the land from one end to the other.

7.1-9.8: Visions foretelling doom upon Israel. A series of symbolic but accurate visions is interspersed with a narrative and other oracles. 1-3: A locust plague destroys the people's grain. The king's early crop has already been harvested. 4-6: Abyss: the waters beneath the earth; see Ps.77.16-20. 7-9: A plumb-line was used to make sure a wall was vertical and hence stable.

plumb-line to the heart of my people Israel; never again will I pass them by. The hill-shrines of Isaac shall be desolated and the sanctuaries of Israel laid waste; I will rise, sword in hand, against the house of Jeroboam.<sup>9</sup>

Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, reported to Jeroboam king of Israel: 'Amos is conspiring against you in Israel; the country cannot tolerate what he is saying. He says, "Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall be deported far from their native land."<sup>10</sup>

To Amos himself Amaziah said, 'Be off, you seer! Off with you to Judah! You can earn your living and do your prophesying there. But never prophesy again at Bethel, for this is the king's sanctuary, a royal palace.' 'I am<sup>w</sup> no prophet,' Amos replied to Amaziah, 'nor am I a prophet's son; I am<sup>w</sup> a herdsman and a dresser of sycomore-figs. But the LORD took me as I followed the flock and said to me, "Go and prophesy to my people Israel."<sup>11</sup> So now listen to the word of the LORD. You tell me I am not to prophesy against Israel or go drivelling on against the people of Isaac. Now these are the words of the LORD: Your wife shall become a city strumpet<sup>x</sup> and your sons and daughters shall fall by the sword. Your land shall be divided up with a measuring-line, you yourself shall die in a heathen country, and Israel shall be deported far from their native land and go into exile.'<sup>12</sup>

This was what the Lord GOD showed me: there was a basket of summer fruit, and he said, 'What are you looking at, Amos?' I answered, 'A basket of ripe summer<sup>y</sup> fruit.' Then the LORD said to me, 'The time is ripe<sup>y</sup> for my people Israel. Never again will I pass them by. In that day, says the Lord GOD, the singing women in the palace shall howl, "So many dead men, flung out everywhere! Silence!"'

Listen to this, you who grind the destitute and plunder<sup>z</sup> the humble, you who say, 'When will the new moon be over so that we may sell corn? When will the sabbath be past so that we may open our wheat again, giving short measure in the bushel and taking overweight in the silver, tilting the scales fraudulently, and selling the dust of the wheat; that we may buy the poor for silver and the destitute for a pair of shoes?' The LORD has<sup>7</sup> sworn by the pride of Jacob: I will never forget any of their doings.

Shall not the earth shake for this? Shall not all who live on it grieve? All earth shall surge and seethe like the Nile and subside like the river of Egypt.

On that day, says the Lord GOD, I will make the sun go down at noon and darken the earth in broad daylight. I will turn your pilgrim-feasts into mourning and all your songs into lamentation. I will make you all put sackcloth round your waists and have all your heads shaved. I will make it like mourning for an only son and the end of it a bitter day.

The time is coming, says the Lord GOD, when I will send famine on the land, not hunger for bread or thirst for water,

<sup>w</sup> Or was.

<sup>x</sup> become . . . strumpet: or be carried off as a prostitute in a raid.

<sup>y</sup> ripe summer and ripe: a play on the Heb. qais (summer) and qes (end).

<sup>z</sup> and plunder: prob. rdg.; Heb. to destroy.

7.10-17: Amos' confrontation with Amaziah. Bethel was the main royal shrine in Israel. The narrative is about Amos, not by him; its origin is obscure. The charge against Amos was sedition. 14: Amos' reply, I am no prophet . . . nor am I a prophet's son, asserts that he was not the usual "professional" prophet (see 1 Sam.10.5), but rather someone specially called to prophesy. He terms himself a herdsman and a dresser of sycomore-figs (which had to be pricked to be edible); see 1.1, "sheep-farmer."

8.1-7: Summer fruit. This vision turns on a Heb. word-play (see Tfn. y.). 4-7: The mechanical observance of ritual, accompanied by derelictions from morality.

8.8-14: Cosmic catastrophe. 8: The allusion is to the annual flood of the Nile. 10: Pilgrim-feasts: the festivals commanded in Exod.23.14-17. Sackcloth and shaved heads were signs of mourning. 11: Hunger for hearing the word: lack of a prophet who speaks for the LORD.

but for hearing the word of the LORD.
 12 Men shall stagger from north to south,<sup>a</sup>
 they shall range from east to west, seeking the word of the LORD, but they shall not find it.
 13 On that day fair maidens and young men shall faint from thirst;
 14 all who take their oath by Ashimah, goddess of Samaria, all who swear, 'By the life of your god, O Dan', and, 'By the sacred way to Beersheba', shall fall to rise no more.

9 I saw the LORD standing by the altar, and he said:

Strike the capitals so that the whole porch is shaken;
 I will smash them all into pieces<sup>b</sup> and I will kill them to the last man<sup>c</sup> with the sword.

No fugitive shall escape, no survivor find safety;
 2 if they dig down to Sheol, thence shall my hand take them; if they climb up to heaven, thence will I bring them down.
 3 If they hide on the top of Carmel, there will I search out and take them;
 if they conceal themselves from me in the depths of the sea, there will I bid the sea-serpent bite them.
 4 If they are herded into captivity by their enemies, there will I bid the sword slay them, and I will fix my eye on them for evil and not for good.

5 The Lord the GOD of Hosts, at whose touch the earth heaves, and all who dwell on it wither,<sup>d</sup>

it surges like the Nile, and subsides like the river of Egypt,
 who builds his stair up to the heavens
 and arches his ceiling over the earth,
 who summons the waters of the sea
 and pours them over the land—
 his name is the LORD.

Are not you Israelites like Cushites to me?
 says the LORD.
 Did I not bring Israel up from Egypt, the Philistines from Caphtor, the Aramaeans from Kir?
 Behold, I, the Lord GOD, have my eyes on this sinful kingdom, and I will wipe it off the face of the earth. 8

A remnant spared and restored

Yet I will not wipe out the family of Jacob root and branch, says the LORD.
 No; I will give my orders,
 9 I will shake Israel to and fro through all the nations
 as a sieve is shaken to and fro and not one pebble falls to the ground.
 They shall die by the sword, all the sinners of my people, 10 who say, 'Thou wilt not let disaster come near us or overtake us.'
 On that day I will restore David's fallen house;
 11 I will repair its gaping walls and restore its ruins;

<sup>a</sup> south: prob. rdg.; Heb. west.
<sup>b</sup> I will . . . pieces: prob. rdg.; Heb. I will hack them on the heads of them all.
<sup>c</sup> them to the last man: or their children.
<sup>d</sup> Or mourn.

14: Ashimah: a fertility goddess. Since Dan was in the north and Beersheba in the south, when used together they were a frequent figure for all the land.

9.1-8a: Destruction of the "chosen people." 2: Sheol: the place of the dead; compare Ps.139.8. 3: Carmel: the famous mountain above modern Haifa. 7: Since the LORD has dealt with other nations as he has with Israel, Israel is not "chosen." Cushites: Ethiopians. Caphtor: Crete. Aramaeans: compare 1.3-5. Kir was possibly in Mesopotamia; it appears both as the place of origin of the Aramaeans as here, and as the place to which they were exiled (1.5; 2 Kgs.16.9).

9.8b-15: The future restoration of Israel. Many scholars believe that this glowing passage was added to give a positive ending. 11: Fallen suggests the period of the Babylonian conquest

12 I will rebuild it as it was long ago, that they may possess what is left of Edom
and all the nations who were once named mine.

This is the very word of the LORD, who will do this.

13 A time is coming, says the LORD,
when the ploughman shall follow
hard on the vintager,<sup>e</sup> and he who treads the grapes after him who sows the seed.
The mountains shall run with fresh
wine,

and every hill shall wave with corn.
I will restore the fortunes of my people Israel; 14
they shall rebuild deserted cities and
live in them,
they shall plant vineyards and drink
their wine,
they shall plant vineyards and drink
their wine,
make gardens and eat the fruit.
Once more I will plant them on 15
their own soil,
and they shall never again be uprooted
from the soil I have given them.
It is the word of the LORD your God.

<sup>e</sup> Or reaper.

---

(587 B.C.) after which David's dynasty came to an end. 12: On the enmity of Judah and Edom, see 1.11–12 n. 13: Fertility would be so great that the labors of the agricultural seasons would press on each other.

OBADIAH

Nothing is known about this Obadiah. The similarities between vv. 1–9 and Jer.49.7–22 suggest a common time of origin for both passages, and possibly a common prophetic circle.

The book consists of short poems of diverse origin, unified by the prediction that Israel's and Edom's national situations will be reversed. In the tradition (Gen.25.30), Edom (Esau) was the twin brother of Israel (Jacob); according to Obadiah, Edom has not been his brother's keeper (v. 10), and now the LORD will punish Edom.

This latter theme suggests that the book originated shortly after the Babylonian sack of Jerusalem in 587 B.C., in which the Edomites apparently participated.

Edom's pride and downfall

1<sup>a</sup> The vision of Obadiah: what the Lord GOD has said concerning Edom.

When a herald was sent out among the nations, crying,

'Rouse yourselves;
let us rouse ourselves to battle against Edom',

I heard this message from the LORD:

2 Look, I make you the least of all nations,
an object of contempt.

3 Your proud, insolent heart has led you astray;
you who haunt the crannies among the rocks,
making your home on the heights,

you say to yourself, 'Who can bring me to the ground?'

4 Though you soar as high as a vulture and your nest is set among the stars,
thence I will bring you down.
This is the very word of the LORD.

5<sup>b</sup> If thieves or robbers come to you
by night,
though your loss be heavy,
they will steal only what they want;
if vintagers come to you,
will they not leave gleanings?

6 But see how Esau's treasure is ransacked,

his secret wealth hunted out!

All your former allies march you to the frontier,

your confederates mislead you and bring you low,

your own kith and kin lay a snare for your feet,
a snare that works blindly,
without wisdom.

And on that very day
I will destroy all the sages of Edom
and leave no wisdom on the mount of Esau.

This is the very word of the LORD.
Then shall your warriors, O

9 Teman, be so enfeebled, that every man shall be cut down on the mount of Esau.

For the murderous violence done to your brother Jacob
you shall be covered with shame and cut off for ever.

On the day when you stood aloof,
11 on the day when strangers carried off his wealth,
when foreigners trooped in by his gates and parcelled out Jerusalem by lot, you yourselves were of one mind

with them.

Do not gloat over your brother on 12 the day of his misfortune, nor rejoice over Judah on his day
of ruin;

do not boast on the day of distress,

a Verses 1–4: cp. Jer. 49. 14–16.

b Verses 5 and 6: cp. Jer. 49. 9, 10.

1: Title. Obadiah means "the LORD's servant."

1–4: Edom's pride and downfall. The poem describes the downfall by opposites: contempt and proud, heights and the ground. Edom's capital, Teman (v. 9), was in rocky hills.

5–7: Military conquest. 5: Gleanings: Harvesters were to leave fruit for the poor (Deut.24.19–21). 6: Esau was Edom's progenitor (Gen.36.1) as Jacob (Obad.10) was Israel's.

8–14: Edom's treachery. 8: Edom had a reputation for wisdom; the sages of 1 Kgs.4.31 are regarded by some as Edomites. 9: Teman: the main Edomite city. 12–14: On Edom's crimes at the time of the Babylonian sack of Jerusalem, see Ezek.35.1–36.7.

- 13 nor enter my people's gates on the day of his downfall.
Do not gloat over his fall on the day of his downfall
nor seize his treasure on the day of his downfall.
- 14 Do not wait at the cross-roads to cut off his fugitives
nor betray the survivors on the day of distress.
- 15 For soon the day of the LORD will come on all the nations:
you shall be treated as you have treated others,
and your deeds will recoil on your own head.
- 16 The draught that you have drunk
on my holy mountain
all the nations shall drink continually;
they shall drink and gulp down
and shall be as though they had never been;
- 17 but on Mount Zion there shall be those that escape,
and it shall be holy,
and Jacob shall dispossess those that dispossessed them.
- Then shall the house of Jacob be 18
fire,
the house of Joseph flame,
and the house of Esau shall be chaff;
they shall blaze through it and consume it,
and the house of Esau shall have no survivor.
The LORD has spoken.
Then they shall possess the Negeb, 19
the mount of Esau,
and the Shephelah of the Philistines;
they shall possess the country-side
of Ephraim and Samaria,
and Benjamin shall possess Gilead.
Exiles of Israel<sup>c</sup> shall possess<sup>d</sup> Canaan 20
as far as Zarephath, exiles of Jerusalem<sup>e</sup> shall possess the cities of the Negeb.
Those who find safety on Mount 21
Zion shall go up
to hold sway over the mount of Esau,
and dominion shall belong to the LORD.

c Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds this army.
d shall possess; prob. rdg.; Heb. which.
e Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds who are in Sepharad.

15–21: The punishment. 15: The day of the LORD: the time of the LORD's judgment on men and nations. 16: Draught: a symbol of divine wrath (see Jer.25.15–28; Ps.75.8). 19–21: The areas mentioned are both in and around Israel. The Negeb was the southern wilderness, Shephelah the Judean hills just east of the coastal plain. Gilead was east of the Jordan. Zarephath was on the Phoenician coast. Sepharad (Tfn. e), in Asia Minor, is a later Heb. name for Spain.

JONAH

Unlike the other prophetic books, Jonah takes the form of a story. The reader should begin by enjoying it as he would a short story, without concern about its historical accuracy; if, moreover, he views the story as in a satiric vein, he may enjoy it all the more.

A prophet Jonah is mentioned in 2 Kgs.14.25, yet with only the sketchiest information. He is a different man than the prophet who appears here.

We cannot be certain of the date of composition of this book. The author's exaggerations (the size of Nineveh, 3.3; its response to Jonah's threat, 3.5-9) suggest that he wrote after Nineveh, destroyed in 612, was only a memory. This would mean a date at least later than 600 B.C. Since the book (like Ruth) opposes the exclusiveness found in Ezra and Nehemiah, it may have originated about 450-400 B.C.

The story has its own pungency. Traditionally, Jonah is viewed as a hero. Perhaps, however, as some modern scholars hold, the author had something other than a hero in mind, for his Jonah says the right things (1.9; 2.2-9; 4.2) but does not follow them. Jonah cannot conceive that God could care for anyone, man or beast, except an Israelite; he becomes quite upset when God forgives Nineveh. The book's message of God's universal concern is borne along by the irony of a petulant prophet who is disappointed by the success of his preaching.

Jonah's mission to Nineveh

1 THE WORD OF THE LORD CAME TO
2 Jonah son of Amittai: 'Go to the 3 great city of Nineveh, go now and 4 denounce it, for its wickedness stares
5 me in the face.' But Jonah set out for 6 Tarshish to escape from the LORD. He 7 went down to Joppa, where he found a 8 ship bound for Tarshish. He paid his 9 fare and went on board, meaning to 10 travel by it to Tarshish out of reach of 11 the LORD. But the LORD let loose a 12 hurricane, and the sea ran so high in 13 the storm that the ship threatened to 14 break up. The sailors were afraid, and 15 each cried out to his god for help. Then 16 they threw things overboard to lighten
17 the ship. Jonah had gone down into a 18 corner of the ship and was lying sound
19 asleep when the captain came upon 20 him. 'What, sound asleep?' he said.
21 'Get up, and call on your god; perhaps 22 he will spare us a thought and we shall 23 not perish.'
24 At last the sailors said to each other,
25 'Come and let us cast lots to find out
26 who is to blame for this bad luck.' So 27 they cast lots, and the lot fell on Jonah.
28 'Now then,' they said to him, 'what is your business? Where do you come from? What is your country? Of what nation are you?' 'I am a Hebrew,' he 9 answered, 'and I worship the LORD the 10 God of heaven, who made both sea and 11 land.' At this the sailors were even 12 more afraid. 'What can you have done

13 wrong?' they asked. They already knew 14 that he was trying to escape from the 15 LORD, for he had told them so. 'What 16 shall we do with you', they asked, 'to 17 make the sea go down?' For the storm 18 grew worse and worse. 'Take me and 19 throw me overboard,' he said, 'and the 20 sea will go down. I know it is my fault
21 that this great storm has struck you.'
22 The crew rowed hard to put back to 23 land but in vain, for the sea ran higher 24 and higher. At last they called on the 25 LORD and said, 'O LORD, do not let us
26 perish at the price of this man's life; do 27 not charge us with the death of an 28 innocent man. All this, O LORD, is thy 29 set purpose.' Then they took Jonah
30 and threw him overboard, and the sea
31 stopped raging. So the crew were filled
32 with the fear of the LORD and offered 33 sacrifice and made vows to him. But 34 the LORD ordained that a great fish
35 should swallow Jonah, and for three

1.1-16: Jonah's flight by ship. 2: Nineveh: the capital of Assyria, far to the east. 3: Tarshish: though often identified with Spain, it was probably a legendary place far to the west of Palestine. Jonah thus travels in the opposite direction from Nineveh. 9: Worship: in Heb., "fear." Jonah seems not to see the disparity between his adherence to the LORD who made both sea and land, and his attempt to escape by sea (vv. 3,10). 16: The sailors' fear is religiously more productive than Jonah's (see v. 9 n.).

1.17-2.10: In the belly of the fish. Not a whale but simply a great fish, it, unlike the prophet, days and three nights he remained in its belly.

2 Jonah prayed to the LORD his God from the belly of the fish:

2 I called to the LORD in my distress, and he answered me;
out of the belly of Sheol I cried for help,
and thou hast heard my cry.

3 Thou didst cast me into the depths, far out at sea,
and the flood closed round me;
all thy waves, all thy billows, passed over me.

4 I thought I was banished from thy sight and should never see thy holy temple again.

5 The water about me rose up to my neck;
the ocean was closing over me.

6 Weeds twined about my head
in the troughs of the mountains;
I was sinking into a world
whose bars would hold me fast for ever.

But thou didst bring me up alive
from the pit, O LORD my God.

7 As my senses failed me I remembered the LORD,
and my prayer reached thee in thy holy temple.

8 Men who worship false gods may abandon their loyalty,

9 but I will offer thee sacrifice with words of praise;

I will pay my vows; victory is the LORD's.

10 Then the LORD spoke to the fish and it spewed Jonah out on to the dry land.

The word of the LORD came to Jonah 3 a second time: 'Go to the great city of 2 Nineveh, go now and denounce it in the words I give you.' Jonah obeyed at 3-4 once and went to Nineveh. He began by going a day's journey into the city, a vast city, three days' journey across, and then proclaimed: 'In forty days 5 Nineveh shall be overthrown!' The people of Nineveh believed God's 5 word. They ordered a public fast and put on sackcloth, high and low alike. When the news reached the king of 6 Nineveh he rose from his throne, stripped off his robes of state, put on sackcloth and sat in ashes. Then he 7 had a proclamation made in Nineveh: 'This is a decree of the king and his nobles. No man or beast, herd or flock, is to taste food, to graze or to drink water. They are to clothe themselves in 8 sackcloth and call on God with all their might. Let every man abandon his wicked ways and his habitual violence. It may be that God will repent and turn 9 away from his anger: and so we shall not perish.' God saw what they did, 10 and how they abandoned their wicked ways, and he repented and did not bring upon them the disaster he had threatened.

Jonah was greatly displeased and 4 angry, and he prayed to the LORD: 2 'This, O LORD, is what I feared when I was in my own country, and to forestall it I tried to escape to Tarshish; I knew that thou art "a god gracious and compassionate, long-suffering and ever constant, and always willing to repent of the disaster".<sup>a</sup> And now, 3 LORD, take my life: I should be better does whatever God commands. 2.1-9: Jonah's prayer, in form very like some of the psalms, is felt by many scholars to have been added. The images of drowning, however, are appropriate to the story, and the author himself may have used a psalm he already knew. Sheol (v. 2) and the pit (v. 6) signify the place of the dead. In terms of the satire, v. 8 is deeply ironic, as is perhaps victory (v. 9).

<sup>a</sup> a god . . . disaster: cp. Exod. 34. 6.

3.1-10: The conversion of Nineveh. 1-2: This second time, Jonah is not told why he is to denounce Nineveh, as he was before (1.2). 4-5: Nineveh was a large city by ancient standards, but not so vast as the storyteller measures. Three days' journey would be about fifty miles, a gross exaggeration of the size of Nineveh but consistent with the author's satire. When Jonah has gone only one-third of the way into the city, his work is finished! 10: The sincerity of Nineveh's response (like that of the sailors', ch. 1) prompts God on his own account to repent, the word meaning to regret and to change a previous decision.

4.1-11: Jonah's conversation with God. 1: Jonah is angry over his success! 2: Jonah quotes a conventional description of God's character, found in several other places (Exod.34.6; Num.14.18; Pss.103.8; 145.8; Joel 2.13), but he clearly wishes God were not so. 3: Compare this death wish with those of Moses (Num.11.15), of Elijah (1 Kgs.19.4), and of Job (Job ch. 3).

- 4 dead than alive.' 'Are you so angry?' faint. Then he prayed for death and 5 said the LORD. Jonah went out and sat said, 'I should be better dead than down on the east of the city. There he alive.' At this God said to Jonah, 'Are 9 made himself a shelter and sat in its you so angry over the gourd?' 'Yes,' shade, waiting to see what would he answered, 'mortally angry.' The 10 6 happen in the city. Then the LORD God LORD said, 'You are sorry for the ordained that a climbing gourd<sup>b</sup> should gourd, though you did not have the grow up over his head to throw its trouble of growing it, a plant which shade over him and relieve his distress, came up in a night and withered in a and Jonah was grateful for the gourd. night. And should not I be sorry for 11 7 But at dawn the next day God ordained the great city of Nineveh, with its that a worm should attack the gourd, hundred and twenty thousand who 8 and it withered; and at sunrise God cannot tell their right hand from their ordained that a scorching wind should left, and cattle without number?'
 blow up from the east. The sun beat down on Jonah's head till he grew

b a climbing gourd; or a castor-oil plant.

---

6: As he had before ordained the fish (1.17), God now ordained a plant to shelter Jonah. Gourd: exactly what kind of plant is meant is unknown. The Heb. for grateful is lit. "very happy."
 10: The basic idea of being sorry is that the tears flow in compassionate grief. 11: Since the cattle had previously repented (3.7-8), God is sorry for them too.

MICAH

If the prophets have a single message, it may be summed up thus: God can be counted on to care. When his people have succumbed to corruption or to overweening pride, his care shows itself in punishment; when they are in despair or have been overrun by an arrogant enemy, his care shows itself in encouraging and restoring them. So especially with Micah.

The unity of the book lies in presenting a God who is concerned with men and their life. That unity transcends a diversity of times and authors found in the book. Chapters 1-3 seem to come from the eighth century B.C., with portions from before 721, when the Assyrians demolished Israel and her capital, Samaria (see 1.5-6). Chapters 4-7 (except, perhaps, 5.5-6) seem to stem from the Babylonian Exile in the sixth century, or possibly even later.

The specific historical settings were helpful to the book's ancient readers, but not essential to them, for they were seeking its message of judgment and hope. These two elements appear alternately in the book. Judgment predominates in chs. 1-3, hope in chs. 4-5, judgment again in 6.1-7.6, and hope again in 7.7-20.

1 THIS IS THE WORD OF THE LORD which came to Micah of Moresheth during the reigns of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah; which he received in visions concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

The rulers of Israel and Judah denounced

2 Listen, you peoples, all together;
attend, O earth and all who are in it,
that the Lord GOD, the Lord from his holy temple,
may bear witness against you.
3 For look, the LORD is leaving his dwelling-place;
down he comes and walks on the heights of the earth.
4 Beneath him mountains dissolve
like wax before the fire, valleys are torn open,
as when torrents pour down the hill-side—
5 and all for the crime of Jacob and the sin of Israel.
What is the crime of Jacob? Is it not Samaria?

What is the hill-shrine of Judah? Is it not Jerusalem?

So I will make Samaria 6
a heap of ruins in open country,
a place for planting vines;
I will pour her stones down into the valley
and lay her foundations bare. 7
All her carved figures shall be shattered,
her images burnt one and all;
I will make a waste heap of all her idols.
She amassed them out of fees for harlotry,
and a harlot's fee shall they become once more.
Therefore I must howl and wail, 8
go naked and distraught;
I must howl like a wolf, mourn like a desert-owl.
Her wound cannot be healed; 9
for the stroke has bitten deep into Judah,
it has fallen on the gate of my
people,
upon Jerusalem itself.
Will you not weep your fill, weep 10
your eyes out in Gath?

1.1: Title. Micah means "Who is like?" and is probably a contraction of Micaiah, "Who is like the LORD?" Moresheth: a town in Judah, about twenty-three miles southwest of Jerusalem. The names of the kings date the man Micah between about 740 and 700 B.C. Samaria: the capital of Israel, conquered by Assyria in 721 B.C.

1.2-3.12: The rulers of Israel and Judah denounced. Several of the poems accuse leaders, others deal with the people.

1.2-9: The crimes of Israel and Judah. The LORD himself walks on the earth to destroy Samaria and Jerusalem. 5: That Samaria is the crime of Jacob appears in v. 7. Hill-shrine: an open-air fertility shrine; the prophet implies that Jerusalem is a center of idolatrous worship. 6: When a city was razed by an enemy, the site was leveled by pushing ruined stones into the valley surrounding it. 8: The prophet probably acted out this verse; see Jer.27.2; 28.10-11.

1.10-16: An invasion of Judah. The names of the towns seem to depict an invader's advance from the southwest toward Jerusalem. 10: Gath: a Philistine town. Beth-aphrah: northwest of

In Beth-apphrah sprinkle yourselves with dust;
11 take the road, you that dwell in Shaphir;
have not the people of Zaanan gone
out in shame from their city?
Beth-ezel is a place of lamentation,
she can lend you support no longer.
12 The people of Maroth are greatly alarmed,
for disaster has come down from the LORD
to the very gate of Jerusalem.
13 Harness the steeds to the chariot, O
people of Lachish,
for you first led the daughter of Zion
into sin;
to you must the crimes of Israel be traced.
14 Let Moreseth-gath be given her dismissal.
Beth-achzib has<sup>a</sup> disappointed<sup>b</sup> the kings of Israel.
15 And you too, O people of Mareshah,
I will send others to take your place;
and the glory of Israel shall hide in the cave of Adullam.
16 Shave the hair from your head in mourning
for the children of your delight;
make yourself bald as a vulture,
for they have left you and gone into exile.
2 Shame on those who lie in bed
planning evil and wicked deeds
and rise at daybreak to do them,
knowing that they have the power!
2 They covet land and take it by force;
if they want a house they seize it;

they rob a man of his home
and steal every man's inheritance.
Therefore these are the words of the LORD:
Listen, for this whole brood I am planning disaster,
whose yoke you cannot shake from
your necks
and walk upright; it shall be your hour of disaster.
On that day
they shall take up a poem about
you
and raise a lament thrice told,
saying, 'We are utterly despoiled:
the land of the LORD's<sup>c</sup> people changes hands.
How shall a man have power<sup>d</sup>
to restore our fields, now parcelled out<sup>e</sup>?'
Therefore there shall be no one to assign to you any portion by lot in the LORD's assembly.
How they rant! They may say, 'Do not rant';
but this ranting is all their own,
these insults are their<sup>f</sup> own invention.
Can one ask, O house of Jacob,
'Is the LORD's patience truly at an end?
Are these his deeds?'

<sup>a</sup> Beth-achzib has: prob. rdg.; Heb. The houses of Achzib have.
<sup>b</sup> Heb. achzab.
<sup>c</sup> the LORD's: prob. rdg.; Heb. my.
<sup>d</sup> have power: prob. rdg.; Heb. remove from me.
<sup>e</sup> now parcelled out: prob. rdg.; Heb. he will parcel out.
<sup>f</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. his.

Hebron; dust is a pun on its name, "house of dust." 11: Shaphir: probably near Beth-apphrah. Zaanan: perhaps near Lachish (v. 13); gone out is a pun on the name. Beth-ezel: to the south of Beth-apphrah. 12: Maroth: perhaps northeast of Beth-apphrah. 13: Lachish: an important fortress about thirty miles from Jerusalem; to the chariot may be a pun on the name. The historical allusion is obscure. 14: Moreseth-gath: the same as Moreseth, v. 1. Beth-achzib: east of Moreseth; disappointed puns on the name. 15: Mareshah: northeast of Lachish; take your place, puns on the name. Adullam: east of Achzib; its cave was once David's headquarters (2 Sam.23.13). 16: To shave the hair was a sign of deep mourning.

2.1-5: Punishment for evil schemes. Those who plan wickedness (v. 1) will find that the LORD is planning for them (v. 3). Disaster: the same Heb. word as wicked, v. 1. 5: A Hebrew acquired valid possession of a portion of land by lot: see Num.26.55; Josh.14.2.

2.6-11: False prophecy. 6: Rant: a sarcastic word for prophecy (in Amos 7.16 the Heb. word which is here rendered "rant," is there translated "go drivelling on"). 7: The false prophets cannot understand how any words said in the name of the LORD would not be acceptable. Vv. 8-10 show why.

- Does not good come of the LORD's words?
 He is the upright man's best friend.'
- 8 But you are no<sup>g</sup> people for me, rising up as my enemy to my<sup>h</sup> face, to strip the cloak from him that was safe<sup>i</sup> and take away the confidence of returning warriors,
- 9 to drive the women of my people from their pleasant homes and rob the children of my glory for ever.
- 10 Up and be gone; this is no resting-place for you, you that to defile yourselves would commit any mischief, mischief however cruel.
- 11 If anyone had gone about in a spirit of falsehood and lies, saying, 'I will rant to you of wine and strong drink', his ranting would be what this people like.
- 12 I will assemble you, the whole house of Jacob;
 I will gather together those that are left in Israel.
 I will herd them like sheep in a fold, like a grazing flock which stampedes at the sight of a man.
- 13 So their leader breaks out before them, and they all break through the gate and escape, and their king goes before them, and the LORD leads the way.
- 3 And I said:
 Listen, you leaders of Jacob, rulers of Israel, should you not know what is right?
 2 You hate good and love evil, you flay men alive and tear the very flesh from their bones;
 3 you devour the flesh of my people, strip off their skin, splinter their bones;
- you shred them like flesh into a pot, like meat into a cauldron.
- Then they will call to the LORD, and he will give them no answer; when that time comes he will hide his face from them, so wicked are their deeds.
- These are the words of the LORD concerning the prophets who lead my people astray, who promise prosperity in return for a morsel of food, who proclaim a holy war against them if they put nothing into their mouths:
- Therefore night shall bring you no vision, darkness no divination; the sun shall go down on the prophets, the day itself shall be black above them.
- Seers and diviners alike shall blush for shame; they shall all put their hands over their mouths, because there is no answer from God.
- But I am full of strength,<sup>j</sup> of justice and power, to denounce his crime to Jacob and his sin to Israel.
- Listen to this, leaders of Jacob, rulers of Israel, you who make justice hateful and wrest it from its straight course, building Zion in bloodshed and Jerusalem in iniquity.
- Her rulers sell justice, her priests give direction in return for a bribe, her prophets take money for their divination, and yet men rely on the LORD. 'Is not the LORD among us?' they say; 'then no disaster can befall us.' Therefore, on your account

g But . . . no; prob. rdg.; Heb. But yesterday.
 h my; prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
 i the cloak . . . safe; prob. rdg.; Heb. mantle, cloak.
 j Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the spirit of the LORD.

2.12-3.4: Against the leaders. The metaphor of a flock begins (2.12) as if a promise of protection, but becomes (3.1) a denunciation of the rulers. 4: Them: the rulers.

3.5-12: Against the prophets. Because the professional prophets suit their oracles to their employers, they will get no answer from God (v. 7). 12: The verse is quoted in Jeremiah's trial (Jer.26.18) as proof that prophets may say offensive things without being punished.

Zion shall become a ploughed field,
 Jerusalem a heap of ruins,
 and the temple hill rough heath.

A remnant restored in an age of peace

4<sup>k</sup> In days to come the mountain of the LORD's house shall be set over all other mountains, lifted high above the hills.
 Peoples shall come streaming to it,
 2 and many nations shall come and say,
 'Come, let us climb up on to the mountain of the LORD,
 to the house of the God of Jacob,
 that he may teach us his ways
 and we may walk in his paths.'
 For instruction issues from Zion, and out of Jerusalem comes the word of the LORD;
 3 he will be judge between many peoples
 and arbiter among mighty nations
 afar.
 They shall beat their swords into mattocks
 and their spears into pruning-knives;
 nation shall not lift sword against
 nation
 nor ever again be trained for war, 4 and each man shall dwell under his own vine,
 under his own fig-tree,
 undisturbed.
 For the LORD of Hosts himself has spoken.
 5 All peoples may walk, each in the name of his god,
 but we will walk in the name of the LORD our God
 for ever and ever.

On that day, says the LORD, 6
 I will gather those who are lost;
 I will assemble the exiles and I will strengthen the weaklings.
 I will preserve the lost as a remnant 7
 and turn the derelict into a mighty
 nation.
 The LORD shall be their king on Mount Zion
 now and for ever.
 And you, rocky bastion, hill of 8
 Zion's daughter,
 the promises to you shall be fulfilled;
 and your former sovereignty shall come again,
 the dominion of the daughter of Jerusalem.
 Why are you now filled with alarm? 9
 Have you no king?
 Have you no counsellor left,
 that you are seized with writhing
 like a woman in labour?
 Lie writhing on the ground like a 10
 woman in childbirth,
 O daughter of Zion;
 for now you must leave the city
 and camp in the open country;
 and so you will come to Babylon.
 There you shall be saved,
 there the LORD will deliver you from your enemies.
 But now many nations are massed 11
 against you;
 they say, 'Let her suffer outrage,
 let us gloat over 'Zion.'
 But they do not know the LORD's 12 thoughts
 nor understand his purpose;
 for he has gathered them like sheaves
 to the threshing-floor.
 Start your threshing, daughter of 13
 Zion;

k Verses 1-3: cp. Isa. 2. 2-4.

4.1-5.15: A contrite people is restored in the LORD's favor. Because these poems seem, in part, to presuppose the Babylonian Exile (beginning in 587 B.C.) they do not come from Micah's time, though 5.5-6 may. 1-3: Identical with Isa.2.2-4, the tone of the poem suggests a time after the sixth century B.C. 1: Mountain: the hill on which the Jerusalem Temple stands will be elevated to the highest position in the world. 4: A figure of peace and security. 5: In contradiction to v. 2, with its subordination of other peoples to the LORD, this verse is unusually tolerant of other deities.

4.6-13: Suffering and triumph. The poem moves back and forth between these two themes. 7: The remnant are the survivors of the Babylonian conquest and Exile; see 5.3 and compare Ezek.34.11-16. 9-11: Suffering must be undergone in order that Judah shall be saved. 12-13: Judah will now triumph over these enemies. Horns and hooves: The metaphor is of an animal tramping on grain to thresh it.

- for I will make your horns of iron,
 your hooves will I make of bronze,
 and you shall crush many peoples.
 You shall devote their ill-gotten gain to the LORD,
 their wealth to the Lord of all the earth.
- 5 Get you behind your walls, you people of a walled city;
 the siege is pressed home against you:
 Israel's ruler shall be struck on the cheek with a rod.
- 2 But you, Bethlehem in Ephrathah, small as you are to be among Judah's clans,
 out of you shall come forth a governor for Israel,
 one whose roots are far back in the past, in days gone by.
- 3 Therefore only so long as a woman is in labour
 shall he give up Israel;
 and then those that survive of his race
 shall rejoin their brethren.
- 4 He shall appear and be their shepherd
 in the strength of the LORD, in the majesty of the name of the LORD his God.
 And they shall continue, for now his greatness shall reach
 to the ends of the earth;
- 5 and he shall be a man of peace.
- When the Assyrian comes into our land,
 when he tramples our castles,
 we will raise against him seven men or eight
 to be shepherds and princes.
- 6 They shall shepherd Assyria with the sword
 and the land of Nimrod with bare blades;
- they shall deliver us from the Assyrians
 when they come into our land,
 when they trample our frontiers.
- All that are left of Jacob, surrounded 7
 by many peoples,
 shall be like dew from the LORD,
 like copious showers on the grass,
 which do not wait for man's command
 or linger for any man's bidding.
 All that are left of Jacob among the 8
 nations,
 surrounded by many peoples,
 shall be like a lion among the beasts
 of the forest,
 like a young lion loose in a flock
 of sheep;
 as he prowls he will trample and tear them,
 with no rescuer in sight.
 Your hand shall be raised high over 9
 your foes,
 and all who hate you shall be destroyed.
- On that day, says the LORD, 10
 I will destroy all your horses
 among you
 and make away with your chariots.
 I will destroy the cities of your land 11
 and raze your fortresses.
 I will destroy all your sorcerers, 12
 and there shall be no more soothsayers among you.
 I will destroy your images and all the 13
 sacred pillars in your land;
 you shall no longer bow in reverence
 before things your own hands made.
 I will pull down the sacred poles in 14
 your land,
 and demolish your blood-
 spattered altars.
 In anger and fury will I take 15
 vengeance
 on all nations who disobey me.

5.1-6: A coming ruler. 1: Struck: some humiliation may have been part of the installation of a Hebrew king, as it was in Babylon. 2: Bethlehem in Ephrathah was David's city; his family was called Ephrathite (see 1 Sam.17.12). The poem predicts the restoration (v. 4) of David's dynasty. The verse is paraphrased in Mt.2.6. 3: Those that survive: the exiled Judeans. 5-6: See Introduction. Judah will beat back an Assyrian threat. Shepherds: as in v. 4, probably a term for kings. Nimrod: equivalent to Assyria; see Gen.10.8-12.

5.7-15: Future security and fidelity. 10-15: Although the context appears to suggest that these verses are addressed to Assyria, the prophets often denounced Israel for such illicit practices as those in vv. 12-14 (see, e.g. Isa.2.6-8). If Israel, rather than Assyria, is addressed, these verses are a separate poem. 13: Sacred pillars: phallic symbols. 14: Sacred poles: objects representing the Canaanite goddess Asherah. Their precise nature is not known.

Israel denounced for her people's sins

my children for my own sin?

6 Hear now what the LORD is saying:

Up, state your case to the mountains;
let the hills hear your plea.

2 Hear the LORD's case, you
mountains,
you everlasting pillars that bear
up the earth;
for the LORD has a case against his
people,
and will argue it with Israel.

3 O my people, what have I done to
you?

Tell me how I have wearied you;
answer me this.

4 I brought you up from Egypt,
I ransomed you from the land of slavery,
I sent Moses and Aaron and Miriam
to lead you.

5 Remember, my people,
what Balak king of Moab schemed
against you,
and how Balaam son of Beor
answered him;
consider the journey<sup>l</sup> from Shittim
to Gilgal,
in order that you may know the triumph of the LORD.

6 What shall I bring when I approach
the LORD?

How shall I stoop before God on high?

Am I to approach him with whole-offerings or yearling calves?

7 Will the LORD accept thousands of rams

or ten thousand rivers of oil?
Shall I offer my eldest son for my own wrongdoing,

God<sup>m</sup> has told you what is good;
and what is it that the LORD asks
of you?

Only to act justly, to love loyalty,
to walk wisely before your God.

Hark, the LORD, the fear of whose name brings success,
the LORD calls to the city.

10 Listen, O tribe of Judah and citizens in assembly,<sup>n</sup>
can I overlook<sup>o</sup> the infamous false measure,<sup>p</sup>

the accursed short bushel?

Can I connive at false scales or a bag of light weights?

12 Your rich men are steeped in violence,
your townsmen are all liars,
and their tongues frame deceit.

But now I will inflict a signal punishment on you

to lay you waste for your sins:
you shall eat but not be satisfied, 14 your food shall lie heavy on your stomach;

you shall come to labour but not bring forth,

and even if you bear a child
I will give it to the sword;

you shall sow but not reap, 15 you shall press the olives but not use
the oil,

you shall tread the grapes but not drink the wine.

You have kept the precepts of 16 Omri;

what the house of Ahab did, you have done;

l consider the journey: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
m God: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

n citizens in assembly: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

o can I overlook: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

p Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds infamous treasures.

6.1–16: God accuses a wayward people. The poem takes its form from a lawsuit.

6.1–2: Preamble. The mountains and hills are called as witnesses to the trial. The Hebrews believed that the earth rested upon pillars (compare Prov.8.29).

6.3–16: The LORD's past deeds. 4: Aaron and Miriam: brother and sister of Moses (see Exod.4.14; 15.20). 5: Balaam, the Mesopotamian diviner, was called by Balak to curse Israel but he blessed her instead; see Num. chs. 22–24. Shittim: east of the Jordan, where Israel was encamped after the Balaam episode (Num.25.1). Gilgal: Israel's first stopping place after crossing the Jordan under Joshua (Josh.4.19–5.9). The journey was the latter part of the Wilderness wandering before the conquest of Canaan. Triumph: the word also means "righteousness."

6: Stoop: bow humbly. 7: The overstatement suggests mild sarcasm or banter. Eldest son: Israelites at one time offered human sacrifices to Molech (see 2 Kgs.23.10; Jer.32.35). 8: The answer to the question implies the validity of ritual as a fulfillment of God's demands. Justly: to obey the legal side of the covenant. The injunction is to love, rather than merely to practice loyalty. 13–16: The punishment precludes any prosperity. 16: Omri: king of Israel you have followed all their ways.

So I will lay you utterly waste;
the nations shall jeer at your
citizens,
and their insults you shall bear.

Disappointment turned to hope

7 Alas! I am now like the last gatherings of summer fruit,
the last gleanings of the vintage,
when there are no grapes left to eat,
none of those early figs that I love.
2 Loyal men have vanished from the earth,
there is not one upright man.
All lie in wait to do murder,
each man drives his own kinsman
like a hunter into the net.
3 They are bent eagerly on wrongdoing,
the officer who presents the requests,<sup>q</sup>
the judge who gives judgement<sup>r</sup> for reward,
and the nobleman who harps on his desires.
4 Thus their goodness is twisted<sup>s</sup> like rank weeds
and their honesty like briars.<sup>t</sup>
As soon as thine eye sees, thy punishment falls;
at that moment bewilderment seizes
them.
5 Trust no neighbour, put no confidence in your closest friend;
seal your lips even from the wife of your bosom.
6 For son maligns father,
daughter rebels against mother,
daughter-in-law against mother-
in-law,
and a man's enemies are his own household.
7 But I will look for the LORD,
I will wait for God my saviour; my God will hear me.

O my enemies, do not exult over 8
me;
I have fallen, but shall rise again;
though I dwell in darkness, the LORD is my light.
I will bear the anger of the LORD, 9
for I have sinned against him, until he takes up my cause and gives judgement for me,
until he brings me out into light, and I see his justice.
Then may my enemies see and be 10
abashed,
those who said to me, 'Where is he,
the LORD your God?'
Then shall they be trampled like mud
in the streets;
I shall gloat over them;
that will be a day for rebuilding 11
your walls,
a day when your frontiers will be extended,
a day when men will come seeking 12
you
from Assyria to Egypt
and from Egypt to the Euphrates,
from every sea and every mountain;
and the earth with its inhabitants 13
shall be waste.
This shall be the fruit of their deeds.

Shepherd thy people with thy crook, 14
the flock that is thy very own,
that dwells by itself on the heath and in the meadows;
let them graze in Bashan and Gilead,
as in days gone by.
Show us<sup>u</sup> miracles as in the days 15
when thou camest out of Egypt;
let the nations see and be taken 16
aback for all their might,
let them keep their mouths shut,
make their ears deaf,
let them lick the dust like snakes, 17

q the requests: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
r who gives judgement: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
s twisted: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
t their honesty like briars: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
u Prob. rdg.; Heb. I will show him.

(1 Kgs.16.16–28), about 876–869 B.C., father of Ahab (1 Kgs.16.29–22.40). Exactly what is meant by the precepts of Omri is not certain. Ahab fostered Baal worship in Israel; see 1 Kgs.16.32–33.

7.1–20: Penance and expectation of fulfillment. 1–6: Social chaos is vividly portrayed, from corrupt officials (v. 3) to the failure of trust even within the family (vv. 5–6). 7–20: Hope for the future comes from looking to the LORD, who will restore Israel. 14–20: The restoration of Israel. 14: The figure of the LORD as a shepherd (compare Ps.23) protecting his flock was a familiar one. Bashan and Gilead were fertile grazing areas. 15: Out of Egypt: the Exodus. 17: Lick the dust is a like creatures that crawl upon the ground.		but delightest in love that will not change.

	Let them come trembling and fearful from their strongholds, let them fear thee, O LORD our God.		Once more thou wilt show us tender affection and wash out our guilt, casting all our sins into the depths of the sea.	19
18	Who is a god like thee? Thou takest away guilt, thou passest over the sin of the remnant of thy own people, thou dost not let thy anger rage for ever		Thou wilt show good faith to Jacob, unchanging love to Abraham, as thou didst swear to our fathers in days gone by.	20

---

figure for complete defeat; see Gen.3.14. 18: Love is the same Heb. word as "loyalty," 6.8 n.
20: Jacob and Abraham are symbols for the descendants.

NAHUM

Nahum stands at the end of an epoch. For 150 years, Assyria has oppressed the Near Eastern world, but now (612 B.C.) Nineveh, its capital, has fallen to the Babylonians (chs. 2-3). The victory over the Assyrians belongs to the LORD, who moves both men and mountains (1.6). (Nahum does not seem to know that a terrible blow will fall on Judah from the Babylonians in 597 B.C.).

As a prophet, Nahum emphasizes two matters: Nineveh has received what it deserves at the LORD's hands, and, as a result, Judah can return to normal life. As a poet, Nahum is exceedingly gifted. Though neither especially profound nor original, he is capable of superb pictorial effects, as in 2.1-10, and of vivid metaphor, as in 2.11-13. The remains of an originally effective, though now disordered, acrostic poem (one in which each couplet begins with successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet) is to be found in 1.2-14.

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 1 An oracle about Nineveh: the book of the vision of Nahum the Elkoshite. The vengeance of the LORDon his enemies 2<sup>a</sup> The LORD is a jealous god, a god of vengeance;the LORD takes vengeance and is quick to anger.<sup>b</sup> 3 <sup>c</sup>In whirlwind and storm he goes on his way,and the clouds are the dust beneath his feet. 4 He rebukes the sea and dries it up and makes all the streams fail.Bashan and Carmel languish,and on Lebanon the young shoots wither. 5 The mountains quake before him, the hills heave and swell,and the earth, the world and all that lives in it,are in tumult at his presence. 6 Who can stand before his wrath?Who can resist his fury?His anger pours out<sup>d</sup> like a stream of fire,and the rocks melt<sup>e</sup> before him. 7 The LORD is a sure refugefor those who look to him in time of distress; | he cares for all who seek his protectionand brings them safely<sup>f</sup> through the sweeping flood;he makes a final end of all who oppose himand pursues his enemies into darkness.No adversaries dare oppose him twice;all are burnt up<sup>g</sup> like tangled briars.Why do you make plots against the LORD?He himself will make an end of you all.From you has come forth a wicked counsellor,plotting evil against the LORD.The LORD takes vengeance on his adversaries,against his enemies he directs his wrath;with skin scorched black, they are consumedlike stubble that is parched and dry. |
|---|--|

a Verses 2-14 are an incomplete alphabetic acrostic poem; some parts have been re-arranged accordingly.

b The rest of verse 2, The LORD takes . . . wrath, transposed to verse 11.

c Prob. rdg.: Heb. inserts two lines The LORD is long-suffering and of great might, but the LORD does not sweep clean away.

d pours out: or fuses or melts.

e Prob. rdg.: Heb. are torn down.

f brings them safely: prob. rdg.: Heb. om.

g all are burnt up: prob. rdg.: Heb. for until.

1.1: Title. Nineveh: see Introduction. Nahum means "comforted." The location of Elkosh is unknown.

1.2-11: Turbulence, oppression, and revenge are rampant. An acrostic; see Introduction. The imagery is cosmic in character (e.g., whirlwind, storm, sea, earth, flood, darkness); the victory over the unnamed but universal enemy is also in a cosmic setting. 4: Bashan: east of the Jordan. Carmel: a mountain range on the northern coast. Lebanon: mountains northwest of Canaan. All three places were notably fertile. 6: Fire and rocks melting: frequent images of the LORD's appearance (see, e.g. Mic.1.4). 9-11: Wicked counsellor: obscure; probably no specific individual is meant, unless it is Sennacherib, as some interpreters would have it. Skin scorched: a sign of defeat and adversity; see Lam.5.10.

Israel and Judah rid of the invaders

These are the words of the LORD:

- 13 Now I will break his yoke from
your necks
and snap the cords that bind you.
14 Image and idol will I hew down in the house of your God.
This is what the LORD has ordained
for you:
never again shall your offspring be scattered;
and I will grant you burial, fickle
though you have been.
12 Has the punishment been so great?
Yes, but it has passed away and is gone.
I have afflicted you, but I will not afflict you again.
15 See on the mountains the feet of the herald
who brings good news.
Make your pilgrimages, O Judah,
and pay your vows.
For wicked men shall never again
overrun you;
they are totally destroyed.
2.2<sup>h</sup> The LORD will restore the pride of Jacob and Israel alike,
although plundering hordes have stripped them bare
and pillaged their vines.

Nineveh's enemies triumphant

- 1 The battering-ram is mounted against your bastions,
the siege is closing in.
Watch the road and brace yourselves;
put forth all your strength.
3 The shields of their warriors are gleaming red,
their soldiers are all in scarlet;
their chariots, when the line is formed,
are like flickering<sup>i</sup> fire;

- squadrons of horse advance on the 4
city in mad frenzy;<sup>j</sup> they jostle one another in the outskirts, like waving torches;
the leaders display their prowess<sup>k</sup> 5
as they dash to and fro like
lightning,
rushing<sup>l</sup> in headlong career;
they hasten to the wall, and mantelets
are set in position.
The sluices of the rivers are opened, 6
the palace topples down;
the train of captives goes into exile, 7
their slave-girls are carried off, moaning like doves and beating
their breasts;
and Nineveh has become like a 8
pool of water,
like the waters round her, which are ebbing away.
'Stop! Stop!' they cry; but none turns back.
Spoil is taken, spoil of silver and 9
gold;
there is no end to the store,
treasure beyond the costliest that man can desire.
Plundered, pillaged, stripped bare! 10
Courage melting and knees giving
way,
writhing limbs, and faces drained of colour!
Where now is the lions' den, 11
the cave<sup>m</sup> where the lion cubs
lurked,
where the lion and<sup>n</sup> lioness and young cubs
went unafraid,
the lion which killed to satisfy its 12
whelps
and for its mate broke the neck of the kill,

<sup>h</sup> Verses 1 and 2 transposed.

<sup>i</sup> Flickering: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>j</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds chariots.

<sup>k</sup> display their prowess; or shout their own names.

<sup>l</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. stumbling.

<sup>m</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. pasture.

<sup>n</sup> and: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

1.13-15; 2.2: No more shall Israel and Judah be overrun. 13: Judah was Assyria's vassal from about 734 until into Josiah's reign (640-609 B.C.). 14: To be denied burial was the final and most ignominious punishment of the LORD's enemies; compare Ezek.39.4. 15: See on the mountains: compare Isa.52.7. Pilgrimages: the three yearly festivals of Exod.23.14-17; 34.23. 2.2: Here, as elsewhere, the restoration of Israel, exiled after being overrun in 721 B.C., is predicted.

2.1-3.19: The destruction of Nineveh. The poem is powerfully pictorial. We need not suppose that Nahum was present; an active imagination is enough. 6: Sluices: the sluice-gates of the Tigris River, the opening of which caused Nineveh to be flooded. 11-13: The lion is often a

- mauling its prey to fill its lair, filling its den with the mauled prey?
- 13 I am against you, says the LORD of Hosts,
I will smoke out your pride,<sup>o</sup>
and a sword shall devour your cubs.
I will leave you no more prey on the earth,
and the sound of your feeding<sup>p</sup>
shall no more be heard.
- 3 Ah! blood-stained city, steeped in deceit,
full of pillage, never empty of prey!
- 2 Hark to the crack of the whip,
the rattle of wheels and stamping of horses,
3 bounding chariots, chargers rearing,
swords gleaming, flash of spears!
The dead are past counting, their bodies lie in heaps,
corpses innumerable, men stumbling
over corpses—
- 4 all for a wanton's monstrous
wantonness,
fair-seeming, a mistress of sorcery,
who beguiled nations and tribes
by her wantonness and her sorceries.
- 5 I am against you, says the LORD of Hosts,
I will uncover your breasts to your disgrace
and expose your naked body to every nation,
to every kingdom your shame.
- 6 I will cast loathsome filth over you,
I will count you obscene and treat
you like excrement.
- 7 Then all who see you will shrink
from you and say,
'Nineveh is laid waste; who will console her?'
Where shall I look for anyone to comfort you?
- 8 Will you fare better than No-amon?—
she that lay by the streams of the Nile,
surrounded by water,
- whose rampart was the Nile, waters
her wall;
Cush and Egypt were her strength,
and it was boundless,
9 Put and the Libyans brought her help.
She too became an exile and went 10 into captivity,
her infants too were dashed to the ground at every street-corner,
her nobles were shared out by lot,
all her great men were thrown into chains.
You too shall hire yourself out,
11 flaunting your sex;
you too shall seek refuge from the enemy.
Your fortifications are like figs when 12 they ripen:
if they are shaken, they fall into the mouth of the eater.
The troops<sup>q</sup> in your midst are a 13 pack of women,
the gates of your country stand open to the enemy,
and fire consumes their bars.
14 Draw yourselves water for the siege,
strengthen your fortifications;
down into the clay, trample the mortar,
repair the brickwork.
Even then the fire will consume you,
15 and the sword will cut you down.<sup>r</sup> Make yourselves many as the locusts,
make yourselves many as the
hoppers,
16 a swarm which spreads out and then flies away.
You have spies as numerous as the stars in the sky;
17 your secret agents are like locusts,
your commanders like the hoppers which lie dormant in the walls on a cold day;
but when the sun rises, they scurry
off,
and no one knows where they have gone.

<sup>o</sup> your pride: prob. rdg.: Heb. her chariot.

<sup>p</sup> your feeding: prob. rdg.: Heb. your messenger.

<sup>q</sup> Or people.

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds and consume you like the locust (or hopper).

metaphor of a ruthless nation; the use here is ironic. Assyrian kings hunting lions are portrayed on some relief sculptures. 3.8: No-amon: Thebes in Egypt, captured by the Assyrians in 662 B.C. 9: Cush: Ethiopia. Put: west of Egypt, as was Libya. 10: Captivity: compare Isa.20.4;

- 18 Your shepherds slumber, O king of Assyria,
 your flock-masters lie down to rest;
 your troops<sup>s</sup> are scattered over the hills,
 and no one rounds them up.
- Your wounds cannot be assuaged, your injury is mortal;
 all who have heard of your fate clap their hands in joy.
 Are there any whom your ceaseless cruelty has not borne down?
s Or people.
- 19

---

Shared out by lot: see Joel 3.3; Obad.11. 18-19: Written in dirgelike rhythm, this poem is not dirgelike in its gloating joy.

- and dismayed are all those whose strength was their god.
- 12 Art thou not from of old, O LORD?—
my God, the holy, the immortal.<sup>c</sup>
O LORD, it is thou who hast appointed them to execute judgement;
O mighty God, thou who hast destined them to chastise,
- 13 thou whose eyes are too pure to look upon evil,
and who canst not countenance wrongdoing,
why dost thou countenance the treachery of the wicked?
Why keep silent when they devour men more righteous than they?
- 14 Why dost thou make men like the fish of the sea,
like gliding creatures that obey no ruler?
- 15 They haul them up with hooks, one and all,
they catch them in nets
and drag them in their trawls;
then they make merry and rejoice,
sacrificing to their nets
and burning offerings<sup>d</sup> to their trawls;
for by these they live sumptuously
and enjoy rich fare.
- 17 Are they then to unsheathe the sword every day,
to slaughter the nations without pity?
- 2 I will stand at my post,
I will take up my position on the watch-tower,
I will watch to learn what he will say through me,
and what I shall reply when I am challenged.<sup>e</sup>
- Then the LORD made answer: 2
Write down the vision, inscribe it on tablets, ready for a herald to carry it with speed;<sup>f</sup>
for there is still a vision for the appointed time. 3
At the destined hour it will come in breathless haste, it will not fail.
If it delays, wait for it;
for when it comes will be no time to linger.
- The reckless will be unsure of himself, 4
while the righteous man will live by being faithful;<sup>g</sup>
as for the traitor in his overconfidence, 5
still less will he ride out the storm,
for all his bragging.
Though he opens his mouth as wide as Sheol
and is insatiable as Death,
gathering in all the nations,
making all peoples his own harvest,
surely they will all turn upon him 6
with insults and abuse, and say,
'Woe betide you who heap up wealth that is not yours<sup>h</sup> and enrich yourself with goods taken in pledge!'
Will not your creditors suddenly 7
start up,
will not all awake who would shake you till you are empty,
and will you not fall a victim to them?

<sup>c</sup> the immortal: prob. original rdg., altered in Heb. to we shall not die.

<sup>d</sup> Or incense.

<sup>e</sup> when I am challenged: or concerning my complaint.

<sup>f</sup> ready . . . speed: or so that a man may read it easily.

<sup>g</sup> Or by his faithfulness (cp. Romans 1. 17; Galatians 3. 11).

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds till when.

1.12–2.1: Is God just? The first question (v. 12) carries a subtle uncertainty. Is God in charge? Has he indeed appointed the Chaldeans for judgement, to chastise? How can he countenance wrongdoing? How can he allow evil men to devour men more righteous? The images of fishing (vv. 14–16) imply man's insignificance before God and God's seeming unconcern at the inhuman tragedies in man's life. 2.1: The prophet sees himself as the outpost of human consciousness to pick up God's faintest message to man and regards himself as a responsible spokesman for man before God.

2.2–20: God's answer. 2: Habakkuk is to record the vision, so that others besides him can know it. Speed: older translations read: "that he who runs may read." 4: The vision contrasts what will happen to the reckless (the Chaldeans) and to the righteous man. The verse is quoted in Rom.1.17 and Gal.3.11, as well as in rabbinic literature; here, being faithful implies fidelity or loyalty to the deity rather than a belief-centered faith. 5: A delineation of the traitor, about whom a series of woes begins in v. 6b, is given. Sheol: the place of the dead.

2.6–8: First Woe. The exploiting creditor finds himself mercilessly exploited and despoiled.

- 8 Because you yourself have plundered mighty<sup>i</sup> nations,
all the rest of the world will plunder
you,
because of bloodshed and
violence done in the land,
to the city and all its inhabitants.
- 9 Woe betide you who seek unjust
gain for your house,
to build your nest on a height,
to save yourself from the grasp of wicked men!
- 10 Your schemes to overthrow mighty<sup>i</sup>
nations
will bring dishonour to your house
and put your own life in jeopardy.
- 11 The very stones will cry out from the wall,
and from the timbers a beam will answer them.
- 12 Woe betide you who have built a town with bloodshed
and founded a city on fraud,
so that nations toil for a pittance,
and peoples weary themselves for a mere nothing!
- Is not all this the doing of the LORD of Hosts?
- 14 For the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the glory of the LORD
as the waters fill the sea.
- 15 Woe betide you who make your<sup>j</sup> companions drink the outpouring of your wrath, making them drunk, that you may watch their naked orgies!
- 16 Drink deep draughts of shame, not
of glory;
you too shall drink until you stagger.
- The cup in the LORD's right hand
is passed to you,
and your shame will exceed<sup>k</sup> your glory.
The violence done to Lebanon 17
shall sweep over you,
the havoc done to its beasts shall break your own spirit,
because of bloodshed and violence
done in the land,
to the city and all its inhabitants.
- What use is an idol when its maker 18
has shaped it?—
it is only an image, a source of lies;
or when the maker trusts what he has made?—
he is only making dumb idols.
- Woe betide him who says to the 19
wood, 'Wake up', to the dead stone, 'Bestir yourself'!<sup>l</sup> Why, it is firmly encased in gold and silver
and has no breath in it.
But the LORD is in his holy temple; 20
let all the earth be hushed in his presence.
- A prayer for mercy*
- A prayer of the prophet Habakkuk. 3
- O LORD, I have heard tell of thy 2
deeds;
I have seen, O LORD, thy work.<sup>m</sup>
In the midst of the years thou didst make thyself known,

i Or many.

j Prob. rdg.; Heb. his.

k will exceed; prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

l Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds he will teach.

m Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds in the midst of the years quicken it.

8a: See Isa.33.1; Zech.2.8. 8b: The phrase, to the city and all its inhabitants, recurs in v. 17. 2.9–11: Second Woe. The very attempts of the wicked to establish their honor and security become for them shame and destruction.

2.12–14: Third Woe. Against those who turn the conquered into slave labor. V. 14 is a liturgical formula (see also v. 20).

2.15–17: Fourth Woe. Against the conqueror's extreme cruelty. The cup of wrath is usually a symbol of the LORD's anger (Isa.51.17–23; Jer.25.15–29); here the conqueror is usurping the LORD's prerogative. Lebanon: mountains northwest of Israel.

2.18–20: Fifth Woe. Against the folly of idolatry. 20: A liturgical formula; see v. 14. Be hushed: in awe; see also Zeph.1.7 and Zech.2.13.

3.1–19: Habakkuk's supplication. The text is poorly preserved (and hence the unusually large number of corrections the translators have made). The poem seems to be an old cultic prayer, celebrating the LORD's march from the region of Sinai to save his people; see also Judg.5.4;

	and in thy wrath thou didst remember mercy.	Thou goest forth to save thy people, thou comest to save thy anointed; thou dost shatter the wicked man's house from the roof down, <sup>v</sup> uncovering its foundations to the bare rock. <sup>w</sup>	13
3	God comes from Teman, the Holy One from Mount Paran; his radiance overspreads the skies, and his splendour fills the earth.	Thou piercest their <sup>x</sup> chiefs with thy <sup>y</sup> shafts, and their leaders are torn from them by the whirlwind, as they open <sup>z</sup> their jaws to devour their wretched victims in secret.	14
4	He rises like the dawn, with twin rays starting forth at his side; the skies are <sup>n</sup> the hiding-place of his majesty, and the everlasting <sup>o</sup> ways are for <sup>p</sup> his swift flight. <sup>q</sup>	When thou dost tread the sea with thy horses the mighty waters boil. I hear, and my belly quakes; my lips quiver at the sound; trembling comes over my bones, and my feet totter in their tracks; I sigh for the day of distress to dawn over my assailants.	15
5	Pestilence stalks before him, and plague comes forth behind.	Although the fig-tree does not burgeon, the vines bear no fruit, the olive-crop fails, the orchards yield no food, the fold is bereft of its flock and there are no cattle in the stalls, yet I will exult in the LORD	16
6	He stands still and shakes the earth, he looks and makes the nations tremble; the eternal mountains are riven, the everlasting <sup>r</sup> hills subside,	and rejoice in the God of my deliverance. The LORD God is my strength, who makes my feet nimble as a hind's and sets me to range the heights.	17
7	the tents of Cushan are snatched away, <sup>s</sup> the tent-curtains of Midian flutter.
8	Art thou angry with the streams? Is thy wrath against the sea, O LORD? When thou dost mount thy horses, thy riding is to victory.
9	Thou dost draw thy bow from its case <sup>t</sup> and charge thy quiver with shafts. Thou cleavest the earth with rivers;
10-11	the mountains see thee and writhe with fear. The torrent of water rushes by, and the deep sea thunders aloud. The sun forgets to turn in his course, <sup>u</sup> and the moon stands still at her zenith, at the gleam of thy speeding arrows and the glance of thy flashing spear.
12	With threats thou dost bstride the earth and trample down the nations in anger.

n the skies are: prob. rdg.; Heb. there is.
o Or ancient.
p and . . . are for: transposed from end of verse 6.
q his swift flight: transposed, with slight change, from verse 7.
r Or ancient.
s are snatched away: prob. rdg.; Heb. under wickedness.
t Thou . . . case: prob. rdg.; Heb. Thy bow was quite bared.
u The sun . . . course: prob. rdg.; Heb. The sun raised the height of his hands.
v the wicked . . . down: prob. rdg.; Heb. a head from the house of the wicked.
w bare rock: prob. rdg.; Heb. neck.
x their: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.    y Prob. rdg.; Heb. his.
z from them . . . open: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

Deut.33.2; and Ps.68.7-8. 3: Teman: equivalent to Edom. Paran: see Num.10.11-12. 4: The everlasting ways are possibly the orbits of the planets. 7: Cushan . . . Midian: countries bordering on Edom. They lay along the route of the LORD's march (see 3.1-19 n.). 8: See Ps.89.10-11 and Isa.51.9. 9: See Gen.49.24. 10: Deep sea: see Exod.15.5-8. 13: Thy anointed: it is uncertain whether this alludes to the king or the people. 15: See Ps.77.17-19; Isa.43.16-17. 18-19: These verses may not be part of the original poem. They express confidence in God even in the face of adversity, perhaps referring to 2.4.

ZEPHANIAH

Two important events occurred during the reign of Josiah, when Zephaniah lived (1.1): Josiah's religious reform in 621 B.C. (see 2 Kgs.22.1-23.30); and Assyria's complete disappearance as a power (see Introduction to Nahum). Zephaniah seems to know of neither of these events (unless 2.13-15 reflects the second); he can, therefore, be dated shortly before 621 B.C.

Corruption is the order of the day, and the LORD must "sweep the earth clean" of it (1.2). The "day of the LORD" will bring an end to all this wickedness, both in Judah (1.4-18) and in other nations (2.1-15). Guilt falls on the ruling elements, who have deliberately pursued illicit religious practices (1.4-6; 3.4-5) and oppressed the common people (3.1-3). In destroying those responsible for Israel's misery, the LORD will entrust the land to the poor and humble, who better deserve it (3.11-20).

1	THIS IS THE WORD OF THE LORD which came to Zephaniah son of Cushi, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, son of Hezekiah, in the time of Josiah son of Amon king of Judah. Doom on Judah and her neighbours 2 I will sweep the earth clean of all that is on it, says the LORD. 3 I will sweep away both man and beast, I will sweep the birds from the air and the fish from the sea, and I will bring the wicked to their knees<sup>a</sup> and wipe out mankind from the earth. This is the very word of the LORD. 4 I will stretch my hand over Judah and all who live in Jerusalem; I will wipe out from this place the last remnant of Baal and the very name of the heathen 5 priests, those who bow down upon the house-tops to worship the host of heaven and who swear by Milcom,	those who have turned their backs on the LORD, who have not sought the LORD or consulted him. Silence before the Lord God! for the day of the LORD is near. The LORD has prepared a sacrifice and has hallowed his guests. On the day of the LORD's sacrifice I will punish the royal house and its chief officers and all who ape outlandish fashions. On that day I will punish all who dance on the temple terrace, who fill their master's<sup>b</sup> house with crimes of violence and fraud. On that day, says the LORD, an outcry shall be heard from the Fish Gate, wailing from the second quarter of the city, a loud crash from the hills; and<sup>c</sup> those who live in the Lower Town shall wail. For it is all over with the merchants, and all the dealers in silver are wiped out.	6 7 8 9 10 11
---	--	--	---

<sup>a</sup> I will bring . . . knees: prob. rdg.; Heb. the ruins with the wicked.
<sup>b</sup> Or their Lord's.      <sup>c</sup> and: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

1.1: Title. Zephaniah means "the LORD protects." It is not sure that Hezekiah means the king of Judah of that name. Josiah reigned from about 640-609 B.C.

1.2-6: The great doom that is to come. A terrifyingly vivid portrayal of the end of Judah and of all mankind. 2-3: Contrast with the creation in Gen. ch. 1. 4-6: Judah and Jerusalem will be destroyed because of their idolatrous worship. Baal: the Canaanite fertility god. Host of heaven: stars personified as gods. Milcom: an Ammonite god, probably the same as Molech (or Moloch) to whom human sacrifice was made (see Lev.20.2-5; Jer.32.35).

1.7-18: The day of the LORD is the future day when the LORD will execute judgment over the earth; see Joel 1.14-15. Amos 5.18-20 implies that it was once thought to be a joyous day, but most of the prophets picture it as a time of terror. 7: Sacrifice: the LORD hallowed his guests, the Israelites, purifying them with punishment instead of ritual purifications; compare 1 Chr.15.14; Job 1.5; Isa.66.17. 10-11: Various parts of Jerusalem are named; the Fish Gate (Neh.3.3) was the northern gate in the second quarter, but the location of the Lower Town is

- 12 At that time
I will search Jerusalem with a lantern and punish all who sit in stupor over the dregs of their wine, who say to themselves, 'The LORD will do nothing, good or bad.'
- 13 Their wealth shall be plundered, their houses laid waste; they shall build houses but not live in them, they shall plant vineyards but not drink the wine from them.
- 14 The great day of the LORD is near, it comes with speed; no runner so fast as that day, no raiding band so swift.<sup>d</sup>
- 15 That day is a day of wrath, a day of anguish and affliction, a day of destruction and devastation, a day of murk and gloom, a day of cloud and dense fog, a day of trumpet and battle-cry over fortified cities and lofty battlements.
- 16 I will bring dire distress upon men; they shall walk like blind men for their sin against the LORD. Their blood shall be spilt like dust and their bowels like dung;
- 17 neither their silver nor their gold shall avail to save them. On the day of the LORD's wrath, by the fire of his jealousy the whole land shall be consumed; for he will make an end, a swift end, of all who live in the land.
- 2 Gather together, you unruly nation, gather together,
2 before you are sent far away and vanish<sup>e</sup> like chaff, before the burning anger of the LORD comes upon you, before the day of the LORD's anger comes upon you.
- Seek the LORD,
all in the land who live humbly by his laws,
seek righteousness, seek a humble heart;
it may be that you will find shelter in the day of the LORD's anger. For Gaza shall be deserted, Ashkelon left desolate,
the people of Ashdod shall be driven out<sup>f</sup> at noonday and Ekron uprooted.
- Listen, you who live by the coast, you Kerethite settlers. The word of the LORD is spoken against you; I will subdue you,<sup>g</sup> land of the Philistines, I will lay you waste and leave you without inhabitants, and you, Kereth, shall be all shepherds' huts<sup>h</sup> and sheepfolds; and the coastland shall belong to the survivors of Judah. They shall pasture their flocks by the sea<sup>i</sup> and lie down at evening in the houses of Ashkelon, for the LORD their God will turn to them and restore their fortunes.
- I have heard the insults of Moab, the taunts of Ammon, how they have insulted my people and encroached on their frontiers. Therefore, by my life, says the LORD of Hosts, the God of Israel, Moab shall be like Sodom, Ammon like Gomorrah,

d no runner . . . swift: prob. rdg.; Heb. hark, the day of the LORD is bitter, there the warrior cries aloud.
e you are . . . vanish: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
f the people . . . out: or Ashdod shall be made an example.
g I . . . you: prob. rdg.; Heb. Canaan.
h you . . . huts: Heb. has these words in a different order.
i by the sea: prob. rdg.; Heb. upon them.

uncertain. 15-18: These verses are the basis of the medieval Latin hymn Dies irae, dies illa ("a day of wrath will that day be"), formerly (i.e. before Vatican Council II) part of the Catholic Requiem Mass.

2.1-3.10: Oracles against nations and Jerusalem. 1-3: Zephaniah's predictions against the powerful (1.8,11,13; 3.3-4,6) are balanced by comfort for the poor.

2.4-7: Against the Philistines. 4: Four Philistine cities are named. 5: Kereth probably means Crete, from which the Philistines came, settling on the coastlands.

2.8-12: Against Moab, Ammon, and the Cushites. See Amos 1.13-15 n., 2.1-3 n. 9: Like

- a pile of weeds, a rotting heap of saltwort,
waste land for evermore.
The survivors of my people shall plunder them,
the remnant of my nation shall possess their land.
- 10 This will be retribution for their pride, because they have insulted the people of the LORD of Hosts and 11 encroached upon their rights. The LORD will appear against them with all his terrors; for he will reduce to beggary all the gods of the earth, and all the coasts and islands of the nations will worship him, every man in his own home.
- 12 You Cushites also shall be killed
by the sword of the LORD.<sup>j</sup> 13 So let him stretch out his hand over the north and destroy Assyria, make Nineveh desolate,
arid as the wilderness.
14 Flocks shall couch there,
and all the beasts of the wild.
Horned owl and ruffed bustard shall roost on her capitals;
the tawny owl shall hoot in the window,
and the bustard stand in the porch.<sup>k</sup> 15 This is the city that exulted in fancied security,
saying to herself, 'I am, and I alone.'
And what is she now? A waste, a haunt for wild beasts,
at which every passer-by shall hiss
and shake his fist.
- 3 Shame on the tyrant city, filthy and foul!
2 No warning voice did she heed, she took no rebuke to heart,
she did not trust in the LORD or come near to her God.
- Her officers were lions roaring in her 3
midst,
her rulers wolves of the plain<sup>l</sup>
that did not wait<sup>m</sup> till morning, her prophets were reckless, no true 4 prophets.
Her priests profaned the sanctuary
and did violence to the law.
But the LORD in her midst is just; 5
he does no wrong;
morning by morning he gives judgement,
without fail at daybreak.<sup>n</sup>
- I have wiped out the proud; 6
their battlements are laid in ruin.
I have made their streets a desert
where no one passes.
Their cities are laid waste, deserted,
unpeopled.
In the hope that she would remember 7
all my instructions,
I said, 'Do but fear me
and take my rebuke to heart';
but they were up betimes and went about their evil deeds.
- Wait for me, therefore, says the 8
LORD,
wait for the day when I stand up to accuse you;
for mine it is to gather nations
and assemble kingdoms,
to pour out on them my indignation,
all the heat of my anger;
the whole earth shall be consumed
by the fire of my jealousy.
I will give all peoples once again 9
pure lips,
that they may invoke the LORD by name
and serve him with one consent.
From beyond the rivers of Cush 10
my suppliants of the Dispersion shall bring me tribute.

j the sword of the LORD; prob. rdg.; Heb. my sword.
k Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds an unintelligible phrase.
l Or evening. m Or carry off.
n Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds but the wrongdoer knows no shame.

Sodom . . . Gomorrah: i.e. destroyed; see Gen.19.24–28; Deut.29.23; Isa.1.9–10; Lam.4.6; Amos 4.11. 10: See v. 8; Isa.16.6; Jer.48.29. 11: See Isa.45.23; Joel 2.11. 12: Cushites: Ethiopians. 2.13–15: Against Assyria. See Introduction. The oracle begins in looking forward to Nineveh's destruction, but ends as though this has already happened.

3.1–7: Against Jerusalem. In spite of warnings, the powerful (officers, priests, prophets) have gone deeper into wickedness, both civil and religious.

3.8–10: The call to wait. The judgment on all the nations will end with their redemption (pure lips) and worshiping the LORD. Dispersion: probably foreign nations, not scattered Judeans.

A remnant preserved

- 11 On that day, Jerusalem,
you shall not be put to shame for all your deeds
by which you have rebelled against me;
for then I will rid you
of your proud and arrogant
citizens,
and never again shall you flaunt
your pride
on my holy hill.
- 12 But I will leave in you a people afflicted and poor.
- 13 The survivors in Israel shall find refuge in the name of the LORD;
they shall no longer do wrong or speak lies,
no words of deceit shall pass their
lips;
for they shall feed and lie down
with no one to terrify them.
- 14 Zion, cry out for joy;
raise the shout of triumph, Israel;
be glad, rejoice with all your heart,
daughter of Jerusalem.
- 15 The LORD has rid you of your adversaries,
he has swept away your foes;
the LORD is among you as king, O
Israel;
never again shall you fear disaster.
- 16 On that day this shall be the message

- to Jerusalem:
Fear not, O Zion; let not your hands
fall slack.
The LORD your God is in your
midst,
like a warrior, to keep you safe;
he will rejoice over you and be glad;
he will show you his love once more;
he will exult over you with a shout
of joy
as in days long ago.<sup>o</sup>
- 17
- I will take your cries of woe<sup>p</sup> away
from you;
and you shall no longer endure
reproach for her.
When that time comes, see,
I will deal with all your oppressors.
I will rescue the lost and gather the dispersed;
I will win my people praise and renown
in all the world where once they were despised.
- 18
- When the time comes for me to gather you,<sup>q</sup>
I will bring you home.
I will win you renown and praise
among all the peoples of the earth,
when I bring back your prosperity;
and you shall see it.
It is the LORD who speaks.
- 19
- 20

<sup>o</sup> as . . . ago: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>p</sup> cries of woe: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>q</sup> When . . . you: prob. rdg.; Heb. and in the time, my gathering you.

3.11–20: The humble shall inherit. 11–13: The fault of Jerusalem has lain in the proud and arrogant. With their removal, the city will be left for the poor. 14–15: Raise the shout . . . rejoice: a reflection of ceremonies celebrating the kingship of the LORD. 16–20: The LORD's care will produce security for Judah. The future will be as bright as the present is black.

HAGGAI

When the Exile in Babylon was lifted about 539 B.C., civil and religious life in Judah was at a low ebb. The Temple (destroyed in 587) was in ruins, and the economy scarcely better. While the Persian rule proved more lenient than that of Babylonia, a simple return to the situation before the Exile was not possible.

By 520, the standard of living had improved, but there had been no progress in religious reestablishment. Along with Zechariah (see Introduction to Zechariah) Haggai addressed himself to this latter problem with such zeal that the rebuilding of the Temple began within a month after his first oracle. Haggai saw a correlation between prosperity and piety, in that he tended to ascribe adverse conditions to the failure to build the Temple and to predict favorable ones as a result of its construction. Moreover, he considered the restoration of David's dynasty necessary to Judah's full life, and hence the promise of kingship to Zerubbabel (2.20-23). The rebuilding of the Temple was completed about 516, four years after Haggai revealed that it would be so.

Zerubbabel restorer of the temple

IN THE SECOND YEAR OF KING DARIUS, on the first day of the sixth month, the word of the LORD came through the prophet Haggai to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: This nation says to itself that it is not yet time for the house of the LORD to be rebuilt. Then this word came through Haggai the prophet: Is it a time for you to live in your own well-roofed houses, while this house lies in ruins? Now these are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Consider your way of life. You have sown much but reaped little; you eat but never as much as you wish, you drink but never more than you need, you are clothed but never warm, and the labourer puts his wages into a purse with a hole in it. These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Consider your way of life. Go up into the hills, fetch timber, and build a house acceptable to me, where I can show my glory,<sup>a</sup> says the LORD. You look for much and get little. At the moment when you would bring home the harvest, I blast it. Why? says the LORD of Hosts. Because my house lies in ruins, while each of you has a house that he can run to. It is your fault that the heavens withhold their dew and the earth its produce. So I have proclaimed a drought against land and mountain, against corn, new wine, and oil, and all that the ground yields, against man and cattle and all the products of man's labour.

Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the rest of the people listened to what the LORD their God had said and what the prophet Haggai said when the LORD their God sent him, and they were filled with fear because of the LORD. So Haggai the LORD's messenger, as the LORD had commissioned him, said to the people: I am with you, says the LORD. Then the LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, of Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and of the rest of the people; they came and began work on the house of the LORD of Hosts their God on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month.

In the second year of King Darius, on the twenty-first day of the seventh month, these words came from the LORD through the prophet Haggai:

<sup>a</sup> show my glory: or be honoured.

1.1-15: The first oracle, on the prompt rebuilding of the Temple, was designed to shame the people into beginning the work despite obstacles. The date was late August, 520 B.C. Darius began his reign as Persian emperor in 522. The Persians allowed Zerubbabel and Joshua to share in the local rule, dividing the civil and priestly offices between them (see Ezra 5.1-2; Zech. chs. 3-4). 2: According to Ezra chs. 3-4, though the returned exiles began to rebuild the Temple on first coming to Jerusalem, they were compelled to stop. 9: The nation's poor economic condition is attributed to the fact that the people have houses, but the LORD has not. 15: The date is mid-September.

2.1-9: The second oracle urges the builders on in the face of discouragement. The date is

2 Say to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, to Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and to the rest of the people: Is there anyone still among you who saw this house in its former glory? How does it appear to you now? Does it not seem to you as if it were not there? But now, Zerubbabel, take heart, says the LORD; take heart, Joshua son of Jehozadak, high priest. Take heart, all you people, says the LORD. Begin the work, for I am with you, says the LORD of Hosts, and my spirit is present among you. Have no fear. For these are the words of the LORD of Hosts: One thing more: I will shake heaven and earth, sea and land, I will shake all nations; the treasure of all nations shall come hither, and I will fill this house with glory;<sup>b</sup> so says the LORD of Hosts. Mine is the silver and mine the gold, says the LORD of Hosts, and the glory<sup>b</sup> of this latter house shall surpass the glory<sup>b</sup> of the former, says the LORD of Hosts. In this place will I grant prosperity and peace. This is the very word of the LORD of Hosts.

10 In the second year of Darius, on the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, this word came from the LORD to the prophet Haggai: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Ask the priests to give their ruling: If a man is carrying consecrated flesh in a fold of his robe, and he lets the fold touch bread or broth or wine or oil or any other kind of food, will that also become consecrated? And the priests answered, 'No.' Haggai went on, But if a person defiled by contact with a corpse touches any one of these things, will that also become defiled? 'It will', answered the priests. Haggai replied, 14 So it is with this people and nation and all that they do, says the LORD; whatever offering they make here is defiled in my sight. And now look back 15 over recent times down to this day: before one stone was laid on another in the LORD's temple, what was your 16 plight? If a man came to a heap of corn expecting twenty measures, he found but ten; if he came to a wine-vat to draw fifty measures, he found but twenty. I blasted you and all your 17 harvest with black blight and red and with hail, and yet you had no mind to return to me, says the LORD. Consider, 18 from this day onwards, from this twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, the day when the foundations of the temple of the LORD are laid, consider: will the seed still be diminished<sup>c</sup> in the 19 barn? Will the vine and the fig, the pomegranate and the olive, still bear no fruit? Not so, from this day I will bless you.

On that day, the twenty-fourth day 20 of the month, the word of the LORD came to Haggai a second time: Tell 21 Zerubbabel, governor of Judah, I will shake heaven and earth; I will over- 22 throw the thrones of kings, break the power of heathen realms, overturn chariots and their riders; horses and riders shall fall by the sword of their comrades. On that day, says the LORD 23 of Hosts, I will take you, Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, my servant, and will wear you as a signet-ring; for you it is that I have chosen. This is the very word of the LORD of Hosts.

b Or wealth. c diminished: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

early October, 520. 2: Former glory: since Solomon's Temple was destroyed by the Babylonians in 587 B.C., some of the returnees might remember it. 6: Shake: the verb often denotes an earthquake. Here it is used figuratively.

2.10-19: The third oracle comes on the day the foundations are laid (v. 18), in early December, 520. Its first part (vv. 10-14) has to do with ritual cleanliness. That which is consecrated (v. 12) does not affect what it touches, but that which is defiled, as a corpse is (v. 13), causes whatever it touches to become defiled. The second part (vv. 15-19) promises a change in economic fortune because of the work on the Temple.

2.20-23: The fourth oracle, dated also in December, 520, is addressed to Zerubbabel, grandson of the exiled king Jehoiachin (the Jeconiah of 1 Chr. 3.17-19). By shaking heaven and earth God will crumple all human authority and effort, setting in their place his own choice, Judah. 23: Signet-ring: a visible sign and seal which becomes the instrument of conveying authority and power. In Jer. 22.24, a king is called a signet-ring. The symbol shows that Haggai considered Zerubbabel to be chosen by the LORD as the future king.

ZECHARIAH

Zechariah is really two books, not one. In the first, chs. 1–8, the setting is Jerusalem, beginning life anew after the Exile in Babylon and in the process of reestablishing herself as a living and worshipping city. The second book, chs. 9–14, takes place much later; the book is in prose and poetry, some perhaps stemming from a time after the Maccabean War, which ended about 160 B.C.

Zechariah, in chs. 1–8, is as anxious as his contemporary, Haggai (see Introduction to Haggai), to revive the social and religious order of Jerusalem. He states his message partly in oracles (especially in chs. 7–8), but mostly in visions of the LORD's purification of Jerusalem (chs. 1–6). These highly symbolic visions foreshadow the style that apocalyptic books, such as Daniel and Revelation, would later develop.

Chapters 9–14, often called Deutero-Zechariah, are so diverse as to defy any unified description. Ch. 11.4–16 recalls the symbolic acts of earlier prophets (compare Jer. 13.1–11; Ezek. 4.1–5.4). The battle scene in 14.1–5 has an apocalyptic cast. Other oracles of threat and promise are quite similar to those of earlier prophets. But much of chs. 9–14 is extremely enigmatic.

Zechariah's commission

1 IN THE EIGHTH MONTH OF THE SECOND year of Darius, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah son of Berechiah, son of Iddo:
2 The LORD was very angry with your
3 forefathers. Say to the people, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Come back to me, and I will come back to you, says the LORD of Hosts.
4 Do not be like your forefathers. They heard the prophets of old proclaim, 'These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Turn back from your evil ways and your evil deeds.' But they did not listen or pay heed to me, says the
5 LORD. And where are your forefathers now? And the prophets, do they live
6 for ever? But the warnings and the decrees with which I charged my servants the prophets—did not these overtake your forefathers? Did they not then repent and say, 'The LORD of Hosts has treated us as he purposed; as our lives and as our deeds deserved, so has he treated us?'

Eight visions with their interpretations

7 ON THE TWENTY-FOURTH DAY OF THE

eleventh month, the month Shebat, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah son of Berechiah, son of Iddo.

Last night I had a vision. I saw a 8 man on a bay horse standing among the myrtles in a hollow; and behind him were other horses, black, dappled, and white. 'What are these, sir?' I
9 asked, and the angel who talked with me answered, 'I will show you what they are.' Then the man standing 10 among the myrtles said, 'They are those whom the LORD has sent to range through the world.' They reported to 11 the angel of the LORD as he stood among the myrtles: 'We have ranged through the world; the whole world is still and at peace.' Thereupon the 12 angel of the LORD said, 'How long, O LORD of Hosts, wilt thou withhold thy compassion from Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, upon whom thou hast vented thy wrath these seventy years?' Then the LORD spoke kind and 13 comforting words to the angel who talked with me, and the angel said to 14 me, Proclaim, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: I am very jealous for Jerusalem and Zion. I am full of 15 anger against the nations that enjoy their ease, because, while my anger was but mild, they heaped evil on evil.

1.1–6: Zechariah's commission. Darius: see Hag. 1.1–15 n. The date is October–November, 520 B.C. Zechariah means "the LORD remembers."

1.7–6.15: Eight visions with their interpretations. 7: The date is early February, 519 B.C.

1.8–17: Vision of the horsemen. The vision (vv. 8–12) is of horsemen on horses of four different colors, who range through the world as a patrol. To the angel's urging that it is time that the wrath be lifted from Jerusalem, the answer is a comforting oracle (vv. 14–17). 14: Jealous: exclusively concerned, or zealous. 15: The LORD's anger against Jerusalem was mild; the 16 Therefore these are the words of the LORD: I have come back to Jerusalem with compassion, and my house shall be rebuilt in her, says the LORD of Hosts, and the measuring-line shall be stretched over Jerusalem. Proclaim once more, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: My cities shall again overflow with good things; once again the LORD will comfort Zion, once again he will make Jerusalem the city of his choice.

18 I lifted my eyes and there I saw four horns. I asked the angel who talked with me what they were, and he answered, 'These are the horns which scattered Judah<sup>a</sup> and Jerusalem.' Then the LORD showed me four smiths. I asked what they were coming to do, and he said, 'Those horns scattered Judah and Jerusalem so completely that no man could lift his head. But these smiths have come to reunite them and to throw down the horns of the nations which had raised them against the land of Judah and scattered its people'.

2 I lifted my eyes and there I saw a man carrying a measuring-line. I asked him where he was going, and he said, 'To measure Jerusalem and see what should be its breadth and length.' Then, as the angel who talked with me was going away, another angel came out to meet him and said to him, Run to the young man there and tell him that Jerusalem shall be a city without walls, so numerous shall be the men and cattle within it. I will be a wall of fire round her, says the LORD, and a glory in the midst of her.

6 Away, away; flee from the land of the north, says the LORD, for I will make you spread your wings like the four winds of heaven, says the LORD. Away, escape, ye people of Zion who live in Babylon.

For these are the words of the LORD of Hosts, spoken when he sent me on a glorious mission<sup>b</sup> to the nations who have plundered you, for whoever touches you touches the apple of his eye: I raise<sup>c</sup> my hand against them; they shall be plunder for their own slaves. So you shall know that the LORD of Hosts has sent me. Shout aloud and rejoice, daughter of Zion; I am coming, I will make my dwelling among you, says the LORD. Many nations shall come over to the LORD on that day and become his people, and he will make his dwelling with you. Then you shall know that the LORD of Hosts has sent me to you. The LORD will once again claim Judah as his own possession in the holy land, and make Jerusalem the city of his choice.

Silence, all mankind, in the presence of the LORD! For he has bestirred himself out of his holy dwelling-place.

The angel who talked with me came back and roused me as a man is roused from sleep. He asked me what I saw, and I answered, 'A lamp-stand all of gold with a bowl on it; it holds seven lamps, and there are seven pipes for the lamps on top of it, with two olive-trees standing by it, one on the right of the bowl and another on the left.' I asked him, 'What are these two olive-trees, the one on the right and

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds Israel.

<sup>b</sup> on a glorious mission: prob. rdg.; Heb. after glory.

<sup>c</sup> Or wave.

<sup>d</sup> 3. 1-10 transposed to follow 4. 14.

<sup>e</sup> 4. 4-10 transposed to follow 3. 10.

nations, his agents, went too far. 16: My house: the Temple. Measuring-line: used in building, and hence a symbol of reconstruction.

1.18-21: Vision of the horns and smiths. Horns signify innate strength, especially as it is manifested in external activity, either good or evil; see Ps.75.10. Four is obscure, but seems to mean Babylonia. The symbolism of the smiths, though their action is clear, is uncertain; they may suggest counterdestruction.

2.1-5: Vision of the man with the measuring-line. The measuring-line implies limits on the size of the city; the angel, however, says that Jerusalem will have no limits. It will be protected not by walls but by a wall of fire, the indwelling glory of the LORD.

2.6-13: Oracle of promise to Jerusalem. 6-7: Land of the north, Babylon: see Joel 2.20 n. 10: Zion was the hill on which the Temple stood; daughter is a figure of speech for Jerusalem.

4.1-3,11-14: Vision of the lamp-stand and olive-trees. The lamp-stand has seven branches, a bowl-shaped lamp on each, a bowl as an oil reservoir over the whole, and pipes conducting oil from the bowl to each lamp. Seven symbolizes completeness. The olive-trees probably stand for Joshua, the high priest, and Zerubbabel, the future king (see 4.6-10; 6.9-15 n.). By implication, the lamp-stand signifies the LORD's presence.

the other on the left of the lamp-stand?"
 12 I asked also another question, 'What are the two sprays of olive beside the golden pipes which discharge the golden oil from their bowls?' He said, 'Do you not know what these mean?'
 13 'No, sir', I answered. 'These two', he said, 'are the two consecrated with oil who attend the Lord of all the earth.'
 3 Then he showed me Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of the LORD, with the Adversary<sup>f</sup> standing at 2 his right hand to accuse him. The LORD said to the Adversary, 'The LORD rebuke you, Satan, the LORD rebuke you who are venting your spite on Jerusalem.<sup>g</sup> Is not this man a brand
 3 snatched from the fire?' Now Joshua was wearing filthy clothes as he stood
 4 before the angel; and the angel turned and said to those in attendance on him, 'Take off his filthy clothes.' Then he turned to him and said, 'See how I have taken away your guilt from you; I will clothe you in fine
 5 vestments'; and he added, 'Let a clean turban be put on his head.' So they put a clean turban on his head and clothed him in clean garments, while the angel of the LORD stood by.
 6 Then the angel of the LORD gave Joshua this solemn charge: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: If you will conform to my ways and carry out your duties, you shall administer my house and be in control of my courts, and I grant you the right to come and go amongst these in attendance here.
 8 Listen, Joshua the high priest, you and your colleagues seated here before you, all you who are an omen of things to come: I will now bring my servant, the 9-10 Branch. In one day I will wipe away the guilt of the land. On that day, says the LORD of Hosts, you shall all of you invite one another to come and sit each under his vine and his fig-tree.

Here is the stone that I set before Joshua, a stone in which are seven eyes. I will reveal its meaning to you, says the LORD of Hosts. Then I asked 4 4<sup>h</sup> the angel of the LORD who talked with me, 'Sir, what are these?' And he answered, 'Do you not know what these mean?' 'No, sir', I answered. 'These seven', he said, 'are the eyes of the LORD ranging over the whole earth.'<sup>i</sup>

Then he turned and said to me, This 6 is the word of the LORD concerning Zerubbabel: Neither by force of arms nor by brute strength, but by my spirit! says the LORD of Hosts. How 7 does a mountain, the greatest mountain, compare with Zerubbabel? It is no higher than a plain. He shall bring out the stone called Possession<sup>j</sup> while men acclaim its beauty. This word
 8 came to me from the LORD: Zerubbabel
 9 with his own hands laid the foundation of this house and with his own hands he shall finish it. So shall you know that the LORD of Hosts has sent me to you. Who has despised the day of small 10 things? He shall rejoice when he sees Zerubbabel holding the stone called Separation.<sup>j</sup>

I looked up again and saw a flying 5 scroll. He asked me what I saw, and 2 I answered, 'A flying scroll, twenty cubits long and ten cubits wide.' This,
 3 he told me, is the curse which goes out over the whole land; for by the writing on one side every thief shall be swept clean away, and by the writing on the other every perjurer shall be swept clean away. I have sent it out, the 4

<sup>f</sup> Heb. the Satan.

<sup>g</sup> the LORD . . . Jerusalem: or the LORD who has chosen Jerusalem rebuke you.

<sup>h</sup> See note on 4. 11 above.

<sup>i</sup> These seven . . . earth: transposed from verse 10.

<sup>j</sup> Cp. Lev. 20. 24-26.

3.1-10; 4.4-5: Vision of Joshua's purification. In the trial, the Adversary (v. 1; see Tfn. f) is the title of an angelic figure who, as in Job chs. 1-2, accuses wrongdoers before the heavenly court. Joshua is purified of guilt, symbolized by his filthy clothes. 9-10: The Branch: a title for the coming king, derived from Jer. 23.5; 33.15. See also 6.9-15 n. The accession of the king and the purification of the priesthood prepare Jerusalem for restoration. To invite one's neighbor to sit under his vine and his fig-tree (v. 10) is a sign of unusual prosperity (compare Mic. 4.4). Seven eyes: perhaps facets.

4.6-10: Oracle about Zerubbabel. Zerubbabel will build the Temple by the aid of the spirit of the LORD. The two stones, Possession and Separation, are taken to symbolize Judah's repossessing its land and being distinct from other peoples.

5.1-4: Vision of the flying scroll. The scroll contains curses designed to remove all crime from the land. 2: Cubit: about seventeen inches.

LORD of Hosts has said, and it shall enter the house of the thief and the house of the man who has perjured himself in my name; it shall stay inside that house and demolish it, timbers and stones and all.

5 The angel who talked with me came out and said to me, 'Raise your eyes and look at this thing that comes forth.'
 6 I asked what it was, and he said, 'It is a great barrel coming forth,' and he added, 'so great is their guilt in all the 7 land.' Then a round slab of lead was lifted, and a woman was sitting there
 8 inside the barrel. He said, 'This is Wickedness', and he thrust her down into the barrel and rammed the leaden 9 weight upon its mouth. I looked up again and saw two women coming forth with the wind in their wings (for they had wings like a stork's), and they carried the barrel between earth and 10 sky. I asked the angel who talked with me where they were taking the barrel,
 11 and he answered, 'To build a house for it<sup>k</sup> in the land of Shinar; when the house is ready, it<sup>l</sup> shall be set on the place prepared for it<sup>k</sup> there.' 12 13 14 15 16
 17 18 19 20 21
 22
 23 24
 25
 26 27 28 29 30 31 32 33 34 35
 36 37
 38
 39 40
 41 42
 43
 44
 45
 46
 47 48
 49
 50 51
 52
 53
 54
 55
 56 57
 58
 59 60
 61
 62
 63
 64
 65
 66
 67
 68
 69
 70
 71
 72 73
 74
 75 76
 77
 78
 79 80
 81
 82 83
 84
 85
 86
 87
 88 89
 90
 91 92
 93
 94
 95
 96
 97
 98
 99 100
 101
 102
 103
 104
 105
 106
 107
 108
 109
 110
 111
 112
 113
 114
 115
 116
 117
 118
 119
 120
 121 122
 123
 124
 125
 126
 127
 128
 129
 130
 131
 132
 133
 134
 135
 136
 137
 138
 139
 140
 141 142
 143
 144
 145
 146
 147
 148
 149
 150
 151 152
 153
 154 155 156
 157 158
 159
 160
 161
 162
 163
 164
 165
 166
 167
 168
 169
 170
 171
 172 173
 174
 175
 176
 177
 178
 179
 180
 181
 182
 183
 184
 185
 186
 187
 188
 189
 190
 191
 192
 193
 194
 195
 196
 197
 198
 199
 200 201
 202
 203
 204
 205
 206 207
 208
 209
 210
 211
 212 213 214
 215
 216
 217
 218
 219
 220
 221
 222
 223
 224
 225
 226
 227
 228
 229
 230
 231
 232
 233
 234 235
 236
 237 238 239
 240
 241
 242
 243
 244
 245
 246
 247
 248
 249
 250
 251
 252
 253 254
 255
 256
 257
 258
 259
 260
 261
 262
 263 264
 265
 266
 267
 268 269
 270
 271
 272
 273
 274
 275
 276
 277
 278
 279
 280
 281
 282
 283
 284
 285
 286
 287
 288
 289
 290
 291
 292
 293
 294
 295
 296
 297
 298
 299
 300
 301 302
 303
 304
 305
 306
 307
 308
 309
 310
 311
 312
 313
 314
 315
 316
 317
 318
 319
 320
 321 322
 323
 324 325
 326
 327
 328
 329
 330
 331
 332
 333
 334
 335
 336
 337
 338
 339
 340
 341
 342
 343
 344
 345
 346
 347
 348
 349
 350 351
 352
 353
 354
 355
 356
 357
 358
 359 360
 361
 362
 363
 364 365
 366
 367
 368
 369
 370
 371
 372
 373
 374
 375
 376
 377
 378
 379
 380
 381
 382
 383
 384
 385
 386
 387
 388
 389
 390
 391
 392
 393
 394
 395
 396
 397
 398
 399
 400
 401
 402
 403
 404
 405
 406
 407
 408
 409
 410
 411
 412
 413
 414
 415
 416
 417
 418
 419
 420
 421
 422
 423
 424
 425
 426 427
 428
 429
 430
 431
 432
 433
 434
 435
 436
 437
 438
 439
 440
 441
 442
 443
 444
 445
 446
 447
 448 449
 450
 451
 452
 453 454
 455
 456
 457 458
 459
 460
 461 462
 463
 464
 465
 466
 467
 468 469
 470
 471
 472
 473
 474
 475
 476
 477
 478
 479
 480
 481
 482 483
 484
 485
 486
 487
 488
 489
 490
 491
 492
 493
 494
 495
 496
 497
 498
 499 500 501 502
 503
 504
 505
 506
 507
 508
 509
 510
 511
 512
 513
 514
 515
 516
 517
 518
 519
 520
 521
 522
 523
 524
 525
 526
 527
 528
 529
 530 531
 532
 533
 534 535
 536
 537
 538
 539
 540
 541
 542
 543 544
 545
 546
 547 548 549
 550
 551 552
 553
 554
 555
 556
 557
 558
 559
 560
 561
 562
 563
 564
 565
 566
 567
 568 569
 570
 571
 572
 573 574
 575
 576
 577
 578
 579
 580 581
 582
 583
 584
 585
 586
 587
 588
 589
 590
 591
 592
 593
 594
 595
 596
 597
 598
 599
 600
 601
 602
 603
 604
 605
 606
 607
 608
 609
 610
 611
 612
 613
 614
 615
 616
 617
 618 619
 620
 621
 622
 623
 624
 625
 626
 627
 628
 629
 630
 631
 632
 633 634
 635
 636
 637
 638
 639
 640
 641
 642
 643
 644
 645
 646
 647
 648
 649
 650
 651
 652
 653
 654
 655
 656
 657 658
 659
 660 661
 662
 663
 664 665
 666
 667
 668
 669
 670
 671
 672
 673
 674
 675
 676
 677
 678
 679
 680
 681
 682
 683
 684
 685
 686
 687
 688 689
 690
 691
 692
 693
 694
 695
 696
 697
 698
 699
 700
 701
 702
 703
 704
 705
 706
 707
 708
 709 710
 711
 712
 713
 714
 715
 716
 717
 718
 719
 720
 721
 722
 723
 724 725
 726
 727
 728
 729
 730
 731
 732
 733 734
 735
 736 737 738
 739
 740
 741 742
 743
 744 745 746
 747 748
 749
 750
 751
 752
 753
 754
 755
 756
 757
 758
 759
 760
 761
 762
 763 764
 765
 766
 767
 768
 769
 770
 771
 772
 773
 774
 775
 776
 777
 778
 779
 780
 781
 782
 783
 784
 785 786
 787
 788 789
 790 791
 792 793
 794 795
 796
 797
 798
 799 800
 801
 802
 803 804 805 806
 807
 808
 809
 810
 811
 812
 813
 814
 815
 816
 817
 818
 819
 820 821
 822 823
 824
 825
 826
 827 828
 829
 830 831
 832
 833
 834 835
 836
 837
 838
 839
 840
 841
 842
 843
 844
 845 846
 847
 848
 849
 850
 851 852
 853 854
 855
 856
 857
 858
 859
 860
 861 862
 863
 864
 865
 866
 867
 868 869 870
 871
 872 873
 874
 875
 876
 877
 878
 879
 880
 881
 882
 883
 884
 885
 886
 887
 888
 889
 890
 891 892
 893
 894
 895
 896
 897
 898 899
 900 901
 902
 903
 904
 905 906
 907 908 909
 910
 911
 912
 913
 914
 915
 916
 917
 918
 919
 920
 921
 922
 923 924
 925
 926
 927
 928
 929
 930
 931
 932
 933
 934
 935
 936
 937
 938
 939
 940
 941
 942
 943
 944
 945 946 947
 948
 949
 950
 951
 952
 953
 954
 955
 956
 957
 958
 959
 960
 961 962
 963
 964
 965
 966
 967
 968
 969
 970
 971
 972
 973 974
 975
 976
 977 978
 979
 980
 981
 982
 983
 984
 985
 986
 987
 988
 989
 990
 991
 992
 993
 994
 995
 996
 997
 998
 999
 1000

go and range over the whole earth; so he said, 'Go and range over the earth', and the chariots did so. Then he called me to look and said, 'Those going to the land of the north have given my spirit rest in the land of the north.'

The word of the LORD came to me: Take silver and gold from the exiles, from Heldai, Tobiah, Jedaiah, and Josiah son of Zephaniah, who have come back from Babylon. Take it and make a crown; put the crown on the head of Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and say to him, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Here is a man named the Branch; he will shoot up from the ground where he is and will build the temple of the LORD. It is he who will build the temple of the LORD, he who will assume royal dignity, will be seated on his throne and govern, with a priest at his right side, and concord shall prevail between them. The crown shall be in the charge of Heldai, Tobiah, Jedaiah, and Josiah son of Zephaniah, as a memorial in the temple of the LORD.

Men from far away shall come and work on the building of the temple of the LORD; so shall you know that the LORD of Hosts has sent me to you. If only you will obey the LORD your God!

Joy and gladness in the coming age

THE WORD OF THE LORD CAME TO Zechariah in the fourth year of the reign of King Darius, on the fourth

k Or her. l Or she. m Or bronze.
n to the far west: prob. rdg.; Heb. behind them.
o to the land of the east: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
p and: prob. rdg.; Heb. and go on that day yourself and go to the house of ...
q Joshua . . . priest: possibly an error for Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, cp. 3. 5; 4. 9.

5.5-11: Vision of the barrel. Wickedness is symbolically removed from Judah. 6: Barrel: container for an ephah, a dry measure equal to about  $1\frac{1}{3}$  bushels. 11: House: a temple. Shinar: Babylon. Wickedness is returned to the Exile where the Jews suffered.

6.1-15: Vision of the chariots. As in the first vision (1.8-17), four differently colored horses go in the four directions. The symbolism of the colors is unknown. The crucial point of the patrol is the north, the direction of danger. Everything is ready for reestablishing the dynasty of David. 9-15: Almost certainly, Joshua (v. 11) is an error, or deliberate substitution, for Zerubbabel. See 3.8-9; the Branch (royal power) is not Joshua; and in 4.6-10, Zerubbabel is to build the Temple (compare v. 12). We do not know why the name Joshua was substituted. Some conjecture from 4.6 that Zerubbabel in some way offended.

7.1-8.23: Joy and gladness in the coming age. The oracles, taken together, give a wide-ranging answer to the question in 7.3, whether a fast in the fifth month (July-August) is still required. The date is mid-November, 518 B.C.

2 day of Kislev, the ninth month. Bethelsharezer sent Regem-melech with his men to seek the favour of the LORD.
3 They were to say to the priests in the house of the LORD of Hosts and to the prophets, 'Am I to lament and abstain in the fifth month as I have done for 4 so many years?' Then the word of the 5 LORD of Hosts came to me: Say to all the people of the land and to the priests, When you fasted and lamented in the fifth and seventh months these seventy years, was it indeed in my 6 honour that you fasted? And when you ate and drank, was it not to 7 please yourselves? Was it not this that the LORD proclaimed through the prophets of old, while Jerusalem was populous and peaceful, as were the cities round her, and the Negeb and the Shephelah?
8 The word of the LORD came to 9 Zechariah: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Administer true justice, show loyalty and compassion to one 10 another, do not oppress the orphan
and the widow, the alien and the poor,
do not contrive any evil one against 11 another. But they refused to listen, they turned their backs on me in defiance, they stopped their ears and 12 would not hear. Their hearts were adamant; they refused to accept instruction and all that the LORD of Hosts had taught them by his spirit through the prophets of old; and they suffered under the anger of the LORD 13 of Hosts. As they did not listen when I called, so I did not listen when they 14 called, says the LORD of Hosts, and I drove them out among all the nations to whom they were strangers, leaving their land a waste behind them, so that no one came and went. Thus they made their pleasant land a waste.
8 The word of the LORD of Hosts came
2 to me: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: I have been very jealous for 3 Zion, fiercely jealous for her. Now, says the LORD, I have come back to Zion and I will dwell in Jerusalem.

Jerusalem shall be called the City of Truth, and the mountain of the LORD of Hosts shall be called the Holy Mountain. These are the words of the 4 LORD of Hosts: Once again shall old men and old women sit in the streets of Jerusalem, each leaning on a stick because of their great age; and the 5 streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls, playing in the streets. These 6 are the words of the LORD of Hosts:
Even if it may seem impossible<sup>s</sup> to the survivors of this nation on that day,
will it also seem impossible to me?<sup>t</sup>
This is the very word of the LORD of 7 Hosts. These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: See, I will rescue my people from the countries of the east and the west, and bring them back to 8 live in Jerusalem. They shall be my people, and I will be their God, in truth and justice.

These are the words of the LORD of 9 Hosts: Take courage, you who in these days hear, from the prophets who were present when the foundations were laid for the house of the LORD of Hosts, their promise that the temple is to be rebuilt. Till that time there was 10 no hiring either of man or of beast, no one could safely go about his business because of his enemies, and I set all men one against another. But now I 11 am not the same towards the survivors of this people as I was in former days, says the LORD of Hosts. For they shall 12 sow in safety; the vine shall yield its fruit and the soil its produce, the heavens shall give their dew; with all these things I will endow the survivors of this people. You, house of Judah 13 and house of Israel, have been the very symbol of a curse to all the nations;
and now I will save you, and you shall become the symbol of a blessing.
Courage! Do not be afraid.

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. he.

<sup>s</sup> Or wonderful.

<sup>t</sup> will . . . me?: or it will seem wonderful also to me.

7.4-14: The first oracle recapitulates the past. 5: Seventy years: the length of the Exile (compare Jer.25.11).

8.1-8: The second oracle describes a restored, holy, and happy Jerusalem. 2: Jealous: see 1.14 n. 8: Justice: lit. "righteousness."

8.9-13: The third oracle promises that the reconstruction of the Temple will bring  blessing  to Judah, prosperous crops and security of life.

14 For these are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Whereas I resolved to ruin you because your ancestors roused me to anger, says the LORD of Hosts, and I
 15 did not relent, so in these days I have once more<sup>u</sup> resolved to do good to Jerusalem and to the house of Judah;
 16 do not be afraid. This is what you shall do: speak the truth to each other, administer true and sound 17 justice in the city gate. Do not contrive any evil one against another, and do not love perjury, for all this I hate. This is the very word of the LORD.
 18 The word of the LORD of Hosts
 19 came to me: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: The fasts of the fourth month and of the fifth, the seventh, and the tenth, shall become festivals of joy and gladness for the house of Judah. Love truth and peace.
 20 These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Nations and dwellers in great
 21 cities shall yet come; people of one city shall come to those of another and say, 'Let us go and entreat the favour of the LORD, and resort to the LORD
 22 of Hosts; and I will come too.' So great nations and mighty peoples shall resort to the LORD of Hosts in Jerusalem and entreat his favour.
 23 These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: In those days, when ten men from nations of every language pluck up courage, they shall pluck the robe of a Jew and say, 'We will go with you because we have heard that God is with you.'

and<sup>v</sup> established himself in Damascus;
 for the capital city<sup>w</sup> of Aram is the LORD's,
 as are all the tribes of Israel.
<sup>z</sup>Sidon has closed her frontier against Hamath, for she is very wary.
 Tyre has built herself a rampart; she has heaped up silver like dust and gold like mud in the streets.
 But wait, the Lord will dispossess her
 and strike down the power of her ships,
 and the city itself will be destroyed by fire.
 Let Ashkelon see it and be afraid; Gaza shall writhe in terror,
 and Ekron's hope shall be extinguished;
 kings shall vanish from Gaza, and Ashkelon shall be unpeopled;
 half-breeds shall settle in Ashdod,
 and I will uproot the pride of the Philistine.
 I will dash the blood of sacrifices from his mouth
 and his loathsome offerings from his teeth;
 and his survivors shall belong<sup>y</sup> to our God and become like a clan in Judah, and Ekron like a Jebusite.
 And I will post a garrison for my house
 so that no one may pass in or out, and no oppressor shall ever overrun them.
 [This I have lived to see with my own eyes.]

Judah's triumph over her enemies

9 An oracle: the word of the LORD.

He has come to the land of Hadrach

<sup>u</sup> once more: or changed my mind and.
<sup>v</sup> He has come . . . and: prob. rdg.; Heb. In the land of Hadrach he has . . .
<sup>w</sup> capital city: or chief part.
<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. prefixes Tyre and.
<sup>y</sup> his survivors shall belong: or he shall become kin.

8.14-17: The fourth oracle sets out the quality of the social order. 16: At the city gate, legal cases were heard and decided.

8.18-19: The fifth oracle alters fasts from times at which to "lament and abstain" (7.3) to festivals of joy and gladness.

8.20-23: The sixth oracle describes the growing adherence to the LORD of foreign nations. 23: Jew: lit. a member of the tribe of Judah.

9.1-14.21: Deutero-Zechariah. See Introduction on this portion of the book.

9.1-8: The LORD's attack upon nations. 1: Hadrach and Damascus were in Aram, Syria. 2-4: Sidon and Tyre: Phoenician ports on the Mediterranean. Hamath: a city inland from Sidon. 5-7: Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and Ashdod were Philistine cities, traditional enemies of Israel, which now become part of God's people. Jebusite: pre-Israelite inhabitants of Jerusalem who were assimilated into the Israelites after the capture of the city under David.

- 9 Rejoice, rejoice, daughter of Zion,
shout aloud, daughter of Jerusalem;
for see, your king is coming to you,
his cause won, his victory gained,
humble and mounted on an ass,
on a foal, the young of a she-ass.
- 10 He shall banish chariots from Ephraim
and war-horses from Jerusalem;
the warrior's bow shall be banished.
He shall speak peaceably to every
nation,
and his rule shall extend from sea
to sea,
from the River to the ends of the earth.
- 11 And as for you, by your covenant
with me sealed in blood
I release your prisoners from the dungeon.<sup>z</sup>
- 12 (Come back to the stronghold, you prisoners who wait in hope.)
Now is the day announced
when I will grant you twofold<sup>a</sup> reparation.
- 13 For my bow is strung, O Judah;
I have laid the arrow to it, O
Ephraim;
I have roused your sons, O Zion,<sup>b</sup>
and made you into the sword of a warrior.
- 14 The LORD shall appear above them,
and his arrow shall flash like
lightning;
the Lord GOD shall blow a blast on the horn
and march with the storm-winds of the south.
- 15 The LORD of Hosts will be their shield;
they shall prevail, they shall trample
on the sling-stones;
they shall be roaring drunk as if
with wine,
- brimful as a bowl, drenched like the corners of the altar.
So on that day the LORD their God 16
will save them, his own people, like sheep,
setting them all about his land,
like<sup>c</sup> jewels set to sparkle in a crown.
- What wealth, what beauty, is 17
theirs:
corn to strengthen young men,
and new wine for maidens!
Ask of the LORD rain in the autumn; 10
ask him for rain in the spring,
the LORD who makes the storm-
clouds,
and he will give you showers of rain
and to every man grass in his field;
for the household gods make 2
mischievous promises;
diviners see false signs,
they tell lying dreams<sup>d</sup>
and talk raving nonsense.
Men wander about like sheep
in distress for lack of a shepherd.
My anger is turned against the 3
shepherds,
and I will visit with punishment
the leaders of the flock;
but the LORD of Hosts will visit his flock,
the house of Judah,
and make them his royal war-horses.
They shall be corner-stone and 4
tent-peg,
they shall be the bow ready for
battle,
and from them shall come every commander.

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds no water in it.

<sup>a</sup> Or equal.

<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds against your sons, O Javan (or Greece).

<sup>c</sup> like: prob. rdg.; Heb. for.

<sup>d</sup> they . . . dreams: or dreaming women make empty promises.

9.9-16: Judah goes to war. 9-10: Daughter: see 2.10 n. But here, it may be only a woman of Jerusalem. Some scholars think the king is Alexander the Great, sweeping through Palestine in 332 B.C. Others interpret the passage to mean a coming Jewish king (compare Mt. 21.4-5). Ephraim: the leading Israelite tribe of the Northern Kingdom, exiled in 722 B.C. The River: Euphrates. 15: Roaring drunk: figure for the ecstatic exuberance of victors in battle; see 10.7; Ps. 78.65-66. The Israelites, covered with blood of the slain enemy, are compared to corners of the altar on which the blood of sacrifices was poured out daily, a symbol of overwhelming victory.

9.17-10.12: The restoration of Israel. 10.1: Parched summers make early rain in the autumn necessary to fill cisterns. Rains late in spring strengthened crops against the heat. 2: Household gods: idols, personal deities, who watched over families. Not they nor diviners, but the LORD gives real prosperity (v. 1). Shepherd: a leader. 3: The anger may be against specific leaders of Judah.

- 5 Together they shall be like warriors who tramp the muddy ways in battle, and they will fight because the LORD is with them; they will put horsemen shamefully to rout.
- 6 And I will give strength to the house of Judah and grant victory to<sup>e</sup> the house of Joseph; I will restore them, for I have pitied them, and they shall be as though I had never cast them off; for I am the LORD their God and I will answer them.
- 7 So Ephraim shall be like warriors, glad like men cheerful with wine, and their sons shall see and be glad; so let their hearts exult in the LORD.
- 8 I will whistle to call them in, for I have redeemed them; and they shall be as many as once they were.
- 9 If I disperse them<sup>f</sup> among the nations, in far-off lands they will remember me and will rear their sons and then return.
- 10 Then will I fetch them home from Egypt and gather them in from Assyria; I will lead them into Gilead and Lebanon until there is no more room for them.
- 11 Dire distress<sup>g</sup> shall come upon the Euphrates and shall beat down its turbulent waters; all the depths of the Nile shall run dry.
- The pride of Assyria shall be brought down, and the sceptre of Egypt shall pass away; but Israel's strength shall be in the LORD, and they shall march proudly in his name. This is the very word of the LORD.
- Throw open your gates, O Lebanon, 11 that fire may feed on your cedars. Howl, every pine-tree; for the cedars 2 have fallen, mighty trees are ravaged. Howl, every oak of Bashan; for the impenetrable forest is laid low.
- Hark to the howling of the 3 shepherds, for their rich pastures are ravaged. Hark to the roar of the young lions, for Jordan's dense thickets are ravaged.
- These were the words of the LORD 4 my God: Fatten the flock for slaughter. Those who buy will slaughter it and 5 incur no guilt; those who sell will say, 'Blessed be the LORD, I am rich!' Its shepherds will have no pity for it. For 6 I will never again pity the inhabitants of the earth, says the LORD. I will put every man in the power of his neighbour and his king, and as each country is crushed I will not rescue him from their hands.
- So I fattened the flock for slaughter 7 for the dealers. I took two staves: one I called Favour and the other Union, and so I fattened the flock. In one 8 month I got rid of the three shepherds,

<sup>e</sup> grant victory to: or expand.
<sup>f</sup> Or scatter them like seed.
<sup>g</sup> Dire distress: or An enemy.

Compare Ezek. ch. 34. 6: House of Joseph: often a term for northern Israel (see Amos 5.6,15). The predicted restoration includes the Northern Kingdom dispersed in 721 B.C., bringing the nation to its former unity. 10: The place of deportation in 721 was Assyria. After the Babylonian Exile, a colony of Jews lived in Egypt, at Elephantine. Gilead and Lebanon are at the north and northeastern edges of Israel's former territory, where the roads from Babylon and Assyria entered. 11: Turbulent Euphrates symbolizes warlike Assyria; the depths of the Nile, the wealth and fertility of Egypt.

11.1-3: A short poem threatening destruction. 1: Cedars, useful lumber, were the hallmark of the prosperity of Lebanon. 2: Bashan: fertile area east of the Sea of Galilee. 3: Compare Jer.49.19.

11.4-14: An allegorical narrative in which a prophet tending sheep quits his job, breaking his shepherd's staves, the action being symbolic of God, shepherd of men, breaking his covenant, Favour (v. 10), with all men (Gen.9.1-17), and his special covenant, Union (v. 14), with Israel (Exod.24.8). 8: The three shepherds here are specific leaders who cannot be identified.

9 for I had lost patience with them and they had come to abhor me. Then I said to the flock, 'I will not fatten you any more. Any that are to die, let them die; any that stray, let them stray; and the rest can devour one another.' I took my staff called Favour and snapped it in two, annulling the covenant which the LORD<sup>b</sup> had made with all nations. So it was annulled that day, and the dealers who were watching me knew that all this was the word of the LORD. I said to them, 'If it suits you, give me my wages; otherwise keep them.' Then they weighed out my wages, thirty pieces of silver. The LORD said to me, 'Throw it into the treasury.' I took the thirty pieces of silver—that noble sum at which I was valued and rejected by them!—and threw them into the house of the LORD, into the treasury. Then I snapped in two my second staff called Union, annulling the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.

15 Then the LORD said to me, Equip yourself again as a shepherd, a worthless one; for I am about to install a shepherd in the land who will neither miss any that are lost nor search for those that have gone astray nor heal the injured nor nurse the sickly, but will eat the flesh of the fat beasts and throw away their broken bones.

17 Alas for the worthless shepherd who abandons the sheep!
A sword shall fall on his arm and on his right eye;
his arm shall be shrivelled
and his right eye blinded.

13<sup>c</sup> This is the very word of the LORD of Hosts:

O sword, awake against my shepherd and against him who works with me. Strike the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered, and I will turn my hand against the shepherd boys.

This also is the very word of the LORD:

It shall happen throughout the land that two thirds of the people shall be struck down and die, while one third of them shall be left there.

Then I will pass this third through the fire and I will refine them as silver is refined,

and assay them as gold is assayed.

Then they will invoke me by my name,

and I myself will answer them;

I will say, 'They are my people', and they shall say, 'The LORD is our God.'

Jerusalem a centre of worship for all men

AN ORACLE. THIS IS THE WORD OF THE LORD concerning Israel, the very word of the LORD who stretched out the heavens and founded the earth, and who formed the spirit of man within him: I am making the steep approaches to Jerusalem slippery for all the nations pressing round her; and Judah will be caught up in the siege of Jerusalem. On that day, when all the nations of the earth will be gathered against her, I will make Jerusalem a rock too heavy for any people to remove, and all who try to lift it shall injure themselves. On that day, says the LORD, I will strike every horse with panic and its rider with madness; I will keep watch over Judah, but I will strike all the horses of the other nations with blindness. Then the clans of Judah shall say to themselves, 'The inhabitants of Jerusalem find their strength<sup>j</sup> in the LORD of Hosts their God.'

<sup>b</sup> the LORD: prob. rdg.; Heb. l.

<sup>c</sup> 13, 7-9 transposed to this point.

<sup>j</sup> The . . . strength: prob. rdg.; Heb. O inhabitants of Jerusalem, I am strong.

12: In Exod.21.32, thirty pieces of silver is the value of a slave. Thirty pieces of silver appears in Mt.26.14-16 and parallels.

11.15-17; 13.7-9: A symbolic action and oracle against a coming king. One-third of Israel, purified by fire, will remain as the people of the LORD.

12.1-14.21: Jerusalem repents and is delivered by the LORD. The oracles convey the themes of the LORD's triumph, not a chronology or systematic account. Some are extremely obscure.

3: Rock: compare Dan.2.33-35. 7: Even the Davidic king's glory will not exceed that of the 6 On that day I will make the clans of Judah like a brazier in woodland, like a torch blazing among sheaves of corn. They shall devour all the nations round them, right and left, while the people of Jerusalem remain safe in their city. The LORD will first set free all the families<sup>k</sup> of Judah, so that the glory of David's line and of the inhabitants of Jerusalem may not surpass that of Judah.

8 On that day the LORD will shield the inhabitants of Jerusalem; on that day the very weakest of them shall be like David, and the line of David like God, like the angel of the LORD going before them.

9 On that day I will set about destroying all the nations that come against Jerusalem, but I will pour a spirit of pity and compassion into the line of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. Then

They shall look on me, on him whom they have pierced,

and shall wail over him as over an only child, and shall grieve for him bitterly as for a first-born son.

11 On that day the mourning in Jerusalem shall be as great as the mourning over Hadad-rimmon in the vale of Megiddo. The land shall wail, each family by itself: the family of David by itself and its women by themselves; the family of Nathan by itself and its women by themselves; the family of Levi by itself and its women by themselves; the family of Shimei by itself and its women by themselves; all the remaining families by themselves and their women by themselves.

13 On that day a fountain shall be opened for the line of David and for the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to remove all sin and impurity.

2 On that day, says the LORD of Hosts, I will erase the names of the idols from the land, and they shall be remembered no longer; I will also remove the prophets and the spirit of uncleanness from the land. Thereafter, if a man<sup>3</sup> continues to prophesy, his parents, his own father and mother, will say to him, 'You shall live no longer, for you have spoken falsely in the name of the LORD.' His own father and mother will pierce him through because he has prophesied. On that day every prophet<sup>4</sup> shall be ashamed of his vision when he prophesies, nor shall he wear a robe of coarse hair in order to deceive. He will<sup>5</sup> say, 'I am no prophet, I am a tiller of the soil who has been schooled in lust from boyhood.' 'What', someone will<sup>6</sup> ask, 'are these scars on your chest?' And he will answer, 'I got them in the house of my lovers.'<sup>7</sup>

A day is coming for the LORD to act,<sup>14</sup> and the plunder taken from you shall be shared out while you stand by. I<sup>2</sup> will gather all the peoples to fight against Jerusalem; the city shall be taken, the houses plundered and the women raped. Half the city shall go into exile, but the rest of the nation in the city shall not be wiped out. The<sup>3</sup> LORD will come out and fight against those peoples, as in the days of his prowess on the field of battle. On that<sup>4</sup> day his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which is opposite Jerusalem to the east, and the mountain shall be cleft in two by an immense valley running east and west; half the mountain shall move northwards and half southwards. The valley between<sup>5</sup> the hills<sup>m</sup> shall be blocked, for the new valley between them will reach as far as Asal. Blocked it shall be as it was blocked by the earthquake in the time of Uzziah king of Judah, and the LORD my God will appear with all the holy ones.

On that day there shall be neither<sup>6</sup>

<sup>k</sup> Or tents.

<sup>l</sup> Verses 7-9 transposed to follow 11.17.

<sup>m</sup> Prod. rdg.; Heb. my hills.

people. 10: Him whom they have pierced: probably a contemporary allusion, now unrecoverable. Compare Jn.19.37. 11: Hadad-rimmon: a Canaanite fertility god, mourned in the seasonal death of vegetation. The vale was the most fertile plain near the city of Megiddo in northern Israel. 13.2-6: The oracle marks the end of the professional prophets. 6: Scars from ecstatic activities (compare Hos.7.14) are ascribed to a brothel brawl.

14.1-21: The LORD's battle against Jerusalem's enemies. 5: Valley: named the Kidron, between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives. Earthquake: compare Amos 1.1. Holy ones:

- 7 heat nor cold nor frost. It shall be all one day, whose coming is known only to the LORD, without distinction of day or night, and at evening-time there shall be light.
- 8 On that day living water shall issue from Jerusalem, half flowing to the eastern sea and half to the western, in summer and winter alike. Then the LORD shall become king over all the earth; on that day the LORD shall be one LORD and his name the one name.
- 9 The whole land shall be levelled, flat as the Arabah from Geba to Rimmon southwards; but Jerusalem shall stand high in her place, and shall be full of people from the Benjamin Gate [to the point where the former gate stood,] to the Corner Gate, and from the Tower of Hananel to the king's wine-vats.
- 10 Men shall live in Jerusalem, and never again shall a solemn ban be laid upon her; men shall live there in peace. The LORD will strike down all the nations who warred against Jerusalem, and the plague shall be this: their flesh shall rot while they stand on their feet, their eyes shall rot in their sockets, and their tongues shall rot in their mouths.
- 11 On that day a great panic, sent by the LORD, shall fall on them. At the very moment when a man would encourage his comrade his hand shall be raised to strike him down. Judah
- too shall join in the fray in Jerusalem, and the wealth of the surrounding nations will be swept away—gold and silver and apparel in great abundance. And slaughter shall be the fate of 15 horse and mule, camel and ass, the fate of every beast in those armies.
- All who survive of the nations which 16 attacked Jerusalem shall come up year by year to worship the King, the LORD of Hosts, and to keep the pilgrim-feast of Tabernacles. If any of the families 17 of the earth do not go up to Jerusalem to worship the King, the LORD of Hosts, no rain shall fall upon them. If 18 any family of Egypt does not go up and enter the city, then the same disaster shall overtake it as that which the LORD will inflict on any nation which does not go up to keep the feast. This 19 shall be the punishment of Egypt and of any nation which does not go up to keep the feast of Tabernacles.
- On that day, not a bell on a war- 20 horse but shall be inscribed 'Holy to the LORD', and the pots in the house of the LORD shall be like the bowls before the altar. Every pot in Jerusalem 21 and Judah shall be holy to the LORD of Hosts, and all who sacrifice shall come and shall take some of them and boil the flesh in them. So when that time comes, no trader shall again be seen in the house of the LORD of Hosts.

probably angels. 8: Compare Ezek.47.1-12; Joel 3.18. 10: The elevation of Jerusalem is similar to Isa.2.2; Mic.4.1. 16-19: As in 8.20-23, foreigners worship the LORD at Jerusalem. Tabernacles: the autumn vintage feast. 20-21: In the new age, everything, however common, is sanctified. Holy to the LORD: also inscribed on the rosette on the high priest's forehead (Exod.28.36). 21: Trader: lit. "Canaanite."

MALACHI

After the return of the Judeans from the Exile in Babylon and the rebuilding of the Temple was completed (see Introduction to Haggai), Judah, subject to the Persians, was without political defense, a royal dynasty, and other marks of a nation. Yet to live as the LORD's people, she had to formulate laws to govern both civil and religious conduct, as permitted by the Persians. The book of Malachi reflects aspects of the problems and hardships that arose about 500-450 B.C.

Malachi (see 1.1 n.) delivers his message in a rather systematic regular form. First he gives a declaration from the LORD, then he proposes a question from his audience; he answers the question in the name of the LORD. The statement criticizes the behavior of people or priests, while the answer to a question contains both judgment and promise. In his view, Judah must live by the Law to maintain the people's purity and devotion to the LORD. The final day of the LORD will separate good from bad. Indeed, the issue of determining what are good and bad acts and who are good and bad persons, dominates the latest stage of Old Testament religion. At the same time that this stage fostered a confining legalism, it also fostered a religious devotion of great power and purity.

- 1 An oracle. The word of the LORD to Israel through Malachi.<sup>a</sup>

Religious decline and hope for recovery

- 2 I LOVE YOU, SAYS THE LORD. YOU ASK, 'How hast thou shown love to us?' Is not Esau Jacob's brother? the LORD
3 answers. I love Jacob, but I hate Esau; I have turned his mountains into a waste and his ancestral home into a 4 lodging in the wilderness. When Edom says, 'We are beaten down; let us rebuild our ruined homes', these are the words of the LORD of Hosts: If they rebuild, I will pull down. They shall be called a realm of wickedness, a people whom the LORD has cursed for 5 ever. You yourselves will see it with your own eyes; you yourselves will say, 'The LORD's greatness reaches beyond the realm of Israel.'
6 A son honours his father, and a slave goes in fear of his master. If I am a father, where is the honour due to me? If I am a master, where is the fear due to me? So says the LORD of Hosts to you, you priests who despise my name.

You ask, 'How have we despised thy name?' Because you have offered 7 defiled food on my altar. You ask, 'How have we defiled thee?' Because you have thought that the table of the LORD may be despised, that if you 8 offer a blind victim, there is nothing wrong, and if you offer a victim lame or diseased, there is nothing wrong. If you brought such a gift to the governor, would he receive you or show you favour? says the LORD of Hosts. But 9 now, if you placate God, he may show you mercy; if you do this, will he withhold his favour from you? So the LORD of Hosts has spoken. Better far 10 that one of you should close the great door altogether, so that the light might not fall thus all in vain upon my altar! I have no pleasure in you, says the LORD of Hosts; I will accept no offering from you. From furthest east 11 to furthest west my name is great among the nations. Everywhere fragrant sacrifice and pure gifts are offered in my name; for my name is great among the nations, says the LORD of Hosts. But you profane it by 12

<sup>a</sup> Malachi: or my messenger.

1.1: Title. Malachi means "my messenger" or "my angel," and is probably not a proper name (compare 3.1).

1.2-3.12: Religious decline and hope for recovery.

1.2-5: The LORD's hatred of Esau. The Edomites were descended from Esau, the Israelites from Jacob. They were brother nations, but their relations were dominated by hostility. See Gen.25.19-23, Ezek. ch. 35, and Obad.

1.6-2.9: Against priests. Care for the details of sacrifice and ritual is a way to honour the LORD. 11: In contrast to the impurity of worship in Judah, the LORD is worshiped in purity by all the Gentile nations. See, too, v. 14. 12: Profane: to treat an object set aside for worship as if thinking that the table of the LORD may be defiled, and that you can offer on it food you yourselves despise. You sniff at it, says the LORD of Hosts, and say, 'How irksome!' If you bring as your offering victims that are mutilated, lame, or diseased, shall I accept them from you? says the LORD. A curse on the cheat who pays his vows by sacrificing a damaged victim to the Lord, though he has a sound ram in his flock! I am the great king, says the LORD of Hosts, and my name is held in awe among the nations.

2 And now, you priests, this decree is for you: if you will not listen to me and pay heed to the honouring of my name, says the LORD of Hosts, then I will lay a curse upon you. I will turn your blessings into a curse; yes, into a curse, because you pay no heed. I will cut off your arm,<sup>b</sup> fling offal in your faces, the offal of your pilgrim-feasts, and I will banish you from my presence. 4 Then you will know that I have issued this decree against you: my covenant with Levi falls to the ground, says the LORD of Hosts. My covenant was with him: I bestowed life and prosperity on him; I laid on him the duty of reverence, he revered me and lived in awe of my name. The instruction he gave was true, and no word of injustice fell from his lips; he walked in harmony with me and in uprightness, and he turned many back from sin. For men hang upon the words of the priest and seek knowledge and instruction from him, because he is the messenger of the LORD of Hosts. But you have turned away from that course; you have made many stumble with your instruction; you have set at nought the covenant with the Levites, says the LORD of Hosts. So I, in my turn, have made you despicable and mean in the eyes of the people, in so far as you disregard my ways and show partiality in your instruction.

Have we not all one father? Did not one God create us? Why do we violate the covenant of our forefathers by being faithless to one another? Judah is faithless, and abominable things are done in Israel and in Jerusalem; Judah has violated the holiness of the LORD by loving and marrying daughters of a foreign god. May the LORD banish any who do this from the dwellings of Jacob, nomads or settlers, even though they bring offerings to the LORD of Hosts.

Here is another thing that you do: you weep and moan, and you drown the altar of the LORD with tears, but he still refuses to look at the offering or receive an acceptable gift from you. You ask why. It is because the LORD has borne witness against you on behalf of the wife of your youth. You have been unfaithful to her, though she is your partner and your wife by solemn covenant. Did not the one God make her, both flesh and spirit? And what does the one God require but godly children? Keep watch on your spirit, and do not be unfaithful to the wife of your youth. If a man divorces or puts away his spouse, he overwhelms her with cruelty, says the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel. Keep watch on your spirit, and do not be unfaithful.

You have wearied the LORD with your talk. You ask, 'How have we wearied him?' By saying that all evildoers are good in the eyes of the

<sup>b</sup> Or posterity.

---

it were a matter of secular business, subject to scheming and bargaining. 2.2: The business of priests is to convey God's blessings to people; dishonorable priests will have their blessings turned into curses that will fall upon themselves. 3: Contact with offal made one unfit for worship; here the blemished sacrifices do the same (1.13). 4: Levi was the priestly tribe, and the covenant acknowledged Levi's priestly functions.

2.10-16: Responsibility of Judah. Two aspects of covenants are discussed, the first (vv. 10-12) is Judah's covenant obligating fidelity to the LORD, and the second (vv. 13-16), divorce. 11: Daughters of a foreign god: though this may mean foreign women, it more probably refers to the worship of alien deities. 13-16: Divorce violates the covenant, for it entails inhuman cruelty. 14: Wife of your youth: this probably means that men were faithlessly divorcing older women to take up with young ones; it may possibly be a protest against forced divorces of foreign wives, narrated in Ezra ch. 10 and Neh. 13.23-29, but this is unlikely.

2.17-3.5: The refinement of the priests. The prophet threatens that the priests, who ostensibly seek God's nearness, will be shocked and pained when he actually comes near.

LORD, that he is pleased with them, or by asking, 'Where is the God of justice?' Look, I am sending my messenger<sup>c</sup> who will clear a path before me. Suddenly the Lord whom you seek will come to his temple; the messenger of the covenant in whom you delight is here, here already, says the LORD of Hosts. Who can endure the day of his coming? Who can stand firm when he appears? He is like a refiner's fire, like fuller's soap; he will take his seat, refining and purifying;<sup>d</sup> he will purify the Levites and cleanse them like gold and silver, and so they shall be fit to bring offerings to the LORD. Thus the offerings of Judah and Jerusalem shall be pleasing to the LORD as they were in days of old, in years long past. I will appear before you in court, prompt to testify against sorcerers, adulterers, and perjurers, against those who wrong<sup>e</sup> the hired labourer, the widow, and the orphan, who thrust the alien aside and have no fear of me, says the LORD of Hosts.

I am the LORD, unchanging; and you, too, have not ceased to be sons of Jacob. From the days of your forefathers you have been wayward and have not kept my laws. If you will return to me, I will return to you, says the LORD of Hosts. You ask, 'How can we return?' May man defraud God, that you defraud me? You ask, 'How have we defrauded thee?' Why, in tithes and contributions. There is a curse, a curse on you all, the whole nation of you, because you defraud me. Bring the tithes into the treasury, all of them; let there be food in my house. Put me to the proof, says the LORD of Hosts, and see if I do not open windows in the sky and pour a blessing on you as long as there is need. I will forbid pests to destroy the produce of your soil or make your vines barren, says the LORD of Hosts. All nations shall count you happy, for yours shall be a favoured land, says the LORD of Hosts.

Murmurers warned, the righteous triumphant

YOU HAVE USED HARD WORDS ABOUT me, says the LORD, and then you ask, 'How have we spoken against thee?' You have said, 'It is useless to serve God; what do we gain from the LORD of Hosts by observing his rules and behaving with deference? We ourselves count the arrogant happy; it is evildoers who are successful; they have put God to the proof and come to no harm.'

Then those who feared the LORD talked together, and the LORD paid heed and listened. A record was written before him of those who feared him and kept his name in mind. They shall be mine, says the LORD of Hosts, my own possession against the day that I appoint, and I will spare them as a man spares the son who serves him. You will again tell good men from bad, the servant of God from the man who does not serve him.

The day comes, glowing like a furnace; all the arrogant and the evildoers shall be chaff, and that day when it comes shall set them ablaze, says the LORD of Hosts, it shall leave them neither root nor branch. But for you who fear my name, the sun of righteousness shall rise with healing in his wings, and you shall break loose like calves released from the stall. On the day that I act, you shall trample down the wicked, for they will be ashes under the soles of your feet, says the LORD of Hosts.

c my messenger: Heb. Malachi.
d Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds silver.
e Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the wages of.

3.6-12: Fraud. Sons of Jacob: the people as a whole, not only the priests. Tithe is Heb. for a tenth. In Deut.14.28, the tithe of produce every third year is given to the Levites to support them.

3.13-18: How and when the good will triumph over the bad. To the complaint that evildoers are successful (compare Job ch. 21), the answer is that the good are in the LORD's possession and in his day and way, the good will be separated from the bad. 16: A record was written: compare Exod. 32.32-34; Dan.12.1.

4.1-6: The day of the LORD. The day is the time of distinction between good and evil men, and its fire consumes rather than purifies; see Joel 1.14-15 n. The image of the healing winged

- 4 Remember the law of Moses my servant, the rules and precepts which I bade him deliver to all Israel at Horeb. of the LORD comes. He will reconcile fathers to sons and sons to fathers, lest I come and put the land under a ban to destroy it. 6
- 5 Look, I will send you the prophet Elijah before the great and terrible day

---

sun (v. 2) may come, ultimately, from Egyptian symbolism. 4: Obedience to the law is the criterion for surviving the day. Horeb: Mount Sinai. 5-6: The expectation of the return of Elijah (2 Kgs.2.11) before the end may have already been a popular tradition, as it became later, based on this passage (Mt.11.13-14; Mk.9.11-13; and in the late Jewish expectations). He is probably not the same person as the messenger of 3.1. Ban: consignment to total destruction of anything or anyone connected with idolatry, including whole cities, as repugnant to God.

APPENDIX

MEASURES OF LENGTH

	span	cubit	rod <sup>a</sup>
span	1	..
cubit	2	1	..
rod <sup>a</sup>	12	6	1

The 'short cubit' was traditionally the measure from the elbow to the knuckles of the closed fist; and what seems to be intended as a 'long cubit' measured a 'cubit and a hand-breadth', i.e. 7 instead of 6 hand-breadths (Ezek.40.5). What is meant by cubits 'according to the old standard of measurement' (2 Chr.3.3) is presumably this pre-exilic cubit of 7 hand-breadths. Modern estimates of the Hebrew cubit range from 12 to 25.2 inches, without allowing for varying local standards.

MEASURES OF CAPACITY

liquid measures	equivalences	dry measures
'log'	1 'log'	..
..	4 'log'	'kab'
..	7½ 'log'	'omer'
'hin'	12 'log'	..
'bath'	72 'log'	'ephah'
'kor'	720 'log'	'homer' or 'kor'

According to ancient authorities the Hebrew 'log' was of the same capacity as the Roman sextarius; this according to the best available evidence was equivalent to 0.99 pint of the English standard.

WEIGHTS AND COINS

	heavy (Phoenician) standard			light (Babylonian) standard
	shekel	mina	talent	shekel	mina	talent
shekel	1	..		1	..	..
mina	50	1	..	60	1	..
talent	3,000	60	1	3,600	60	1

The 'gerah' was 1/20 of the sacred or heavy shekel and probably 1/24 of the light shekel.

<sup>a</sup> Hebrew literally 'reed', the length of Ezekiel's measuring-rod.

The 'sacred shekel' according to tradition was identical with the heavy shekel; while the 'shekel of the standard recognized by merchants' (Gen.23.16) was perhaps a weight stamped with its value as distinct from one not so stamped and requiring to be weighed on the spot.

The weight and value of the shekel varied so greatly according to the district and with the passing centuries that its evaluation in modern terms is impossible. Recent discoveries suggest that it may have weighed approximately 11.5 grammes.

Coins are not mentioned before the Exile. Only the 'daric' (1 Chr.29.7) and the 'drachma' (Ezra 2.69; Neh.7.70-72), if this is a distinct coin, are found in the Old Testament; the former is said to have been a month's pay for a soldier in the Persian army; while the latter will have been the Greek silver drachma, estimated at approximately 4.4 grammes. The 'shekel' of this period (Neh.5.15) as a coin was probably the Graeco-Persian siglos weighing 5.6 grammes.

THE NEW ENGLISH BIBLE

THE APOCRYPHA
OXFORD STUDY EDITION

CONTENTS

Introduction to the Apocrypha	iii
The Place of the Apocrypha	vi
Marginal Numbers	viii
The First Book of Esdras	1
The Second Book of Esdras	19
Tobit	53
Judith	67
The Rest of the Chapters of the Book of Esther	84
The Wisdom of Solomon	97
Ecclesiasticus or the Wisdom of Jesus Son of Sirach	115
Baruch	176
A Letter of Jeremiah	182
The Song of the Three	185
Daniel and Susanna	188
Daniel, Bel, and the Snake	191
The Prayer of Manasseh	193
The First Book of the Maccabees	195
The Second Book of the Maccabees	232

INTRODUCTION

TO THE APOCRYPHA

The term 'Apocrypha', a Greek word meaning 'hidden (things)', was early used in different senses. It was applied to writings which were regarded as so important and precious that they must be hidden from the general public and reserved for the initiates, the inner circle of believers. It came to be applied to writings which were hidden not because they were too good but because they were not good enough, because, that is, they were secondary or questionable or heretical. A third usage may be traced to Jerome. He was familiar with the Scriptures in their Hebrew as well as their Greek form, and for him apocryphal books were those outside the Hebrew canon, hence the alternative term deuterocanonical.

The usage here adopted is based on that of Jerome. The Apocrypha in this translation consists of fifteen books or parts of books. They are:

1. The First Book of Esdras
2. The Second Book of Esdras
3. Tobit
4. Judith
5. The Rest of the Chapters of the Book of Esther
6. The Wisdom of Solomon
7. Ecclesiasticus or the Wisdom of Jesus Son of Sirach
8. Baruch
9. A Letter of Jeremiah
10. The Song of the Three
11. Daniel and Susanna
12. Daniel, Bel, and the Snake
13. The Prayer of Manasseh
14. The First Book of the Maccabees
15. The Second Book of the Maccabees

These works are outside the Palestinian canon; that is, they form no part of the Hebrew Scriptures, although the original language of some of them was Hebrew. With the exception, however, of the Second Book of Esdras, they are all in the Greek version of the Old Testament made for the Greek-speaking Jews in Egypt. As such they were accepted as biblical by the early Church and were quoted as Scripture by many early Christian writers, for their Bible was the Greek Bible.

In Greek and Latin manuscripts of the Old Testament these books are dispersed throughout the Old Testament, generally in the places most in accord with their contents. The practice of collecting them into a separate unit, a practice which dates back no farther than A.D. 1520, explains why certain of the items are but fragments; they are passages not found in the Hebrew Bible, and so have been removed from the books in which they occur in the Greek version. To help the reader over this disunity and lack of context the present translators have resorted to various devices. We have added the name Daniel to the titles of the stories of Susanna and of Bel and the Snake as a reminder that these tales are to be read with the Book of Daniel. A note we have inserted after the title, The Song of the Three, indicates that this item is to be found in the third chapter of the Greek form of Daniel. And the six additions to the Book of Esther are so disjointed and unintelligible as they stand in most editions of the Apocrypha that we have provided them with a context by rendering the whole of the Greek version of Esther.

The text used in this translation of the Apocrypha is that edited by H. B. Swete in The Old Testament in Greek according to the Septuagint. In places Swete includes two texts, and we have chosen to translate the Codex Sinaiticus text of Tobit and Theodotion's version of the additions to the Book of Daniel, namely, The Song of the Three, Daniel and Susanna, and Daniel, Bel, and the Snake. For Ecclesiasticus we have used, in addition to Codex Vaticanus as printed in Swete's edition, the text edited by J. H. A. Hart in Ecclesiasticus: the Greek Text of Codex 248, and constant reference has been made to the various forms of the Hebrew text. For the Second Book of Esdras, which apart from a few verses is not extant in a Greek form, we have based our translation on the Latin text of R. L. Bensly's The Fourth Book of Ezra. Throughout we have consulted the variant readings given in critical editions of the Greek, the texts of the versions, and the suggestions of editors and commentators.

Alternative readings cited from Greek manuscripts (referred to as witnesses) and the evidence of early translations (Vss., that is Versions) are given, as footnotes, only when they are significant either for text or for meaning. In a few places where the text seems to have suffered in the course of transmission and in its present form is obscure or unintelligible we have made a slight change in the text and marked our rendering of it probable reading, and we have indicated any evidence other than the evidence afforded by the context. Where an alternative interpretation seemed to deserve serious consideration it has been recorded as a footnote with Or as indicator.

In order to preserve the verse numbering of the Authorized (King James) Version of 1611 we have, when necessary, added at the foot of the page those passages which are found in the manuscripts on which the Authorized Version ultimately rests but which are absent from the earlier manuscripts now available.

We have not sought to achieve consistency in the treatment of proper names any more than did our predecessors. We have continued to use familiar English forms, especially when the reference is to well-known Old Testament characters or places. Sometimes as an aid to the correct pronunciation we have had recourse to such expedients as the affixing of an acute accent to the word Sidé or the introduction of a diphthong, as in our Soud fur Sud. In general it may be said that Greek spellings have been Latinized, but the Greek forms of place-names have not been brought into line with the Hebrew.

We have not aimed at consistency in our treatment of weights and measures. We have rendered terms into the nearest English equivalents only when these seemed suitable and natural in the context.

Introduction to the Apocrypha

In the text of the First and Second Books of the Maccabees the dates given are reckoned according to the Greek or Seleucid era. As a help to the reader we have added at the foot of the page the nearest dates according to the Christian era.

This translation of the Apocrypha shares with other parts of The New English Bible the aim of providing a rendering which will be both faithful to the text translated and genuinely English in idiom. The translators have endeavoured to convey the meaning of the original in language which will be the closest natural equivalent. They have tried to avoid free paraphrase on the one hand and, on the other, formal fidelity resulting in a translation which would read like a translation. It is their hope that by their labours these documents, valuable in themselves and indispensable for the study of the background of the New Testament, have been made more intelligible and more readily accessible.

W. D. McH.

The Place of the Apocrypha

The place of the Apocrypha in the biblical canon has long been the center of controversy.

Written between 200 (or somewhat earlier)–50 B.C., certain of the books contain doctrines not uniformly accepted at that time by Jews, namely, a clear teaching on the resurrection of the body (2 Macc.7.9–12) and angelology (Tob.12.15), both of which were opposed by the powerful party, the Sadducees (Acts 23.6–8). Questions concerning the Apocrypha raised among Jews were also raised in the same or divergent form in Christian circles, especially by those church writers who were in contact with the Hebrew tradition. Some Christian writers, Augustine among them, put these books on a par with the rest of the Old Testament and quoted them equally. Jerome, who in 390 A.D. was commissioned to make a new translation of the whole Bible into Latin, studied Hebrew with a rabbi. His avowed purpose was to translate the Old Testament according to the “Hebrew original” (secundum Hebraicam veritatem), with the result that he was opposed to translating the Apocrypha because they were not in the Hebrew. In the end, he yielded to the pressure of the bishops and included these writings in the translation which came to be known as the Vulgate and which remained the official translation of the Latin church for many centuries. Paradoxically, Jerome himself often quoted the Apocrypha without distinguishing them from the books of the Hebrew canon.

Following the decrees by the synods of Hippo (393 A.D.) and Carthage (397 A.D.), the Apocrypha were uniformly included in the canon of the Latin church. Nevertheless, questions concerning them continued to be raised right up to the Council of Trent in the sixteenth century.

It had been natural for the leaders of the Reformation in the sixteenth century, with their emphasis on the supremacy and the purity of the Bible, to reject the Apocrypha, especially because an appeal was made for these books by Catholics against some of the basic positions of the Reformation. In 1546 A.D. the Council of Trent published a list of books to be received “with equal devotion and reverence,” which included the Apocrypha, with the exception of 1 and 2 Esdras and the Prayer of Manasseh. In time, the Apocrypha came to be designated by Roman Catholics as “deuterocanonical,” in distinction to the “protocanonical” books of the Hebrew canon. This special designation is not intended to suggest an inferior status, but simply a reception into the canon later than the protocanonical books. For the Eastern Orthodox Church, the Synod of Jerusalem (1672 A.D.) affirmed the validity of the longer canon; however, a universally binding conciliar decision has not been made, and hence a diversity of opinion still exists.

Today, the question of the canonical status of the Apocrypha is no longer so vehemently argued either in Protestant or Catholic circles. Scholarly biblical criticism has shown the presence of the same literary forms in both proto- and deuterocanonical writings. One of the results of biblical scholarship in the second half of the twentieth century has been to reduce the controversy, while not completely eliminating it, as witnessed by the inclusion of these books in the present Bible, though in a location and sequence different from those in Bibles published exclusively under Catholic auspices. Theologians now find themselves comfortable with a much more flexible concept of scriptural inerrancy, and consequently of inspiration, than was possible after the great religious controversies of the sixteenth century and before the era of modern biblical scholarship in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. The usefulness of a book is less likely to be judged on the basis of its inclusion in, or exclusion from, the canon, but rather by the light it sheds for understanding the rest of the Bible. The Apocrypha have something in common with what came before them and with what followed them; they therefore act as a link between the Old and the New Testaments and so help us to understand both.

The Place of the Apocrypha

Marginal Numbers

The conventional verse divisions in the Apocrypha date only from editions printed in the sixteenth century and have no basis in the manuscripts. Any system of division into numbered verses is foreign to the spirit of this translation, which is intended to convey the meaning in continuous natural English.

For purposes of reference, verse numbers are placed in the margin opposite the line in which the first word belonging to the verse in question appears. Sometimes, however, successive verses are combined in a continuous translation so that the precise point where a new verse begins cannot be fixed; in these cases the verse numbers, joined by a hyphen, are placed at the point where the passage begins.

THE FIRST BOOK OF ESDRAS

1 Esdras presents the material found in 2 Chr. chs. 35–36, the Book of Ezra (with one minor omission), and Nehemiah 7.38–8.12, dealing with Ezra. This material is at places presented in a sequence different from that found in the Masoretic Text. One section, 3.1–5.6, a story of a debate at the Persian court, is exceptional in completely lacking a parallel in Old Testament texts.

1 Esdras is a Greek translation of a Hebrew-Aramaic original (no longer extant) that closely resembled the Masoretic Text. It differed, however, at several points (e.g. compare 1.11 n. and 2.13–15 n.), with some differences being enigmatic (e.g. 5.69 and 8.41). The exact relationship of the Hebrew-Aramaic original to the corresponding material in the Hebrew canon, and to a (hypothetical) common forerunner to these cannot be determined. 1 Esdras is not related to the Septuagint translation of Ezra and Nehemiah. It is a curiosity that Josephus, for his history of the period, followed 1 Esdras.

A possible point of confusion lies in the name: 1 Esdras has also been called 2 Esdras (with 1 Esdras then being reserved for the Septuagint translation of Ezra-Nehemiah, originally a single book) and 3 Esdras (as in the Vulgate, where Ezra is 1 Esdras and Nehemiah is 2 Esdras). Others have called it the "Greek Ezra" (Esdras being a Greek rendering of the Hebrew Ezra).

Many scholars believe that 1 Esdras was written between 200 B.C. and 90 A.D., with 150 B.C. a likely date.

The reader is invited to consult the annotations prepared for the parallel material in the Old Testament books, as indicated in the first paragraph above.

---

Exile and return

1 JOSIAH KEPT THE PASSOVER AT JERUSALEM in honour of his Lord and sacrificed the Passover victims on the fourteenth day of the first month.
2 The priests, duly robed in their vestments, he stationed in the temple of the Lord according to the order of daily
3 service. He commanded the Levites, who served the temple in Israel, to purify themselves for the Lord, in order to place the holy Ark of the Lord in the house which was built by 4 King Solomon, son of David. Josiah said to them, 'You are no longer to carry it on your shoulders. Make yourselves ready now, family by family and clan by clan, to do service to the Lord your God and to minister to his
5 people Israel in the manner prescribed by King David and provided for so magnificently by his son Solomon. Take your places in the temple as Levites in the prescribed order of your families in the presence of your brother Israelites; sacrifice the Passover victims, and prepare the sacrifices for your brothers. Observe the Passover according to the ordinance of the Lord which was given to Moses.'

To those who were present Josiah 7 made a gift of thirty thousand lambs and kids and three thousand calves. These he gave from the royal estates in fulfilment of his promise to the people and to the priests and Levites. The 8 temple-wardens, Chelkias, Zacharias, and Esyelus, gave the priests two thousand six hundred sheep and three hundred calves for the Passover. Jechonias, Samaeas, his brother Na- 9 thanael, Sabias, Ozielus, and Joram, army officers of high rank, gave the Levites five thousand sheep and seven hundred calves for the Passover.

This was the procedure. The priests 10 and the Levites, bearing the unleavened bread, stood in all their splendour before the people, in the order of their clans and families, to make offerings to 11 the Lord as is laid down in the book of

---

1.1–33: Josiah's Passover and his last days; parallel to 2 Chr.35.1–27. Why 1 Esd. begins with this account is not known. Some speculate that the author wished to highlight the role of Josiah, and possibly to show a connection between his worthy acts and the return from the Exile in the days of Cyrus. The conclusion at 9.55 seems abrupt, as if more material was once included; possibly the beginning was also lost. 4: It: the Ark. Family and clan: see 1 Chr. chs. 24–26. 8: Esyelus: 2 Chr.35.8 reads "Jehiel." 11: In the morning: 2 Chr.35.12 has "so with

Moses. This took place in the morning.
 12 They roasted the Passover victims over the fire in the prescribed way and boiled the sacrifices in the vessels and cauldrons, and a pleasant smell went 13 up; then they carried portions round to the whole assembly. After this they made preparations both for themselves and for their brothers the priests, the 14 sons of Aaron. The priests went on offering the fat until nightfall, while the Levites made the preparations both for themselves and for their brothers
 15-16 the priests, the sons of Aaron. The sons of Asaph, the temple singers, with Asaph, Zacharias, and Eddinous of the royal court, and the door-keepers at each gateway remained at their station according to the ordinances of David, which prescribe that no one may lawfully default in his daily duty; their brothers the Levites made the preparations for them. All that pertained to the Lord's sacrifice was completed that day: the keeping of the Passover and the offering of the sacrifices on the altar of the Lord according to the command of King Josiah. The Israelites who were present on this occasion kept the Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread for seven days. Such a Passover had not been kept in Israel since the time of the prophet Samuel; none of the kings of Israel had kept such a Passover as was kept by Josiah, the priests and the Levites, the men of Judah, and those Israelites who happened to be resident in Jerusalem. It was in the eighteenth year of Josiah's reign that this Passover was celebrated.
 23 All that Josiah did he did rightly and in whole-hearted devotion to his Lord.
 24 The events of his reign are to be found in ancient records which tell a story of sin and rebellion against the Lord graver than that of any other nation or kingdom, and of offences against him which brought down his judgement upon Israel.
 25 After all these doings of Josiah's it happened that Pharaoh king of Egypt was advancing to attack Carchemish on the Euphrates, and Josiah took the field against him. The king of Egypt 26 sent him this message: 'What is your business with me, king of Judah? It is 27 not against you that the Lord God has sent me to fight; my campaign is on the Euphrates. The Lord is with me, the Lord, I say, is with me, driving me on. Withdraw, and do not oppose the Lord.' Josiah did not turn his chariot 28 but went forward to the attack. He disregarded what the Lord had said through the prophet Jeremiah and 29 joined battle with Pharaoh in the plain of Megiddo. Pharaoh's captains swept down upon King Josiah. The king said 30 to his servants, 'Take me out of the battle, for I am badly hurt.' At once his servants took him out of the line and lifted him into his second chariot. 31 He was brought back to Jerusalem, and there he died and was buried in his ancestral tomb.

All Judah mourned Josiah, and the 32 prophet Jeremiah lamented him. The lamentation for Josiah has been observed by the chief men and their wives from that day to this; it was proclaimed that it should be a custom for ever for the whole people of Israel. These things 33 are recorded in the book of the histories of the kings of Judah; every deed that Josiah did which won him fame and showed his understanding of the law of the Lord, both what he did earlier and what is told of him here, is related in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

His compatriots took Joachaz the 34 son of Josiah and made him king in succession to his father. He was twenty-three years old, and he reigned over 35 Judah and Jerusalem for three months. Then the king of Egypt deposed him, fined the nation a hundred talents of 36 silver and one talent of gold, and 37 appointed his brother Joakim king of Judah and Jerusalem. Joakim im- 38

the bulls"; the Heb. words for "morning" and "bulls," having identical consonants, were easily confused. 22: The eighteenth year of Josiah's reign: 621 B.C. 23-24: Not paralleled in 2 Chr. 25: Pharaoh: Necho (reigned 609-594 B.C.); 2 Chr.35.20. In 609 the Egyptians moved north to attack Carchemish, to aid the Assyrians, who were making a last-ditch stand against the Medes and Babylonians.

1.34-58: The fall of Judah and Jerusalem; parallel to 2 Chr.36.1-21. 38: A confused version prisoned the leading men and had his brother Zarius arrested and brought back from Egypt.

39 Joakim was twenty-five years old when he became king of Judah and Jerusalem; he did what was wrong in the eyes of the Lord. Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon marched against him; he put him in chains of bronze and took him to Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar also took some of the sacred vessels of the Lord, carried them off, and put them in his temple in Babylon. The stories about Joakim, his sacrilegious and godless conduct, are recorded in the chronicles of the kings.

43 Joakim was succeeded on the throne by his eighteen-year-old son Joakim. He reigned in Jerusalem for three months and ten days, and did what was wrong in the eyes of the Lord.

45 A year later Nebuchadnezzar had him deported to Babylon together with the sacred vessels of the Lord. He made Zedekiah king of Judah and Jerusalem. Zedekiah was twenty-one years old and reigned eleven years. He did what was wrong in the eyes of the Lord and disregarded what the Lord had said through the prophet Jeremiah. King Nebuchadnezzar had made him take an oath of allegiance by the Lord, but he broke it and revolted. He was stubborn and defiant, and transgressed the commandments of the Lord, the God of Israel.

49 The leaders of the people and the chief priests committed many wicked and lawless acts, outdoing even the heathen in sacrilege, and they defiled the holy temple of the Lord in Jerusalem. The God of their fathers sent his messenger to reclaim them, because he wished to spare them and his dwelling-place. But they derided his messengers, and on the very day when the Lord spoke they were scoffing at his prophets. At last he was roused to fury against his people for their impieties, and ordained that the kings of the Chaldeans should attack them. These 53 put their young men to the sword all round the holy temple, sparing neither old nor young, neither boy nor girl; the Lord handed them all over to their enemies. All the sacred vessels of the Lord, large and small, the furnishings of the Ark of the Lord, and the royal treasures were carried off to Babylon. The house of the Lord was set on fire, 54 the walls of Jerusalem destroyed, its towers burnt, and all its splendours 56 ruined. Nebuchadnezzar carried off to Babylon the survivors from the slaughter, and they remained slaves to him 57 and his sons until the Persians took his empire. This fulfilled the word of the Lord spoken by Jeremiah: 'Until the 58 land has run the full term of its sabbaths, it shall keep sabbath all the time of its desolation till the end of the seventy years.'

DURING THE FIRST YEAR OF CYRUS KING 2 1-2 of Persia, the Lord, in order to fulfil his word spoken through Jeremiah, moved Cyrus king of Persia to make a proclamation throughout his empire, which he also put in writing: 'This is the 3 decree of Cyrus king of Persia: The Lord of Israel, the most high Lord, has made me king of the world and has 4 directed me to build him a house at Jerusalem in Judaea. Whoever among 5 you belongs to his people, may his Lord be with him; let him go up to Jerusalem in Judaea and build the house of the Lord of Israel, the Lord who dwells in Jerusalem. Wherever each man 6 lives let his neighbours help him with gold and silver and other gifts, with 7 horses and pack-animals, together with other things set aside as votive offerings for the Lord's temple in Jerusalem.'

Then the chiefs of the clans of the 8 tribe of Judah and of Benjamin, the priests, the Levites, came forward, and of 2 Chr.36.4; see 2 Chr.36.1-4, 9-11. The name Zarius, otherwise unknown, is likely an error for Zedekiah, the brother of Joakim and successor to his nephew Jehoiachin (vv. 45-48; 2 Kgs.24.17-25.7). The "bringing back" of Zarius-Zedekiah reflects further confusion. 43: Joakim . . . Joakim: for the second Joakim, read "Jehoiachin"; eighteen is correct, not eight (2 Chr.36.9).

2.1-15: The ascendancy and decree of Cyrus; parallel to Ezra 1.1-11. 1: First year: 539 B.C. 3: The Lord of Israel: Ezra 1.2 has "The LORD the God of heaven," a title perhaps more agree-

all whose spirit the Lord had moved to go up to build the Lord's temple in Jerusalem. Their neighbours helped with everything, with silver and gold, horses and pack-animals; and many were also moved to help with votive offerings in great quantity. King Cyrus brought out the sacred vessels of the Lord which Nebuchadnezzar had taken away from Jerusalem and set up in his idolatrous temple. Cyrus king of Persia brought them out and delivered them to Mithradates his treasurer, by whom they were delivered to Sanabassar, the governor of Judaea. This is the inventory: a thousand gold cups, a thousand silver cups, twenty-nine silver censers, thirty gold bowls, two thousand four hundred and ten silver bowls, and a thousand other articles. In all, five thousand four hundred and sixty-nine gold and silver vessels were returned, and taken from Babylon to Jerusalem by Sanabassar together with the exiles. In the time of Artaxerxes king of Persia, Belemus, Mithradates, Tabellius, Rathymus, Beeltethmus, Semellius the secretary, and their colleagues in office in Samaria and other places, wrote him a letter denouncing the inhabitants of Judaea and Jerusalem in the following terms:

17 To our Sovereign Lord Artaxerxes your servants Rathymus the recorder, Semellius the secretary, the other members of their council, and the magistrates in Coele-syria and Phoenicia:
18 This is to inform Your Majesty that the Jews who left you to come here have arrived in Jerusalem and are rebuilding that wicked and rebellious city. They are repairing its streets and walls and laying the foundation of the temple. If this city is rebuilt and the walls completed, they will cease paying tribute and will rebel against the royal house. Since work on the temple is in hand, we have thought it well not to neglect this important matter but to bring it to Your Majesty's notice, in order that, if it is Your Majesty's pleasure, search may be made in the records left by your predecessors. You will find in the archives evidence about these matters and will learn that this is a city that has resisted authority and given trouble to kings and to other states, and has been a centre of armed rebellion by the Jews from the earliest times. That is why it was laid in ruins. Now we submit to Your Majesty that, if this city be rebuilt and its walls rise again, you will no longer have access to Coele-syria and Phoenicia.

Then the king wrote to Rathymus the recorder, Beeltethmus, Semellius the secretary, and their colleagues in office in Samaria, Syria, and Phoenicia this reply:

I have read your letter. I ordered search to be made and it was discovered that this city has always been opposed to its overlords, and its inhabitants have raised rebellions and made wars. There were kings in Jerusalem, powerful and ruthless men, who in their time controlled Coele-syria and Phoenicia and ex-

---

able to the Persian rulers; see 2 Chr.36.23 and Ezra 5.11-12. 10: Idolatrous temple is pointedly monotheistic; compare Ezra 1.7, which has "in the temple of his god." 12,15: Sanabassar is Sheshbazzar in Ezra 1.8. 13-15: The inventory here is probably more accurate than the parallel in Ezra 1.9-11. The total here, 5,469, is correct, not the figure 5,400 in Ezra, though a miscellaneous category "other vessels," is mentioned there.

2.16-30: Opposition to rebuilding the Temple and the walls; parallel to Ezra 4.7,11-24. The account is somewhat confusing. V. 1 mentions Cyrus (died 529 B.C.) and v. 30, Darius I (521-486 B.C.); Cambyses (529-521 B.C.) is omitted. Artaxerxes (v. 16) reigned in 464-424 B.C. The section seems misplaced, perhaps belonging originally between the end of Ezra and the beginning of Nehemiah. 16: Beeltethmus: the translator here mistook a title ("high commissioner," Ezra 4.9) for a personal name. 17: The men ruled over the area which included Palestine; the area, from Persian perspective, is called "Beyond-Euphrates" (Ezra 4.10). 18: The temple is not mentioned in Ezra 4.14; 4.24, however, speaks of the cessation of building it. Many scholars believe that the mention of the Temple here, in v. 30, and in Ezra 4.24 are late insertions, occasioned by the mention of sacred vessels (v. 10). The opposition at this time was to rebuilding the walls. 25: Beeltethmus: see v. 16 n.

28 acted tribute from them. I therefore command that the men you mention
be prevented from rebuilding the city, 29 and that measures be taken to enforce this order and to check the spread of an evil likely to be a nuisance to the royal house.

30 When the letter from King Artaxerxes had been read, Rathymus, Semellius the secretary, and their colleagues set out at once for Jerusalem with cavalry and a large body of other troops and stopped the builders. The building of the temple was broken off until the second year of the reign of Darius king of Persia.

A debate at the Persian court

3 KING DARIUS HELD A GREAT FEAST FOR all those under him, his household, the 2 chief men of Media and Persia, and the satraps and commanders and governors of his empire in the hundred and 3 twenty-seven satrapies from India to Ethiopia. When they had eaten and drunk their fill, they went away, and King Darius withdrew to his bedchamber; he went to sleep but woke up 4 again. Then the three young men of the king's personal bodyguard said to each 5 other: 'Let each one of us name the thing which he judges the strongest;
and to the one whose opinion seems 6 wisest King Darius will give rich gifts and prizes: he shall be clothed in purple, drink from gold vessels, and sleep on a golden bed; and he shall have a chariot with gold-studded bridles, and a fine linen turban, and a 7 chain about his neck. His wisdom shall give him the right to sit next to Darius and to be given the title Kinsman of Darius.' Then each wrote down his 8 own statement, sealed it, and put it under the king's pillow. 'When the king 9 wakes again,' they said, 'the writing will be given him. The king and the three chief men of Persia shall judge whose statement is wisest, and the award will be made on the merits of the written statement.'

One wrote 'Wine is strongest', the 10,11
second wrote 'The king is strongest',
and the third wrote 'Women are 12
strongest, but truth conquers all'.
When the king got up he was pre- 13 sented with what they had written. He read it, and summoned all the chief 14
men of Persia and Media, satraps, commanders, governors, and chief officers. Then he took his seat in the 15 council chamber, and what they had written was read out before them. He 16 said, 'Call the young men and let them expound their statements.' They were 17 called and came in. They were asked,
'Tell us about what you have written.'

The first, who spoke about the 18
strength of wine, began. 'Sirs,' he said,
'how true it is that wine is strongest!
It sends astray the wits of all who 19 drink it; king and orphan, slave and free, rich and poor, it has the same 20 effect on them all. It turns all thoughts to revelry and mirth; it brings forget- 21 fulness of grief and debt. It makes all feel rich, cares nothing for king or 22 satrap, and makes men always talk in millions. When they are in their cups, 23 they forget to be friendly to friends and relations, and are quick to draw their swords; when they have recovered from 24 their wine, they cannot remember what they have done. Sirs, is not wine the strongest, seeing that it forces men to behave in this way?' With this he ended.

3.1-5.6: A debate at the Persian court. This interpolated story is unique to Esdras. It aggrandizes Zerubbabel. The author adapted a popular account of a debate, which originally contained only three statements (about wine, the king, and women). To that account he added the statement, "but truth conquers all" (v. 12), both in order to include a theme more akin to Jewish sensibilities, and also to introduce the return from the Babylonian Exile. The third speaker, Zerubbabel, proposes two separate statements, thus effacing the expected symmetry of three men and three statements.

3.1-17a: The setting of the debate. 1: Darius I, reigned 521-486 B.C. 2: The hundred and twenty-seven satrapies: compare Esther 1.1; the number is greatly exaggerated; twenty would be accurate. 3: Went to sleep: Josephus Ant. XI. 3.2 relates that the king suggested the debate after a sleepless night.

3.17b-24: Wine is strongest. 18: It sends astray the wits: compare Eccles.19.2.

4 Then the second, the one who spoke of the strength of the king, began his 2 speech: 'Sirs, is not man the strongest,
 man who masters the earth and the sea 3 and all that is in them? But the strongest of men is the king; he is their lord and master, and they obey all his 4 commands. If he bids them make war upon one another they do it; if he dispatches them against his enemies,
 they march and level mountains and 5 walls and towers. They kill and are killed; they do not disobey the king's order. If they are victorious they bring everything to the king, their spoils and 6 everything else. Or take those who do not serve as soldiers or go to war, but work the land: they sow and reap, and bring their produce to the king. They compel each other to bring him their 7 tribute. Though he is no more than one man, if he orders them to kill, they kill;
 if he orders them to release, they re-8 lease; he orders them to attack and they attack, to lay waste and they lay waste, 9 to build and they build, to cut down and they cut down, to plant and they 10 plant. So all his people and his troops obey him. Besides this, while he himself sits at table, eats and drinks, and goes 11 to sleep, they stand in attendance round about him and none can leave and see to his own affairs; they never 12 disobey him in anything. Sirs, of course the king must be strongest when he commands such obedience!' So he stopped speaking.

13 The third, who spoke about women and truth—and this was Zerubbabel—14 said: 'Sirs, it is true the king is great, men are many, and wine is strong, but who rules over them? Who is the 15 sovereign power? Women, surely! The king and all his people who rule land 16 and sea were born of women, and from them they came. Women brought up the men who planted the vineyards which yield the wine. They make 17 clothes for men and they bring honour

 to men; men cannot do without women.
 If they have amassed gold and silver 18
 and all kinds of beautiful things, and then see a woman with a lovely face and figure, they leave all these things to 19
 gape and stare at her with open mouth,
 and all choose her in preference to gold or silver or beautiful things. A man 20 will desert his father who brought him up, desert even his country, and become one with his wife. He forgets father, 21 mother, and country, and stays with his wife to the end of his days. Here is the 22 proof that women are your masters: do you not toil and sweat and then bring all you earn and give it to your wives?
 A man will take his sword and sally 23
 forth to plunder and rob, to sail on sea and river; he faces lions, he travels in 24
 the dark; and when he has robbed and plundered he brings the spoil home to his beloved.

'A man loves his wife more than his 25
 father or mother. For women's sakes 26 many men have been driven out of their minds, many have been sold into slavery, many have died or come to 27 grief or ruined their lives. Do you 28 believe me now? Certainly the king wields great authority; no country dare lift a finger against him. Yet I watched 29 him with Apame, his favourite concubine, daughter of the famous Bartacus. She was sitting on the king's right;
 she took the diadem off his head and 30
 put it on her own, and slapped his face with her left hand; and the king only 31 gazed at her open-mouthed. When she laughed at him he laughed; when she was cross with him he coaxed her to make it up. Sirs, if women do as well 32 as this, how can their strength be denied?' The king and the chief men 33 looked at one another.

He then went on to speak about

4.1-12: The king is strongest. The passage is often misinterpreted as depicting the supposed arbitrary power of oriental kings; rather, it is a general discourse on the power of those who govern, whoever or wherever they may be. Sources indicate that oriental kings' powers were most usually circumscribed more effectively—though there were exceptions—than those of western kings.

4.13-33: Women are strongest. 29: The identity of this Apame is uncertain. An Apame, daughter of Spitamenes, was given as wife to Seleucus Nicator, the Syrian ruler; and an Apame, daughter of Artabazus, was given to Ptolemy I Soter, the Egyptian king. Bartacus appears in various forms in manuscripts; the words the famous may be a corruption of an ancestral name, rather than the implication that Bartacus was well-known.

34 truth: 'Sirs, we have seen that women are strong. The earth is vast, the sky is lofty, the sun swift in his course, for he moves through the circle of the sky and 35 speeds home in a single day. How great is he who does all this! But truth too 36 is great and stronger than all else. The whole earth calls on truth; the sky praises
her. All created things shake and tremble; with her there is no injustice. There is injustice in wine, in kings, in women,
in all men, and in all their works, and so 37 forth. There is no truth in them; they 38 shall perish in their injustice. But truth abides and is strong for ever; she lives 39 and rules for ever and ever. With her there is no favouritism or partiality;
she chooses to do justice rather than what is unjust and evil. All approve her 40 works; in her judgements there is no injustice. Hers are strength and royalty, the authority and majesty of all ages.
Praise be to the God of truth!

41 So he ended his speech, and all the people shouted and said, 'Great is 42 truth: truth is strongest!' Then the king said to him, 'Ask what you will, even beyond what is in the writing, and I will grant it you. For you have been proved the wisest; and you shall sit by me and be called my Kinsman.'

43 Then he said to the king: 'Remember the vow you made on the day when you came to the throne. You promised 44 to rebuild Jerusalem and to send back all the vessels taken from it which Cyrus set aside. When he vowed to destroy Babylon he also vowed to re-45 store these vessels; and you too made a vow to rebuild the temple which the Edomites burnt when Judaea was 46 ravaged by the Chaldaeans. This is the favour that I now beg of you, my lord
king, this is the magnanimity I request:
that you should perform the vow which you made to the King of heaven.'

King Darius stood up and kissed 47
him, and wrote letters for him to all the treasurers, governors, commanders, and satraps instructing them to give safe conduct to him and to all those who were going up with him to rebuild
Jerusalem. To all the governors in 48
Coele-syria and Phoenicia and in Lebanon he wrote letters ordering them to transport cedar-wood from Lebanon to Jerusalem and join with Zerubbabel in building the city. He gave all Jews 49 going up from the kingdom to Judaea
letters assuring their liberties: that no officer, satrap, governor, or treasurer
should interfere with them, that all land 50 which they should acquire should be immune from taxation, and that the Edomites should surrender the villages
they had seized from the Jews. Each 51 year twenty talents were to be contributed to the building of the temple
until it was finished, and a further ten 52 talents annually for<sup>a</sup> burnt-offerings to be sacrificed daily upon the altar in accordance with their law. All those 53-54 who were going from Babylonia to build the city were to enjoy freedom, and their descendants after them. He gave written orders that all the priests going there should also receive maintenance and the vestments in which they would officiate; that the Levites 55 too should receive maintenance, until the day when the building of the temple and Jerusalem was completed;
and that all who guarded the city 56
should be given land and pay. He sent 57 back all the vessels from Babylon which Cyrus had set aside. All that Cyrus had commanded, he reaffirmed, ordering everything to be restored to Jerusalem.

When the young man, Zerubbabel, 58 went out, he turned his face toward

a Some witnesses add seventeen.

4.34-42: Truth is strongest. 41: The Latin translation became an oft-quoted line: "Great is truth, and it prevails." 42: Sit by me and be called my Kinsman: see 3.7.

4.43-60: Permission granted to rebuild Jerusalem. 43-46: Darius' vow. This section contains historical improbabilities. It is unlikely that Darius would have made a vow (v. 43) such as here, particularly on his coronation day! Next, the vessels had already been sent back to Jerusalem in the days of Cyrus (2.1-15). Again, the idea that Cyrus vowed to destroy Babylon (v. 44) is contradicted by the fact that the city yielded to him without a struggle. Furthermore, not the Edomites (v. 45) but the Babylonians destroyed Jerusalem. Hence, this section is a literary construction to introduce the theme of the return to Zion. 58-60: Like Daniel, Zerubbabel turned his face toward Jerusalem (compare Dan.6.10). The prayer is kindred to that in Dan.2.20-23.

Jerusalem, looked up to heaven, and 59 praised the King of heaven. 'From thee comes victory,' he said, 'from thee comes wisdom; thine is the glory and 60 I am thy servant. All praise to thee who hast given me wisdom; to thee I give thanks, O Lord of our fathers.'
 61 He took the letters and set off for Babylon, where he told his fellow-Jews.
 62 They praised the God of their fathers
 because he had given them full freedom 63 to go and rebuild Jerusalem and the temple called by his name, and they feasted for a week with music and rejoicing.

The temple rebuilt

5 AFTER THIS THE HEADS OF FAMILIES, tribe by tribe, were chosen to go to Jerusalem, with their wives, their sons and daughters, their male and female 2 slaves, and their pack-animals. Darius sent a thousand horsemen to accompany them until they had brought them safely back to Jerusalem, with a band 3 of drums and flutes, and all their brothers dancing. So he sent them off with their escort.
 4 These are the names of the men who went to Jerusalem, according to their 5 families, tribes, and allotted duties. The priests, the sons of Phineas son of Aaron, with Jeshua son of Josedek son of Saraeas, and Joakim his son; and<sup>b</sup> Zerubbabel son of Salathiel of the 6 house of David of the line of Phares of the tribe of Judah, who spoke wise words before Darius king of Persia.
 They went in the second year of his reign, in Nisan the first month.
 7 Now these are the men of Judah who came up from amongst the captive exiles, those whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had transported to 8 Babylon. They returned to Jerusalem and the rest of Judaea, each to his own city: they came with Zerubbabel and Jeshua, Nehemiah, Zaraeas, Resaeas, Eneuius, Mardocheus, Beelsarus,

Aspharasus, Reelias, Romelius, and Baana, their leaders. The numbers of 9 those from the nation who returned with their leaders were: the line of Phoros two thousand one hundred and seventy-two; the line of Saphat four hundred and seventy-two; the line of 10 Ares seven hundred and fifty-six; the line of Phaath-moab, deriving from the line of Jeshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred and twelve;
 the line of Elam one thousand two hundred and fifty-four; the line of 12 Zathui nine hundred and forty-five;
 the line of Chorbe seven hundred and five; the line of Banei six hundred and 13 forty-eight; the line of Bebae six hundred and twenty-three; the line of Astaa one thousand three hundred and twenty-two. The line of Adonikam six 14 hundred and sixty-seven; the line of Bagoi two thousand and sixty-six; the line of Adinus four hundred and fifty-four; the line of Ater son of Hezekias 15 ninety-two; the line of Keilan and Azetas sixty-seven; the line of Azurus
 four hundred and thirty-two; the line 16 of Annias one hundred and one; the line of Arom and the line of Bassa three hundred and twenty-three; the line of Arsiphurith one hundred and twelve;
 the line of Baeterus three thousand and 17 five. The line of Bethlomon one hundred and twenty-three; the men of 18 Netophae fifty-five; the men of Anatoth one hundred and fifty-eight; the men of Bethasmoth forty-two; the men 19 of Cariathiarus twenty-five; the men of Caphira and Beroth seven hundred and forty-three; the Chadasiens and Ammi-20 daeans four hundred and twenty-two;
 the men of Kirama and Gabbes six hundred and twenty-one; the men of 21 Macalon one hundred and twenty-two;
 the men of Betolio fifty-two; the line of Phinis one hundred and fifty-six; the 22 line of Calamolalus and Onus seven hundred and twenty-five; the line of

<sup>b</sup> his son; and: probable reading (compare Nehemiah 12. 10).

4.61-5.6: The departure from Babylon. The Judeans leave Babylon; the Persian capital, where Zerubbabel served in the court, was presumably at Susa. Perhaps Zerubbabel went from Susa to Babylon to find leaders and stimulate the return. 5.5: The genealogy of Zerubbabel clashes with that in 1 Chr.3.17-24.

5.7-46: Tally of returnees; parallel to Ezra 2.1-70 and Neh.7.6-73, but with many differences.

Jerechus three hundred and forty-five;
 23 the line of Sanaas three thousand three hundred and thirty.
 24 The priests: the line of Jeddu son of Jeshua, deriving from the line of Anasib, nine hundred and seventy-two. The line of Emmeruth one thousand 25 and fifty-two. The line of Phassurus one thousand two hundred and forty-seven. The line of Charme one thousand and seventeen.
 26 The Levites: the line of Jesue, Cadmielus, Bannus, and Sudius seventy-four. The temple singers: the line of 27 Asaph one hundred and twenty-eight.
 28 The door-keepers: the line of Salum, of Atar, of Tolman, of Dacubi, of Ateta, of Sabi, in all one hundred and thirty-nine.
 29 The temple-servitors: the line of Esau, of Asipha, of Taboth, of Keras, of Susa, of Phaleas, of Labana, of 30 Aggaba, of Acud, of Uta, of Ketab, of Gaba, of Subai, of Anan, of Cathua, of Geddur, of Jairus, of Desan, of 31 Noeba, of Chaseba, of Gazera, of Ozius, of Phinoe, of Asara, of Basthae, of Asana, of Maani, of Naphisi, of Acum, of Achipha, of Asur, of Pharakim, of Baaloth, of Meedda, of Coutha, 32 of Charea, of Barchue, of Serar, of Thomi, of Nasith, of Atepha. The descendants of Solomon's servants: the line of Asaphthioth, of Pharida, of Jeeli, of Lozon, of Isdael, of Saphyithi, 34 of Hagia, of Phacareth, of Sabie, of Sarothie, of Masias, of Gas, of Addus, of Subas, of Apherra, of Barodis, of 35 Saphat, of Adlon. All the temple-servitors and the descendants of Solomon's servants numbered three hundred and seventy-two.
 36 The following came from Thermeleth and Thelsas with their leaders Charathalar and Alar, and could not prove by their families and genealogies that they were Israelites: the line of Dalan, the line of Ban, and the line of Necodan 37 six hundred and fifty-two.

From among the priests the claimants 38 to the priesthood whose record could not be traced: the line of Obdia, of Accos, of Joddus, who married Augia one of the daughters of Zorzelleas, and took his name; when search was made 39 for their family record in the register it could not be traced, and so they were excluded from priestly service. Nehemiah the governor<sup>c</sup> told them that they should not participate in the sacred offerings until a high priest arose wearing the breast-piece of Revelation and Truth.

They were in all: Israelites from 41 twelve years old, not counting slaves male and female, forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty; their slaves 42 seven thousand three hundred and thirty-seven; musicians and singers two hundred and forty-five; camels four 43 hundred and thirty-five, horses seven thousand and thirty-six, mules two hundred and forty-five, donkeys five thousand five hundred and twenty-five.

Some of the heads of families, when 44 they arrived at the temple of God in Jerusalem, made a vow to erect the house again on its site as best they could, and to give to the sacred treasury for the fabric fund one thousand minas of gold and five thousand minas of silver and one hundred vestments.

The priests, the Levites, and some of 46 the people settled in Jerusalem and the neighbourhood, with the temple musicians and the door-keepers; and all Israel settled in their villages.

WHEN THE SEVENTH MONTH CAME AND 47 the Israelites were in their homes they gathered as one man in the broad square of the first gateway toward the east. Jeshua son of Josedek and his 48 brother priests and Zerubbabel son of Salathiel and his colleagues came forward and made ready the altar of the

<sup>c</sup> the governor: probable meaning: Gk. and Atharrias.

24-25: The priestly divisions here number four, but twenty-four in 1 Chr. 24.7-19. 40: Nehemiah the governor: the name here (and in Neh. 8.9) is a late insertion, for it is missing from Ezra 2.1-70 and Neh. 7.6-73; see 9.49 n. Revelation and Truth: probably a rendering of Heb. "Urim" and "Thummim" (Exod. 28.30).

5.47-73: The setting up of the altar and the attempted construction of the Temple; parallel to Ezra 3.1-4.5. In Ezra we read only of the foundation of the Temple, whereas here there is apparently a more extensive effort, indeed, the construction of the entire edifice. 47: The seventh

49 God of Israel, to offer on it whole burnt-offerings according to the directions in the book of Moses the man 50 of God. They were joined<sup>d</sup> by men from the other peoples of the land and they set up the altar on its site (for the peoples in the land as a whole were hostile to them and were too strong for them); and they offered sacrifices to the Lord at the proper time, and whole burnt-offerings morning and evening.
51 They observed the Feast of Tabernacles as enjoined in the law, and the proper sacrifices day by day; and thereafter the 52 continual offerings, and sacrifices on sabbaths, at new moons, and on all solemn feasts. All who had made a 53 vow to God offered sacrifices to God from the new moon of the seventh month, although the temple of God was 54-55 not yet built. Money was paid to the stonemasons and carpenters; the Sidonians and Tyrians were supplied with food and drink, and with carts to bring cedar-trees from Lebanon, floating them down as rafts to the anchorage at Joppa, as decreed by Cyrus king of Persia.
56 In the second month of the second year, Zerubbabel son of Salathiel came to the temple of God in Jerusalem and started the work. There were with him Jeshua son of Josedek, their kinsmen, the levitical priests, and all who had 57 come to Jerusalem from the exile; and they laid the foundation of the temple of God. This was at the new moon, in the second month of the second year after they had returned to Judaea and 58 Jerusalem. The Levites from the age of twenty and upwards were set over the works of the Lord. Jeshua, his sons, his brothers, his brother Cadoel, the sons of Jeshua Emadabun, and the sons of Joda son of Iliadun with their sons and brothers, all the Levites, supervisors of the work, were active as one man on the works in the house of God.

While the builders built the temple of the Lord, the priests in their vestments 59 with musical instruments and trumpets, and the Levites the sons of Asaph with their cymbals, stood singing to the 60 Lord and praising him as David king of Israel had appointed. They sang psalms 61 praising the Lord, 'for his goodness and glory is for ever toward all Israel'.
62 All the people blew their trumpets and gave a loud shout, singing to the Lord
as the building rose.

The priests, the Levites, and heads 63 of families, the older men who had seen the former house, came to the building of this one with cries of lamentation; and so, while many were 64 sounding the trumpets loudly for joy—so loudly as to be heard far away—the 65 people could not hear the trumpets
for the noise of lamentation.

The enemies of Judah and Benjamin 66 heard the noise of the trumpets and came to see what it meant. They found 67 the returned exiles building the temple for the Lord God of Israel; they came 68 to Zerubbabel and Jeshua and the leaders of the families, and said: 'We will build with you; for like you we 69 obey your Lord and have sacrificed to him from the time of Asbasareth king of Assyria who transported us here.' 70 But Zerubbabel and Jeshua and the leaders of the families of Israel replied:
'You can have no share in building the 71 house for the Lord our God; we alone will build for the Lord of Israel, as 72 Cyrus king of Persia decreed.' But the peoples of the land harassed<sup>e</sup> the men of Judaea, blockaded them, and inter-73 rupted the building. Their plots, agitations, and riots held up the completion of the building all the lifetime of King Cyrus. They were prevented from building for two years until Darius became king.

<sup>d</sup> Or attacked; the clauses are perhaps in a confused order.
<sup>e</sup> Probable reading: Gk. obscure.

month: Tishri (September–October). 51: The Feast of Tabernacles as enjoined in the law: Lev.23.33–43. The proper sacrifices day by day: Num.29.12–38. 52: The continual offerings . . . sabbaths . . . new moons . . . solemn feasts follow the sequence of Num.28.1–29.11. 56: The second month: Iyyar (April–May). 69: Compare 2 Kgs.17.24–41. The name Asbasareth is hopelessly corrupt; the attempt at emendation (e.g. to Esarhaddon) is arbitrary. 73: For two years until Darius became king: as at 2.16, the eight-year reign of Cambyses is ignored. Some scholars believe that two separate returns, one under Cyrus led by Sheshbazzar, and a second under Zerubbabel, have become merged.

6 In the second year of the reign of Darius, the prophets Haggai and Zechariah son of Addo prophesied to the Jews in Judaea and Jerusalem in the name of the Lord the God of Israel.

2 Then Zerubbabel son of Salathiel and Jeshua son of Josedek began to rebuild the house of the Lord in Jerusalem. The prophets of the Lord were at their

3 side to help them. At that time Sisinnes, the governor-general of Syria and Phoenicia, with Sathrabuzanes and their colleagues, came to them and said:

4 'Who has authorized you to put up this building, complete with roof and everything else? Who are the builders

5 carrying out this work?' But, thanks to the Lord who protected the returned

6 exiles, the elders of the Jews were not prevented from building during the time that Darius was being informed and directions issued.

7 Here is a copy of the letter written to Darius, and sent by Sisinnes, the governor-general of Syria and Phoenicia, with Sathrabuzanes and their colleagues the authorities in Syria and Phoenicia:

To King Darius our humble duty.

8 Be it known to our lord the king: we visited the district of Judaea and entered the city of Jerusalem, and there we found the elders of the Jews

9 returned from exile building a great new house for the Lord with costly hewn stone and with beams set in

10 the walls. This work was being done with all speed and the undertaking was making good progress; it was being executed in great splendour

11 and with the utmost care. We then inquired of these elders by whose authority they were building this house and laying such foundations.

12 We questioned them so that we could inform you in writing who their leaders were, and asked for a list of 13 their names. They answered as follows: 'We are servants of the Lord who made heaven and earth. This house was built and completed

14 many years ago by a great and powerful king of Israel. When our

15 fathers sinned against the heavenly Lord of Israel and provoked him, he delivered them over to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, king of the Chaldaeans; and they pulled

16 down the house, set it on fire, and took the people into exile in Babylon. In the first year of the reign of King

17 Cyrus over Babylonia, the king decreed that this house should be rebuilt. The sacred vessels of gold

18 and silver which Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the house in Jerusalem, and set up in his own temple, he brought back out of the temple

in Babylon and delivered to Zerubbabel and Sanabassar the governor, with orders to take all these vessels

19 and to put them in the temple at Jerusalem, and to rebuild this temple of the Lord on the same site as before. Then Sanabassar came and laid

20 the foundations of the house of the Lord in Jerusalem. From then till now the building has continued and is still unfinished.' Therefore, if it

21 is Your Majesty's pleasure, let search be made in the royal archives in Babylon, and if it is found that the 22 building of the house of the Lord in Jerusalem took place with the approval of king Cyrus, and if our lord the king so decide, let directions be issued to us on this subject.

Then King Darius ordered the 23 archives in Babylon to be searched, and a scroll was found in the castle at Ecbatana in the province of Media which contained the following record:

In the first year of his reign King

24 Cyrus ordered that the house of the Lord in Jerusalem, where they sacrifice with fire continually, should be rebuilt. Its height should be sixty

25

6.1-7.15: Building continued, correspondence with Darius, completion of the work, parallel to Ezra 5.1-6.22. 1: See Hag.1.1-4; 2.1-4; Zech.4.9; 6.15. Zech.1.1 reads "Zechariah son of Berechiah, son of Iddo." 2: Jeshua is the same as Joshua. 7: Sisinnes and Sathrabuzanes are Grecianized from Tattenai and Shethar-bozenai (Ezra 5.3). The "letter" (vv. 8-22) is one of bureaucratic inquiry rather than hostility. 14: King: Solomon. 18: Zerubbabel, not mentioned in Ezra 5.14, is probably an addition. 19-20: Sanabassar: see 2.12,15 n. 23: On Ecbatana, see cubits and its breadth sixty cubits, with three courses of hewn stone to one of new local timber; the expenses to be met from the royal treasury.

26 The sacred gold and silver vessels of the house of the Lord which Nebuchadnezzar removed from the house in Jerusalem, and took to Babylon, should be restored to the house in Jerusalem and replaced where they formerly were.

27 Darius therefore instructed Sisinnes, the governor-general of Syria and Phoenicia, with Sathrabuzanes, their colleagues, and the governors in office in Syria and Phoenicia, to be careful not to interfere with the place, but to allow the servant of the Lord, Zerubbabel, governor of Judaea, and the elders of the Jews to build the house of the Lord on its old site. 'I have also given instructions', he continued, 'that it should be completely rebuilt, and that they should not fail to co-operate with the returned exiles in Judaea until the house of the Lord is finished.

29 From the tribute of Coele-syria and Phoenicia let a contribution be duly given to these men for sacrifices to the Lord, payable to Zerubbabel the governor, for bulls, rams, and lambs; and similarly wheat, salt, wine, and oil are to be provided regularly each year without question, as the priests in Jerusalem may require day by day. Let all this be expended in order that sacrifices and libations may be offered to the Most High God for the king and his children, and that intercession may be made on their behalf.' He also gave these orders: 'If anyone disobeys or neglects any of these orders written above or here set down, let a beam be taken from his own house and let him be hanged on it and his estate forfeited

33 to the king. May the Lord himself, therefore, to whom this temple is dedicated, destroy any king or people who shall lift a finger to delay or damage the Lord's house in Jerusalem.

I, Darius the king, decree that these 34 orders be obeyed to the letter.'

Then, in accordance with the orders 7 of King Darius, Sisinnes, governor-general of Coele-syria and Phoenicia, with Sathrabuzanes and their colleagues, carefully supervised the sacred 2 works, co-operating with the elders of the Jews and the temple officers. With 3 the encouragement of the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, good progress was made with the sacred works, and 4 they were finished by the ordinance of the Lord God of Israel and with the approval of Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerxes, kings of Persia. It was on the 5 twenty-third of Adar in the sixth year of King Darius that the house was completed. The Israelites, the priests, 6 the Levites, and the rest of the former exiles who had joined them carried out the directions in the book of Moses. For the dedication of the temple of 7 the Lord they offered a hundred bulls, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs, and twelve goats for the sin of 8 all Israel corresponding to the twelve patriarchs of Israel. The priests and the 9 Levites in their vestments stood family by family to preside over the services of the Lord God of Israel according to the book of Moses. The door-keepers took their stand at every gateway.

The Israelites who had returned 10 from exile kept the Passover on the fourteenth day of the first month. The priests and the Levites were purified together; not all the returned exiles 11 were purified with the priests, but the Levites were. They slaughtered the 12 Passover victims for all the returned exiles and for their brother priests and for themselves. All those Israelites 13 participated who had returned from exile and had segregated themselves from the abominations of the peoples of the land to seek the Lord. They kept 14 the Feast of Unleavened Bread for seven days, rejoicing before the Lord;

f not all . . . but: probable meaning; Gk. obscure; some witnesses omit not.

Ezra 6.2 n. 32: Contrast Ezra 6.11. 7.2: Carefully supervised . . . co-operating; Ezra 6.13 depicts less enthusiasm, stating that the officials "carried out to the letter" their instructions. 4: Artaxerxes (see 2.16 n.) is anachronistic. 5: The sixth year of Darius was 516 B.C. 8: Twelve patriarchs: Ezra 6.17 reads "tribes." 13: Only those who had returned from exile celebrated, in contrast with Ezra 6.21, where "all who had separated themselves" are included. See also Neh.9.2; 10.28.

15 for he had changed the policy of the Assyrian king towards them and strengthened them for the service of the Lord the God of Israel.

Ezra in Jerusalem

8 AFTER THESE EVENTS, IN THE REIGN of Artaxerxes king of Persia, came Ezra, son of Saraeas, son of Ezerias, 2 son of Chelkias, son of Salemus, son of Zadok, son of Ahitub, son of Amarias, son of Ezias, son of Mare-roth, son of Zaraeas, son of Savia, son of Bocca, son of Abishua, son of Phineas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron 3 the chief priest. This Ezra came from Babylon as a talented scholar in the law of Moses which had been given by the 4 God of Israel. The king held him in high regard and looked with favour 5 upon all the requests he made. He was accompanied to Jerusalem by some Israelites, priests, Levites, temple singers, door-keepers, and temple- 6 servitors, in the fifth month of the seventh year of Artaxerxes' reign.<sup>g</sup> They left Babylon at the new moon in the first month and reached Jerusalem at the new moon in the fifth month; for the Lord gave them a safe journey. 7 Ezra's knowledge of the law of the Lord and the commandments was exact in every detail, so that he could teach all Israel the ordinances and judgements. 8 The following is a copy of the mandate from King Artaxerxes to Ezra the priest, doctor of the law of the Lord:

9 King Artaxerxes to Ezra the priest, doctor of the law of the Lord, greeting.

10 I have graciously decided, and now command, that those of the Jewish nation and of the priests and Levites, in our kingdom, who so choose, shall 11 go with you to Jerusalem. I and my council of seven Friends have de-

12 cided that all who so desire may accompany you. Let them look to the 13 affairs of Judaea and Jerusalem in pursuance of the law of the Lord, and bring to Jerusalem for the Lord 14 of Israel the gifts which I and my Friends have vowed, all the gold and silver in Babylonia that may be found to belong to the Lord in Jerusalem, together with what has 15 been given by the nation for the temple of the Lord their God in Jerusalem. Let the gold and silver be expended upon<sup>h</sup> bulls, rams, lambs, and so forth, so that sacrifices may 16 be offered upon the altar of the Lord their God in Jerusalem. Make use of 17 the gold and silver in whatever ways you and your colleagues desire, according to the will of your God, and deliver the sacred vessels of the 18 Lord which have been given you for the use of the temple of your God in Jerusalem.

Any other expenses that you may 19 incur for the needs of the temple of your God you shall defray from the royal treasury. I, Artaxerxes the 20 king, direct the treasurers of Syria and Phoenicia to give without fail to Ezra the priest, doctor of the law of the Most High God, whatever he may request up to a hundred talents 21 of silver, and similarly up to a hundred sacks of wheat and a hundred casks of wine, and salt without limit. Let him diligently fulfil in 22 honour of the Most High God all the requirements of God's law, so that divine displeasure may not befall the kingdom of the king and of his descendants. You are also 23 informed that no tax or other impost is to be laid on the priests, the Levites, the temple singers, the door-keepers, the temple-servitors, and the lay officers of this temple; no one is permitted to impose any burden on them. You, Ezra, under God's

<sup>g</sup> Probable reading; one witness adds this was the king's second year.
<sup>h</sup> Or collected for.

15: Assyrian king is not meant to be taken literally; it merely denotes an emperor from beyond the Euphrates.

8.1-9.55: The story of Ezra (Ezra 7.1-10.44; Neh.7.73-8.12). Nehemiah is ignored. 1-67: Ezra's return to Jerusalem, parallel to Ezra 7.1-8.36. 1: Artaxerxes I reigned from 464-424 B.C. However, this is probably Artaxerxes II (404-359 B.C.); see Introduction to Ezra. 6: The fifth guidance, are to appoint judges and magistrates to judge all who know the law of your God in all Syria and Phoenicia; you yourself shall see to the instruction of those who do not know it. All who transgress the law of your God and of the king shall be duly punished with death, degradation, fine, or exile.

25 Then Ezra said: All praise to the Lord alone, who put this into the king's mind, to glorify his house in Jerusalem.
26 He singled me out for honour before the king, his counsellors, and all his 27 Friends and dignitaries. I took courage from the help of the Lord my God and gathered men of Israel to go up with me.

28 These are the leaders according to clans and divisions who went with me from Babylon to Jerusalem in the reign of King Artaxerxes: from the line of Phineas, Gershom; from the line of Ithamar, Gamael; from the line of 30 David, Attus son of Sechenias; from the line of Phoros, Zacharias and a hundred and fifty men with him
31 according to the register; from the line of Phaath-moab, Eliaonias son of Zaraeas and with him two hundred
32 men; from the line of Zathoe, Sechenias son of Jezelus and with him three hundred men; from the line of Adin, Obeth son of Jonathan and with him
33 two hundred and fifty men; from the line of Elam, Jessias son of Gotholias and with him seventy men; from the 34 line of Sophotias, Zaraeas son of Michael and with him seventy men;
35 from the line of Joab, Abadias son of Jezelus and with him two hundred and 36 twelve men; from the line of Bani, Assalimoth son of Josaphias and with 37 him a hundred and sixty men; from the line of Babi, Zacharias son of Bebae and with him twenty-eight men; 38 from the line of Astath, Joannes son of Hacatan and with him a hundred and ten men; last came those from the line

39 of Adonikam, by name Eliphaltus, Jeuel, and Samaeas, and with them seventy men; from the line of Bago, 40 Uthi son of Istalcurus and with him seventy men.

I assembled them at the river called 41 Theras, where we encamped for three days, and I inspected them. As I found 42 no one there who was of priestly or levitical descent, I sent to Eleazar,
43 Iduelus, Maasmas, Elnathan, Samaeas,
44 Joribus, Nathan, Ennatas, Zacharias, and Mosollamus, who were prominent and discerning men. I told them to go
45 to Doldaeus the chief man at the treasury. I instructed them to speak 46 with Doldaeus, his colleagues, and the treasurers there, and ask them to send us priests to officiate in the house of our Lord. Under the providence of 47 God they brought us discerning men from the line of Mooli son of Levi son of Israel, Asebebias and his sons and brothers, eighteen men in all, also 48 Asebias and Annunus and Hosaeas his brother. Those of the line of Chanunaeus and their sons amounted to twenty men; and those of the 49 temple-servitors whom David and the leading men appointed for the service of the Levites amounted to two hundred and twenty. A register of all these names was compiled.

There I made a vow that the young 50 men should fast before our Lord to beg him to give us a safe journey for ourselves, our children who accompanied us, and our pack-animals. I was 51 ashamed to ask the king for an escort of infantry and cavalry against our enemies; for we had told the king that 52 the strength of our Lord would ensure success for those who looked to him. So once more we laid all these things 53 before our Lord in prayer and found him gracious.

I set apart twelve men from among 54 the heads of the priestly families, and month was Ab (July–August), the first month was Nisan (March–April). 41,61: Theras: Ezra 8.21,31 reads "Ahava"; neither name can be identified, nor the location ascertained. 42: Of . . . levitical descent: Ezra 8.15, in contrast, speaks of the absence of Levites among the people and the priests. Perhaps the Ezra version makes better sense; we can assume that the priests were anxious to return to resume their cultic duties in Jerusalem, whereas the subordinate Levites were less eager to leave their comforts in Babylonia. 51: I was ashamed: contrast Neh.2.7–9 for a different response in a similar situation.

with them Sarabias and Asamias and 55 ten of their brother priests. I weighed out for them the silver, the gold, and the sacred vessels of the house of our Lord; these had been presented by the king himself, his counsellors, the chief 56 men, and all Israel. When I had weighed it all I handed over to them
 six hundred and fifty talents of silver, and vessels of silver weighing a hundred talents, a hundred talents of 57 gold, and twenty pieces of gold plate, and twelve vessels of brass so fine that it gleamed like gold. I said to them:
 58 'You are consecrated to the Lord, and so are the vessels; the silver and the gold are vowed to the Lord, the Lord 59 of our fathers. Be vigilant and keep guard until you hand them over at Jerusalem, in the priests' rooms in the house of our Lord, to the heads of the priestly and levitical families and to 60 the leaders of the clans of Israel.' The priests and the Levites who received the silver, the gold, and the vessels in Jerusalem brought them to the temple
 of the Lord.

61 We left the river Theras on the twelfth day of the first month, and under the powerful protection which our Lord gave us we reached Jerusalem.
 He guarded us against every enemy on our journey, and so we arrived at 62 Jerusalem. Three days passed, and on the fourth the silver and gold were weighed and handed over in the house of our Lord to the priest 63 Marmathi son of Uri, with whom was Eleazar son of Phineas. With them also were the Levites Josabodus son of Jeshua and Moeth son of Sabannus.
 Everything was numbered and weighed 64 and every weight recorded there and 65 then. The returned exiles offered sacrifices to the Lord the God of Israel, twelve bulls for all Israel, with ninety-66 six rams and seventy-two lambs, and also twelve goats for a peace-offering,
 the whole as a sacrifice to the Lord.
 67 They delivered the king's orders to the royal treasurers and the governors of Coele-syria and Phoenicia, and so added lustre to the nation and the temple of the Lord.

WHEN THESE MATTERS HAD BEEN SETTLED 68
 the leaders came to me and said: 'The 69
 nation of Israel, the rulers, the priests, and the Levites, have not kept themselves apart from the alien population of the land with all their pollutions,
 that is to say the Canaanites, Hittites, Perizzites, Jebusites, Moabites, Egyp-70 tians, and Edomites. For they and their sons have intermarried with the daughters of these peoples, and the holy race has been mingled with the alien population of the land; and the leaders and principal men have shared in this violation of the law from the very beginning.'

As soon as I heard of this I tore my 71 clothes and sacred vestment, plucked out the hair of my head and my beard,
 and sat down perplexed and miserable.
 Those who at that time were moved by 72
 the word of the Lord of Israel gathered round me, while I grieved over this disregard of the law, and sat in my misery until the evening sacrifice. Then 73
 I rose from my fast with my clothes and sacred vestment torn, and knelt down and, stretching out my hands to the Lord, said: 74

'O Lord, I am covered with shame and confusion in thy presence. Our 75-76 sins tower above our heads; from the time of our fathers our offences have reached the sky, and today we are as deep in sin as ever. Because of our 77 sins and the sins of our fathers, we and our brothers, our kings and our priests, were given over to the kings of the earth to be killed, taken prisoner, plundered, and humiliated down to this very day. And now, Lord, how 78 great is the mercy thou hast shown us!
 We still have a root and a name in the place of thy sanctuary, and thou hast 79
 rekindled our light in the house of our Lord, and given us food in the time of our servitude. Even when we were 80 slaves we were not deserted by our Lord; for he secured for us the favour of the kings of Persia, who have provided our food and added lustre to 81
 the temple of our Lord and restored
 the ruins of Zion, giving us a firm foothold in Judaea and Jerusalem. And 82

8.68-9.36: The problem of mixed marriages; parallel to Ezra 9.1-10.44. 69: Pollutions:

now, Lord, what are we to say, we who have received all this? For we have broken thy commandments given us through thy servants the prophets.

83 Thou didst say: "The land which you are to occupy is a land defiled with the pollution of its heathen peoples; they

84 have filled it with their impurities. Do not marry your daughters to their sons nor take their daughters for your sons;

85 never try to make peace with them if you want to be strong and enjoy the good things of the land and take possession of it for your children for ever."

86 All our misfortunes have come upon us through our evil deeds and our great sins. Although thou, Lord, hast

87 lightened the burden of our sins and given us so firm a root, yet we have fallen away again and broken thy law by sharing in the impurities of the

88 heathen peoples of this land. But thou wast not so angry with us, Lord, as to destroy us, root, seed, and name; thou

89 keepest faith, O Lord of Israel; the root is left, we are here today. Behold us, now before thee in our sins; because of all we have done we can no longer hold up our heads before thee.'

91 While Ezra prayed and made confession, weeping prostrate on the ground before the temple, a very large crowd gathered, men, women, and youths of Jerusalem, and there was widespread lamentation among the people. Jechonias son of Jeel, one of the Israelites, called out to Ezra: 'We have sinned against the Lord in taking alien wives from the heathen population of this land; and yet there is still hope for

92 Israel. Let us take an oath to the Lord to expel all our wives of alien race

93 with their children, in accordance with your judgement and the judgement of all who are obedient to the law of the

94 Lord. Come now, set about it, it is in your hands; take strong action and we are with you.' Ezra got up and laid

95 an oath upon the principal priests and Levites of all Israel that they would act in this way, and they swore to it.

9 Ezra left the court of the temple and entered the room of the priest Joanan son of Eliasibus. There he stayed, 2 eating no food and drinking no water, while he mourned over the serious violations of the law by the community. A proclamation was made 3 throughout Judaea and in Jerusalem to all the returned exiles that they should assemble at Jerusalem; those 4 who failed to arrive within two or three days, according to the decision of the elders in office, were to have their cattle confiscated for temple use and would themselves be excluded from the community of the returned exiles.

Three days later all Judah and 5 Benjamin had assembled in Jerusalem; the date was the twentieth of the ninth month. They all sat together in the 6 open space before the temple, shivering because winter had set in. Ezra stood 7 up and said to them: 'You have broken the law and married alien wives, bringing a fresh burden of guilt on Israel. Now make confession to the 8 Lord God of our fathers; do his will 9 and separate yourselves from the heathen population of this land and from your alien wives.'

The whole company answered with a 10 shout: 'We will do as you have said!' 'But', they said, 'our numbers are 11 great, and we cannot stay here in the open in this wintry weather. Nor is this the work of a day or two only; the offence is widespread among us. Let 12 the leaders of the community stay here, and let all members of our settlements who have alien wives attend at an appointed time along with the elders 13 and judges of each place, until we turn away the Lord's anger at what has been done.'

Jonathan son of Azael and Hezekias 14 son of Thocanus took charge on these terms, and Mosollamus, Levi, and Sabbataeus were their assessors. The 15 returned exiles duly carried all this out.

Ezra the priest selected men by name, 16 all chiefs of their clans, and on the new customs viewed as idolatrous practices; see v. 83 n. 83: Thou didst say: the quotation is not found in Scripture, but Lev.18.19-30, dealing with similar practices, contains like language. 9.1: Joanan was actually the grandson of Eliasibus. 5: The twentieth of the ninth month: Kislev (November-December). 6: Winter had set in: Ezra 10.9 mentions "heavy rain." 16: The tenth month was Tebeth (December-January).

17 moon of the tenth month they sat to investigate the matter. This affair of the men who had alien wives was settled by the new moon of the first month.

18 Among the priests some of those who had come together were found to have alien wives; these were Mathelas, Eleazar, Joribus, and Jodanus of the line of Jeshua son of Josedek and his brothers, who undertook to send away their wives and to offer rams in expiation of their error. Of the line of Emmer: Ananias, Zabdaeus, Manes, Samaeus, Jereel, and Azarias; of the line of Phaesus: Elionas, Massias, Ishmael, Nathanael, Okidelus, and Saloas. Of the Levites: Jozabadus, Semis, Colius (this is Calitas), Phathaeus, Judah, and Jonas. Of the temple singers: Eliasibus, Bacchurus.

25 Of the door-keepers: Sallumus and Tolbanes.

26 Of the people of Israel there were, of the line of Phoros: Jermas, Jeddias, Melchias, Maelus, Elcazar, Asibias, and Bannaeas. Of the line of Ela: Matthanias, Zacharias, Jezrielus, Oabdius, Jeremoth, and Aedias. Of the line of Zamoth: Eliadas, Eliasimus, Othonias, Jarimoth, Sabathus, and Zardaeas. Of the line of Bebae: Joannes, Ananias, Ozabadus, and Emathis. Of the line of Mani: Olamus, Mamuchus, Jedaesus, Jasubus, Asaelus, and Jeremoth. Of the line of Addi: Naathus, Moossias, Laccunus, Naidus, Matthanias, Sesthel, Balnuus, and Manasseas. Of the line of Annas: Elionas, Asaeas, Melchias, Sabbaeas, and Simon Chosomaesus. Of the line of Asom: Altannaesus, Mattathias, Bannaeus, Eliphalat, Manasses, and Semi.

34 Of the line of Baani: Jeremias, Momdis, Ismaerus, Juel, Mandae, Paedias, Anos, Carabasion, Enasibus, Marnitanaemus, Eliasis, Bannus, Eliali, Somis, Selemias, and Nathanas. Of the line of Ezora: Sessis, Ezril, Azael, 35 Samatus, Zambris, and Josephus. Of the line of Nooma: Mazitias, Zabadaeas, Edaes, Juel, and Banaeas. All these had married alien wives; they sent them away with their children.

THE PRIESTS, THE LEVITES, AND SUCH 37 Israelites as were in Jerusalem and its vicinity, settled down there on the new moon of the seventh month; the other Israelites remained in their settlements. The entire body assembled as one in the open space before the east gateway of the temple and asked Ezra the high priest and doctor of the law to bring the law of Moses given by the Lord God of Israel. On the new moon of the seventh month he brought the law to all the multitude of men and women alike, and to the priests, for them to hear. He read it in the open space before the temple gateway from daybreak until noon, in the presence of both men and women, and the whole body listened intently. Ezra the priest and doctor of the law stood upon the wooden platform which had been prepared. There stood with him, on his right, Mattathias, Sammus, Ananias, Azarias, Urias, Hezekias, and Baalsamus, and on his left, Phaldaeus, Misael, Melchias, Lothasubus, Nabarias, and Zacharias. Ezra took up the book of the law; everyone could see him, for he was seated in a conspicuous place in front of them all, and when he opened it they all stood up. Ezra praised the Lord God the Most High God of hosts, the Almighty. All the multitude cried 'Amen, Amen', and lifting up their hands fell to the ground and worshipped the Lord. Jeshua, Annus, Sarabias, Jadinus, Jacobus, Sabbataeas, Autaeas, Maeannas, Calitas, Azarias, Jozabodus, Ananias, and Phiathas, the Levites, taught the law of the Lord; they read the law of the Lord to the whole company, at the same time instilling into their minds what was read.

Then the governor<sup>l</sup> said to Ezra the <sup>49</sup>
i Gk. Attharates.

9.37-55: The reading of the law; parallel to Neh.7.73-8.12. 37,40: The new moon of the seventh month: the first day of Tishri (September-October) was a "day of sacred assembly" (Lev.23.24 and Num.29.1), later called Rosh Hashanah, the New Year festival. 39: High priest: only here is Ezra so designated. 48: They read: contrast v. 41, which states that Ezra read it. Apparently, the Levites relayed Ezra's words to those not within earshot, at the same time adding words of explanation and exhortation. 49: The Heb. of Neh.8.9 reads "Nehemiah the tirshata" (i.e.

high priest and doctor of the law and to each of the Levites who taught the multitude: 'This day is holy to the Lord.' All were weeping as they heard the law. 'Go then, refresh yourselves with rich food and sweet wine, and send shares to those who have none; for the day is holy to the Lord. Let there be no sadness; for the Lord will give you glory.' The Levites issued the command to all the people: 'This day is holy, do not be sad.' So they all departed to eat and drink and make merry, and to send shares to those who had none, and to hold a great celebration; because the teaching given them had been instilled into their minds.

They gathered together.<sup>1</sup>

1 Probably the text originally carried on from this point; compare Nehemiah 8. 13.

---

governor). Since the name Nehemiah is missing here, the name is probably a late insertion in Neh.8.9 and in 1 Esd.5.40. 51,54: The merriment and such phrases as send shares to those who had none are reminiscent of Esther 9.19 and 22, in connection with the Feast of Purim. 55: The ending is so abrupt that it is believed that the continuation, probably paralleling Neh.8.13-18 (or further), has been lost.

THE SECOND BOOK OF ESDRAS

This book is known in the Vulgate as 4 Esdras. Esdras is the Greek form of the name Ezra, to whom the book is attributed. The Second Book of Esdras is distinctive in the Apocrypha as an apocalyptic book. "Apocalypse" means "unveiling"; and apocalyptic literature usually involves the disclosure of previously unknown truths about reality and the future in visions and highly symbolic language. In this literary genre, the author, under the pseudonym of a famous person of the past, describes events that are taking place in his own day. In this way he tries to console innocent sufferers by showing that what is happening is under God's Providence and that injustices will be reversed at the end of time, which he proceeds to describe as also revealed.

2 Esdras contains a core of seven visions (chs. 3–14). To these were added a prefix (chs. 1–2) and a suffix (chs. 15–16) which differ markedly in content. The core section was probably written by a Palestinian Jew in Hebrew or Aramaic about 100 A.D.; the additions were written in Greek by Christian writers in the second and third centuries respectively.

A small fragment of the Greek has come down to us, but 2 Esdras survives only in ancient translations whose great number and variety reflect the popularity of the book in early centuries.

Echoing Old Testament Job and Habakkuk, the author of 2 Esdras dealt with the problem of human suffering. Though the writer is particularly concerned about the fall of Jerusalem and the triumphs of the persecuting Roman Empire, he also agonizes about the misery of human existence in general, finding some respite only in his conviction of restitution and reward in the world to come.

Roman Catholic tradition excludes 1 and 2 Esdras and the Prayer of Manasseh from its canon but accepts the rest of the Apocrypha.

---

Israel's rejection and glory to come

1 THE SECOND BOOK OF THE PROPHET
Ezra, son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiyah, son of Shallum, son of Zadok, son of Ahitub,
2 son of Ahijah, son of Phinehas, son of Eli, son of Amariah, son of Aziah, son of Marimoth, son of Arna, son of Uzzi, son of Borith, son of Abishua,
3 son of Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron, of the tribe of Levi.

4 I, EZRA, WAS A CAPTIVE IN MEDIA IN
the reign of Artaxerxes, king of Persia, 5 when the word of the Lord came to me: 'Go to my people and proclaim their crimes; tell their children how they have sinned against me, and let 6 them tell their children's children. They have sinned even more than their fathers; they have forgotten me and sacrificed to alien gods. Was it not I 7 who rescued them from Egypt, the country where they were slaves? And yet they have provoked me to anger and ignored my warnings.

8 'Now, Ezra, pluck out your hair and let calamities loose upon these people who have disobeyed my law. They are 9 beyond correction. How much longer shall I endure them, I who have lashed on them such benefits? Many 10 are the kings I have overthrown for their sake; I struck down Pharaoh with his court and all his army. I 11 destroyed every nation that stood in their way, and in the east I routed the peoples of two provinces, Tyre and Sidon, and killed all the enemies of Israel.

---

1.1–2.48: Israel's rejection and glory to come. Israel's past infidelity and its dire consequences are enumerated. God's fidelity is shown in a promised restoration.

1.1–3a: Ezra's lineage. The list varies slightly from Ezra 7.1–5 and 1 Esd.8.1–2. 1: Ezra, a priest and scribe in the OT (Ezra 7.11), is here termed a prophet.

1.3b–11: Ezra called to prophesy doom. 3: Artaxerxes II ruled from 404 to 359 B.C. 5: Proclaim their crimes: make the people aware of their wickedness and condemn it; see Jer.1.16. 8: Pluck . . . hair: sign of consternation and grief; see Ezra 9.3. 10: Pharaoh: see Exod.14.28. 11: Tyre and Sidon were Phoenician cities, to the west of Media and not east; Tyre was not destroyed until the time of Alexander (332 B.C.), which was after the reign of Artaxerxes.

12 'Say to them, "These are the words 13 of the Lord: Was it not I who brought you through the sea, and made safe roads for you where no road had been?
I gave you Moses as your leader, and 14 Aaron as your priest; I gave you light from a pillar of fire, and performed great miracles among you. And yet you have forgotten me, says the Lord.

15 "These are the words of the Lord
Almighty: I gave you the quails as a sign; I gave you a camp for your protection. But all you did there was 16 to grumble and complain—instead of celebrating the victory I had given you when I destroyed your enemies. From that day to this you have never 17 stopped complaining. Have you forgotten what benefits I conferred on you? When you were hungry and thirsty in your journey through the 18 desert, you cried out to me, 'Why have you brought us into this desert to kill us? Better to have remained in Egypt as slaves than to die here in the 19 desert!' I was grieved by your complaints, and gave you manna for food; 20 you ate the bread of angels. When you were thirsty, I split open the rock, and out flowed water in plenty. Against the summer heat I gave you the 21 shelter of leafy trees. I gave you fertile lands to divide among your tribes, expelling the Canaanites, Perizzites,
and Philistines who opposed you.
What more could I do for you? says
the Lord.

22 "These are the words of the Lord Almighty: When you were in the desert, suffering thirst by the stream of 23 bitter water and cursing me, I did not bring down fire upon you for your blasphemy; I cast a tree into the 24 stream and made the water sweet. What am I to do with you, Jacob? Judah, you have refused to obey me. I will turn to other nations; I will give them
my name, and they will keep my statutes. Because you have deserted 25 me, I will desert you; when you cry for mercy, I will show you none; when 26

you pray to me, I will not listen. You have stained your hands with blood;
you run hot-foot to commit murder.
It is not I whom you have deserted, but 27 yourselves, says the Lord.

"These are the words of the Lord 28
Almighty: Have I not pleaded with you as a father with his sons, as a mother with her daughters or a nurse with her children? Have I not said, 'Be 29 my people, and I will be your God; be my sons, and I will be your father'? I 30 gathered you as a hen gathers her chickens under her wings. But now what am I to do with you? I will toss you away. When you offer me sacrifice, 31
I will turn from you; I have rejected your feasts, your new moons, and your circumcisions. I sent you my servants 32 the prophets, but you took them and killed them, and mutilated their dead bodies. For their murder I will call you to account, says the Lord.

"These are the words of the Lord 33
Almighty: Your house is abandoned. I will toss you away like straw before the wind. Your children shall have no 34 posterity, because like you they have ignored my commandments and done what I have condemned. I will hand 35 over your home to a people soon to come; a people who will trust me, though they have not known me; who will do my bidding, though I gave them no signs; who never saw the 36 prophets, and yet will keep in mind
what the prophets taught of old. I vow 37 that this people yet to come shall have my favour. Their little ones shall jump for joy. They have not seen me with their eyes, but they shall perceive by the spirit and believe all that I have said."

'Now, father Ezra, look with triumph 38
at the nation coming from the east.

1.12–21: God's past mercies recounted; these are events of the Exodus. 13: See Exod.14.29; 3.10; 28.1. 14: See Exod.13.21. 15: See Exod.16.13. 18: See Num.14.2–3. 19: See Ps.78.25. 20: See Num.20.11.

1.22–32: Israel to be rejected. 22–23: See Exod.15.22–25. 24: I will turn to other nations: compare Mt.21.43. Reflections of NT here show that the author of this preface was a Christian. 30–32: Compare Mt.23.34–37.

1.33–40: A new people replaces Israel. 35–37: A people: Gentile Christians; compare 1 Cor.2.6–15. 38: Father: in rabbinic Judaism, Ezra is equated in eminence with both the patriarchs and prophets.

39 The leaders I shall give them are Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Hosea and Amos, Micah and Joel, Obadiah
40 and Jonah, Nahum, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah, Haggai and Zechariah, and Malachi, who is also called the Lord's Messenger.

2 'These are the words of the Lord: I freed this people from slavery, and gave them commandments through my servants the prophets; but they shut their ears to the prophets, and let my
2 precepts become a dead letter. The mother who bore them says to them: "Go, my sons; I am widowed and
3 deserted. Joyfully I brought you up; I have lost you with grief and sorrow, because you have sinned against the Lord God and done what I know to 4 be wrong. What can I do for you now, widowed and deserted as I am? Go, my sons, ask the Lord for mercy."
5 Now I call upon you, father Ezra, to add your testimony to hers, that her children have refused to keep my 6 covenant; and let your words bring confusion on them. May their mother be despoiled, and may they themselves
7 have no posterity. Condemn them to be scattered among the nations, and their name to vanish from the earth, because they have spurned my covenant.

8 'Woe to you, Assyria, for harbouring sinners! Remember, you wicked nation, what I did to Sodom and Gomorrah:
9 their land lies buried under lumps of pitch and heaps of ashes. That is how I will deal with those who have disobeyed me, says the Lord Almighty.

10 'These are the words of the Lord to Ezra: Tell my people that I will give to them the kingdom of Jerusalem which 11 once I offered to Israel. I will withdraw the splendour of my presence from Israel, and the home that was to be theirs for ever I will give to my own people. The tree of life shall spread its 12 fragrance over them; they shall not toil or grow weary. Ask, and you shall 13 receive; so pray that your short time of waiting may be made shorter still. The kingdom is ready for you now; be on the watch! Call heaven, call earth, to 14 witness: I have cancelled the evil and brought the good into being; for I am the Living One, says the Lord.

'Mother, cherish your sons. Rear
15 them joyfully as a dove rears her nestlings; teach them to walk without stumbling. You are my chosen one, says the Lord. I will raise up the dead 16 from their resting-places, and bring them out of their tombs, for I have acknowledged that they bear my name. Have no fear, mother of many sons; I 17 have chosen you, says the Lord.

'I will send my servants Isaiah 18 and Jeremiah to help you. As they prophesied, I have set you apart to be my people. I have made ready for you twelve trees laden with different kinds 19 of fruit, twelve fountains flowing with milk and honey, and seven great mountains covered with roses and lilies. There will I fill your sons with 20 joy. Champion the widow, defend the cause of the fatherless, give to the poor, protect the orphan, clothe the naked. Care for the weak and the helpless, and 21 do not mock at the cripple; watch over the disabled, and bring the blind to the vision of my brightness. Keep safe 22 within your walls both old and young.

'When you find the dead unburied,
23 mark them with the sign and commit them to the tomb; and then, when I cause the dead to rise, I will give you the chief place. Be calm, my people; for 24 your time of rest shall come. Care for your children like a good nurse, and train them to walk without falling. Of 26

2.1-9: God to destroy sinful Israel. 6: Jerusalem, Israel's "mother city" (see Ezek. ch. 16), was despoiled in 70 A.D. The writer views this as just retribution. 8: Assyria probably stands for Rome. Sodom: see Gen.19.24-25.

2.10-14: Israel's place given to others. 10: My people: the new people of 1.24,35,38. 12: Tree of life: see Rev.2.7 n.; 22.2,14. 13: Ask: compare Mt.7.7; time of waiting: Mt.24.22; kingdom: Mt.25.34.

2.15-32: The new people exhorted. The church, addressed as mother (contrast 2.6), is admonished to good works (vv. 20-25) and patient endurance (vv. 26-32). 18: Send... Isaiah and Jeremiah: compare 1.39-40. As they prophesied: see Isa.65.1. Twelve trees: possibly an allusion to the twelve apostles. Seven mountains: seven deacons of the early church; compare Acts 6.1-6. 23: To bury the dead was an act of piety; the sign was possibly a Christian symbol my servants whom I have given you not one shall be lost; I will demand them back from among your number.

27 Do not be anxious when the time of trouble and hardship comes; others shall lament and be sad, but you shall 28 have happiness and plenty. All nations shall envy you, but shall be powerless against you, says the Lord.

29 'My power shall protect you, and 30 save your sons from hell. Be joyful, mother, you and your sons, for I will

31 come to your rescue. Remember your children who sleep in the grave; I will bring them up from the depths of the earth, and show mercy to them; for I

32 am merciful, says the Lord Almighty. Cherish your children until I come, and proclaim my mercy to them; for my favour flows abundantly from springs that will never run dry.'

33 I, EZRA, RECEIVED ON MOUNT HOREB A commission from the Lord to go to Israel; but when I came, they scorned me and rejected the Lord's commandment. Therefore I say to you Gentiles, you who hear and understand: 'Look forward to the coming of your shepherd, and he will give you everlasting rest; for he who is to come at the end

35 of the world is close at hand. Be ready to receive the rewards of the kingdom; for light perpetual will shine upon you

36 for ever and ever. Flee from the shadow of this world, and receive the joy and splendour that await you. I

37 bear witness openly to my Saviour. It is he whom the Lord has appointed; receive him and be joyful, giving thanks to the One who has summoned you to

38 the heavenly realms. Rise, stand up, and see the whole company of those who bear the Lord's mark and sit at his table. They have moved out of the shadow of this world and have received shining robes from the Lord. Receive, O Zion, your full number, and close the roll of those arrayed in white who have faithfully kept the law of the Lord. The number of your sons whom you so long desired is now complete. Pray that the Lord's kingdom may come, so that your people, whom he summoned when the world began, may be set apart as his own.'

I, Ezra, saw on Mount Zion a crowd too large to count, all singing hymns of praise to the Lord. In the middle stood a very tall young man, taller than all the rest, who was setting a crown on the head of each one of them; he stood out above them all. I was enthralled at the sight, and asked the angel, 'Sir, who are these?' He replied, 'They are those who have laid aside their mortal dress and put on the immortal, those who acknowledged the name of God. Now they are being given crowns and palms.' And I asked again, 'Who is the young man setting crowns on their heads and giving them palms?'; and the angel replied, 'He is the Son of God, whom they acknowledged in this mortal life.' I began to praise those who had stood so valiantly for the Lord's name. Then the angel said to me: 'Go and tell my people all the great and wonderful acts of the Lord God that you have seen.'

The mystery of human destiny

IN THE THIRTIETH YEAR AFTER THE FALL 3 of Jerusalem, I, Salathiel (who am also which identified the dead person as belonging to God's "people" (v. 38) and so protected by him; see Rev.14.1. 29: Hell: lit. Gehenna, place of torment; compare Mk.9.42-48.

2.33-48: Ezra turns to Gentiles, envisioning a faithful multitude. This is the most overtly Christian section of the book. 33: Ezra receives his commission as the leader of the "new people of God" at Mount Horeb where Moses was called; see Exod.3.1-12. 34: The early Christians believed that the end of the world and the second coming of Jesus were close at hand; see 1 Thess.4.15-18; 2 Thess.2.1-2. 36: The shadow of this world is the aspect of the world that passes away or changes; compare 1 Cor.7.29-31; 1 Jn.2.15-17. 38: To sit at table may be a symbol for accepting Christianity (Lk.14.15-24; Rev.19.9) or for the Eucharist (see 1 Cor.10.21; 11.17-32). 40-41: The full number of the righteous is regarded as determined by God. See 4.36-37 and compare Rev.6.11. 42: On Mount Zion: compare Heb.12.22-23. A crowd ... singing: compare Rev.7.9-12.

3.1-5.19: Vision I. 1-36: A difficult question is raised in these verses. Why does God allow Israel to suffer at the hands of a more wicked people? The writer prefaces the question by a survey of history stressing the origin of sin and the election of Israel. 1: Mention of the thirtieth

Ezra), was in Babylon. As I lay on my bed I was troubled; my mind was filled with perplexity, as I considered the desolation of Zion and the prosperity of those who lived in Babylon. My spirit was deeply disturbed; and I uttered my fears to the Most High. 'My Lord, my Master,' I said, 'was it not you, and you alone, who in the beginning spoke the word that formed the world? You commanded the dust, and Adam appeared. His body was lifeless; but yours were the hands that had moulded it, and into it you breathed the breath of life. So you made him a living person. You led him into paradise, which you yourself had planted before the earth came into being. You gave him your one commandment to obey; he disobeyed it, and thereupon you made him subject to death, him and his descendants.

'From him were born nations and tribes, peoples and families, too numerous to count. Each nation went its own way, sinning against you and scorning you; and you did not stop them. But then again, in due time, you brought the flood upon the inhabitants of the earth and destroyed them. The same doom came upon all: death upon Adam, and the flood upon that generation. One man you spared—Noah, with his household, and all his righteous descendants.

'The population of the earth increased; families and peoples multiplied, nation upon nation. But then once again they began to sin, more wickedly than those before them. When they sinned, you chose for yourself one of them, whose name was Abraham; him you loved, and to him alone, secretly, at dead of night, you showed how the world would end. You made an everlasting covenant with him and promised never to abandon his descendants. You gave him Isaac, and to Isaac you gave Jacob and Esau; of these you chose Jacob for yourself and rejected Esau; and Jacob grew to be a great nation.

'You rescued his descendants from Egypt and brought them to Mount Sinai. There you bent the sky, shook the earth, moved the round world, made the depths shudder, and turned creation upside down. Your glory passed through the four gates of fire and earthquake, wind and frost; and you gave the commandments of the law to the Israelites, the race of Jacob. But you did not take away their wicked heart and enable your law to bear fruit in them. For the first man, Adam, was burdened with a wicked heart; he sinned and was overcome, and not only he but all his descendants. So the weakness became inveterate. Although your law was in your people's hearts, a rooted wickedness was there too; so that the good came to nothing, and what was bad persisted.

'Years went by, and when the time came you raised up a servant for yourself, whose name was David. You told him to build the city that bears your name and there offer to you in sacrifice what was already your own. This was done for many years; until the inhabitants of the city went astray, behaving just like Adam and all his line; for they had the same wicked heart. And so you gave your own city over to your enemies.

a So some Vss.: Lat. fixed.

year after the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, i.e. 557/556 B.C. (see Jer.52.4-11; compare Ezek.1.1), may suggest that the book was written thirty years after the fall of Jerusalem to the Romans in 70 A.D. Salathiel is the Gk. form of Shealtiel, oldest son of King Jehoiachin and father of Zerubbabel (1 Chr.3.17; Ezra 3.2). Ezra flourished a century after Shealtiel; the erroneous identification of the two may be an interpolation. 4-7: Gen. chs. 1-3. According to rabbinic tradition, paradise was created before the earth. 7: That Adam's sin made him and his descendants subject to death became heightened into the doctrine of "original sin." The view here is the earliest recording in Jewish literature; see vv. 20-22 for a fuller statement. 15: The author stresses that God made an everlasting covenant with a representative of the fallen race, Abraham; see Gen.15.18; 17.2-8. 19: Speaking of God's appearance at Sinai (see Exod.19.16-18; Ps.68.7-8), the writer identifies fire and earthquake, wind and frost as four gates of heavenly regions, perhaps the gates of the four lowest of the "seven heavens" known in Jewish tradition. 20: The wicked heart is the rabbinical "evil yezer" or "evil inclination," considered, like its counterpart, the "good yezer," to be implanted in man. That God had given Israel a law, but had not removed the evil nature inherited from Adam, the obstacle to its 28 'I said to myself: "Perhaps those in Babylon lead better lives, and that is 29 why they have conquered Zion." But when I arrived here, I saw more wickedness than I could reckon, and these thirty years I have seen many evil-doers with my own eyes. My 30 heart sank, because I saw how you tolerate sinners and spare the godless;

how you have destroyed your own people, but protected your enemies.
31 You have given no hint whatever to anyone how to understand your ways.<sup>b</sup>
Is Babylon more virtuous than Zion?
32 Has any nation except Israel ever known you? What tribes have put their trust in your covenants as the tribes of 33 Jacob have? But they have seen no reward, no fruit for their pains. I have travelled up and down among the nations, and have seen how they prosper, heedless though they are of 34 your commandments. So weigh our sins in the balance against the sins of the rest of the world; and it will be clear 35 which way the scale tips. Has there ever been a time when the inhabitants of the earth did not sin against you?
Has any nation ever kept your com-36 mandments like Israel? You may find one man here, one there; but nowhere
a whole nation.'

4 The angel who was sent to me, whose 2 name was Uriel, replied: 'You are at a loss to explain this world; do you then expect to understand the ways of the 3 Most High?' 'Yes, my lord,' I replied.
'I have been sent to propound to you three of the ways of this world,' he continued, 'to give you three illustra-4 tions. If you can explain to me any one of them, then I will answer your question about the way of the Most High, and teach you why the heart is wicked.'

5 I said, 'Speak, my lord.' 'Come then,' he said, 'weigh me a pound of fire, measure me a bushel<sup>c</sup> of wind, or call back a day that has passed.'

'How can you ask me to do that?' I <sup>6</sup> replied; 'no man on earth can do it.'
He said: 'Suppose I had asked you, <sup>7</sup>
'How many dwellings are there in the heart of the sea? or how many streams to feed the deep? or how many watercourses above the vault of heaven?
Where are the paths out of the grave,
and the roads into<sup>d</sup> paradise?', you <sup>8</sup> might then have replied, "I have never been down into the deep, I have not yet gone down into the grave, I have never gone up into heaven." But, as it <sup>9</sup> is, I have only asked you about fire,
about wind, and about yesterday,
things you are bound to have met; and yet you have failed to tell me the answers.

'If then,' he went on, 'you cannot <sup>10</sup> understand things you have grown up with, how can your small capacity <sup>11</sup> comprehend the ways of the Most High? A man corrupted by the corrupt world can never know the way of the incorruptible.'<sup>e</sup>

When I heard that, I fell<sup>f</sup> prostrate <sup>12</sup> and exclaimed: 'Better never to have come into existence than be born into a world of wickedness and suffering which we cannot explain!' He replied, <sup>13</sup>
'I went out into a wood, and the trees of the forest were making a plan. They <sup>14</sup> said, "Come, let us make war on the sea, force it to retreat, and win ground for more woods." The waves of the sea <sup>15</sup> made a similar plan: they said, "Come,
let us attack the trees of the forest,
conquer them, and annex their terri-16 tory." The plan made by the trees came to nothing, for fire came and burnt them down. The plan made by the <sup>17</sup>

<sup>b</sup> how . . . ways: so some Vss.; Lat. obscure.

<sup>c</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. the blast.

<sup>d</sup> the grave . . . into: so some Vss.; Lat. omits.

<sup>e</sup> A man . . . incorruptible: reading based on other Vss.; Lat. obscure.

<sup>f</sup> When . . . fell: so some Vss.; Lat. defective.

obedience, adds a new dimension to the writer's troubling question. 28: Babylon stands for Rome as in Rev.14.8. 30: Having laid the foundation, the writer now poses his question in words reminiscent of Hab.1.12-17.

4.1-5.19: The response: Man cannot comprehend God's ways. The human spirit is limited. The future age will show the answer. 1: Uriel ("God is my light") is one of seven archangels who are God's "watchers" in Enoch 20.1. 4: If you can explain: Echoing Job chs.38-41, the passage goes on to stress man's total inability to understand God's ways (v. 11). 7: The vault of heaven (Gen.1.6-7) was considered to support a reservoir of water fed by watercourses; compare Ps.29.10.

4.12-21: Parable of sea and forest depicts the folly of the quest. 21: Compare Isa.55.8-9.

waves failed just as badly, for the sand stood its ground and blocked their way. If you had to judge between the two, which would you pronounce right, and which wrong?

I answered, 'Both were wrong; their plans were impossible, for the land is assigned to the trees, and to the sea is allotted a place for its waves.'

'Yes,' he replied, 'you have judged rightly. Why then have you failed to do so with your own question? Just as the land belongs to the trees and the sea to the waves, so men on earth can understand earthly things and nothing else; only those who live<sup>g</sup> above the skies can understand the things above the skies.'

'But tell me, my lord,' I said, 'why then have I been given the faculty of understanding? My question is not about the distant heavens, but about the things which happen every day before our eyes. Why has Israel been made a byword among the Gentiles; why has the people you loved been put at the mercy of godless nations? Why has the law of our fathers been brought to nothing, and the written covenants made a dead letter? We pass like a flight of locusts, our life is but a vapour, and we are not worth the Lord's pity, though we bear his name; what then will he do for us? These are my questions.'

He answered: 'If you survive, you will see; if you live long enough, you will marvel.<sup>h</sup> For this present age is quickly passing away; it is full of sorrow and frailties, too full to enjoy what is promised in due time for the godly. The evil about which you ask me has been sown, but its reaping has not yet come. Until the crop of evil has been reaped as well as sown, until the ground where it was sown has vanished, there will be no room for the field which has been sown with the good. A grain of the evil seed was sown in the heart of Adam from the first; how much godlessness has it produced already! How much more will it produce before the harvest! Reckon this up: if one grain of evil seed has produced so great a crop of godlessness, how vast a harvest will there be when good seeds beyond number have been sown!

I asked, 'But when? How long have we to wait? Why are our lives so short and so miserable?' He replied, 'Do not be in a greater hurry than the Most High himself. You are in a hurry for yourself alone; the Most High for many. Are not these the very questions which were asked by the righteous in the storehouse of souls: "How long must we stay here? When will the harvest begin, the time when we get our reward?" And the archangel Jeremiel gave them this answer: "As soon as the number of those like yourselves is complete. For the Lord has weighed the world in a balance, he has measured and numbered the ages; he will move nothing, alter nothing, until the appointed number is achieved."'

'But, my lord, my master,' I replied, 'we are all of us sinners through and through. Can it be that because of us, because of the sins of mankind, the harvest and the reward of the just are delayed?' 'Go,' he said, 'ask a pregnant woman whether she can keep the child in her womb any longer after the nine months are complete.' 'No, my lord,' I said, 'she cannot.' He went on: 'The storehouses of souls in the world below are like the womb. As a woman in travail is impatient to see the end of her labour, so they are impatient to give back all the souls committed to them since time began. Then all your questions will be answered.'

I said, 'If it is possible for you to tell and for me to understand, will you be gracious enough to disclose one thing more: which is the longer—the future

<sup>g</sup> Or he who lives.

<sup>h</sup> So one Vs.; Lat. live, you will often marvel.

4.22–25: The seer objects, continues to question.

4.26–32: The future age to show the answer. 30: Evil seed: the evil yeşer. See 3.20 n.

4.33–50: The seer asks when the new age will dawn. 35: Talmudic sources speak of a storehouse of souls of the righteous dead beneath the throne of God. 36: The archangel Jeremiel: probably the archangel Remiel of Enoch 20.1–8. 37: The appointed number: see 2.40–41 n. 44: Which is the longer: the seer seeks to determine the end-time more closely.

46 still to come, or the past that has gone
47 by? What is past I know, but not what 48 is still to be.<sup>7</sup> 'Come and stand on my right,' he said; 'you shall see a vision,
and I will explain what it means.'

48 So I stood and watched, and there passed before my eyes a blazing fire;
when the flames had disappeared from sight, there was still some smoke left.
49 After that a dark rain-cloud passed before me; there was a heavy storm, and when it had gone over, there were 50 still some raindrops left. 'Reflect on this', said the angel. 'The shower of rain filled a far greater space than the drops of water, and the fire more than the smoke. In the same way, the past far exceeds the future in length; what remains is but raindrops and smoke.'

51 'Pray tell me,' I said, 'do you think that I shall live to see those days? Or 52 in whose lifetime will they come?' 'If you ask me what signs will herald
them,' he said, 'I can tell you in part.
But the length of your own life I am not commissioned to tell you; of that I know nothing.'

5 'But now to speak of the signs: there will come a time when the inhabitants of the earth will be seized with panic.<sup>4</sup>
The way of truth will be hidden from sight, and the land will be barren of 2 faith. There will be a great increase in wickedness, worse than anything you 3 now see or have ever heard of. The country you now see governing the world will become a trackless desert, 4 laid waste for all to see. After the third period (if the Most High grants you a long enough life) you will see confusion everywhere. The sun will suddenly begin to shine in the middle of the night, and the moon in the 5 day-time. Trees will drip blood, stones will speak, nations will be in confusion, and the courses of the stars will be 6 changed. A king unwelcome to the inhabitants of earth will succeed to the throne; even the birds will all fly away.

The Dead Sea will cast up fish, and at 7 night a voice will sound, unknown to the many but heard by all.<sup>7</sup> Chasms<sup>k</sup> 8 will open in many places and spurt out flames incessantly. Wild beasts will range far afield, women will give birth to monsters, fresh springs will run with 9 salt water, and everywhere friends will become enemies. Then understanding will be hidden, and reason withdraw to her secret chamber. Many will seek her, 10
but not find her; the earth will overflow with vice and wickedness. One country 11 will ask another, "Has justice passed your way, or any just man?", and it will answer, "No." In those days men 12 will hope, but hope in vain; they will strive, but never succeed.

'These are the signs I am allowed to 13
tell you. But turn again to prayer, continue to weep and fast for seven days; and then you shall hear further signs, even greater than these.'

I awoke with a start, shuddering; my 14 spirit faltered, and I was near to fainting. But the angel who had come 15 and talked to me gave me support and strength, and set me on my feet.

The next night Phaltiel, the leader 16 of the people, came to me. 'Where have you been?' he asked, 'and why that sad look? Have you forgotten that 17 Israel in exile has been entrusted to your care? Rouse yourself, take 18 nourishment. Do not abandon us like a shepherd abandoning his flock to savagely wolves.' I replied: 'Leave me; 19 for seven days do not come near me, then you may come again.' When he heard this, he left me.

FOR SEVEN DAYS I FASTED, WITH TEARS 20
and lamentations, as the angel Uriel had told me to do. By the end of the 21 seven days my mind was again deeply disturbed, but I recovered the power 22

i So some Vss.; Lat. corrupt.

j Some Vss.; read and at night one whom the many do not know will utter his voice, and all will hear it.

k So one Vss.; Lat. Chaos.

4.51-5.12: Signs of end-time revealed. Compare Mt.24.4-35; Mk.13.3-31; Lk.21.7-33.
5.3: The country . . . governing is Rome. 6: Birds were thought capable of foreseeing disaster.
7: Fish cannot live in the Dead Sea.

5.13-19: Vision ended, but further revelations promised. 13: Fasting accompanied by prayer and weeping seems to be set forth as a condition for receiving divine revelation. See 5.20; 6.35; 9.24; 12.51. 14: I awoke: from the dream vision. 17-18: The seer was regarded as the last prophet left in Babylon (12.42) to whom Israel was entrusted.

5.20-6.34: Vision II. 5.20-55: The seer's complaint and God's response. 20: Fasted: see 5.13 n.

of thought and spoke once more to the Most High.

23 'My Lord, my Master,' I said, 'out of all the forests of the earth, and all their trees, you have chosen one vine; 24 from all the lands in the whole world you have chosen one plot; and out of all the flowers in the whole world you 25 have chosen one lily. From all the depths of the sea you have filled one stream for yourself, and of all the cities ever built you have set Zion apart 26 as your own. From all the birds that were created you have named one dove, and from all the animals that were fashioned you have taken one 27 sheep. Out of all the countless nations, you have adopted one for your own, and to this chosen people you have given the law which all men have 28 approved. Why then, Lord, have you put this one people at the mercy of so many? Why have you humiliated' this one stock more than all others, and scattered your own people among the 29 hordes of heathen? Those who reject your promises have trampled on the 30 people who trust your covenants. If you so hate your people, they should be punished by your own hand.'

31 When I had finished speaking, the angel who had visited me that previous 32 night was sent to me again. 'Listen to me,' he said, 'and I will give you instruction. Attend carefully, and I 33 will tell you more.' 'Speak on, my lord', I replied.

He said to me, 'You are in great sorrow of heart for Israel's sake. Do you love Israel more than Israel's 34 Maker does?' 'No, my lord,' I said, 'but sorrow has forced me to speak; my heart is tortured every hour as I try to understand the ways of the Most High and to fathom some part of his judgements.'

35 He said to me, 'You cannot.' 'Why not, my lord?' I asked. 'Why then was I born? Why could not my mother's womb have been my grave? Then I should never have seen Jacob's trials and the weariness of the race of Israel.'

He said to me, 'Count me those who 36 are not yet born, collect the scattered drops of rain, and make the withered flowers bloom again; unlock me the 37 storehouses and let loose the winds shut up there; or make visible the shape of a voice. Then I will answer your question about Israel's trials.'

'My lord, my master,' I said, 'how 38 can there be anyone with such knowledge except the One whose home is not among men? I am only a fool; how 39 then can I answer your questions?'

He said to me, 'Just as you cannot 40 do any of the things I have put to you, so you will not be able to find out my judgements or the ultimate purpose of the love I have promised to my people.'

I said, 'But surely, lord, your 41 promise<sup>m</sup> is to those who are alive at the end. What is to be the fate of those who lived before us, or of ourselves, or of those who come after us?'

He said to me, 'I will compare the 42 judgement to a circle: the latest will not be too late, nor the earliest too early.'

To this I replied, 'Could you not 43 have made all men, past, present, and future, at one and the same time? Then you could have held your assize with less delay.' But he answered, 'The 44 creation may not go faster than the Creator, nor could the world support at the same time all those created to live on it.'

'But, my lord,' I said, 'you have told 45 me that you will at one and the same time restore to life every creature you have made; how can that be? If it is going to be possible for all of them to be alive at the same time and for the world to support them all, then it

<sup>l</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. prepared.
<sup>m</sup> So one Vs.; Lat. obscure.

23-30: Drawing from OT imagery, the author stresses Israel's election as God's chosen people, v. 27. 35: The seer is told that God's ways are beyond human comprehension. Womb . . . grave: compare Job 3.11; 10.18-19. 36-40: Compare Job 38.24,28,34. If one cannot comprehend earthly things, how can he understand divine judgments? 40: Instead of the angel (v. 31) God himself speaks to the troubled seer during the rest of Vision II. Such variation is found elsewhere (as in Gen. ch. 22) and is of limited significance, or none at all.

5.41-55: The seer asks about the end-time. 42: Just as no one is first or last or in the middle of

could support all of them together 46 now.' 'Put your question in terms of a woman's womb', he replied. 'Say to a woman, "If you give birth to ten children, why do you do so at intervals? Why not give birth to ten at one and 47 the same time?"' 'No, my lord, she cannot do that,' I said; 'the births must 48 take place at intervals.' 'True,' he answered; 'and I have made the earth's 49 womb to bring forth at intervals those conceived in it. An infant cannot give 50 birth, nor can a woman who is too old; and I have made the same rule for the 51 world I have created.'
 52 I continued my questions. 'Since you have opened the way,' I said, 'may I 53 now ask: is our mother that you speak of still young, or is she already 54 growing old?' He replied, 'Ask any 55 mother why the children she has lately borne are not like those born earlier, 56 but smaller. And she will tell you, "Those who were born in the vigour 57 of my youth are very different from those born in my old age, when my 58 womb is beginning to fail." Think of it 59 then like this: if you are smaller than those born before you, and those who 60 follow you are smaller still, the reason is that creation is growing old and 61 losing the strength of youth.'
 62 I said to him, 'If I have won your favour, my lord, show me through 63 whom you will visit your creation.' He said to me, 'Think of the beginning of 64 this earth: the gates of the world had not yet been set up; no winds gathered 65 and blew, no thunder pealed, no lightning flashed; the foundations of 66 paradise were not yet laid, nor were its fair flowers there to see; the powers
 67 that move the stars were not established, nor the countless hosts of angels 68 assembled, nor the vast tracts of air set up on high; the divisions of the 69 firmaments had not received their names. Zion had not yet been chosen 70 as God's own footstool; the present age had not been planned; the schemes of its sinners had not yet been outlawed, nor had God's seal yet been set on those who have stored up a treasure of fidelity. Then did I think my 71 thought; and the whole world was created through me and through me 72 alone. In the same way, through me and through me alone the end shall 73 come.'

'Tell me', I went on, 'about the 74 interval that divides the ages. When will the first age end and the next age 75 begin?' He said, 'The interval will be 76 no bigger than that between Abraham and Abraham; for Jacob and Esau 77 were his descendants, and Jacob's hand was grasping Esau's heel at the 78 moment of their birth. Esau represents 79 the end of the first age, and Jacob the beginning of the next age. The 80 beginning of a man is his hand, and the end of a man is his heel.<sup>n</sup> Between the 81 heel and the hand, Ezra, do not look for any interval.'

'My lord, my master,' I said, 'if I 82 have won your favour, make known to me the last of your signs, of which 83 you showed me a part that former night.'

'Rise to your feet,' he replied, 'and 84 you will hear a loud resounding voice. When it speaks, do not be frightened 85 if the place where you stand trembles and shakes; it speaks of the end, and 86 the earth's foundations will understand that it is speaking of them. They will 87 tremble and shake; for they know that at the end they must be transformed.'
 88 On hearing this I rose to my feet and listened; and a voice began to speak.
 89 Its sound was like the sound of rushing waters. The voice said:

'The time draws near when I shall 90 come to judge those who live on the earth, the time when I shall inquire 91 into the wickedness of wrong-doers,

<sup>n</sup> The beginning of a man . . . heel: reading based on other Vss.; Lat. defective.

those standing on a circle's circumference, so God's judgment embraces living and dead in a simultaneous action. 50-55: That creation is growing old, hence, soon to end, is shown by the smaller stature of recent generations.

5.56-6.34: Questions concerning the end-time. 6.6: See Gen. chs. 1 and 2; contrast Jn.1.3. 7-10: As Jacob's hand grasped Esau's heel without interval (see Gen.25.26), so the new age will follow this one immediately. 12: Compare 5.1-12. 17: The roar of the rushing waters voices God's great power and majesty. See Ezek.1.24; Rev.1.15; 14.2; compare Ps.29.3-4.

the time when Zion's humiliation will 20 be over, the time when a seal will be set on the age about to pass away.
 Then I will perform these signs: the books shall be opened in the sight of heaven, and all shall see them at the 21 same moment. Children only one year old shall be able to talk, and pregnant women shall give birth to premature babes of three and four months, who 22 shall live and leap about. Fields that were sown shall suddenly prove un-sown, and barns that were full shall 23 suddenly be found empty. There shall be a loud trumpet-blast and it shall 24 strike terror into all who hear it. At that time friends shall make war on friends as though they were enemies,
 and the earth and all its inhabitants shall be terrified. Running streams shall stand still; for three hours they shall cease to flow.
 25 'Whoever is left after all that I have foretold, he shall be preserved, and shall see the deliverance that I bring 26 and the end of this world of mine. They shall all see the men who were taken up into heaven without ever knowing death. Then shall men on earth feel a change of heart and come to a better 27 mind. Wickedness shall be blotted out and deceit destroyed, but fidelity shall 28 flourish, corruption be overcome, and truth, so long unfruitful, be brought to light.'
 29 While the voice was speaking to me,
 the ground under me began to quake.<sup>o</sup> 30 Then the angel said to me, 'These, then, are the revelations I have 31 brought you this night.<sup>p</sup> If once again
 you pray and fast for seven days, then
 I will return to tell you even greater 32 things.<sup>q</sup> For be sure your voice has been heard by the Most High. The Mighty God has seen your integrity and the chastity you have observed all 33 your life. That is why he has sent me to you with all these revelations, and with this message: "Be confident, and have no fear. Do not rush too quickly 34 into unprofitable thoughts now in the present age; then you will not act hastily when the last age comes."

THEREUPON I WEPT AND FASTED AGAIN 35
 for seven days in the same way as before, thus completing the three weeks enjoined on me. On the eighth 36 night I was again disturbed at heart, and spoke to the Most High. With 37 spirit aflame and in great agony of mind I said: 38

'O Lord, at the beginning of creation
 you spoke the word. On the first day you said, "Let heaven and earth be made!", and your word carried out its work. At that time the hovering spirit 39 was there, and darkness circled round;
 there was silence, no sound as yet of human voice.' Then you commanded a 40 ray of light to be brought out of your store-chambers, to make your works visible from that time onwards. On the 41 second day you created the angel<sup>s</sup> of the firmament, and commanded him to make a dividing barrier between the waters, one part withdrawing upwards and the other remaining below. On the 42 third day you ordered the waters to collect in a seventh part of the earth;
 the other six parts you made into dry land, and from it kept some to be sown and tilled for your service. Your 43 word went forth, and at once the work was done. A vast profusion of fruits 44 appeared instantly, of every kind and taste that can be desired, with flowers of the most subtle colours and mysterious scents. These were made on the third day. On the fourth day by 45

<sup>o</sup> the ground . . . quake: reading based on other Vss.;

<sup>p</sup> Lat. obscure.

<sup>q</sup> So one Vss.; Lat. this coming night.

<sup>r</sup> So other Vss.; Lat. adds in the day-time.

<sup>s</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. adds from you.

<sup>t</sup> Literally spirit.

20: Books: heavenly records of human deeds; see Dan.7.10; Rev.20.12. 23: Trumpet-blast: see 1 Cor.15.52; 1 Th.4.16 n. 26: Enoch (Gen.5.24) and Elijah (2 Kgs.2.11) did not experience death. Mal.4.5-6 pictures a second Elijah who leads men to repent, i.e. to feel a change of heart. 29: The quaking of the ground makes known God's presence in power; see Isa.6.4; Jer.10.10. 31: Fast: see 5.13 n.

6.35-9.25: Vision III. More questions about the end-time.

6.35-59: Was the world created for Israel? 35: The three weeks: apparently a week of fasting preceded each of the first three visions. 38-54: Compare Gen. ch. 1. 41: A Jewish belief that God governed the elements of the universe as well as people and nations through angels was widespread at this time; hence, Gen.1.6 is here presumed to be addressed to an angel of the your command you created the splendour of the sun, the light of the moon, and the stars in their appointed places; and you ordered them to be at the service of man, whose creation was about to take place. On the fifth day you commanded the seventh part, where the water was collected, to bring forth living things, birds and fishes. And so, at your command, dumb lifeless water brought forth living creatures, and gave the nations cause to tell of your wonders. Then you set apart two creatures: one you called Behemoth and the other Leviathan. You put them in separate places, for the seventh part where the water was collected was not big enough to hold them both. A part of the land which was made dry on the third day you gave to Behemoth as his territory, a country of a thousand hills. To Leviathan you gave the seventh part, the water. You have kept them to be food for whom you will and when you will. On the sixth day you ordered the earth to produce for you cattle, wild beasts, and creeping things. To crown your work you created Adam, and gave him sovereignty over everything you had made. It is from Adam that we, your chosen people, are all descended.

46
47 48
49
50
51
52
53
54
55
56
57
58 59

world really made for us? Why, then, may we not take possession of our world? How much longer shall it be so?

When I had finished speaking, the same angel was sent to me as on the previous nights. He said to me, 'Rise to your feet, Ezra, and listen to the message I have come to give you.' 'Speak, my lord', I said.

He said to me: 'Imagine a sea set in a vast open space, spreading far<sup>1</sup> and wide, but the entrance to it narrow like the gorge of a river. If anyone is determined to reach this sea, whether to set eyes on it or to gain command of it, he cannot arrive at its open waters except through the narrow gorge. Or again, imagine a city built in a plain, a city full of everything you can desire, but the entrance to it narrow and steep, with fire to the right and deep water to the left. There is only the one path, between the fire and the water; and that is only wide enough for one man at a time. If some man has been given this city as a legacy, how can he take possession of his inheritance except by passing through these dangerous approaches?' 'That is the only way, my lord', I agreed.

He said to me: 'Such is the lot of Israel. It was for Israel that I made the world, and when Adam transgressed my decrees the creation came under judgement. The entrances to this world were made narrow, painful, and arduous, few and evil, full of perils and grinding hardship. But the entrances to the greater world are broad and safe, and lead to immortality. All men must therefore enter this narrow and futile existence; otherwise they can never attain the blessings in store. Why then, Ezra, are you so deeply disturbed at the firmament. Compare Jude 6; Rev.14.18; 16.5. 49: Behemoth . . . Leviathan: compare Job 3.8; 40.15-41.34; Ps.74.12-14. 55: You made this first world for our sake: see 7.11. Not found in the canonical OT, this idea was deduced by the rabbis from such texts as Deut.14.2. 58: Israel is called the first-born and only son because the Lord brought it into existence at the Exodus, which he did for no other nation; see Hos.11.1; Jer.31.9. 59: Apocalyptic and apocryphal literature which describes the end-time is in part an answer to this question: How much longer before we take possession of our world? See Ecclus.36.1-17.

<sup>1</sup> spreading far: reading based on other Vss.; Lat. deep.

7.1-25: Because of sin the path to the next world is arduous. 1: The same angel: Uriel (4.1 n.). 11: When Adam transgressed: judgment brought by Adam's sin explains why Israel does not enjoy the world made for her. See 6.55-59; compare 3.7 n.; 4.30.

16 thought that you are mortal and must die? Why have you not turned your mind to the future instead of the present?"

17 "My lord, my master," I replied, "in your law you have laid it down that the just shall come to enjoy these blessings but the ungodly shall be lost.

18 The just, therefore, can endure this narrow life and look for the spacious life hereafter; but those who have lived a wicked life will have gone through the narrows without ever reaching the open spaces."

19 He said to me: "You are not a better judge than God, nor wiser than the 20 Most High. Better that many now living should be lost, than that the law God has set before them should be

21 despised! God has given clear instructions for all men when they come into this world, telling them how to attain

22 life and how to escape punishment. But the ungodly have refused to obey him; they have set up their own empty ideas,

23 and planned deceit and wickedness; they have even denied the existence of the Most High and have not acknowl-

24 edged his ways. They have rejected his law and refused his promises, have neither put faith in his decrees nor done

25 what he commands. Therefore, Ezra, emptiness for the empty, fullness for the full!

26 "Listen! The time shall come when the signs I have foretold will be seen; the city which is now invisible<sup>u</sup> shall

27 appear and the country now concealed be made visible. Everyone who has

28 been delivered from the evils I have foretold shall see for himself my marvellous acts. My son the Messiah<sup>v</sup> shall appear with his companions and bring four hundred years of happiness to all who survive. At the end of that

29 time, my son the Messiah shall die, and so shall all mankind who draw breath. Then the world shall return to its

30 original silence for seven days as at the beginning of creation, and no one shall be left alive. After seven days the

31 age which is not yet awake shall be roused and the age which is corruptible shall die. The earth shall give up those

32 who sleep in it, and the dust those who rest there in silence; and the store-houses shall give back the souls entrusted to them. Then the Most 33 High shall be seen on the judgement-seat, and there shall be an end of all pity and patience. Judgement alone

34 shall remain; truth shall stand firm and faithfulness be strong; requital<sup>w</sup>

35 shall at once begin and open payment be made; good deeds shall awake and wicked deeds shall not be allowed to

36 sleep.<sup>x</sup> Then the place of torment shall appear, and over against it the place of rest; the furnace of hell shall be displayed, and on the opposite side the paradise of delight.

"Then the Most High shall say to the 37 nations that have been raised from the dead: "Look and understand who it is you have denied and refused to serve, and whose commandment you have

38 despised. Look on this side, then on that: here are rest and delight, there

<sup>u</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. the city, the bride, which is now seen . . .

<sup>v</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. My son Jesus.

<sup>w</sup> Probable meaning; literally work.

<sup>x</sup> The passage from verse [36] to verse [105], missing from the text of the Authorized Version, but found in ancient witnesses, has been restored.

7.17–25: The angel answers concerning punishment of wicked. 17: The seer thinks not only of Israel but of all men. The rabbis held that the Gentiles rejected God's law before it was offered to Israel. 18–25: Even though the wicked have to go through the narrows like the just, they will be lost because they despised the law and so refused God's promises.

7.26–[44]: The angel speaks of the messianic kingdom and the end of the world. 26: The signs: see 5.1–12; 6.20–24. The city . . . the country: the heavenly Jerusalem and paradise. See 8.52. 28: In place of four hundred years some ancient versions have "thirty" or "one thousand," or omit the figure entirely. The idea of a temporary messianic reign is known from rabbinic sources. 31–32: The age to come will awake when those who sleep in death will rise to new life. After the temporary messianic reign comes the resurrection (v. 32), and the judgment, hell and heaven (vv. 33–[44]). 32: The storehouses: see 4.35 n. 34: When the opportunity for obedience has passed, the final judgement is to be conducted with rigorous justice. 35: Both good and wicked deeds will be brought to light and given the attention they deserve. [36–105]: These verses are missing from the standard Vg., and thus from the King James Version, but are found in two Latin MSS. and in several secondary versions. The passage may have been omitted from the Vg. for doctrinal reasons because it excludes prayer on behalf of the dead; see 7.[105] n.

7.[37–44]: Judgment Day described. Here judgment is not the end, but a prelude to subsequent blessings. See Mt.25.46, which summarizes the discourse in Mt. ch. 24 on Judgment Day.

fire and torments." That is what he will say to them on the day of judgement.

[39] "That day will be a day without sun, [40] moon, or stars; without cloud, thunder,
 or lightning; wind, water, or air; [41] darkness, evening, or morning; without summer, spring, or winter; without heat, frost, or cold; without hail, rain, [42] or dew; without noonday, night, or dawn; without brightness, glow, or light. There shall be only the radiant glory of the Most High, by which all men will see everything that lies before [43] them. It shall last as it were for a week [44] of years. Such is the order that I have appointed for the Judgement. I have given this revelation to you alone.'

[45] I replied: 'My lord, I repeat what I said before: "How blest are the living who obey the decrees you have laid [46] down!" But as for those for whom I have been praying, is there any man alive who has never sinned, any man who has never transgressed your [47] covenant? I see now that there are few to whom the world to come will bring happiness, and many to whom it will [48] bring torment. For the wicked heart has grown up in us, which has estranged us from God's ways,<sup>y</sup> brought us into corruption and the way of death, opened out to us the paths of ruin, and carried us far away from life. It has done this, not merely to a few, but to almost all who have been created.'

[49] The angel replied: 'Listen to me and I will give you further instruction and [50] correction. It is for this reason that the Most High has created not one world [51] but two. There are, you say, not many who are just, but only a few, whereas the wicked are very numerous; well [52] then, hear the answer. Suppose you had a very few precious stones; would you add to their number by putting common lead and clay among them?'
 [53] 'No,' I said, 'no one would do that.'
 [54] 'Look at it also in this way,' he continued; 'speak to the earth and humbly ask her; she will give you the answer. Say to her: "You produce [55]

 gold, silver, and copper, iron, lead, and clay. There is more silver than [56]
 gold, more copper than silver, more iron than copper, more lead than iron, more clay than lead." Then judge for [57] yourself which things are valuable and desirable—those that are common, or those that are rare.' 'My lord, my [58]
 master,' I said, 'the common things are cheaper, and the rarer are more valuable.' He replied, 'Consider then [59] what follows from that: the owner of something hard to get has more cause to be pleased than the owner of what is common. In the same way, at my [60] promised judgement,<sup>a</sup> I shall have joy in the few who are saved, because it is they who have made my glory prevail, and through them that my name has been made known. But I shall not [61] grieve for the many who are lost; for they are no more than a vapour, they are like flame or smoke; they catch fire, blaze up, and then die out.'

Then I said: 'Mother Earth, what [62] have you brought forth! Is the mind of man, like the rest of creation, a product of the dust? Far better then [63]
 if the very dust had never been created,
 and so had never produced man's mind! But, as it is, we grow up with [64]
 the power of thought and are tortured by it; we are doomed to die and we know it. What sorrow for mankind; [65]
 what happiness for the wild beasts!
 What sorrow for every mother's son;
 what gladness for the cattle and flocks!
 How much better their lot than ours! [66]
 They have no judgement to expect, no knowledge of torment or salvation after death. What good to us is the [67] promise of a future life if it is going to be one of torment? For every man [68] alive is burdened and defiled with wickedness, a sinner through and through. Would it not have been [69]

<sup>y</sup> Literally from these things.

<sup>z</sup> by putting . . . them: probable reading, based on other Vss.; Lat. obscure.

<sup>a</sup> Reading based on other Vss.; Lat. creation.

[42]: The radiant glory of God gives light at the judgment. Compare Isa.60.19–20; Rev.21.23. 7.[45–74]: That few are to be saved is justified by angel but lamented by seer. [48]: Wicked heart: see 3.20 n. [61]: The fire in which the wicked die out is not one of annihilation (see v. [67]), but one in which their worth goes up in smoke. [64–68]: The seer insists on the unity of the human race in doom, including himself in the wickedness and sorrow of every mother's better for us if there had been no judgement awaiting us after death?"

[70] The angel replied: 'When the Most High was creating the world and Adam and his descendants, he first of all planned the judgement and what goes with it. Your own words, when you said that man grows up with the power of thought, will give you the answer. [71] It was with conscious knowledge that the people of this world sinned, and that is why torment awaits them; they received the commandments but did not keep them, they accepted the law [72] but violated it. What defence will they be able to make at the judgement, what answer at the last day? How patient the Most High has been with the men of this world, and for how long!—not for their own sake, but for the sake of the destined age to be.'

[75] Then I said: 'If I have won your favour, my lord, make this plain to me: at death, when every one of us gives back his soul, shall we be kept at rest until the time when you begin to create your new world, or does our torment begin at once?' 'I will tell you that also', he replied. 'But do not include yourself among those who have despised my law; do not count yourself with those who are to be [77] tormented. For you have a treasure of good works stored up with the Most High, though you will not be shown it [78] until the last days. But now to speak of death: when the Most High has given final sentence for a man to die, the spirit leaves the body to return to the One who gave it, and first of all to [79] adore the glory of the Most High. But as for those who have rejected the ways of the Most High and despised his law, [80] and who hate all that fear God, their spirits enter no settled abode, but roam thenceforward in torment, grief, and sorrow. And this for seven reasons. [81] First, they have despised the law of the Most High. Secondly, they have [82] lost their last chance of making a good repentance and so gaining life. Thirdly, [83] they can see the reward in store for those who have trusted the covenants of the Most High. Fourthly, they [84] begin to think of the torment that awaits them at the end. Fifthly, they [85] see that angels are guarding the abode of the other souls in deep silence. Sixthly, they see that they are soon<sup>b</sup> to [86] enter into torment. The seventh cause for grief, the strongest cause of all, is [87] this: at the sight of the Most High in his glory, they break down in shame, waste away in remorse, and shrivel with fear remembering how they sinned against him in their lifetime, and how they are soon to be brought before him for judgement on the last day.

'As for those who have kept to the way laid down by the Most High, this is what is appointed for them when their time comes to leave their mortal bodies. During their stay on earth they [88] served the Most High in spite of constant hardship and danger, and kept to the last letter the law given them by the lawgiver. Their reward is [89] this: first they shall exult to see the glory of God who will receive them as his own, and then they shall enter into rest in seven appointed stages of joy. [90] Their first joy is their victory in the long fight against their inborn impulses [91] to evil, which have failed to lead them astray from life into death. Their [92] second joy is to see the souls of the wicked wandering ceaselessly, and the punishment in store for them. Their [93] third joy is the good report given of them by their Maker, that throughout their life they kept the law with which they were entrusted. Their fourth joy [94] is to understand the rest which they are now to share in the storehouses, guarded by angels in deep silence, and the glory waiting for them in the next age. Their fifth joy is the contrast [95] between the corruptible world they have escaped and the future life that [96] b So some Vss.; Lat. obscure.

son; see also vv. [75–77]. [70]: According to rabbinic theology, paradise and hell which go with judgement were among seven things created before the world.

7.[75–101]: State of the dead before judgment. [77]: Treasure of good works: compare 8.33–36. [79–87]: Wicked spirits roam . . . in sorrow, tormented by deep mental anguish. [85]: The other souls: the righteous.

7.[88–99]: The destiny of the just. [92]: Inborn impulses refers to the evil yeşer: see 3.20 n.

is to be their possession, between the cramped laborious<sup>c</sup> life from which they have been set free and the spacious life which will soon be theirs to enjoy for ever and ever. Their sixth joy will be the revelation that they are to shine like stars, never to fade or die, with faces radiant as the sun. Their seventh joy, the greatest joy of all, will be the confident and exultant assurance which will be theirs, free from all fear and shame, as they press forward to see face to face the One whom they served in their lifetime, and from whom they are now to receive their reward in glory.

[97] 'The joys I have been declaring are the appointed destiny for the souls of the just; the torments I described before are the sufferings appointed for the rebellious.'

[100] Then I asked: 'When souls are separated from their bodies, will they be given the opportunity to see what you have described to me?' 'They will be allowed seven days,' he replied; 'for seven days they will be permitted to see the things I have told you, and after that they will join the other souls in their abodes.'

[102] Then I asked: 'If I have won your favour, my lord, tell me more. On the day of judgement will the just be able to win pardon for the wicked, or pray for them to the Most High? Can fathers do so for their sons, or sons for their parents? Can brothers pray for brothers, relatives and friends<sup>d</sup> for their nearest and dearest?'

[104] 'You have won my favour,' he replied, 'and I will tell you. The day of judgement is decisive,<sup>e</sup> and sets its seal on the truth for all to see. In the present age a father cannot send his son in his place, nor a son his father, a master his slave, nor a man his best friend, to be ill<sup>f</sup> for him, or sleep, or eat, or be cured for him. In the same way no one shall ever ask pardon for another; when that day comes, every individual will be held responsible for his own wickedness or goodness.'

To this I replied: 'But how is it, then, that we read of intercessions in scripture? First, there is Abraham, who prayed for the people of Sodom; then Moses, who prayed for our ancestors when they sinned in the desert. Next, there is Joshua, who prayed for the Israelites in the time of Achan, then Samuel in the time of Saul,<sup>g</sup> David during the plague,<sup>h</sup> and Solomon at the dedication of the temple. Elijah prayed for rain for the people, and for a dead man that he might be brought back to life. Hezekiah prayed for the nation in the time of Sennacherib; and there are many more besides. If, then, in the time when corruption grew and wickedness increased, the just asked pardon for the wicked, why cannot it be the same on the day of judgement?'

The angel gave me this answer: 'The present world is not the end, and the glory of God does not stay in it continually.<sup>i</sup> That is why the strong have prayed for the weak. But the day of judgement will be the end of the present world and the beginning of the eternal world to come, a world in which corruption will be over, all excess abolished, and unbelief uprooted, in which justice will be full-grown, and truth will have risen like the sun. On the day of judgement, therefore, there can be no mercy for the man who has lost his case, no reversal for the man who has won it.'

I replied, 'But this is my point, my first point and my last: how much better it would have been if the earth had never produced Adam at all, or,

<sup>c</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. obscure.

<sup>d</sup> Friends: so some Vss.; Lat. the faithful.

<sup>e</sup> So one V.; Lat. stern.

<sup>f</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. to understand.

<sup>g</sup> In the time of Saul: so some Vss.; Lat. omits.

<sup>h</sup> During the plague: so some Vss.; Lat. for the destruction.

<sup>i</sup> Does . . . continually: so some Vss.; Lat. regularly stays in it.

[97]: Shine like stars, never to fade: compare Dan.12.3; Mt.13.43. [101]: Abodes: see 4.35 n.

7.[102-115]: No intercession can be made for the wicked at Judgment Day. Compare Ezek. 18.4,20. [105]: See v. 35 n. That the practice, later popular, of prayer for the dead is here excluded probably accounts for the omission of this section from some MSS. Its restoration has necessitated the double numbering of subsequent verses. [106]: Abraham: see Gen.18.23-32. Moses: see Exod.32.11-14. [107]: Joshua: see Josh.7.6-9. [108]: Samuel: see 1 Sam.7.9; 12.19-25. David: see 2 Sam.24.17. Solomon: see 1 Kgs.8.22-30. [109]: Elijah: see 1 Kgs.18.41-45; 17.20-21. [110]: Hezekiah: see 2 Kgs.19.15-19. [112-115]: Compare v. 35 n.

- 47[117] since it has done so, if he had been restrained from sinning! For what good does it do us all to live in misery now and have nothing but punishment to expect after death? O Adam, what have you done? Your sin was not your fall alone; it was ours also, the fall of all your descendants. What good is the promise of immortality to us, when we have committed mortal sins; or the hope of eternity, in the wretched and futile state to which we have come; or the prospect of dwelling in health and safety, when we have lived such evil lives? The glory of the Most High will guard those who have led a life of purity; but what help is that to us whose conduct has been so wicked?
- 53[123] What good is the revelation of paradise and its imperishable fruit, the source of perfect satisfaction and healing? For we shall never enter it, since we have made depravity our home. Those who have practised self-discipline shall shine with faces brighter than the stars; but what good is that to us whose faces are darker than the night?
- 56[126] For during a lifetime of wickedness we have never given a thought to the sufferings awaiting us after death.
- 57[127] The angel replied, 'This is the thought for every man to keep in mind during his earthly contest: if he loses, he must accept the sufferings you have mentioned, but if he wins, the rewards I have been describing will be his. For that was the way which Moses in his time urged the people to take, when he said, "Choose life and live!" But they did not believe him, nor the prophets after him, nor me when I spoke to them. Over their damnation there will be no sorrow; there will only be joy for the salvation of those who have believed.'
- 62[132] 'My lord,' I replied, 'I know that the Most High is called "compassionate", because he has compassion on those yet unborn; and called "merciful", because he shows mercy to those who repent and live by his law; and "patient", because he shows patience to those who have sinned, his own creatures as they are; and "benefactor", because he prefers giving to taking; and "rich in forgiveness", because again and again he forgives sinners, past, present, and to come. For without his continued forgiveness there could be no hope of life for the world and its inhabitants. And he is called "generous", because without his generosity in releasing sinners from their sins, not one ten-thousandth part of mankind could hope to be given life; and he is also called "judge", for unless he grants pardon to those who have been created by his word, and blots out their countless offences, I suppose that of the entire human race only very few would be spared.'
- The angel said to me in reply: 'The Most High has made this world for many, but the next world for only a few. Let me give you an illustration, 2 Ezra. Ask the earth, and it will tell you that it can produce plenty of clay for making earthenware, but very little gold-dust. The same holds good for the present world: many have been 3 created, but only a few will be saved.'
- I SAID: 'MY SOUL, DRINK DEEP OF 4 understanding and eat your fill of wisdom! Without your consent<sup>k</sup> you 5 came here, and unwillingly you go away; only a brief span of life is given you. O Lord above, if I may be 6 allowed to approach you in prayer, plant a seed in our hearts and minds,
- <sup>j</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. for those who are convinced of salvation.
<sup>k</sup> Without your consent: so one Vss.; Lat. To obey.

7.[116-131]: Lament on man's sinful lot. [118]: O Adam: see 3.7 n. [123]: The imperishable fruit comes from the restored tree of life. See Gen.3.22-24; Ezek.47.12; Rev.22.2. [125]: Shall shine: see Dan.12.3. [126]: A lifetime of wickedness: see [64-68]n. [129]: Choose life: see Deut. 30.19-20.

7.[132]-8.3: The seer appeals to God's mercy. [132-140]: The divine attributes are apparently derived from Exod.34.6-7 but here all involve the forgiveness of sin. [139]: God is called judge in the biblical sense of one who saves the oppressed, here from sin; compare Judg.2.16-18. 8.1-3: The seer is told strict justice will obtain and few will be saved. Compare 7.49-61 and Mt.22.14.

8.4-62: The seer prays for mercy upon the wicked but is denied. 4-19a: Why should men, so carefully created and sustained by God, be doomed to perish? 6: Plant a seed: give a sure and make it grow until it bears fruit, so that fallen man may obtain life.

 7 For you alone are God, and we are all shaped by you in one mould, as your
 8 word declares. The body moulded in the womb receives from you both life and limbs; that which you create is kept safe amid fire and water; for nine months the body moulded by you bears what you have created in it.
 9 Both the womb which holds safely and that which is safely held will be safe only because you keep them so. And after the womb has delivered up what 10 has been created in it, then from the human body itself, that is from the breasts, milk, the fruit of the breasts,
 11 is supplied by your command. For a certain time what has been made is nourished in that way; and afterwards 12 it is still cared for by your mercy. You bring it up to know your justice, train it in your law, and correct it by your 13 wisdom. It is your creature and you made it; you can put it to death or give 14 it life, as you please. But if you should lightly destroy one who was fashioned by your command with so much labour, what was the purpose of 15 creating him?
 16 'And now let me say this: about mankind at large, you know best; but it is for your own people that I grieve,
 17 for your inheritance that I mourn; my sorrow is for Israel and my distress for the race of Jacob. For them and for myself, therefore, I will address my prayer to you, since I perceive how low we have fallen, we dwellers on earth;
 18 and I know well how quickly your judgement will follow. Hear my words then, and consider the prayer which I make to you.'
 19 Here begins the prayer which Ezra made, before he was taken up to heaven.
 20 'O Lord, who dost inhabit eternity, to whom the sky and the highest 21 heavens belong; whose throne is beyond imagining, and whose glory is past conceiving; who art attended by the host of angels trembling as they 22 turn themselves into wind and fire at thy bidding; whose word is true and constant; whose commands are mighty and terrible; whose glance dries up the 23 deeps, whose anger melts the mountains, and whose truth stands for ever:<sup>1</sup> hear 24 thy servant's prayer, O Lord, listen to my petition, for thou hast fashioned me, and consider my words. While I 25 live I will speak; while understanding lasts, I will answer.

'Do not look upon thy people's 26 offences, look on those who have served thee faithfully; pay no heed to 27 the godless and their pursuits, but to those who have observed thy covenant and suffered for it. Do not think of 28 those who all their life have been untrue to thee, but remember those who have acknowledged and feared
 29 thee from the heart. Do not destroy 30 those who have lived like animals, but take account of those who have borne shining witness to thy law. Do not be 31 angry with those judged to be worse than beasts; but show love to those who have put unflinching trust in thy glory. For we and our fathers have 32 lived in mortal sin,<sup>m</sup> yet it is on our account that thou art called merciful; for if it is thy desire to have mercy on 33 us sinners, who have no just deeds to our credit, then indeed thou shalt be called merciful. For the reward which 34 will be given to the just, who have many good works stored up with thee, will be no more than their own deeds have earned.

'What is man, that thou shouldst be 35 angry with him? or the race of mortals, that thou shouldst treat them so harshly? The truth is, no man was ever 36 born who did not sin; no man alive is innocent of offence. It is through thy mercy towards those with no store of good deeds to their name that thy justice and kindness, O Lord, will be made known.'

<sup>1</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. bears witness.
<sup>m</sup> in mortal sin: so some Vss.; Lat. obscure.

inclination to righteousness which alone can offset the evil inclination in man's heart; see 3.7 and 3.20 nn. 16: My sorrow is for Israel: see the opening complaint, 3.4–36. 19b: Because of its liturgical beauty, the following prayer appears separately in the special hymn section of many Latin MSS. under the title Confessio Esdrae. Hence, the superscription in the text: here begins the prayer. 34: Man is so insignificant that it is unworthy of God to be angry with him

37 The angel said to me in reply: 'Much of what you have said is just, and it will be as you say. Be sure that I shall not give any thought to sinners, to their creation, death, judgement, or damnation; but I shall take delight in the just, in their creation, their departure from this world, their salvation, and their final reward. So I have said, and so it is. The farmer sows many seeds in the ground and plants many plants, but not all the seeds soon come up safely in season, nor do all the plants strike root. So too in the world of men: not all who are sown will be preserved.'

42 To that I replied: 'If I have won your favour, let me speak. The farmer's seed may never come up because it is given no rain at the right time, or it may rot because of too much rain. But man, who was formed by your hands and made in your image, and for whose sake you made everything—will you compare him with seed sown by a farmer? Surely not, O Lord above! Spare your own people and pity them, for you will be pitying your own creation.'

46 He answered: 'The present is for those now alive, the future for those yet to come. You cannot love my creation with a love greater than mine—far from it! But never again rank yourself among the unjust, as you have so often done. Yet the Most High approves of the modesty you have rightly shown; you have not sought great glory by including yourself among the godly. In the last days, then, the inhabitants of the world will be punished for their arrogant lives by bitter sufferings. But you, Ezra, should direct your thoughts to yourself and the glory awaiting those like you. For all of you, paradise lies open, the tree of life is planted, the age to come is made ready, and rich abundance is in store; the city is already built, rest from toil is assured, goodness and wisdom are brought to perfection. The root of evil has been sealed off from you; for you there is no more illness, death<sup>n</sup> is abolished, hell has fled, and decay is quite forgotten. All sorrows are at an end, and the treasure of immortality has been finally revealed. Ask no more questions, therefore, about the many who are lost. For they were given freedom and used it to despise the Most High, to treat his law with contempt and abandon his ways. Yes, and they trampled on his just servants; they said to themselves, "There is no God", though well aware that they must die. Yours, then, will be the joys I have predicted; theirs the thirst and torments which are prepared. It is not that the Most High has wanted any man to be lost, but that those he created have themselves brought dishonour on their Creator's name, and shown ingratitude to the One who had put life within their reach. My day of judgement is now close at hand, but I have not made this known to all; only to you and a few like you.'

'My lord,' I replied, 'you have now revealed to me the many signs which you are going to perform in the last days; but you have not told me when that will be.'

The angel answered: 'Keep a careful count yourself; when you see that some of the signs predicted have already happened, then you will understand that the time has come when the Most High will judge the world he has created. When the world becomes the scene of earthquakes, insurrections, plots among the nations, unstable government, and panic among rulers, n death: so some Vss.; Lat. omits.

or to treat fragile mortals harshly. 37: It will be as you say: the seer's prayer, pay no heed (v. 27), is accepted, but is turned to an opposite meaning: God will forget the doomed sinners and rejoice in the righteous. 41: The farmer rejoices in his crop and disregards the seeds that fail. 46: The seer's objection (vv. 43-44) seems dismissed as inapplicable to the future age. 47: The angel asserts that God's love for his creation includes the doing of justice in vindication of those who have been trampled (v. 57). 52: Now in existence, paradise lies open for contemplation. Tree of life: see 7.[123] n. 53: The root of evil: see 3.20 n. 62: A few like you: prophets like the seer, called apocalypticists because they have claimed to draw back the veil hiding the end-time.

8.63-9.13: Description of the end. 63: The many signs: see 5.1-13; 6.18-24. The present passage is a resumé. 9.1: Keeping a careful count of the signs will enable the seer to judge the 4 then you will recognize these as the events which the Most High has foretold since first the world began.

 5 Just as everything that is done on earth has its beginning and end clearly marked,<sup>o</sup> so it is with the times which the Most High has determined: their beginning is marked by portents and miracles, their end by manifestations of power.
 7 'Whoever comes safely through and escapes destruction, thanks to his good deeds or the faith he has shown, will survive all the dangers I have foretold and witness the salvation that I shall bring to my land, the country I have marked out from all eternity as my own. Then those who have misused my law will be taken by surprise; their contempt for it will bring them continual torment. All who in their lifetime failed to acknowledge me in spite of all the good things I had given them, all who disdained my law while freedom still was theirs, who scornfully dismissed the thought of penitence while the way was still open—all these will have to learn the truth through torments after death. Do not be curious any more, Ezra, to know how the goddess will be tormented, but only how and when the just will be saved; the world is theirs and it exists for their sake.'
 14,15 I answered, 'I repeat what I have said again and again: the lost outnumber the saved as a wave exceeds a drop of water.'
 17 The angel replied: 'The seed to be sown depends on the soil, the colour on the flower, the product on the workman, and the harvest on the farmer.
 18 There was once a time before the world had been created for men to dwell in; at that time I was planning it for the sake of those who now exist.
 19 No one then disputed my plan, for no one existed. I supplied this world with unfailing food and a mysterious law; but those whom I created turned to a life of corruption. I looked at my world, and there it lay spoilt, at my earth in danger from men's wicked thoughts; and at the sight I could scarcely bring myself to spare them. One grape I saved out of a cluster, one tree out of a forest.<sup>p</sup> So then let it be: destruction for the many who were born in vain, and salvation for my grape and my tree, which have cost me such labour to bring to perfection.

'You, Ezra, must wait one more week. Do not fast this time, but go to a flowery field where no house stands, and eat only what grows there—no meat or wine—and pray unceasingly to the Most High. Then I will come and talk to you again.'

Visions of the last days

SO I WENT OUT, AS THE ANGEL TOLD ME, to a field called Ardat. There I sat among the flowers; my food was what grew in the field, and I ate to my heart's content. The week ended, and I was lying on the grass, troubled again in mind with all the same perplexities. I broke my silence and addressed the Most High. 'O Lord,' I said, 'you showed yourself to our fathers in the desert at the time of the exodus from Egypt, when they were travelling through the barren and untrodden waste. You said, "Hear me, Israel; listen to my words, race of Jacob. This is my law, which I sow among you to bear fruit and bring you glory for ever." But our fathers who received your law did not keep it; they did not observe your commandments. Not that the fruit of the law perished; that was impossible, for it was yours.

<sup>o</sup> has . . . marked: so one Vs.; Lat. defective.
<sup>p</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. tribe.

nearness of the end. 4: The writer expects to see and to recognize the end in his lifetime. 12: Learn the truth: the real meaning of their ruinous but willful rebellion.

9.14-25: Summary. 14: I repeat: see 7.[140]. 21: Because of corruption (vv. 19-20), to spare even one grape in a vineyard is a marvelous act of grace. 23: Do not fast: see 6.35 n.

9.26-10.59: Vision IV. Zion's present mourning and future glory. The transformation is sudden, complete, and terrifying.

9.26-37: The seer ponders the law's permanence and Israel's instability. 26: Ardat: an unidentifiable place, perhaps of mystic significance. 29: See Exod.19.9; 24.10; 24.15; Jer.2.2.

33 Those who received it perished, because they failed to keep safe the good seed that had been sown in them. Now the usual way of things is that when seed is put into the earth, or a ship on the sea, or food or drink into a jar, then if the seed, or the ship, or the contents of the jar should be destroyed, what held or contained them does not perish with them. But with us sinners it is different. Destruction will come upon us, the recipients of the law, and upon our hearts, the vessel that held the law. The law itself is not destroyed, but survives in all its glory.<sup>3</sup>

38 While these thoughts were in my mind, I looked round, and on my right I saw a woman in great distress, mourning and loudly lamenting; her dress was torn, and she had ashes on her head. Abandoning my meditations, I turned to her, and said: 'Why are you weeping? What is troubling you?' 'Sir,' she replied, 'please leave me to my tears and my grief; great is my bitterness of heart, great my distress.' 'Tell me,' I asked, 'what has happened to you?' 'Sir,' she replied, 'I was barren and childless through thirty years of marriage. Every hour of every day during those thirty years, day and night alike, I prayed to the Most High. Then after thirty years, my God answered my prayer and had mercy on my distress; he took note of my sorrow and granted me a son. What happiness he brought to my husband and myself and to all our neighbours! What praise we gave to the Mighty God! I took great pains over his upbringing. When he came of age, I chose a wife for him, and fixed the date of the wedding.

10 'But when my son entered his wedding-chamber, he fell down dead. So we all put out our lamps, and all my neighbours came to comfort me; I controlled my grief till the evening of the following day. When they had all ceased urging me to take comfort and control my grief, I rose and stole away in the night, and came here, as you can see, to this field. I have made up my mind never to go back to the town, but to stay here eating nothing and drinking nothing, and to continue my mourning and fasting unbroken till I die.'

At that I interrupted the train of my thoughts, and I spoke sternly to the woman: 'You are the most foolish woman in the world,' I said; 'are you blind to the grief and sufferings of our nation? It is for the sorrow and humiliation of Zion, the mother of us all, that you should mourn so deeply; you should share in our common mourning and sorrow. But you are deep in sorrow for your one son. Ask the earth and she will tell you; she must mourn for the thousands and thousands who come to birth upon her. From her we all originally sprang, and there are more to come. Almost all her children go to perdition, and their vast numbers are wiped out. Who then has the better right to be in mourning—the earth, who has lost such vast numbers, or you, whose sorrow is for one alone? You may say to me, "But my grief is very different from the earth's grief; I have lost the fruit of my own womb, which I brought to birth with pain and travail, but it is only in the course of nature that the vast numbers now alive on earth should depart in the same way as they have come." My answer to that is: at the cost of pain you have been a mother, but in the same way the earth has always been the mother of mankind, bearing fruit to earth's creator.

'Keep your sorrow to yourself, therefore, and bear your misfortunes bravely. If you will accept God's decree as just, then in due time you will receive your son back again, and win an honoured name among women. So go back to the town and to your husband.'

33: The whole generation that sinned at Sinai perished and did not enter the promised land; see Num.32.13.

9.38–10.28: The woman in mourning. 38: Ashes on her head, like the torn dress, were a sign of grief. 10.2: Weddings took place at night, hence, the lamps; see Mt.25.1–13. 7: Zion, the mother: compare Bar.4.8–20; Gal.4.26. 16: To accept God's decree as just is to submit humbly to his will. The mother would receive her son back again after the resurrection in the new age; compare 2 Macc.7.9,23,29. An honoured name: childbearing was regarded as a blessing, barrenness as a

- 18 'No, I will not,' she replied; 'I will not go back to the town; I will stay here to die.'
- 19 But I continued to argue with her.
- 20 'Do not do what you say,' I urged; 'be persuaded because of Zion's misfortunes, and take comfort to yourself
- 21 from the sorrow of Jerusalem. You see how our sanctuary has been laid waste, our altar demolished, and our
- 22 temple destroyed. Our harps are unstrung, our hymns silenced, our shouts of joy cut short; the light of the sacred lamp is out, and the ark of our covenant has been taken as spoil; the holy vessels are defiled, and the name which God has conferred on us is disgraced; our leading men<sup>q</sup> have been treated shamefully, our priests burnt alive, and the Levites taken off into captivity; our virgins have been raped and our wives ravished, our godfearing men carried off, and our children abandoned; our youths have been enslaved, and our strong warriors
- 23 reduced to weakness. Worst of all, Zion, once sealed with God's own seal, has forfeited its glory and is in the hands of our enemies. Then
- 24 throw off your own heavy grief, and lay all your sorrows aside; may the Mighty God restore you to his favour, may the Most High give you rest and peace after your troubles!'
- 25 Suddenly, while I was still speaking to the woman, I saw her face begin to shine; her countenance flashed like lightning, and I shrank from her in terror. While I wondered what this
- 26 meant, she suddenly uttered a loud and terrible cry, which shook the
- 27 earth. I looked up and saw no longer a woman but a complete city, built<sup>r</sup> on massive foundations. I cried aloud in terror, 'Where is the angel Uriel, who visited me before? It is his doing that I have fallen into this bewilderment, that all my hopes are shattered,<sup>s</sup> and all my prayers in vain.'
- 29 I was still speaking when the angel
- appeared who had visited me before. When he saw me lying in a dead faint, 30 unconscious on the ground, he grasped me by my right hand, put strength into me, and raised me to my feet. 'What 31 is the matter?' he asked. 'Why are you overcome? What was it that disturbed your mind and made you faint?' 'It 32 was because you deserted me', I replied. 'I did what you told me: I came out to the field; and what I have seen here and can still see is beyond my power to relate.'
- 'Stand up like a man,' he said, 'and 33 I will explain it to you.'
- 'Speak, my lord,' I replied; 'only do 34 not abandon me and leave me to die unsatisfied. For I have seen and I hear 35 things beyond my understanding— unless this is all an illusion and a 36 dream. I beg you to tell me, my lord, 37 the meaning of my vision.'
- 'Listen to me,' replied the angel, 38 'while I explain to you the meaning of the things that terrify you; for the Most High has revealed many secrets to you. He has seen your blameless 39 life, your unceasing grief for your people, and your deep mourning over Zion. Here then is the meaning of the 40 vision. A little while ago you saw a 41 woman in mourning, and tried to give her comfort; now you no longer see 42 that woman, but a whole city. She 43 told you she had lost her son, and this is the explanation. The woman you 44 saw is Zion, which you now see as a city with all its buildings. She told you 45 she was childless for thirty years; that was because there were three thousand years in which sacrifices were not yet offered in Zion. But then, after the 46 three thousand years, Solomon built the city and offered the sacrifices; that was the time when the barren woman bore her son. She took great pains, she 47 said, over his upbringing; that was the curse. 20-22: These verses are a poignant enumeration of the misfortunes that attended the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 B.C.; see 2 Kgs. 25.8-12. Hymns silenced: compare Ps. 137.1-4. The ark of the covenant was lost in the destruction. The holy vessels were defiled by being put to pagan worship (Ezra 1.7) or to profane use (see Dan. 5.2-3). 28: Uriel: see 4.1 n.

<sup>q</sup> So some Vss.; Lat. our children.

<sup>r</sup> Probable meaning, based on other Vss.; Lat. but a city was being built . . .

<sup>s</sup> Or that my destiny turns out to be corruption.

10.29-59: The vision interpreted. 30: In a dead faint: compare Rev. 1.17. 33: Stand up: see 5.15; 6.13, 17. 44: City: the heavenly Jerusalem. 46-48: Her son: the earthly Jerusalem. His period when Jerusalem was inhabited.

 48 Then she told you of the great loss she suffered, how her son died on the day he entered his wedding-chamber; that was the destruction which overtook
 49 Jerusalem. Such then was the vision that you saw—the woman mourning for her son—and you tried to comfort her in her sufferings; this was the 50 revelation you had to receive. Seeing your sincere grief and heartfelt sympathy for the woman, the Most High is now showing you her radiant glory
 51 and her beauty. That was why I told you to stay in a field where no house 52 stood, for I knew that the Most High intended to send you this revelation. I 53 told you to come to this field, where no foundation had been laid for any 54 building; for in the place where the city of the Most High was to be revealed, no building made by man could stand.
 55 'Have no fear then, Ezra, and set your trembling heart at rest; go into the city, and see the magnificence of the buildings, so far as your eyes have 56 power to see it all. Then, after that, you shall hear as much as your ears
 57 have power to hear. You are more blessed than most other men, and few have such a name with the Most High 58 as you have. Stay here till tomorrow night, when the Most High will show you in dreams and visions what he intends to do to the inhabitants of earth in the last days.' I did as I was told and slept there that night and the next.

11 ON THE SECOND NIGHT I HAD A VISION in a dream; I saw, rising from the sea, an eagle with twelve wings and three
 2 heads. I saw it spread its wings over the whole earth; and all the winds blew
 3 on it, and the clouds<sup>i</sup> gathered. Out of its wings I saw rival wings sprout, which proved to be only small and 4 stunted. Its heads lay still; even the middle head, which was bigger than the others, lay still between them. As I 5 watched, the eagle rose on its wings to set itself up as ruler over the earth and its inhabitants. I saw it bring into 6 subjection everything under heaven; it met with no opposition at all from any creature on earth. I saw the eagle stand

 7 erect on its talons, and it spoke aloud to its wings: 'Do not all wake at once,'
 8 it said; 'sleep in your places, and each wake up in turn; and the heads are to be 9 kept till the last.' I saw that the 10 sound was not coming from its heads, but from the middle of its body. I 11 counted its rival wings, and saw that there were eight of them.

As I watched, one of the wings on 12 its right side rose and became ruler over the whole earth. After a time, its 13 reign came to an end, and it disappeared from sight completely. Then the next one arose and established its rule, which it held for a long time.
 14 When its reign was coming to an end and it was about to disappear like the 15 first one, a voice could be heard saying to it: 'You have ruled the world
 16 for so long; now listen to my message before your time comes to disappear.
 17 None of your successors will achieve a reign as long as yours, nor even half as 18 long.' Then the third wing arose, ruled the world for a time like its predecessors, and like them disappeared. In the 19 same way all the wings came to power in succession, and in turn disappeared from sight.

As time went on, I saw the wings on 20 the left<sup>u</sup> side also raise themselves up to seize power. Some of them did so, and passed immediately from sight, while others arose but never came to 21 power. At this point I noticed that two 22 of the little wings were, like the twelve, no longer to be seen. Nothing was now 23

<sup>i</sup> the clouds: so some Vss.; Lat. omits.
<sup>u</sup> So one Vs.; Lat. right.

death symbolized Jerusalem's fall. 50: Heavenly Zion continues, and its radiant glory will be seen; see Ezek.40.2; 48.35; Heb.11.10; Rev. 21.10.

11.1–12.51: Vision V. Rome to be destroyed. This strange vision with its bizarre and mysterious details is more apocalyptic in tone than the previous ones.

11.1–12.3a: The mighty eagle and the strong lion. 1: Rising from the sea: see Dan.7.3; Rev.13.1. As viewed from the east, Roman forces came from the Mediterranean. An eagle: the military emblem of Imperial Rome. 2: Spread its wings: establish its dominion. 3: Rival wings probably symbolize rebellious army officers. Being small and stunted, unequal to the task, the rebellion hopelessly failed. 12: The wings and heads (vv. 4, 29) seem to represent successive Roman rulers.

left of the eagle's body except the three motionless heads and six little wings. 24 As I watched, two of the six little wings separated from the rest and took up a place under the head on the right. The other four remained where they were; 25 and I saw them planning to rise up and seize power. One rose, but disappeared 27 immediately; so too did the second, vanishing even more quickly than the 28 first. I saw the last two planning to seize the kingship for themselves. But 29 while they were still plotting, suddenly one of the heads woke from sleep, the one in the middle, the biggest of the 30 three. I saw how it joined with the other two heads, and along with them 31 turned and devoured the two little wings which were planning to seize 32 power. This head got the whole earth into its grasp, establishing an oppressive rule over all its inhabitants and a world-wide kingdom mightier than any 33 of the wings had ruled. But after that I saw the middle head vanish just as 34 suddenly as the wings had done. There were two heads left, and they also seized power over the earth and its 35 inhabitants, but as I watched, the head on the right devoured the head on the left. 36 Then I heard a voice which said to me: 'Look carefully at what you see 37 before you.' I looked, and saw what seemed to be a lion roused from the forest; it roared as it came, and I heard it address the eagle in a human 38 voice. 'Listen to what I tell you', it said. 'The Most High says to you: Are 39 you not the only survivor of the four beasts to which I gave the rule over my world, intending through them to 40-41 bring my ages to their end? You are the fourth beast, and you have conquered all who went before, ruling over the whole world and holding it in the grip of fear and harsh oppression. You 42 have lived<sup>v</sup> long in the world, governing it with deceit and with no regard for truth. You have oppressed the gentle and injured the peaceful, hating the truthful and loving liars; you have destroyed the homes of the prosperous, and razed to the ground the walls of those who had done you no harm. Your insolence is known to the Most 43 High, and your pride to the Mighty One. The Most High has surveyed the 44 periods he has fixed: they are now at an end, and his ages have reached their completion. So you, eagle, must 45 now disappear and be seen no more, you and your terrible great wings, your evil small wings, your cruel heads, your grim talons, and your whole worthless body. Then all the earth will 46 feel relief at its deliverance from your violence, and look forward hopefully to the judgement and mercy of its Creator.<sup>7</sup>

While the lion was still addressing 12 the eagle, I looked and saw the one 2 remaining head disappear. Then the two<sup>w</sup> wings which had gone over to him arose and set themselves up as rulers. Their reign was short and troubled, and when I looked at them 3 they were already vanishing. Then the eagle's entire body burst into flames, and the earth was struck with terror.

So great was my alarm and fear that I awoke, and said to myself: 'See the 4 result of your attempt to discover the ways of the Most High! My mind is 5 weary; I am utterly exhausted. The terrors of this night have completely drained my strength. So I will now 6 pray to the Most High for strength to hold out to the end.' Then I said: 'My 7 Master and Lord, if I have won your favour and stand higher in your approval than most men, if it is true that my prayers have reached your presence, then give me strength; reveal 8 to me, my Lord, the exact interpreta-

<sup>v</sup> You are the fourth . . . lived: so some Vss.; Lat. The fourth beast came and conquered . . . It has lived.
<sup>w</sup> So other Vss.; Lat. corrupt.

35: The head . . . devoured: successful insurrection. 37: A lion: the Messiah; see 12.31-32. 39: The four beasts are those of Dan.7.3 which the present passage recalls (12.11). 43: Your insolence: compare Dan.5.20. 44: The apocalyptic writers see the periods of human life before the completion of the end as fixed like the scenes of a pageant, brought on and removed from the stage of history by God, with no historical preparation, conditioning, or interconnection between them.

12.3b-39: The eagle vision interpreted. 11: The fourth kingdom of Dan.7.7,23 is here, as in

tion of this terrifying vision, and so 9 bring full consolation to my soul. For you have already judged me worthy to be shown the end of the present age.’
 10 He said to me: ‘Here is the inter-11 pretation of your vision. The eagle you saw rising from the sea represents the fourth kingdom in the vision seen by 12 your brother Daniel. But he was not given the interpretation which I am now giving you or have already given 13 you. The days are coming when the earth will be under an empire more 14 terrible than any before. It will be ruled by twelve kings, one after 15 another. The second to come to the throne will have the longest reign of 16 all the twelve. That is the meaning of the twelve wings you saw.
 17 ‘As for the voice which you heard speaking from the middle of the eagle’s body, and not from its heads, this is 18 what it means: After this second king’s reign, great conflicts will arise, which will bring the empire into danger of falling; and yet it will not fall
 then, but will be restored to its original strength.
 19 ‘As for the eight lesser wings which you saw growing from the eagle’s 20 wings, this is what they mean: The empire will come under eight kings whose reigns will be trivial and short-21 lived; two of them will come and go just before the middle of the period,
 four will be kept back until shortly before its end, and two will be left until the end itself.
 22 ‘As for the three heads which you saw sleeping, this is what they mean:
 23 In the last years of the empire, the Most High will bring to the throne three kings, who will restore much of its strength, and rule<sup>x</sup> over the earth 24 and its inhabitants more oppressively than anyone before. They are called the eagle’s heads, because they will 25 complete and bring to a head its long series of wicked deeds. As for the 26 greatest head, which you saw disappear, it signifies one of the kings, who will die in his bed, but in great agony. The 27 two that survived will be destroyed by the sword; one of them will fall by 28 the sword of the other, who will himself fall by the sword in the last days.

‘As for the two little wings that went 29 over to the head on the right side, this 30 is what they mean: They are the ones whom the Most High has reserved until the last days, and their reign, as you saw, was short and troubled.

‘As for the lion which you saw 31 coming from the forest, roused from sleep and roaring, which you heard addressing the eagle, taxing it with its wicked deeds and words, this is the 32 Messiah whom the Most High has kept back until the end. He will address<sup>y</sup> those rulers, taxing them openly with their sins, their crimes, and their defiance. He will bring them alive 33 to judgement; he will convict them and then destroy them. But he will be 34 merciful to those of my people that remain, all who have been kept safe in my land; he will set them free and give them gladness, until the final day of judgement comes, about which I told you at the beginning.

‘That, then, is the vision which you 35 saw, and its meaning. It is the secret of 36 the Most High, which no one except yourself has proved worthy to be told.
 37 What you have seen you must therefore write in a book and deposit it in a hiding-place. You must also disclose 38

<sup>x</sup> who . . . rule: so some Vss.; Lat. and he will restore . . .
 and they will rule . . .
<sup>y</sup> He will address: probable reading; Lat. defective.

rabbinic writings, understood to be the Roman Empire. 13: The apocalyptic writers describe contemporary or past events as days that are coming to show that they had been foretold by the prophets and so were in God’s plan. The objective was to provide consolation in the present trials and confidence in God’s Providence for the future, as well as credibility in the descriptions of the end. Here the seer’s visions are set in the exilic period (1.3; 3.1) even though he is describing events that followed it and continued up to his own day. 14: Twelve kings are twelve emperors, beginning with Julius Caesar. 15: The second: Augustus. 17: See 11.10. 18: The great conflicts seems to allude to the anarchy after Nero’s death in 68 A.D. 19: Eight lesser wings: see 11.3 n. 21: The period: the duration of the empire. 22: The three heads (see 11.1,4,29–35) may symbolize the Flavian emperors, Vespasian and his sons, Titus and Domitian. 31: The lion: see 11.37–12.3. 32: The verse implies the heavenly preexistence of the Messiah; compare Dan.7.13–14. 34: My people that remain are those who survive the messianic woes. See 7.26–28. 37–38: The book is to be put into a hiding place because of its esoteric contents which only the these secrets to those of your people whom you know to be wise enough to understand them and to keep them safe. But stay here yourself for seven more days, to receive whatever revelation the Most High thinks fit to send you.' Then the angel left me.

40 When all the people heard that seven days had passed without my returning to the town, they assembled and came to me. 'What wrong or injury have we done you,' they asked me, 'that you have deserted us and settled here? Out of all the prophets you are the only one left to us. You are like the last cluster in a vineyard, like a lamp in the darkness, or a safe harbour for a ship in a storm. Have we not suffered enough? If you desert us, we had far better have been destroyed in the fire that burnt up Zion. We are no better than those who perished there.' Then they raised a loud lamentation.

46 I replied: 'Take courage, Israel; house of Jacob, lay aside your grief. 47 The Most High bears you in mind, and the Mighty One has not for ever<sup>z</sup> forgotten you. I have not left you, nor abandoned you; I came here to pray for Zion in her distress, and to beg for mercy for your sanctuary that has fallen so low. Go to your homes now, every one of you; and in a few days' time I will come back to you.'

50 So the people returned to the town as I told them, while I remained in the field. I stayed there for seven days in obedience to the angel, eating nothing but what grew in the field, and living on that for the whole of the time.

13 THE SEVEN DAYS PASSED; AND THE NEXT 2 night I had a dream. In my dream, a wind came up out of the sea and set 3 the waves in turmoil. And this wind brought a human figure rising from the depths,<sup>a</sup> and as I watched, this man came flying<sup>b</sup> with the clouds of heaven. Wherever he turned his eyes, everything that they fell on was seized with terror; and wherever the sound of his voice 4 reached, all who heard it melted like wax at the touch of fire.

Next I saw an innumerable host of 5 men gathering from the four winds of heaven to wage war on the man who had risen from the sea. I saw that the 6 man hewed out a vast mountain for himself, and flew up on to it. I tried to 7 see from what quarter or place the mountain had been taken, but I could not. Then I saw that all who had 8 gathered to wage war against the man were filled with fear, and yet they dared to fight against him. When he 9 saw the hordes advancing to attack, he did not so much as lift a finger against them. He had no spear in his hand, no weapon at all; only, as I watched, he 10 poured what seemed like a stream of fire out of his mouth, a breath of flame from his lips, and a storm of sparks from his tongue. All of them 11 combined into one mass—the stream of fire, the breath of flame, and the great storm. It fell on the host advancing to join battle, and burnt up every man of them; suddenly all that enormous multitude had disappeared, leaving nothing but dust and ashes and a reek of smoke. I was dumb-founded at the sight.

After that, I saw the man coming 12 down from the mountain and calling to himself a different company, a peaceful one. He was joined by great 13 numbers of men, some with joy on their faces, others with sorrow. Some came from captivity; some brought wise, i.e. the initiated, can understand and be safe in reading. Hence, the name Apocrypha, lit. "hidden," given to this class of books.

<sup>z</sup> So one Vss.; Lat. in strife.

<sup>a</sup> And . . . depths: so other Vss.; Lat. defective.

<sup>b</sup> So other Vss.; Lat. grew strong.

12.40–51: The seer comforts his people. 40: Seven days: see 9.23. 42: The apocalyptic writer puts himself into the category of the prophets; see 5.17–18 n. A lamp: see 2 Pet.1.19. 50: Compare v. 39 and 9.24–26.

13.1–58: Vision VI. The Messiah's activity.

13.1–20: The man risen from the sea. 3: A human figure: the Messiah, called God's son in v. 32. Compare Dan.7.13. 4: All . . . melted like wax suggests a divine manifestation. See Ps.97.5; Mic.1.4. 6: Hewed out: see Dan.2.34,45. 10: A breath of flame: without weapon or allies the Messiah destroys his enemies supernaturally, i.e. by the words of judgment that come from his mouth: see Isa.11.4; 2 Th.2.8. 13: As an offering: see Isa.66.20; compare Isa.49.22.

others to him as an offering. I woke up in terror, and prayed to the Most High. I said, 'You have revealed these marvels to me, your servant, all the way through; you have judged me worthy to have my prayers answered. Now show me the meaning of this dream also. How terrible, to my thinking, it will be for all who survive to those days! But how much worse for those who do not survive! Those who do not survive will have the sorrow of knowing what is in store in the last days and yet missing it. Those who do survive are to be pitied for the terrible dangers and trials which, as these visions show, they will have to face. But perhaps after all it is better to endure the dangers and reach the goal than to vanish out of the world like a cloud and never see the events of the last days.'

'Yes,' he replied, 'I will explain the meaning of this vision, and tell you all that you ask. As for your question about those who survive, this is the answer: the very person from whom the danger will then come will protect in danger those who have works and fidelity laid up to their credit with the Most High. You may be assured that those who survive are more highly blessed than those who die.'

'This is what the vision means: The man you saw rising from the depths of the sea is he whom the Most High has held in readiness through many ages; he will himself deliver the world he has made, and determine the lot of those who survive. As for the breath, fire, and storm which you saw pouring from the mouth of the man, so that without a spear or any weapon in his hand he destroyed the hordes advancing to wage war against him, this is the meaning: The day is near when the Most High will begin to bring deliverance to those on earth. Then men will all be filled with great alarm; they will plot to make war on one another, city on city, region on region, nation on nation, kingdom on kingdom. When this happens, and all the signs that I have shown you come to pass, then my son will be revealed, whom you saw as a man rising from the sea. On hearing his voice, all the nations will leave their own territories and their separate wars, and unite in a countless host, as you saw in your vision, with a common intent to go and wage war against him. He will take his stand on the summit of Mount Zion, and Zion will come into sight before all men, complete and fully built. This corresponds to the mountain which you saw hewn out, not by the hand of man. Then my son will convict of godless deeds the nations that confront him. This will correspond to the storm you saw. He will taunt them with their evil plottings and the tortures they are soon to endure. This corresponds to the flame. And he will destroy them without effort by means of<sup>c</sup> the law—and that is like the fire.

'Then you saw him collecting a different company, a peaceful one. They are the ten tribes which were taken off into exile in the time of King Hoshea, whom Shalmaneser king of Assyria took prisoner. He deported them beyond the River, and they were taken away into a strange country. But then they resolved to leave the country populated by the Gentiles and go to a distant land never yet inhabited by man, and there at last to be obedient to their laws, which in their own country they had failed to keep. As they passed through the narrow passages of the Euphrates, the Most High performed miracles for them, stopping up the channels of the river until they had crossed over. Their

<sup>c</sup> by means of: so one Vs.; Lat. and.

18: What is in store: see 7.26–[44]; 9.1–12. 19: Compare Mt.24.21–22. 20: The just who endure the dangers of the last days seem to have an advantage over those who died before; compare 1 Th.4.15–18. See also v. 24.

13.21–58: The vision interpreted. 23: The very person is the Messiah, whose coming is presaged by the messianic woes. 26: See 12.32 n. 27: See vv. 9–11. 32: My son will be revealed: see 7.28; compare Mt.24.30. 36: Mount Zion is thus the mountain hewn out (v. 6). Zion: the heavenly Jerusalem; see 7.26 and Rev.21.2–4. 40: The ten tribes: the Northern Kingdom, 2 Kgs.17.3,6. Perhaps an ideal group, including proselytes, is meant. The River: the Euphrates. 44: The Most High performed miracles as in the original entrance into Canaan (Josh.3.14–17). 45: Arzareth:

journey through that region, which is called Arzareth, was long, and took a year and a half. They have lived there ever since, until this final age. Now they are on their way back, and once more the Most High will stop the channels of the river to let them cross.

46 That is the meaning of the peaceful 47 assembly that you saw. With them too
48 are the survivors of your own people,
49 all who are found inside my sacred
50 boundary. So then, when the time
51 comes for him to destroy the nations
52 assembled against him, he will protect 53 his people who are left, and show
54 them many prodigies.'

51 'My lord, my master,' I asked,
'explain to me why the man that I saw rose up out of the depths of the sea.'
52 He replied: 'It is beyond the power of 53 any man to explore the deep sea and 54 discover what is in it; in the same way 55 no one on earth can see my son and 56 his company until the appointed day.
57 Such then is the meaning of your 58 vision. The revelation has been given 59 to you, and to you alone, because you 60 have given up your own affairs, and 61 devoted yourself entirely to mine, and 62 to the study of my law. You have 63 taken wisdom as your guide in every-64 thing, and called understanding your 65 mother. That is why I have given this 66 revelation to you; there is a reward in 67 store for you with the Most High. In 68 three days' time I will speak with you again, and tell you some momentous and wonderful things.'

57 So I went away to the field, giving worship and praise to the Most High for the wonders he performed from 58 time to time and for his providential control of the passing ages and what happens in them. There I remained for three days.

The writing of the sacred books

ON THE THIRD DAY I WAS SITTING 14
under an oak-tree, when a voice came to me from a bush, saying, 'Ezra, Ezra!' 'Here I am, Lord', I answered, 2
and rose to my feet. The voice went on: 3
'I revealed myself in the bush, and spoke to Moses, when my people Israel was in slavery in Egypt, and 4 sent him to lead my people out of Egypt. I brought him up on to Mount Sinai, and kept him with me for many days. I told him of many wonders, 5 showing him the secrets of the ages and the end of time, and instructed him what to make known and what to 6 conceal. So too I now give this order 7 to you: commit to memory the signs I 8 have shown you, the visions you have seen, and the explanations you have been given. You yourself are about to 9 be taken away from the world of men, and thereafter you will remain with my son and with those like you, until the end of time. The world has lost its 10 youth, and time is growing old. For the 11 whole of time is in twelve divisions;
nine<sup>d</sup> divisions and half the tenth have already passed, and only two and a 12 half still remain. Set your house in 13 order, therefore; give warnings to your nation, and comfort to those in need of it; and take your leave of mortal life. Put away your earthly 14 cares, and lay down your human burdens; strip off your weak nature, set aside the anxieties that vex you, 15
and be ready to depart quickly from this life. However great the evils you 16 have witnessed, there are worse to come. As this ageing world grows 17 weaker and weaker, so will evils

d Probable reading; Lat. ten.

shortened transliteration of Heb. for "another land," taken from Deut.29.28. 47: See Isa.11.15-16. 49: His people who are left: righteous Israel enlarged by the return of the ten tribes. 50: Many prodigies were to occur at the outset of the messianic age. See 5.1-13; 6.11-28. 52: His company: probably angels, as in Mt.24.31; 25.31; 2 Th.1.7. 57: The field: Ardat (9.26).

14.1-48: Vision VII. The writing of the sacred books.

14.1-18: God admonishes Ezra to prepare to leave this life. 1: A bush: see Exod.3.4. Ezra is set forth as a second Moses. 4: Many days: forty days (Exod.34.28). 6: What to conceal: see v. 46 n. 8: Signs . . . visions . . . explanations: i.e. the contents of the preceding chapters. 9: To be taken away: to be taken alive out of this world like Enoch and Elijah; see 6.26 n. 10: Compare 5.50-55. 11-12: Nine divisions and half the tenth had passed at the time the seer allegedly was writing, i.e. the reign of Artaxerxes II (404-359 B.C.; see 1.3 n.). What the measure of the divisions was is unknown but the two and a half divisions would have been greatly reduced at 18 increase for its inhabitants. Truth will move farther away, and falsehood come nearer. The eagle that you saw in your vision is already on the wing.

 19 'May I speak<sup>e</sup> in your presence,
 20 Lord?' I replied. 'I am to depart, by your command, after giving warning to those of my people who are now alive. But who will give warning to those born hereafter? The world is shrouded in darkness, and its inhabitants are without light. For your law was destroyed in the fire, and so no one can know about the deeds you have done or intend to do. If I have won your favour, fill me with your holy spirit, so that I may write down the whole story of the world from the very beginning, everything that is contained in your law; then men will have the chance to find the right path, and, if they choose, gain life in the last days.'
 23 'Go,' he replied, 'call the people together, and tell them not to look for you for forty days. Have a large number of writing-tablets ready, and take with you Seraiah and Dibri, Shelemiah, Ethan, and Asiel, five men all trained to write quickly. Then return here, and I will light a lamp of understanding in your mind, which will not go out until you have finished all that you are to write. When your work is complete, some of it you must make public; the rest you must give to wise men to keep secret. Tomorrow at this time you shall begin to write.'
 27 I went as I was ordered and summoned all the people, and said: 'Israel, listen to what I say. Our ancestors lived originally in Egypt as foreigners. They were rescued from that land, and were given the law which offers life. But they disobeyed it, and you have followed their example. Then you were given a land of your own, the land of Zion; but you, like your ancestors, sinned and abandoned the way laid down for you by the Most High. Because he is a just judge he took away<sup>32</sup> from you in due time what he had given. And so you are now here in<sup>33</sup> exile, and your fellow-countrymen are still farther away. If then you will<sup>34</sup> direct your understanding and instruct your minds, you shall be kept safe in life and meet with mercy after you die. For after death will come the judgement;<sup>35</sup> we shall be restored to life, and then the names of the just will be known and the deeds of the godless exposed. From this moment no one<sup>36</sup> must come to talk to me, nor look for me for the next forty days.'

I took with me the five men as I had<sup>37</sup> been told, and we went away to the field, and there we stayed. On the next<sup>38</sup> day I heard a voice calling me, which said: 'Ezra, open your mouth and drink what I give you.' So I opened my<sup>39</sup> mouth, and was handed a cup full of what seemed like water, except that its colour was the colour of fire. I took it<sup>40</sup> and drank, and as soon as I had done so my mind began to pour forth a flood of understanding, and wisdom grew greater and greater within me, for I retained my memory unimpaired. I<sup>41</sup> opened my mouth to speak, and I continued to speak unceasingly. The<sup>42</sup> Most High gave understanding to the five men, who took turns at writing down what was said, using characters<sup>f</sup> which they had not known before. They remained at work through the forty days, writing all day, and taking food only at night. But as for me, I<sup>43</sup> spoke all through the day; even at the time when his book appeared, approximately 100 A.D. See Introduction. 18: Eagle: see ch.11, especially 11.1 n.

<sup>e</sup> May I speak: so other Vss.; Lat. omits.

<sup>f</sup> Probable reading, based on other Vss.; Lat. corrupt.

14.19-26: The inspiration to restore Scriptures is granted. 20: Without light: without God's law (Ps.19.8). 21: The fire: Jerusalem's destruction; see 2 Kgs.25.8-9. 23: Forty days: see v. 1 n. and v. 4 n. 26: Some . . . make public: publish the restored Heb. Scriptures (v. 45). The rest . . . keep secret: see v. 46. As Moses, according to tradition, handed down an oral law to the sages, so Ezra is to preserve a number of secret (apocryphal) books for the future. See 12.37-38 n.

14.27-36: Ezra's last admonition to the people. 33: Your fellow-countrymen: perhaps the ten tribes. See 13.40 n., 41. 36: See v. 23.

14.37-48: Ezra rewrites the holy books. 39: A cup of inspiration is given to Ezra enabling him to restore perfectly the Scriptures; compare Ezek.3.1-3; Rev.10.9-11. 42: Until the Exile, the Heb. language was written in the Phoenician script. Between the sixth and fourth centuries B.C., the Aram. script was adopted and from it developed the square characters still used in

44 night I was not silent. In the forty days, 45 ninety-four<sup>g</sup> books were written. At the end of the forty days the Most High spoke to me. 'Make public the books you wrote first,' he said, 'to be 46 read by good and bad alike. But the last seventy books are to be kept back,
 and given to none but the wise among 47 your people. They contain a stream of understanding, a fountain of wisdom, 48 a flood of knowledge.' And I did so.

Prophecies of doom

15 PROCLAIM TO MY PEOPLE THE WORDS of prophecy which I give you to 2 speak, says the Lord; and have them written down, because they are trust-3 worthy and true. Have no fear of plots against you, and do not be troubled by the unbelief of those who 4 oppose you. For everyone who does not believe will die because of his unbelief.<sup>h</sup> 5 Beware, says the Lord, I am letting loose terrible evils on the world,
 sword and famine, death and destruc-6 tion, because wickedness has spread over the whole earth and there is no room for further deeds of violence.
 7,8 Therefore the Lord says, I will not keep silence about their godless sins; I will not tolerate their wicked deeds.
 See how the blood of innocent victims cries to me for vengeance, and the 9 souls of the just never cease to plead with me! I will most surely avenge them, says the Lord, and will hear the plea of all the innocent blood that has 10 been shed. My people are being led to the slaughter like sheep. I will no longer allow them to remain in Egypt,

 but will use all my power to rescue 11
 them; I will strike the Egyptians with plagues, as I did before, and destroy their whole land. How Egypt will 12 mourn, shaken to its very foundations, when it is scourged and chastised by the Lord! How the tillers of the soil 13 will mourn, when the seed fails to grow, and when their trees are devastated by blight and hail and terrible storm!<sup>i</sup> Alas for the world and its 14 inhabitants! The sword that will destroy 15 them is not far away. Nation will draw sword against nation and go to war.
 Stable government will be at an end; 16
 one faction will prevail over another, caring nothing in their day of power for king or leading man of rank. A 17 man may want to visit a city, but will not be able to do so; for ambition and 18 rivalry will have reduced cities to chaos, destroyed houses, and filled men with panic. A man will violently assault 19
 his neighbour's house and plunder
 his goods; no pity will restrain him, when he is in the grip of famine and grinding misery.

See how I summon before me all the 20 kings of the earth, says God, from sunrise and south wind, from east and south,<sup>j</sup> to turn back and repay what they have been given. I will do to them 21
 as they are doing to my chosen people even to this day; I will pay them back in their own coin.

These are the words of the Lord 22
 God: I will show sinners no pity; the sword will not spare those murderers

<sup>g</sup> So other Vss.; Lat. corrupt.

<sup>h</sup> Or in his unbelief.

<sup>i</sup> Probable meaning; Lat. obscure.

<sup>j</sup> south: probable reading; Lat. Lebanon.

writing Heb. To give the new script a sacred quality it is presented as revealed by God. 44-45: The ninety-four books comprise the twenty-four books of the present Heb. canon, those written first to be read by good and bad. These twenty-four equal the thirty-nine of the Christian canon where the double books of Sam., Kgs., and Chr., as well as Ezra-Neh., are counted separately and the minor prophets are counted as twelve instead of as one book as in the Hebrew. 46: The last seventy books include apocryphal and apocalyptic works such as the present one, to which the writer here ascribes great value as well as the authority of Moses (see v. 6) and Ezra. They are for the wise, i.e. the initiated.

15.1-16.78: Prophecies of doom. This section is considered a Christian appendix.

15.1-27: The coming vengeance. 3: Have no fear: compare Jer.1.17; Ezek.2.6. Other expressions in vv. 1-4 also imitate the "calls" of OT prophets. 8-9: The Lord is considered the avenger of blood in the case of the innocent; compare Gen.4.10-11; Rev.6.9-10; 19.2. 10: See Ps.44.22. The chief wickedness to be avenged is the persecution of God's people. 11: I will strike the Egyptians may allude to the famine which almost decimated the population of Alexandria in Gallienus' reign (260-268 A.D.). As I did before alludes to the ten plagues (Exod.7.14-11.10; 12.28-36). 15: Nation . . . against nation: compare Mt.24.7; Mk.13.8.

who stain the ground with innocent 23 blood. The Lord's anger has overflowed in fire to scorch the earth to its foundations and consume sinners like 24 burning straw! Alas for sinners who flout my commands! says the Lord; I 25 will show them no mercy. Away from me, you rebels! Do not bring your 26 pollution near my holiness. The Lord well knows all who sin against him, and has consigned them to death and 27 destruction. Already disaster has fallen upon the world, and you will never escape it; God will refuse to rescue you, because you have sinned against him.

How terrible the sight of what is 28 coming from the east! Hordes of 29 dragons from Arabia will sally forth with countless chariots, and from the first day of their advance their hissing will spread across the land, to fill all who hear them with fear and consterna-30 tion. The Carmanians, mad with rage, will rush like wild boars out of the forest, advancing in full force to join battle with them, and will devastate whole tracts of Assyria with their 31 tusks. But then the dragons will summon up their native fury, and will prove the stronger. They will rally and join forces, and fall on them with 32 overwhelming might until they are routed, until their power is silenced,
 and every one of them turns to flight.
 33 Then their way will be blocked by a lurking enemy from Assyria, who will destroy one of them. Fear and panic will spread in their army, and wavering
 among their kings.

See the clouds stretching from east 34 and north to south! Their appearance is hideous, full of fury and tempest.
 35 They will clash together, they will pour over the land a vast storm;<sup>k</sup> blood, shed by the sword, will reach as high 36 as a horse's belly, a man's thigh, or a 37 camel's hock. Terror and trembling will cover the earth; all who see the raging fury will shudder and be stricken with panic. Then vast storm-38 clouds will approach from north and south, and others from the west. But 39 the winds from the east will be stronger still, and will hold in check the raging cloud and its leader; and the storm<sup>k</sup> which was bent on destruction will be fiercely driven back to the south and west by the winds from the east. Huge 40 mighty clouds, full of fury, will mount up and ravage the whole land and its inhabitants; a terrible storm<sup>k</sup> will sweep over the great and the powerful, with fire and hail and flying 41 swords; and a deluge of water will flood all the fields and rivers. They 42 will flatten to the ground cities and walls, mountains and hills, trees in the woods and crops in the fields. They 43 will advance all the way to Babylon, and blot it out. When they reach it, 44 they will surround it, and let loose a storm<sup>k</sup> in all its fury. The dust and smoke will reach the sky, and all her neighbours will mourn for Babylon.

 Any of her survivors will be enslaved
 45 by her destroyers.

And you, Asia, who have shared the 46 beauty and the splendour of Babylon, alas for you, poor wretch! Like her 47 you have dressed up your daughters as whores, to attract and catch your lovers who have always lusted for you.
 You have copied all the schemes and 48 practices of that vile harlot. Therefore God says, I will bring upon you 49 terrible evils: widowhood and poverty, famine, sword, and plague, bringing ruin to your homes, bringing violence and death. Your strength and splen-50 dour will wither like a flower, when that scorching heat bears down upon
 you. Then you will be a poor weak 51 woman, bruised, beaten, and wounded, unable to receive your wealthy lovers any more. Should I be so fierce with 52 you, says the Lord, if you had not 53

<sup>k</sup> storm: probable meaning: Lat. obscure.

15.28-63: Syria, Rome threatened. After a general announcement of doom, the text speaks of warfare against Assyria, i.e. the Roman province of Syria (v. 30). Again events of the third century A.D. seem reflected (see v. 11 n.), especially the attack of the Persian King Shapur I (241-273 A.D.) against Syria. 29: Dragons from Arabia are apparently the armies of the Arabs of Palmyra. 30: The Carmanians are the Sassanid Persians, Carmania (Kerman) being a Persian province. 43: Babylon: Rome, as in Rev.18.10. 46: Asia: perhaps the Roman province of Asia, namely, the western end of Asia Minor, now Turkey. 48: That vile harlot: see Rev.14.8; 17.4-5. 49: See Rev.18.7-8.

- killed my chosen ones continually, gloating over the blows you struck them, and hurling your drunken taunts at their corpses?
- 54 Paint your face; make yourself 55 beautiful! The harlot's pay shall be yours; you will get what you have 56 earned. What you do to my chosen people, God will do to you, says the Lord; he will consign you to a terrible 57 fate. Your children will die of hunger;
you will fall by the sword, your cities
will be blotted out, and all your people 58 will fall on the field of battle. Those who are up on the mountains will be dying of hunger, and their hunger and thirst will force them to gnaw their own flesh and drink their own blood.
59 You will be foremost in misery, and 60 still there will be more to come. As the victors go past on their way home from the sack of Babylon, they will smash your peaceful city, destroy a great part of your territory, and bring much of your splendour to an end.
61 They will destroy you—you will be 62 stubble, and they the fire. They will completely devour you and your cities, your land and your mountains, and will burn all your forests and your 63 fruit-trees. They will make your children prisoners and plunder your property; and not a trace will be left of your splendid beauty.
- 16 Alas for you, Babylon and Asia!
2 Alas for you, Egypt and Syria! Put on sackcloth and hair-shirt, and raise a howl of lamentation for your sons;
3 your doom is close at hand. The sword is let loose against you, and who 4 will turn it aside? Fire is let loose upon you, and who will put it out?
5 Calamities have been let loose against you, and who is there to stop them?
6 Can any man stop a hungry lion in a forest, or put out a fire among the stubble once it has begun to blaze?
7 Can any man stop an arrow shot by a 8 strong archer? When the Lord God sends calamities, who can stop them?
- When his anger overflows in fire, who 9 can put it out? When the lightning 10 flashes, who will not tremble? When it thunders, who will not shake with dread? When it is the Lord who utters 11 his threats, is there any man who will not be crushed to the ground at his approach? The earth is shaken to its 12 very foundations, and the sea is churned up from its depths; the waves and all the fish with them are in turmoil before the presence of the Lord and the majesty of his strength.
For strong is his arm which bends the 13
bow, and sharp the arrows which he shoots; once they are on their way,
they will not stop before they reach the ends of the earth. Calamities are 14
let loose, and will not turn back before they strike the earth. The fire is alight 15 and will not be put out until it has burnt up earth's foundations. An 16 arrow shot by a powerful archer does not turn back; no more will the calamities be recalled which are let loose against the earth.
- Alas, alas for me! Who will rescue 17 me on that day? When troubles come, 18 many will groan; when famine strikes,
many will die; when wars break out,
empires will tremble; when the calamities
come, all will be filled with terror.
What will men do then, in the face of calamity? Famine and plague, suffering 19 and hardship, are scourges sent to teach men better ways. But even so they 20 will not abandon their crimes, nor keep in mind their scourging. A time 21 will come when food grows cheap, so cheap that they will imagine they have been sent peace and prosperity. But at that very moment the earth will become a hotbed of disasters—sword, famine, and anarchy. Most of its inhabitants 22 will die in the famine; and those who survive the famine will be destroyed by the sword. The dead will be tossed out 23 like dung, and there will be no one to offer any comfort. For the earth will be left empty, and its cities a ruin. None 24

16.1-34: Various powers denounced. Chs. 15 and 16 emulate the oracles against foreign nations by OT prophets such as Isaiah and Jeremiah. 1: Babylon: Rome, as in 15.43. Asia: see 15.46 n. Egypt: see 15.11-19. 2: Sackcloth was a sign of mourning and wearing a hairshirt next to the body a way of doing penance. 5: A profusion of biblical phrases and stock apocalyptic ideas comprises the vague calamities here enumerated. 15: See 2 Pet.3.10 and Tfn. g there. 19: Scourges sent to teach men: compare Heb.12.5-11.

will be left to till the ground and sow 25 it. The trees will bear their fruits, but 26 who will pick them? The grapes will ripen, but who will tread them? There 27 will be vast desolation everywhere. A man will long to see a human face or 28 hear a human voice. For out of a whole city, only ten will survive; in the country-side, only two will be left, hiding in the forest or in holes in the 29 rocks. Just as in an olive-grove three or four olives might be left on each 30 tree, or as a few grapes in a vineyard might be overlooked by the sharp-eyed 31 pickers, so also in those days three or four will be overlooked by those who 32 search the houses to kill. The earth will be left a desert, and the fields will be overrun with briars; thorns will grow over all the roads and paths,
 because there will be no sheep to tread 33 them. Girls will live in mourning with none to marry them, women will mourn because they have no husbands, their daughters will mourn because 34 they have no one to support them. The young men who should have married them will be killed in the war, and the husbands wiped out by the famine.

35 BUT LISTEN TO ME, YOU WHO ARE THE Lord's servants, and take my words to 36 heart. This is the word of the Lord.
 Receive it, and do not disbelieve what 37 he says. Calamities are here, close at 38 hand, and will not delay. When a pregnant woman is in the ninth month, and the moment of her child's birth is drawing near, there will be two or three hours in which her womb will suffer pangs of agony, and then the child will come from the womb without 39 a moment's delay; in the same way calamities will come on the earth
 without delay, and the world will groan
 under the pangs that grip it.

40 Listen to my words, my people; get ready for battle, and when the calamities surround you, be as though 41 you were strangers on earth. The seller must expect to have to run for his life, the buyer to lose what he buys;

 the merchant must expect to make no profit, the builder never to live in the 42 house he builds. The sower must not expect to reap, nor the pruner to gather 43 his grapes. Those who marry must expect no children; the unmarried must think of themselves as widowed. For 45 all labour is labour in vain. Their 46 fruits will be gathered by foreigners, who will plunder their goods, pull down their houses, and take their children captive. If they have children, they will have been bred only for captivity and famine; any who make 47 money do so only to have it plundered.
 The more care they lavish on their cities, houses, and property, and on their own persons, the fiercer will be 48 my indignation against their sins, says
 the Lord. Like the indignation of a 49 virtuous woman towards a prostitute,
 so will be the indignation of justice 50 towards wickedness with all her finery;
 she will accuse her to her face, when the champion arrives to expose all sin upon earth. Do not imitate wickedness, 51 therefore, and her actions. For in a very 52 short time she will be swept from the earth, and the reign of justice over us will begin.

The sinner must not deny that he has sinned; he will only bring burning coals on to his own head if he says, 'I have committed no sin against the majesty of God.' For the Lord knows all that men do; he knows their plans, their schemes, and their inmost thoughts.
 He said, 'Let the earth be made', and it was made; and 'Let the heavens be made', and they were made. It was by 56 the Lord's word that the stars were fixed in their places; the number of the stars is known to him. He looks 57 into the depths with their treasures; he has measured the sea and everything it contains. By his word he confined the sea within the bounds of the waters:
 58 and above the water he suspended the

16.35-52: God's people warned of the coming disasters. 38: A pregnant woman: compare 4.40. Pangs of agony: calamities, as "birthpangs of the Messiah," presage the end of the present order; compare Jn.16.21. 40-45: In the calamities of the end, all stable economic and family life will cease so that labour to make it secure will be in vain; compare 1 Cor.7.29-31. 51-52: Do not imitate wickedness: compare 2 Pet.3.11-13.

16.53-67: Sin cannot be hidden from God. 55-60: See Gen.1.6-10.

59 land. He spread out the sky like a vault, and made it secure upon the 60 waters. He provided springs in the desert, and pools on the mountaintops as the source of rivers flowing 61 down to water the earth. He created man, and placed a heart in the middle of his body; he gave him spirit, life, 62 and understanding, the very breath of Almighty God who created the whole world and searches out secret things in 63 secret places. He knows well your plans and all your inward thoughts. Alas for 64 sinners who try to hide their sins! The Lord will scrutinize all their deeds; he 65 will call you all to account. You will be covered with confusion, when your sins are brought into the open, and your wicked deeds stand up to accuse 66 you on that day. What can you do?
 How can you hide your sins from God 67 and his angels? God is your judge:
 fear him! Abandon your sins, and have done with your wicked deeds for ever!
 Then God will set you free from all distress.

68 Fierce flames are being kindled to burn you. A great horde will descend on you; they will seize some of you and make you eat pagan sacrifices.

Those who give in to them will be 69 derided, taunted, and trampled on. In 70 place after place<sup>1</sup> and in all the neighbourhood there will be a violent attack on those who fear the Lord. Their 71 enemies will be like madmen, plundering and destroying without mercy all who still fear the Lord. They will 72 destroy and plunder their property,
 and throw them out of their homes.
 Then it will be seen that my chosen 73 people have stood the test like gold in the assayer's fire.

Listen, you whom I have chosen, 74
 says the Lord; the days of harsh suffering are close at hand, but I will rescue you from them. Away with your 75 fears and doubts! For God is your leader. You who follow my command- 76
 ments and instructions, says the Lord God, must not let your sins weigh you down, nor your wicked deeds get the 77 better of you. Alas for those who are entangled in their sins, and overrun with their wicked deeds! They are like a field overrun by bushes, with brambles across the path and no way 78 through, completely shut off and doomed to destruction by fire.

<sup>1</sup> In place after place: possible meaning; Lat. obscure.

---

16.68–78: God's persecuted people will be delivered. 68: Fierce flames: possibly the passage alludes to persecution of the Christians by the emperor Decius about 250 A.D.

TOBIT

This is the story of a pious Jew in exile who, after many misfortunes and trying events, finally sees the victory of God's Providence in a happy family reunion and a peaceful end.

Apart from the fascination of the tale itself, the book reflects aspects of Jewish piety in the period of history just prior to the birth of Christianity. The account is presented as history and as having taken place in Nineveh in the eighth pre-Christian century. The many discrepancies with known facts of history suggest that the author uses Nineveh as a literary device, intending the blind Tobit to represent collective Israel who, in exile, is sorely tempted to lose faith in divine providence. The Israelites are admonished to remain faithful to the Torah so that they too may "see" at the end how God works out his designs in the ambiguities of history. The story belongs, therefore, to the category of Wisdom literature.

The author of Tobit is unknown. The story seems to be very old; differing versions have survived. This version was probably written about the second century B.C. in Hebrew or Aramaic.

The troubles of Tobit

1 THIS IS THE STORY OF TOBIT, SON OF Tobiel, son of Hananiel, son of Aduel, son of Gabael, son of Raphael, son of Raguel, of the family
2 of Asiel, of the tribe of Naphtali. He was taken captive in the time of Shalmaneser<sup>a</sup> king of Assyria, from Thisbe which is south of Kedesh
Naphtali in Upper Galilee above
Hazor, behind the road to the west,
north of Peor.

3 I, TOBIT, MADE TRUTH AND RIGHTEOUS- ness my lifelong guide; I did many acts of charity for my kinsmen, those of my nation who had gone into captivity 4 with me at Nineveh in Assyria. When I was quite young in my own country, Israel, the whole tribe of Naphtali my ancestor broke away from the dynasty of David,<sup>b</sup> and from Jerusalem, the city chosen out of all the tribes of Israel as the one place of sacrifice. It was there that God's dwelling-place, the temple, had been consecrated, built to last for 5 all generations. All my kinsmen, the whole house of Naphtali my ancestor, sacrificed on the mountains of Galilee to the calf which Jeroboam, king of 6 Israel, had made in Dan; at the festivals

I was the only one to make the frequent journey to Jerusalem prescribed for all Israel as an eternal commandment. I used to hurry off to Jerusalem with the firstfruits of crops and herds, the tithes of the cattle, and the first shearings of the sheep; and I gave them to the priests of Aaron's line for the altar, and the 7 tithe of wine, corn, olive oil, pomegranates and other fruits to the Levites ministering in Jerusalem. The second tithe for the six years I converted into money, and I went and distributed it 8 in Jerusalem year by year among the orphans and widows, and the converts
who had attached themselves to Israel.
Every third year when I brought it and gave it to them, we held a feast according to the rule laid down in the law of Moses and the instructions given by Deborah the mother of Hananiel our grandfather; for my father had died leaving me an orphan.

When I came of age I took a wife 9
from our kindred, and had a son by her whom I called Tobias. After the 10 deportation to Assyria when I was taken captive and came to Nineveh, everyone of my kindred and nation ate gentile food; but I myself scrupulously 11 avoided doing so. Since I was whole-12

<sup>a</sup> Gk. Enemessaros.

<sup>b</sup> Gk. adds my ancestor.

1.1-3.17: Tobit's tale of his misfortunes. His zealous efforts to live the Law earn him the persecution of the pagans and the jeers of the other Jews.

1.1-2: Introduction. 1: Tobit: perhaps an abbreviated form of the Heb. Tobiah (Gk. Tobias, v. 9), meaning "the LORD is good." 2: The tribe of Naphtali was deported to Assyria, not by Shalmaneser but by his predecessor, Tiglath-pileser III (745-727 B.C.); see 2 Kgs.15.29. Thisbe is located west-southwest of Lake Huleh in northern Palestine.

1.3-22: Tobit's virtuous life in exile. 3: Ninveh: capital of Assyria. 4: The secession of the northern tribes from the dynasty of David (1 Kgs. ch. 12) took place about 922 B.C., 150 years before Tobit was born 5: Mountains . . . calf: see 1 Kgs.12.28-31. 6-8: Firstfruits . . . tithes: an idealized picture of Jewish piety; see Num.18.12-13; Deut.18.3-4. 10: Gentile food: for-

- 13 heartedly mindful of my God, the Most High endowed me with a presence which won me the favour of Shalmaneser, and I became his buyer of supplies. As long as he lived I used to travel to Media and buy for him there. I deposited bags of money to the value of ten talents of silver with my kinsman Gabael son of Gabri in Media. When Shalmaneser died and was succeeded by his son Sennacherib, the roads to Media passed out of Assyrian control and I could no longer make the journey.
- 16 In the time of Shalmaneser, I did many acts of charity for my fellow-countrymen: I shared my food with the hungry and provided clothes for the naked. If I saw the dead body of any man of my race lying outside the wall of Nineveh, I buried it. I buried all those who fell victim to Sennacherib after his flight from Judaea, when the King of heaven executed judgement on him for all his blasphemies, and in his rage he killed many of the Israelites. I stole their bodies away and buried them, and Sennacherib looked for them but could not find them. One of the Ninevites informed the king that I was giving burial to his victims; so I went into hiding. When I learnt that the king knew about me and that I was wanted for execution, I took fright and ran away. All my property was seized and put into the royal treasury; I was left with nothing but Anna my wife and my son Tobias. However, less than forty days afterwards, the king was murdered by two of his sons. They took refuge in the mountains of Ararat, and his son Esarhaddon succeeded him. He appointed Ahikar son of my brother Anael to supervise all the finances of his kingdom; he had control of the entire administration. Then Ahikar interceded on my behalf and I came back to Nineveh. For he had been chief cupbearer, keeper of the privy seal, comptroller, and treasurer when Sennacherib was king of Assyria; and Esarhaddon renewed the appointments. Ahikar was my nephew and so one of my kinsmen.
- DURING THE REIGN OF ESARHADDON, I returned to my house, and my wife Anna and my son Tobias were restored to me. At our festival of Pentecost, that is the Feast of Weeks, a good dinner was prepared for me and I sat down to eat. The table was laid and a lavish meal was put before me. I said to my son Tobias: 'Go, my boy, and if you can find any poor man of our captive people in Nineveh who is wholeheartedly mindful of God, bring him and he shall share my dinner. I will wait for you until you return.' Tobias went to look for a poor man of our people, but he came back and said, 'Father!' 'Yes, my son?' I replied. He answered, 'Father, one of our nation has been murdered and his body is lying in the market-place. He was strangled only a moment ago.' I jumped up and left my dinner untasted. I took the body from the square and put it in one of the out-buildings until sunset when I could bury it; then I went home, duly bathed myself, and ate my food in sorrow. I recalled the saying of the bidden by the Law as unclean; see Deut.14.3–21. 13: Shalmaneser V: the successor of Tiglath-pileser III in 727 B.C. 14: Ten talents of silver would equal about $16,000. 15: Shalmaneser V was followed by Sargon II (722–705 B.C.) and then only by Sennacherib (705–681 B.C.). Such historical inaccuracies suggest that the author intends, not history, but a story illustrative of Wisdom. 17: A dead body left unburied was considered a curse, a punishment for an evil life, that somehow affected the peace of the deceased. See 2 Kgs.9.10; Jer.8.2; Ecclus.44.14. 18: God executed judgement on Sennacherib at the siege of Jerusalem; a plague apparently struck his army, leaving many dead and forcing an unexpected retreat. See 2 Kgs.19.35–36; Isa.37.36–37. 21: Two of his sons: see 2 Kgs.19.37. Ahikar, the hero of a popular ancient legend, was a wise and wealthy chancellor under several Assyrian kings. He raised and educated a nephew, Nadab, who betrayed him. Eventually he was vindicated and the nephew was punished. Perhaps the author brings Ahikar into the story of Tobit because they were both tested by misfortune and finally restored to a happy state. See also 2.10; 11.18; and 14.10, where their tribulations are further recorded.

2.1–14: Tobit's misfortunes. 1: The Jewish feast of Pentecost (Gr. "fifty [days]") was observed seven weeks after Passover (Lev.23.15–21) at the time of the grain harvest. 5: Tobit bathed himself because contact with a corpse made him ritually unclean and unfit for public worship prophet Amos in the passage about Bethel:

'Your feasts shall be turned into mourning,
and all your songs<sup>c</sup> into lamentation',

7 and I wept. After sunset I went and 8 dug a grave and buried the body. The neighbours jeered at me and said: 'Is he no longer afraid? He ran away last time, when they were hunting for him to put him to death for this very offence; and here he is burying the 9 dead again!' That night I bathed myself and went into my courtyard.
I lay down to sleep by the courtyard wall, leaving my face uncovered be-10 cause of the heat. I did not know that there were sparrows in the wall above
me; and their droppings fell, still warm, right into my eyes and produced white patches. I went to the doctors to be cured, but the more they treated me with their ointments, the more my eyes were blinded by the white patches, until I lost my sight. For four years I was blind. All my kinsmen grieved for me, and Ahikar looked after me for two years until he moved to Elymais.

11 During that time my wife Anna
used to earn money by women's work.
12 When she took what she had done to her employers they would pay her wages. One day, the seventh of Dystrus, when she had cut off the piece she had woven and delivered it, the owners not only paid her in full, but also gave her a kid from their herd of goats to take 13 home. When my wife came in to me the kid began to bleat. I called out to her:
'Where does that kid come from? I hope it was not stolen? Give it back to its owners; we have no right to eat 14 anything stolen.' She assured me: 'It was given me as a present, over and above my wages.' I did not believe her and insisted that she should give it back to its owners, and I blushed

with shame for what she had done.
She retorted: 'So much for all your good works and acts of charity! Now we can see what you are!'

In deep distress I groaned and wept, 3 and as I groaned I prayed: 'Thou art 2
just, O Lord, and all thy acts are just;
in all thy ways thou art merciful and true; thou art judge of the world.
Remember me now, Lord, and look 3 upon me. Do not punish me for the sins and errors which I and my fathers have committed. We have sinned 4 against thee and disobeyed thy commandments, and thou hast given us up to plunder, captivity, and death,
until we have become a byword, a proverb, and a taunt to all the nations
among whom thou hast scattered us.
I acknowledge the justice of thy many 5 judgements, the due penalty for my sins, for we have not obeyed thy commandments and have not lived in loyal obedience before thee. And now deal 6 with me at thy pleasure, and command that my life be taken away, so that I may be removed from the face of the earth and turned to earth. I should be better dead than alive, for I have had to hear undeserved re-proaches and am in deep grief. Lord, command that I may be released from this misery; let me go to my long home;
do not turn thy face from me, O Lord.
It is better for me to die than to live in such misery and to hear such reproaches.'

On that same day it happened that 7
Sarah, the daughter of Raguel who lived at Ecbatana in Media, also had to listen to reproaches from one of her father's maidservants, because she had 8
been given in marriage to seven husbands, and before the marriage could be regularly consummated they had all been killed by the wicked demon Asmodaëus. The maidservant said to her: 'It is you who kill your husbands!'

<sup>c</sup> So one Vs. (compare Amos 8. 10); Gk. ways.

(Num.19.11-13). 10: Elymais is Elam, a region north of the Tigris on the Persian Gulf. 12: Dystrus: the fifth month of the Macedonian (and Hellenistic) calendar (about February). 14: She retorted, much as Job's wife did (Job 2.9), that Tobit suffered either because he was punished for secret sins or because virtue did not pay.

3.1-6: Tobit's prayer. 6: Long home: eternal abode. Do not turn thy face: do not remove your favor.

3.7-10: Sarah's plight. 7: Ecbatana: the capital of Media, present-day Iran. 8: Asmodaëus

You have already been given in marriage to seven, and you have not borne the name of any one of them.

9 Why punish us because they are dead? Go and join your husbands! I hope we never see son or daughter of yours!

10 She was sad at heart that day, and went in tears up to the attic in her father's house meaning to hang herself. But she had second thoughts and said to herself: 'Perhaps they will reproach my father and say to him, "You had one dear daughter and she hanged herself because of her troubles", and so I shall bring my aged father in sorrow to the grave. No, I will not hang myself; it would be better to beg the Lord to let me die and not live on to hear such reproaches.' Then at once she spread out her hands towards the window in prayer and said: 'Praise to thee, merciful God, praise to thy name for ever; let all thy works praise thee for evermore. Now I lift up my eyes and look to thee. Command me to be removed from this earth so that I may no longer hear such reproaches. Thou knowest, Lord, that I am a virgin, guiltless of intercourse with any man; I have not disgraced my name nor my father's name in the land of my exile. I am my father's only child; he has no other to be his heir, nor has he any near kinsman or relative who might marry me, and for whom I should stay alive. Already seven husbands of mine have died. What have I to live for any longer? If it is not thy will, O Lord, to let me die, listen now to my complaint.'

16 At that very time the prayers of both of them were heard in the glorious presence of God. His angel Raphael 17 was sent to cure them both of their troubles: Tobit, by removing the white patches from his eyes so that he might see God's light again, and Sarah daughter of Raguel by giving her in marriage to Tobias son of Tobit and by setting her free from the wicked demon Asmodeus; for it was the destiny of Tobias and not of any other suitor to possess her. At the moment when Tobit went back from the courtyard into his house, Sarah daughter of Raguel came down from the attic.

The adventures of Tobias

THAT SAME DAY TOBIT REMEMBERED THE 4 silver that he had deposited with Gabael at Rages in Media, and he said to himself, 'I have asked for death; before I die ought I not to send for my son Tobias and explain to him about this money?' So he sent for Tobias, and 3 when he came he said to him: 'Give me decent burial. Show proper respect to your mother, and do not leave her in the lurch as long as she lives; do what will please her, and never grieve her heart in any way. Remember, my son, 4 all the dangers she faced for your sake while you were in her womb. When she dies, bury her beside me in the same grave. And remember the Lord every 5 day of your life. Never deliberately do what is wrong or break his commandments. As long as you live do what is right. Do not fall into evil ways; for an 6 honest life leads to prosperity. To all who keep the law, the Lord gives good 19 means "destroyer" and the name occurs only here in the Bible. 10: Sarah's concern lest she bring her aged father in sorrow to the grave reflects a theme repeatedly expressed in the Joseph novelette about the aged Jacob, e.g. in Gen.37.35; 42.38; 44.29. Premature death was deemed a curse.

3.11-15: Sarah's prayer. 15: This concern about a near kinsman reflects the clan law about marriage within the tribal group, a law with special significance in exile, where the maintenance of group identity was of great concern, lest the people disappear. Sarah here seems to be unaware of the existence of Tobias.

3.16-17: God hears the prayers of Tobit and Sarah. 16: A phrase like at that very time suggests that the author is more interested in dramatic coincidence than historical probability. 17: Raphael is a Heb. name meaning "God heals." An old tradition held that an angel was usually limited to a single errand. Here Raphael cures both at once.

4.1-9.6: Tobit sends for his son. Under the inspiration of the angel Raphael, Tobias himself is saved from danger and brings healing to others. His sage advice (4.3-20) reflects the morals of Judaism of the intertestamental age.

4.1-5.3: Tobias is sent to retrieve Tobit's money. 1: Rages was a city in Media situated near modern Teheran. 3: Decent burial: see 1.17 n. 5-19: Wise counseling as in Prov. and Ecclus.

guidance, and as he chooses he humbles men to the grave below.<sup>d</sup> Now, my son, remember these commands; let them never be effaced from your mind.

20 'Well now, my boy, let me tell you that I have ten talents of silver on deposit with Gabael son of Gabri, at 21 Rages in Media. Do not be anxious because we have become poor; there is great wealth waiting for you, if only you fear God and avoid all wickedness and do what is good in the sight of the Lord your God.'

5 Then Tobias said: 'I will do all that
2 you have told me, father. But how shall I be able to get this money from him, since he does not know me and I do not know him? What proof of identity shall I give him to make him believe me and give me this money? Also I do not know the roads to Media or how to get there.'

3 To this Tobit replied: 'He gave me his note of hand, and I gave him mine, which I divided in two. We took one part each, and I put mine with the money. It is twenty years since I made this deposit. And now, my boy, find someone reliable to go with you, and we will pay him up to the time of your return; then go and recover the money from Gabael.'

4 Tobias went out to find a man who knew the way and would accompany him to Media, and found himself face
5 to face with the angel Raphael. Not knowing he was an angel of God, he questioned him: 'Where do you come from, young man?' 'I am an Israelite,' he replied, 'one of your fellow-countrymen, and I have come here to find work.' Tobias asked, 'Do you know
6 the road to Media?' 'Yes,' he said, 'I have often been there; I am familiar with all the routes and know them well. I have often travelled into Media and used to lodge with Gabael our fellow-countryman who lives there in Rages.<sup>e</sup> It is two full days' journey from Ec-batana to Rages; for Rages is in the hills, and Ecbatana is in the middle of the plain.' Tobias said: 'Wait for me, 7 young man, while I go in and tell my father. I need you to go with me and will pay you your wages.' 'All right, I will 8 wait,' he said; 'only do not be too long.'

Tobias went in and told his father. 'I have found a fellow-Israelite to accompany me', he said. His father replied, 'Call the man in, my son. I want to find out his family and tribe and make sure that he will be a trustworthy companion for you.'

Tobias went out and called him: 9 'Young man, my father is asking for you.' He went in, and Tobit greeted him first. To Raphael's reply, 'May all

d To all . . . below: in place of these words some witnesses have To all who keep the law (7) give alms from what you possess and never give with a grudging eye. Do not turn your face away from any poor man, and God will not turn away his face from you. (8) Let your almsgiving match your means. If you have little, do not be ashamed to give the little you can afford; (9) you will be laying up a sound insurance against the day of adversity. (10) Almsgiving saves the giver from death and keeps him from going down into darkness. (11) All who give alms are making an offering acceptable to the Most High.

(12) 'Beware, my son, of fornication; above all choose your wife from the race of your ancestors. Do not take a foreign wife who is not of your father's tribe, because we are descendants of the prophets. Remember, my son, that Noah, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, our ancestors, back to the earliest days, all chose wives from their kindred. They were blessed in their children, and their descendants shall possess the earth. (13) And you like them, my son, must love your kindred. Do not be too proud to take a wife from among the women of your own nation. Pride breeds ruin and anarchy, and the waster declines into poverty; waste is the mother of starvation.

(14) 'Pay your workmen their wages the same day; do not make any man wait for his money. If you serve God you will be repaid. Be circumspect, my son, in all that you do, and show yourself well-bred in all your behaviour. (15) Do not do to anyone what you yourself would hate. Do not drink to excess and so let drunkenness become a habit. (16) Give food to the hungry and clothes to the naked. Whatever you have beyond your own needs, give away to the poor, and do not give grudgingly. (17) Pour out your wine and offer your bread on the tombs of the righteous; but give nothing to sinners. (18) Ask any sensible man for his advice; do not despise any advice that may help you. (19) Praise the Lord God at all times and ask him to guide your course. Then all you do and all you plan will turn out well. The heathen all lack such guidance; it is the Lord himself who gives all good things, or humbles men at will, as he chooses.

e Probable reading (compare 4. 1); Gk. Ecbatana.

19: When Tobit urges his son to remember these commands he is voicing a constant theme of Jewish piety which viewed loyalty to God as an active remembrance of his favors. 20: Ten talents: see 1.14 n.

5.4-22: Azarias (Raphael) is hired as Tobias' guide. 6: The journey from Ecbatana to Rages cannot be made in two full days since it involves a distance of some 450 miles. Moreover, it is Ecbatana, not Rages, that is situated in mountainous terrain. Raphael's familiarity with all the routes seems to refer to the journey of his life rather than to the geography of Persia. 9: I am a blind man: Tobit speaks for Israel, symbolically blind to the ways of God's Providence. The

be well with you!', Tobit retorted: 'How can anything be well with me now? I am a blind man; I cannot see the light of heaven, but lie in darkness like the dead who cannot see the light. Though still alive, I am as good as dead. I hear men's voices, but the men I do not see.' Raphael answered: 'Take heart; in God's design your cure is at hand. Take heart.' Tobit went on: 'My son Tobias wishes to travel to Media. Can you go with him as his guide? I will pay you, my friend.' 'Yes,' he said, 'I can go with him; I know all the roads. I have often been to Media; I have travelled over all the plains and mountains there, and am familiar with all its roads.' Tobit said to him, 'Tell me, my friend, what family and tribe you belong to.' He asked, 'Why need you know my tribe?' Tobit said, 'I do indeed wish to know whose son you are, my friend, and what your name is.' 'I am Azarias,' he replied, 'son of the older Ananias, one of your kinsmen.'

13 Tobit said to him: 'Good luck and a safe journey to you! Do not be angry with me, my friend, because I wished to know the facts of your descent. It turns out that you are a kinsman, and a man of good family. I knew Ananias and Nathan the two sons of the older Semelias. They used to go with me to Jerusalem and worship with me there; they never went astray. Your kinsmen are worthy men; you come of a sound stock. Good luck go with you.'

14 Tobit added: 'I will pay you a drachma a day and allow you the same expenses as my son. Keep him company on his travels, and I will add something to your wages.'

15 Raphael answered: 'I will go with him. Never fear; we shall travel there and back without mishap, because the road is safe.' Tobit replied, 'God bless you, my friend.' He called his son and said to him: 'My boy, get ready what you need for the journey, and set off with your kinsman. May God in heaven

keep both of you safe on your journey there and restore you to me unharmed. May his angel safely escort you both.' Before setting out Tobias kissed his father and mother, and Tobit said to him, 'Goodbye, and a safe journey!'

Then his mother burst into tears. 17 'Why have you sent my boy away?' she said to Tobit. 'Is he not our prop and stay? Has he not always been at home with us? Why send money after money? Write it off for the sake of our boy! Let us be content to live the life 18 the Lord has appointed for us.' Tobit 20 said to her: 'Do not worry; our son will go safely and come back safely, and you will see him with your own eyes on the day of his safe return. Do not worry or be anxious about them, my dear. A good angel will go with him, 21 and his journey will prosper, and he will come back safe and sound.' At that she 22 stopped crying.

THE BOY AND THE ANGEL LEFT THE 6 house together, and the dog came out with him and accompanied them. They travelled until night overtook them, and then camped by the river Tigris. Tobias went down to bathe his feet in 2 the river, and a huge fish leapt out of the water and tried to swallow the boy's foot. He cried out, and the angel said 3 to him, 'Seize the fish and hold it fast.' So Tobias seized it and hauled it on to the bank. The angel said to him: 'Split 4 the fish open and take out its gall, heart, and liver; keep them by you, but throw the guts away; the gall, heart, and liver can be used as medicine.' Tobias split 5 the fish open, and put together its gall, heart, and liver. He cooked and ate part of the fish; the rest he salted and kept.

They continued the journey together until they came near Media. Then the 6 boy asked the angel: 'Azarias, my friend, what medicine is there in the fish's heart, liver, and gall?' He said: 7

theme of the book is summed up in the appeal, take heart, directed to Israel. 12: Azarias is the Gk. form of a Heb. name (Azariah) meaning "the Lord helps." 14: A drachma was a normal day's wages, about sixteen cents.

6.1-17: Raphael guides Tobias to Ecbatana and they prepare to meet Sarah. 1: The dog, rarely noted in the Bible and even more rarely presented favorably, is introduced here to reinforce family atmosphere. See also 11.4 n. The Tigris river does not in fact cross the path of a journey from Nineveh to Ecbatana. 4: Special medicinal qualities were often attributed to the internal

'You can use the heart and liver as a fumigation for any man or woman attacked by a demon or evil spirit; the attack will cease, and it will give no further trouble. The gall is for anointing a man's eyes when white patches have spread over them, or for blowing on the white patches in the eyes; the eyes will then recover.'

9 When he had entered Media and was now approaching Ecbatana, Raphael said to the boy, 'Tobias, my friend.' 'Yes?' he replied. Raphael said: 'We must stay the night with Raguel. He is your kinsman and he has a daughter named Sarah. Apart from Sarah he has neither son nor daughter. You are her next of kin and have the right to marry her and inherit her father's property. The girl is sensible, brave, and very beautiful, and her father is an honourable man.' He went on: 'It is right that you should marry her. Be guided by me, my friend; I will speak to her father about the girl this very night and ask for her hand as your bride, and on our return from Rages we will celebrate her marriage. I know that Raguel cannot withhold her from you or betroth her to another man without incurring the death penalty according to the ordinance in the book of Moses; and he is aware that his daughter belongs by right to you rather than to any other man. Now be guided by me, my friend; we will talk about the girl tonight and will betroth her to you, and when we return from Rages we shall take her back with us to your home.'

13 Then Tobias answered Raphael: 'Azarias, my friend, I have heard that she has already been given to seven husbands and they died the very night they went into the bridal chamber to her. I have been told that it is a demon who kills them. And now it is my turn to be afraid; he does her no harm, but kills any man who tries to come near her. I am my father's only child; I am afraid that if I die I shall bring my father and mother to the grave with grief for me. They have no other son to bury them.' Raphael said to him: 'Have you forgotten the orders your father gave you? He told you to take a wife from your father's kindred. Now be guided by me, my friend: do not worry about the demon, but marry her. I am sure that this night she shall be given you as your wife. When you enter the bridal chamber, take some of the fish's liver and its heart, and put them on the smoking incense. The smell will spread, and when the demon smells it he will make off and never be seen near her any more. When you are about to go to bed with her, both of you must first stand up and pray, beseeching the Lord of heaven to grant you mercy and deliverance. Have no fear; she was destined for you before the world was made. You shall rescue her and she shall go with you. No doubt you will have children by her and they will be very dear to you.' So do not worry!' When Tobias heard what Raphael said, and learnt that she was his kinswoman and of his father's house, he was filled with love for her and set his heart on her.

WHEN THEY REACHED ECBATANA, Tobias said, 'Azarias, my friend, take me straight to our kinsman Raguel.' So Azarias brought him to Raguel's house, and they found him sitting by the courtyard door. They greeted him first, and he replied, 'A hearty welcome to you, friends. I am glad to see you well after your journey.' He took them into his house and said to Edna his wife, 'Is not this young man like my kinsman Tobit?' Edna asked them, 'Where do you come from, friends?' 'We belong to the tribe of Naphtali,' they answered, 'now in captivity at Nineveh.' 'Do you know our kinsman Tobit?' she asked,

f Literally be like brothers to you.

organs of animals. 11: Mosaic Law required a daughter who is heir to property to marry within her tribe (Num.36.8), so as to prevent the gradual loss of a tribe's property and support. 12: There is no mention of the death penalty in Num.36.8. 14: To bury them: the exiled Jew was continually preoccupied with the thought of burial because abandonment in death definitively confirmed God's abandonment of Israel in the Exile. 17: Stand up and pray: the demon will be rendered powerless if passion is tempered by prayer.

7.1-15: Tobias and Sarah are married. Similar marriage arrangements are related in Gen.24.15; 29.9-12; Exod.2.16-21.

and they replied, 'Yes, we do.' 'Is he well?' she said. 'He is alive and well', they answered, and Tobias added, 'He is my father.' Raguel jumped up and, with tears in his eyes, he kissed him and said, 'God bless you, my boy, son of a good and noble father. But what grievous news that so good and charitable a man has gone blind!' He embraced Tobias his kinsman and wept; and Edna his wife and their daughter Sarah also wept for Tobit. Then Raguel slaughtered a ram from the flock and made them warmly welcome.

After they had taken a bath and washed their hands, and had sat down to dinner, Tobias said to Raphael, 'Azarias, my friend, ask Raguel to give me Sarah my kinswoman.' Raguel overheard and said to the young man: 'Eat, drink, and be happy tonight. There is no one but yourself who should have my daughter Sarah; indeed I have no right to give her to anyone else, since you are my nearest kinsman. But I must tell you the truth, my son: I have given her in marriage to seven of our kinsmen, and they all died on their wedding night. My son, eat now and drink, and may the Lord deal kindly with you both.' Tobias answered, 'I will not eat or drink anything here until you have disposed of this business of mine.' Raguel said to him, 'I will do so: I give her to you as the ordinance in the book of Moses prescribes. Heaven has ordained that she shall be yours. Take your kinswoman. From now on, you belong to her and she to you; she is yours for ever from this day. The Lord of heaven prosper you both this night, my son, and grant you mercy and peace.'

Raguel sent for his daughter Sarah, and when she came he took her hand and gave her to Tobias, saying: 'Take her to be your wedded wife in accordance with the law and the ordinance written in the book of Moses. Keep her and take her home to your father; and may the God of heaven keep you safe and give you peace and prosperity.' Then he sent for her mother and told her to bring paper, and he wrote out a marriage contract granting Sarah to Tobias as his wife, as the law of Moses ordains. After that they began to eat and drink.

Raguel called his wife and said, 'My dear, get the spare room ready and take her in there.' Edna went and prepared the room as he had told her, and took Sarah into it. Edna cried over her, then dried her tears and said: 'Courage, dear daughter; the Lord of heaven give you joy instead of sorrow. Courage, daughter!' Then she went out.

When they had finished eating and drinking and were ready for bed, they escorted the young man to the bridal chamber. Tobias recalled what Raphael had told him; he took the fish's liver and heart out of the bag in which he kept them, and put them on the smoking incense. The smell from the fish held the demon off, and he took flight into Upper Egypt; and Raphael instantly followed him there and bound him hand and foot.

When they were left alone and the door was shut, Tobias rose from the bed and said to Sarah, 'Get up, my love; let us pray and beseech our Lord to show us mercy and keep us safe.' She got up and they began to pray that they might be kept safe. Tobias said: 'We praise thee, O God of our fathers, we praise thy name for ever and ever. Let the heavens and all thy creation praise thee for ever. Thou madest Adam, and Eve his wife to be his helper and support; and those two were the parents of the human race. This was thy word: "It is not good for the man to be alone; let us make him a helper like him." I now take this my beloved to wife, not

12: The ordinance . . . : Num.36.8. Heaven has ordained: the author strongly favors arranged marriages (see also 6.17), probably because in a foreign society romantic marriages were likely to involve non-Israelites or members of other tribes, thus weakening religious unity or tribal integrity.

7.16-8.21: The demon is cast out and the marriage is celebrated. 18: Courage, daughter! is an exhortation that is also directed toward exiled Israel. 8.3: Upper Egypt is a wilderness, the traditional habitation of demons; see Lev.16.8-10 for the ritual of driving the goat bearing sins into the wilderness. The demons are understood to be invaders of Israel from foreign parts. Raphael and the demon represent respectively the forces of order and chaos which are at war since the creation. 4: Let us pray: see 6.17 n. 6: His helper: see Gen.2.18; compare 1 Cor.11.8-9.

out of lust but in true marriage. Grant that she and I may find mercy and grow old together.' They both said 'Amen',
and slept through the night.

Raguel got up and summoned his servants, and they went out and dug a grave. For he said, 'He may have been killed, and then we shall have to face scorn and disgrace.' When they had finished digging the grave, Raguel went into the house and called his wife:
'Send one of the maidservants', he said,
'to go in and see if he is alive. If he is dead, let us bury him so that no one may know.' They lit a lamp, opened the door, and sent a maidservant in; and she found them sound asleep together.
She came out and told them: 'He is alive and has come to no harm.'

Then they praised the God of heaven:
'We praise thee, O God, we praise thee with all our heart. Let men praise thee throughout all ages. Praise to thee for the joy thou hast given me; the thing I feared has not happened, but thou hast shown us thy great mercy. Praise to thee for the mercy thou hast shown to these two, these only children. Lord, show them mercy, keep them safe, and grant them a long life of happiness and affection.' Then he ordered his servants to fill in the grave before dawn came.

He told his wife to bake a great batch of bread; he went to the herd and brought two oxen and four rams and told his servants to get them ready; so they set about the preparations. He then called Tobias and said: 'You shall not stir from here for two weeks. Stay with us; let us eat and drink together and cheer my daughter's heart after all her suffering. Here and now take half of all I have, and go home to your father safe and sound; and the other half will come to you both when my wife and I die. Be reassured, my son, I am your father and Edna is your mother; we are as close to you as to your wife, now and always.
You have nothing to fear, my son.'

Tobias called Raphael and said to him: 'Azarias, my friend, take four servants with you, and two camels, and make your way to Rages. Go to Gabael's house, give him the bond and collect the money, and bring him with you to the wedding-feast. You know that my father will be counting the days and, if I am even one day late, it will distress him. You see what Raguel has sworn, and I cannot go against his oath.' Raphael went with the four servants and the two camels to Rages
in Media and lodged there with Gabael.
He gave him his bond and informed him that Tobit's son Tobias had taken a wife and was inviting him to the wedding-feast. At once Gabael counted out the bags to him with their seals intact, and they put them together. They all made an early start and came to the wedding. When they entered Raguel's house and found Tobias at the feast, he jumped up and greeted Gabael. With tears in his eyes Gabael blessed him and said: 'Good sir, worthy son of a worthy father, that upright and charitable man, may the Lord give Heaven's blessing to you and your wife, your father and your mother-in-law. Praise be to God that I have seen my cousin Tobias, so like his father.'

Tobias's homecoming

NOW DAY BY DAY TOBIT WAS KEEPING count of the time Tobias would take for his journey there and back. When the days had passed and his son had not returned, Tobit said: 'Perhaps he has been detained there. Or perhaps Gabael is dead and there is no one to give him
the money.' And he grew anxious. Anna his wife said: 'My child has perished.
He is no longer in the land of the living.'
She began to weep and lament for her son: 'O my child, the light of my eyes,
why did I let you go?' Tobit said to her:

21: Tobias is asked to take half of Raguel's property now as a dowry; and the other half is to come to him as an inheritance.

9.1-6: Tobit's money is retrieved from Gabael. 5: The journey from Ecbatana to Rages would require about two weeks.

10.1-14.15: Tobias's homecoming. Sent to collect a debt of money for his father, the young Tobias brings him also a daughter (11.17) and healing for his eyes (11.14).

10.1-11.1: Tobias and Sarah leave Ecbatana. 5: When Sarah calls Tobias the light of my eyes she is expressing the symbolic sight-blindness motif: Israel is blind to the meaning of history

'Hush, do not worry, my dear; he is all right. Something has happened there to distract them. The man who went with him is one of our kinsmen and can be trusted. Do not grieve for him, my dear; he will soon be back.' But she answered: 'Be quiet! Leave me alone! Do not try to deceive me. My boy is dead.' Each day she would rush out and look down the road her son had taken, and would listen to no one; and when she came indoors at sunset she could never sleep, but wept and lamented the whole night long.

The two weeks of wedding celebrations which Raguel had sworn to hold for his daughter came to an end, and Tobias went up to him and said: 'Let me be off on my journey; for I am sure that my parents are thinking they will never see me again. I beg you, father, let me go home now to my father Tobit. I have already told you how I left him.' Raguel said to Tobias: 'Stay, my son. Stay with me, and I will send news of you to your father.' But Tobias answered: 'No; please let me go home to my father.' Then without further delay Raguel handed over to Tobias Sarah his bride and half of all that he possessed, male and female slaves, sheep and cattle, donkeys and camels, clothes, money, and furniture. He saw them safely off and embraced Tobias, saying: 'Goodbye, my son; a safe journey to you! May the Lord of heaven give prosperity to you and Sarah your wife; and may I live to see your children.' To his daughter Sarah he said: 'Go to your father-in-law's house; they are now your parents as much as if you were their own daughter. Go in peace, my child; I hope to hear good news of you as long as I live.' He bade them both goodbye and sent them on their way. Edna said to Tobias: 'Child and beloved cousin, may the Lord bring you safely home, you and my daughter Sarah, and may I live long enough to see your children. In the sight of the Lord I entrust my daughter to you; do nothing to hurt her as long as you live. Go in peace, my son. From now on I am your mother and Sarah is your beloved wife. May we all be blessed with prosperity to the end of our days!' She kissed them both and saw them safely off. Tobias parted from Raguel in good health and spirits, thankful to the Lord of heaven and earth, the king of all, for the success of his journey. Raguel's last words to him were: 'May the Lord give you the means to honour your parents all their lives.'

When they reached Caserin close to Nineveh, Raphael said: 'You know how your father was when we left him; let us hurry on ahead of your wife and see that the house is ready before the others arrive.' As the two of them went on together Raphael said: 'Take the fish-gall in your hand.' The dog went with the angel and Tobias, following at their heels.

Anna sat watching the road by which her son would return. She saw him coming and exclaimed to his father, 'Here he comes, your son and the man who went with him!' Before Tobias reached his father's house Raphael said: 'I know for certain that his eyes will be opened. Spread the fish-gall on his eyes, and the medicine will make the white patches shrink and peel off. Your father will get his sight back and see the light of day.' Anna ran forward and flung her arms round her son. 'Here you are, my boy; now I can die happy!' she cried out with tears in her eyes.

Tobit rose to his feet and came stumbling out through the courtyard door. Tobias went up to him with the fish-gall in his hand and blew it into his father's eyes, and took him by the arm and said: 'It will be all right, father.' Then when he had put the medicine on and applied it, using both hands he peeled off the patches from the corners of Tobit's eyes. Tobit flung his arms round him and burst into tears. 'I can see you, my son, the light of my eyes!' he cried. 'Praise be to God, but light will come at the end. See 11.14. 9: Tobias's plea to be allowed to go home is meant to be a model for all exiled Israelites who should yearn constantly for home.

11.2-18: Tobias arrives at home and cures Tobit's blindness. 2: Caserin: unknown. 4: Dog: see 6.1 n. Only those who had seen Tobit's blindness go ahead and are present at the cure; this would include the dog! 14: See 10.5 n. 15: God's scourge on Israel was the Exile, but salva-

and praise to his great name, and to all his holy angels. May his great name rest upon us. Praise be all the angels for ever. He laid his scourge on me, and now, look, I see my son Tobias!

Tobias went in, rejoicing and praising God with all his strength. He told his father about the success of his journey, how he had brought the money with him and had married Sarah daughter of Raguel. 'She is on her way,' he said, 'quite close to the city gate.'

Tobit went out joyfully to meet his daughter-in-law at the gate, praising God as he went. At the sight of him passing through the city in full vigour and walking without a guide, the people of Nineveh were astonished; and Tobit gave thanks to God before them all for his mercy in opening his eyes. When he met Sarah, the wife of his son Tobias, he blessed her and said to her: 'Come in, my daughter, and welcome. Praise be to your God who has brought you to us, my daughter. Blessings on your father, and on my son Tobias, and blessings on you, my daughter. Come into your home and may health, blessings, and joy be yours; come in, my daughter.' It was a day of joy for all the Jews in Nineveh; and Ahikar and Nadab, Tobit's cousins, came to share his happiness.

When the marriage-feast was over, Tobit called Tobias and said, 'My son, see that you pay the man who went with you, and give him something extra, over and above his wages.' Tobias said: 'Father, how much shall I pay him? It would not hurt me to give him half the money he and I brought back. He has kept me safe, cured my wife, helped me bring the money, and healed you. How much extra shall I pay him?' Tobit replied, 'It is right, my son, for him to be given half of all that he has brought with him.' So Tobias sent for him and said, 'Half of all that you have brought with you is yours for your wages; take it, and fare you well.'

Then Raphael called them both aside and said to them: 'Praise God and thank him before all men living for the good he has done you, so that they may sing hymns of praise to his name. Proclaim to all the world what God has done, and pay him honour; do not be slow to give him thanks. A king's secret ought to be kept, but the works of God should be acknowledged publicly. Acknowledge them, therefore, and pay him honour. Do good, and evil shall not touch you. Better prayer with sincerity, and almsgiving with righteousness, than wealth with wickedness. Better give alms than hoard up gold. Almsgiving preserves a man from death and wipes out all sin. Givers of alms will enjoy long life; but sinners and wrong-doers are their own worst enemies.'

'I will tell you the whole truth; I will hide nothing from you. Indeed I told you just now when I said, "A king's secret ought to be kept, but the works of God should be publicly honoured." When you and Sarah prayed, it was I who brought your prayers into the glorious presence of the Lord; and so too whenever you buried the dead. That day when you got up from your dinner without hesitation to go and bury the corpse, I was sent to test you; and again God sent me to cure both you and Sarah your daughter-in-law at the same time. I am Raphael, one of the seven angels who stand in attendance on the Lord and enter his glorious presence.'

The two men were shaken, and prostrated themselves in awe. But he said to them: 'Do not be afraid, all is well; praise God for ever. It is no thanks to me that I have been with you; it was the will of God. Worship him all your life long, sing his praise. Take note tion is promised. 16: Israel's vindication at the end will astonish the nations, here represented by the people of Nineveh. 18: Ahikar and Nadab: see 1.21 n.

12.1-22: Raphael is thanked and identifies himself. 2: Half the money apparently refers to half the sum retrieved from Gabael, i.e. five talents of silver. 6-10: Raphael's exhortation is typical of Wisdom literature. 11-14: The whole truth is that God's Providence works through human misfortune to test man, a theme that pervades Wisdom literature; see Wis.3.6; Prov.17.3. 15: Seven angels: nowhere do we find a complete list of these "chief" angels. Perhaps seven is a symbolic number, the full array of divine messengers.

- that I ate no food; what appeared to 20 you was a vision. And now praise the Lord, give thanks to God here on earth;
 I am ascending to him who sent me.
 Write down all these things that have 21 happened to you.' He then ascended, and when they rose to their feet, he 22 was no longer to be seen. They sang hymns of praise to God, giving him
 thanks for these great deeds he had done
 when his angel appeared to them.
- 13 TOBIT SAID:
- 'Praise to the ever-living God and to his kingdom.
 2 He punishes and he shows mercy;
 he brings men down to the grave
 below,
 and up from the great destruction.
 Nothing can escape his power.
 3 Give him thanks, men of Israel, in the presence of the nations,
 for he has scattered you among them;
 4 there he has shown you his greatness.
 Exalt him in the sight of every living creature,
 for he is our Lord and God;
 he is our Father and our God for
 ever.
 5 He will punish you for your wickedness,
 and he will show mercy to you all,
 gathering you from among all the nations
 wherever you have been scattered.
 6 When you turn to him with all your heart and soul
 and act in loyal obedience to him,
 then he will turn to you
 and hide his face from you no longer.
 Consider now the deeds he has done
 for you,
 and give him thanks with full voice;
 praise the righteous Lord
 and exalt the King of ages.<sup>g</sup>
- 10 'Your sanctuary<sup>h</sup> shall be rebuilt for you with rejoicing.
 May he give happiness to all your exiles
- and cherish all who mourn and your descendants for ever.
 Your light shall shine brightly to all 11
 the ends of the earth.
 Many nations shall come to you from
 afar,
 from all the corners of the earth to your holy name;
 they shall bring gifts in their hands
 for the King of heaven.
 In you endless generations shall utter their joy;
 the name of the chosen city shall endure for ever and ever.
 There shall be a curse upon all who 12
 speak harshly to you,
 upon all who destroy you and pull down your walls,
 upon all who demolish your towers
 and burn your houses;
 but blessings shall be for evermore
 upon those who hold you in reverence.
 Come then, be joyful for the 13
 righteous,
 for they shall all be gathered together
 and shall praise the eternal Lord.
 How happy shall they be who love 14
 you and rejoice in your prosperity,
 happy all who grieve for you in your afflictions;
 they shall rejoice over you and for ever be witness of your joy.
 My soul, praise the Lord, the great 15
 king,
 for Jerusalem shall be built as a city 16
 for him to dwell in for ever.
 How happy I shall be when the remnant of my descendants shall see your splendour

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses add

In the land of my exile I give thanks to him and declare his might and greatness to a sinful
 nation.

Turn, you sinners, and do what is right in his eyes;
 who knows whether he may not welcome you and show you mercy?

I will exalt my God

and rejoice in the King of heaven.

Let all men tell of his majesty and give him thanks in Jerusalem.

O Jerusalem, the holy city,

he will punish you for what your sons have done,

but he will again show mercy on the righteous.

Thank the good Lord and praise the King of ages.

<sup>h</sup> Or home.

13.1-18: Tobit praises God. 1-6: This is a prayer of thanksgiving in the hymnic style of many psalms. The topic is God's kingdom which will ultimately be established in human history through the homecoming of God's scattered people. 10: The sanctuary is the Temple in Jerusalem. 16-17: See Rev.21.18-21.

and give thanks to the King of heaven.

The gates of Jerusalem shall be built of sapphire and emerald, and all your walls of precious stones. The towers of Jerusalem shall be built of gold, their battlements of the finest gold.

17 The streets of Jerusalem shall be paved with garnets and jewels of Ophir.

18 The gates of Jerusalem shall sing hymns of joy and all her houses shall say Alleluia, praise to the God of Israel! Blessed by him, they shall bless his holy name for ever and ever.'

14 SO ENDED TOBIT'S THANKSGIVING. HE died peacefully at the age of a hundred and twelve, and was given honourable

2 burial in Nineveh. He was sixty-two years old when his eyes were injured, and after he recovered his sight he lived in prosperity, doing his acts of charity and never ceasing to praise God and proclaim his majesty.

3 When he was dying he sent for his son Tobias, and gave him these instructions: 'My son, you must take your

4 children and make your escape to Media, for I believe God's word against Nineveh spoken by Nahum. It will all come true; everything will happen to Asshur and Nineveh that was spoken by the prophets of Israel whom God sent. Not a word of it will fall short; everything will be fulfilled when the time comes. It will be safer in Media than in Assyria and Babylon; I know, I am convinced, that all God's words will be fulfilled. It will be so; not one of them will fail. Our countrymen who live in Israel will all be scattered and carried off into captivity out of that good land, and the whole territory of Israel laid waste. Samaria and Jerusalem will lie waste, and for a time the house of God will be in mourning; it will be burnt to the ground.

5 'Then God will have mercy on them again and will bring them back to the land of Israel. They will rebuild the house of God, but not as it was before, not until the time of fulfilment comes. Then they will all return from their captivity and rebuild Jerusalem gloriously; then indeed the house will be built in her as the prophets of Israel foretold. All the nations of the world

6 will be converted to the true worship of God; they will abandon their idols which led them astray into falsehood, and praise the eternal God according

7 to his law. All the Israelites who survive at that time and are firm in their loyalty to God will be brought together; they will come to Jerusalem to take possession of the land of Abraham, and live there for ever in safety. Those who love God in truth will rejoice; and sinners and wrong-doers will disappear from the earth. Now, my children, I give you

8 this command: serve God in truth and do what pleases him. Train your chil-

9 dren to do what is right and give alms, to keep God in mind at all times and praise his name in sincerity with all their strength.

'And now, my son, you must leave

10 Nineveh. Do not stay here; once you have laid your mother in the grave with me, do not spend another night within the city boundaries. For I see that the place is full of wickedness and shameless dishonesty. My son, think what Nadab did to Ahikar who brought him up: he forced him to hide in a living grave. Ahikar survived to see God requite the dishonour done to him; he came out into the light of day, but Nadab passed into eternal darkness for his attempt to kill Ahikar. Because I gave alms, Ahikar escaped from the fatal trap Nadab set for him, and Nadab

11 fell into the trap himself and was destroyed. So, my children, see what comes of almsgiving, and see what comes of wickedness—death. But now my strength is failing.'

Then they laid him on his bed, and he died; and they gave him honourable

12 burial. When his mother died, Tobias buried her beside his father. He and his 14.1-15: Tobit's final instructions to Tobias. 1: Tobit's peaceful death at an advanced age associates him with the patriarchs who, like him, kept the faith in a foreign environment. 4: The book of Nahum describes the destruction of Nineveh, the capital of Asshur, Assyria. 5: A second, and inferior, Temple was built about 515 B.C.; see Hag. 1.1-15. 10: Ahikar . . .

- wife went away to Media and settled at Ecbatana with his father-in-law Raguel.
- 13 He honoured and cared for his wife's parents in their old age. He buried them at Ecbatana in Media, and he inherited the estate of Raguel as well as that of
- 14 his father Tobit. He died greatly respected at the age of one hundred and
- 15 seventeen. He lived long enough to hear of the destruction of Nineveh by
- Ahasuerus king of Media and to see his prisoners of war brought from there into Media. So he praised God for all that he had done to the people of Nineveh and Asshur; and before he died he rejoiced over the fate of Nineveh and praised the Lord God who lives for ever and ever.
- Amen.

---

Nadab: see 1.21 n. 15: Ahasuerus: Xerxes I. Nineveh fell in 612 B.C. to an allied force of Medes under Cyaxares and of Babylonians, under Nabopolassar. The fall of Nineveh completes the vindication of Tobit's faith.

JUDITH

Judith is a good example of the Hebrew narrative art: vivid imagery; a paced combination of description and action; and resolute realism. The name Judith means "Jewess"; the heroine represents Israel's faith and spirit, strong and resourceful despite a weak and delicate appearance, which emerges triumphant from the drama of a confrontation between Israel, small and isolated, and all the great powers of the Near East.

There are historical contradictions in the story interpreted by some scholars as intended by the author to indicate unmistakably the fictional nature of the work, and thereby to point up the timeless quality of its contents.

Though set in earlier times, the narrative reflects conditions prevalent during the turmoil of the Hellenistic period described in 1 and 2 Maccabees: divine honors paid to kings (3.8); Jerusalem ruled by a high priest and a form of Sanhedrin (4.8; 15.8); and the like. This evidence of Hellenistic influence indicates a date of composition in the second century B.C. The original language was probably Hebrew, even though most ancient surviving texts are Greek. The author and place of composition are unknown.

The intention of the author seems to be to reassert, at a moment of historical disarray, the Jewish conviction of God's commitment to his people's survival and victory in the odyssey of human existence. Judith exercises the same power that worked through Moses to free Israel from Egyptian bondage. Conversely, the author affirms that the proper response to God's action is an avoidance of political and religious involvement with pagan nations, and an uncompromising observance of the Torah in true Jewish fidelity and piety.

The Assyrian invasion

1 IN THE TWELFTH YEAR OF THE REIGN of Nebuchadnezzar, who reigned
over the Assyrians from his capital, Nineveh, Arphaxad was ruling the 2 Medes from Ecbatana. He it was who encircled Ecbatana with a wall built of hewn stones which were four and a half feet thick and nine feet long.<sup>a</sup> He made the wall a hundred and five feet high 3 and seventy-five feet thick, and at the city gates he set up towers a hundred and fifty feet high with foundations ninety 4 feet thick; and he made the gates a hundred and five feet high and sixty feet wide to allow his army to march out in full force with his infantry in forma-5 tion. It was in those days, then, that King Nebuchadnezzar waged war against King Arphaxad in the great 6 plain on the borders of Ragau. Nebuchadnezzar was opposed by all the inhabitants of the hill-country, by all those who lived along the Euphrates, the Tigris, and the Hydaspes; and, on the plain, by Arioch king of Elam; and many tribes of the Chelodites joined forces with them.

Then Nebuchadnezzar king of As- 7
syria sent a summons to all the inhabitants of Persia, and to all who lived in the west: the inhabitants of Cilicia and Damascus, Lebanon and Antilebanon, all who lived near the coast, the peoples in Carmel and Gilead, 8
Upper Galilee, and the great plain of Esdraelon, all who were in Samaria 9 and its towns, and on the west of Jordan as far as Jerusalem, Betane, Chelus, Cadesh, and the frontier<sup>b</sup> of Egypt, those who lived in Tahpanhes, Rameses, and the whole land of Goshen as far as Tanis and Memphis, and all 10

<sup>a</sup> In verses 2-4 the measurements are given in cubits in the Greek.
<sup>b</sup> Literally river.

1.1-7.32: The Assyrian invasion. The other nations capitulate and Jewish resistance is gradually broken.

1.1-6: Nebuchadnezzar wages war on Arphaxad. 1: Nebuchadnezzar: king of the Babylonians from 605-561 B.C. He directed the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 B.C.; see 2 Kgs.25.1-9. His father had conquered the Assyrians and destroyed Nineveh in 612 B.C. The historically impossible combination here of Nebuchadnezzar and the Assyrians suggests that the author wished to combine Israel's traditional enemies to create a literary confrontation between faith and secular power. Arphaxad is unknown. 2-3: Ecbatana was situated near present-day Hamadan in Iran. Its dimensions are exceedingly exaggerated, showing a high degree of fiction. 5: Ragau is modern Rai, located near Teheran. 6: The Hydaspes is a river near the eastern border of Persia. Arioch is unknown. The Chelodites are unknown.

1.7-12: Persia and the western nations arouse Nebuchadnezzar's anger. 7-10: The nations and towns listed represent the western portion of the Fertile Crescent—modern Syria, Lebanon, the inhabitants of Egypt as far as the 11 borders of Ethiopia. But the entire region disregarded the summons of Nebuchadnezzar king of Assyria and did not join him in the war. They were not afraid of him, for he seemed to them to stand alone<sup>c</sup> and unsupported; and they treated his envoys with contempt

 and sent them back empty-handed.

12 This roused Nebuchadnezzar to fury against the whole region, and he swore by his throne and his kingdom that he would have his revenge on all the territories of Cilicia, Damascus, and Syria, and put their inhabitants to the sword, along with the Moabites, the Ammonites, and the people in all Judaea and in Egypt as far as the shores of the two seas.

13 In the seventeenth year of his reign
 he marshalled his forces against King Arphaxad and defeated him in battle,
 routing his entire army, cavalry, 14 chariots, and all. He occupied his towns; and when he reached Ecbatana
 he captured its towers, looted its bazaars, and turned its splendour to 15 abject ruin. He caught Arphaxad in the mountains of Ragau, speared him
 through, and so made an end of him.
 16 Then he returned with his spoils to Nineveh, he and his combined forces, an immense host of warriors. There he rested and feasted with his army for four months.

2 In the eighteenth year, on the twenty-second day of the first month, a proposal was made in the palace of Nebuchadnezzar king of Assyria to carry out his threat of vengeance on the whole 2 region. Assembling all his officers and nobles, the king laid before them his personal decision about the region and declared his intention of putting an 3 end to its disaffection. They resolved that everyone who had not obeyed his summons should be put to death.

When his plans were completed,<sup>d</sup> 4 Nebuchadnezzar king of Assyria summoned Holophernes, his commander-in-chief, who was second only to himself, and said to him, 'This is the decree 5
 of the Great King, lord of all the earth:
 Directly you leave my presence, you are to take under your command an army of seasoned troops, a hundred and twenty thousand infantry with a force of twelve thousand cavalry, and march 6
 out against all the peoples of the west who have dared to disobey my command. Tell them to have ready their 7 offering of earth and water, for I am coming to vent my wrath on them.
 Their whole land will be smothered by my army, and I will give them up to be 8 plundered by my troops. Their dead will fill the valleys, and every stream
 and river will be choked with corpses;
 and I will send them into captivity to 9
 the ends of the whole earth. Now go 10 and occupy all their territory for me.
 If they surrender to you, hold them for me until the time comes to punish them.
 But show no mercy to those who resist; 11
 let them be slaughtered and plundered throughout the whole region. By my life and my royal power I swear: I have 12 spoken and I will be as good as my word. As for you, do not disobey 13
 a single one of my orders, but see that you carry them out exactly as I your sovereign have commanded you. Do this without delay.'

After leaving his sovereign's presence, 14
 Holophernes assembled all the marshals, generals, and officers of the Assyrian army, and mustered picked men, 15
 as the king had commanded, a hundred and twenty thousand infantry and twelve thousand mounted archers, drawing them up in battle order. He 16,17 took an immense number of camels,

<sup>c</sup> One witness reads to be no more than their equal . . .
<sup>d</sup> Or When he had finished stating his purpose . . .

Palestine, and Egypt. Betane and Chelus are unknown. Cadesh may be in southern Palestine.
 1.13-2.13: Nebuchadnezzar defeats Arphaxad and declares war on the western nations. 14: The Nebuchadnezzar of history did not capture Ecbatana. 2.1: The eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign is 587 B.C., the date when he ordered the destruction of Jerusalem. 4: Holophernes is unknown as a famous Babylonian general; the name, indeed, is Persian and his presence adds the Persians to the artificial composite of Israel's enemies; see 1.1 n. 5: Nebuchadnezzar's designation of himself as lord . . ., without reference to the rights of God, makes this a battle between the ungodly and the God-fearing. 7: The offering of earth and water was a Persian expression for the provisioning of an invading and conquering army from the occupied country.

asses, and mules for their baggage, innumerable sheep, oxen, and goats for provisions, and ample rations for every man, as well as a great quantity of gold and silver from the royal palace. Then he set out with all his army to go ahead of King Nebuchadnezzar and to overrun the entire region to the west with chariots, cavalry, and picked infantry. Along with them went a motley host like a swarm of locusts, countless as the dust of the earth.

From Nineveh they marched for three days towards the plain of Bectileth, and encamped beside Bectileth near the mountain north of Upper Cilicia. From there, Holophernes advanced into the hill-country with his whole army, infantry, cavalry, and chariots. He devastated Put and Lud, and plundered all the people of Rassis, and the Ishmaelites on the edge of the desert south of the land of the Cheleans. Then he followed<sup>e</sup> the Euphrates and traversed Mesopotamia, destroying all the fortified towns along the river Abron as far as the sea. He occupied the territory of Cilicia and cut down all who resisted him. Then he came south to the borders of Japheth fronting Arabia. He surrounded the Midianites, burnt their encampments, and plundered their sheepfolds. At the time of wheat harvest he went down to the plain of Damascus, burnt their crops, exterminated their flocks and herds, sacked their towns, laid waste their fields, and put all their young men to the sword. Fear and dread of him fell on all the inhabitants of the coast at Tyre and Sidon, of Sur and Okina, and of Jemnaan; the people of Azotus and Ascalon were terrified of him.

3 They sent envoys to sue for peace,

who said: 'We are servants of the Great King Nebuchadnezzar, we lie prostrate before you; do with us as you please. Our buildings, our territory, our wheat fields, our flocks and herds and every sheepfold in our encampments, all are yours to do with as you wish. Our towns and their inhabitants are subject to you; come and deal with them as you think fit.'

When the envoys came to Holophernes with this message, he went down to the coast with his army and garrisoned all the fortified towns, taking from them picked men as auxiliaries. Both there and in all the surrounding country he was welcomed with garlands, dancing, and tambourines. He demolished all their sanctuaries<sup>f</sup> and cut down their sacred groves, for he had been commissioned to destroy all the gods of the land, so that Nebuchadnezzar alone should be worshipped by every nation and invoked as a god by men of every tribe and tongue.

Holophernes then advanced towards Esdraelon, near Dothan, which faces the great ridge of Judaea, and encamped between Geba and Scythopolis, where he remained for a whole month to collect supplies for his army.

WHEN THE ISRAELITES WHO LIVED IN Judaea heard of all that had been done to the nations by Holophernes, the commander-in-chief of Nebuchadnezzar king of Assyria, and how he had plundered and totally destroyed all their temples, they were terrified at his approach. They were in great alarm for Jerusalem and for the temple of the Lord their God. For they had just

<sup>e</sup> Or crossed. <sup>f</sup> So one Vs.; Gk. borders.

2.14-3.10: Holophernes ravages the west as far as Palestine. 21: Three days to march from Nineveh to Bectileth (unknown city) in Upper Cilicia (southeastern Asia Minor) is impossible since the distance is about three hundred miles. 23: Put and Lud are perhaps in Asia Minor. Rassis is unknown. Ishmaelites usually means Arabs. The Cheleans are unknown. 24-28: The route of invasion is very erratic and most unlikely. Such an imposing list of victims is given for psychological and theological rather than historical purposes. 24: The Abron is unknown. 25: Japheth is unknown as a place name. 28: Sur and Okina are perhaps Dor and Acco in western Galilee. Jemnaan may be Jamnia, this one on the Lake of Galilee; Azotus (Ashdod) and Ascalon (Ashkelon) are Philistine cities. 3.8: The Babylonian rulers never claimed divine rights, but the Seleucid kings did (Dan.3.1-7). The persecution of the Jews by the Seleucids seems to be alluded to here. See 1.1 n.; 2.4 n.; 2 Macc.9.1-12. 9: Esdraelon: the great plain that lies between Galilee and Samaria. 10: Geba: a town in central Palestine. Scythopolis: Beth-shan, south of the Lake of Galilee.

4.1-15: The Israelites prepare to defend their land and Temple. 3: The Israelites could not returned from captivity, and it was only recently that the people had been re-united in Judaea, and the sacred vessels, the temple, and the altar sanctified after their profanation. So they sent out a warning to the whole of Samaria, Cona, Beth-horon, Belmain and Jericho, Choba and Aesora and the valley of Salem, and occupied the tops of all the high hills. They fortified the villages on them and laid up stores of food in preparation for war; for their fields had just been harvested. Joakim, who was high priest in Jerusalem at the time, wrote to the people of Bethulia and Bethomesthaim, which is opposite Esdraelon facing the plain near Dothan. He ordered them to occupy the passes into the hill-country, because they controlled access to Judaea, and it was easy to hold up an advancing army, for the approach was only wide enough for two men. The Israelites obeyed the orders of the high priest Joakim and the senate of all Israel in Jerusalem. Fervently they sent up a cry to God, every man of Israel, and fervently they humbled themselves before him. They put on sackcloth—they themselves, their wives, their children, their livestock, and every resident foreigner, hired labourer, and slave—and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, men, women, and children, prostrated themselves in front of the sanctuary, and, with ashes on their heads, spread out their sackcloth before the Lord. They draped the altar in sackcloth, and with one voice they earnestly implored the God of Israel not to allow their children to be captured, their wives carried off, their ancestral cities destroyed, and the temple profaned and dishonoured, to the delight of the heathen. The Lord heard their prayer and pitied their distress.

For many days the whole population of Judaea and Jerusalem fasted before the sanctuary of the Lord Almighty. Joakim the high priest and the priests who stood in the presence of the Lord, and all who served in the temple, wore sackcloth when they offered the regular burnt-offering and the votive and free-will offerings of the people; and with ashes on their turbans they cried aloud to the Lord to look favourably on the whole house of Israel.

When it was reported to Holo- phernes, the Assyrian commander-in-chief, that the Israelites had prepared for war, and that they had closed the passes in the hill-country, fortified all the heights, and dug pitfalls in the plains, he was furious. He summoned all the rulers of Moab, the Ammonite commanders, and all the governors of the coastal region, and said to them, 'Tell me, you Canaanites, what nation is this that lives in the hill-country? What towns do they inhabit? How big is their army? What gives them their power and strength? Who is the king that commands their forces? Why are they the only people of the west who have refused to come and meet me?'

Then Achior, the leader of all the Ammonites, said to him, 'My lord, if you will allow your servant to speak, I will tell you the truth about this nation that lives in the hill-country near here; and no lie shall pass my lips. They are descended from the Chaldaeans; and at one time they settled in Mesohave just returned from captivity because the return took place under the Persians, many years after Nebuchadnezzar; compare Ezra 1.1–11. The sanctification of the temple and altar may refer to the rededication of the Temple under Judas Maccabeus in 164 B.C.; see 1 Macc.4.52–55. Israel's history is here telescoped. 4: Cona, Belmain, Choba, and Aesora are unknown; the valley of Salem is an archaic name for Jerusalem (Gen.14.18). 6: Joakim may refer to a high priest (named Joiakim) mentioned in Neh.12.10–12,26 but the circumstances there are quite different. Bethulia, mentioned frequently in Jdt., is not mentioned elsewhere in the Bible; this would be unthinkable if the story were historical. Bethomesthaim is unknown. 8: There is no evidence of a high priest and a senate ruling in Jerusalem prior to Maccabean times (1 Macc.12.6; 2 Macc.11.27).

---

5.1–24: Achior, the Ammonite, briefs Holofernes on the history and religion of Israel. 3: Israel had generally controlled the hill-country where guerrilla tactics were effective; see Judg.1.19. 5: Achior plays the role of the "objective witness" who allows the author to recall the historical basis for Israel's uniqueness. 6: Chaldaeans: a reference to Abraham's origin (Gen.11.27–31). 7: Mesopotamia here refers to the region around Harran where Abraham stopped on his way to Palestine (Gen.11.31). The Bible makes no mention of any religious potamia, because they refused to worship the gods their fathers had worshipped in Chaldaea. They abandoned the ways of their ancestors and worshipped the God of Heaven, the god whom they now acknowledged. When the Chaldaeans drove them out from the presence of their gods they fled to Mesopotamia, where they lived for a long time. Then their god told them to leave their new home and go on to Canaan. They settled there and acquired great wealth in gold, silver, and livestock.

‘Because of a famine which spread over the whole of Canaan, they went down to Egypt and lived there as long as they were supplied with food. While in Egypt, they multiplied so greatly that their numbers could not be reckoned, and the king of Egypt turned against them. He exploited them by setting them to hard labour making bricks, and he reduced them to abject slavery. They cried out to their god, and he inflicted incurable plagues on the whole of Egypt. So the Egyptians turned them out; and their god dried up the Red Sea for them and led them on to Sinai and Cadesh-barnea. Then they drove out all the inhabitants of the wilderness and settled in the land of the Amorites, and they destroyed all the peoples of Heshbon by force of arms. After that they crossed the Jordan and occupied all the hill-country, driving out the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Shechemites, and all the Girgashites. There they settled for a long time.

‘As long as they did not sin against their god, they prospered; for theirs is a god who hates wickedness. But when they left the path he had laid down for them, they suffered heavy losses in many wars and were carried captive to a foreign country; the temple of their god was razed to the ground, and their towns were occupied by their enemies. But now that they have returned to their god, they have come back from the places where they had been dispersed, and have taken possession of Jerusalem, where their sanctuary is, and have settled in the hill-country, because it was uninhabited.

‘Now, my lord and master, if these people are guilty of an error and are sinning against their god, and if we find out that they have committed this offence, then we may go and make war on them. But if these people have committed no wickedness, leave them alone, my lord, for fear the god they serve should protect them and we become the laughing-stock of the world.’ When Achior stopped speaking there were protests from all those who stood round the tent. Holophernes’ officers and all the people from the coastal region and from Moab demanded that Achior should be cut to pieces. ‘We are not going to be afraid of the Israelites,’ they said, ‘a people quite incapable of putting an effective army in the field. Let us go ahead, Lord Holophernes; your great army will swallow them whole.’

When the hubbub among the men around the council had subsided, Holophernes, the Assyrian commander-in-chief, said to Achior and all the Ammonites, in the presence of the assembled foreigners: ‘And who are you, Achior, you and your Ammonite mercenaries, to play the prophet among us as you have done today, telling us not to make war against the people of Israel because their god will protect them? What god is there but Nebuchadnezzar? He will exert his power and wipe them off the face of the earth; and their god will not rescue them. We who serve Nebuchadnezzar will strike them all down as if they were only one man. They will not be able to stand up to the weight of our cavalry; we shall overwhelm them. Their mountains will be drenched with blood, and their plains filled with their dead. They cannot stand their ground against us; they will be completely wiped out. This is the decree of King Nebuchadnezzar, lord of the whole earth. He has spoken; and what he has said will problems in this context, but later Jewish tradition does. 14: Cadesh-barnea: Num.20.1. 15: Heshbon: Num.21.25-26.

6.1-21: Holophernes condemns Achior. 2: It is important for the author that the issue be

5 be made good. As for you, Achior, you Ammonite mercenary, the words you have spoken today are treason, so from today you shall not see my face again until I have taken vengeance on this brood of runaways from Egypt. But when I come back, the warriors of my bodyguard will run you through and add you to their victims. My men are going to take you away now to the hill-country and leave you in one of the towns in the passes. You will not die until you share their fate. If you are so confident that they will not fall into our hands, you need not look downcast. I have spoken; and nothing that I have said will fail to come true.'

10 Then Holophernes ordered his men, who were standing by in his tent, to seize Achior, take him off to Bethulia, and hand him over to the Israelites. So they seized him and took him outside the camp to the plain, and from there into the hill-country, until they arrived at the springs below Bethulia. When the men of the town saw them, they picked up their weapons and came out of the town to the top of the hill; then all the slingers pelted the enemy with stones to prevent them from coming up. But they slipped through under cover of the hill, tied Achior up and left him lying at the foot of it, and went back to their master. When the Israelites came down from the town and found him there, they untied him and took him into Bethulia, where they brought him before the town magistrates then in office, Ozias son of Mica, of the tribe of Simeon, and Chabris son of Gothoniel, and Charmis son of Melchiel. The magistrates summoned all the elders of the town; and all the young men and women came running to the assembly. When Achior had been brought before the people, Ozias asked him what had happened. He answered by telling them all that had taken place in Holophernes' council, what he himself had said in the presence of the Assyrian commanders, and how Holophernes had boasted of what he would do to Israel. Then the people prostrated themselves in worship and cried out to God: 'O Lord, God of heaven, mark their arrogance; pity our people in their humiliation; show favour this day to those who are thy own.' Then they reassured Achior and commended him warmly. Ozias took him from the assembly to his own house, and gave a feast for the elders; and all that night they invoked the help of the God of Israel.

THE NEXT DAY HOLOPHERNES ORDERED 7 his whole army and all his allies to strike camp and march on Bethulia, seize the passes into the hill-country, and make war on the Israelites. 2 So the whole force set out that day, an army of a hundred and seventy thousand infantry and twelve thousand cavalry, not counting the baggage train of the infantry, an immense host. They encamped in the valley near Bethulia, beside the spring; and their camp extended in breadth towards Dothan as far as Belbaim, and in length from Bethulia to Cyamon which faces Esdraelon. When the Israelites saw their numbers they said to each other in great alarm, 'These men will strip the whole country bare; the high mountains, the valleys, and the hills will never be able to bear the burden of them.' Then each man stood to arms; and they lit the beacons on the towers and remained on guard all that night.

On the following day Holophernes led out all his cavalry in full view of the Israelites in Bethulia, and reconnoitred the approaches to their town. He inspected the springs and seized them; and when he had stationed detachments of soldiers there, he returned to his army. Then all the rulers of the Edomites and all the leaders of Moab and strictly religious, i.e. what god is there? 5: Egypt: a derisive reference to the Exodus. 11: The springs below Bethulia: this is of little help for identification, because most towns in Palestine were built on a hill for defense and near a water supply. 19: The enemy represents the arrogance of any human attempt to displace God in history.

7.1-18: Holophernes lays siege to Bethulia. 3: Dothan: a town in the plain of Esdraelon; see 3.9 n. Belbaim . . . Cyamon: unknown. 7: Seizure of the springs was the first move in a siege, since the only other source of water was that collected in cisterns during the short rainy season; see v. 21. 8: Edomites: descendants of Esau, traditional enemies of Israel, are also added

the commanders from the coastal region 9 came to him and said, 'Listen to our advice, Lord Holofernes, and save your army from a crushing defeat.
 10 These Israelites do not trust in their spears but in the height of the mountains where they live; for it is no easy 11 task to get up to the tops of these mountains of theirs. Now, Lord Holofernes, avoid fighting a pitched battle with them, and you will not lose a single 12 man. Remain in your camp and keep your men in their quarters; but let your servants take possession of the spring 13 at the foot of the hill, for that is where all the townspeople of Bethulia get their water. When they are dying of thirst they will surrender the town. Meanwhile, we and all our people will go up to the tops of the neighbouring hills and camp there to see that not a man 14 gets away from the town. They and their wives and children will waste away with famine; and before the sword reaches them, their streets will be strewn with 15 their corpses. So you will make them pay heavily for rebelling against you,
 instead of receiving you peaceably.'
 16 Holofernes and all his staff approved
 this plan; and he gave orders that it 17 should be carried out. The Moabite force moved forward in company with five thousand Assyrians and encamped in the valley, where they seized the springs which were the Israelites' 18 water-supply. Then the Edomites and Ammonites went up and encamped in the hill-country opposite Dothan, and sent some of their number south-east<sup>g</sup>
 in the direction of Egrebel, which is near Chus on the Mochmur ravine.
 The rest of the Assyrian army encamped on the plain. They filled the entire country-side, their tents and baggage train forming an immense encampment, for they were a vast host.
 19 Then the Israelites cried out to the Lord their God. Their courage failed, because all their enemies had surrounded them and there was no way of 20 escape. The whole Assyrian army, infantry, cavalry, and chariots, kept them blockaded for thirty-four days. The citizens of Bethulia came to the end of their household supplies of water. The 21 cisterns too were running dry; drinking-water was so strictly rationed that there was never a day when their needs were satisfied. The children were lifeless, the 22 women and young men faint with thirst.

 They collapsed in the streets and gateways from sheer exhaustion.

Then all the people, young men, 23
 women, and children, gathered round Ozias and the magistrates of the town, shouting loudly. In the presence of the elders they said: 'May God judge be- 24
 tween us, for you have done us a great wrong in not coming to terms with the Assyrians. Now we have no one to help 25
 us. God has sold us into their power;
 they will find us dead of thirst, and the ground strewn with our corpses. Sur- 26 render to them; let Holofernes' people and his army sack the town. It is better 27 for us to be taken prisoner; for even as slaves we shall still be alive, and shall not have to watch our babies dying before our eyes, and our wives and children at their last gasp. We call 28 heaven and earth to witness, we call our God, the Lord of our fathers, to witness against you—the God who is punishing us for our sins and for the sins of our fathers. We pray that he may not let our forebodings come true this day.' Then the whole assembly broke 29 into loud lamentation and cried to the Lord God. Ozias said to them, 30
 'Courage, my friends! Let us hold out for five more days; by that time the Lord our God may show us his mercy again. Surely he will not finally desert us. But if by the end of that time no help has reached us, then I will do what you ask.' Then he dismissed the men 32 to their various posts; and they went off to the walls and towers of the town.
 The women and children he sent indoors. Throughout the town there was deep dejection.

<sup>g</sup> Or south and east.

to the picture here; see 1.1 n. 18: Egrebel, Chus, and Mochmur are located in the area southeast of Shechem.

7.19–32: The inhabitants of Bethulia contemplate surrender. 23–28: The complaints against Ozias are reminiscent of the bitter murmuring of the Israelites against Moses in the desert; see Num.14.2–3.

Judith kills Holofernes

8 NEWS OF WHAT WAS HAPPENING reached Judith, daughter of Merari, son of Ox, son of Joseph, son of Oziel, son of Helkias, son of Elias, son of Chelkias, son of Eliab, son of Nathanael, son of Salamiel, son of Sarasadae, 2 son of Israel. Her husband Manasses, who belonged to her own tribe and clan, had died at the time of barley 3 harvest. While he was out in the fields supervising the binding of the sheaves, he got sunstroke, took to his bed, and died in Bethulia his native town; and they buried him beside his ancestors in the field between Dothan and Balamon. 4 For three years and four months Judith 5 had lived at home as a widow; she had a shelter erected on the roof of her house; she put on sackcloth and always 6 wore mourning. After she became a widow she fasted every day except sabbath eve, the sabbath itself, the eve of the new moon, the new moon, and the Israelite feasts and days of public re- 7 joicing. She was a very beautiful and attractive woman. Her husband Manasses had left her gold and silver, male and female slaves, livestock and land, and 8 she lived on her estate. No one spoke ill of her, for she was a very devout woman. 9 When Judith heard of the shameful attack which the people had made upon Ozias the magistrate, because they were demoralized by the shortage of water, and how he had sworn to surrender the town to the Assyrians after five days, 10 she sent her maid who had charge of all her property to ask Ozias, Chabris, and Charmis, the elders of the town, to come and see her. When they arrived she said to them: 'Listen to me, magistrates of Bethulia. You had no right to speak as you did to the people today, and to bind yourselves by oath before God to surrender the town to our enemies if the Lord sends no relief within so many days. Who are you to test God 12 at a time like this, and openly set yourselves above him? You are putting the 13 Lord Almighty to the proof. You will never understand! You cannot plumb 14 the depths of the human heart or understand the way a man's mind works; how then can you fathom man's Maker? How can you know God's mind, and grasp his thought? No, my friends, do not rouse the anger of the Lord our God. For even if he does not 15 choose to help us within the five days, he is free to come to our rescue at any time he pleases, or equally to let us be 16 destroyed by our enemies. It is not for you to impose conditions on the Lord our God; God will not yield to threats or be bargained with like a mere man. So we must wait for him to deliver us, 17 and in the mean time appeal to him for help. If he sees fit he will hear us.

'There is not one of our tribes or 18 clans, districts or towns, that worships man-made gods today, or has done so within living memory. This did happen 19 in days gone by, and that was why our ancestors were abandoned to their enemies to be slaughtered and pillaged, and great was their downfall. But we ac- 20 knowledge no god but the Lord, and so we are confident that he will not spurn us or any of our race. For our capture will mean the loss of all Judaea, and our temple will be looted; and God will hold us responsible for its desecration. The slaughter and deportation of our 21 fellow-countrymen, and the laying waste of the land we inherited, will bring his judgement upon us wherever we become slaves among the Gentiles. Our masters will regard us with disgust and contempt. There will be no happy 23

8.1-13.20: Judith and Holofernes. Risking honor and life, she combines great faith, grim courage, and scrupulous observance of the Law in liberating Israel.

8.1-8: Judith is introduced. 1: Judith is the feminine form of Judah. Perhaps the name, which occurs passingly in Gen.26.34, symbolizes the Jewish people. Judith's ancestors, aside from Israel (Jacob), cannot be identified. 3: Dothan: 7.3 n. Balamon: unknown. 6: The OT requires fasting only on the Day of Atonement. Rabbinic Judaism increased the number of fast days. Judith's fasting beyond the requirement implies an extraordinary piety.

8.9-36: Judith upbraids the magistrates and promises that God will deliver the city by her hand. 11-27: Judith's eloquent exhortation is an expression of what faith requires of Israel in the postexilic period of apparent abandonment by God. 12: To test God: to lay down conditions (v. 16) for God's action, e.g. to hold out for five days more (7.30). 18: This favorable judgment ending to our servitude, no return to favour; the Lord our God will use it to dishonour us.

- 24 'So then, my friends, let us set an example to our fellow-countrymen; for their lives depend on us, and the fate of the sanctuary, the temple, and the altar rests with us. We have every reason to give thanks to the Lord our God; he is putting us to the test as he did our ancestors. Remember how he dealt with Abraham and how he tested Isaac, and what happened to Jacob in Syrian Mesopotamia when he was working as a shepherd for his uncle Laban. He is not subjecting us to the fiery ordeal by which he tested their loyalty, or taking vengeance on us: it is for discipline that the Lord scourges his worshippers.'
- 28 Ozias replied, 'You are quite right; everything you say is true, and no one can deny it. This is not the first time that you have given proof of your wisdom. Throughout your life we have all recognized your good sense and the soundness of your judgement. But the people were desperate with thirst and compelled us to make this promise and to pledge ourselves by an oath we may not break. Now, you are a devout woman; pray for us and ask the Lord to send rain to fill our cisterns, and then we shall no longer faint for lack of water.'
- 32 'Hear what I have to say', replied Judith. 'I am going to do a deed which will be remembered among our people for all generations. Be at the gate tonight yourselves, and I will go out with my maid. Before the day on which you have promised to surrender the town to our enemies, the Lord will deliver Israel by my hand. But do not try to find out my plan; I will not tell you until I have accomplished what I mean to do.' Ozias and the magistrates said to her, 'Go with our blessing, and may God be with you to take vengeance on our enemies.' So they left the roof-shelter and returned to their posts.

Then Judith prostrated herself, put ashes on her head, and uncovered the sackcloth she was wearing; and at the time when the evening incense was being offered in the temple in Jerusalem, she cried to the Lord: 'O Lord, the God of my forefather Simeon! Thou didst put in his hand a sword to take vengeance on those foreigners who had stripped off a virgin's veil to defile her, uncovered her thighs to shame her, and polluted her womb to dishonour her. Thou didst say, "It shall not be done"; yet they did it. So thou didst give up their rulers to be slain, and their bed, which blushed for their treachery, to be stained with blood; beneath thy stroke slaves fell dead upon the bodies of princes, and princes upon their thrones. Thou didst give up their wives as booty, and their daughters as captives, and all their spoils to be divided among thy beloved sons, who, aflame with zeal for thy cause and aghast at the pollution of their blood, called on thee to help them. O God, thou art my God, hear now a widow's prayer. All that happened then, and all that happened before and after, thou didst accomplish. The things that are now, and are yet to be, thou hast designed; and what thou didst design has come to pass. The things thou hast foreordained present themselves and say, "We are here." Thy ways are prepared beforehand: foreknowledge determines thy judgement.

'Thou seest the Assyrians assembled in their strength, proud of their horses and riders, boasting of the power of their infantry, and putting their faith in shield and javelin, bow and sling. They do not know that thou art the Lord was generally accurate in the period after the Exile. 25: God puts Israel to the test by awaiting a response of fidelity to himself in her difficulties. The argument is built on an antithesis: it is not that man tests God (v. 12) but, rather, God tests man. 27: That suffering be viewed as discipline is a faith interpretation of history. 33: The context and language are reminiscent of God's intervention to lead his people from Egypt by the hand of Moses (Exod. ch. 9). See also 13.14; 15.10.

9.1-14: Judith's prayer. 1: The time of the evening offering was considered a most propitious moment for prayer. See Exod.30.8; 1 Kgs.18.36. 2: Simeon and Levi slaughtered the Shechemites for having violated their sister Dinah (Gen. ch. 34). But see also Gen.49.5-7 where their violence is condemned. 4: The widow's prayer is the object of special divine attention and care in the OT. See Deut.10.18; Ecclus.35.14-15. 7: A strong pacifist current developed in Israel beginning who stamps out wars; the Lord is thy 8 name. Shatter their strength by thy power and crush their might in thy anger. For they have planned to desecrate thy sanctuary, to pollute the dwelling-place of thy glorious name,

 and to strike down the horns of thy 9 altar with the sword. Mark their arrogance, pour thy wrath on their heads, and give to me, widow as I am, the 10 strength to achieve my end. Use the deceit upon my lips to strike them dead, the slave with the ruler, the ruler
 with the servant; shatter their pride 11 by a woman's hand. For thy might lies not in numbers nor thy sovereign power in strong men; but thou art the God of the humble, the help of the poor, the support of the weak, the protector of the desperate, the deliverer of the hope-12 less. Hear, O hear, thou God of my forefather, God of Israel's heritage, ruler of heaven and earth, creator of the waters, king of all thy creation, hear 13 thou my prayer. Grant that my deceitful words may wound and bruise them;
 for they have cruel designs against thy covenant, thy sacred house, the summit of Zion, and thy children's home, their 14 own possession. Give thy whole nation and every tribe the knowledge that thou alone art God, God of all power and might, and that thou and thou alone art Israel's shield.'

101-2 When Judith had ended her prayer, prostrate before the God of Israel, she rose, called her maid, and went down into the house, where she was accustomed to spend her sabbaths and festi-3 vals. She removed the sackcloth she was wearing and took off her widow's weeds; then she washed, and anointed herself with rich perfume. She did her hair, put on a headband, and dressed in her gayest clothes, which she used to wear when her husband Manasses was 4 alive. She put on sandals and anklets, bracelets and rings, her ear-rings and all her ornaments, and made herself very attractive, so as to catch the eye of any man who might see her. She gave her 5 maid a skin of wine and a flask of oil;

 then she filled a bag with roasted grain,
 cakes of dried figs, and the finest bread, packed everything up, and gave it all to her maid to carry.

They went out towards the gate of 6 Bethulia and found Ozias standing there, with Chabris and Charmis the elders of the town. When they saw 7 Judith transformed in appearance and quite differently dressed, they were filled with admiration of her beauty, and said to her, 'The God of our fathers 8 grant you favour and fulfil your plans
 so that Israel may triumph and Jerusalem may be exalted!' Judith bowed to God in worship. Then she said to 9 them, 'Order the gate to be opened for me, and I will go out to accomplish all that you say.' They ordered the young men to open the gate as she had asked.
 When they had done so, Judith went 10 out, accompanied by her maid; and the men of the town watched her until she had gone down the hill-side and crossed the valley, and then they lost sight of her.

The women went straight across the 11 valley and were met by an Assyrian outpost; they seized Judith and ques-12 tioned her: 'What is your nationality?
 Where have you come from? Where are you going?' 'I am a Hebrew,' she replied; 'but I am running away from my people, because they are going to fall into your hands and be devoured.
 I am on my way to Holophernes, your 13 commander-in-chief, with reliable information. I will show him a route by which he can gain command of the entire hill-country without losing a single man.'

As the men listened to her story they 14 looked at her face and were amazed at her beauty. 'You have saved your life', 15 they said, 'by coming down at once to see our master. Go to his tent straight away. Some of us will escort you and with Isa.2.4. See also 16.3. 10: The pious Judith prays for the success of her deceit because trickery was considered a very honorable weapon in war; see Josh.9.3-27.

---

10.1-17: Judith goes to Holophernes. 1-2: Went down into the house: from the tent on the roof where she spent most of her time. See 8.5. 5: Judith packed . . . up her own food so that she would not be defiled by eating unclean food of the Gentiles; see 12.1-4. 12: Running away from a city was not uncommon when a siege reached the decisive stage; see Jer.38.19; 39.9; 2 Chr.30.10.

16 hand you over to him. When you are in his presence, do not be afraid; just tell him what you have told us, and he will treat you kindly.' They detailed a hundred of their number to accompany her and her maid, and they brought the two women to Holophernes' tent.

18 AS THE NEWS OF HER ARRIVAL SPREAD from tent to tent, men came running from all parts of the camp. They gathered round her as she stood outside Holophernes' tent waiting until he had been told about her. Her wonderful beauty made them think that the Israelites must be a wonderful people. They said to each other, 'Who can despise a nation which has such women as this? We had better not leave a man of them alive, for if they get away they will be able to outwit the whole world.'

20 Then Holophernes' bodyguard and all his attendants came out and took her into the tent. He was resting on his bed under a mosquito-net of purple interwoven with gold, emeralds, and precious stones. When Judith was announced he came out into the front part of the tent, with silver lamps carried before him. He and his attendants were all amazed at the beauty of her face as she stood before them. She prostrated herself and did obeisance to him; but his slaves raised her up.

11 'Take heart, madam,' said Holophernes; 'do not be afraid. I have never harmed anyone who chose to serve Nebuchadnezzar, king of all the earth. I should never have raised my spear against your people in the hill-country if they had not insulted me; they brought it on themselves. Now tell me why you have run away from them and joined us. By coming here you have saved your life. Take heart! You are in no danger tonight or in the future; no one will harm you. You will enjoy the good treatment which is given to the subjects of my master King Nebuchadnezzar.'

Judith replied, 'My lord, grant your slave a hearing and listen to what I have to say to you. The information I am giving you tonight is the truth. If you follow my advice, God will do some great thing through you, and my lord will not fail to attain his ends. By the life of Nebuchadnezzar, king of all the earth, and by the living might of him who sent you to bring order to all creatures, I swear: not only do men serve him, thanks to you, but wild animals also, cattle and birds, will owe their lives to your power as long as Nebuchadnezzar and his dynasty reign.<sup>h</sup> We have heard how wise and clever you are. You are known throughout the world as the man of ability unrivalled in the whole empire, of powerful intelligence and amazing skill in the art of war. We know about the speech that Achior made in your council, because the men of Bethulia rescued him, and he told them what he had said to you. Do not disregard what he said, my lord and master, but give full weight to his words. They are true. No punishment ever falls on our race and the sword does not subdue them, except when they sin against their God. But now, my lord, you are not to be thwarted and cheated of success, for they are doomed to die. Sin has them in its power, and when they do wrong they will arouse their God's anger. Because they have run out of food and their water-supply is low, they have decided to lay hands on their cattle; they mean to consume everything that God by his laws has prohibited as food; and they have resolved to use up the <sup>h</sup> not only . . . reign: or thanks to you and to your power, not only do men serve him, but wild animals also, cattle, and birds, will live at the disposal of Nebuchadnezzar and his household; the text and meaning are uncertain.

10.18-11.23: Judith is welcomed by Holophernes and explains her errand. 19: Outwit the whole world: superb irony. The Assyrians note that the trap into which they are falling would make a very good trap! 11.3-4: Holophernes guarantees freedom from danger to his prospective executioner! The Bible delights in showing how God uses evil men to carry out his benevolent designs. 6: God will do some great thing through you has an altogether different meaning for Judith than for Holophernes. Judith's conversation is full of such delightful ambiguities. 13: Firstfruits . . . tithes were reserved for priests by Mosaic Law. See Exod.23.19; Lev.23.15-21; 27.30. The requirements of the Law (see Deut.26.1-15) seem to be extended here, possibly reflecting early quasi-Pharisaic interpretation and extension. Judith uses the same argument as Achior had done (5.17-21) but affirms Israel's guilt. It was commonly believed by the ancients

firstfruits of the grain and the tithes of wine and oil, although these are dedicated and reserved for the priests who stand in attendance before our God in Jerusalem, and no layman may 14 so much as handle them. They have sent men to Jerusalem to get permission from the senate, because even the 15 people there have done this. As soon as ever word reaches them and they act on it, on that very day they will be given up to you to be destroyed.

16 'So, my lord, when I learnt all this, I ran away from them; and God has sent me to do with you things that will be the wonder of the world, wherever 17 men hear about them. For I, your servant, am a religious woman: day and night I worship the God of heaven. I will stay with you now, my lord; and each night I shall go out into the valley and pray to God, and he will tell me when they have committed their 18 sins. Then, when I return and bring you word, you may lead out your whole army, and you will meet with no resistance from any of them. I will guide
19 you across Judaea until you reach Jerusalem, and I will set up your throne in the heart of the city. They will follow you like sheep that have lost their shepherd, and not a dog will so much as growl at you. I have been given foreknowledge of this. It has been revealed to me, and I have been sent to announce it to you.'

20 Judith's words delighted Holophernes and all his attendants, and they were amazed at her wisdom. 'In the whole wide world', they said, 'there is not a woman to compare with her for beauty of face or shrewdness of 22 speech.' Holophernes said to her, 'Thank God for sending you out from your people, to bring strength to us and destruction to those who have insulted 23 my lord! You are a beautiful woman and your words are good. If you do as you have promised, your God shall be my God, and you shall live in King Nebuchadnezzar's palace and be renowned throughout the world.'

Holophernes then commanded them
12 to bring her in where his silver was set out, and he ordered a meal to be served for her from his own food and wine. But Judith said, 'I will not eat any of it, in case I should be breaking our law.
2 What I have brought with me will meet my needs.' Holophernes said to her,
3 'But if you use up all you have with you, where can we get you a fresh supply of the same kind? There is no one of your race here among us.' Judith replied,
4 'As sure as you live, my lord, I shall not finish what I have brought with me before the Lord accomplishes through me what he has planned.'

Holophernes' attendants brought her
5 into the tent; and she slept until midnight. Shortly before the morning watch she got up and sent this message
6 to Holophernes: 'My lord, will you give orders for me to be allowed to go out and pray?' Holophernes ordered his 7 bodyguard to let her pass. She remained in the camp for three days, going out each night into the valley of Bethulia and bathing in the spring. When she 8 came up from the spring, she prayed the Lord, the God of Israel, to prosper her undertaking to restore her people. Then she returned to the camp purified, 9 and remained in the tent until she took her meal towards evening.

ON THE FOURTH DAY HOLOPHERNES
10 gave a banquet for his personal servants only, and did not invite any of the army officers. He said to Bagoas, the 11 eunuch in charge of all his affairs: 'Go to the Hebrew woman who is in your care, and persuade her to join us and to eat and drink with us. It would be a 12 disgrace if we let such a woman go without enjoying her company. If that ritual transgression was followed by punishment. 17: By going out each night, Judith is establishing a pattern of conduct that will permit her later escape (13.10).

---

12.1-9: Judith prepares for the opportune moment. 2: Judith's scrupulous observance of the dietary laws reflects a norm of postexilic Jewish piety. 5-9: That Holophernes is so easily manipulated is patently a literary device.

12.10-20: Holophernes invites Judith to a banquet. 11: Bagoas is a common Persian name (see 1.1 n.). A eunuch was usually in charge of the king's harem but in some cases he was also an important and influential person at court (Gen.37.36 n.; Dan.1.3).

we do not win her favours she will 13 laugh at us.' Bagoas left Holophernes' presence, and went to Judith and said, 'Now, my beauty, do not be bashful; come along to my master and give yourself the honour of his company. Drink with us and enjoy yourself, and behave today like one of the Assyrian women in attendance at Nebuchadnezzar's
 14 palace.' 'Who am I to refuse my master?' said Judith. 'I am eager to do whatever pleases him; and it will be something to boast of till my dying
 15 day.' She proceeded to dress herself up and put on all her feminine finery. Her maid went ahead of her, and spread on the ground in front of Holophernes the fleeces which she had received from Bagoas for her daily use, so that she might recline on them when 16 she ate. When Judith came in and took her place, Holophernes was beside himself with desire for her. He shook with passion and was filled with an ardent longing to possess her; indeed he had been looking for an opportunity to seduce her ever since he first set eyes 17 on her. So he said to her, 'Drink and enjoy yourself with us.' 'Indeed I will, my lord,' said Judith; 'today is the 19 greatest day of my whole life.' Then she took what her servant had prepared, and ate and drank in his presence.
 20 Holophernes was delighted with her, and drank a great deal of wine, more, indeed, than he had ever drunk on any single day since he was born.
 13 When it grew late, Holophernes' servants quickly withdrew. Bagoas closed the tent from outside, shutting out all the attendants from his master's presence, and they went to bed; the banquet had lasted so long that they
 2 were all worn out. Judith was left alone in the tent, with Holophernes lying sprawled on his bed, dead drunk,
 3 Judith had told her maid to stand outside the sleeping-apartment and wait for her mistress to go out, as she did every day; she had said that she would be going out to pray, and had 4 explained this to Bagoas also. When they had all gone and not a soul was left, Judith stood beside Holophernes' bed and prayed silently: 'O Lord, God of all power, look favourably now on what I am about to do to bring glory

 5 to Jerusalem, for now is the time to help thy heritage and to give success to my plan for crushing the enemies who have risen up against us.' She went
 6 to the bed-rail beside Holophernes' head and took down his sword, and stepping 7 close to the bed she grasped his hair. 'Now give me strength, O Lord, God of Israel', she said; then she struck at 8 his neck twice with all her might, and cut off his head. She rolled the body 9 off the bed and took the mosquito-net from its posts; a moment later she went out and gave Holophernes' head to the 10 maid, who put it in her food-bag. The two of them went out together, as they had usually done for prayer. Through the camp they went, and round that valley, and up the hill to Bethulia till they reached the gates.

From a distance Judith called to the 11 sentries at the gates: 'Open! Open the gate! God, our God is with us, still showing his strength in Israel and his 12 might against our enemies. He has shown it today!' When the citizens heard her voice, they hurried down to the gate and summoned the elders of 13 the town. Everyone high and low came running, hardly able to believe that Judith had returned. They opened the gate and let the two women in; they lit
 14 a fire to see by, and gathered round them. Then Judith raised her voice and cried, 'Praise God! O praise him! Praise God, who has not withdrawn his mercy from the house of Israel, but has 15 crushed our enemies by my hand this very night!' Then she took the head from the bag and showed it to them. 'Look!' she said. 'The head of Holophernes, the Assyrian commander-in-chief! And here is the net under which he lay 16 drunk! The Lord has struck him down by the hand of a woman! And I swear by the Lord who has brought me safely along the way I have travelled that,

13.1–20: Judith returns to Bethulia with the head of Holophernes. 6: His sword: a scimitar or dagger. 9: Judith took the mosquito-net as proof that she had been with Holophernes, since the men of Bethulia could scarcely have recognized him (v. 15). 14: By my hand: 8.33 n. 15: To be struck down by the hand of a woman was the ultimate disgrace for a warrior; see Judg.9.54.

though my face lured him to destruction, he committed no sin with me, and my honour is unblemished.'

- 17 The people were all astounded; and bowing down in worship to God, they said with one voice, 'Praise be to thee, O Lord our God, who hast humiliated the enemies of thy people this day.'
- 18 And Ozias said to Judith, 'My daughter, the blessing of God Most High is upon you, you more than all other women on earth; praise be to the Lord, the God who created heaven and earth, and guided you when you struck off the
- 19 head of the enemy commander. The sure hope which inspired you<sup>i</sup> will never fade from men's minds while they commemorate the power of God. May God
- 20 make your deed redound to your honour for ever, and shower blessings upon you! You risked your life for our country when it was faced with humiliation. You went boldly to meet the disaster that threatened us, and held firmly to God's straight road.' All the people responded: 'Amen! Amen!'

The triumph of Israel

- 14 THEN JUDITH SAID TO THEM, 'LISTEN TO me, my friends; take this head and hang it out on the battlements of your wall.
- 2 As soon as dawn breaks and the sun rises, take up your weapons, every able-bodied man of you, and march out of the town. You must set a commander at your head, as if you were going down to the plain to attack the Assyrian out-
- 3 post; but do not go down. The Assyrians will take up their weapons and make for their camp, and rouse the commanders, who will run to Holofernes' tent but will not find him. They will all be seized with panic and
- 4 will flee from you; then pursue them, you and all who live within Israel's borders, and cut them down in their
- 5 tracks. But first of all summon Achior the Ammonite to me, so that he may see and recognize the man who treated Israel with contempt and sent him to us as if to his death.'

They summoned Achior from Ozias's 6 house. When he came and saw Holofernes' head held by one of the men in the assembly of the people, he fainted and fell down. They lifted him up, and 7 he threw himself at Judith's feet and did obeisance to her, and said, 'Your praises will be sung in every camp in Judah and among all nations. They will tremble when they hear your name. Tell me now the whole story of what 8 you have done during these days.' Then Judith, in the hearing of the people, told him everything from the day she left until that very moment. As she 9 ended her story, the people raised a great shout and made the town ring with their cheers. And when Achior 10 realized all that the God of Israel had done, he came to full belief in God, and was circumcised, and admitted as a member of the community of Israel, as his descendants still are.

When dawn came they hung Holofernes' head on the wall; then they all 11 took their weapons and went out in companies into the approaches to the town. When the Assyrians saw them, 12 they sent word to their leaders, who then went to the generals, captains, and all the other officers. They came to 13 Holofernes' tent and said to his steward: 'Wake our master. These slaves have had the audacity to offer us battle; they are asking to be utterly 14 wiped out.' Bagoas went in and knocked at the screen of the inner tent, supposing that Holofernes was sleeping 15 with Judith. When there was no reply, he drew aside the screen, went into the sleeping-apartment, and found the dead 16 body sprawling over a footstool, and the head gone. He gave a great cry, wailing and groaning aloud, and tore 17 his clothes. Then he went into the tent which Judith had occupied; and not

i Or which you inspire.

18-20: Judith's victory is proof that power and violence can be conquered by faith and wisdom. The weak, oppressed, and demoralized postexilic Israel needs this reminder.

14.1-15.7: Judith directs the men of Bethulia in victory. 5: There is a double purpose in calling Achior: to recognize, i.e. identify the head of Holofernes and to see the defeat of the man who treated Israel with contempt, and thereby to have his witness to the vindication of Israel's God. 10: Achior's conversion to Judaism represents a more lenient view than that in Deut.23.3. 13: These slaves: this is a contemptuous reference to Israel's condition in Egypt.

finding her he rushed out to the people 18 shouting, 'The slaves have played us false. One Hebrew woman has brought shame on Nebuchadnezzar's kingdom.
 Look! Holofernes is lying on the 19 ground, and his head is gone!' His words filled the officers of the Assyrian army with dismay; they tore their clothes, and the camp rang with their shouts and cries.

15 When the news spread to the men in the camp, they were thrown into con-2 sternation at what had happened. In terror and panic they all scattered at once, with no attempt to keep together, and fled by every path across the plain 3 and the hill-country. Those who were encamped in the hills round Bethulia also took to flight. Then all the Israelites of military age sallied out after 4 them. Ozias sent men to Bethomesthaim, Choba, and Chola, and the whole territory of Israel, to give news
 of what had happened and to tell them to sally out against the enemy and 5 destroy them. When the news reached them, every man in Israel joined the attack and cut them down, going as far as Choba. The men from Jerusalem and all the hill-country also joined in,
 for they had been told what had happened in the enemy camp. The men of Gilead and Galilee outflanked the Assyrians and inflicted heavy losses on them, continuing beyond Damascus 6 and the district round it. The rest of the inhabitants of Bethulia fell upon the camp and made themselves rich with 7 the spoils. When the Israelites returned from the slaughter, they took possession of what remained. The villages and hamlets in the hill-country and in the plain got masses of booty, for there was a huge quantity of it.

8 Joakim the high priest and the senate of Israel came from Jerusalem to see for themselves the great things the Lord had done for his people, and to meet 9 Judith and wish her well. When they arrived they praised her with one voice and said, 'You are the glory of Jerusalem, the heroine of Israel, the proud boast of our people! With your own 10 hand you have done all this, you have restored the fortunes of Israel, and God has shown his approval. Blessings on you from the Lord Almighty, for all time to come!' And all the people responded, 'Amen!'

The looting of the camp went on for 11 thirty days. They gave Judith Holophernes' tent, with all his silver, and his couches, bowls, and furniture. She took them and loaded her mule, then got her wagons ready and piled the goods on them. All the Israelite women came 12 running to see her; they sang her praises, and some of them performed a dance in her honour. She took garlanded wands in her hands and gave some also to the women who accompanied her; and she and those who were 13 with her crowned themselves with olive leaves. Then, at the head of all the people, she led the women in the dance;
 and the men of Israel, in full armour and with garlands on their heads, followed them singing hymns.

IN THE PRESENCE OF ALL ISRAEL, JUDITH 16 struck up this hymn of praise and thanksgiving, in which all the people joined lustily:

'Strike up a song to my God with 2
 tambourines;
 sing to the Lord with cymbals;
 raise a psalm of praise<sup>f</sup> to him;
 honour him and invoke his name.
 The Lord is a God who stamps out 3 wars;
 he has brought me safe from my pursuers
 into his camp among his people.
 The Assyrian came from the 4
 mountains of the north;
 his armies came in such myriads
 that his troops choked the valleys,
 his cavalry covered the hills.

j Some witnesses read a new psalm.

15.4: Ozias: a variant spelling of Uzziah. Bethomesthaim, Choba, and Chola have not been identified.

15.8-13: The heroism of Judith is extolled. 10: Your own hand: see 8.33 n. 12-13: The festive expressions described here are in keeping with Greek, not Jewish, custom. 13: She led the women in the dance, much as Miriam led the dance after Israel's victory over Egypt (Exod.15.20). Many of the features of this triumph are borrowed from Israel's prototypical Exodus victory.

16.1-17: Judith's hymn of thanksgiving. 3: Stamps out wars: see 9.7 n. 4: Assyria lies mostly

- 5 He threatened to set fire to my land,
put my young men to the sword,
dash my infants to the ground,
take my children as booty,
and my maidens as spoil.
- 6 The Lord Almighty has thwarted them by a woman's hand.
- 7 It was no young man that brought their champion low;
no Titan struck him down,
no tall giant set upon him;
but Judith daughter of Merari disarmed him by the beauty of her face.
- 8 She put off her widow's weeds
to raise up the afflicted in Israel;
she anointed her face with perfume,
and bound her hair with a headband,
and put on a linen gown to beguile
him.
- 9 Her sandal entranced his eye,
her beauty took his heart captive;
and the sword cut through his neck.
- 10 The Persians shuddered at her daring,
the Medes were daunted by her boldness.
- 11 Then my oppressed people shouted in triumph, and the enemy were afraid;
my weak ones shouted, and the enemy cowered in fear;
they raised their voices, and the enemy took to flight.
- 12 The sons of servant girls ran them through,
wounding them like runaway slaves;
they were destroyed by the army of my Lord.
- 13 'I will sing a new hymn to my God.
O Lord, thou art great and glorious,
thou art marvellous in thy strength,
invincible.
- 14 Let thy whole creation serve thee;
for thou didst speak and all things
came to be;
- thou didst send out thy spirit and it formed them.
No one can resist thy voice;
mountains and seas are stirred to their depths,
rocks melt like wax at thy presence;
but to those who revere thee
thou dost still show mercy.
For no sacrifice is sufficient to please thee with its fragrance,
and all the fat in the world is not enough for a burnt-offering,
but he who fears the Lord is always great.
- Woe to the nations which rise up against my people!
The Lord Almighty will punish them
on the day of judgement;
he will consign their bodies to fire
and worms;
they will weep in pain for ever.'
- When they arrived at Jerusalem they worshipped God. As soon as the people were purified, they offered their burnt-offerings, freewill offerings, and gifts.
Judith dedicated to God all Holophernes' possessions, which the people had given to her; and the net, which she had taken for herself from the sleeping-apartment, she presented as a votive offering. For three months the people continued their celebrations in Jerusalem in front of the sanctuary; and Judith remained with them.
- At the end of that time they all returned to their own homes. Judith went back to Bethulia and lived on her estate. In her time she was famous throughout the whole country. She had many suitors; but she remained unmarried all her life after her husband Manasses died and was gathered to his fathers. Her fame continued to increase;
and she lived on in her husband's house until she was a hundred and five years old. She gave her maid her liberty.
She died in Bethulia and was buried east of Palestine but the route of invasion was from the north. 7: Titan: Greek influence. 10: Persians . . . Medes: see 1.1 n. 14: Ps.33.6. 17: The entire book is devoted to the theme of the inviolability of God's people in a world of hostility on the part of the goddess nations. See 1.1 n.

16.18-25: After a feast in Jerusalem, Judith returns to Bethulia. 19: All Holofernes' possessions: an example of detachment from worldly goods, perhaps to console the poverty-stricken postexilic Jews. 23-24: A long life, praise from one's people, and generosity toward associates are all signs of a true Israelite.

in the same tomb as her husband
24 Manasses, and Israel observed mourning for her for seven days. Before her death she divided her property among all those who were most closely related to her husband Manasses, and among her own nearest relations.
No one dared to threaten the Israel- 25
ites again in Judith's lifetime, or for a long time after her death.

THE REST OF THE CHAPTERS OF THE BOOK OF ESTHER

WHICH ARE FOUND NEITHER IN THE HEBREW
NOR IN THE SYRIAC

NOTE. The portions of the Book of Esther commonly included in the Apocrypha are extracts from the Greek version of the book, which differs substantially from the Hebrew text (translated in The New English Bible: Old Testament). In order that they may be read in their original sequence, the whole of the Greek version is here translated, those portions which are not normally printed in the Apocrypha being enclosed in square brackets, with the chapter and verse numbers in italic figures. The order followed is that of the Greek text, but the chapter and verse numbers are made to conform to those of the Authorized Version. Proper names are given in the form in which they occur in the Greek version.

To the book of Esther, as found in the Hebrew, six sections were added either by the Greek translator himself, or only a short time later by someone else. These additions may be dated as coming from about 114 B.C.

When Jerome prepared his Latin Vulgate translation of the Old Testament from the Hebrew, he also translated these Greek additions to Esther, but grouped them together at the end of the Hebrew story. In the text here (see "Note"), the whole Greek version is reconstructed, with the additions inserted into their proper place in the story. (Compare the Book of Esther in the Old Testament.) It should be noted that the chapter and verse numbers here conform to Stephen Langton's arrangement of 1214 A.D., which followed Jerome's order of the text.

The account in the Greek version is substantially identical with the Hebrew. However, the Greek additions are significant because they supply an explicit religious element strangely lacking in the original, e.g. God is never mentioned in the Hebrew. The Greek version also inserts, through Mardocheaus' dream (10.4-9), an apocalyptic and cosmic element into the story; thereby the episode of a Jewish deliverance from a Persian pogrom becomes a sign of God's dramatic eleventh-hour victory over all secular powers at the end of history. Thus, the Feast of Purim, to which the story of Esther purportedly gave rise, is made an occasion for expressing the Jewish hope of eventual deliverance from historical adversities.

- 112 IN THE SECOND YEAR OF THE REIGN OF Artaxerxes the Great King, on the first day of Nisan, Mardocheaus son of Jairus, son of Semeius, son of Kisaesus, of the tribe of Benjamin, had 3 a dream. Mardocheaus was a Jew living in the city of Susa, a man of high standing, who was in the royal 4 service; he came of those whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had taken into exile from Jerusalem with Jechonias king of Judah. This was his dream: din and tumult, peals of 5 thunder and an earthquake, confusion upon the earth. Then appeared two 6 great dragons, ready to grapple with each other, and the noise they made was terrible. Every nation was roused 7 by it to prepare for war, to fight against the righteous nation. It was a day of darkness and gloom, with distress and anguish, oppression and great confusion upon the earth. And the whole righteous nation was troubled, dreading the evils in store for them, and they prepared for death. They cried aloud to God; and in answer to their cry there came as though from a little spring a great river brimming with water. It grew light, and the sun rose; the humble were exalted and they devoured the great. After he had had this dream and had seen what God had resolved to do, Mardocheaus woke; he kept it before his mind, seeking in every way to understand it, until nightfall.
8

11.2-12: Mardocheaus' dream. 2: Artaxerxes (Heb., Ahasuerus) is Xerxes I (485-464 B.C.). The second year of his reign is 484 B.C. The first day of Nisan is about March 15. Mardocheaus (Heb., Mordecai) is obviously a Jew but his name is probably Babylonian. 3: Susa: a city in Mesopotamia. 4: This deportation took place about 597 B.C., which would make Mardocheaus at least 113 years old at the time of his dream (v.2)! Jechonias is Jehoiachin (2 Kgs.24.12-13). 5-11: The imagery of the dream is apocalyptic; the dragons (antagonists) are Mardocheaus and Haman, while the divinely decreed victory is effected through Esther (the little spring). See 10.6-9. 7: Righteous nation: the Jews.

12 Now when Mardocheaus was resting in the royal courtyard with Gabatha and Tharra, the two eunuchs who guarded the courtyard, he heard them deep in discussion. He listened carefully to discover what was on their minds, and found that they were plotting violence against King Artaxerxes. He denounced them to the king, who had the two eunuchs interrogated. They confessed and were led away to execution. Then the king wrote an account of the affair, to have it on record; Mardocheaus also wrote an account of it. The king gave Mardocheaus an appointment at court, and rewarded him for his services. But Haman, the son of Hamadathus, a Bugaeon, who enjoyed the king's favour, sought to injure Mardocheaus and his people because of the two eunuchs.

A Jewess becomes queen in Persia

I [THOSE EVENTS HAPPENED IN THE DAYS of Artaxerxes, the Artaxerxes who ruled from India to Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces. At this time he sat on his royal throne in the city of Susa. Then in the third year of his reign he gave a banquet for the King's Friends and persons of various races, the Persian and Median nobles and the leading provincial governors. And afterwards, after displaying to them the wealth of his empire and the splendour of his rich festivities for a hundred and eighty days, when these days of feasting were over, the king gave a banquet for all the people of various races present in the city of Susa; it was held in the court of the king's palace and lasted six days. The court was decorated with white curtains of linen and cotton stretched on cords of purple, and these were attached to blocks of gold and silver resting on stone and marble columns. There were couches of gold and silver set on a pavement of malachite, marble, and mother-of-pearl. There were mats of transparent weave elaborately embroidered with roses arranged in a circle. The cups were of gold and silver, and there was displayed a miniature cup made of carbuncle worth thirty thousand talents. The wine was abundant and sweet, from the king's own cellar. The drinking was not according to a fixed rule, but the king had laid it down that all the stewards of his palace should respect his will and that of the guests. In addition, Queen Astin gave a banquet for the women in the same palace where King Artaxerxes was.

On the seventh day, when he was in high good humour, the king ordered Haman, Mazan, Tharra, Borazes, Zatholtha, Abataza, and Tharaba, the seven eunuchs who were in attendance on the king's person, to bring the queen

12.1-6: Mardocheaus discovers a plot against the king and is rewarded. 5: The Hebrew story (6.3) knows nothing of this reward. 6: Haman has the villain's role. He is here identified as a Bugaeon but in Esther 3.1 he is an Agagite. In 16.10 he is identified as a Macedonian although his father's name is Persian. It may be significant that Mardocheaus, like Saul, was a Benjamite (11.2) while Haman was apparently an Amalekite (1 Sam.15.8). Thus, there was a long previous historical basis for a blood feud between them.

1.1-9: Artaxerxes gives a lavish feast. 2: Susa was the winter residence of Persian kings; the official capital was Persepolis. 3: King's Friends: see 1 Macc.2.18 n. 7: Thirty thousand talents: the sum is astronomical. See Appendix, "Weights and Coins," p. 1035. The entire description seems to be greatly exaggerated. 9: Queen Astin in the Hebrew account is called Vashti. She must have been a current favorite since Xerxes' official wife was Amestris.

1.10-22: Queen Astin disobeys Artaxerxes and is dethroned. 10: The Hebrew version attributes the king's good humour to drinking. Eunuchs were originally in charge of the king's harem but before him, so that he might place the royal diadem on her head and let her display her beauty to the officers and people of various races; for she was indeed a beautiful woman. But Queen Astin refused to obey him and come with the eunuchs. This offended the king and made him angry.

13 Then the king said to his courtiers, 'You hear what Astin said. Give your ruling and judgement in the matter.'

14 Then the nobles of Persia and Media who were closest to the king—Harke-saeus, Sarsathaeus, and Malesear, who sat next him in the chief seats—approached him and declared what should be done according to the law to Queen Astin for disobeying the order which the king sent her by the eunuchs.

16 Then Muchaeus said to the king and the nobles: 'Queen Astin has done wrong, and not to the king alone, but to all his nobles and officers as well.' (For he had repeated to them what the queen had said and how she had defied the king.)

18 'And just as she defied King Artaxerxes, so now the nobles of Persia and Media will find that all their ladies are bold enough to treat their husbands with contempt, when they hear what she said to the king. If it please your majesty, let a royal decree go out from you, and let it be inscribed among the laws of the Medes and Persians, that Astin shall not again appear before the king; this is the only course. And let the king give her place as queen to another woman who is more worthy of it than she. Let whatever law the king makes be proclaimed throughout his empire, and then all women will give due honour to their husbands, rich and poor alike.' The advice pleased the king and the princes, and the king did as

22 Muchaeus had proposed. Letters were sent to all the provinces of the empire, to each province in its own language, in order that every man might be respected in his own house.

Later, when the anger of King 2 Artaxerxes had died down, he remembered Astin and what she had done, and how he had given judgement against her. So the king's attendants said: 'Let 2 beautiful girls of unblemished virtue be sought out for your majesty. Let your 3 majesty appoint commissioners in all the provinces of the empire to select these beautiful virgins and bring them to the city of Susa, into the women's quarters. There let them be committed to the care of the king's eunuch in charge of the women, and let them be provided with cosmetics and everything else they need. Then the one who is 4 most acceptable to the king shall become queen in place of Astin.' The advice pleased the king, and he acted on it.

Now there was a Jew in the city of 5 Susa named Mardocheaus, son of Jairus, son of Semeius, son of Kisaueus, of the tribe of Benjamin; he had been 6 carried into exile from Jerusalem when it was taken by Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon. He had a foster-child 7 named Esther, the daughter of his father's brother Aminadab. She had lost her parents, and he had brought her up to womanhood. She was a very beautiful girl. When the king's edict 8 was proclaimed, many girls were brought to Susa to be entrusted to Gai, who had charge of the women, and among them was Esther. She attracted 9 his notice and received his special favour: he readily provided her with her cosmetics and allowance of food, and also with seven maids assigned to her from the king's palace. He gave her and her maids honourable treatment in the women's quarters.

Esther had not disclosed her race or 10 country, because Mardocheaus had later they acquired positions of great influence (Gen.37.36 n.; Dan.1.3). 12: Perhaps Astin refused because the circumstances would have made her appearance degrading. 20: Such naivete may be due to the heavy drinking of these counselors!

2.1-14: Esther enters the competition to replace Queen Astin. 1-4: A beauty contest always makes for good storytelling. The scope of this contest serves to highlight the exceptional beauty of Esther. 3: Women's quarters: the harem. 5: Following the Hebrew version, the Greek text introduces Mardocheaus a second time; see 11.2-3. 7: Esther is derived from the Babylonian goddess Ishtar, who was related to the god Marduk, from whom Mardocheaus derived his name. 10: Concealment of Esther's background is important for the development of the story line; see 7.4.

11 forbidden her to do so. Every day Mardocheus passed along by the forecourt of the women's quarters to keep an eye on Esther and see what would happen to her.

12 The period after which a girl was to go to the king was twelve months. This was for the completion of the required treatment—six months with oil and myrrh and six months with perfumes and cosmetics. Then the girl went to the king. She was handed to the person appointed, and accompanied him from the women's quarters to the king's palace. She entered the palace in the evening and returned in the morning to Gai, the king's eunuch in charge of the women, in another part of the women's quarters. She did not go to the king again unless summoned by name.

15 When the time came for Esther, daughter of Aminadab the uncle of Mardocheus, to go to the king, she neglected none of the instructions of Gai the king's eunuch in charge of the women; for Esther charmed all who saw her. She was taken to King Artaxerxes in the twelfth month, that is, the month Adar, in the seventh year of his reign. The king fell in love with her, finding her more acceptable than any of the other girls, and crowned her with the queen's diadem. Then the king gave a banquet lasting seven days for all the King's Friends and the officers, to celebrate Esther's marriage. He also granted a remission of taxation to all subjects of his empire.

19 Mardocheus was in attendance in the courtyard. But Esther had not disclosed her country—such were the instructions of Mardocheus; but she was to fear God and keep his commandments just as she had done when she was with him. So Esther made no change in her way of life.

Two of the king's eunuchs, officers 21 of the bodyguard, were offended at the advancement of Mardocheus and plotted to kill King Artaxerxes. This 22 became known to Mardocheus, who told Esther, and she revealed the plot to the king. The king interrogated the 23 two eunuchs and had them hanged, and he ordered that the service Mardocheus had rendered should be recorded in the royal archives to his honour.

A plot against the Jews

AFTER THIS KING ARTAXERXES PROMOTED 3 Haman son of Hamadathus the Bugaeon, advancing him and giving him precedence above all the King's Friends. So all who were at court did 2 obeisance to Haman, for so the king had commanded; but Mardocheus did not do obeisance. Then the king's 3 courtiers said to him, 'Mardocheus, why do you flout the king's command?' Day by day they challenged him, but he 4 refused to listen to them. Then they informed Haman that Mardocheus was resisting the king's command. Mardocheus had told them that he was a Jew. So when Haman learnt that 5 Mardocheus was not doing obeisance to him, he was infuriated and plotted 6 to exterminate all the Jews under Artaxerxes' rule.

In the twelfth year of King Artaxerxes he arrived at a decision by casting lots, taking the days and the months

2.15-20: Esther wins the king's favor and is made queen. 16: Adar: February-March. The seventh year: four years after Queen Astin's dismissal; see 1.3. 18: King's Friends: see 1 Macc. 2.18 n. 20: Esther made no change in her way of life: she maintained dietary laws and other such Jewish observances.

2.21-23: Mardocheus saves the king's life. According to the Greek version (12.1-5), Mardocheus was advanced only after he revealed the plot. The Heb. version (Esther 6.2-3), which is itself uncertain, makes a point of the fact that Mardocheus was not rewarded for this service.

3.1-5.14: A plot against the Jews. Esther and Haman are pitted against each other as forces of good and evil.

3.1-6: Mardocheus refuses homage to Haman. 2: The obeisance prescribed was certainly the normal deference required for the office of grand vizier or prime minister. But Mardocheus, a Benjamite, considers it irreligious to bow before an Agagite (see 12.6 n. above). Such defiance is presented as an ideal of Jewish attitudes toward Gentiles.

3.7-13: Haman secures a royal edict to exterminate the Jews. 7: Twelfth year: about 474 B.C. In common practice important decisions were made by the impartial method of casting lots.

one by one, to decide on one day for the destruction of the whole race of Mardocheaus. The lot fell on the thirteenth<sup>a</sup> day of the month Adar.

- 8 Then Haman said to King Artaxerxes: "There is a certain nation dispersed among the other nations of your empire. Their laws are different from those of every other nation; they do not keep your majesty's laws. It is not to your majesty's advantage to tolerate 9 them. If it please your majesty, let an order be made for their destruction; and I will contribute ten thousand talents of silver to the royal treasury."
10 So the king took off his signet-ring and gave it to Haman to seal the decree against the Jews. "Keep the money, and deal with these people as you will", he said.
12 On the thirteenth day of the first month the king's secretaries were summoned, and in accordance with Haman's instructions, they wrote in the name of King Artaxerxes to his army commanders and governors in every province from India to Ethiopia. There were a hundred and twenty-seven provinces in all, and each was addressed 13 in its own language. Instructions were dispatched by courier to all the empire of Artaxerxes to exterminate the Jewish race, on a given day of the twelfth month, Adar, and to plunder their possessions.]

13 THIS IS A COPY OF THE LETTER:

Artaxerxes the Great King to the governors of the one hundred and twenty-seven provinces, from India to Ethiopia, and to the subordinate officials.

- 2 Ruler as I am over many nations and master of all the world, it is my will—not in the arrogance of power, but because my rule is mild and equitable—to ensure to my subjects a life permanently free from disturbance, to pacify my empire and make it safe for travel to its farthest limits, and to restore the peace that all men long for. I asked my counsellors how 3 this object might be achieved and received a reply from Haman. Haman is eminent among us for sound judgement, one whose worth is proved by his constant goodwill and steadfast loyalty, and who has gained the honour of the second

4 place at our court. He represented to us that scattered among all the races of the empire is a disaffected people, opposed in its laws to every nation, and continually ignoring the royal ordinances, so that our irreproachable plans for the unified administration of the empire cannot be made effective. We understand
5 that this nation stands alone in its continual opposition to all men, that it evades the laws by its strange manner of life, and in disloyalty to our government commits grievous offences, thus undermining the security of our empire. We therefore 6 order that those who are designated to you in the indictments drawn up by Haman, our vicegerent and second father, shall all, together with their wives and children, be utterly destroyed by the sword of their enemies, without mercy or pity, on the thirteenth<sup>b</sup> day of Adar, the twelfth month, of the present year. Those persons who have long been 7 disaffected shall meet a violent death in one day so that our government may henceforth be stable and untroubled.

<sup>a</sup> So some witnesses, and compare 8. 12 (page 93); other witnesses read fourteenth.

<sup>b</sup> Gk. fourteenth; see note on 3. 7 (pages 87-88).

The Akkadian word for "lot" is pur and this provides the name for the Feast of Purim to which this story was later attached; see 9.25-26. Thirteenth day: about March 1; see 2.16 n. 8: The standard complaint against the pious Jews was that they were different; see Wis.2.15; 1 Macc. ch. 2. 9: Ten thousand talents: an astronomical sum; see Appendix for "Weights and Coins," p. 1035. 12: First month: Nisan (March-April). The Persian empire was divided into thirteen administrative districts called satrapies. These provinces may have been subdivisions. 13: Adar: see 2.16 n.

13.1-7; 3.14-15: Artaxerxes' edict to destroy the Jews. 4: Disaffected people: there is little doubt that the Jews, because of their adherence to distinctive customs ("strange manner of life"; v. 5), were viewed with a suspicion which lent credence to exaggerated and sometimes fantastic accusations. 6: Vicegerent: an administrator in charge of royal affairs. Adar: see 2.16 n.

314 [Copies of the document were posted up in every province, and all nations of the empire were ordered to be ready
15 by that day. The matter was expedited also in Susa. While the king and Haman caroused together, the city of Susa was thrown into confusion.

4 WHEN MARDOCHAEUS LEARNT ALL THAT was being done, he tore his clothes, put on sackcloth and sprinkled himself with ashes; and he rushed through the city, crying loudly: 'An innocent nation
2 is being destroyed.' He went as far as the king's gate, and there he halted, because no one was allowed to enter the courtyard clothed with sackcloth and
3 ashes. In every province where the king's decree was posted up, there was a great cry of mourning and lamentation among the Jews, and they put on 4 sackcloth and ashes. When the queen's maids and eunuchs came and told her, she was distraught at the news, and sent clothes for Mardochoaeus, urging him to take off his sackcloth; but he would
5 not consent. Then Esther summoned Hachrathaeus, the eunuch who waited upon her, and ordered him to obtain accurate information for her from 7 Mardochoaeus.<sup>c</sup> So Mardochoaeus told him all that had happened, and how Haman had promised to pay ten thousand talents into the royal treasury to bring about the destruction of the 8 Jews. He also gave him a copy of the written decree for their destruction which had been posted up in Susa, to show to Esther; and he gave him a message for her, that she should go to the king and plead for his favour and entreat him for her people. 'Remember', he said, 'those days when you were brought up in my humble home; for Haman, who stands next to the king, has spoken against us and demanded our death. Call upon the Lord, and then speak for us to the king and save our lives.' Hachrathaeus returned and told her what Mardochoaeus had said.

9 She sent him back with this message: 10 'All nations of the empire know that if 11 any person, man or woman, enters the king's presence in the inner court unbidden, there is no escape for him. Only one to whom the king stretches out the golden sceptre is safe; and it is now thirty days since I myself was called to go to the king.'

When Hachrathaeus delivered her 12 message, Mardochoaeus told him to go
13 back and say: 'Do not imagine, Esther, that you alone of all the Jews in the empire will escape alive. For if you remain silent at such a time as this, the 14 Jews will somewhere find relief and deliverance, but you and your father's family will perish. Who knows whether it is not for such a time as this that you have been made a queen?' Esther gave 15 the messenger this answer to take back to Mardochoaeus: 'Go and assemble all 16 the Jews who are in Susa and fast for me; for three days take neither food nor drink, night or day, and I and my maids will also go without food. Then in defiance of the law I will enter the king's presence, even if it costs me my life.' So Mardochoaeus went away and did as 17 Esther had bidden him.]

AND MARDOCHAEUS PRAYED TO THE 13 Lord, calling to mind all the works of the Lord. He said, 'O Lord, Lord and 9 King who rulest over all, because the whole world is under thy authority, and when it is thy will to save Israel there is no one who can stand against thee: thou didst make heaven and earth
10 and every wonderful thing under heaven; thou art Lord of all, and there 11

<sup>c</sup> Some witnesses add (6) So he went out to Mardochoaeus in the street opposite the city gate.

3.15: The King and Haman caroused together. This was surely the height of Haman's triumph.

4.1-17: Esther is asked to plead for her kinsfolk. 1: Tore his clothes: sign of consternation; see 2 Kgs. 5.7; Mt. 26.65. Sackcloth and . . . ashes: signs of grief. 4: Not knowing the reason for his grief, Esther sent clothes for Mardochoaeus. 11: Entrance without being summoned was considered a hostile action; also compare 2.14. 14: The author is certain that Esther's good fortune is for providential reasons. Mardochoaeus' exhortation is directed to all the more fortunate Jews in exile who might forget their responsibility for less fortunate compatriots.

13.8-18: Mardochoaeus' prayer. The Hebrew account never mentions the name of God. The Greek additions furnish a religious dimension. 9: The universal authority of God was a primary tenet of Israelite faith in the postexilic period when history seemed beyond divine plan and is no one who can resist thee, the Lord.

 12 Thou knowest all things; thou knowest, Lord, that it was not from insolence or arrogance or vainglory that I refused to bow before proud Haman, for I could gladly have kissed the soles of his feet
 13 to save Israel; no, I did it so that I might not hold a man in greater honour than God; I will not bow before any but thee, my Lord, and it is not from arrogance that I refuse this homage.
 14 And now Lord, God and King, God of Abraham, spare thy people; for our enemies are watching us to bring us to ruin, and they have set their hearts upon the destruction of thy chosen people,
 15 thine from the beginning. Do not disdain thy own possession which thou didst ransom for thyself out of Egypt.
 16 Hear my prayer, and have mercy on thy heritage, and turn our mourning into feasting, that we may live and sing of thy name, Lord; do not put to silence
 17 the lips that give thee praise.’ And all Israel cried aloud with all their might, for death stared them in the face.

14 Then Queen Esther, caught up in this deadly conflict,<sup>d</sup> took refuge in the 2 Lord. She stripped off her splendid attire and put on the garb of mourning and distress. Instead of proud perfumes she strewed ashes and dung over her head. She abased her body, and every part that she had delightfully adorned she covered with her dishevelled hair.
 3 And so she prayed to the Lord God of Israel:

‘O my Lord, thou alone art our king; help me who am alone, with no helper
 4 but thee; for I am taking my life in my hands. Ever since I was born I have been taught by my father’s family and tribe that thou, O Lord, didst choose Israel out of all the nations, and out of all the founders of our race didst choose our fathers for an everlasting possession, and that what thou didst promise
 5 them, thou didst perform. But now we have sinned against thee, and thou hast handed us over to our enemies because 7 we honoured their gods; thou art just, O Lord. But they are not content with 8 our bitter servitude; they have now pledged themselves to their idols to 9 annul thy decree and to destroy thy possession, silencing those who praise thee, extinguishing the glory of thy house, and casting down thy altar. They 10 would give the heathen cause to sing the praises of their worthless gods, and would have a mortal king held in everlasting honour.

‘Yield not thy sceptre, O Lord, to 11 gods that are nothing; let not our enemies mock at our ruin, but turn their plot against themselves, and make an example of the man who planned it. Remember us, O Lord, make thy power 12 known in the time of our distress, and give me courage, O King of gods, almighty Lord. Give me the apt word to 13 say when I enter the lion’s den. Divert his hatred to our enemy, so that there may be an end of him and his confederates.

‘Save us by thy power, and help me 14 who am alone and have no helper but thee, Lord. Thou knowest all; thou 15 knowest that I hate the splendour of the heathen, I abhor the bed of the uncircumcised or of any Gentile. Thou 16 knowest in what straits I am: I loathe that symbol of pride, the headdress that I wear when I show myself abroad, I loathe it as one loathes a filthy rag; in private I refuse to wear it. I, thy servant, 17 have not eaten at Haman’s table; I have not graced a banquet of the king or touched the wine of his drink-offerings; I have not known festive joy from the 18 time that I was brought here until now except in thee, Lord God of Abraham. O God who dost prevail against all, 19 give heed to the cry of the despairing: rescue us from the power of wicked men, and rescue me from what I dread.’

d caught . . . conflict: or seized by mortal anxiety.

control. 12–14: The story does not support such pure motivation on the part of Mardocheaus (see 3.2 n.). 16: The ultimate basis for Israel’s confidence is God’s free choice of her, as expressed in the liberation from Egyptian bondage.

14.1–19: Esther’s prayer. 5: Our fathers: the sons of Jacob who established the twelve tribes of Israel. 9: Even if Israel deserves to be punished (v. 6), God cannot permit the foreign idols to claim victory (see v. 11). 13: Lion’s den: the king’s presence. 15–18: Hate the splendour: an exaggeration to underline her identification with the plight of Israel.

- 15 ON THE THIRD DAY ESTHER BROUGHT her prayers to an end. She took off the clothes she had worn while she worshipped and put on all her splendour.
- 2 When she was in her royal robes and had invoked the all-seeing God, her preserver, she took two maids with her; 3 on one she leaned for support, as befitted a fine lady, while the other 4 followed, bearing her train. She was blushing and in the height of her beauty; her face was as cheerful as it was lovely, but her heart was in the grip of fear. She passed through all the doors and reached the royal presence. The king was seated on his throne, in the full array of his majesty. He was all gold and precious stones, an awe-inspiring figure. He looked up, his face glowing with regal dignity, and glanced at her in towering anger. The queen fell, changing colour in a faint, and swooning on the shoulder of the maid who went before her.
- 8 Then God changed the spirit of the king to gentleness, and in deep concern he leapt from his throne and took her in his arms until she came to herself. He soothed her with reassuring words: 9 'Esther, what is it? Have no fear of me, 10 your loving husband; you shall not die, for our order is only for our subjects. 11 Come to me.' And the king lifted his golden sceptre and laid it upon her neck; then he kissed her and said, 'You may speak to me.' She answered, 'I saw you, my lord, looking like an angel of God, and I was awestruck at your glorious appearance; your countenance is so full of grace, my lord, that I look 15 on you in wonder.' But while she was speaking she fell down in a faint; the king was distressed, and all his attendants comforted her.
- 5.3 [Then the king said, 'What is your wish, Queen Esther? What is your request? Up to half my empire, it shall be given you.' 'Today is a special day for me', said Esther. 'If it please your majesty, will you come, and Haman with you, to a banquet which I shall give today?' The king ordered Haman to be sent for in haste, so that Esther's wish might be fulfilled; and they both went to the banquet to which Esther had invited them. Over the wine the king said to her, 'What is it, Queen Esther? Whatever you ask for shall be yours.' Esther said, 'This is my humble request: if I have won your majesty's favour, will your majesty and Haman come again tomorrow to the banquet which I shall give for you both, and tomorrow I will do as I have done today.'

So Haman went out from the royal presence in good spirits and well pleased with himself. But when he saw Mardocheaus the Jew in the king's courtyard, he was filled with rage. He went home, and called for his friends and his wife Zosara, and held forth to them about his wealth and the honours with which the king had invested him, how he had made him first man in the empire. 'Queen Esther', he said, 'invited no one but myself to accompany the king to her banquet; and I am invited again for tomorrow. Yet all this is no pleasure to me so long as I see that Jew Mardocheaus in the courtyard.' Then his wife Zosara and his friends said to him: 'Have a gallows put up, seventy-five feet<sup>e</sup> high, and in the morning speak to the king and have Mardocheaus hanged upon it. Then you can go with the king to the banquet and enjoy yourself.' Haman thought this an excellent plan, and the gallows was made ready.

<sup>e</sup> Gk. fifty cubits.

15.1-7: Esther dares to go to the king without being summoned. 3: Esther, knowing that her only chance before the powerful king was in a display of fear and weakness, leaned for support. 7: Towering anger: this is explained in 4.11; it serves to heighten Esther's noble but risky intervention.

15.8-16: The king receives Esther graciously. 11: Laid it upon her neck: a sign of royal protection or forgiveness.

5.3-8: Esther's first banquet for the king and Haman. 4: A banquet is the special staging for Esther's request, serving the literary purpose of suspense. See v. 8.

5.9-14: Haman prepares a gallows for Mardocheaus. 9: Haman (like the Gentiles generally) was disturbed when he saw the "otherness" of Mardocheaus (the Jews). 14: The completely unnecessary height of the gallows (seventy-five feet) is for literary effect and not meant to be taken literally.

The triumph of the Jews

6 THAT NIGHT THE LORD KEPT SLEEP from the king, so he ordered his private secretary to bring the court chronicle
2 and read it to him. He found written there the record about Mardocheaus, how he had given information about the two royal eunuchs who, while they were on guard, had plotted violence
3 against King Artaxerxes. Whereupon the king said, 'What honour or favour did we confer on Mardocheaus for this?' The king's courtiers who were in attendance replied, 'You have done
4 nothing for him.' While the king was inquiring about the service that Mardocheaus had rendered, Haman appeared in the courtyard. 'Who is that in the court?' asked the king. Now Haman had just come in to recommend to the king that Mardocheaus should be hanged on the gallows which he had
5 prepared; so the king's servants said, 'It is Haman standing in the court.'
6 'Call him', said the king. Then the king said to Haman, 'What shall I do for the man I wish to honour?' Haman said to himself, 'Whom would the king wish
7 to honour but me?' So he said to the king, 'For the man whom the king
8 wishes to honour, let the king's attendants bring a robe of fine linen from the king's own wardrobe and a horse
9 from the king's own stable. Let both be delivered to one of the king's most honourable Friends, and let him robe the man whom the king loves and mount him on the horse, and let him proclaim through the city: "This shall be the lot of any man whom the king honours."
10 Then the king said to Haman, 'An excellent suggestion! Do all this for Mardocheaus the Jew who serves in the courtyard. Let nothing 11 that you have said be omitted.' So Haman took the robe and put it on Mardocheaus, and mounted him on the horse; then he went through the city, proclaiming: 'This shall be the lot of any man whom the king wishes to honour.'

Then Mardocheaus returned to the 12 courtyard, and Haman hurried off home with head veiled in mourning. He told his wife Zosara and his friends
13 what had happened to him. They replied, 'If Mardocheaus is a Jew, and you have been humiliated before him, you are a lost man. You cannot get the better of him, because the living God is on his side.'

While they were still talking with 14 Haman, the king's eunuchs arrived and hurried him away to the banquet which Esther had prepared.

So the king and Haman went to the 7 queen's banquet. Again on that second
2 day, over the wine, the king said, 'What is it, Queen Esther? What is your request? What is your petition? You shall have it, up to half my
3 empire.' Queen Esther answered: 'If I
5 have won your majesty's favour, my request is for my life, my petition is for my people. For it has come to my ears
4 that we have been sold, I and my people, to be destroyed, plundered, and enslaved, we and our children, male and female. Our adversary is a disgrace to the king's court.' The king said,
5 'Who is it that has dared to do such a thing?' 'Our enemy', said Esther, 'is this 6 wicked Haman.' Haman stood dumbfounded before the king and the queen. The king rose from the banquet and 7 went into the garden, and Haman began to plead with the queen, for he saw that things were going badly for him. When the king returned to the 8 banqueting hall from the garden, Haman in his entreaties had flung himself across the queen's couch. The king exclaimed, 'What! You assault the queen in my own house?' At those words Haman turned away in despair. Then Bugathan, one of the eunuchs, 9 said to the king, 'Look! Haman has even prepared a gallows for Mardocheaus, the man who reported the plot

6.1-11.1: The intended fate of the Jews falls on their persecutors.

6.1-14: Mardocheaus is exalted and Haman is humiliated. 3: Nothing for him: but see 12.5. 4: Haman had just come in: a coincidence dear to folklore. 13: God . . . on his side: recognition by Haman's friends that Providence has taken over.

7.1-10: The second banquet results in Haman's death. 6: Haman is dumbfounded, not knowing that Esther is a Jewess.

against the king, and there it stands, seventy-five feet<sup>f</sup> high, in Haman's compound.' 'Have Haman hanged on it', said the king. So Haman was hanged on the gallows that he himself had prepared for Mardocheaus. After that the king's rage died down.

8 That day King Artaxerxes gave Esther all that had belonged to Haman the persecutor; and Mardocheaus was called into the king's presence, for Esther had told him how he was related

2 to her. Then the king took off his signet-ring, which he had taken back from Haman, and gave it to Mardocheaus. And Esther put Mardocheaus in charge of Haman's estate.

3 Once again Esther spoke before the king, falling at his feet and pleading with him to avert the calamity planned by Haman and to frustrate his plot

4 against the Jews. The king stretched out the golden sceptre to Esther, and she rose and stood before the king.

5 'May it please your majesty,' she said; 'if I have won your favour, let an order be issued recalling the letters which Haman sent in pursuance of his plan to destroy the Jews in your empire.

6 How can I bear to see the downfall of my people? How escape myself when

7 my country is destroyed?' Then the king said to Esther: 'I have given Haman's property to you, and hanged him on the gallows because he threatened the lives of the Jews. If you want anything further, you may draw up an order in my name, in whatever terms you think fit, and seal it with my signet. An order written at the king's direction and sealed with the royal signet cannot be contravened.'

9 And so, on the twenty-third day of the first month, Nisan, in the same year, the king's secretaries were summoned; and the Jews were informed in writing of the instructions given to the administrators and chief governors in the provinces, from India to Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces, to each province in its own language.

10 The orders were written as from the king and sealed with his signet, and dispatched by courier. By these documents the king granted permission to the Jews in every city to observe their own laws and to defend themselves, and to deal as they would with their opponents and enemies, throughout the empire of Artaxerxes, on a given day, the thirteenth of the twelfth month, Adar.]

THE FOLLOWING IS A COPY OF THIS 16 letter:

Artaxerxes the Great King to the governors of the one hundred and twenty-seven provinces, from India to Ethiopia, and to those who are of our allegiance, greeting.

Many who have been honoured only too often by the lavish generosity of their benefactors have grown arrogant and not only attempt to ill-treat our subjects but, unable to carry the favours heaped upon themselves, even plot mischief against those who grant them. Not content with destroying gratitude in men, they are carried away by the insolence of those who are strangers to good breeding; they even suppose that they will escape the justice of all-seeing God, who is no friend to evil-doers. And often, when the king's business has been entrusted to those he counts his friends, they have, by their plausibility, made those in supreme authority partners in shedding innocent blood and involved them in irreparable misfortunes, for their malevolence with its misleading sophistries has imposed upon the sincere goodwill of their rulers. The evil brought about by those who wield power unworthily you can observe, not only in records of tradition and history but also in your familiar experience, and apply the lesson to the future. Thus we shall peacefully free this realm

<sup>f</sup> Gk. fifty cubits.

8.1-12: Esther persuades the king to nullify his edict against the Jews. 2: With the signet-ring Mardocheaus receives the office of prime minister vacated by Haman's death. 12: The thirteenth of . . . Adar: the date when the extermination of the Jews was to have taken place (3.7, 13).

16.1-24; 8.13-17: The king's letter brings joy to the Jews. 5-6: The king attributes his mistake

9 from disturbance for the benefit of all, making no changes but always deciding matters which come under our notice with firmness and equity.
 10 Now Haman son of Hamadathus, a Macedonian, an alien in fact with no Persian blood, a man with nothing of our kindly nature,<sup>g</sup> was accepted 11 by us and enjoyed<sup>h</sup> so fully the benevolence with which we treat
 every nation that he was proclaimed
 our Father, and all along received 12 obeisance from everyone as second only to our royal throne. But this man in his unbridled arrogance planned to deprive us of our empire 13 and our life by using fraud and tortuous cunning to bring about the destruction of Mardocheaus, our constant benefactor who had saved
 our life, and of Esther, our blameless consort, together with their whole 14 nation. For he thought that by these methods he would catch us defenceless and would transfer to the Macedonians the sovereignty now held by 15 the Persians. But we find that the Jews, whom this triple-dyed villain had consigned to extinction, are no evil-doers; they order their lives by 16 the most just of laws, and are children of the living God, most high, most mighty, who maintains the empire in most wonderful order, for us as for our ancestors.

17 You will therefore disregard the letters sent by Haman son of Hama-18 dathus, because he, the contriver of all this, has been hanged aloft at the gate of Susa with his whole household, God who is Lord of all having speedily brought upon him the 19 punishment that he deserved. Copies of this letter are to be posted up in all public places. Permit the Jews to 20 live under their own laws, and give them every assistance so that on the thirteenth day of Adar, the twelfth month, on that very day, they may 21 avenge themselves on those who were ranged against them<sup>i</sup> in the time of their oppression. For God, who has all things in his power, has made this a day not of ruin, but of joy, for his chosen people. Therefore 22 you also must keep it with all good cheer, as a notable day among your feasts of commemoration, so that 23 henceforth it may be a standing symbol of deliverance to us and our loyal Persians, but a reminder of destruction to those who plot against us. Any city or country whatsoever 24 which does not act upon these orders shall incur our wrath and be wiped out with fire and sword. No man shall set foot in it and even the beasts and birds shall shun it for all time.

[Let copies be posted up con- 8 13
 spicuously throughout the empire,
 so that the Jews may be prepared by
 that day to fight against their enemies.]

Mounted messengers set out with all 14
 speed to do what the king commanded;
 and the decree was posted up also in Susa.

Mardocheaus left the king's presence 15
 in royal robes, wearing a golden crown
 and a turban of fine linen dyed purple, and all in Susa rejoiced to see him. For 16
 the Jews there was light and gladness in 17 every province and every city. Wherever the decree was posted up there was joy and gladness for the Jews, feasting and merriment. And many of the Gentiles were circumcised and professed Juda-18 ism, because they were afraid of the Jews.

ON THE THIRTEENTH DAY OF THE 9
 twelfth month, Adar, the decree drawn up by the king arrived. On that very day the enemies of the Jews perished.
 No one offered resistance, because they 2 were afraid of them. The leading 3 provincial governors, the princes, and the royal secretaries paid all respect to the Jews, because fear of Mardocheaus weighed upon them. For they had 4 received the king's decree that his name should be honoured throughout the

<sup>g</sup> Or a man fallen away greatly from our favour.

<sup>h</sup> Or won.

<sup>i</sup> Or may defend themselves against their assailants.

to misleading advice from friends. 10: Macedonian: see 12.6 n. Haman is called a Macedonian, a word synonymous with "enemy of the state." 12: Our empire: an excessive charge not supported by the facts. 21: The reversal of ruin into joy is an apocalyptic theme in late OT writings.

9.1-19: The Jews take vengeance on their enemies and establish a holiday. 1: Thirteenth day:

6 empire.<sup>jk</sup> In the city itself the Jews
 7 slaughtered five hundred men, including
 8 Pharsanestan, Delphon, Phasga, Phara-
 9 datha, Barsa, Sarbacha, Marmasima, 10 Ruphaeus, Arsaeus, and Zabuthaeus,
 the ten sons of Haman son of Hamadathus, the Bugaeus, the Jews' great enemy; and that day they took plunder.
 11 When the number of those killed in 12 Susa was reported to the king, he said to Esther, 'In the city of Susa the Jews have killed five hundred men. What do you suppose they have done in the surrounding country? Whatever further request you have will be granted.'
 13 Esther answered him, 'Let the Jews be allowed to do the same tomorrow, and hang up the bodies of Haman's ten 14 sons.' The king consented; he handed over the bodies of Haman's sons to the 15 Jews of the city to be hung up. The Jews in Susa assembled on the fourteenth day of Adar also, and killed three hundred, but they took no plunder.
 16-17 The rest of the Jews in the empire rallied together in self-defence, and so were quit of their enemies; for they slaughtered fifteen thousand of them on the thirteenth of Adar; but they took no plunder. On the fourteenth they rested, and made that day a day of rest, with rejoicing and merriment.
 18 The Jews in the city of Susa had assembled also on the fourteenth day of the month; they did not rest on that day, but they kept the fifteenth day with 19 rejoicing and merriment. That is why Jews who are dispersed over the remoter parts keep the fourteenth day of Adar as a holiday with rejoicing and merriment, sending presents of food to one another; but those who live in the principal cities keep the fifteenth of Adar as a holiday, sending presents
 of food to one another.
 20 Then Mardocheus wrote down the whole story in a book and sent it to all the Jews in the empire of Artaxerxes, 21 far and near, ordering them to establish these holidays, and to keep the fourteenth and fifteenth of Adar, because 22 these were the days on which the Jews were quit of their enemies, and to keep the whole month of Adar, in which came the great change from sorrow to joy and from mourning to holiday, as a time for feasting and merriment, days for sending presents of food to friends and to the poor.

So the Jews formally accepted the 23 account which Mardocheus wrote:
 how Haman son of Hamadathus, the 24 Bugaeus,<sup>l</sup> fought against them; how he cast lots to decide the date of their destruction; how he came before the 25 king with a proposal to hang Mardo-chaeus; and how all the evils which he had plotted against the Jews recoiled
 on his own head, and he and his sons were hanged. This is why these days 26 were named 'Purim', which in the Jews' language means 'lots'. Because of all that was recorded in this letter—
 all that they had experienced, all that had happened—Mardocheus directed that this festival should be observed, and the Jews undertook, on behalf of 27 themselves, their descendants, and all who should join them, to do so without fail. These were to be days of com-28 memoration, duly celebrated age after age in every town, family, and province.
 These days of Purim were to be kept for all time, and the commemoration was never to cease throughout all ages.

Queen Esther daughter of Amina-29 dab, and Mardocheus the Jew, recorded in writing all that they had done,
 and confirmed the regulations for Purim. They made themselves respon-30-31 sible for this decision and staked their life upon the plan.<sup>m</sup> Esther established 32 it for all time by her decree, and it was put on record.

j For they . . . empire: probable reading; Gk. obscure.
k Some witnesses add from the Heb. (5) So the Jews put their enemies to the sword with great slaughter and destruction; they worked their will on those who hated them.

l Some witnesses read the Macedonian.
m They made . . . plan: possible meaning; Gk. obscure.

see 8.12 n. 11-15: This is to explain why the urban Jews observed Purim for two days instead of the usual one; see v. 19.

9.20-10.3: Mardocheus records the event; the Feast of Purim. 22: This feast celebrates the Israelite conviction that the sorrow of oppression in all ages will be turned into joy through God's fidelity to his promises. 26: Purim: see 3.7 n. 32: This insistence on authoritative establishment of the feast by Esther's decree suggests that its propriety was being questioned.

10 The king made decrees for the 2 empire by land and sea. His strength and courage, his wealth and the splendour of his empire, are recorded in the annals of the kings of the Persians 3 and Medes. Mardocheus acted for King Artaxerxes; he was a great man in the empire and honoured by the Jews. His way of life won him the affection of his whole nation.]

4 MARDOCHEUS SAID, 'ALL THIS IS 5 God's doing. For I have been reminded of the dream I had about these things;
 not one of the visions I saw proved 6 meaningless. There was the little spring which became a river, and there was light and sun and water in abundance.
 The river is Esther, whom the king
 7 married and made queen; the two dragons are Haman and myself; the 8 nations are those who gathered to wipe out the Jews; my nation is Israel, 9 which cried aloud to God and was delivered. The Lord has delivered his people, he has rescued us from all these evils. God performed great miracles and signs such as have not occurred

 among the nations. He made ready 10 two lots, one for the people of God and one for all the nations; then came the 11 hour and the time for these two lots to be cast, the day of decision by God
 before<sup>n</sup> all the nations; he remembered 12 his people and gave the verdict for his heritage.

'So they shall keep these days in the 13 month of Adar, the fourteenth and fifteenth of that month, by gathering with joy and gladness before God from one generation of his people to another,
 for ever.'

IN THE FOURTH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF 11.1
 Ptolemy and Cleopatra, Dositheus,
 who said that he was a levitical priest,
 and Ptolemaeus his son, brought the foregoing letter about Purim, which they said was authentic and had been translated by Lysimachus son of Ptolemaeus, a resident in Jerusalem.

n Or the day of judgement by God upon . . .

---

10.4-13: Mardocheus interprets his dream. 6-7: see 11.5-11 n. 10-12: Another interpretation of Purim is that men seem to control history, but God casts the decisive lots.

11.1: The translation of the Book of Esther. 1: Fourth year: probably 114 B.C. Letter: the Book of Esther as a whole.

THE WISDOM OF SOLOMON

The author of Wisdom purports to be King Solomon (9.8), but this ascription was regarded as a literary fiction by both Origen (182–251 A.D.) and Jerome (about 340–420). Rather, the author was an Alexandrian Jew, well read in his own tradition and in Greek thought, who wrote in Greek. He used the Septuagint translation of the Bible, completed in the second century B.C., but he was unacquainted with the ideas of Philo (20 B.C.–40 A.D.), possibly indicating that he wrote in the first century B.C. His hatred of the Egyptians suggests that he lived soon after the persecution of Egyptian Jewry by Ptolemy VII Physcon, about 100 B.C.

Biblical Wisdom literature is the source of many ideas in the book, and biblical poetry, with its parallel clauses, the model of its style (at least in the first sections). The review of Israel's history is embellished by expansions, many of which are found in late Jewish literature.

Under the impact of the cosmopolitan culture and a variety of philosophies and mystery religions of the Hellenistic world, the faith of many Jews was shaken. Moreover, as a result of the persecution, the perennial problem of the wicked prospering and the good suffering rose to a crisis level.

The author, denouncing the Jewish skeptics of his day who have forsaken inherited beliefs and practices, seeks to safeguard the faith of the rest of his coreligionists. He does so by proposing a religious philosophy of history (chs. 10–12; 16–19), by a clear affirmation of reward and punishment after death (chs. 1–5), and by identifying Wisdom with the traditional spirit of the Lord (1.4–7; 7.22–25); he is aided by the Platonic distinction of body from soul and the Greek ideas of providence (6.7; 14.3), conscience (17.11), and the cardinal virtues (8.7). He uses his synthesis to appeal also to the pagans to examine Judaism as a valid Wisdom and a way of life (1.1–2; 10.15–11.14).

---

The promise of immortality

1 LOVE JUSTICE, YOU RULERS OF THE
2 earth; set your mind upon the 3 Lord, as is your duty, and seek 4 him in simplicity of heart; for he is 5 found by those who trust him without 6 question, and makes himself known to 7 those who never doubt him. Dishonest
8 thinking cuts men off from God, and if 9 fools will take liberties with his power,
10 he shows them up for what they are.
11 Wisdom will not enter a shifty soul, 12 nor make her home in a body that is 13 mortgaged to sin. This holy spirit of 14 discipline will have nothing to do with 15 falsehood; she cannot stay in the pres-
16 ence of unreason, and will throw up
17 her case at the approach of injustice.

Wisdom is a spirit devoted to man's 6
good, and she will not hold a blasphemer blameless for his words, because God is a witness of his inmost 7 being, who sees clear into his heart and hears every word he says. For the spirit 7 of the Lord fills the whole earth, and that which holds all things together is 8
well aware of what men say. Hence no 8 man can utter injustice and not be found out, nor will justice overlook him 9
when she passes sentence. The devices 9 of a godless man will be brought to account, and a report of his words will come before the Lord as proof of his 10
iniquity; no muttered syllable escapes 10 that vigilant ear. Beware, then, of futile 11 grumbling, and avoid all bitter words;
for even a secret whisper will not go

---

1.1–5.23: God rewards the righteous and punishes the ungodly.

1.1–11: Wisdom, the key to immortality, is incompatible with deceit. 1: Rulers of the earth: lit. rulers in general; compare 6.1. But the real addressees were Alexandrian Jews. 4: Here and in subsequent passages (7.25–26), Wisdom attains the highest personification in the Bible. 5: Discipline in Wisdom Literature means religious instruction and correction. 6. Inmost being: lit. "kidneys," considered as the center of emotion and instinct. Heart: the center of intellect and will. Together they signify all man's inner forces. 7: The fact that God's spirit fills the earth guarantees the assertion in v. 6 that God knows and will punish all transgressions. Spirit is identified with Wisdom; compare Col.1.17; Heb.1.3.

unheeded, and a lying tongue is a man's 12 destruction. Do not stray from the path of life and so court death; do not draw disaster on yourselves by your 13 own actions. For God did not make death, and takes no pleasure in the 14 destruction of any living thing; he created all things that they might have being. The creative forces of the world make for life; there is no deadly poison
 in them. Death is not king on earth.
 15,16 for justice is immortal; but godless men by their words and deeds have asked death for his company. Thinking him their friend, they have made a pact with him because they are fit members of his party; and so they have wasted away.

2 They said to themselves in their deluded way: 'Our life is short and full of trouble, and when a man comes to his end there is no remedy; no man was ever known to return from the grave.
 2 By mere chance were we born, and afterwards we shall be as though we had never been, for the breath in our nostrils is but a wisp of smoke; our reason is a mere spark kept alive by the 3 beating of our hearts, and when that goes out, our body will turn to ashes and the breath of our life disperse like 4 empty air. Our names will be forgotten with the passing of time, and no one will remember anything we did. Our life will blow over like the last vestige of a cloud; and as a mist is chased away by the sun's rays and overborne by its 5 heat, so will it too be dispersed. A passing shadow—such is our life, and there is no postponement of our end;
 man's fate is sealed, and none returns.
 6 Come then, let us enjoy the good things while we can, and make full use of the creation, with all the eagerness of 7 youth. Let us have costly wines and perfumes to our heart's content, and 8 let no flower of spring escape us. Let us crown ourselves with rosebuds before they can wither. Let none of us miss 9 his share of the good things that are ours; who cares what traces our revelry leaves behind? This is the life for us; it is our birthright.

'Down with the poor and honest 10 man! Let us tread him under foot; let us show no mercy to the widow and no reverence to the grey hairs of old age. For us let might be right! Weak-11 ness is proved to be good for nothing.
 Let us lay a trap for the just man; he 12 stands in our way, a check to us at every turn; he girds at us as law-breakers, and calls us traitors to our upbringing. He knows God, so he 13 says; he styles himself "the servant<sup>a</sup>
 of the Lord". He is a living condemna-14 tion of all our ideas. The very sight of 15 him is an affliction to us, because his life is not like other people's, and his ways are different. He rejects us like 16 base coin, and avoids us and our ways as if we were filth; he says that the just die happy, and boasts that God is his father. Let us test the truth of his 17 words, let us see what will happen to him in the end; for if the just man is 18 God's son, God will stretch out a hand to him and save him from the clutches of his enemies. Outrage and torment 19 are the means to try him with, to measure his forbearance and learn how long his patience lasts. Let us 20 condemn him to a shameful death, for on his own showing he will have a protector.'

So they argued, and very wrong they 21 were; blinded by their own malevolence, they did not understand God's 22 hidden plan; they never expected that holiness of life would have its recompense; they thought that innocence had no reward. But God created man 23 for immortality, and made him the

<sup>a</sup> Or child.

1.12–16: God made man immortal. 13: See 2.23–24 and Ezek.33.11. 16: Godless men are renegade Jews, the author's real opponents, for whom life is completely this-worldly, ended by death. See Isa.28.15 for the image of a "pact" with death.

2.1–20: Philosophy of the deluded sinners and its consequences. 2–3: The explanations of life are derived from the science of the author's day. 4: Since no one will remember, there is no difference whether one is good or evil. Compare Eccles.2.24; 3.12; 9.7–9. 10–12: The sinners' attitude toward the precepts of Judaism is slightly caricatured for the sake of emphasis. 15: The charge that the ways of the Jews were different was common in antiquity; compare Esther 3.8. 18: God's son: Ps.22.8–9 is the common source of this verse and of Mt.27.43.

2.21–24: Causes of the sinners' misconceptions. Wickedness leads to illogic. 23: See Gen.1.26.

image of his own eternal self; it was 24 the devil's spite that brought death into the world, and the experience of it is reserved for those who take his side.
 3 But the souls of the just are in God's hand, and torment shall not touch 2 them. In the eyes of foolish men they seemed to be dead; their departure was 3 reckoned as defeat, and their going from us disaster. But they are at peace, 4 for though in the sight of men they may be punished, they have a sure 5 hope of immortality; and after a little chastisement they will receive great blessings, because God has tested them 6 and found them worthy to be his. Like gold in a crucible he put them to the proof, and found them acceptable like an offering burnt whole upon the 7 altar. In the moment of God's coming to them they will kindle into flame,
 like sparks that sweep through stubble;
 8 they will be judges and rulers over the nations of the world, and the Lord shall be their king for ever and ever.
 9 Those who have put their trust in him shall understand that he is true, and the faithful shall attend upon him in love;
 they are his chosen, and grace and mercy shall be theirs.
 10 But the godless shall meet with the punishment their evil thoughts deserve, because they took no account of justice and rebelled against the Lord.
 11 Wretched indeed is he who thinks nothing of wisdom and discipline; such men's hopes are void, their labours 12 unprofitable, their actions futile; their wives are frivolous, their children 13 criminal, their parenthood is under a curse. No, blessed is the childless woman if she is innocent, if she has never slept with a man in sin; at the great assize of souls she shall find a fruitfulness of her own. Blessed is the 14 eunuch, if he has never done anything against the law and never harboured a wicked thought against the Lord; he shall receive special favour in return for his faith, and a place in the Lord's temple to delight his heart the more.

 Honest work bears glorious fruit, and 15 wisdom grows from roots that are imperishable. But the children of 16 adultery are like fruit that never ripens;
 they have sprung from a lawless union,
 and will come to nothing. Even if they 17 attain length of life, they will be of no account, and at the end their old age will be without honour. If they die 18 young, they will have no hope, no consolation in the hour of judgement;
 the unjust generation has a hard fate
 19 in store for it.

It is better to be childless, provided 4 one is virtuous; for virtue held in remembrance is a kind of immortality,
 because it wins recognition from God,
 and from men too. They follow the 2 good man's example while it is with them, and when it is gone they mourn
 its loss; and through all time virtue makes its triumphal progress, crowned with victory in the contest for prizes that nothing can tarnish. But the 3 swarming progeny of the wicked will come to no good; none of their bastard offshoots will strike deep root or take firm hold. For a time their branches 4 may flourish, but as they have no sure footing they will be shaken by the wind, and by the violence of the winds uprooted. Their boughs will be snapped 5 off half-grown, and their fruit will be worthless, unripe, uneatable, and good for nothing. Children engendered in 6

24: Devil's spite alludes either to the fall of man (Gen. ch. 3) or to Cain and Abel (Gen. ch. 4).

3.1-19: Rewards of the righteous and punishment of the ungodly. 4: The immortality reserved for the righteous is of the soul (see v. 1); it is a Greek concept and supplants the Jewish resurrection of the body (Dan.12.2). 5-6: The righteous were only tested with chastisement, not punished; compare Ps.66.10; 2 Macc.6.12-16. 7-8: God's coming seems to allude to his definitive intervention in favor of the just, i.e. Israel, at the end of time. Flame and sparks in stubble are images of victory; see Obad.18. 10: The punishment will be appropriate to their evil thoughts and not arbitrary. 13: Traditional Jewish belief in large families (see Gen.30.23) is seemingly abandoned. Perhaps the author means that sinful unions are so bad that even childlessness is preferable: see 4.1. The sin may be the prohibited marriages of Jews to non-Jews. 14: See Isa. 56.4-5. Whether the Lord's temple is in Jerusalem or heaven is unspecified. If the latter, it is one of the first indications in the Bible of heaven as the dwelling of the godly.

4.1-6: The true hierarchy of virtues. Compare Eccclus.16.3. 2: Virtue is crowned with victory like successful athletes at the Greek athletic games. 4-5: Compare Pss.1.3-5; 92.13-15; Eccclus.23.25.

unlawful union are living evidence of their parents' sin when God brings them to account.

7 But the good man, even if he dies an 8 untimely death, will be at rest. For it is not length of life and number of years 9 which bring the honour due to age; if men have understanding, they have grey hairs enough, and an unspotted
10 life is the true ripeness of age. There was once such a man who pleased God,
and God accepted him and took him
while still living from among sinful 11 men. He was snatched away before his mind could be perverted by wickedness or his soul deceived by falsehood 12 (because evil is like witchcraft: it dims
the radiance of good, and the waywardness of desire unsettles an innocent 13 mind); in a short time he came to the perfection of a full span of years. His soul was pleasing to the Lord, who removed him early from a wicked 15 world. The mass of men see this and give it no thought; they do not lay to heart this truth, that those whom God has chosen enjoy his grace and mercy, and that he comes to the help of his 16 holy people. Even after his death the just man will shame the godless who are still alive; youth come quickly to perfection will shame the man grown old in sin. Men will see the wise man's 17 end, without understanding what the Lord had purposed for him and why he took him into safe keeping; they will see it and make light of him, but it is they whom the Lord will laugh to scorn. In death their bodies will be dis-honoured, and among the dead they will be an object of contempt for ever; 19 for he shall strike them speechless, fling them headlong, shake them from their foundations, and make an utter desert of them; they shall be full of anguish, and all memory of them shall 20 perish. So in the day of reckoning for their sins, they will come cringing, convicted to their face by their lawless doings.

5 Then the just man shall take his stand, full of assurance, to confront

those who oppressed him and made light of all his sufferings; at the sight of 2
him there will be terror and confusion, and they will be beside themselves to see him so unexpectedly safe home.
Filled with remorse, groaning and 3 gasping for breath, they will say among themselves: 'Was not this the man who was once our butt, a target for our con- 4 tempt? Fools that we were, we held his way of life to be madness and his end dishonourable. To think that he is now 5 counted one of the sons of God and assigned a place of his own among God's people! How far we strayed from 6
the road of truth! The lamp of justice never gave us light, the sun never rose upon us. We roamed to our heart's 7 content along the paths of wickedness and ruin, wandering through trackless deserts and ignoring the Lord's highway. What good has our pride done 8 us? What can we show for all our wealth and arrogance? All those things 9 have passed by like a shadow, like a messenger galloping by; like a ship 10 that runs through the surging sea, and when she has passed, not a trace is to be found, no track of her keel among the 11 waves; or as when a bird flies through the air, there is no sign of her passing,
but with the stroke of her pinions she lashes the insubstantial breeze and parts it with the whirr and the rush of her beating wings, and so she passes through it, and thereafter it bears no
mark of her assault; or as when an 12 arrow is shot at a target, the air is parted and instantly closes up again and no one can tell where it passed through. So we too ceased to be, as 13 soon as we were born; we left no token of virtue behind, and in our wickedness
we frittered our lives away.' The hope 14 of a godless man is like down flying on the wind, like spindrift swept before a storm and smoke which the wind whirls away, or like the memory of a guest who stayed for one day and passed on.

4.7-20: The fate of the righteous and the ungodly contrasted. 10-11: Such a man: Enoch was snatched away in this manner (Gen. 5.21-24).

5.1-14: Remorse of the ungodly. This confession of the ungodly is in deliberate contrast with what they used to say; see 2.1-20. 5: Sons of God is a poetic variant for God's own people. 9: Passed by like a shadow: disappeared.

15 But the just live for ever; their reward is in the Lord's keeping, and the 16 Most High has them in his care. Therefore royal splendour shall be theirs, and a fair diadem from the Lord himself; he will protect them with his right hand 17 and shield them with his arm. He will put on from head to foot the armour of his wrath, and make all creation his 18 weapon against his enemies. With the cuirass of justice on his breast, and on his head the helmet of doom inflexible, 19 he will take holiness for his impenetrable shield and sharpen his relentless anger for a sword; and his whole world
 20 shall join him in the fight against his frenzied foes. The bolts of his lightning shall fly straight on the mark, they shall leap upon the target as if his bow in the 21 clouds were drawn in its full arc, and the artillery of his resentment shall let fly a fury of hail. The waters of the sea shall rage over them, and the rivers 22 wash them relentlessly away; a great tempest will arise against them, and blow them away like chaff before a whirlwind. So lawlessness will make the whole world desolate, and active wickedness will overturn the thrones of princes.

In praise of wisdom

6 HEAR THEN, YOU KINGS, TAKE THIS TO heart; learn your lesson, lords of the 2 wide world; lend your ears, you rulers of the multitude, whose pride is in the 3 myriads of your people. It is the Lord who gave you your authority; your power comes from the Most High. He will put your actions to the test and 4 scrutinize your intentions. Though you are viceroys of his kingly power, you have not been upright judges; you do not stand up for the law or guide your 5 steps by the will of God. Swiftly and terribly will he descend upon you, for judgement falls relentlessly upon those in high place. The small man may find 6 pity and forgiveness, but the powerful will be called powerfully to account; for he who is all men's master is 7 obsequious to none, and is not overawed by greatness. Small and great alike are of his making, and all are under his providence equally, but it is 8 the powerful for whom he reserves the sternest inquisition. To you then who 9 have absolute power I speak, in hope that you may learn wisdom and not go astray; those who in holiness have kept

 10 a holy course, will be accounted holy, and those who have learnt that lesson will be able to make their defence. Be 11 eager then to hear me, and long for my teaching; so you will learn.

Wisdom shines bright and never 12 fades; she is easily discerned by those who love her, and by those who seek her she is found. She is quick to make 13 herself known to those who desire knowledge of her; the man who rises
 14 early in search of her will not grow weary in the quest, for he will find her seated at his door. To set all one's 15 thoughts on her is prudence in its perfect shape, and to lie wakeful in her cause is the short way to peace of 16 mind. For she herself ranges in search of those who are worthy of her; on their daily path she appears to them with kindly intent, and in all their purposes meets them half-way. The true
 17 beginning of wisdom is the desire to learn, and a concern for learning means love towards her; the love of her means 18 the keeping of her laws; to keep her laws is a warrant of immortality; and 19 immortality brings a man near to God. Thus the desire of wisdom leads to 20 kingly stature. If, therefore, you value your thrones and your sceptres, you 21 rulers of the nations, you must honour wisdom, so that you may reign for ever.

5.15-23: Fate of the righteous and of the ungodly. 16: Compare Isa.62.3. 17-20: Compare Pss.7.11-14; Isa.59.17. 21: Lightning is a traditional representation of divine intervention; see Pss.18.14; 114.6.

6.1-9.18: The nature of Wisdom is explained.

6.1-11: Admonition to the rulers. 1: See 1.1 n. 4: Law: compare 2.12. 6-8: Not only is God not overawed by greatness, he is stricter in judging the mighty.

6.12-21: Wisdom desires to be found. Compare Prov.1.20-33; ch. 8. 17-21: A chain argument called "sorites" of which the Stoics were fond, concludes that Wisdom is essential for rulers.

22 What wisdom is, and how she came into being, I will tell you; I will hide no secret from you. From her first beginnings I will trace out her course, and bring the knowledge of her into the light of day; I will not leave the truth untold. Pale envy shall not travel in my company, for the spiteful man will have no share in wisdom. Wise men in plenty are the world's salvation, and a prudent king is the sheet-anchor of his people. Learn what I have to teach you, therefore, and it will be for your good.

7 I too am a mortal man like all the rest, descended from the first man, who was made of dust, and in my mother's womb I was wrought into flesh during a ten-months space, compacted in blood from the seed of her husband and the pleasure that is joined with sleep. When I was born, I breathed the common air and was laid on the earth that all men tread; and the first sound I uttered, as all do, was a cry; they wrapped me up and nursed me and cared for me. No king begins life in any other way; for all come into life by a single path, and by a single path go out again.

7 Therefore I prayed, and prudence was given to me; I called for help, and there came to me a spirit of wisdom. I valued her above sceptre and throne, and reckoned riches as nothing beside her; I counted no precious stone her equal, because all the gold in the world compared with her is but a little sand, and silver worth no more than clay. I loved her more than health and beauty; I preferred her to the light of day; for her radiance is unsleeping. So all good things together came to me with her, and in her hands was wealth past counting; and all was mine to enjoy, for all follows where wisdom leads, and I was in ignorance before, that she is the beginning of it all. What I learnt with pure intention I now share without grudging, nor do I hoard for myself the wealth that comes from her. She is an inexhaustible treasure for mankind, and those who profit by it become God's friends, commended to him by the gifts they derive from her instruction.

God grant that I may speak according to his will, and that my own thoughts may be worthy of his gifts; for even wisdom is under God's direction and he corrects the wise; we and our words, prudence and knowledge and craftsmanship, all are in his hand. He himself gave me true understanding of things as they are: a knowledge of the structure of the world and the operation of the elements; the beginning and end of epochs and their middle course; the alternating solstices and changing seasons; the cycles of the years and the constellations; the nature of living creatures and behaviour of wild beasts; the violent force of winds and the thoughts of men; the varieties of plants and the virtues of roots. I learnt it all, hidden or manifest, for I was taught by her whose skill made all things, wisdom.

For in wisdom there is a spirit intelligent and holy, unique in its kind yet made up of many parts, subtle, free-moving, lucid, spotless, clear, invulnerable,<sup>b</sup> loving what is good, eager, unhindered, beneficent, kindly towards men, steadfast, unerring, untouched by

<sup>b</sup> invulnerable: or working no harm.

6.22–25: The true nature of Wisdom. 23: Unlike the old philosophers or founders of mystery cults who hid their teachings out of envy, the author will reveal all.

7.1–6: Wisdom is not inherited. 1: Solomon, the wisest of men, was a mortal like the rest. 2: Ten lunar months are nine calendar months. Compacted in blood alludes to the ancient view that the menstrual blood united with the sperm to form the fetus. 6: Single path of entry and exit emphasizes the equality of all in the search for Wisdom; see Eccles.9.2.

7.7–14: The values of Wisdom. 7: Solomon prayed for Wisdom, a course open to all; see ch. 9. 11: Solomon's wealth was as fabulous as his Wisdom; see 1 Kgs.3.13.

7.15–22a: The extent of Wisdom. The presentation is in scientific and philosophical terms; compare 1 Kgs.3.16–28; 5.7–12. 17: Things as they are: metaphysics. Structure of the world: cosmology. Elements: the four elements of Greek science. 18–19: Beginning and end: chronology. Alternating . . . cycles: astronomical knowledge. 20: Nature of living creatures: zoology. Thoughts of men: psychology. Varieties of plants: botany. Virtues of roots: medicine and magic (compare Josephus, Ant. VIII.4.6).

7.22b–8.1: Nature of Wisdom. 22b–23: Wisdom has  $3 \times 7 (= 21)$ , the most perfect number) care, all-powerful, all-surveying, and permeating all intelligent, pure, and delicate spirits. For wisdom moves more easily than motion itself, she pervades and permeates all things because she is so pure. Like a fine mist she rises from the power of God, a pure effluence from the glory of the Almighty; so nothing defiled can enter into her by stealth. She is the brightness that streams from<sup>c</sup> everlasting light, the flawless mirror of the active power of God and the image of his goodness. She is but one, yet can do everything; herself unchanging, she makes all things new; age after age she enters into holy souls, and makes them God's friends and prophets, for nothing is acceptable to God but the man who makes his home with wisdom. She is more radiant than the sun, and surpasses every constellation; compared with the light of day, she is found to excel; for day gives place to night, but against wisdom no evil can prevail.

8 She spans the world in power from end to end, and orders all things benignly.

2 Wisdom I loved; I sought her out when I was young and longed to win her for my bride, and I fell in love with her beauty. She adds lustre to her noble birth, because it is given her to live with God, and the Lord of all things has accepted her. She is initiated into the knowledge that belongs to God, and she decides for him what he shall do. If riches are a prize to be desired in life, what is richer than wisdom, the active cause of all things? If prudence shows itself in action, who more than wisdom is the artificer of all that is? If virtue is the object of a man's affections, the fruits of wisdom's labours are the virtues; temperance and prudence, justice and fortitude, these are her teaching, and in the life of men there is nothing of more value than these. If a man longs, perhaps, for great experience, she knows the past, she can infer what is to come; she understands the subtleties of argument and the solving of problems, she can read signs and portents, and can foretell the outcome of events and periods. So I determined to bring her home to live with me, knowing that she would be my counsellor in prosperity and my comfort in anxiety and grief. Through her, I thought, I shall win fame in the eyes of the people and honour among older men, young though I am. When I sit in judgement, I shall prove myself acute, and the great men will admire me; when I say nothing, they will wait for me to speak; when I speak they will attend, and though I hold forth at length, they will lay a finger to their lips and listen. Through her I shall have immortality, and shall leave an undying memory to those who come after me. I shall rule over many peoples, and nations will become my subjects. Grim tyrants will be frightened when they hear of me; among my own people I shall show myself a good king, and on the battlefield a brave one. When I come home, I shall find rest with her; for there is no bitterness in her company, no pain in life with her, only gladness and joy.

I thought this over in my mind, and I perceived that in kinship with wisdom lies immortality and in her friendship is pure delight; that in doing her work is wealth that cannot fail, to be taught in her school gives understanding, and an honourable name is won by converse with her. So I went about in search of some way to win her for my own. As a qualities, many of them Greek philosophical terms, some being divine attributes: all-powerful, all-surveying. 24: Wisdom pervades and permeates all things like the spirit or world-soul of the Stoics. 26: The relationship between Wisdom and God is described philosophically using the most immaterial images possible: light, power, goodness.

<sup>c</sup> Or She is the reflection of . . .

---

8.2–16: Solomon desires to take Wisdom as his bride. 3–4: The Lord himself accepted Wisdom as a bride; and she lives with him as his wife and decides the practicalities of life for him. 7: The four virtues of Greek philosophy and the “cardinal virtues” of Christian morality—temperance and prudence, justice and fortitude—are founded on Wisdom. 8: In the academic sphere Wisdom is central to argument (logic), problems (mathematics), signs and portents (religious insight), events and periods (history). 11: See 1 Kgs.3.16–28. 12: Finger to lips: a sign of silence in admiration of the speaker; see Job 29.9.

8.17–21: Solomon searches for Wisdom. 19–20: The preexistence of the soul is implied in a child I was born to excellence, and a 20 noble soul fell to my lot; or rather, I myself was noble, and I entered into an 21 unblemished body; but I saw that there was no way to gain possession of her except by gift of God—and it was a mark of understanding to know from whom that gift must come. So I pleaded with the Lord, and from the depths of my heart I prayed to him in these words:

9 God of our fathers, merciful Lord,
 who hast made all things by thy word,
 2 and in thy wisdom hast fashioned man,
 to be the master of thy whole creation, 3 and to be steward of the world in holiness and righteousness, and to administer justice with an upright 4 heart, give me wisdom, who sits beside thy throne, and do not refuse me a 5 place among thy servants. I am thy slave, thy slave-girl's son, a weak ephemeral man, too feeble to under-6 stand justice and law; for let a man be ever so perfect in the eyes of his fellow-men, if the wisdom that comes from thee is wanting, he will be of no 7 account. Thou didst choose me to be king of thy own people, and judge over 8 thy sons and daughters; thou didst tell me to build a temple on thy sacred mountain and an altar in the city which is thy dwelling-place, a copy of the sacred tabernacle prepared by thee 9 from the beginning. And with thee is wisdom, who is familiar with thy works and was present at the making of the world by thee, who knows what is acceptable to thee and in line with thy 10 commandments. Send her forth from the holy heavens, and from thy glorious throne bid her come down, so that she may labour at my side and I may learn 11 what pleases thee. For she knows and understands all things, and will guide

me prudently in all I do, and guard me in her glory. So shall my life's work 12 be acceptable, and I shall judge thy people justly, and be worthy of my father's throne. For how can any man 13 learn what is God's plan? How can he apprehend what the Lord's will is? The 14 reasoning of men is feeble, and our plans are fallible; because a perishable 15 body weighs down the soul, and its frame of clay burdens the mind so full of thoughts. With difficulty we guess 16
 even at things on earth, and laboriously find out what lies before our feet; and who has ever traced out what is in heaven? Who ever learnt to know thy 17 purposes, unless thou hadst given him wisdom and sent thy holy spirit down from heaven on high? Thus it was 18 that those on earth were set upon the right path, and men were taught what pleases thee; thus were they preserved
 by wisdom.

Divine wisdom in history

WISDOM IT WAS WHO KEPT GUARD OVER 10
 the first father of the human race, when he alone had yet been made; she saved him after his fall, and gave him the 2 strength to master all things. It was 3 because a wicked man forsook her in his anger that he murdered his brother in a fit of rage, and so destroyed himself. Through his fault the earth was 4 covered with a deluge, and again wisdom came to the rescue, and taught the one good man to pilot his plain wooden 5 hulk. It was she, when heathen nations leagued in wickedness were thrown into confusion, who picked out one good man and kept him blameless in the sight of God, giving him strength to resist his pity for his child. She saved a 6

noble soul fell to my lot; compare 9.15. The best that can be said for a body is that it is unblemished. Both these doctrines are Platonic and foreign to the OT.

9.1-18: Solomon's prayer. Compare 1 Kgs.3.6-9. 4: Compare Prov.8.30. 8: The attribution of the book to Solomon is here clear in that the author claims to have built a temple; see 1 Kgs.6.1. The sacred mountain is Mount Zion, identified in Jewish tradition with Mount Moriah, the site of the Temple. The Temple was an earthly copy of the divine tabernacle, an idea derived from Exod.25.9,40. 15: Perishable body . . . of clay alludes to the Platonic doctrine that the material world is less than real and is a prison of the spirit. 17: Holy spirit is identified with Wisdom; compare 7.22.

10.1-21: From Adam to the Exodus. 1-2: Adam (Gen.1.26-5.5). 3: Cain and Abel (Gen.4.1-16). 4: Noah (Gen.5.28-9.29). For the flood as Cain's fault see Josephus, Ant. 1.2.2. 5a: The Tower of Babel (Gen.11.1-9). 5b: Abraham (Gen.11.26-25.10). 6-9: Lot (Gen. ch. 19). The Five Cities are Sodom and Gomorrah and their confederates (Gen.14.2; 19.20-33), located by good man from the destruction of the goddess, and he escaped the fire that came down on the Five Cities, cities whose wickedness is still attested by a smoking waste, by plants whose fruit can never ripen, and a pillar of salt standing there as a memorial of an unbelieving soul. Wisdom they ignored, and they suffered for it, losing the power to recognize what is good and leaving by their lives a monument of folly, such that their enormities can never be forgotten. But wisdom brought her servants safely out of their troubles. It was she, when a good man was a fugitive from his brother's anger, who guided him on the straight path; she showed him that God is king, and gave him knowledge of his holiness;<sup>d</sup> she prospered his labours and made his toil productive. When men in their rapacity tried to exploit him, she stood by him and made him rich. She kept him safe from his enemies, and preserved him from treacherous attacks; she gave him victory after a hard struggle, and taught him that godliness is the greatest power of all. It was she who refused to desert a good man when he was sold as a slave; she preserved him from sin and went down into the dungeon with him, nor did she leave him when he was in chains until she had brought him sceptre and kingdom and authority over his persecutors; she gave the lie to his accusers, and brought him undying fame. It was she who rescued a godfearing people, a blameless race, from a nation of oppressors; she inspired a servant of the Lord, and with his signs and wonders he defied formidable kings. She rewarded the labours of godfearing men, she guided them on a marvellous journey and became a covering for them by day and a blaze of stars by night. She brought them over the Red Sea and guided them through its deep waters; but their enemies she engulfed, and cast them up again out of the fathomless deep. So good men plundered the ungodly; they sang the glories of thy holy name, O Lord, and praised with one accord thy power, their champion; for wisdom taught the dumb to speak, and made the tongues of infants eloquent.

Wisdom, working through a holy prophet, brought them success in all they did. They made their way across an unpeopled desert and pitched camp in untrodden wastes; they resisted every enemy, and beat off hostile assaults. When they were thirsty they called upon thee, and water to slake their thirst was given them out of the hard stone of a rocky cliff. The self-same means by which their oppressors had been punished were used to help them in their hour of need: those others found their river no unfailing stream of water, but putrid and befouled with blood, in punishment for their order that all the infants should be killed, while to these thou gavest abundant water unexpectedly. So from the thirst they then endured, they learnt how thou hadst punished their enemies; when they themselves were put to the test, though discipline was tempered with mercy,

<sup>d</sup> showed . . . holiness: or gave him a vision of God's realm, and knowledge of his holy angels.

Jewish tradition and some modern writers at the southern end of the Dead Sea. Natural phenomena embellished by legend account for smoking waste (heavy evaporation of Dead Sea); fruit . . . never ripen (apples of Sodom), and pillar of salt (salt deposit formation; Gen.19.26). See Philo, De Abrahamo, 137-141; Josephus, B.J. IV.8.4. 10-12: Jacob (Gen.25.19-49.33, especially chs. 28-31). 13-14: Joseph (Gen. chs. 37-50). 15-21: The Exodus (Exod.1.1-15.21, especially chs. 12-15). 16: A servant: Moses. Formidable kings are Pharaoh and others, as in Ps.135.9-10. 17: The cloud of Exod.13.21 is thought of as a covering; see Num.10.34 and Ps.105.39. 20: According to Josephus, Ant. II.16.6, the Egyptians were plundered at the Red Sea. 21: Dumb who speak and eloquent infants refer to the Jewish tradition that even infants and embryos joined in the song of Israel at the Red Sea; see Exod.15.1-18.

11.1-14: The wandering in the desert (Exod.15.22-17.16). 4: Events of Exod.17.1-7 are given according to an idealized version; compare Ps.107.4-6, 5-7: Before the Exodus, water was turned into blood for the Egyptians by the first plague (Exod.7.19-25), a punishment, according to the author, for Pharaoh's decree that all the infants of the Israelites be killed by being drowned in the Nile. The Egyptians were thus punished by the sudden loss of drinking water but the Israelites were rewarded by finding it unexpectedly in the desert (Num.20.11). Exod. states that the Pharaoh ordered only the male children to be drowned (Exod.1.22) and the water was turned into blood not because of that decree, but because of Pharaoh's refusal to let Israel leave they understood the tortures of the goddess who were sentenced in anger.

 10 Thy own people thou didst subject to an ordeal, warning them like a father; those others thou didst put to the torture, like a stern king passing sentence.
 11 At home and abroad, they were equally 12 in distress, for a double misery had come upon them, and they groaned as 13 they recalled the past. When they heard that the means of their own punishment had been used to benefit thy people, they saw thy hand in it, O
 14 Lord. The man who long ago had been abandoned and exposed, whom they had rejected with contumely, became in the event the object of their wonder and admiration; their thirst was such as the godly never knew.
 15 In return for the insensate imagination of those wicked men, which deduced them into worshipping reptiles devoid of reason, and mere vermin, thou didst send upon them a swarm of creatures devoid of reason to chastise
 16 them, and to teach them that the instruments of a man's sin are the instruments of his punishment. For thy 17 almighty hand, which created the world out of formless matter, was not without other resource: it could have let loose upon them a host of bears or 18 ravening lions or unknown ferocious monsters newly created, either breathing out blasts of fire, or roaring and belching smoke, or flashing terrible sparks like lightning from their eyes,
 19 with power not only to exterminate them by the wounds they inflicted, but by their mere appearance to kill them 20 with fright. Even without these, a single breath would have sufficed to lay them low, with justice in pursuit and the breath of thy power to blow them away; but thou hast ordered all things by measure and number and weight.

Great strength is thine to exert at 21 any moment, and the power of thy arm no man can resist, for in thy sight
 22 the whole world is like a grain that just tips the scale or a drop of dew alighting on the ground at dawn. But thou art
 23 merciful to all men because thou canst do all things; thou dost overlook the sins of men to bring them to repentance; for all existing things are dear to 24 thee and thou hatest nothing that thou hast created—why else wouldst thou 25 have made it? How could anything have continued in existence, had it not been thy will? How could it have endured unless called into being by thee?
 Thou sparest all things because they 26 are thine, our lord and master who lovest all that lives; for thy imperishable 27 breath is in them all.

For this reason thou dost correct
 28 offenders little by little, admonishing them and reminding them of their sins, in order that they may leave their evil ways and put their trust, O Lord, in thee. For example, the ancient 29 inhabitants of thy holy land were hateful to thee for their loathsome practices, their sorcery and unholy rites, ruthless
 30 murders of children, cannibal feasts of human flesh and blood; they were 31 initiates of a secret ritual in which parents slaughtered their defenceless children. Therefore it was thy will to destroy them at the hand of our forefathers, so that the land which is of all 32 lands most precious in thine eyes could receive in God's children settlers 33 worthy of it. And yet thou didst spare 34 their lives because even they were men, sending hornets as the advance-guard of thy army to exterminate them

Egypt (Exod.7.16-17). 13: Exod.32.12 also implies that the Egyptians could know what was occurring in the Wilderness, and that the means of their own punishment had been used to benefit thy people. 14: Moses is the man . . . abandoned, both in his exposure at birth (Exod.2.1-10), and in his flight (Exod.2.11-22).

11.15-20: The punishment of the Egyptians was appropriate. God could have chosen innumerable punishments. Instead, ironically, they were punished through the animals they worshipped. 15: Exod. ch. 8 does not suggest that the Egyptians worshiped reptiles or vermin. Perhaps the author is exaggerating the practice of the temples of his day. See Philo, De Vita Contemplativa, 8-9. Creatures devoid of reason were the plagues of frogs, lice, and locusts, Exod. chs. 8 and 10. 17: Formless matter may imply the Platonic philosophical concept of preexistent matter out of which the world was made, but compare Gen.1.2.

11.21-12.1: God is merciful to all creatures. See Ps.145.9.

12.2-11: God was merciful even to the Canaanites. 3-8: The charge of cannibal feasts is unattested in the Bible, but it was part of the Greek philosophical attack on Greek mythology.

9 gradually. It was well within thy power to let the godly overwhelm the godless in a pitched battle, or to wipe them out in an instant with cruel beasts or by one stern word. But thou didst carry out their sentence gradually to give them space for repentance, knowing well enough that they came of evil stock, their wickedness ingrained, and that their way of thinking would not change to the end of time, for there was a curse on their race from the beginning.

Nor was it out of deference to anyone else that thou gavest them an amnesty for their misdeeds; for to thee no one can say 'What hast thou done?' or dispute thy verdict. Who shall bring a charge against thee for destroying nations which were of thy own making? Who shall appear against thee in court to plead the cause of guilty men? For there is no other god but thee; all the world is thy concern, and there is none to whom thou must prove the justice of thy sentence. There is no king or other ruler who can outface thee on behalf of those whom thou hast punished. But thou art just and orderest all things justly, counting it alien to thy power to condemn a man who ought not to be punished. For thy strength is the source of justice, and it is because thou art master of all that thou sparest all. Thou showest thy strength when men doubt the perfection of thy power; it is when they know it and yet are insolent that thou dost punish them. But thou, with strength at thy command, judgest in mercy and rulest us in great forbearance; for the power is thine to use when thou wilt.

19 By acts like these thou didst teach thy people that the just man must also be kind-hearted, and thou hast filled thy sons with hope by the offer of repentance for their sins. If thou didst use such care and such indulgence even in punishing thy children's enemies, who deserved to die, granting them time and space to get free of their wickedness, with what discrimination thou didst pass judgement on thy sons, to whose fathers thou hast given sworn covenants full of the promise of good!

So we are chastened by thee, but our enemies thou dost scourge ten thousand times more, so that we may lay thy goodness to heart when we sit in judgement, and may hope for mercy when we ourselves are judged. This is why the wicked who had lived their lives in heedless folly were tormented by thee with their own abominations. They had strayed far down the paths of error, taking for gods the most contemptible and hideous creatures, deluded like thoughtless children. And so, as though they were mere babes who have not learnt reason, thou didst visit on them a sentence that made them ridiculous; but those who do not take warning from such derisive correction will experience the full weight of divine judgement. They were indignant at their own sufferings, but finding themselves chastised through the very creatures they had taken to be gods, they recognized that the true God was he whom they had long ago refused to know. Thus the full rigour of condemnation descended on them.

The evils of idolatry

WHAT BORN FOOLS ALL MEN WERE WHO lived in ignorance of God, who from the good things before their eyes could not learn to know him who really is, and failed to recognize the artificer though they observed his works! Fire, wind, swift air, the circle of the starry signs, rushing water, or the great lights

On the gradual extermination of the ancient inhabitants of the holy land (Canaan) see Exod.23.28–30; Deut.7.20. 11: Noah cursed their race, i.e. the Canaanites, Gen.9.25.

12.12–21: God's leniency is not due to weakness or fear. God's mercy is an example and warning to the Jews. The author avoids mentioning the sins of the Israelites.

12.22–27: Severe punishment for the Egyptians. 23–24: Compare 11.15–16.

13.1–15.19: Heathen worship is foolishness.

13.1–9: The folly of deifying nature. 1: The argument for God's existence from design was popular among the Stoics. God is described in philosophical terms as he who really is; see Sept. Exod.3.14. 2: Fire, wind, etc. are aspects of nature worshiped by pagans and important to Greek philosophers; compare Deut.4.19.

in heaven that rule the world—these 3 they accounted gods. If it was through delight in the beauty of these things that men supposed them gods, they ought to have understood how much better is the Lord and Master of it all;
 for it was by the prime author of all 4 beauty that they were created. If it was through astonishment at their power and influence, men should have learnt from these how much more powerful is 5 he who made them. For the greatness and beauty of created things give us a corresponding idea of their Creator.
 6 Yet these men are not greatly to be blamed, for when they go astray they may be seeking God and really wishing 7 to find him. Passing their lives among his works and making a close study of them, they are persuaded by appearances because what they see is so 8 beautiful. Yet even so they do not deserve to be excused, for with enough understanding to speculate about the universe, why did they not sooner discover the Lord and Master of it all?
 10 The really degraded ones are those whose hopes are set on dead things,
 who give the name of gods to the work
 of human hands, to gold and silver fashioned by art into images of living creatures, or to a useless stone carved 11 by a craftsman long ago. Suppose some skilled woodworker fells with his saw a convenient tree and deftly strips off all the bark, then works it up elegantly into some vessel suitable for everyday 12 use; and the pieces left over from his work he uses to cook his food, and 13 eats his fill. But among the waste there is one useless piece, crooked and full of knots, and this he takes and carves to occupy his idle moments, and shapes
 it with leisurely skill into the image of 14 a human being; or else he gives it the form of some contemptible creature, painting it with vermilion and raddling its surface with red paint, so that every 15 flaw in it is painted over. Then he makes a suitable shrine for it and fixes it on 16 the wall, securing it with iron nails. It is he who has to take the precautions on its behalf to save it from falling, for he knows that it cannot fend for itself: it is only an image, and needs help. Yet he 17 prays to it about his possessions and his wife and children, and feels no shame in addressing this lifeless object;

 for health he appeals to a thing that is 18 feeble, for life he prays to a dead thing, for aid he implores something utterly incapable, for a prosperous journey something that has not even the use of its legs; in matters of earnings and 19 business and success in handicraft he asks effectual help from a thing whose hands are entirely ineffectual.

The man, again, who gets ready for 14 a voyage, and plans to set his course through the wild waves, cries to a piece of wood more fragile than the ship which carries him. Desire for gain 2 invented the ship, and the shipwright with his wisdom built it;<sup>e</sup> but it is thy 3 providence, O Father, that is its pilot, for thou hast given it a pathway
 through the sea and a safe course
 among the waves, showing that thou 4 canst save from every danger, so that even a man without skill can put to sea.
 It is thy will that the things made by 5 thy wisdom should not lie idle; and therefore men trust their lives even to the frailest spar, and passing through the billows on a mere raft come safe to land. Even in the beginning, when the 6 proud race of giants was being brought to an end, the hope of mankind escaped on a raft and, piloted by thy hand, bequeathed to the world a new breed of men. For a blessing is on the wooden 7 vessel through which right has prevailed; but the wooden idol made by 8 human hands is accursed, and so is its maker—he because he made it, and the perishable thing because it was called a god. Equally hateful to God are the 9 godless man and his ungodliness; the doer and the deed shall both be punished.

<sup>e</sup> Other witnesses read and wisdom was the shipwright that built it.

13.10–19: The worship of idols is inexcusable. See Isa.44.9–20 and Let. Jer. This was a frequent theme in Jewish literature.

14.1–10: Folly of the idolatrous navigator. 1: The piece of wood more fragile is the protective idol of the ship. 6: Giants: see Gen.6.1–4. Hope of mankind: Noah and his family; see Gen.5.28–9.29.

11 And so retribution shall fall upon the idols of the heathen, because though part of God's creation they have been made into an abomination, to make men stumble and to catch the 12 feet of fools. The invention of idols is the root of immorality; they are a contrivance which has blighted human 13 life. They did not exist from the beginning, nor will they be with us for ever; superstition brought them into the 14 world, and for good reason a short sharp end is in store for them.

15 Some father, overwhelmed with untimely grief for the child suddenly taken from him, made an image of the child and honoured thenceforth as a god what was once a dead human being, handing on to his household the observance of rites and ceremonies. Then this impious custom, established by the passage of time, was observed as a law. Or again graven images came to be worshipped at the command of despotic
17 princes. When men could not do honour to such a prince before his face because he lived far away, they made a likeness of that distant face, and produced a visible image of the king they sought to honour, eager to pay court to the absent prince as though he were 18 present. Then the cult grows in fervour as those to whom the king is unknown are spurred on by ambitious craftsmen. In his desire, it may be, to please the monarch, a craftsman skilfully distorts the likeness into an ideal form, and the common people, beguiled by the beauty of the workmanship, take for an object of worship him whom lately they 21 honoured as a man. So this becomes a trap for living men: enslaved by mischance or misgovernment, men confer on stocks and stones the name that none may share.

22 Then, not content with gross error in their knowledge of God, men live in the constant warfare of ignorance and call this monstrous evil peace. They perform ritual murders of children and secret ceremonies and the frenzied orgies of unnatural cults; the purity of life and marriage is abandoned; and a man treacherously murders his neighbour or corrupts his wife and breaks his heart. All is in chaos—bloody murder, theft and fraud, corruption, treachery, riot, perjury, honest men driven to distraction; ingratitude, moral corruption, sexual perversion, breakdown of marriage, adultery, debauchery. For the worship of idols, whose names it is wrong even to mention, is the beginning, cause, and end of every evil. Men either indulge themselves to the point of madness, or produce inspired utterance which is all lies, or live dishonest lives, or break their oath without scruple. They perjure themselves and expect no harm because the idols they trust in are lifeless. On two counts judgement will overtake them: because in their devotion to idols they have thought wrongly about God, and because, in their contempt for religion, they have deliberately perjured themselves. It is not any power in what they swear by, but the nemesis of sin, that always pursues the transgression of the wicked.

But thou, our God, art kind and true and patient, a merciful ruler of all that is. For even if we sin, we are thine; we acknowledge thy power. But we will not sin, because we know that we are accounted thine. To know thee is the whole of righteousness, and to acknowledge thy power is the root of immortality. We have not been led astray by the perverted inventions of human skill or the barren labour of painters, by some gaudy painted shape, the sight of which arouses in fools a passionate desire for a mere image without life or breath. They are in love with evil and deserve to trust in nothing better, those who do these evil things or hanker after them or worship them.

14.11–31: Origin and evil results of idolatry. 13: Unnatural idols did not exist from the beginning but were invented. 17: The worship of the prince, or ruler cult, was popular in the Hellenistic world, particularly in Egypt. See Rom.1.22–32 for similar licentious behavior in defiance of God and society.

15.1–6: Benefits of worshipping the true God. 1: See Exod.34.6 and Sept. Deut.32.4. 4: Ancient statues were usually painted. 5: Stories were told by Christian authors of the passionate desire aroused by a mere image.

7 For a potter kneading his clay laboriously moulds every vessel for our use, but out of the self-same clay he fashions without distinction the pots that are to serve for honourable uses and the opposite; and what the purpose of each one is to be, the moulder of the clay decides. And then with ill-directed toil he makes a false god out of the same clay, this man who not long before was himself fashioned out of earth and soon returns to the place whence he was taken, when the living soul that was lent to him must be repaid. His concern is not that he must one day fall sick or that his span of life is short; but he must vie with goldsmiths and silversmiths and copy the bronze-workers, and he thinks it does him credit to make counterfeits. His heart is ashes, his hope worth less than common earth, and his life cheaper than his own clay, because he did not recognize by whom he himself was moulded, or who it was that inspired him with an active soul and breathed into him the breath of life. No, he reckons our life a game, and our existence a market where money can be made; 'one must get a living', he says, 'by fair means or foul'. But this man knows better than anyone that he is doing wrong, this maker of fragile pots and idols from the same earthy stuff. The greatest fools of all, and worse than infantile, were the enemies and oppressors of thy people, for they supposed all their heathen idols to be gods, although they have eyes that cannot see, nostrils that cannot draw breath, ears that cannot hear, fingers that cannot feel, and feet that are useless for walking. It was a man who made them; one who draws borrowed breath gave them their shape. But no human being has the power to shape a god like himself: he is only mortal, but what he makes with his impious hands is dead; and so he is better than the objects of his worship, for he is at least alive—they never can be.

Moreover, these men worship animals, the most revolting animals. Compared with the rest of the brute creation, their divinities are the least intelligent. Even as animals they have no beauty to make them desirable; when God approved and blessed his work, they were left out.

The pattern of divine justice

AND SO THE OPPRESSORS WERE FITTINGLY chastised by creatures like these: they were tormented by swarms of vermin. But while they were punished, thou didst make provision for thy people, sending quails for them to eat, an unwonted food to satisfy their hunger; for thy purpose was that whereas those others, hungry as they were, should turn in loathing even from necessary food because the creatures sent upon them were so disgusting, thy people after a short spell of scarcity should enjoy unwonted delicacies. It was right that the scarcity falling on the oppressors should be inexorable, and that thy people should learn by brief experience how their enemies were tormented. Even when fierce and furious snakes attacked thy people and the bites of writhing serpents were spreading death, thy anger did not continue to the bitter end; their short trouble was sent them as a lesson, and they were given a symbol<sup>f</sup> of salvation to remind them of the requirements of thy law. For any man who turned towards it was saved, not by the thing he looked upon but by thee, the saviour of all. In this way thou didst convince our enemies that thou art the deliverer from every evil. Those other men died from the bite of locusts and flies, and no remedy was found to save their lives, because it

f Or pledge.

15.7-19: The manufacture of idols. 7: Compare Isa.45.9. 14-17: The greatest fools of all in making idols were the Egyptians. 19: Which animals worshiped by the Egyptians were left out of God's blessing is not clear, perhaps the unclean animals of 11.15 or the serpent cursed by God in Gen.3.14-15.

16.1-19.22: A theology of history is developed.

16.1-23: The punishment of the Egyptians and wicked Israelites. The theme is similar to that of chs. 10-12. 2: Quails: Exod.16.13; Num.11.31; Ps.78.27. 5-6: Num.21.4-9. 7: This is based on Jewish exegesis of Num.21.9. 9: Exod.10.17 may have suggested that the Egyptians died was fitting for them to be chastised by 10 such creatures. But thy sons did not succumb to the fangs of snakes, however venomous, because thy mercy 11 came to their aid and healed them. It was to remind them of thy utterances that they were bitten and quickly recovered; it was for fear they might fall into deep forgetfulness and become 12 unresponsive to thy kindness. For it was neither herb nor poultice that cured them, but thy all-healing word, 13 O Lord. Thou hast the power of life and death, thou bringest a man down to the gates of death and up again.

 14 Man in his wickedness may kill, but he cannot bring back the breath of life that has gone forth nor release a soul
 that death has arrested.

15 But from thy hand there is no
 16 escape; for godless men who refused to acknowledge thee were scourged by thy mighty arm, pursued by extraordinary storms of rain and hail in relentless torrents, and utterly destroyed 17 by fire. Strangest of all, in water, that quenches everything, the fire burned more fiercely; creation itself fights to 18 defend the godly. At one time the flame was moderated, so that it should not burn up the living creatures inflicted on the godless, who were to learn from this that it was by God's 19 justice that they were pursued; at another time it blazed even under water with more than the natural power of fire, to destroy the produce of a sinful 20 land. By contrast, thy own people were given angels' food, and thou didst send them from heaven, without labour of their own, bread ready to eat, rich in delight of every kind and suited to 21 every taste. The sustenance thou didst supply showed thy sweetness towards thy children, and the bread, serving the desire of each man who ate it, was changed into what he wished. Its snow 22

 and ice resisted fire and did not melt,
 to teach them that whereas their enemies' crops had been destroyed by fire that blazed in the hail and flashed through the teeming rain, that same 23
 fire had now forgotten its own power,
 in order that the godly might be fed.

For creation, serving thee its maker, 24
 exerts its power to punish the godless and relaxes into benevolence towards those who trust in thee. And so it was 25
 at that time too: it adapted itself endlessly in the service of thy universal bounty, according to the desire of thy suppliants. So thy sons, O Lord, whom 26 thou hast chosen, were to learn that it is not the growing of crops by which mankind is nourished, but it is thy word that sustains those who trust in thee.
 That substance, which fire did not 27 destroy, simply melted away when warmed by the sun's first rays, to 28 teach us that we must rise before the sun to give thee thanks and pray to thee as daylight dawns. The hope of an 29 ungrateful man will melt like the hoar-frost of winter, and drain away like water that runs to waste.

Great are thy judgements and hard 17
 to expound; and thus it was that uninstructed souls went astray. Thus 2 heathen men imagined that they could lord it over thy holy people; but,
 prisoners of darkness and captives of unending night, they lay each immured under his own roof, fugitives from eternal providence. Thinking that their 3 secret sins might escape detection beneath a dark pall of oblivion, they lay in disorder, dreadfully afraid, terrified by apparitions. For the dark corner 4 that held them offered no refuge from fear, but loud unnerving noises roared around them, and phantoms with downcast unsmiling faces passed before

---

from the bite of locusts and flies. See Josephus, Ant. II.14.3. 16: See Exod.9.18-34. 17: The strange quality of fire burning in water is derived from Jewish exegesis of Exod.9.24. 18: The author assumes that the frogs and lice of the earlier plagues survived to be spared by the hail. This is contrary to Exod.8.13,31. 20: Angels' food: the manna of Exod.16.4-21 ("bread from heaven") and Ps.78.25 ("bread of angels"). It was described by Jewish tradition as suited to every taste. 22: Snow and ice: "the manna," according to Sept. Num.11.7-8.

16.24-29: Philosophical and moral lessons of the manna. 26: Compare Deut.8.3. 27: Manna could be baked, and was seemingly indestructible by fire, but it was melted away by the sun's first rays; compare Exod.16.21. 28: Jewish morning prayers may be recited only after daylight dawns.

17.1-18.4: The plague of darkness (Exod.10.21-23). 3: Secret sins may allude to the mystery

5 their eyes. No fire, however great, had force enough to give them light, nor had the brilliant flaming stars strength to illuminate that hideous darkness. 6 There shone upon them only a blaze, of no man's making, that terrified them, and in their panic they thought the real world even worse than that 7 imaginary sight. The tricks of the sorcerers' art failed, and all their boasted wisdom was exposed and put to 8 shame; for the very men who profess to drive away fear and trouble from sick souls were themselves sick with 9 dread that made them ridiculous. Even if nothing frightful was there to terrify them, yet having once been scared by the advancing vermin and the hissing 10 serpents, they collapsed in terror, refusing even to look upon the air from 11 which there can be no escape.<sup>g</sup> For wickedness proves a cowardly thing when condemned by an inner witness, and in the grip of conscience gives way 12 to forebodings of disaster. Fear is nothing but an abandonment of the aid that comes from reason; and hope, 13 defeated by this inward weakness, capitulates before ignorance of the cause by which the torment comes. 14 So all that night, which really had no power against them because it came upon them from the powerless depths of hell, they slept the same haunted 15 sleep, now harried by portentous spectres, now paralysed by the treachery of their own souls; sudden and 16 unforeseen, fear came upon them. Thus a man would fall down where he stood and be held in durance, locked in a 17 prison that had no bars. Farmer or shepherd or labourer toiling in the wilds, he was caught, and awaited the inescapable doom; the same chain of 18 darkness bound all alike. The whispering breeze, the sweet melody of birds in spreading branches, the steady beat of 19 water that rushes by, the headlong crash of rocks falling, the racing of creatures as they bound along unseen, the roar of fierce wild beasts, or echo reverberating from hollows in the hills—all these sounds paralysed them with fear. The whole world was bathed in the 20 bright light of day, and went about its tasks unhindered; those men alone 21 were overspread with heavy night, fit image of the darkness that awaited them; and heavier than the darkness was the burden each was to himself.

But for thy holy ones there shone a 18 great light. And so their enemies, hearing their voices but not seeing them, counted them happy because they had not suffered like themselves, gave thanks for their forbearance 2 under provocation, and begged as a favour that they should part company. Accordingly, thy gift was a pillar of 3 fire to be the guide of their uncharted journey, a sun that would not scorch them on their glorious expedition. Their 4 enemies did indeed deserve to lose the light of day and be kept prisoners in darkness, for they had kept in durance thy sons, through whom the imperishable light of the law was to be given to the world.

They planned to kill the infant 5 children of thy holy people, but when one child had been exposed to death and rescued, thou didst deprive them of all their children in requital, and drown them all together in the swelling waves. Of that night our forefathers were given 6 warning in advance, so that, having sure knowledge, they might be heartened by the promises which they trusted. Thy 7 people were looking for the deliverance of the godly and the destruction of their enemies; for thou didst use the same 8 means to punish our enemies and to make us glorious when we heard thy call. The devout children of a virtuous 9 race were offering sacrifices in secret, and covenanted with one consent to keep the law of God and to share alike in the same blessings and the same dangers, and they were already singing

<sup>g</sup> Or there is no need to escape.

cults of the author's day which he attributes to the ancient Egyptians; compare 14.23. 5: The details are derived from the Jewish exegesis of Exod.10.21. 7: Compare Exod.7.11,22; 8.7,18; 9.11. 18.3: See Exod.13.21; 14.24.

18.5-19: The Egyptians counsel death but are slain themselves. 5: One child: Moses; see Exod.1.15-2.10. 6: The night of the first Passover was so well known as to be called that night; see Exod.12.42. 9: Ancestral songs: the author anachronistically pictures the first Passover in their sacred ancestral songs of praise.

 10 In discordant contrast there came an outcry from their enemies, as piteous lamentation for their children spread 11 abroad. Master and slave were punished together with the same penalty;
 king and common man suffered the 12 same fate. All alike had their dead, past counting, struck down by one common form of death; there were not enough living even to bury the dead; at one 13 stroke the most precious of their offspring had perished. Relying on their magic arts, they had scouted all warnings; but when they saw their first-born dead, they confessed that thy people have God as their father.

14 All things were lying in peace and silence, and night in her swift course 15 was half spent, when thy almighty Word leapt from thy royal throne in heaven into the midst of that doomed 16 land like a relentless warrior, bearing the sharp sword of thy inflexible decree,
 and stood and filled it all with death,
 his head touching the heavens, his feet 17 on earth. At once nightmare phantoms appalled them, and unlooked-for fears 18 set upon them; and as they flung themselves to the ground half dead, one here,
 one there, they confessed the reasons 19 for their deaths; for the dreams that tormented them had taught them before they died, so that they should not die ignorant of the reason why they suffered.

20 The godly also had a taste of death
 when a multitude were struck down in the wilderness; but the divine wrath 21 did not long continue. A blameless man was quick to be their champion, bearing the weapons of his priestly ministry,
 prayer and the incense that propitiates;
 he withstood the divine anger and set a limit to the disaster, thus showing that 22 he was thy servant. He overcame the avenging fury not by bodily strength or force of arms; by words he subdued the avenger, appealing to the sworn covenants made with our forefathers. When 23 the dead had already fallen in heaps one on another, he interposed himself and beat back the divine wrath, barring its line of attack upon the living. On 24 his long-skirted robe the whole world was represented; the glories of the fathers were engraved on his four rows of precious stones; and thy majesty was in the diadem upon his head. To 25 these the destroyer yielded, for these made him afraid; only to taste his wrath

 had been enough.

But the godless were pursued by 19
 pitiless anger to the bitter end, for God knew their future also: how after 2 allowing thy people to depart, and even urging their departure, they would change their minds and set out in pursuit. While they were still mourning, 3 still lamenting at the graves of their dead, they rushed into another foolish decision, and pursued as fugitives those 4 whom they had begged to leave. For the fate they had merited was drawing them on to this conclusion and made them forget what had happened, so that they might suffer the torments still needed to complete their punishment, and that thy people might achieve an 5 incredible journey, and that their enemies might meet an outlandish
 death.

The whole creation, with all its 6 elements, was refashioned in subservience to thy commands, so that thy servants might be preserved unscathed. Men gazed at the cloud that 7 overshadowed the camp, at dry land emerging where before was only water,
 at an open road leading out of the Red Sea, and a grassy plain in place of stormy waves, across which the whole nation 8 passed, under the shelter of thy hand,
 after all the marvels they had seen.
 They were like horses at pasture, like 9 skipping lambs, as they praised thee,
 O Lord, by whom they were rescued.
 For they still remembered their life in 10

the format of his day at which Pss.113-118 were sung. 12: Not enough living: exaggeration of Num.33.3-4. 15: Word of God is personified as the effective executor of his will. Compare "God said" of Gen.1.2-29. 17-19: The content has no foundation in the Exodus story but is an embellishment of it. Appalled them: the firstborn who were to die. See Exod.12.28-30.

18.20-25: The Israelite plague of death was stayed by Aaron (Num.16.44-50).

19.1-21: God worked wonders at the time of the Exodus. The wicked Egyptians were grieved by them and the Israelites liberated. 2: See Exod.12.31-33; 14.23-28. 10: Read Exod. ch. 8.

a foreign land: how instead of cattle the earth bred lice, and instead of fish the river spewed up swarms of frogs; and how, after that, they had seen a new sort of bird when, driven by greed, they had begged for delicacies to eat, and for their relief quails came up from the sea.

13 So punishment came upon those sinners, not unheralded by violent thunderbolts. They suffered justly for their own wickedness, for they had raised bitter hatred of strangers to a new pitch. There had been others who refused to welcome strangers when they came to them, but these made slaves of guests who were their benefactors. 15 There is indeed a judgement awaiting those who treated foreigners as enemies; but these, after a festal welcome, oppressed with hard labour men who had earlier shared their rights. They were struck with blindness also, like the men at the door of the one good man, when yawning darkness fell upon them and each went groping for his own doorway.

For as the notes of a lute can make various tunes with different names though each retains its own pitch, so the elements combined among themselves in different ways, as can be accurately inferred from the observation of what happened. Land animals took to the water and things that swim migrated to dry land; fire retained its normal power even in water, and water forgot its quenching properties. Flames on the other hand failed to consume the flesh of perishable creatures that walked in them, and the substance of heavenly food, like ice and prone to melt, no longer melted.

In everything, O Lord, thou hast made thy people great and glorious, and hast not neglected in every time and place to be their helper.

---

12: As usual, the murmurings of the Israelites prior to the quails are omitted. See 16.2 n. 13: There are no thunderbolts in Exod. ch. 14, but see Ps.77.16–19 and Josephus, Ant. II.16.3. 14: Others are the Sodomites, Gen. ch. 19. 16: The Israelites were given a festal welcome in Egypt at the time of Joseph (Gen.47.1–12) and were oppressed with hard labour by a later Pharaoh (Exod.1.8–11). 17: Gen.19.11; Exod.10.21–23. 18–21: God, dealing with the elements of nature as a musician with a lute, arranges and rearranges them to achieve the wonderful result.

19.22: The conclusion. God directs Israel's history.

ECCLESIASTICUS

OR

THE WISDOM OF JESUS SON OF SIRACH

Ecclesiasticus, literally meaning a "church book," is so called either because it was used extensively in church worship or because the early Christian church rather than the synagogue received it into the canon. It is the work of a Jewish wisdom teacher of about 180 B.C. The book, also called the Wisdom of Sirach, or ben Sirach, or simply Sirach, after its author, Jesus the son of Sirach (see 50.27), stands in the wisdom tradition of Proverbs, which, attempting to discover the patterns at work in the circumstances of human life, concludes that wisdom is God's gift. But unlike the wise men of Proverbs, the author is also a close student of the Jewish Scriptures, especially the Torah (the Law). His work represents a fusion of wisdom and scribal piety.

Written in Hebrew, the original text was lost in early Christian times. About two-thirds of the book in Hebrew was rediscovered in Cairo around 1896. Since then other partial Hebrew manuscripts have been found, among them short fragments in the Judean desert at Qumran and Masada; these discoveries seem to indicate that the Hebrew text of Cairo, though not identical with the original, does derive from the original text, not from a retranslation from the Greek, as was once supposed. The present English translation is made from the Greek version prepared by the author's grandson (see Preface and notes) but is influenced by the recent Hebrew finds. At many points the books had been expanded by later additions, and the omission of these additions from this translation explains why the verse numbers are not always in consecutive order.

---

Preface

A LEGACY OF GREAT VALUE HAS come to us through the law, the prophets, and the writers who followed in their steps, and for this Israel's traditions of discipline and wisdom deserve recognition. It is the duty of those who study the scriptures not only to become expert themselves, but also to use their scholarship for the benefit of the outside world through both the spoken and the written word. So my grandfather Jesus, who had applied himself industriously to the study of the law, the prophets, and the other writings of our ancestors, and had gained a considerable proficiency in them, was moved to compile a book of his own on the themes of discipline and wisdom, so that, with this further help, scholars might make greater progress in their studies by living as the law directs.

You are asked then to read with sympathetic attention, and make allowances if, in spite of all the devoted work I have put into the translation, some of the expressions appear inadequate. For it is impossible for a translator to find precise equivalents for the original Hebrew in another language. Not only with this book, but with the law, the prophets, and the rest of the writings, it makes no small difference to read them in the original.

When I came to Egypt and settled there in the thirty-eighth year of<sup>a</sup> the reign of King Euergetes, I found great scope for education; and I thought it very necessary to spend some energy and labour on the translation of this book. Ever since then I have been <sup>a</sup> Or there at the age of thirty-eight in . . .

---

Preface. The preface was written by the grandson of the author of Ecclesiasticus, when he translated the book into Gk. for the use of Egyptian Jews who did not know Heb. It mentions the three divisions of the Heb. Scriptures: the law, the prophets, and the other writings; this is the earliest reference to the third division of the canon, though the limits of the writings were not to be defined for another two centuries; see Lk.24.44. The translator, like the author, closely associates wisdom and study of Scripture. He asserts that a scholar should work not only for fellow specialists but for the outside world; the translator speaks of his grandfather but is also thinking of his own work. The thirty-eighth year of King Ptolemy Euergetes II Physcon of Egypt (one of the longest reigns in Egypt) was 132 B.C. This puts the original composition of Eccles. about 180 B.C., shortly before the Maccabean uprising.

applying my skill night and day to complete it, and to publish it for the use of those who have made their home in a foreign land, and wish to become scholars by training themselves to live according to the law.

The ways of wisdom

- 1 ALL WISDOM IS FROM THE LORD;
wisdom is with him for ever.
- 2 Who can count the sand of the sea,
the drops of rain, or the days of unending time?
- 3 Who can measure the height of the sky,
the breadth of the earth, or the depth of the abyss?<sup>b</sup>
- 4 Wisdom was first of all created things;
intelligent purpose has been there
from the beginning.<sup>c</sup>
- 6 Who has laid bare the root of wisdom?
Who has understood her subtlety?<sup>d</sup>
- 8 One alone is wise, the Lord most terrible,
seated upon his throne.
- 9 It is he who created her, surveyed and measured her,
and infused her into all his works.
- 10 To all mankind he has given her in some measure,
but in plenty to those who love him.
- 11 THE FEAR OF THE LORD BRINGS
honour and pride,
cheerfulness and a garland of joy.
- 12 The fear of the Lord gladdens the
heart;
it brings cheerfulness and joy and long life.

- Whoever fears the Lord will be prosperous at the last;
blessings will be his on the day of his death.
- The essence of wisdom is the fear of
the Lord;
she is created with the faithful in their mother's womb,
she has built an everlasting home
among men,
and will keep faith with their descendants.
- Those who fear the Lord have their fill of wisdom;
she gives them deep draughts of her
wine.
- She stocks her home with all that the heart can desire and her storehouses with her produce.
- Wisdom's garland is the fear of the Lord,
flowering with peace and health.
- She showers down knowledge and ability,
and bestows high honour on those who hold fast to her.
- Wisdom is rooted in the fear of the Lord,
and long life grows on her branches.<sup>e</sup>
- Unjust rage can never be excused;
when anger tips the scale it is a man's downfall.
- Until the right time comes, a patient man restrains himself, and afterwards cheerfulness breaks
through again;

b Some witnesses add or wisdom.

c Some witnesses add (5) The fountain of wisdom is God's word on high, and her ways are the eternal commandments.

d Some witnesses add (7) Who has discovered all that wisdom knows, or understood her wealth of experience?

e Some witnesses add (21) The fear of the Lord drives away sins, and wherever it dwells it averts his anger.

1.1-10: The source of wisdom. The two major divisions of the book (chs. 1-23 and 24-51) are each introduced by a poem in praise of wisdom. See 24.1-22; Prov.8.1-31; Job 28.1-28. 1: Wisdom includes the knowledge of man (both practical and ethical), nature, and God. 2-3: The immeasurability of nature suggests the infinite depth of wisdom. 4: Wisdom existed before the creation and informs it (see v. 9); it was later identified with the divine creative word; Jn.1.1-3. 6-10: Against the tendency to make wisdom man's achievement, Eccles. repeatedly (as here) affirms that it is God's gift. 10: Those who love him: his people Israel; see 24.7-8.

1.11-20: The definition of wisdom. Though much in Eccles. is secular common sense, this poem equates the core of wisdom with the loyal and joyful reverence for the God of Israel. 11: The fear of the Lord: reverent acceptance of God's lordship. 13: Life's basic fairness to the wise man will be shown, if only on the day of his death (see 11.28). 15: The everlasting home of wisdom is specifically Israel; see 24.7-8. 16-20: The reward of wisdom is a full life in the present world; contrast such full life here with v. 13.

1.22-30: Signs of wisdom. 22-23: Self-control (restrains himself) is such a sign (see 6.2-4).

24	until the right moment he keeps his thoughts to himself, and later his good sense is on everyone's lips.	Trust him and he will help you; steer a straight course and set your hope on him.	6
25	In wisdom's store are wise proverbs, but godliness is detestable to a sinner.	You who fear the Lord, wait for his mercy; do not stray or you will fall.	7
26	If you long for wisdom, keep the commandments, and the Lord will give it you in plenty.	You who fear the Lord, trust in him, and you shall not miss your reward. You who fear the Lord, expect prosperity,	8 9
27	For the fear of the Lord is wisdom and discipline; fidelity and gentleness are his delight.	lasting happiness and favour. Consider the past generations and see:	10
28	Do not disregard the fear of the Lord or approach him without sincerity.	was anyone who trusted the Lord ever disappointed?
29	Do not act a part before the eyes of the world; keep guard over your lips.	was anyone who stood firm in the fear of him ever deserted? did he ever neglect anyone who prayed to him?
30	Never be arrogant, for fear you fall and bring disgrace on yourself; the Lord will reveal your secrets and humble you before the assembly, because it was not the fear of the Lord that prompted you, <sup>f</sup> but your heart was full of hypocrisy.	For the Lord is compassionate and merciful; he forgives sins and comes to the rescue in time of trouble.	11
		Woe to faint hearts and nerveless hands and to the sinner who leads a double life!	12
2	MY SON, IF YOU ASPIRE TO BE A servant of the Lord, prepare yourself for testing.	Woe to the feeble-hearted! they have no faith,	13
2	Set a straight course, be resolute, and do not lose your head in time of disaster.	and therefore shall go unprotected. Woe to you who have given up the struggle!	14
3	Hold fast to him, never desert him, if you would end your days in prosperity.	What will you do when the Lord's reckoning comes?
4	Bear every hardship that is sent you; be patient under humiliation, whatever the cost.	Those who fear the Lord never disobey his words; and all who love him keep to his ways.	15
5	For gold is assayed by fire, and the Lord proves men in the furnace of humiliation.

<sup>f</sup> Or because you had no concern for the fear of the Lord.

26-28: Here, as in the preceding poem (1.11-20), wisdom is identified with reverence. 29-30: Public disgrace is a severe punishment; man's reputation is a frequent theme.

2.1-6: Testing and endurance. Testing of one's wholehearted devotion to God is here the central meaning of suffering (as in 4.17; 33.1; Job chs. 1-2), in contrast to discipline for past transgressions (Prov.3.11-12; Job 5.17-19). 1: My son: the usual address of teacher to student (Prov.1.8). 3: Though reward may be delayed, the righteous will be vindicated before they end their days. 5: Man and gold alike show their wholeness through testing.

2.7-11: God's promise confirmed by experience. Three lines beginning You who fear the Lord are balanced by three with Those who fear the Lord (vv. 15-17); three Woe's set in between complete the pattern (vv. 12-14). 10: The history of the past generations is part of the evidence of experience; see Job 8.8-10.

2.12-14: Woe to the inconsistent. 12: The indecisiveness of a double life and of those who are faint and feeble of heart (v. 13) contrasts with the wholehearted decision of those who trust the Lord.

2.15-18: The character of the reverent. 15: From parallelism of the two poetic lines it is clear

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 16 Those who fear the Lord try to dohis will;and all who love him steepthemselves in the law. 17 Those who fear the Lord are alwaysprepared;they humble themselves before himand say: 18 'We will fall into the hands of theLord, not into the hands ofmen,for his majesty is equalled by hismercy.' 3 CHILDREN, LISTEN TO ME, FOR I AMyour father;do what I tell you, if you wish to besafe. 2 It is the Lord's will that a fathershould be honoured by hischildren,and a mother's rights recognized byher sons. 3 Respect for a father atones for sins,4 and to honour your mother is tolay up a fortune. 5 A son who respects his father willbe made happy by his ownchildren;when he prays, he will be heard. 6 He who honours his father will havea long life,and he who obeys the Lord comfortshis mother; 7 he obeys his parents as though hewere their slave. 8 My son, honour your father by wordand deed,so that you may receive his blessing. 9 For a father's blessing strengthenshis children's houses,but a mother's curse uproots theirfoundations. 10 Never seek honour at the cost of | discredit to your father;how can his discredit bring honourto you? A man is honoured if his father is 11honoured,and neglect of a mother is a disgraceto children. My son, look after your father in 12his old age;do nothing to vex him as long as helives. Even if his mind fails, make 13allowances for him,and do not despise him because youare in your prime. If you support your father it will 14never be forgotten,but be put to your credit againstyour sins; when you are in trouble, it will be 15remembered in your favour,and your sins will melt away likefrost in the sunshine. To leave your father in the lurch is 16like blasphemy,and to provoke your mother's angeris to call down the Lord'scurse. My son, be unassuming in all you do, 17and those the Lord approves willlove you. The greater you are, the humbler 18you must be,and the Lord will show you favour.<sup>g</sup> For his power is great, 20and he is honoured by the humble. Do not pry into things too hard for 21youor examine what is beyond yourreach. Meditate on the commandments 22you have been given; |
|--|---|

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses add (19) Many are high and mighty;
but he reveals his secrets to the modest.

that fear and love of God are synonymous. 16: The law of Israel is associated with wisdom throughout Ecclus., in contrast to Prov. 18: See 2 Sam. 24.14; in contrast to Prov., Ecclus. refers frequently to God's mercy.

3.1-16: Respect for parents. The topic is drawn both from the wise men (Prov. 10.1) and especially from the Law (Exod. 20.12; Deut. 5.16). 1: Safe, lit. "saved," means doing well in this world. 2: The Lord's will joins divine command to the teacher's mandate. The mother's rights are asserted with the father's. 3: Atoning for sin here and in v. 30 means that a good deed cancels out a bad one; see vv. 14-15 and Dan. 4.27. 16: Deserting one's parents is considered to be as serious as blasphemy; see Exod. 21.17. The Lord's curse is an expression of God's role in retribution. In closing, the poem returns to God's will, with which it began.

3.17-24: Need for humility. Students of the wise men were often from wealthy and successful families; see v. 18. 21-24: The warning may be against Greek philosophy or against Jewish apocalyptic speculation. The commandments—the Law—are sufficient study for the wise man.

- what the Lord keeps secret is no concern of yours.
- 23 Do not busy yourself with matters that are beyond you; even what has been shown you is above man's grasp.
- 24 Many have been led astray by their speculations, and false conjectures have impaired their judgement.<sup>h</sup>
- 26 Stubbornness will come to a bad end, and the man who flirts with danger will lose his life.
- 27 Stubbornness brings a load of troubles; the sinner piles sin on sin.
- 28 When calamity befalls the arrogant, there is no cure; wickedness is too deeply rooted in him.
- 29 A sensible man will take a proverb to heart; an attentive ear is the desire of the wise.
- 30 As water quenches a blazing fire, so almsgiving atones for sin.
- 31 He who repays a good turn is mindful of the future; when he falls he will find support.
- 4 My son, do not cheat a poor man of his livelihood or keep him waiting with hungry eyes.
- 2 Do not tantalize a starving man or drive him to desperation in his need.
- 3 If a man is desperate, do not add to his troubles or keep him waiting for the charity he asks.
- 4 Do not reject the appeal of a man in distress
- or turn your back on the poor; when he begs for alms, do not look the other way
- 5 and so give him reason to curse you, for if he curses you in his bitterness, his Maker will listen to his prayer.
- 6 Make yourself popular in the assembly, and show deference to the great.
- 7 When a poor man speaks to you, give him your attention
- 8 and answer his greeting politely. Rescue the downtrodden from the oppressor,
- 9 and be firm when giving a verdict. Be a father to orphans
- 10 and like a husband to their mother; then the Most High will call you his son,
- and his love for you will be greater than a mother's.
- WISDOM RAISES HER SONS TO greatness
- 11 and cares for those who seek her. To love her is to love life;
- 12 to rise early for her sake is to be filled with joy.
- 13 The man who attains her will win recognition;
- the Lord's blessing rests upon every place she enters.
- 14 To serve her is to serve the Holy One,
- and the Lord loves those who love her.
- 15 Her dutiful servant will give laws to the heathen,
- and because he listens to her, his home will be secure.
- 16 If he trusts her, he will possess her and bequeath her to his descendants.

<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses add (25) Without eyes you will be deprived of light; if you have no knowledge, do not lay claim to it.

3.26-31: The stubborn and the sensible man. The destructive consequences of not following the warnings of vv. 17-24 are in contrast to the success of the teachable person. 28: Calamity will not work a cure, i.e. repentance in the arrogant.

4.1-6: Responsibility to the poor. 1-2: Compare the proverb, "He who gives quickly gives twice." 6: The curse was a prayer of special potency; see Num.22.1-6.

4.7-10: On being a leader. Leadership requires concern for, and courtesy to, rich and poor alike. 10: One becomes a son of God by acting as he does.

4.11-19: Wisdom gives life. The rewards of greatness (v. 11), recognition (v. 13), and security (v. 15) are summed up as life (v. 12). 11: Sons: those who put wisdom into practice, i.e. her disciples. 12: The comparison of wisdom to an attractive woman was widespread (see Prov. chs. 8-9), and the more striking since the danger of a woman's lure was also a standard motif (9.2-9). 14: Wisdom is not only common sense, it is also the worship of the Holy One.

- 17 At first she will lead him by devious ways, filling him with craven fears.
Her discipline will be a torment to him,
and her decrees a hard test
until he trusts her with all his heart.<sup>f</sup>
- 18 Then she will come straight back
to him again and gladden him,
and reveal her secrets to him.
- 19 But if he strays from her, she will desert him
and abandon him to his fate.
- 20 WATCH YOUR CHANCE AND DEFEND
yourself against wrong,
and do not be over-modest in your own cause;
- 21 for there is a modesty that leads to
sin,
as well as a modesty that brings honour and favour.
- 22 Do not be untrue to yourself in deference to another,
or so diffident that you fail in your duty.
- 23 Never remain silent when a word
might put things right,
- 24 for wisdom shows itself by speech,
and a man's education must find expression in words.
- 25 Do not argue against the truth,
but have a proper sense of your own ignorance.
- 26 Never be ashamed to admit your mistakes,
nor try to swim against the current.
- 27 Do not let yourself be a doormat
to a fool
or curry favour with the powerful.
- 28 Fight to the death for truth,
and the Lord God will fight on your side.
- 29 Do not be forward in your speech
- but slack and neglectful in your work.
- Do not play the lion in your home 30
or swagger<sup>g</sup> among your servants.
- Do not keep your hand open to 31 receive
and close it when it is your turn to give.
- Do not rely upon your money 5
and say, 'I am independent.'
- Do not yield to every impulse you 2
can gratify
or follow the desires of your heart.
- Do not say, 'I am my own master'; 3
you may be sure the Lord will call you to account.
- Do not say, 'I sinned, yet nothing 4
happened to me';
it is only that the Lord is very patient.
- Do not be so confident of pardon 5
that you sin again and again.
- Do not say, 'His mercy is so great, 6
he will pardon my sins, however many.'
- To him belong both mercy and wrath,
and sinners feel the weight of his retribution.
- Come back to the Lord without 7
delay;
do not put it off from one day to the next,
or suddenly the Lord's wrath will be upon you,
and you will perish at the time of reckoning.
- Do not rely upon ill-gotten gains, 8
for they will not avail in time of calamity.
- Do not winnow in every wind 9 or walk along every path.<sup>h</sup>

<sup>i</sup> Or until she can trust him.

<sup>j</sup> Possible meaning: Gk. obscure.

<sup>k</sup> Gk. adds this is the mark of duplicity (from 6. 1).

17: Nowhere else is the anguish of wisdom's discipline put so sharply; but see 6.18–21. 18: Wisdom is not a public knowledge, but the secret of the few who earn it (39.7; Job 11.6).

4.20–31: False and inadequate humility. Just as true humility is praised (3.17–24), so both false humility, vv. 20–28, and its opposite, the fault of arrogance, vv. 29–31, are condemned. Truth (vv. 25,28) is the balance. 26: To try to justify one's mistakes is as useless as swimming against the current.

5.1–7: Reliance on God. Three sections (4.20–31; 5.1–7; 5.8–6.4) are held together by the frequent use of the negative command. In 5.1–6, six negatives show false bases of trust. 1: Do not rely: this ties 5.1 to 5.8. 7: Coming back to the Lord gives the true basis of trust. Though a delay of justice may be observed, nevertheless God will repay in this life.

5.8–6.4: Sincerity, integrity, and self-control. 9: To winnow in every wind means to be an

- |    |   |   |          |
|----|---|---|----------|
| 10 | Stand firmly by what you knowand be consistent in what you say.   | but is nowhere to be found in timeof trouble;   |          |
| 11 | Be quick to listen,but take time over your answer.  | when you are prosperous, he willbe your second self   | 11       |
| 12 | Answer a man if you know what tosay,but if not, hold your tongue.   | and make free with your servants,but if you come down in the world,he will turn against you   | 12       |
| 13 | Honour or shame can come throughspeaking,and a man's tongue may be hisdownfall.   | and you will not see him again.Hold your enemies at a distance,and keep a wary eye on yourfriends.  | 13       |
| 14 | Do not get a name for being a gossipor lay traps with your tongue;for as there is shame in store for thethief,so there is harsh censure forduplicity. | A faithful friend is a secure shelter;whoever finds one has found atreasure.  | 14       |
| 15 | Avoid the little faults as well as thegreat.  | A faithful friend is beyond price;his worth is more than money canbuy.  | 15       |
| 6  | Do not change from a friend intoan enemy,for a bad name brings shame anddisgrace,and this is the mark of duplicity.                                       | A faithful friend is an elixir of life,found only by those who fear theLord.The man who fears the Lord keepshis friendships in repair,for he treats his neighbour as himself. | 1617 |
| 2  | Never be roused by violent passions;they will tear you apart like a bull, <sup>1</sup>  | MY SON, SEEK WISDOM'S DISCIPLINEwhile you are young,and when your hair is white, youwill find her still.  | 18       |
| 3  | they will eat up your leaves, destroyyour fruit,and leave you a withered tree.  | Come to her like a farmer ploughingand sowing;  | 19       |
| 4  | Evil passion ruins the man whoharbours it,to the delight of his gloating enemies.   | then wait for her plentiful harvest.If you cultivate her, you will labourfor a little while,but soon you will be eating hercrops.   | 19       |
| 5  | Pleasant words win many friends,and an affable manner makesacquaintance easy.   | How harsh she seems to theundisciplined!  | 20       |
| 6  | Accept a greeting from everyone,but advice from only one in athousand.  | The fool cannot abide her;like a stone she is a burden thattests his strength,  | 21       |
| 7  | When you make a friend, begin bytesting him,and be in no hurry to trust him.  | but he is quick to toss her aside.Wisdom well deserves her name,for she is not accessible to many.  | 22       |
| 8  | Some friends are loyal when it suitsthembut desert you in time of trouble.  | Listen, my son, accept myjudgement;   | 23       |
| 9  | Some friends turn into enemiesand shame you by making thequarrel public.  |   |          |
| 10 | Another sits at your table,   |   |          |

<sup>1</sup> they . . . bull: probable meaning; Gk. and Heb. both obscure.

opportunist. 6.2-3: Control of passions rather than their free expression is real vitality. 4: Gloating enemies: a form of punishment.

6.5-17: Friendship. 5: Pleasant words: contrast with 5.10-14. 6-15: Friends, false and true, are nearly universal themes of secular wisdom. 16-17: This common-sense section ends on the religious note, fear of the Lord. On treating the neighbour as oneself, see 31.15.

6.18-7.3: The struggle for, and choice of, wisdom. (Compare with 4.11-19.) 21: Stone . . . that tests his strength: perhaps a training exercise. 22: An obscure Heb. pun may lie behind this verse. 23-31: Slavery to wisdom (fetters, collar, v. 24) becomes a princely status (vv. 29-31).

	do not reject my advice.	Do not sow in the furrows of	3
24	Put your feet in wisdom's fetters	injustice,
	and your neck into her collar.	for fear of reaping a sevenfold crop.
25	Stoop to carry her on your shoulders	Do not ask the Lord for high office	4
	and do not chafe at her bonds.	or the king for preferment.
26	Come to her whole-heartedly,	Do not pose as a righteous man	5
	and keep to her ways with all your	before the Lord
	might.	or play the sage in the king's presence.
27	Follow her track, and she will make	Do not aspire to be a judge,	6
	herself known to you;	unless you have the strength to
	once you have grasped her, never	put an end to injustice;
	let her go.	for you may be intimidated by a
28	In the end you will find the relief	man of rank
	she offers;	and so compromise your integrity.
	she will transform herself into joy	Do not commit an offence against	7
	for you.	the community
29	Her fetters will become your strong	and so incur a public disgrace.
	defence
	and her collar a gorgeous robe.	Do not pile sin upon sin,	8
30	Her yoke <sup>m</sup> is a golden ornament	for even one is enough to make you
	and her bonds a purple cord.	guilty.
31	You shall put her on like a gorgeous	Do not say, 'My liberality will be	9
	robe	taken into account;
	and wear her like a splendid crown.	when I make an offering to God
		Most High he will accept it.'
32	If it is your wish, my son, you can	Do not grow weary of praying	10
	be trained;	or neglect the giving of charity.
	if you give your mind to it, you can	Never laugh at a man in his bitter	11
	become clever;	humiliation,
33	if you enjoy listening, you will learn;	for there is One who both humbles
	if you are attentive, you will grow	and exalts.
	wise.	Do not plot to deceive your	12
34	When you stand among your elders,	brother
	decide who is wise and join him.	or pay back a friend in his own coin.
35	Listen gladly to every godly	Refuse ever to tell a lie;	13
	argument	it is a habit from which no good
	and see that no wise proverb	comes.
	escapes you.	Never be garrulous among your	14
36	If you discover a wise man, rise	elders
	early to visit him;	or repeat yourself when you pray.
	let your feet wear out his doorstep.	Do not resent manual labour or	15
37	Ponder the decrees of the Lord	farm-work, and study his commandments at	for it was ordained by the Most
	all times.	High.
	He will strengthen your mind	Do not enlist in the ranks of	16
	and grant your desire for wisdom.	sinners;
7	Do no evil, and evil will not come	remember that retribution will not upon you;	delay.
2	turn away from wrong, and it will avoid you.

m So Heb.; Gk. Upon her.

For relief (v. 28) and yoke (v. 30; compare 51.26), see Mt.11.28–30. 32–33: The fourfold if emphasizes freedom of choice. 34–37: To listen to the wise (vv. 34–36) and to study the Law (v. 37) bring the same wisdom.

7.4–17: Warnings against pride. In this series of imperatives, the interplay of common sense and faith is noteworthy. 5: Action before the Lord is paralleled to that in the king's presence. 14: See Mt.6.7. 15: Farm-work was widely praised as honorable (see Gen.2.15), but in 38.25

- |    |   |  |
|----|---|--|
| 17 | Humble yourself to the uttermost,for the doom of the impious is fireand worms.                                  | Love your Maker with all your might 30and do not leave his ministerswithout support.   |
| 18 | Do not part with a friend for gain, <sup>n</sup>or a true brother for all the gold ofOphir.                     | Fear the Lord and honour the priest 31and give him his dues, as you havebeen commanded,the firstfruits, the guilt-offering, andthe shoulder of the victim,the dedication sacrifice, and thefirstfruits of holy things. |
| 19 | Do not lose the chance of a wiseand good wife,for her attractions are worth morethan gold.                  | Be open-handed also with the poor, 32so that your own well-being may becomplete.   |
| 20 | Do not ill-treat a slave who workshonestlyor a hired servant whose heart is inhis work.                     | Every living man appreciates 33generosity;do not withhold your kindnesseven when a man is dead.  |
| 21 | Love a good slave from the bottomof your heartand do not grudge him his freedom.                                | Do not turn your back on those 34who weep,but mourn with those who mourn.  |
| 22 | Have you cattle? Take care of them,and if they bring you profit, keep them.   | Do not hesitate to visit the sick, 35for by such visits you will win theiraffection.   |
| 23 | Have you sons? Discipline themand break them in from their earliestyears.                                       | Whatever you are doing, remember 36the end that awaits you;then all your life you will never gowrong.  |
| 24 | Have you daughters? See that theyare chaste,and do not be too lenient with them.                                | Do not pit yourself against a great 8man,for fear of falling into his power.   |
| 25 | Marry your daughter, and a greatload will be off your hands;but give her to a sensible husband.                 | Do not quarrel with a rich man; 2you may be sure he will outbid you.For money has been the ruin of manyand has misled the minds of kings.  |
| 26 | If you have a wife after your ownheart, do not divorce her;but do not trust yourself to one youcannot love. | Do not argue with a long-winded 3man,and so add fuel to his fire.  |
| 27 | Honour your father with all yourheartand do not forget your mother'sbirth-pangs;                            | Never make fun of an ill-mannered 4man,or you may hear your ancestorsinsulted.   |
| 28 | remember that your parents broughtyou into the world;how can you repay what they havedone for you?          |  |
| 29 | Fear the Lord with all your heartand reverence his priests.   |  |

<sup>n</sup> Probable reading (compare 27. 1), supported by Vss.:
Gk. for a trifle.

it is seen as in conflict with study. 17: Fire and worms: the underlying Gk. differs from the Heb., which speaks rather of death (worms) as the fate of all men, and not as punishment for the impious.

7.18–28: How to act in life's closest relationships. 18: Ophir: a well-known source for gold, perhaps in southwest Arabia; see 1 Kgs.9.28. 19: Do not lose the chance: Heb. lit. "do not reject," alludes to divorce; see v. 26 and Deut.24.1. 22: The only nonpersonal relationship in the list. 24–25: Marriage was arranged by the father; until then the daughter was kept under close supervision. 27–28: Here gratitude is the motive for honoring parents; contrast 3.1–16.

7.29–36: Religious duties. 29–31: In contrast to Prov., the priests and formal worship are important to the author; compare 50.1–21. 32–35: Other religious duties are care for the poor and sick. Kindness to the dead means providing proper burial; see Tob.1.17. 36: The same closing advice as in v. 17.

8.1–19: Behavior toward various people. This section deals with a wider circle than 7.18–28. 1–7: Wisdom advises caution in difficult relationships; See also vv. 10–19. 3: See Prov.26.21.

- 5 Do not rebuke a man who is already penitent;
remember that we are all guilty.
- 6 Despise no man for being old;
some of us are growing old as well.
- 7 Do not be smug over another man's
death;
remember that we must all die.
- 8 Do not neglect the studies of the learned,
but apply yourself to their maxims;
from these you will learn discipline,
and how to be the servant of princes.
- 9 Do not ignore the discourse of your elders,
for they themselves learned from
their fathers;
they can teach you to understand and to have an answer ready in time
of need.
- 10 Do not kindle a sinner's coals,
for fear of being burnt in the flames
of his fire.
- 11 Do not let a man's insolence bring you to your feet;
he will only sit waiting to trap you
with your own words.
- 12 Do not lend to a man with more influence than yourself,
or, if you do, write off the loan as a loss.
- 13 Do not stand surety beyond your means,
and, when you do stand surety, be prepared to pay.
- 14 Do not go to law with a judge,
for in deference to his position they will give him the verdict.
- 15 Do not go travelling with a reckless
man:
you may find him a burden on you.
He will do as he fancies,
- and his folly will bring death on you
as well.
- Do not fall out with a hot-tempered 16
man
or walk with him in unfrequented
places;
he thinks nothing of bloodshed,
and where no help is at hand he will set upon you.
- Never discuss your plans with a fool, 17
for he cannot keep a secret.
- Do nothing private in the presence 18
of a stranger;
you do not know what use he will make of it.
- Do not tell what is in your mind to 19
all comers
or accept favours from them.
- Do not be jealous over the wife you 9
cherish,
and so put into her head the idea of wronging you.
- Do not surrender yourself to a woman 2
and let her trample down your strength.
- Do not go near a loose woman, 3
for fear of falling into her snares.
- Do not keep company with a 4
dancing-girl,
or you may be caught by her tricks.
- Do not let your mind dwell on a 5
virgin,
or you may be trapped into paying damages for her.
- Never surrender yourself to 6
prostitutes,
for fear of losing all you possess,
nor gaze about you in the city streets 7
or saunter in deserted corners.
- Do not let your eye linger on a 8
woman's figure
or your thoughts dwell on beauty
not yours to possess.
- Many have been seduced by the beauty of a woman,

8-9: In contrast, toward the learned and the elders, one can be open. 8: Training for the service of princes, i.e. government service, was an age-old function of wisdom teaching; here the maxim may be merely traditional, or it may apply to the defense of Jewish interests before Hellenistic rulers. 9: The chain of tradition was important to the ancients. 15: Caution in traveling comes from the author's own experience; see 39.4; 51.13. 19: Here, as throughout the chapter, except in vv. 8-9, the clue to wisdom is withholding oneself.

9.1-9: Behavior toward women. All that follows, aside from v. 1, urges holding oneself back from trouble. 1: Do not be jealous, i.e. have confidence, is the only positive advice. 2: Do not surrender yourself: probably alludes to one's wife; a warning against too much confidence. 5: Damages would be paid to her father (Exod.22.16-17; Deut.22.29). Financial and social risks rather than personal loyalty in marriage are stressed.

	which kindles passion like fire.	A wise ruler trains his people,	10
9	Never sit at table with another man's wife or join her in a drinking party, for fear of succumbing to her charms and slipping into fatal disaster.	and gives them sound and orderly government. Like ruler, like ministers; like sovereign, like subjects; a king untutored is the people's ruin, but wise rulers make a city fit to live in.	2 3
10	Do not desert an old friend; a new one is not worth as much. A new friend is like new wine; you do not enjoy drinking it until it has matured.
		Man's life under divine providence
11	Do not envy a bad man his success; you do not know what fate is in store for him.	THE GOVERNMENT OF THE WORLD IS in the hand of the Lord; at the right time he appoints the right man to rule it.	4
12	Take no pleasure in the pleasures of the wicked; remember that they will not go scot-free all their lives.	In the Lord's hand is all human success; it is he who confers honour on the legislator.	5
13	Keep clear of a man who has power to kill, and you will not be haunted by the fear of death. If you do approach him, make no false step or you will risk losing your life. Tell yourself that you are making your way among pitfalls, or walking on the battlements of the city.	Do not nurse a grievance against your neighbour for every offence, and do not resort to acts of insolence. Arrogance is hateful to God and man, and injustice is offensive to both. Empire passes from nation to nation because of injustice, insolence, and greed.	6 7 8
14	Take the measure of your neighbours as best you can, and accept advice from those who are wise.	What has man to be so proud of? He is only dust and ashes, subject even in life to bodily decay. <sup>o</sup> A long illness mocks the doctor's skill; today's king is tomorrow's corpse.	9 10
15	Let your discussion be with intelligent men and all your talk about the law of the Most High.	When a man dies, he comes into an inheritance of maggots and vermin and worms. The origin of pride is to forsake the Lord, man's heart revolting against his Maker; as its origin is sin,	11 12 13
16	Choose the company of good men at table, and take pride in fearing the Lord.
17	A craftsman is recognized by his skilful hand and a councillor by his words of wisdom.
18	A gossip is the terror of his town, detested for his unguarded talk.

<sup>o</sup> subject . . . decay: probable meaning, based on Heb.;
Gk. obscure.

9.10-16: Social behavior. 11: God's justice and the uncertainty of life are held together in this statement. 13: Walk on battlements: expose oneself to deadly weapons.

9.17-10.3: The skill of rulers. The language shifts from command to description. 17: A leader is like a craftsman. 10.2-3: The ideal government is paternalistic. King was a traditional term in wisdom, here equivalent to ruler; the Jews had no king at this time.

10.4-11.28: Rulership and pride. A series of poems on pride repeatedly alludes to the ruler as prince, a model of the man tempted to pride. 1 Sam.2.1-10 may have suggested many of the themes in this section. 4-5: Babylonian and Egyptian kings also claimed to be appointed by God. 6-11: Against pride which destroys both man (v. 9) and nation (v. 8), the poet points

- so persistence in it brings on a deluge of depravity.
Therefore the Lord sends upon them signal punishments
and brings them to utter disaster.
- 14 The Lord overturns the thrones of
princes
and enthrones the gentle in their place.
- 15 The Lord pulls up nations by the roots
and plants the humble instead.
- 16 The Lord lays waste the territory of
nations,
destroying them to the very foundations of the earth.
- 17 Some he shrivels away to nothing,
so that all memory of them vanishes
from the earth.
- 18 Pride was not the Creator's design
for man
nor violent anger for those born of woman.
- 19 What creature is worthy of honour?
Man.
What men? Those who fear the Lord.
What creature is worthy of contempt?
Man.
What men? Those who break the commandments.
- 20 As the members of the family honour
their head,
so the Lord honours those who fear him.<sup>p</sup>
- 22 The rich, the famous, and the poor—
their only boast is the fear of the Lord.
- 23 It is unjust to despise a poor man who is intelligent,
and wrong to honour a man who is a sinner.
- 24 The prince, the judges, and the ruler
win high honours,
but none of them is as great as the godfearing man.
- 25 The wise slave will have free men to wait on him,
and a man of sense will not grumble
at it.
- DO NOT BE TOO CLEVER TO DO A day's work
or boast when you have nothing to live on.
It is better to work and have more than enough
than to boast and go hungry.
My son, in all modesty, keep your self-respect
and value yourself at your true worth.
Who will speak up for a man who is his own enemy,
or respect one who disparages
himself?
A poor man may be honoured for his wisdom,
a rich man for his wealth;
if a man is honoured in poverty,
how much more in wealth!
And if he is despised in wealth,
how much more in poverty!
A poor man with wisdom can hold his head high
and take his seat among the great.
- 26
- 27
- 28
- 29
- 30
- 31
- 11
- 2
- 3
- 4
- 5
- 6
- Do not overrate one man for his good looks
or be repelled by another man's appearance.
The bee is small among winged
creatures,
yet her produce takes first place
for sweetness.
Do not pride yourself on your fine clothes
or be haughty when honours come
to you;
for the Lord can perform marvels which are hidden from the eyes of men.
Many kings have been reduced to sitting on the ground
while a mere nobody has worn the
crown.
Many rulers have been stripped of their honours,
and great men have found themselves
at the mercy of others.

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses add (21) Fear the Lord, and you will be accepted; be obstinate and proud, and you will be rejected.

to death which levels all, even the king (vv. 10–11). 14–18: Compare Isa.40.15–17,23–24. 19: The same answer to opposite questions was a teaching device. 25: There is no literal implication here of freeing the slave; contrast 7.21. 30–31: In themselves poverty and wealth are neutral as true values but wealth does make a difference in the way a man is treated. 11.2–6:

- |    |   |   |                |
|----|---|---|----------------|
| 7  | Do not find fault before examining the evidence; think first, and criticize afterwards.   | grow old at your work.Do not envy a rogue his success;  | 21             |
| 8  | Do not answer without first listening, and do not interrupt when another is speaking.   | trust the Lord and stick to your job.It is no difficult thing for the Lord to make a poor man rich in a moment.   |                |
| 9  | Never take sides in a quarrel not your own or become involved in the disputes of rascals.   | The Lord's blessing is the reward of piety, which blossoms in one short hour.Do not say, 'What use am I? What good <sup>r</sup> can the future hold for me?'  | 2223       |
| 10 | My son, do not engage in too many transactions; if you attempt too much, you will come to grief. When you are in pursuit, you will not overtake; when you are in flight, you will not escape. | And do not say, 'I am independent; nothing can ever go wrong for me.'Hardship is forgotten in time of success, and success in time of hardship.Even on the day a man dies it is easy for the Lord | 242526 |
| 11 | One man slaves and strains and hurries and is all the farther behind.   | to give him his deserts.One hour's misery wipes out all memory of delight,  | 27             |
| 12 | Another is slow-witted and in need of help, lacking in strength and abounding in poverty; but the Lord turns a kindly eye upon him and lifts him up out of his miserable plight.              | and a man's end reveals his true character.Call no man happy before he dies, for not until death is a man known for what he is. <sup>s</sup>  | 28             |
| 13 | He raises him to dignity to the amazement of all.   | DO NOT INVITE ALL COMERS INTO YOUR home;dishonesty has many disguises.A proud man's mind is like a decoy-partridge in its cage,   | 2930       |
| 14 | Good fortune and bad, life and death, poverty and wealth, all come from the Lord. <sup>q</sup>  | or like a spy watching for a false step.He waits for a chance to twist good into evil   | 31             |
| 17 | His gifts to the devout are lasting; his approval brings unending success.  | or to cast blame on innocent actions.A small spark kindles many coals, and the insinuations of a bad man end in bloodshed.  | 32             |
| 18 | A man may grow rich by stinting and sparing, but what does he get for his pains?  | Beware of a scoundrel and his evil plots,or he may ruin your reputation for ever.   | 33             |
| 19 | When he says, 'I have earned my rest, now I can live on my savings', he does not know how long it will be before he must die and leave his wealth to others.                                  |   |                |
| 20 | Stand by your contract and give your mind to it;  |   |                |

<sup>q</sup> Some witnesses add (15) From the Lord come wisdom, understanding, and love, knowledge of the law, and the doing of good works. (16) Error and darkness have been with sinners from their birth, and evil grows old along with those who take delight in it.
<sup>r</sup> Or 'What more do I need? What greater success . . .
<sup>s</sup> not . . . he is: so Heb.; Gk. a man is known by his children.

The unpredictability of life is a warning against pride. 7-9: Discretion in judgment implies avoiding overinvolvement. 10-13: Overreaching oneself is self-destructive; compare vv. 2-6. 14-19: God's gifts are lasting (v. 17); one's own achievement may be snatched away (v. 19). 20-28: This poem is a meditation on the popular proverb, Call no man happy before he dies (v. 28). The skeptical proverb is given religious meaning.

11.29-13.13: Caution against being taken advantage of. God is mentioned only in 12.2,6 in

- 34 Admit a stranger to your home and he will stir up trouble for you and make you a stranger to your own flesh and blood.
- 12 If you do a good deed, make sure to whom you are doing it; then you will have credit for your kindness.
- 2 A good turn done to a godfearing man will be rewarded, if not by him, then by the Most High.
- 3 No good comes to the persistent wrong-doer or to the man who never gives alms;<sup>t</sup>
- 5 refuse him bread; give him nothing at all; he will only use your gifts to get the better of you, and you will suffer a double wrong in return for the favours you have done him.
- 6 The Most High himself hates sinners and sends bad men what they deserve.
- 7 Give to a good man, but never help a sinner; keep your good works for the humble, not the insolent.<sup>u</sup>
- 8 Prosperity does not reveal your friends; adversity does not conceal your enemies.
- 9 When all goes well a man's enemies are friendly,<sup>v</sup> but in hard times even his friend will desert him.
- 10 Never trust your enemy; he will turn vicious as sure as metal rusts.
- 11 If he appears humble and obsequious, take care! Be on your guard against him! Behave towards him like a man who polishes a mirror to make sure that it does not corrode away.
- 12 Do not have him at your side,
- or he will trip you up and supplant you.
Do not let him sit at your right hand,
or he will soon be wanting your own seat;
and in the end you will see the force of my words
and recall my warning with regret.
Who sympathizes with a snake-charmer when he is bitten,
or with a tamer of wild animals? 13
No more does anyone pity the man 14
who keeps bad company
and involves himself in another's wickedness.
He may stand by you for a while, 15
but, if you falter, his friendship will not last.
- An enemy has honey on his lips, 16
but in his heart he plans to trip you into the ditch.
He may have tears in his eyes,
but give him a chance and he will not stop at bloodshed.
If disaster overtakes you, you will 17
find him there ahead of you, ready, with a pretence of help, to pull your feet from under you.
Then he will nod his head and rub 18
his hands
and spread gossip, showing his true colours.
Handle pitch and it will make you 13
dirty;
keep company with an arrogant man
and you will grow like him.
- Do not lift a weight too heavy for 2
you,
keeping company with a man greater
and richer than yourself.
How can a jug be friends with a kettle?

<sup>t</sup> The order of the following verses has been disturbed in all versions: Gk. reads . . . gives alms; (4) give to a godfearing man, but never help a sinner; (5) keep your good works for the humble, not the insolent; refuse him . . . (compare verse 7).

<sup>u</sup> keep . . . insolent: this is the beginning of verse 5 in Gk.
<sup>v</sup> So Heb.; Gk. grieve.

this hardheaded, practical section. 12.1-7: Reciprocity in good deeds is urged. God's hatred of sinners is the motivation for the advice, never help a sinner (vv. 6-7); contrast Ezek.18.23. 11: The mirror was of metal and needed constant polishing; likewise, constant vigilance is the only protection from the corrosion (v. 10) of the enemy's wiles. 12: The reference to my words is a threat of "I told you so" from the teacher. 18: Nod his head: a gesture of triumphant derision. 13.1: The first line has become an English proverb. 2: The jug of clay would be broken

	If they knock together, the one will be smashed.	so keep your secrets to yourself and be very careful,	13
3	A rich man does wrong, and adds insult to injury; a poor man is wronged, and must apologize into the bargain.	for you are walking on the brink of ruin. <sup>w</sup>
4	If you can serve his turn, a rich man will exploit you, but if you are in need, he will leave you alone.	Every animal loves its like, and every man his neighbour.	15
5	If you are in funds, he will be your constant companion, and drain you dry without a twinge of remorse.	All creatures flock together with their kind, and men form attachments with their own sort.	16
6	He may need you; and then he will deceive you, and will be all smiles and encouragement, paying you compliments and asking, 'What can I do for you?'	What has a wolf in common with a lamb, or a sinner with a man of piety? What peace can there be between hyena and dog, what peace between rich man and pauper?	17
7	embarrassing you with his hospitality, until he has drained you two or three times over; but in the end he will laugh at you. Afterwards, when he sees you, he will pass you by, nodding his head over you.	As lions prey on the wild asses of the desert, so the rich batten on the poor. As humility disgusts the proud, so is the rich man disgusted by the poor.	18
8	Take care not to be led astray and humiliated when you are enjoying yourself.		19
9	If a great man invites you, be slow to accept, and he will be the more pressing in his invitation.	If a rich man staggers, he is held up by his friends; a poor man falls, and his friends disown him as well.	21
10	Do not be forward, for fear of a rebuff, but do not keep aloof, or you may be forgotten.	When a rich man slips, many come to his rescue; if he says something outrageous, they make excuses for him. A poor man makes a slip, and they all criticize him; even if he talks sense, he is not given a hearing.	22
11	Do not presume to converse with him as an equal or be over-confident if he holds you long in talk. The more he speaks, the more he is testing you, examining you even while he smiles.	A rich man speaks, and all are silent; then they praise his speech to the skies. A poor man speaks, and they say, 'Who is this?', and if he stumbles, they give him an extra push.	23
12	The man who cannot keep your secrets is without compunction and will not spare you harm or imprisonment;		24

<sup>w</sup> Some witnesses add When you hear this in your sleep, wake up. (14) Love the Lord all your life and appeal to him for salvation.

by the metal kettle. 3-7: The tactics of the rich require constant guard. 9: The great man is the political authority who is trying to extract information; see vv. 12-13.

13.15-23: The incompatibility of rich and poor. 21-23: Society readily supports the rich; compare v. 3 and contrast 10.23-24.

13.24-14.2: True contentment. The harsh facts of the preceding section are balanced by the thought that true happiness comes from within.

	poverty is a crime only to the ungodly.		always offering to the Lord the sacrifice due to him.
25	It is a man's heart that changes the look on his face either for better or worse.		Remember that death is not to be postponed;	12
26	The sign of a happy heart is a cheerful face, but the invention of proverbs involves wearisome thought.		the hour of your appointment with the grave is undisclosed.
14	Happy the man who has never let slip a careless word, who has never felt the sting of remorse!		Before you die, do good to your friend;	13
2	Happy the man whose conscience does not accuse him, whose hope has never been disappointed!		reach out as far as you can to help him.
			Do not miss a day's enjoyment or forgo your share of innocent pleasure.	14
2	Happy the man whose conscience does not accuse him, whose hope has never been disappointed!		Are you to leave to others all you have laboured for	15
			and let them draw lots for your hard-earned wealth?
			Give and receive; indulge yourself; you need not expect luxuries in the grave.	16
3	It is not proper for a mean man to be rich; what use is money to a miser?		Man's body wears out like a garment;	17
4	He deprives himself only to hoard for other men; others will live in luxury on his riches.		for the ancient sentence stands: You shall die.
5	How can a man be hard on himself and kind to others? His possessions bring him no enjoyment.		In the thick foliage of a growing tree	18
6	No one is worse than the man who is grudging to himself: his niggardliness is its own punishment.		one crop of leaves falls and another grows instead; so the generations of flesh and blood pass
7	If ever he does good, it is by mistake, and then in the end he reveals his meanness.		with the death of one and the birth of another.
8	It is a hard man who has a grudging eye; he turns his back on need and looks the other way.		All man's works decay and vanish, and the workman follows them into oblivion.	19
9	A covetous man's eye is not satisfied with his share; greedy injustice shrivels the soul.
10	A miser grudges bread and keeps an empty table.		HAPPY THE MAN WHO FIXES HIS thoughts on wisdom	20
11	My son, if you can afford it, do yourself well,		and uses his brains to think, the man who contemplates her ways and ponders her secrets.	21
			Stalk her like a hunter and lie in wait beside her path!	22
			The man who peers in at her windows and listens at her keyhole, who camps beside her house, driving his tent-peg into her wall,	23 24

14.3–19: Wrong and right uses of money. 3–10: Money is useless to a mean man or a miser; it is a basic conviction of the author that if you cannot be good to yourself, you cannot be good to others; see v. 5. 12: The grave: lit. Hades, Heb. Sheol, the gloomy underworld. God knows the hour of death, but it is unknown to man. 17: The ancient sentence: see Gen.2.17. 18: Comparison of passing generations to falling leaves was widespread; compare Homer, Iliad, VI 145–50. 19: Contrast Rev.14.13.

14.20–15.10: The quest for wisdom. Compare with 4.11–19 and Prov.8.32–9.6. 20: Happy (“blessed” in the earlier translations) introduces a set style of wisdom speech which declares the way to the fullness of life. 23: Peers in: is on familiar terms; contrast the etiquette of 21.23–24 (“a well-bred man stands outside”). 24: The tent peg: a symbol of setting up a home.

25 who pitches his tent close by her, where it is best for men to live— 26 he will put his children in her shade and camp beneath her branches, 27 sheltered by her from the heat, and dwelling in the light of her presence. 15 The man who fears the Lord will do all this, and if he masters the law, wisdom will be his. 2 She will come out to meet him like a mother; she will receive him like a young bride. 3 For food she will give him the bread of understanding and for drink the water of knowledge. 4 He will lean on her and not fall; he will rely on her to save him from disgrace. 5 She will promote him above his neighbours, and find words for him when he speaks in the assembly. 6 He shall be crowned with joy and exultation; lasting honour shall be his heritage. 7 Fools shall never possess wisdom; sinners shall catch no glimpse of her. 8 She holds aloof from arrogance, far from the thoughts of liars. 9 Worship is out of place on the lips of a sinner, unprompted as he is by the Lord. 10 Worship is the outward expression of wisdom, and the Lord himself inspires it. 11 Do not say, 'The Lord is to blame for my failure'; it is for you to avoid doing what he hates. 12 Do not say, 'It was he who led me astray';	he has no use for sinful men. The Lord hates every kind of vice; 13 you cannot love it and still fear him. When he made man in the beginning, 14 he left him free to take his own decisions; if you choose, you can keep the 15 commandments; whether or not you keep faith is yours to decide. He has set before you fire and 16 water; reach out and take which you choose; before man lie life and death, 17 and whichever he prefers is his. For in his great wisdom and mighty 18 power the Lord sees everything. He keeps watch over those who 19 fear him; no human act escapes his notice. But he has commanded no man to 20 be wicked, nor has he given licence to commit sin. DO NOT SET YOUR HEART ON A LARGE 16 family of ne'er-do-wells or be content if your sons are godless. However many they are, do not 2 think yourself happy, unless the fear of the Lord is in them. Do not count on their living to be 3 old or rely on their numbers; for one son can be better than a thousand; better indeed to die childless than to have godless children. Thanks to one man of good sense a 4 city may be populous, while a tribe of lawless men becomes a desert. Many a time have I seen this with 5 my own eyes,
---	---

15.1: All this ties 15.1-8 to 14.20-27. Law and wisdom coincide here as throughout the book. 6: Compare this poetic glorification of the wise man with the pragmatic observation of wisdom's limits in 13.2-13. 9-10: Wisdom is worship; compare 1.11-20. Sinners: probably Hellenized Jews careless about observation of the Law.

15.11-20: Freedom of choice. "Determinism" or "predestination" is strongly rejected, to make clear that God is not responsible for man's sin, which he hates (vv. 11,13). 14-15: Man was created free and is still free; contrast Rom.1.18-3.20; 7.1-25. 16-17: Compare Deut.30.19-20. 18-20: Though God does not determine man's deeds, he keeps watch over the pious.

16.1-14: Retribution and reward. 1-3: A large family was held to be one of God's greatest gifts. 5: Seen this with my own eyes: the teacher's personal experience gives weight to tradition.

	and still weightier examples have come to my ears.		what is my life compared with the measureless creation?
6	Where sinners gather, the fire breaks out; retribution blazes up in a rebellious nation.		Heaven itself, the highest heaven, the abyss and the earth are shaken at his coming;	18
7	There was no pardon for the giants of old, who revolted in all their strength.		the very mountains and the foundations of the world tremble when he looks upon them. What human mind can grasp this, or comprehend his ways?	19
8	There was no reprieve for Lot's adopted home, abhorrent in its arrogance.		As a squall takes men unawares, so most of his works are done in secret.	21
9	There was no mercy for the doomed nation, exterminated for their sins—		Who is to declare his acts of justice or wait for his remote decree?	22
10	those six hundred thousand warriors marshalled in stubborn defiance.		These are the thoughts of a small mind,	23
11	Even if only one man were obstinate, it would be a miracle for him to escape punishment.		the absurdities of a senseless and misguided man.
	For mercy and anger belong to the Lord;		LISTEN TO ME, MY SON, AND LEARN sense;	24
	he shows his power in forgiveness, or in the flood of his wrath.		pay close attention to what I say; I will show you exact discipline and teach you accurate knowledge.	25
12	His mercy is great, but great also is his condemnation; he judges a man by what he has done.		When the Lord created his works in the beginning, and after making them defined <sup>y</sup> their boundaries,	26
13	He does not let the sinner escape with his loot or try the patience of the godly too long.		he disposed them in an eternal order and fixed their influences for all time. They do not grow hungry or weary, or abandon their tasks;	27
14	He opens a way for every work of mercy, and everyone is treated according to his own deserts. <sup>x</sup>		one does not jostle another; they never disobey his word.	28
			The Lord then looked at the earth and filled it with his good things.	29
			With every kind of living creature he covered the ground,	30
17	Do not say, 'I am hidden from the Lord; who is there in heaven to give a thought to me? Among so many I shall not be noticed;		into which they must all return.

<sup>x</sup> Some witnesses add (15) The Lord made Pharaoh too stubborn to acknowledge him, so that his deeds might be published to the world. (16) He displays his mercy to the whole creation, and has separated light from darkness with a plumb-line.

<sup>y</sup> When . . . defined; probable reading, based on Heb.: Gk. The works of the Lord have been under his judgement from the beginning, . . . he defined . . .

7: The giants: see Gen.6.4; compare Bar.3.26–28; Wis.14.6. 8: Lot's adopted home: Sodom; see Gen.19.23–25. 9: The doomed nation: the Canaanites; see Deut.7.1–6 and Gen.15.16. 10: Six hundred thousand: rebellious Israelites; see 46.8; Exod.12.37; Num.14.22–23. 11–14: God's mercy and anger are in tension; the author is sure that mercy will not provide an easy out for sinners.

16.17–23: God's universal knowledge. Only the absurdities of a small mind (v. 23) will lead to the wrong view that man can escape God's notice because his creation is measureless (v. 17).

16.24–30: God the Creator. This section, extending vv. 17–23, is drawn especially from Gen. ch. 1. 26–28: The orderly heavens are his works (compare Isa.40.26) which do not grow hungry or weary. 29–30: In contrast to the eternal heavens, the living beings on earth, even though good, are temporary.

17 The Lord created man from the earth and sent him back to it again. 2 He set a fixed span of life for men and granted them authority over everything on earth. 3 He clothed them with strength like his own,<sup>z</sup> forming them in his own image. 4 He put the fear of man into all creatures and gave him lordship over beasts and birds.<sup>a</sup> 6 He gave men tongue and eyes and ears, the power of choice and a mind for thinking. 7 He filled them with discernment and showed them good and evil. 8 He kept watch over their hearts, to display to them the majesty of his works.<sup>b</sup> 10 They shall praise his holy name, proclaiming the grandeur of his works. 11 He gave them knowledge as well and endowed them with the life-giving law. 12 He established a perpetual covenant with them and revealed to them his decrees. 13 Their eyes saw his glorious majesty, and their ears heard the glory of his voice. 14 He said to them, 'Guard against all wrongdoing', and taught each man his duty towards his neighbour. 15 Their conduct always lies open before him, never hidden from his scrutiny.<sup>c</sup> 17 For every nation he appointed a ruler,	but chose Israel to be his own possession.<sup>d</sup> So whatever they do is clear to him as daylight; he keeps constant watch over their lives. Their wrongdoing is not hidden from the Lord; he observes all their sins.<sup>e</sup> A man's good deeds he treasures like a signet-ring, and his kindness like the apple of his eye. In the end he will rise up and give the wicked their deserts, bringing down their recompense on their own heads. Yet he leaves a way open for the penitent to return to him, and gives the waverer strength to endure. Turn to the Lord and have done with sin; make your prayer in his presence, and so lessen your offence. Come back to the Most High, renounce wrongdoing, and hate intensely what he abhors. Who will praise the Most High in the grave	19 20 22 23 24 25 26 27
--	--	---

<sup>z</sup> So one Vs. : Gk. their own.
<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses add (5) The Lord gave them the use of the five faculties; as a sixth gift he distributed to them mind, and as a seventh, reason, the interpreter of those faculties.
<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses add (9) He has given them the right to boast for ever of his marvels.
<sup>c</sup> Some witnesses read . . . scrutiny. (16) Every man from his youth tended towards evil; they could not make themselves hearts of flesh in place of their hearts of stone. (17) When he distributed the nations over all the earth, for every . . .
<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses add (18) He rears them with discipline as his first-born, imparting to them the light of love and never neglecting them.
<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses add (21) The Lord who is gracious and knows what they are made of has neither rejected nor deserted them, but spared them.

17.1-14: God's creation of man. The recurring He (God) emphasizes that man is God's creature. 1: Man's transitory nature links this poem to 16.24-30. 2-4: Compare Gen.1.26-28. 6: The power of choice is what makes man man; it links the universally human to the covenant at Sinai (v. 12). 11: The apex of creation is the Law, which enables man to be fully human. 13: Glorious majesty: theophany on Sinai; see Exod.19.16-19. 14: Duty towards the neighbour is the core of the Law.

17.15-24: God's watchful care of his people. This is the closing poem of the section beginning in 16.17, the final answer to the absurdities of 16.17-23. 17: A higher standard is set for Israel, which stands directly under God, not under an earthly ruler. 23-24: The familiar contrast between the righteous and the wicked is modified by the introduction of the penitent, those who pass from the wicked group to the righteous. Strength to endure: the phrase, from Isa.40.31, ties the end of the section to its beginning, 16.17, which is drawn from Isa.40.27.

17.25-32: A call to repentance. This poem gives a practical application to what precedes. The sharp contrast between man's insignificance and God's greatness makes the point that pride is the basic sin. 27: The grave: see 14.12 n.

	in place of the living who give him thanks?	lavishing his mercy upon them.
28	When a man is dead and ceases to be, his gratitude dies with him; it is when he is alive and well that he praises the Lord.	He sees and knows the harsh fate in store for them, and therefore gives full play to his forgiveness.	12
29	How great is the Lord's mercy and his pardon to those who turn to him!	Man's compassion is only for his neighbour,	13
30	Not everything is within man's reach,	but the Lord's compassion is for every living thing.
	for the human race is not immortal.	He corrects and trains and teaches and brings them back as a shepherd his flock.
31	Is anything brighter than the sun? Yet the sun suffers eclipse.	He has compassion on those who accept discipline	14
	So flesh and blood have evil thoughts.	and are eager to obey his decrees.
32	The Lord marshals the armies of high heaven,	My son, do good without scolding; do not spoil your generosity with hard words.	15
	but all men are dust and ashes.	Does not the dew give respite from the sweltering heat?	16
18	He who lives for ever is the Creator of the whole universe;	So a word can do more than a gift.
2	right belongs to the Lord alone. <sup>f</sup>	A kind word counts for more than a rich present;	17
4	To no man is it given to unfold the story of his works;	with a gracious man you will find both.
	who can trace his marvels to their source?	A fool cannot refrain from tactless criticism,	18
5	No one can measure his majestic power,	and a grudging giver makes no eyes sparkle.
	still less, tell the full tale of all his mercies.	Before you speak, learn;	19
6	Man can neither increase nor diminish them,	and before you fall sick, consult a doctor.
7	When a man comes to the end of them he is still at the beginning,	Before judgement comes, examine yourself,	20
	and when he has finished he will still be perplexed.	and you will find pardon in the hour of scrutiny.
8	What is man and what use is he? What do his good or evil deeds signify?	Before you fall ill, humble yourself; show your penitence as soon as you sin.	21
9	His span of life is at the most a hundred years;	Let nothing hinder the prompt discharge of your vows;	22
10	compared with endless time, his few years	do not wait till death to be absolved.
	are like one drop of sea-water or a single grain of sand.	Before you make a vow, give it due thought;	23
11	This is why the Lord is patient with them,	<sup>f</sup> Some witnesses add and there is none beside him, (3) who can steer the world with his little finger, so that all things obey his will; as king of the universe, he has power to fix the bounds between what is holy and what is profane.

18.1-7: The limits of man's knowledge. This poem expands the thought of 17.30-32.

18.8-14: God's compassion. 8: Contrast Ps.8. 9: The hundred years of a life span extend the seventy or eighty of Ps.90.10. 12: The harsh fate is death. 13-14: God is presented as a patient teacher; it is not accidental that the author was a teacher himself.

18.15-18: The deed and the word. The theme of doing good is suggested by 18.13.

18.19-29: Looking ahead. Foresight is a central virtue of secular wisdom. 19: The advice to consult a doctor views illness in common-sense terms. 21: Here illness is seen as punishment

- do not be like those who try the Lord's patience.
- 24 Think of the wrath you must face in the hour of death, when the time of reckoning comes, and he turns away his face.
- 25 In time of plenty remember the time of famine, poverty and need in days of wealth.
- 26 Between dawn and dusk times may alter; all change comes quickly, when the Lord wills it.
- 27 A wise man is always on his guard; when sin is rife, he will beware of negligence.
- 28 Every man of sense makes acquaintance with wisdom, and to him who finds her she gives cause for thankfulness.
- 29 Skilled speakers display their special wisdom by a flow of apt proverbs.

Maxims of prudence and self-discipline

- 30 DO NOT LET YOUR PASSIONS BE YOUR guide, but restrain your desires.
- 31 If you indulge yourself with all that passion fancies, it will make you the butt of your enemies.
- 32 Do not revel in great luxury, or the expense of it may ruin you.
- 33 Do not beggar yourself by feasting on borrowed money, when there is nothing in your purse.
- 19 A drunken workman never grows rich; carelessness in small things leads little by little to ruin.
- 2 Wine and women rob the wise of their wits, and a frequenter of prostitutes becomes more and more reckless,
- 3 till sores<sup>g</sup> and worms take possession of him,

- and his recklessness becomes his undoing.
- To trust a man hastily shows a shallow mind, and to sin is to do an injury to yourself.
- To delight in wickedness is to court condemnation, but evil loses its hold on the man who hates gossip.
- Never repeat what you hear, and you will never be the loser.
- Tell no tales about friend or foe; unless silence makes you an accomplice, never betray a man's secret.
- Suppose he has heard you and learnt to distrust you, he will seize the first chance to show his hatred.
- Have you heard a rumour? Let it die with you.
- Never fear, it will not make you burst.
- A fool with a secret goes through agony like a woman in childbirth.
- As painful as an arrow through the thigh is a rumour in the heart of a fool.
- Confront your friend with the gossip about him; he may not have done it; or if he did it, he will know not to do it again.
- Confront your neighbour; he may not have said it; or if he did say it, he will know not to say it again.
- Confront your friend; it will often turn out to be slander; do not believe everything you hear.
- A man may let slip more than he intends; whose tongue is always free from guilt?
- Confront your neighbour before you threaten him,

<sup>g</sup> Or decay.

for sin. 24: Since retribution, for Ecclus., is limited to this life, man will be repaid for his deeds before the hour of death. When God turns away his face from a person, it is always a sign of his wrath; see Pss.13.1; 44.24.

18.30-19.17: Self-control. 30: The poem of 18.30-19.3 is a commentary on this popular proverb. 19.2: Wine and women are frequently associated already in Egyptian wisdom. See Prov.31.3-5. 4-17: Self-control in speech is discussed in two sections: vv. 4-12 on not speaking and vv.13-17 on proper speech, direct confrontation of rumor. 17: God's law is mentioned in closing, a typical pattern.

- and let the law of the Most High take its course.<sup>h</sup>
- 20 All wisdom is the fear of the Lord
and includes the fulfilling of the law.<sup>i</sup>
- 22 The knowledge of wickedness is not
wisdom,
nor is there good sense in the advice
of sinners.
- 23 There is a cleverness that is loathsome,
and some fools are merely ignorant.
- 24 Better to be godfearing and lack brains
than to have great intelligence and break the law.
- 25 A meticulous cleverness may lead
to injustice,
and a man may make himself
offensive in order that right
may prevail.
- 26 There is a scoundrel who stoops
and wears mourning,
but who is a fraud at heart.
- 27 He covers his face and pretends to be deaf,
but when nobody is looking, he will steal a march on you;
- 28 and if lack of strength prevents him from doing wrong, he will still harm you at the first opportunity.
- 29 Yet you can tell a man by his looks and recognize good sense at first sight.
- 30 A man's clothes, and the way he laughs,
and his gait, reveal his character.
- 20 A reproof may be untimely,
and silence may show a man's good sense.
- 2 Yet how much better it is to complain
than to nurse a grudge,
and confession saves a man from disgrace.<sup>j</sup>
- 4 Like a eunuch longing to seduce a
girl
- is the man who tries to do right by
violence.
- One man is silent and is found to be 5
wise;
another is hated for his endless
chatter.
- One man is silent, at a loss for an 6
answer;
another is silent, biding his time.
The wise man is silent until the right 7 moment,
but a swaggering fool is always speaking out of turn.
- A garrulous man makes himself 8
detested,
and one who abuses his position
arouses hatred.
- A MAN SOMETIMES FINDS PROFIT IN 9
adversity,
and a windfall may result in loss.
Sometimes liberality does not benefit 10
the giver,
sometimes it brings a double return.
The quest for honour may lead to 11
disgrace,
but there are those who have risen from obscurity to eminence.
- A man may make a good bargain, 12
but pay for it seven times over.
A wise man endears himself when 13
he speaks,
but fools scatter compliments in vain.
A gift from a fool will bring you no 14 benefit;
it looks bigger to him than it does
to you.
- He gives small gifts accompanied by 15
long lectures,

<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses add without giving way to anger. (18) The fear of the Lord is the way towards acceptance, and wisdom wins love from him. (19) The knowledge of the Lord's commandments is life-giving discipline, and those who do what pleases him eat from the tree of immortality.

<sup>i</sup> Some witnesses add and a knowledge of his omnipotence. (21) A servant who says, 'I will not do as you wish', even if he does it later, angers the man who feeds him.

<sup>j</sup> Some witnesses add (3) How good it is to respond to reproof with repentance, and so escape deliberate sin!

19.20–30: True wisdom and mere cleverness. This is the first of a series of observations; except for 21.1–11, after the initial reference to God (v. 20), he is not mentioned again until 23.1. Notice also the scarcity of imperatives. 22–28: Clever knowledge (probably Hellenistic learning) that disregards God's law (v. 24) destroys human trust. Covering the face (v. 27) was probably a begging technique. 29–30: Wisdom includes the ability to judge character.

20.1–8: Qualities of silence and speaking. The poem searches for a middle way between the wrong silence of nursing a grudge (v. 2) and the wrong self-expression of doing right by violence (v. 4).

20.9–17: Surprising outcomes. The wise man expects the unexpected. 12: Seven times: many times.

- and opens his mouth as wide as the town crier.
He gives a loan today and asks it back tomorrow,
obnoxious fellow that he is!
- 16 The fool says, 'I have no friends, I get no thanks for my kindnesses; though they eat my bread, they speak ill of me.'
- 17 How everyone will laugh at him—and how often!
- 18 Better a slip on the stone floor than a slip of the tongue;
and the fall of the wicked comes just as suddenly.
- 19 An ill-mannered man is like an unseasonable story, continually on the lips of the ill-bred.
- 20 A proverb will fall flat when uttered by a fool,
for he will produce it at the wrong time.
- 21 Poverty may keep a man from doing wrong;
when the day's work is over,
conscience will not trouble him.
- 22 A man's diffidence may be his undoing,
or the foolish figure he cuts in the eyes of the world.
- 23 A man may be shamed into making promises to a friend and needlessly turn him into an enemy.
- 24 A lie is an ugly blot on a man's name,
and is continually on the lips of those who know no better.
- 25 It is better to be a thief than a habitual liar,
but both will come to the same bad end.
- 26 A lying disposition brings disgrace;
the shame of it can never be shaken off.
- A wise man advances himself when he speaks,
and a man of sense makes himself pleasant to the great.
The man who tills his land heaps up a harvest,
and he who pleases the great reaps pardon for his wrongdoing.
Hospitality and presents make wise men blind;
like a gag in the mouth they silence criticism.
Hidden wisdom and buried treasure,
what use is there in either?
Better a man who hides his folly than one who hides his wisdom!<sup>k</sup>
- Have you done wrong, my son? Do it no more,
but ask pardon for your past wrongdoing.
Avoid wrong as you would a viper,
for if you go near, it will bite you;
its teeth are like a lion's teeth
and can destroy the lives of men.
Every breach of the law is like a two-edged sword;
it inflicts an incurable wound.
By intimidation and insolence a man forfeits his wealth;
thus a proud man will be stripped of his possessions.
The Lord listens to the poor man's appeal,
and his verdict follows without delay.
To hate reproof is to go the way of sinners,
but whoever fears the Lord will repent whole-heartedly.
A great talker is known far and wide,
but a sensible man is aware of his failings.
To build a house with borrowed money is like collecting stones for your own tomb.<sup>l</sup>

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses add (32) Better to seek the Lord with unremitting patience than to be the masterless charioteer of one's own life.

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses read like harvesting stones against the winter.

16-17: The fool is disappointed because he expects to be repaid for everything he does.

20.18-31: Wise and foolish speech. 18: A popular proverb, known also from the Greek philosopher Zeno, recorded in Diogenes Laertius VII, 26. 21-23: Improper shame (especially of a debtor who is not candid to his creditor) will destroy a friendship. 30-31: Wisdom must not be hidden; contrast the wise man's silence, 20.1-8.

21.1-11: Warnings against sin. This section differs from the shrewd observations of 19.20-20.31 in its frequent reference to the Lord. 8: A house: a symbol of one's whole existence.

- |  |  |  |
|--|--|--|
| 9 A gathering of lawless men is like a bundle of tow,which ends by going up in flames. 10 The road of sinners is smoothly paved,but it leads straight down to the grave. 11 Whoever keeps the law keeps his thoughts under control;the fear of the Lord has its outcome in wisdom. 12 A MAN WHO IS NOT CLEVER CANNOT be taught,but there is a cleverness which only breeds bitterness. 13 A wise man's knowledge is like a river in full spate,and his advice is a life-giving spring. 14 A fool's mind is a leaky bucket:it cannot hold anything it learns. 15 If an instructed man hears a wise saying,he applauds it and improves on it.If a rake hears it, he is annoyed and throws it behind his back. 16 Listening to a fool is like travelling with a heavy pack,but there is delight to be found in intelligent conversation. 17 The assembly welcomes a word from the wise man,and thinks over what he says. 18 A fool's wisdom is like a tumbledown house;his knowledge is a string of ill-digested sayings. 19 To fools education is like fetters,like a handcuff on the wrist. 21 To the wise education is a golden ornamentlike a bracelet on the arm. 20 A fool laughs out loud;a clever man smiles quietly, if at all. 22 A fool rushes into a house, | while a man of experience hangs back politely. A boor peers into the house from the doorstep,while a well-bred man stands outside.It is bad manners to listen at doors;a man of sense would think it a crushing disgrace. The glib only repeat what others have said,but the wise weigh every word.Fools speak before they think;wise men think first and speak afterwards. When a bad man curses his adversary,<sup>m</sup>he is cursing himself. A tale-bearer blackens his own characterand makes himself hated throughout the neighbourhood. An idler is like a filthy stone;everyone jeers at his disgrace.An idler is like a lump of dung;whoever picks it up shakes it off his hand. There is shame in being father to a spoil son,and the birth of a daughter means loss. A sensible daughter wins a husband,but an immodest one is a grief to her father. A brazen daughter disgraces both father and husbandand is despised by both. Unseasonable talk is like music in time of mourning,but the lash of wisdom's discipline is always in season. Teaching a fool is like mending pottery with glue,or like rousing a sleeper from heavy sleep. As well reason with a drowsy man as with a fool; | 23 24 25 26 27 28 22 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 |
|--|--|--|

m Or curses Satan.

9: See 16.6. 10: The smooth road leads quickly to one's destruction; see Prov.14.12; Mt.7.13. 21.12-28: The wise man and the fool. 12: See 19.20-30 on cleverness. 13: The river and life-giving spring are contrasted to stagnant cistern water and even more to the leaky bucket (v. 14). 22-28: Etiquette was a major subject of ancient wisdom. 27: His adversary is literally "Satan" (see Tfn. m), but here the reference is to the human adversary.

22.1-26: Bad experiences. 1-2: The idler is frequently rebuked in Prov. (Prov.10.4; 15.19; 24.30-34), but is a target of Eccles. only here and in 33.24-28. 3-5: The daughter meant loss because she could not carry on the family name. 7: Ancient glue was not strong enough to

- when you have finished, he will say,
'What was that?'<sup>n</sup>
- 11 Mourn over the dead for the eclipse
of his light;
mourn over the fool for the eclipse
of his wits.
Mourn less bitterly for the dead,
for he is at rest;
but the fool's life is worse than
death.
- 12 Mourning for the dead lasts seven
days,
but for a godless fool it lasts all his life.
- 13 Do not talk long with a fool
or visit a stupid man.
Beware of him, or you may be in trouble
and find yourself bespattered when he shakes himself.
Avoid him, if you are looking for
peace,
and you will not be worn out by his folly.
- 14 What is heavier than lead?
What is its name but 'Fool'?
- 15 Sand, salt, and a lump of iron are less of a burden than a stupid
man.
- 16 A tie-beam fixed firmly into a building
is not shaken loose by an earthquake;
so a mind kept firm by intelligent advice
will not be daunted in a crisis.
- 17 A mind solidly backed by intelligent thought is like the stucco that decorates a smooth wall.
- 18 As a fence set on a hill-top cannot stand against the wind,
so a mind made timid by foolish fancies
is not proof against any terror.
- 19 Hurt the eye and tears will flow;
hurt the mind and you will find it sensitive.
- Throw a stone at the birds and you scare them away; 20
abuse a friend and you break off
your friendship.
If you have drawn your sword on a friend, 21
do not give up hope, there is still a way back.
If you have quarrelled with your friend, 22
never fear, there can still be a reconciliation.
But abuse, scorn, a secret betrayed,
a stab in the back—
these will make any friend keep his distance.
Win your neighbour's confidence 23
while he is poor,
and you will share the joy of his
prosperity;
stand by him in time of trouble,
and you will be his partner when he comes into a fortune.
- As furnace-fumes and smoke come 24
before the flame,
so insults come before bloodshed.
I will not be afraid to protect my friend 25
nor will I turn my back on him.
If harm should befall me on his account, 26
everyone who hears of it will beware
of him.
- OH FOR A SENTRY TO GUARD MY 27
mouth
and a seal of discretion to close my lips,
to keep them from being my downfall,
and to keep my tongue from causing my ruin!
Lord, Father, and Ruler of my life, 23
do not abandon me to the tongue's control
or allow me to fall on its account.

<sup>n</sup> Some witnesses add (9) Children well brought up reveal no trace of any humble origin. (10) But those who run riot, haughty and undisciplined, sully the nobility of their parentage.

mend pottery. 11-13: These imperatives are not the usual moral commands (as in 21.1) but shrewd observation of life. The seven days of mourning (v. 12) were traditional (see Gen.50.10); contrast 38.17. 19: The mind is that of a friend who will be hurt. 23: The pairing of opposites (prosperity, trouble) was a favorite way of building proverbs.

22.27-23.6: A prayer for self-control. 27: The mouth is viewed as a gate which needs a sentry. See Ps.141.3 and compare Prov.21.23. 23.1: God is Father also in the closing prayer of 51.10.

- 2 Oh for wisdom's lash to curb my thoughts
and to discipline my mind, without overlooking my mistakes
or condoning my sins!
- 3 Then my mistakes would not multiply
nor my sins increase,
humiliating me before my opponents
and giving my enemy cause to gloat.
- 4 Lord, Father, and God of my life,
do not let me have a supercilious eye.
- 5 Protect me from the onslaught of desire;
- 6 let neither gluttony nor lust take hold
of me,
nor give me over to the power of shameless passion.
- 7 Hear, my sons, how to discipline the
mouth,
take warning, and you will never be caught out.
- 8 It is by his own words that the sinner
is ensnared;
he is tripped up by his own scurrility
and pride.
- 9 Do not inure your mouth to oaths or make a habit of naming the Holy One.
- 10 As a slave constantly under the lash
is never free from weals,
so the man who has oaths and the sacred name for ever on his lips
will never be clear of guilt.
- 11 A man given to swearing is lawless
to the core;
the scourge will never be far from
his house.
If he goes back on his word, he must bear the blame;
if he wilfully neglects it, he sins twice over;
if his oath itself was insincere, he cannot be acquitted;
his house will be filled with trouble.
- 12 There is a kind of speech that is the counterpart of death;
- may it never be found among Jacob's descendants!
The pious keep clear of such conduct and do not wallow in sin.
Do not make a habit of coarse,
vulgar talk,
or you will be bound to say something sinful.
- Remember your father and mother
when you take your seat among the great,
or you may forget yourself in their presence
and make a fool of yourself through bad habit;
then you will wish you had never
been born,
and curse the day of your birth.
A man addicted to scurrilous talk will never learn better as long as he lives.
- TWO KINDS OF MEN ADD SIN TO SIN,
and a third brings retribution on
himself.
Hot lust that blazes like a fire can never be quenched till life is destroyed.
A man whose whole body is given to sensuality
never stops till the fire consumes
him.
- To a seducer every loaf is as sweet
as the last,
and he does not weary until he dies.
The man who strays from his own bed
says to himself, 'Who can see me?
All around is dark and the walls
hide me;
nobody can see me, why need I worry?
The Most High will not take note
of my sins.'
- The eyes of men are all he fears;
he forgets that the eyes of the Lord are ten thousand times brighter than
the sun,

4: The supercilious eye may mean the eye of desire (the "bold looks" of 26.9 represents the same word).

23.7-15: Control of the tongue. 9-11: Oaths carried a special weight of punishment if not fulfilled. The naming of the Holy One made an oath sacred, but such use of the holy name was to be avoided (see Exod.20.7). 12-15: Here the subject is restraint from vulgar talk.

23.16-27: Sins of lust.

23.16-21: The adulterous man. 16: A sequence of numbers (two . . . a third) was a favorite way of shaping a proverb; compare 25.7; Prov.30.15-31. The three kinds of men are put in a

- observing every step men take and penetrating every secret.
- 20 Before the universe was created, it was known to him,
and so it is since its completion.
- 21 This man will pay the penalty in the public street,
caught where he least expected it.
- 22 So too with the woman who is unfaithful to her husband, presenting him with an heir by a different father:
- 23 first, she disobeys the law of the Most High;
secondly, she commits an offence
against her husband;
thirdly, she has prostituted herself
by bearing bastard children.
- 24 She shall be disgraced before the assembly,
and the consequences will fall on her children.
- 25 Her children will not take root,
nor will fruit grow on her branches.
- 26 A curse will rest on her memory,
and her shame will never be blotted
out.
- 27 All who survive her will learn that nothing is better than the fear
of the Lord
or sweeter than obeying his commandments.<sup>o</sup>

it was I who covered the earth like a mist.

My dwelling-place was in high
heaven; 4
my throne was in a pillar of cloud.

Alone I made a circuit of the sky 5
and traversed the depth of the abyss.

The waves of the sea, the whole 6
earth,
every people and nation were under my sway.

Among them all I looked for a home: 7
in whose territory was I to settle?

Then the Creator of the universe 8
laid a command upon me;
my Creator decreed where I should dwell.

He said, "Make your home in Jacob;
find your heritage in Israel."
Before time began he created me, 9
and I shall remain for ever.

In the sacred tent I ministered in 10
his presence,
and so I came to be established in Zion.

Thus he settled me in the city he 11 loved
and gave me authority in Jerusalem.

I took root among the people 12
whom the Lord had honoured
by choosing them to be his special possession.

The praise of wisdom

- 24 HEAR THE PRAISE OF WISDOM FROM
her own mouth,
as she speaks with pride among her
people,
- 2 before the assembly of the Most High
and in the presence of the heavenly host:
- 3 'I am the word which was spoken by the Most High;
- 'There I grew like a cedar of Lebanon, 13
like a cypress on the slopes of Hermon,
- like a date-palm at Engedi, 14
like roses at Jericho.
- I grew like a fair olive-tree in the vale,
or like a plane-tree planted beside the water.

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses add (28) To follow God brings great honour; to win his approval means long life.

climactic order in vv. 16–18. 20: God's knowledge before the universe was created is not in conflict with freedom of choice (15.11–20) in the author's total view.

23.22–27: The adulterous woman. The penalty for adultery was death (Deut.22.22). For the suspicion of adultery on the part of a wife, and for the attendant consequences, see Num.5.11–31.

24.1–22: Wisdom's praise. A hymn to wisdom introduces the second main part of the book; compare 1.1–10. 1: The people are Israel. 2: The assembly is the heavenly council; see Ps.89.6–7. 3: Wisdom speaks, as in Prov.8.22–36 on which much of this section is modeled. The mist represents the creative power of wisdom, parallel to the wind of Gen.1.2; compare Gen.2.6. 4: High heaven: God's throne above the reservoir of waters supported by the vault of the sky; see Gen.1.6–8; Ps.29.10. 7: Wisdom looked for a home, but found it only in Israel (v. 8), which has God's law. 13–14: The massiveness and majesty of the cedar and cypress, the fruitfulness of the date-palm, the beauty of the rose, and the fairness of the olive are symbolic of wisdom.

- 15 Like cassia or camel-thorn I was redolent of spices;
I spread my fragrance like choice
myrrh,
like galban, aromatic shell, and gum
resin;
I was like the smoke of incense in
the sacred tent.
- 16 Like a terebinth I spread out my branches,
laden with honour and grace.
- 17 I put forth lovely shoots like the vine,
and my blossoms were a harvest of wealth and honour.<sup>p</sup>
- 19 'Come to me, you who desire me,
and eat your fill of my fruit.
- 20 The memory of me is sweeter than syrup,
the possession of me sweeter than honey dripping from the comb.
- 21 Whoever feeds on me will be hungry
for more,
and whoever drinks from me will thirst for more.
- 22 To obey me is to be safe from
disgrace;
those who work in wisdom will not go astray.'
- 23 All this is the covenant-book of God Most High,
the law which Moses enacted to be the heritage of the assemblies of Jacob.<sup>q</sup>
- 25 He sends out wisdom in full flood like the river Pishon or like the Tigris at the time of firstfruits;
- 26 he overflows with understanding like the Euphrates
or like Jordan at the time of harvest.
- 27 He pours forth instruction like the Nile,<sup>r</sup>
- like the Gihon at the time of vintage.
No man has ever fully known
wisdom;
from first to last no one has fathomed
her;
for her thoughts are vaster than the ocean
and her purpose deeper than the great abyss.
- As for me, I was like a canal leading from a river,
a watercourse into a pleasure-garden.
I said, 'I will water my garden,
drenching its flower-beds';
and at once my canal became a river
and my river a sea.
- I will again make discipline shine
like the dawn,
so that its light may be seen from
afar.
- I will again pour out doctrine like prophecy
and bequeath it to future generations.
Truly, my labour has not been for myself alone
but for all seekers of wisdom.
- THERE ARE THREE SIGHTS WHICH
warm my heart<sup>s</sup>
and are beautiful in the eyes of the Lord and of men:
concord among brothers, friendship
among neighbours,
and a man and wife who are inseparable.
- There are three kinds of men who arouse my hatred,

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses add (18) I give birth to noble love, reverence, knowledge, and holy hope; and I give all these my eternal progeny to God's elect (probable meaning; Gk. obscure).

<sup>q</sup> Some witnesses add (24) Never fail to be strong in the Lord; hold fast to him, so that he may strengthen you; the Lord Almighty is God alone; beside him there is no saviour.

<sup>r</sup> So one Vss.; Gk. He makes instruction shine like light.
<sup>s</sup> So Vss.; Gk. which make me beautiful.

15: These were prized aromatic substances used in worship. 19-22: Wisdom's call is paralleled in 51.23-30, where a wisdom teacher speaks; see also Prov.9.1-6 and Mt.11.28-30. 21: Unlike food for the stomach which satiates, the use of wisdom creates more hunger for it and so brings continual enjoyment; contrast Jn.6.35.

24.23-29: Wisdom and Law. This is the author's interpretation of wisdom's speech above. 25-27: The productiveness of wisdom is compared to the Jordan and the four rivers of Gen.2.10-14. The Gihon was identified with the Nile (but see Tfn. r), which is at its height in the time of vintage.

24.30-34: The author's encounter with wisdom. The life-giving symbolism of water is carried forward from wisdom (24.23-29) to the author himself.

25.1-2: A numerical saying. The main theme is marriage which is the final element in each series of three.

	who disgust me by their manner of life: a poor man who boasts, a rich man who lies, and an old fool who commits adultery.
3	If you have not gathered wisdom in your youth, how will you find it when you are old?
4	Sound judgement sits well on grey hairs and wise advice comes well from older men.
5	Wisdom is fitting in the aged, and ripe counsel in men of eminence.
6	Long experience is the old man's crown, and his pride is the fear of the Lord.
7	I can think of nine men I count happy, and I can tell you of a tenth: a man who can take delight in his children, and one who lives to see his enemy's downfall;
8	happy the husband of a sensible wife, the farmer who does not plough with ox and ass together, <sup>t</sup> the man whose tongue never betrays him, and the servant who has never worked for an inferior!
9	Happy the man who has found a friend, <sup>u</sup> and the speaker who has an attentive audience!
10	How great is the man who finds wisdom! But no greater than he who fears the Lord.
11	The fear of the Lord excels all other gifts; to what can we compare the man who has it? <sup>v</sup>
		Counsels upon social behaviour
		ANY WOUND BUT A WOUND IN THE heart! Any spite but a woman's! Any disaster but one caused by hate! Any vengeance but the vengeance of an enemy! There is no venom <sup>w</sup> worse than a snake's, and no anger worse than an enemy's.	13
		I would sooner share a home with a lion or a snake than keep house with a spiteful wife. Her spite changes her expression, making her look as surly as a bear. Her husband goes to a neighbour for his meals and cannot repress a bitter sigh.	14
		There is nothing so bad as a bad wife; may the fate of the wicked overtake her! <sup>x</sup> It is as easy for an old man to climb a sand-dune as for a quiet husband to live with a nagging wife.	15
		Do not be enticed by a woman's beauty or set your heart on possessing her. If a man is supported by his wife he must expect tantrums, shamelessness, and outrage.	16
		A bad wife brings humiliation, downcast looks, and a wounded heart.	17
		Slack of hand and weak of knee is the man whose wife fails to make him happy.	18
		Woman is the origin of sin, and it is through her that we all die. Do not leave a leaky cistern to drip	19

<sup>t</sup> the farmer . . . together: so Heb.; Gk. omits.

<sup>u</sup> So Vss.; Gk. found good sense.

<sup>v</sup> Some witnesses add (12) The fear of the Lord is the source of love for him, and faith is the source of loyalty to him.

<sup>w</sup> Probable meaning, based on one Vss.; Gk. head.

<sup>x</sup> Or may it fall to her lot to marry a scoundrel!

25.3-6: Wisdom is the crown of old age. 6: Experience in a stable environment makes the old man's advice valuable.

25.7-11: A numerical saying. The speaker is the wisdom teacher. 10: Wisdom is here distinguished as a lower stage than fear of the Lord, a distinction not usually made in this book. 11: Fear of the Lord is the climactic happiness.

25.13-26.18: The good and bad wife. Ecclesiasticus is not affirmative about women; his view is not merely personal, but draws on an old wisdom tradition. 24: The woman: Eve (Gen.3.1-24); apparently the earliest interpretation of Gen. as teaching that woman was the origin of sin.

- or allow a bad wife to say what she likes.
- 26 If she does not accept your control, divorce her and send her away.
- 26 A good wife makes a happy husband;
she doubles the length of his life.
- 2 A staunch wife is her husband's joy;
he will live out his days in peace.
- 3 A good wife means a good life;
she is one of the Lord's gifts to those who fear him.
- 4 Rich or poor, they are light-hearted,
and always have a smile on their faces.
- 5 Three things there are that alarm me,
and a fourth I am afraid to face:
the scandal of the town, the gathering of a mob,
and calumny—all harder to bear than death;
- 6 but it is heart-ache and grief when a wife is jealous of a rival,
and everyone alike feels the lash of her tongue.
- 7 A bad wife is a chafing yoke;
controlling her is like clutching a scorpion.
- 8 A drunken wife is a great provocation;
she cannot keep her excesses secret.
- 9 A loose woman betrays herself by her bold looks;
you can tell her by her glance.
- 10 Keep close watch over a headstrong daughter;
if she finds you off your guard, she will take her chance.
- 11 Beware of her impudent looks and do not be surprised if she disobeys you.
- 12 As a parched traveller with his tongue hanging out drinks from any spring that offers,
she will open her arms to every embrace,
and her quiver to the arrow.
- A wife's charm is the delight of her husband,
and her womanly skill puts flesh on his bones.
- A silent wife is a gift from the Lord;
her restraint is more than money can buy.
- A modest wife has charm upon charm;
no scales can weigh the worth of her chastity.
- As beautiful as the sunrise in the Lord's heaven
is a good wife in a well-ordered home.
- As bright as the light on the sacred lamp-stand is a beautiful face in the settled prime of life.
- Like a golden pillar on a silver base is a shapely leg with a firm foot.<sup>y z</sup>
- TWO THINGS GRIEVE MY HEART,
and a third excites my anger:
a soldier in distress through poverty,
wise men treated with contempt,
and a man deserting right conduct for wrong—
the Lord will bring him to the scaffold.

y is . . . foot: probable meaning; Gk. obscure.

z Some witnesses add

My son, guard your health in the bloom of your youth,
and do not waste your vigour on what belongs to others.

Search the whole plain for a fertile plot;
sow your own seed, trusting in your pedigree.

Then the children you leave behind will prosper, confident in their parentage.

A woman of the streets counts as mere spittle,
a married woman as a mortuary for her lovers.

A godless woman is a good match for a lawless husband,

a pious one for a man who fears the Lord.

A brazen woman courts disgrace,
but a virtuous one is modest even before her husband.

A wilful woman is a shameless bitch,
but a modest one fears the Lord.

A woman who honours her husband is accounted wise by all,
but if she despises him, all know her as proud and godless.

A good wife makes a happy husband;
she doubles the length of his life.

A strident, garrulous wife is like a trumpet
sounding the charge;

in a home like hers a man lives in the tumult of war.

26: Divorce was permitted in Deut.24.1. 26.1-3: The long life of the husband is the direct result of his marriage to a good wife. 4: Inner harmony is important to marital relationships. 6: The rival presupposes polygamy; see Lev.18.18; Deut.21.15-17; 1 Sam.1.1-7. 9-12: The disloyal wife is the theme of the poem, despite the word daughter (v. 10), which means wife. 13-18: Meditation on the good wife climaxes in appreciation of her physical beauty.

26.28-28.26: Types of sin. 26.29-27.3: Dishonesty destroys the merchant just as the peg

- 29 How hard it is for a merchant to keep clear of wrong
or for a shopkeeper to be innocent of dishonesty!
- 27 Many have cheated for gain;<sup>a</sup>
a money-grubber will always turn a blind eye.
- 2 As a peg is held fast in the joint between stones,
so dishonesty squeezes in between selling and buying.
- 3 Unless a man holds resolutely to the fear of the Lord,
his house will soon be in ruins.
- 4 Shake a sieve, and the rubbish remains;
start an argument and discover a man's faults.
- 5 As the work of a potter is tested in
the furnace,
so a man is tried in debate.
- 6 As the fruit of the tree reveals the skill of its grower,
so the expression of a man's thought reveals his character.
- 7 Do not praise a man till you hear
him in discussion,
for this is the test.
- 8 If justice is what you seek, you will succeed,
and wear it like a splendid robe.
- 9 Birds of a feather roost together,
and honesty comes home to those who practise it.
- 10 A lion lies in wait for its prey,
and so do sins for those who do wrong.
- 11 The conversation of the pious is constantly wise,
but a fool is as changeable as the moon.
- 12 Grudge every minute spent among fools,
but linger among the thoughtful.
- 13 The conversation of fools is repulsive;
they make a joke of unbridled vice.
- 14 Their cursing and swearing make
the hair stand on end;
- when such men quarrel, others stop
their ears.
The quarrels of the proud lead to bloodshed;
their abuse offends the ear.
- The betrayer of secrets loses his credit
and can never find an intimate friend.
Love your friend and keep faith with
him,
but if you betray his secrets, keep out of his way;
as a man kills his enemy,
so you have killed your neighbour's friendship.
- As a bird that is allowed to escape
your hand,
your neighbour, once lost, will not be caught again.
- He has gone too far for you to pursue him,
and escaped like a gazelle from a trap.
- A wound may be bandaged, an insult pardoned,
but the betrayer of secrets has nothing to hope for.
- A man who winks is plotting mischief;
those who know him will keep their
distance.
- He speaks sweetly enough to your face
and admires whatever you say,
but later he will change his tune
and use your own words to trip you.
There are many things I hate, but him above all;
The Lord will hate him too.
- Whoever throws a stone up in the air
is throwing it at his own head,
and a treacherous blow means wounds all round.
- Dig a pit and you will fall into it;
set a trap and you will be caught
by it.
- The wrong a man does recoils on
him,

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses read for a trifle.

(27.2) driven between the stones is the first step in tearing down the house. 27.16–21: Betraying secrets has irreversible results; but contrast 22.21–22 which says that broken friendships can be restored. 22: Winking was a frequent symbol for deception; compare Prov.6.12–13. 25: The stone describes any deception which is self-destructive. 26: One digs a pit to trap another.

	and he does not know where it has come from.	and his anger in proportion to his wealth.
28	An arrogant man deals in mockery and insults, but retribution lies in wait for him like a lion.	A hasty argument kindles a fire, and a hasty quarrel leads to bloodshed.	11
29	Those who rejoice at the downfall of good men will be trapped and consumed with pain before they die.	Blow on a spark to make it glow, or spit on it to put it out; both results come from the one mouth.	12
30	Rage and anger, these also I abhor, but a sinner has them ready at hand.	Curses on the gossip and the tale-bearer!	13
28	The vengeful man will face the vengeance of the Lord, who keeps strict account of his sins.	For they have been the ruin of many peaceable men.
2	Forgive your neighbour his wrongdoing; then, when you pray, your sins will be forgiven.	The talk of a third party has wrecked the lives of many and driven them from country to country;	14
3	If a man harbours a grudge against another,	it has destroyed fortified towns and demolished the houses of the great.
	is he to expect healing from the Lord?	The talk of a third party has brought divorce on staunch wives and deprived them of all they have laboured for.	15
4	If he has no mercy on his fellow-man,	Whoever pays heed to it will never again find rest	16
	is he still to ask forgiveness for his own sins?	or live in peace of mind.
5	If a mere mortal cherishes rage, where is he to look for pardon?	The lash of a whip raises weals, but the lash of a tongue breaks bones.	17
6	Think of the end that awaits you, and have done with hate; think of mortality and death, and be true to the commandments;	Many have been killed by the sword,	18
7	think of the commandments, and do not be enraged at your neighbour;	but not so many as by the tongue.
	think of the covenant of the Most High, and overlook faults.	Happy the man who is sheltered from its onslaught,	19
8	To avoid a quarrel is a setback for sin,	who has not borne its yoke, or been chained with its fetters!
	for it is a hot temper that kindles quarrels.	For its yoke is of iron,	20
9	A sinner sows trouble between friends	its fetters of bronze.
	and spreads scandal where before there was peace.	The death it brings is an evil death; better the grave than the tongue!	21
10	A fire is kept hot by stoking and a quarrel by persistence.	But it has no power over the godfearing;	22
	A man's rage is in proportion to his strength,	they cannot be burned in its flames.
		Those who desert the Lord fall victim to it;	23
		among them it will burn like fire and not be quenched.

28.2-5: Man's forgiveness is prerequisite to receiving God's forgiveness; compare Lev.19.18; Mt.5.7,23-24; Mk.11.25. 3: Healing means forgiveness. 13-26: This poem on slander is noteworthy for the tension between the shrewd observation that the righteous do suffer (the staunch wives, v. 15) and the assertion of faith that the godfearing (v. 22) are protected from the power of slander.

- It will launch itself against them like a lion
and tear them like a leopard.
- 24 As you enclose your garden with a thorn hedge,
and lock up your silver and gold, 25 so weigh your words and measure
them,
and make a door and a bolt for your mouth.
- 26 Beware of being tripped by your tongue
and falling into the power of a lurking enemy.
- 29 A DEVOUT MAN LENDS TO HIS
neighbour;
by supporting him he keeps the
commandments.
- 2 Lend to your neighbour in his time
of need;
repay your neighbour punctually.
- 3 Be as good as your word and keep faith with him,
and your needs will always be met.
- 4 Many treat a loan as a windfall
and bring trouble on those who helped them.
- 5 Until he gets a loan, a man kisses
his neighbour's hand
and talks with bated breath about his money;
but when it is time to repay, he postpones it,
pays back only perfunctory promises,
and alleges that the time is too short.<sup>b</sup>
- 6 If he can pay, his creditor will scarcely get back half,
and will count himself lucky at that;
if he cannot pay, he has defrauded
the other of his money,
and gratuitously made an enemy
of him;<sup>c</sup>
he will pay him back in curses and insults
and with shame instead of honour.
- 7 Because of such dishonesty many refuse to lend,
for fear of being needlessly defrauded.
- Nevertheless be patient with the penniless,
and do not keep him waiting for
your charity;
for the commandment's sake help
the poor,
and in his need do not send him away empty-handed.
- Be ready to lose money for a brother or a friend;
do not leave it to rust away under
a stone.
- Store up for yourself the treasure which the Most High has commanded,
and it will benefit you more than
gold.
- Let almsgiving be the treasure in your strong-room,
and it will rescue you from every misfortune.
- It will arm you against the enemy better than stout shield or strong spear.
- A good man will stand surety for his neighbour;
only a man who has lost all sense
of shame will fail him.
- If a man stands surety for you, do not forget his kindness,
for he has staked his very self for
you.
- A sinner wastes the property of his surety,
and an ungrateful man fails his rescuer.
- Suretyship has ruined the prosperity of many
and wrecked them like a storm at sea;
it has driven men of influence into
exile,
and set them wandering in foreign countries.
- When a sinner commits himself to suretyship,
his pursuit of gain will involve him
in lawsuits.
- Help your neighbour to the best of your ability,

<sup>b</sup> Or that times are hard.

<sup>c</sup> and . . . him: some witnesses read and the other has won himself an enemy at his own expense.

29.1–28: Borrowing and lending. 1–7: Lending is encouraged in accord with the commandment (see Deut.15.7–11), though the risks are clearly stated. 14–20: Becoming surety for another is here favored within common-sense limits, in contrast to Prov., which warns against suretyship (Prov.6.1–5; 11.15). In other words, Eccles. advocates surety, but not to the extent of

- but beware of becoming too deeply involved.
- 21 The necessities of life are water, bread, and clothes, and a home with its decent privacy;
- 22 better the life of a poor man in his own hut than a sumptuous banquet in another man's house.
- 23 Be content with whatever you have, and do not get a name for living on hospitality.<sup>d</sup>
- 24 It is a poor life going from house to house, keeping your mouth shut because you are a visitor.
- 25 You receive the guests and hand the drinks without being thanked for it, and into the bargain must listen to words that rankle:
- 26 'Come here, stranger, and lay the table; whatever you have there, hand it to me.'
- 27 'Be off, stranger! Make way for a more important guest; my brother has come to stay, and I need the guest-room.'
- 28 How hard it is for a sensible man to bear criticism from the household or abuse from his creditor!
- 30 A MAN WHO LOVES HIS SON WILL whip him often so that when he grows up he may be a joy to him.
- 2 He who disciplines his son will find profit in him and take pride in him among his acquaintances.
- 3 He who gives his son a good education will make his enemy jealous and will boast of him among his friends.
- When the father dies, it is as if he were still alive, for he has left a copy of himself behind him.
- While he lived he saw and rejoiced, and when he died he had no regrets. He has left an heir to take vengeance on his enemies and to repay the kindness of his friends.
- A man who spoils his son will bandage every wound and will be on tenterhooks at every cry.
- An unbroken horse turns out stubborn, and an unchecked son turns out headstrong.
- Pamper a boy and he will shock you; play with him and he will grieve you. Do not share his laughter, for fear of sharing his pain; you will only end by grinding your teeth.
- Do not give him freedom while he is young or overlook his errors. Break him in while he is young, beat him soundly while he is still a child, or he may grow stubborn and disobey you and cause you vexation. Discipline your son and take pains with him or he may offend you by some disgraceful act.
- BETTER A POOR MAN WHO IS HEALTHY and fit than a rich man racked by disease. Health and fitness are better than any gold, and bodily vigour than boundless prosperity.

<sup>d</sup> Reading based on one Vs.; Gk. and do not hear reproaches from your family.

deprivation. 21–28: This praise of simplicity and warning against a life of imposition on the hospitality of others was directed to the teacher's upper-class clientele. 23: The theme of being content is quite usual in both Jewish and Christian counsel. (Phil.4.11; 1 Tim.6.8; Heb. 13.5).

30.1–13: Raising children. 1–6: Discipline and education (v. 3) will enable a son to carry on his father's tradition, even to avenging him against his enemies (v. 6); the motive for discipline is the benefit to the parent. 7: The author is making fun of the oversolicitous parent. 8–13: Lack of discipline will produce a rebellious son.

30.14–20: Health better than wealth. 18: Food offerings . . . placed on a tomb were forbidden

- |  |  |  |
|--|--|--|
| 16 There is no wealth to compare with health of body, no festivity to equal a joyful heart. 17 Better death than a life of misery, eternal rest than a long illness. 18 Good things spread before a man without appetite are like offerings of food placed on a tomb. 19 What use is a sacrifice to an idol which can neither taste nor smell? So it is with the man afflicted by the Lord. 20 He gazes at the food before him and sighs as a eunuch sighs when he embraces a girl. 21 Do not give yourself over to sorrow or distress yourself deliberately. 22 A merry heart keeps a man alive, and joy lengthens his span of days. 23 Indulge yourself, take comfort, and banish sorrow; for sorrow has been the death of many, and no advantage ever came of it. 24 Envy and anger shorten a man's life, and anxiety brings premature old age. 25 A man with a gay heart has a good appetite and relishes the food he eats. 31 A rich man loses weight by wakeful nights, when the cares of wealth drive sleep away; 2 sleepless worry keeps him wide awake, just as serious illness banishes<sup>e</sup> sleep. 3 A rich man toils to amass a fortune, and when he relaxes he enjoys every luxury. 4 A poor man toils to make a slender living, | and when he relaxes he finds himself in need. Passion for gold can never be right; the pursuit of money leads a man astray.<sup>f</sup> Many a man has come to ruin for the sake of gold and found disaster staring him in the face. Gold is a pitfall to those who are infatuated with it, and every fool is caught by it. Happy the rich man who has remained free of its taint and has not made gold his aim! Show us that man, and we will congratulate him; he has performed a miracle among his people. Has anyone ever come through this test unscathed? Then he has good cause to be proud. Has anyone ever had it in his power to sin and refrained, or to do wrong and has not done it? Then he shall be confirmed in his prosperity, and the whole people will hail him as a benefactor. IF YOU ARE SITTING AT A GRAND table, do not lick your lips and exclaim, 'What a spread!' Remember, it is a vice to have a greedy eye. There is no greater evil in creation than the eye; that is why it must shed tears at every turn. Do not reach for everything you see, | 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 |
|--|--|--|

<sup>e</sup> banishes: probable meaning, based on Heb.; Gk. obscure.

<sup>f</sup> the pursuit . . . astray: so Heb.; Gk. the man who pursues destruction shall have his fill of it.

Jews; see Deut.26.14, but compare Tob.4.17. 19: Compare Ps.115.4-6. Sickness is heavy to bear because it is an affliction from the Lord.

30.21-31.4: Enjoyment of the present. 21-25: In contrast to the frequent advice to restrain the emotions in the face of insecurity (as in 11.29-13.13), here a relaxed self-expression in security is the ideal; compare 14.11-19. 31.1-4: Indicatives (rather than the imperatives of 30.21-25) offer a sober comment on the difficulty of enjoying the present.

31.5-11: Good and bad uses of money. The ambiguity of wealth is a problem in Eccles. The temptations are clearly stated. 10: The rhetorical question seems to expect the answer "no." 11: Yet financial security is the proper reward for righteousness; compare v. 8.

31.12-21: Etiquette. Table manners was a subject of wisdom teaching through the centuries.

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| or jostle your fellow-guest at the dish;                 15 judge his feelings by your own and always behave considerately.                 16 Eat what is set before you like a gentleman;                 do not munch and make yourself objectionable.                 17 Be the first to stop for good manners sake                 and do not be insatiable, or you will give offence.                 18 If you are dining in a large company, do not reach out your hand before others.                 19 A man of good upbringing is content with little,                 and he is not short of breath when he goes to bed.                 20 The moderate eater enjoys healthy sleep;                 he rises early, feeling refreshed.                 But sleeplessness, indigestion, and colic                 are the lot of the glutton.                 21 If you cannot avoid overeating at a feast,                 leave the table and find relief by vomiting.                 22 Listen to me, my son; do not disregard me,                 and in the end my words will come home to you.                 Whatever you do, do it shrewdly,                 and no illness will come your way.                 23 Everyone has a good word for a liberal host,                 and the evidence of his generosity is convincing.                 24 The whole town grumbles at a mean host,                 and there is precise evidence of his meanness.                 25 Do not try to prove your manhood by drinking, | for wine has been the ruin of many.                 As the furnace tests iron when it is being tempered, 26                 so wine tests character when boastful men are wrangling.                 Wine puts life into a man, 27                 if he drinks it in moderation.                 What is life to a man deprived of wine?                 Was it not created to warm men's hearts?                 Wine brings gaiety and high spirits, 28                 if a man knows when to drink and when to stop;                 but wine in excess makes for bitter 29                 feelings                 and leads to offence and retaliation.                 Drunkenness inflames a fool's anger 30                 to his own hurt;                 it saps his strength and exposes him to injury.                 At a banquet do not rebuke your 31                 fellow-guest                 or make him feel small while he is enjoying himself.                 This is no time to take up a quarrel with him                 or pester him to pay his debts.                 If they choose you to preside at a 32                 feast, do not put on airs;                 behave to them as one of themselves.                 Look after the others before you sit down;                 do not take your place until you 2                 have discharged all your duties.                 Let their enjoyment be your pleasure,                 and you will win the prize for good manners.                 Speak, if you are old—it is your 3                 privilege—                 but come to the point and do not interrupt the music.                 Where entertainment is provided, do 4                 not keep up a stream of talk;                 it is the wrong time to show off your wisdom. |
|---|--|

Moderation is the key. 15: This is a form of the "Golden Rule"; compare 6.17; Tob.4.15; Mt.7.12. 18: The before is temporal.

31.22–24: How to entertain. 23: The liberal host is the ideal.

31.25–31: Moderation in drinking. 26: Wine, which tests character, is not to be avoided but rightly used; for Ecclesiasticus life was full of such tests. 27–28: The good effects of wine point up the motif of enjoying the moment; compare 30.21–25.

32.1–13: Behavior at banquets. 1–2: Presiding at a feast was a great honor. 3: The right of the old to speak first was widely recognized. 4: Incessant talkers disturb a concert and bore

- |   |   |  |
|---|---|--|
| 5 Like a signet of ruby in a gold ringis a concert of music at a banquet. 6 Like a signet of emerald in a goldsettingis tuneful music with good wine. 7 Speak, if you are young, when theneed arises,but twice at the most, and onlywhen asked. 8 Be brief, say much in few words,like a man who knows and can stillhold his tongue. 9 Among the great do not act as theirequalor go on chattering when another isspeaking. 10 As lightning travels ahead ofthunder,so popularity goes before a modestman. 11 Leave in good time and do not bethe last to go;go straight home without lingering. 12 There you may amuse yourself toyour heart's content,and run no risk of arrogant talk. 13 And one thing more: give praise toyour Maker,who has filled your cup with hisblessings. 14 THE MAN WHO FEARS THE LORD WILLaccept his discipline,and the diligent will receive hisapproval. 15 The genuine student will findsatisfaction in the law,but it will prove a stumbling-blockto the insincere. 16 Those who fear the Lord willdiscover what is right,and will make his decrees<sup>g</sup> shine outlike a lamp. 17 A sinner will not accept criticism;he will find precedents to justifyhis choice. | A sensible man can always take ahint;but an arrogant heathen does notknow the meaning of diffidence.Never do anything withoutdeliberation,and afterwards you will have noregrets.<sup>h</sup> Do not travel by a road full ofobstaclesand stumble along through itsboulders.Do not be careless on a clear roadbut watch where you are going.<sup>i</sup>Whatever you are doing, rely onyourself,for this too is a way of keeping thecommandments.To rely on the law is to heed itscommandments,and to trust the Lord is to want fornothing. Disaster never comes the way ofthe man who fears the Lord:in times of trial he will be rescuedagain and again. A wise man never hates the law,but the man who is insincere aboutit is like a boat in a squall.A sensible man trusts the lawand finds it as reliable as the divineoracle. Prepare what you have to say, if youwant a hearing.marshall your learning and then giveyour answer. The feelings of a fool turn like acart-wheel,and his thoughts spin like an axle.A sarcastic friend is like a stallionwhich neighs no matter who is onits back. | 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 33 2 3 4 5 6 |
|---|---|--|

<sup>g</sup> Or their good conduct.
<sup>h</sup> you . . . regrets: or do not change your mind.
<sup>i</sup> but . . . going: so Heb.; Gk. and keep an eye on your children.

and annoy. 7: The young are to speak only when asked. 13: The poem closes on a religious note, as frequently, with praise to your Maker.

32.14–33.6: Contrasts between the reverent man and the fool. 15: The receptiveness of the wise man enables him to find satisfaction in the law. 17: By contrast, the sinner is not receptive and cannot accept criticism. 18–24: Foresight and self-reliance mark the wise. 33.1–2: The staying power of the reverent man derives from his trust in the Law. 3: The divine oracle: the Urim and Thummim (see Exod.28.15 n.), which were no longer in use. Ecclesiasticus holds that such oracles are no longer necessary since the law fully discloses God's will. 6: The stallion has no fixed loyalty to anyone.

7	why is one day more important than another, when every day in the year has its light from the sun?	but for all who seek learning. Listen to me, you dignitaries; leaders of the assembly, give me your attention.	18
8	It was by the Lord's decision that they were distinguished; he appointed the various seasons and festivals:	As long as you live, give no one power over yourself— son or wife, brother or friend. Do not give your property to another,	19
9	some days he made high and holy, and others he assigned to the common run of days.	in case you change your mind and want it back.
10	All men alike come from the ground; Adam was created out of earth.	As long as you have life and breath, never change places with anyone.	20
11	Yet in his great wisdom the Lord distinguished them	It is better for your children to ask from you	21
12	and made them go various ways: some he blessed and lifted high, some he hallowed and brought near to himself,	than for you to be dependent on them.
13	some he cursed and humbled and removed from their place.	Whatever you are doing, keep the upper hand, and allow no blot on your reputation.	22
14	As clay is in the potter's hands, to be moulded just as he chooses, so are men in the hands of their Maker,	Let your life run its full course, and then, at the hour of death, distribute your estate.	23
15	to be dealt with as he decides.	Fodder, and stick, and burdens for the donkey; bread, and discipline, and work for the servant!	24
16	Good is the opposite of evil, and life of death; yes, and the sinner is the opposite of the godly.	Make your slave work, if you want rest for yourself; if you leave him idle, he will be looking for his liberty.	25
17	Look at all the works of the Most High: they go in pairs, one the opposite of the other.	The ox is tamed by yoke and harness, the bad servant by racks and tortures.	26
18	I was the last to wake up, I was like a gleaner following the grape-pickers;	Put him to work to keep him from being idle, for idleness is a great teacher of mischief.	27
19	by the Lord's blessing I arrived in time to fill my winepress as full as any of them.	Set him to work, for that is what he is for, and if he disobeys you, load him with fetters.	28
20	Remember that I did not toil for myself alone,

33.7–15: God and the opposites. Clinging things in pairs and opposites was a favorite way of finding order in the world. 8: Pairs and distinctions exist by the Lord's decision. 13: The varied vessels made of clay correspond to the various stations of men; compare Jer.18.1–12; Rom.9.19–23. 14–15: The sinner is paired against the godly among the works of the Most High; yet sin remains man's responsibility; compare 15.11–20.

33.16–18: The author's task. In the light of vv. 11–13, the author now sets forth the mission given him by God. Ancient writers tended to glorify the old (compare chs. 44–50); here Ecclesiasticus boldly states that his teaching is as good as the old.

33.19–23: The father as property holder. 20: Do not change places of authority. 21: Children were dependent on their fathers until the latter's death.

33.24–31: Relations with slaves. 24–28: Bad and lazy slaves require stern treatment. The slave is made parallel to the domestic animal. 29–31: The stern verses (24–28) are balanced

29	Do not be too exacting towards anyone or do anything contrary to justice.	An inexperienced man knows little, but a man who travels grows in ability.	10
30	If you have a servant, treat him as an equal, because you bought him with blood.	I have seen many things in the course of my travels, and understand more than I can tell.	11
31	If you have a servant, treat him like a brother; you will need him as much as you need yourself. If you ill-treat him and he takes to his heels, where will you go to look for him?	I have often been in deadly danger and escaped, thanks to the experience I had gained.	12
True piety and the mercy of God
34	Vain hopes delude the senseless, and dreams give wings to a fool's fancy.	THOSE WHO FEAR THE LORD SHALL live, for their trust is in one who can keep them safe.	13
2	It is like clutching a shadow, or chasing the wind, to take notice of dreams.	The man who fears the Lord will have nothing else to fear; he will never be a coward, because his trust is in the Lord.	14
3	What you see in a dream is nothing but a reflection, like the image of a face in a mirror.	How blest is the man who fears the Lord!	15
4	Purity cannot come out of filth; how then can truth issue from falsehood?	He knows where to look for support. The Lord keeps watch over those who love him,	16
5	Divination, omens, and dreams are all futile, mere fantasies, like those of a woman in labour.	their strong shield and firm support, a shelter from scorching wind and midday heat, a safeguard against stumbles and falls.
6	Unless they are sent by intervention from the Most High, pay no attention to them.	He raises the spirits and makes the eyes sparkle,	17
7	Dreams have led many astray and ruined those who built their hopes on them.	giving health, and life, and blessing.
8	Such delusions can add nothing to the completeness of the law; the wisdom spoken by the faithful is complete in itself.	A sacrifice derived from ill-gotten gains is contaminated, a lawless mockery that cannot win approval.	18
9	An educated man knows many things, and a man of experience understands what he is talking about.	The Most High is not pleased with the offering of the godless, nor do endless sacrifices win his forgiveness.	19
		To offer a sacrifice from the possessions of the poor	20

by advice about equitable relations with good servants. 30: Blood refers to the hard labor by which the slave was bought.

34.1-12: The unsubstantiality of dreams. 1: Empty hopes delude because they are an escape from reality. 5: The objection here stems from such practices by pagan peoples. 6: Nonetheless, "true" dreams may be sent by the Most High. 8: Normally, however, the wisdom provided in the law is sufficient. 9: Empirical experience, rather than dreams, provides real knowledge. 11-12: Travels were a practical source of experience (compare 51.13); the author's opposition to paganism does not prevent him from gaining knowledge of the world outside Judea.

34.13-36.17: True piety and the mercy of God are united only in good conduct.

34.13-17: A psalm of deliverance from fear. It is God who gives what the dream seekers (34.1-8) were after.

34.18-26: Empty observances. 18: A sacrifice: this cannot substitute for moral obedience.

	is like killing a son before his father's eyes.	Be generous in your worship of the Lord	8
21	Bread is life to the destitute, and it is murder to deprive them of it.	and present the firstfruits of your labour in full measure.
22	To rob your neighbour of his livelihood is to kill him, and the man who cheats a worker of his wages sheds blood.	Give all your gifts cheerfully and be glad to dedicate your tithe. Give to the Most High as he has given to you,	9 10
23	When one builds and another pulls down, what have they gained except hard work?	as generously as you can afford. For the Lord always repays; you will be repaid seven times over.	11
24	When one prays and another curses, which is the Lord to listen to?	Do not offer him a bribe, for he will not accept it,	12
25	Wash after touching a corpse and then touch it again, and what have you gained by your washing?	and do not rely on a dishonest sacrifice;
26	So it is with the man who fasts for his sins and goes and does the same again; who will listen to his prayer? what has he gained by his penance?	for the Lord is a judge who knows no partiality. He has no favourites at the poor man's expense, but listens to his prayer when he is wronged.	13
35	Keeping the law is worth many offerings; to heed the commandments is to sacrifice a thank-offering.	He never ignores the appeal of the orphan or the widow when she pours out her complaint.	14
2	A kindness repaid is an offering of flour, and to give alms is a praise-offering.	How the tears run down the widow's cheeks, and her cries accuse the man who caused them!	15
3	The way to please the Lord is to renounce evil; and to renounce wrongdoing is to make atonement.	To be accepted a man must serve the Lord as he requires, and then his prayer will reach the clouds.	16
4	Yet do not appear before the Lord empty-handed;	The prayer of the humble pierces the clouds,	17
5	perform these sacrifices because they are commanded.	but he is not consoled until it reaches its destination.
6	When the just man brings his offering of fat to the altar, its fragrance rises to the presence of the Most High.	He does not desist until the Most High intervenes, gives the just their rights, and sees justice done.
7	The just man's sacrifice is acceptable; it will never be forgotten.	The Lord will not be slow, neither will he be patient with the wicked,	18

21–22: Withholding wages was forbidden in Lev.19.13. 24–26: When the poor curses the rich, he will cancel out the latter's prayers; compare 35.17. Likewise, penance, in the form of ritual washing or fasting, is nullified by the repetition of the act which necessitated it. God, who listens to the prayer of the penitent, will not heed the prayer of the insincere.

35.1–11: Right sacrifice. 1: The moral commands come first in keeping the law. 4–5: Nevertheless, the ceremonial acts are not to be neglected. 9–11: The view here draws on the motivation of self-interest.

35.12–20: God's justice and mercy. 12: The bribe refers to the false sacrifices of 34.18–20. God shows no partiality to the rich; compare Deut.10.17–18. 13–17: Delay of justice means that the prayer of orphan and widow may have to be very persistent; but God will see justice done. 18–20: Perhaps by the metaphor of Israel as a widow (v. 14; Lam.1.1), the justice of God toward Israel becomes the subject.

	until he crushes the sinews of the merciless and sends retribution on the heathen; until he blots out the insolent, one and all, and breaks the power of the unjust;	and grant them their inheritance, <sup>k</sup> as thou didst long ago.
19	until he gives all men their deserts, judging their actions by their intentions;	Have pity, O Lord, on the people called by thy name, Israel, whom thou hast named thy first-born.	12
	until he gives his people their rights and gladdens them with his mercy.	Show mercy to the city of thy sanctuary, Jerusalem, the city of thy rest.	13
20	His mercy is as timely in days of trouble as rain-clouds in days of drought.	Fill Zion with the praise of thy triumph; fill thy people with thy glory. Thou didst create them at the beginning; acknowledge them now	14
		and fulfil the prophecies spoken in thy name.
36	HAVE PITY ON US, O LORD, THOU God of all; look down, and send thy terror upon all nations.	Reward those who wait for thee; prove thy prophets trustworthy. Listen, O Lord, to the prayer of thy servants, who claim Aaron's blessing upon thy people.	16
2	Raise thy hand against the heathen, and let them see thy power.	Let all who live on earth acknowledge that thou art the Lord, the eternal God.	17
3	As they have seen thy holiness displayed among us, so let us see thy greatness displayed among them.
4	Let them learn, as we also have learned, that there is no God but only thou, O Lord.
5	Renew thy signs, repeat thy miracles, win glory for thy hand, for thy right arm.
6	Rouse thy wrath, pour out thy fury, destroy the adversary, wipe out the enemy.
7	Remember the day thou hast appointed and hasten it, <sup>j</sup> and give men cause to recount thy wonders.
8	Let fiery anger devour the survivors, and let the oppressors of thy people meet their doom.
9	Crush the heads of hostile princes, who say, "There is no one to match us."
10	Gather all the tribes of Jacob,
11

Man in society

ALL IS FOOD FOR THE STOMACH, but one food is better than another. As the palate identifies game by its taste, so the discerning mind detects lies. A warped mind makes trouble, but a man of experience can pay it back.	18
A woman will take any man for husband, but a man may prefer one girl to another. A woman's beauty makes a man happy,	21
	22

<sup>j</sup> Remember . . . it: some witnesses read Hasten the day and remember thy oath.
<sup>k</sup> Or and take them to be thy own.

36.1-17: A prayer for Israel. In language of appeal to God this section takes up the theme of 35.18-20. 1: God of all: compare 50.22. 4: God's holiness was shown in his punishing Israel by exile. 6: The signs and miracles are those of Exod.7.14-11.10; 12.29-32; 14.1-15.21. 8: The day of the Lord was both a popular and prophetic hope; see Amos 5.18-20. 9-11: Some of the elements of the "day" were to crush the oppressors of Israel and to gather the dispersed tribes of Jacob. Inheritance: land of Palestine. 12: Called by thy name: belonging to you. 17: Along with the prophecies, the writer invokes the priestly blessing of Aaron; see Num.6.23-26. 36.18-20: Discernment. Three proverbs introduce a collection of poems (36.18-39.11) about judgment and discrimination.

36.21-26: The married life. 21: The woman had no choice; marriage was arranged by the

	and there is nothing he desires more.	His advice will be weighted in his own favour
23	If she has a kind and gentle tongue, then her husband is luckier than most men.	and may tip the scales against you. He may say, 'Your road is clear', and stand aside to see what happens.	9
24	The man who wins a wife has the beginnings of a fortune, a helper to match his needs and a pillar to support him.	Do not consult a man who is suspicious of you or reveal your intentions to those who envy you.	10
25	Where there is no hedge, property is plundered; and where there is no wife, the wanderer sighs for a home.	Never consult a woman about her rival	11
26	Does anyone trust a roving bandit who swoops on town after town? No more will they trust a homeless man who lodges wherever night overtakes him.	or a coward about war, a merchant about a bargain or a buyer about a sale, a skinflint about gratitude or a hard-hearted man about a kind action, an idler about work of any sort, a casual labourer about finishing the job, or a lazy servant about an exacting task—
37	Every friend says, 'I too am your friend'; but some are friends in name only.	do not turn to them for any advice. Rely rather on a godfearing man whom you know to be a keeper of the commandments, whose interests are like your own, who will sympathize if you have a setback.	12
2	What a mortal grief it is when a dear friend turns into an enemy!	But also trust your own judgement, for it is your most reliable counsellor. A man's own mind has sometimes	13
3	Oh this propensity to evil, how did it creep in to cover the earth with treachery?	a way of telling him more than seven watchmen posted high on a tower.	14
4	A friend may be all smiles when you are happy, but turn against you when trouble comes.	But above all pray to the Most High to keep you on the straight road of truth.	15
5	Another shares your toil for the sake of a meal, and yet may protect you against an enemy.
6	Never forget a friend or neglect him when prosperity comes your way.	Every undertaking begins in discussion, and consultation precedes every action.	16
7	Every counsellor says his own advice is best but some have their own advantage in view.	Here you can trace the mind's variety.	17
8	Beware of the man who offers advice, and find out beforehand where his interest lies.	Four kinds of destiny are offered to men, good and evil, life and death;	18

father. 24–26: Despite negative remarks about women, Ecclesiasticus strongly disapproves of men who avoid marriage.

37.1–6: Choosing a friend. Compare 6.5–17. 1–4: A true friend is hard to discern. 6: The section ends with an imperative which sets the qualifications aside.

37.7–15: Choosing a counselor. As in 37.1–6, the main theme is watchfulness against the other's interest. 11: Lists were a typical way of collecting wisdom; compare 25.7–10. Rival: see 26.6 n. 13–14: Factors that warp others' insight do not apply in the same way to your own. 15: The shrewd, practical section closes on a religious note; see also v. 12.

37.16–26: Productive and unproductive wisdom. 22: Success in managing one's own life is a

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| and always it is the tongue that decides the issue. 19 A man may be clever enough to teach others and yet be useless to himself. 20 A brilliant speaker may make enemies and end by dying of hunger, 21 if the Lord has withheld the gift of popular appeal, because he is devoid of wisdom. 22 If a man is wise in the conduct of his own life, his good sense can be trusted when he speaks. 23 If a man is wise and instructs his people, then his good sense can be trusted. 24 A wise man will have praise heaped on him, and all who see him will count him happy. 25 The days of a man's life can be numbered, but the days of Israel are countless. 26 A wise man will possess the confidence of his people, and his name will live for ever. 27 MY SON, TEST YOURSELF ALL YOUR life long; take note of what is bad for you and do not indulge in it. 28 For not everything is good for everyone; we do not all enjoy the same things. 29 Do not be greedy for every delicacy or eat without restraint. 30 For illness is a sure result of overeating, and gluttony is next door to colic. 31 Gluttony has been the death of many; be on your guard and prolong your life. 38 Honour the doctor for his services, for the Lord created him. | His skill comes from the Most High, 2 and he is rewarded by kings. The doctor's knowledge gives him 3 high standing and wins him the admiration of the great. The Lord has created medicines from 4 the earth, and a sensible man will not disparage them. Was it not a tree that sweetened 5 water and so disclosed its properties? The Lord has imparted knowledge 6 to men, that by their use of his marvels he may win praise; by using them the doctor<sup>m</sup> relieves 7 pain and from them the pharmacist makes 8 up his mixture. There is no end to the works of the Lord, who spreads health over the whole world. My son, if you have an illness, do 9 not neglect it, but pray to the Lord, and he will heal you. Renounce your faults, amend your 10 ways, and cleanse your heart from all sin. Bring a savoury offering and bring 11 flour for a token and pour oil on the sacrifice; be as generous as you can.<sup>n</sup> Then call in the doctor, for the Lord 12 created him; do not let him leave you, for you need him. There may come a time when your 13 recovery is in their hands; then they too will pray to the Lord 14 to give them success in relieving pain and finding a cure to save their patient's life. |
|--|---|

l Or and revealed the power of the Lord.
m the doctor: so Heb.; Gk. he heals and . . .
n be . . . can: so Heb.; Gk. obscure.

mark of productive wisdom. 24: Public reputation is another mark. 26: Lasting fame is a third criterion.

37.27-31: Know your own limits. These verses make the generalized proverbs of 36.18-19 into literal rules for finding one's own dietary style.

38.1-15: The doctor. 3: Social standing is cited as proof of the validity of the doctor's work. 4: Apparently some did disparage medicines, because they believed that faith alone should heal. Ecclus. advocates both faith (compare vv. 9-11) and the doctor. 5: For the sweetened water, see Exod.15.23-25.

15	When a man has sinned against his Maker, let him put himself in the doctor's hands.	He concentrates on ploughing his furrows, and works late to give the heifers their fodder.	26
16	My son, shed tears for the dead; raise a lament for your grievous loss. Shroud his body with proper ceremony, and do not neglect his burial.	So it is with every craftsman or designer who works by night as well as by day, such as those who make engravings on signets, and patiently vary the design;	27
17	With bitter weeping and passionate lament make your mourning worthy of him. Mourn for a few days as propriety demands, and then take comfort for your grief.	they concentrate on making an exact representation, and sit up late to finish their task. So it is with the smith, sitting by his anvil, intent on his iron-work.	28
18	For grief may lead to death, and a sorrowful heart saps the strength.	The smoke of the fire shrivels his flesh, as he wrestles in the heat of the furnace.
19	When a man is taken away, suffering is over, but to live on in poverty goes against the grain.	The hammer rings again and again in his ears, and his eyes are on the pattern he is copying.
20	Do not abandon yourself to grief; put it from you and think of your own end.	He concentrates on completing the task, and stays up late to give it a perfect finish.
21	Never forget! there is no return; you cannot help him and can only injure yourself.	So it is with the potter, sitting at his work, turning the wheel with his feet, always engrossed in the task	29
22	Remember that his fate will also be yours: 'Mine today and yours tomorrow.'	of making up his tally; he moulds the clay with his arm, crouching forward to apply his strength.	30
23	When the dead is at rest, let his memory rest too; take comfort as soon as he has breathed his last.	He concentrates on finishing the glazing, and stays awake to clean out the furnace.
24	A SCHOLAR'S WISDOM COMES OF ample leisure; if a man is to be wise he must be relieved of other tasks.	All these rely on their hands, and each is skilful at his own craft.	31
25	How can a man become wise who guides the plough, whose pride is in wielding his goad, who is absorbed in the task of driving oxen, and talks only about cattle?	Without them a city would have no inhabitants; no settlers or travellers would come to it. Yet they are not in demand at public discussions	32 33

38.16–23: Mourning for the dead. 16–17: Proper ceremony is important, partly because it makes possible the psychological break with the dead which is so important; see vv. 20–23. Mourning as propriety demands involves a sensitivity to public opinion on which the author constantly kept his eye. 18–23: The finality of your own end (v. 20) can help you to accept another's. 22: The dead man speaks a proverb.

38.24–39.11: Ordinary work and the work of the wise. 24: Leisure is to be used acquiring wisdom. 25–34: Farming (honored in 7.15,22) and crafts allow no leisure for study. Yet later

or prominent in the assembly. They do not sit on the judge's bench or understand the decisions of the courts. They cannot expound moral or legal principles and are not ready with maxims. 34 But they maintain the fabric of this world, and their prayers are about their daily work.<sup>o</sup> 39 How different it is with the man who devotes himself to studying the law of the Most High, who investigates all the wisdom of the past, and spends his time studying the prophecies! 2 He preserves the sayings of famous men and penetrates the intricacies of parables. 3 He investigates the hidden meaning of proverbs and knows his way among riddles. 4 The great avail themselves of his services, and he is seen in the presence of rulers. He travels in foreign countries and learns at first hand the good or evil of man's lot. 5 He makes a point of rising early to pray to the Lord, his Maker, and prays aloud to the Most High, asking pardon for his sins. 6 If it is the will of the great Lord, he will be filled with a spirit of intelligence; then he will pour forth wise sayings of his own and give thanks to the Lord in prayer. 7 He will have sound advice and knowledge to offer, and his thoughts will dwell on the mysteries he has studied.	He will disclose what he has learnt 8 from his own education, and will take pride in the law of the Lord's covenant. Many will praise his intelligence; 9 it will never sink into oblivion. The memory of him will not die but will live on from generation to generation; the nations will talk of his wisdom, 10 and his praises will be sung in the assembly. If he lives long, he will leave a name 11 in a thousand, and if he goes to his rest, his reputation is secure.<sup>p</sup> I HAVE STILL MORE IN MY MIND TO 12 express; I am full like the moon at mid-month. Listen to me, my devout sons, and 13 blossom like a rose planted by a stream. Spread your fragrance like incense, 14 and bloom like a lily. Scatter your fragrance; lift your voices in song, praising the Lord for all his works. Ascribe majesty to his name 15 and give thanks to him with praise, with songs on your lips, and with harps; let these be your words of thanksgiving: 'All that the Lord has made is very 16 good; all that he commands will happen in due time.' No one should ask, 'What is this?' 17 or 'Why is that?' At the proper time all such questions will be answered. When he spoke the water stood up like a heap, and his word created reservoirs for it.
--	---

<sup>o</sup> Or and their daily work is their prayer.
<sup>p</sup> his reputation is secure: possible reading; Gk. obscure.

on Jewish scholars regularly practiced a craft; compare Acts 18.3. 39.1: The wise man is a scholar of the Scriptures. In the threefold division of the Bible, the order is usually Law, Prophecy, and the Writings, the latter equivalent to Wisdom. Here the author, because of his own interest, puts wisdom before prophecies. 4: He is also a shrewd, practical advisor in public affairs. Travels: see 34.11–12 n. 9–11: Enduring memory is an important test to Eccles.; compare 44.10–15.

39.12–35: God's works. 16–31: A psalm opposes skeptics with the argument that everything is good in its time. The skeptics (vv. 17,21,34) represent the pessimistic facet in the wisdom tradition (compare the interpretation of "times" in Eccles.3.1–11). 17: The water stood up in

18 When he commands, his purpose is fulfilled, and no one can thwart his saving power. 19 He sees the deeds of all mankind; there is no hiding from his gaze. 20 From the beginning to the end of time he keeps watch, and nothing is too marvellous for him. 21 No one should ask, 'What is this?' or 'Why is that?' Everything has been created for its own purpose. 22 His blessing is like a river in flood which inundates the parched ground. 23 But the doom he assigns the heathen is his wrath, as when he turned a watered plain into a salt desert. 24 For the devout his paths are straight, but full of pitfalls for the wicked. 25 From the beginning good things were created for the good, and evils for sinners. 26 The chief necessities of human life are water, fire, iron, and salt, flour, honey, and milk, the juice of the grape, oil, and clothing. 27 All these are good for the godfearing, but turn to evil for sinners. 28 There are winds created to be agents of retribution, with great whips to give play to their fury; on the day of reckoning, they exert their force and give full vent to the anger of their Maker. 29 Fire and hail, famine and deadly disease, all these were created for retribution; 30 beasts of prey, scorpions and vipers, and the avenging sword that destroys the wicked. 31 They delight in carrying out his orders,	always standing ready for his service on the earth; and when their time comes, they never disobey. I have been convinced of all this from the beginning; I have thought it over and left it in writing: all the works of the Lord are good, and he supplies every need as it occurs. No one should say, 'This is less good than that', for all things prove good at their proper time. Come then, sing with heart and voice, and praise the name of the Lord. HARD WORK IS THE LOT OF EVERY man, and a heavy yoke is laid on the sons of Adam, from the day when they come from their mother's womb until the day of their return to the mother of all; troubled thoughts and fears are theirs, and anxious expectation of the day of their death. Whether a man sits in royal splendour on a throne or grovels in dust and ashes, whether he wears the purple and a crown or is clothed in sackcloth, his life is nothing but anger and jealousy, worry and perplexity, fear of death, and guilt, and rivalry. Even when he goes to bed at night, sleep only brings to mind the same things in a new form. His rest is little or nothing; he begins to struggle as hard in his sleep as in the day.<sup>q</sup> Disturbed by nightmares,	32 33 34 35 40 2 3 4 5 6
--	---	---

q he begins . . . day: possible meaning; Gk. obscure.

being separated from the land, Gen.1.9-10. 23: The watered plain is that of Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen.19.25; compare Ps.107.34. 26: This list of ten necessities drawn from secular wisdom (compare 29.21) is used to show that God made all things good, though they can be turned to evil by the sinner.

40.1-11: Suffering as the lot of man. In striking contrast to the previous psalm, Eccus. here recognizes the universality of suffering, even for the righteous. 5-7: Eccus. avoids a religious

	he fancies himself a fugitive from the battlefield;	Wine and music gladden the heart,	20
7	and at the moment when he reaches safety, he wakes up, astonished to find his fears groundless.	but better still is the love of wisdom. Flute and harp make pleasant melody,	21
8	To all living creatures, man and beast—	but better still is a pleasant voice. A man likes to see grace and beauty,	22
9	and seven times over to sinners— come death and bloodshed, quarrel and sword,	but better still the green shoots in a cornfield. A friend or companion is always welcome,	23
10	disaster, famine, ruin, and plague. All these were created for the wicked, and on their account the flood happened.	but better still to be man and wife. Brothers and helpers are a standby in time of trouble,	24
11	All that is of earth returns to earth again, and all that is of water finds its way back to the sea.	but better still is almsgiving. Gold and silver make a man stand firm,	25
12	Bribery and injustice will all vanish, but good faith will last for ever.	but better still is good advice. Wealth and strength make for confidence,	26
13	The wealth of the wicked will dry up like a torrent and die away like a great roll of thunder in a storm.	but better still is the fear of the Lord. To fear the Lord is to lack nothing and never to be in need of support. The fear of the Lord is like a luxuriant garden;	27
14	As a generous man will have cause for rejoicing, so law-breakers will come to utter ruin.	it shelters a man better than any riches.
15	The shoots of an impious stock put out few branches; their tainted roots are planted on sheer rock.	My son, do not live the life of a beggar;	28
16	The rush that grows on every river-bank is pulled up before any other grass,	it is better to die than to beg. When a man starts looking to another man's table,	29
17	but kindness is like a luxuriant garden, and almsgiving lasts for ever.	his existence is not worth calling life. It is demoralizing to live on another man's food,
18	To be employed and to be one's own master, both are sweet, but it is better still to find a treasure.	and a wise, well-disciplined man will guard against it.	30
19	Offspring and the founding of a city perpetuate a man's name, but better still is a perfect wife.	When a man has lost all shame, he speaks as if begging were sweet, but inside him there is a blazing fire.
		Death, how bitter is the thought of you	41
		to a man living at ease among his possessions,
		free from anxiety, prosperous in all things,

interpretation of dreams (compare 34.1-8); they are part of man's burden. 8-11: At least the burden of suffering is greater for sinners.

40.12-17: The victory of the good. To counteract the previous pessimistic observations, Ecclesiasticus here affirms the transience of bribery and injustice and all evil, and the permanence of good faith and all good.

40.18-30: Good and bad things. 18-27: Eighteen good things are listed in a complex parallel pattern. 26-27: The fear of the Lord is the best. 28-30: A beggar's life is the opposite of a good thing. 30: The inner conflict is the worst feature of begging.

41.1-4: Acceptance of death. Regardless of one's emotional response, one must accept the inevitable.

and still vigorous enough to enjoy a good meal! 2 Death, how welcome is your sentence to a destitute man whose strength is failing, worn down by age and endless anxiety, resentful and at the end of his patience! 3 Do not be afraid of death's summons; remember those who have gone before you, and those who will come after. 4 This is the Lord's decree for all living men; why try to argue with the will of the Most High? Whether life lasts ten years, or a hundred, or a thousand, there will be no questions asked in the grave. 5 What a loathsome brood are the children of sinners, brought up in haunts of vice! 6 Their inheritance dwindles away, and their descendants suffer a lasting disgrace. 7 A godless father is blamed by his children for the disgrace they endure on his account. 8 Woe to you, godless men who have abandoned the law of God Most High! 9 When you are born, you are born to a curse, and when you die, a curse is your lot. 10 Whatever comes from earth returns to earth; so too the godless go from curse to ruin. 11 Men grieve over the death of the body, but sinners have no good name to survive them. 12 Take thought for your name, for it will outlive you longer than a thousand hoards of gold.	The days of a good life are numbered, but a good name lasts for ever. 13 MY CHILDREN, BE TRUE TO YOUR training and live in peace. Wisdom concealed and treasure hidden— what is the use of either? Better a man who hides his folly than one who hides his wisdom! 14 15 16 Show deference then to my teaching: shame is not always to be encouraged, or given unqualified approval in all circumstances. 17 Be ashamed to be found guilty of fornication by your parents, or of lies by a ruler or prince; of crime by a judge or magistrate, or of a breach of the law by the assembly and people; 18 of dishonesty by a partner or friend, or of theft by the neighbourhood; 19 be ashamed before the truth of God and his covenant. Be ashamed of bad manners at table, of giving or receiving with a sneer, of refusing to return a greeting, or of ogling a prostitute. 20 Be ashamed of turning away a relative, of robbing someone of his rightful share, or of eyeing another man's wife. 21 Be ashamed of meddling with his slave-girl, and keep away from her bed. Be ashamed of reproaching your friends, or following up your charity with a lecture. 22 Be ashamed of repeating what you have heard and of betraying a secret. 23 Then you will be showing a proper shame and will be popular with everyone. 24
---	---

---

41.5–13: Consequences that outlast death. 5–10: Children bear the consequences of their godless father's life. 11–13: A good name is the most lasting memorial; compare Prov.22.1; Eccles.7.1.

41.14–42.8: Proper and improper shame. 17–23: Proper bases of shame are listed. 24: The

- 42 But at other times you must not be ashamed,
 or you will do wrong out of deference to others.
- 2 Do not be ashamed of the law and covenant of the Most High,
 or of justice, for fear you acquit the guilty;
- 3 of settling accounts with a partner
 or a travelling-companion, or of sharing an inheritance with the other heirs;
- 4 of using accurate weights and measures,
 or of business dealings, large or small,
 5 and making a profit out of trade;
 of frequent disciplining of children,
 or of drawing blood from the back of a worthless servant.
- 6 If your wife is untrustworthy, or where many hands are at work, it is well to keep things under lock
 and key.
- 7 When you make a deposit, see that it is counted and weighed,
 and when you give or receive, have
 it all in writing.
- 8 Do not be ashamed to correct the ignorant and foolish,
 or a greybeard guilty of fornication.
 Then you will be showing your sound upbringing
 and will win everyone's approval.
- 9 A daughter is a secret anxiety to her father,
 and the worry of her keeps him
 awake at night;
 when she is young, for fear she may grow too old to marry,
 and when she is married, for fear she may lose her husband's love;
- 10 when she is a virgin, for fear she may be seduced
 and become pregnant in her father's
 house,
 when she has a husband, for fear
 she may misbehave,
 and after marriage, for fear she may 11
 be barren.
 Keep close watch over a headstrong
 daughter,
 or she may give your enemies cause
 to gloat,
 making you the talk of the town and a byword<sup>r</sup> among the people, and shaming you in the eyes of the world.
 Do not let her display her beauty to 12
 any man,
 or gossip in the women's quarters.<sup>s</sup>
 For out of clothes comes the moth, and out of woman comes woman's 13
 wickedness.
 Better a man's wickedness than a 14
 woman's goodness;
 it is woman who brings shame and
 disgrace.
- The wonders of creation*
- NOW I WILL CALL TO MIND THE 15
 works of the Lord
 and describe what I have seen;
 by the words of the Lord his works
 are made.
 As the sun in its brilliance looks 16
 down on everything,
 so the glory of the Lord fills his creation.
 Even to his angels the Lord has not 17
 given the power
 to tell the full story of his marvels, which the Lord Almighty has established
 so that the universe may stand firm
 in his glory.
 He fathoms the abyss and the heart 18
 of man,
 he is versed in their intricate secrets;
 for the Lord possesses all knowledge

<sup>r</sup> a byword: so Heb.; Gk. obscure.
<sup>s</sup> Do not . . . quarters: so Heb.; Gk. obscure.

conclusion is a secular rather than a religious one; but compare v. 19. 42.2-7: Things not to be ashamed of are listed in contrast to 41.17-23. 8: The conclusion parallels 41.24.

42.9-14: Problems with women. 9-12: Anxiety for a daughter is sketched through the stages of her life. 13-14: The generalizing conclusion is probably a popular proverb.

42.15-43.33: The wonders of creation. This poem on the wonders of creation introduces 44.1-50.21, on the heroes of Israel's past; Pss.104 (creation) and 105-106 (Israel's past) exhibit a similar pattern. These concluding chapters make clear that the practical human wisdom of the earlier part of the book is to be seen in the framework of God's all-embracing, benign influence in all of nature, but especially in Israel's history and in the lives of those who made it.

42.15-25: God's lordship in the creation. 15: The works of the Lord make up the whole visible universe. 18: Man's heart (i.e. his mind) is considered to be as inscrutable as the abyss, the

	and observes the signs of all time.	it is a light that wanes as it completes its course.
19	He discloses the past and the future, and uncovers the traces of the world's mysteries.	The moon gives its name to the month;	8
20	No thought escapes his notice, and not a word is hidden from him.	it waxes marvellously as its phases change,
21	He has set in order the masterpieces of his wisdom, he who is from eternity to eternity; nothing can be added, nothing taken away,	a beacon to the armies of heaven, shining in the vault of the sky.
	and he needs no one to give him advice.	The brilliant stars are the beauty of the sky,	9
22	How beautiful is all that he has made, down to the smallest spark that can be seen!	a glittering array in the heights of the Lord.
23	His works endure, all of them active for ever and all responsive to their various purposes.	At the command of the Holy One they stand in their appointed place;	10
		they never default at their post.
24	All things go in pairs, one the opposite of the other; he has made nothing incomplete.	Look at the rainbow and praise its Maker;	11
25	One thing supplements the virtues of another.	it shines with a supreme beauty, rounding the sky with its gleaming arc,	12
	Who could ever contemplate his glory enough?	a bow bent by the hands of the Most High.
43	What a masterpiece is the clear vault of the sky!	His command speeds the snow-storm and sends the swift lightning to execute his sentence.	13
	How glorious is the spectacle of the heavens!	To that end the storehouses are opened,	14
2	The sun comes into view proclaiming as it rises how marvellous a thing it is, made by the Most High.	and the clouds fly out like birds.
3	At noon it parches the earth, and no one can endure its blazing heat.	By his almighty power the clouds are piled up	15
4	The stoker of a furnace works in the heat, but three times as hot is the sun scorching the hills.	and the hailstones broken small.
	It breathes out fiery vapours, and its glare blinds the eyes.	The crash of his thunder makes the earth writhe,	16-17
5	Great is the Lord who made it, whose word speeds it on its course.	and, when he appears, an earthquake shakes the hills.
		At his will the south wind blows, the squall from the north and the hurricane.
6	He made the moon also to serve in its turn, a perpetual sign to mark the divisions of time.	He scatters the snow-flakes like birds alighting;	18
		they settle like a swarm of locusts.
7	From the moon, feast-days are reckoned;	The eye is dazzled by their beautiful whiteness,	19
		and as they fall the mind is entranced.
		He spreads frost on the earth like salt,	20
		and icicles form like pointed stakes.
		A cold blast from the north, subterranean reservoir of water. 24-25: The appearance of pairs helps explain the apparent contradictions in life; compare 33.15.

43.1-26: Examples of God's work. Astonishment at the rapid yet controlled changes of the natural environment is the leading theme.

and ice grows hard on the water,
 settling on every pool,
 as though the water were putting on a breastplate.
 21 He consumes the hills, scorches the wilderness,
 and withers the grass like fire.
 22 Cloudy weather quickly puts all to rights,
 and dew brings welcome relief after heat.
 23 By the power of his thought he tamed the deep
 and planted it with islands.
 24 Those who sail the sea tell stories of its dangers,
 which astonish all who hear them;
 25 in it are strange and wonderful
 creatures,
 all kinds of living things and huge
 sea-monsters.
 26 By his own action he achieves his
 end,
 and by his word all things are held
 together.
 27 However much we say, we cannot exhaust our theme;
 to put it in a word: he is all.
 28 Where can we find the skill to sing
 his praises?
 For he is greater than all his works.
 29 The Lord is terrible and very great,
 and marvellous is his power.
 30 Honour the Lord to the best of your ability,
 and he will still be high above all praise.
 Summon all your strength to declare his greatness,
 and be untiring, for the most you can do will fall short.
 31 Has anyone ever seen him, to be able to describe him?
 Can anyone praise him as he truly is?
 32 We have seen but a small part of his works,

and there remain many mysteries greater still.
 The Lord has made everything 33
 and has given wisdom to the godly.

Heroes of Israel's past

LET US NOW SING THE PRAISES OF 44
 famous men,
 the heroes of our nation's history,
 through whom the Lord established 2
 his renown,
 and revealed his majesty in each succeeding age.
 Some held sway over kingdoms 3
 and made themselves a name by their exploits.
 Others were sage counsellors,
 who spoke out with prophetic power.
 Some led the people by their 4 counsels
 and by their knowledge of the nation's law;
 out of their fund of wisdom they gave instruction.
 Some were composers of music or 5
 writers of poetry.
 Others were endowed with wealth 6
 and strength,
 living peacefully in their homes.
 All these won fame in their own 7
 generation
 and were the pride of their times.
 Some there are who have left a name 8 behind them
 to be commemorated in story.
 There are others who are 9
 unremembered;
 they are dead, and it is as though
 they had never existed,
 as though they had never been born
 or left children to succeed them.
 Not so our forefathers; they were 10
 men of loyalty,
 whose good deeds have never been forgotten.
 Their prosperity is handed on to 11
 their descendants,

43.27-33: God's power. This is the conclusion of 42.15-43.33. 27: To say that God is all is a poetic exaggeration, for he is not the things he has created; compare Wis.1.7. 32: What we have seen (nature) points beyond itself, to the mysteries of the invisible worlds and of God himself.

44.1-15: Introduction to the praises of famous men. 1-2: Famous men are remembered not for themselves, but because they reveal God's majesty. 3-7: The prominence of sage counsellors here contrasts with the actual functions of the men named later. 9: The unremembered, according to Eccles., are men of power who were disloyal to God.

- and their inheritance to future generations.†
- 12 Thanks to them their children are within the covenants—the whole race of their descendants.
- 13 Their line will endure for all time, and their fame will never be blotted out.
- 14 Their bodies are buried in peace, but their name lives for ever.
- 15 Nations will recount their wisdom, and God's people will sing their praises.
- 16 Enoch pleased the Lord and was carried off to heaven, an example of repentance to future generations.
- 17 Noah was found perfect and righteous, and thus he made amends in the time of retribution; therefore a remnant survived on the earth, when the flood came.
- 18 A perpetual covenant was established with him, that never again should all life be swept away by a flood.
- 19 Great Abraham was the father of many nations; no one has ever been found to equal him in fame.
- 20 He kept the law of the Most High; he entered into covenant with him, setting upon his body the mark of the covenant; and, when he was tested, he proved faithful.
- 21 Therefore the Lord swore an oath to him, that nations should find blessing through his descendants, that his family should be countless as the dust of the earth and be raised as high as the stars,
- and that their possessions should reach from sea to sea, from the Great River to the ends of the earth.
- To Isaac he made the same promise for the sake of his father Abraham, a blessing for all mankind and a covenant; and so he transmitted them to Jacob.
- He confirmed him in the blessings he had received and gave him the land he was to inherit, dividing it into portions, which he allotted to the twelve tribes.
- From Jacob's stock the Lord raised up a loyal servant, who won the approval of all mankind, beloved by God and men, Moses of blessed memory. The Lord made him equal in glory to the angels and gave him power to strike terror into his enemies. At his request he put an end to the portents, and enhanced his reputation with kings. He gave him commandments for his people and showed him a vision of his own glory. For his loyalty and humility he consecrated him, choosing him out of all mankind. He let him hear his voice and led him into the dark cloud. Face to face, he gave him the commandments, a law that brings life and knowledge, so that he might teach Jacob the covenant and Israel his decrees.

† Their prosperity . . . generations: probable meaning, based on other Vss.; Gk. obscure.

44.16–18: Enoch and Noah. 16: Enoch also appears at 49.14 and may be a copyist's addition here. 17–18: On the covenant with Noah, see Gen.8.20–22; 9.8–17.

44.19–23: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. 20: Ecclus. remembers Abraham because he kept the law (Gen.26.5); contrast Rom.4.1–25. The mark of the covenant was circumcision; see Gen.17.10–14,23–27.

45.1–5: Moses. 2: The angels represent a weakened Gk. translation of Exod.4.16; 7.1, where Moses is like a "god" to Aaron and Pharaoh; the same Heb. word elohim is translated by "god" and "angels." 3: The portents were the plagues of Egypt; see Exod.7.14–11.10; 12.29–32. The vision was that of Exod.33.18–34.8. 4: For Moses' humility, see Num.12.3.

- |    |   |  |    |
|----|---|--|----|
| 6  | He raised to a like holy officeMoses' brother Aaron from thetribe of Levi.  | It was Moses who ordained himand anointed him with sacred oil,in token of the perpetual covenantmade with him  | 15 |
| 7  | He made a perpetual covenant withhim,conferring on him the priesthood ofthe nation.He honoured him with splendidornamentsand clothed him in gorgeousvestments.  | and with his descendants as longas the heavens endure,that he should be the Lord's ministerin the priestly officeand bless his people in his name.He chose him out of all mankindto bring offerings to the Lord,incense and the fragrance ofmemorial sacrifice,to make atonement for the people.He entrusted to him hiscommandments,with authority to pronounce legaldecisions,to teach Jacob his decreesand enlighten Israel about his law. | 16 |
| 8  | He robed him in perfect splendourand armed him with the emblemsof power,the breeches, the mantle, and thetunic.   | Upstarts grew jealous of himand conspired against him in thedesert,Dathan and Abiram with theirsupportersand Korah's band in their violentanger.   | 18 |
| 9  | Round his robe he placedpomegranatesand a circle of many golden bells,to make music as he walked,ringing aloud throughout the templeas a reminder to his people.  | The Lord saw and refused hissanction;he destroyed them in the heat ofhis wrath,and worked a miracle against themby consuming them in a blazingfire.  | 19 |
| 10 | He gave him the sacred vestmentadorned by an embroidererwith gold and violet and purple;the oracle of judgement with thetokens of truth; <sup>u</sup>   | But he added fresh honours toAaronand gave him a special privilege,allotting to the priests the choicestfirstfruits,to ensure that they above all shouldhave bread in plenty.  | 20 |
| 11 | the scarlet thread spun with acraftsman's art;the precious stones, engraved likeseals,and placed by the jeweller in a goldsettingwith inscriptions to serve asreminders,one for each of the tribes of Israel; | For they eat the sacrifices of theLord,which he gave to Aaron and hisdescendants.  | 21 |
| 12 | the gold crown upon his turban,engraved like a seal with 'Holy tothe Lord'. <sup>v</sup>What rich adornments to feast theeyes!What a miracle of art! What aproud honour!  | But he was to have no inheritancein the land of his people,no portion allotted to him amongthem;   | 22 |
| 13 | Before him no such splendourexisted,and no one outside his family hasever put them on,no one except his sonsand his descendants in perpetuity.  |  |    |
| 14 | Twice every day without failthey present his sacrifice of a whole-offering.   |  |    |

<sup>u</sup> the oracle . . . truth: or the breast-piece of judgement with the Urim and Thummim (Exodus 28. 30).
<sup>v</sup> Compare Exodus 28. 36: literally a seal of holiness.

45.6-26: Aaron and Phinehas. As founder of the priestly line, Aaron receives far more attention than Moses; compare the long treatment of Simon (50.1-21). 7-13: For the splendid ornaments, see Exod.28.1-43; they symbolize the glory of God's service. 15: For Aaron's anointing with sacred oil, see Lev.8.10-13. 18-22: For Dathan, Abiram, and Korah, see

- for the Lord himself is his portion,
his inheritance.
- 23 Phinehas son of Eleazar ranks third in renown
for being zealous in his reverence
for the Lord,
and for standing firm with noble
courage,
when the people were in revolt;
by so doing he made atonement for Israel.
- 24 Therefore a covenant was established
with him,
assuring him command of the sanctuary and of the nation, conferring on him and his descendants
the high-priesthood for ever.
- 25 Just as a covenant was made with David son of Jesse of the tribe of Judah,
that the royal succession should always pass from father to son,
so the succession was to pass from Aaron to his descendants.
- 26 May the Lord grant you a wise mind
to judge his people with justice, so that their prosperity may never vanish
and their glory may be handed on to future generations!
- 46 Joshua son of Nun was a mighty
warrior,
who succeeded Moses in the prophetic office.
He lived up to his name
as a great liberator of the Lord's chosen people,
able to take reprisals on the enemies who attacked them,
and to put Israel in possession of their territory.
- 2 How glorious he was when he raised his hand
and brandished his sword against cities!
- 3 Never before had a man made such a stand,
for he was fighting the Lord's battles.
- Was it not through him that the sun 4 stood still
and made one day as long as two?
He called on the Most High, the 5
Mighty One,
when the enemy was pressing him
on every side,
and the great Lord answered his prayer
with violent storm of hail. 6
He overwhelmed that nation in battle and crushed his assailants as they fled down the pass,
to make the nations recognize his strength in arms
and teach them that he fought under
the very eyes of the Lord,
for he followed the lead of the Mighty One.
- In the time of Moses he had proved 7
his loyalty,
he and Caleb son of Jephunneh:
they stood their ground against the whole assembly,
restrained the people from sin,
and silenced their wicked grumbling.
Out of six hundred thousand warriors 8
these two alone escaped with their lives
to enter the land and take possession
of it,
the land flowing with milk and honey.
The Lord gave Caleb strength, 9 which still remained with him in his old age,
so that he was able to invade the hill-country
and win possession of it for his descendants.
- So all Israel could see 10
how good it is to be a loyal follower
of the Lord.
- Then there are the judges, name 11
after famous name,
all of them men who rejected idolatry
and never rebelled against the Lord:
blessings be on their memory!
May their bones send forth new life 12
from the ground where they lie!

Num.16.1-33. 23-26: The defense of Phinehas (see Num.25.1-13) may reflect a challenge to the priestly line in the time of the author.

46.1-10: Joshua and Caleb. 1: For Joshua's succession to the prophetic office, see Deut.34.9. 7: The loyalty of Joshua and Caleb (see Num.14.5-10) makes them exemplary.

46.11-12: The judges.

- May the fame of the honoured dead
be matched by their sons!
- 13 Samuel was beloved by his Lord;
as prophet of the Lord he established the monarchy
and anointed rulers over his people.
- 14 As long as he dispensed justice
according to the law of the Lord,
the Lord kept watch over Jacob.
- 15 Because of his fidelity he proved to be an accurate prophet;
the truth of his vision was shown by his utterances.
- 16 He called on the Mighty Lord, when enemies were pressing him on
every side,
and offered a sucking-lamb in
sacrifice;
- 17 then the Lord thundered from
heaven,
making his voice heard in a mighty
crash,
- 18 and routed the leaders of the enemy,<sup>w</sup>
all the rulers of the Philistines.
- 19 Before the time came for his eternal sleep,
Samuel called the Lord and his anointed to witness:
'I never took any man's property,
not so much as a pair of shoes';
and no man accused him.
- 20 Even after he had gone to his rest
he prophesied
and foretold to the king his death, lifting up his voice in prophecy
from the ground
to wipe out the people's guilt.
- 47 After him Nathan came forward to be prophet in the reign of David.
- 2 As the fat is separated from the
sacrifice,
so David was chosen out of all Israel.
- 3 He played with lions as though they were kids,
- with bears as though they were lamb.
- In his youth did he not kill a giant 4
and restore the honour of his
people,
when he whirled his sling with its stone
and brought down boastful Goliath?
For he called on the Lord Most 5
High,
who gave strength to his right arm
to strike down that mighty warrior
and win victory for his people.
So they hailed him as conqueror of 6
tens of thousands,
they sang his praises for the blessings bestowed by the Lord,
when he was offered the royal diadem.
- For he subdued their enemies on 7
every side
and crushed the resistance of the Philistines,
whose power remains broken to this day.
- In all he did he gave thanks, 8
ascribing glory to the Holy One, the Most High.
With his whole heart he sang hymns
of praise,
to show his love for his Maker.
- He appointed musicians to stand 9
before the altar
and sing sweet music to the harp.
So he gave splendour to the 10 festivals
and fixed for all time the round of sacred seasons,
when men praise the holy name of
the Lord
and the sanctuary resounds from morning to night.
- The Lord pardoned his sins 11
and endowed him with great power
for ever:
he gave him a covenant of kingship
and the glorious throne of Israel.

<sup>w</sup> the enemy: so Heb.: Gk. Tyre.

46.13-20: Samuel. 15: Samuel's accurate prophecy (see 1 Sam.3.19-21; 9.6) is based on his fidelity which all can emulate. 20: Despite his opposition to divination (compare 34.5), Eccclus. includes the incident of the necromancer of En-dor among Samuel's achievements (see 1 Sam.28.3-20).

47.1-11: Nathan and David. 1: Nathan (2 Sam.7.1-17; 12.1-14) links the prophetic line of Samuel to Elijah. 8-11: David's sponsorship of ceremonial worship (1 Chr.23.1-6,24-32) is mentioned in line with the author's interest in cult.

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| 12 He was succeeded by a wise son,Solomon,who, thanks to his father David,lived in spacious days. 13 He reigned in an age of peace,because God made all his frontiersquiet,and so he was able to build a housein God's honour,a sanctuary founded to last for ever. 14 How wise you were, Solomon, inyour youth!Your mind was like a brimming river;15 your influence spread throughoutthe world,which you filled with your proverbsand riddles. 16 Your fame reached to distant islands,and you were beloved for yourpeaceful reign. 17 Your songs, your proverbs, yourparables,and the answers you gave were theadmiration of the world. 18 In the name of the Lord God,who is known as the God of Israel,you amassed gold and silveras though they were tin and lead. 19 But you took women to lie at yoursideand gave yourself up to their control. 20 You stained your reputationand tainted your line.You brought retribution on yourchildrenand made them grieve over yourfolly, 21 because it divided the sovereigntyand produced out of Ephraim a rebelkingdom. 22 But the Lord never ceases to bemerciful;he does not destroy what he himselfhas made;he will not wipe out the children ofhis chosen servantor cut short the line of the man whohas loved him.So he granted a remnant to Jacoband let one scion of David survive. | So Solomon died like his forefathers 23and left one of his sons to succeedhim,a man of weak intelligence, the foolof the nation,Rehoboam, whose policy drove thepeople to revolt. Then Jeroboam son of Nebat ledIsrael into sinand started Ephraim on its wickedcourse. Their sins increased beyond measure, 24until they were driven into exilefrom their native land;for they had explored every kind of 25wickedness,until retribution came upon them. Then Elijah appeared, a prophet 48like fire,whose word flamed like a torch.He brought famine upon them, 2and his zeal made their numberssmall. By the word of the Lord he shut up 3the skyand three times called down fire.How glorious you were, Elijah, in 4your miracles!Who else can boast such deeds?You raised a corpse from death 5and from the grave, by the word ofthe Most High. You sent kings and famous men 6from their sick-beds down to theirdeaths. You heard a denunciation at Sinai, 7a sentence of doom at Horeb.So you anointed kings for vengeance, 8and prophets to succeed you. You were taken up to heaven in a 9fiery whirlwind,in a chariot drawn by horses of fire.It is written that you are to come 10at the appointed time withwarnings,to allay the divine wrath before itsfinal fury,to reconcile father and son,and to restore the tribes of Jacob. |
|---|---|

47.12–22: Solomon. 14–17: Solomon was a model wise man; see 1 Kgs.3.6–12; 4.29–34. 19–20: Women were Solomon's downfall; compare 9.2; 1 Kgs.11.1–13. 21: Solomon's greed and folly were the root of the rebel kingdom; 1 Kgs.12.1–5.

47.23–25: Rehoboam and Jeroboam. See 1 Kgs.12.1–20. 23: Jeroboam led Israel into sin by initiating illicit worship; 1 Kgs.12.28–31.

48.1–16: Elijah and Elisha. See 1 Kgs.17.1–19.21; 21.1–29; 2 Kgs.1.1–9.3. 10: It is written

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 11 Happy are those who saw youand were honoured with your love!<sup>x</sup> 12 When Elijah had vanished in awhirlwind,Elisha was filled with his spirit.Throughout his life no ruler madehim tremble;no one could make him subservient. 13 Nothing was too difficult for him;even in the grave his body kept itsprophetic power. 14 In life he worked miracles,and in death his deeds were marvellous. 15 In spite of all this the people did notrepentor renounce their sins,until they were carried off as plunderfrom their landand scattered over the whole earth.Only a tiny nation was left,with a ruler from the house ofDavid; 16 and of these some did what waspleasing to the Lord,but others heaped sin upon sin. 17 Hezekiah fortified his city,bringing water within its walls;he drilled through the rock withtools of ironand made cisterns for the water. 18 In his reign Sennacherib invadedthe country.He sent Rab-shakeh from Lachish,<sup>y</sup>who made threats against Zionand grew arrogant in his boasting. 19 Then they were unnerved in heartand hand;they suffered the anguish of awoman in labour. 20 So they called on the mercifulLord,spreading out their hands insupplication to him.The Holy One quickly answeredtheir prayer from heavenby sending Isaiah to the rescue; 21 he struck down the Assyrian camp,and his angel wiped them out. | For Hezekiah did what was pleasing 22to the Lord,and kept firmly to the ways of hisancestor David,as he was instructed by Isaiah,the great prophet whose vision couldbe trusted. In his time the sun went back, 23and he added many years to theking's life. With inspired power he saw the 24futureand comforted the mourners in Zion.He revealed things to come before 25they happened,the secrets of the future to the endof time. The memory of Josiah is fragrant 49as incenseblended by the skill of the perfumer,sweet as honey to every palateor as music at a banquet.He did what was right: he reformed 2the nationand rooted out their loathsome andlawless practices.He was whole-heartedly loyal to the 3Lordand in lawless times made godlinessprevail. Except David, Hezekiah, and Josiah, 4all were guilty of wrongdoing,for they deserted the law of the MostHigh;and so the royal line of Judah cameto an end. They surrendered their power to 5othersand their glory to a foreign nation,who set fire to the chosen city, the 6city of the sanctuary,and left its streets deserted, asJeremiah prophesied;for they had ill-treated him, 7a prophet consecrated even beforehis birth |
|---|--|

<sup>x</sup> honoured . . . love: probable meaning: Gk. adds for we also shall certainly live.
<sup>y</sup> from Lachish: other witnesses read and went away.

refers to Mal.4.5-6; compare 2 Esd.6.26; Mt.17.10-13. 15: Scattered: see 2 Kgs.17.6.
48.17-25: Hezekiah and Isaiah. See 2 Kgs. chs. 18-20. 24: See Isa.40.1-2. 25: The view that prophecy revealed . . . secrets for later times was widespread; compare Isa.41.22-23; 44.7.
49.1-7: Josiah and Jeremiah. 1-3: See 2 Kgs.22.1-23.30. 7: Ill-treated: see Jer.37.15-38.
Uproot . . . plant: see Jer.1.10.

	to uproot, to destroy, and to demolish, but also to build and to plant.
8	Ezekiel had a vision of the Glory, which was revealed enthroned on the chariot of the cherubim.
9	The Lord remembered his enemies and sent a storm, but he did good to those who kept to the straight path.
10	May the bones of the twelve prophets also send forth new life from the ground where they lie! For they put new heart into Jacob, and rescued the people by their confident hope.
11	How can we tell the greatness of Zerubbabel, who was like a signet-ring on the Lord's right hand?
12	With him was Joshua son of Jehozadak; in their days they built the house, raising a holy temple to the Lord, destined for eternal glory.
13	Great is the memory of Nehemiah, who raised our fallen walls, constructed gates and bars, and rebuilt our ruined homes.
14	No one on earth has been created to equal Enoch, for he was taken up from the earth.
15	No man has been born to be Joseph's peer, the ruler of his brothers and the strength of his people; and the Lord kept watch over his body.
16	Shem and Seth were given distinction among men, but Adam holds pre-eminence over all creation.
		It was the high priest Simon son of Onias in whose lifetime the house was repaired, in whose days the temple was fortified. He laid the foundation for the high double wall, the high retaining wall of the temple precinct. In his day they dug <sup>z</sup> the reservoir, a cistern broad as the sea. He applied his mind to protecting his people from ruin and strengthened the city against siege. How glorious he was, surrounded by the people, when he came from behind the temple curtain! He was like the morning star appearing through the clouds or the moon at the full; like the sun shining on the temple of the Most High or the light of the rainbow on the gleaming clouds; like a rose in spring or lilies by a fountain of water; like a green shoot upon Lebanon on a summer's day or burning incense in the censer; like a cup of beaten gold, decorated with every kind of precious stone; like an olive-tree laden with fruit or a cypress with its top in the clouds. When he put on his gorgeous vestments, robed himself in perfect splendour, and went up to the holy altar, he added lustre to the court of the sanctuary. When the priests were handing him the portions of the sacrifice, as he stood by the altar hearth	50 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12

<sup>z</sup> they dug: so Heb.; Gk. obscure.

49.8-10: Ezekiel and the twelve prophets. 8: See Ezek.1.1-28. 10: The twelve minor prophets are regarded as a single book. Some of the twelve lived after the return from captivity and encouraged the captives to rebuild: see Zech.1.16; Hag.1.8; 2.3-9.

49.11-13: Zerubbabel, Joshua, and Nehemiah. Hag.1.1; 2.2-4; Zech. chs. 3-4; Neh.7.1. Note that Ezra is not specifically named.

49.14-16: Ancient heroes. Rather oddly these early heroes are inserted at this point; see 44.16.

50.1-21: Simon the son of Onias. He was high priest about 225-200 B.C.; although there may have been an earlier Simon, it is the consensus that this one, actually known to the author, is meant. 5-21: These verses describe the service on the Day of Atonement. On this day only, in connection with the blessing, the high priest pronounced the sacred name of Yahweh (v. 20).

with his brothers round him like a garland,
 he was like a young cedar of Lebanon
 in the midst of a circle of palms.
 13 All the sons of Aaron in their magnificence stood with the Lord's offering in their hands
 before the whole congregation of Israel.
 14 To complete the ceremonies at the altar
 and adorn the offering of the Most High, the Almighty, 15 he held out his hand for the libation cup
 and poured out the blood of the grape,
 poured its fragrance at the foot of the altar
 to the Most High, the King of all.
 16 Then the sons of Aaron shouted and blew their trumpets of beaten
 silver;
 they sounded a mighty fanfare
 as a reminder before the Lord.
 17 Instantly the people as one man fell on their faces to worship the Lord their God, the Almighty, the Most High.
 18 Then the choir broke into praise,
 in the full sweet strains of resounding song,
 19 while the people of the Most High were making their petitions to the merciful Lord,
 until the liturgy of the Lord was finished
 and the ritual complete.
 20 Then Simon came down and raised
 his hands
 over the whole congregation of Israel,
 to pronounce the Lord's blessing,
 proud to take his name on his lips:
 21 and a second time they bowed in worship
 to receive the blessing from the Most High.

COME THEN, PRAISE THE GOD OF THE 22
 universe,
 who everywhere works great
 wonders,
 who from our birth ennobles our life<sup>a</sup>
 and deals with us in mercy.
 May he grant us a joyful heart, 23
 and in our time send Israel lasting
 peace.
 May he confirm his mercy towards 24
 us,
 and in his own good time grant us
 deliverance.
 Two nations I detest, 25
 and a third is no nation at all:
 the inhabitants of Mount Seir,<sup>b</sup> the 26
 Philistines,
 and the senseless folk that live at Shechem.
 In this book I have written 27
 lessons of good sense and understanding,
 I, Jesus son of Sirach,<sup>c</sup> of Jerusalem, whose mind was a fountain of
 wisdom.
 Happy the man who occupies 28
 himself with these lessons,
 who lays them to heart and grows
 wise!
 If he lives by them, he will be equal 29
 to anything,
 with the light of the Lord shining on his path.

Epilogue

I THANK THEE, MY LORD AND KING, 51
 I praise thee, my God and Saviour,
 I give thee thanks,
 because thou hast been my protector 2
 and helper,
 rescuing me from death,
 from the trap laid by a slanderous
 tongue

a ennobles our life: or brings us up.
b Mount Seir: so Heb.: Gk. the mountain of Samaria.
c Sirach: some witnesses read Sirach Eleazar.

50.22–24: Conclusion to the praise of famous men. 23: The language shows uneasiness about lasting peace.

50.25–26: A fragment. It is directed against the Idumeans, the Philistines, and the Samaritans.
 50.27–29: The author's conclusion. Unlike other writers in the Apocrypha, he gives his own name.

51.1–30: Epilogue; two psalms. 1–12: This psalm is modeled after the psalms of deliverance;

	and from lips that utter lies.	In the forecourt of the sanctuary	14
	In the face of my assailants thou	I laid claim to her,
	didst come to my help;	and I shall seek her out to the end.
3	in the fullness of thy mercy and	From the first blossom to the	15
	glory thou didst rescue me	ripening of the grape
	from grinding teeth which waited	she has been the delight of my
	to devour me,	heart.
	from hands that threatened my	From my youth my steps have
	life,	followed her without swerving.
	from the many troubles I endured,	I had hardly begun to listen when	16
4	from the choking fire around me,	I was rewarded, from the flames I had not kindled,	and I gained for myself much
5	from the deep recesses of the	instruction.
	grave,	I made progress in my studies;	17
	from the foul tongue and its lies—	all honour to him who gives me
6	a wicked slander spoken in the	wisdom!
	king's presence.	I determined to practise what I had	18
	I came near to death;	learnt;
	I was on the brink of the grave.	I pursued goodness, and shall never
7	They surrounded me on every	regret it.
	side,	I strove for wisdom with all my	19
	and there was no one to help me.	might,
	I looked for human aid and there	and was scrupulous in whatever was none.	I did.
8	Then I remembered thy mercy,	I spread out my hands to heaven
	Lord,	above,
	thy deeds in bygone days;	deploring my ignorance;
	thou dost deliver those who patiently	I set my heart on possessing wisdom,	20
	trust thee	and by keeping myself pure I found
	and free them from the power of	her.
	their enemies.	With her I gained understanding
9	So I sent up a prayer from the	from the first;
	earth	therefore I shall never be at a
	and begged for rescue from death.	loss.
10	I cried, 'Lord, thou art my Father,' <sup>d</sup>	Because I passionately yearned to	21
	do not desert me in time of trouble,	discover her,
	when I am helpless in the face of	I won a noble prize.
	arrogance.	The Lord gave me eloquence as my	22
11	I will praise thee continually,	reward,
	I will sing hymns of thanksgiving.'	and with it I will praise him.
	And my prayer was granted;
12	for thou didst save me from death	Come to me, you who need	23
	and rescue me from my desperate	instruction,
	plight.	and lodge in my house of learning.
	Therefore I will thank thee and	Why do you admit to a lack of	24
	praise thee	these things,
	and bless thee, O Lord.	yet leave your great thirst
		unslaked?
13	When I was still young, before I set	I have made my proclamation:	25
	out on my travels,	'Buy for yourself without money,
	I asked openly for wisdom in my prayers.

<sup>d</sup> thou . . . Father: so Heb.; Gk. Father of my lord.

compare Ps.18.1–19.49. 13–30: An acrostic (alphabetic) psalm. 13–22: A young man searches for wisdom, which is personified as a beautiful woman; see 4.12 n. 23–30: A wisdom teacher invites pupils in language very similar to the appeal of wisdom; see 4.11–19; 24.19–22. 23: The house of learning was later the regular term for rabbinical schools.

- 26 bend your neck to the yoke,
be ready to accept discipline;
you need not go far to find it.’
- 27 See for yourselves how little were my labours
compared with the great peace I have found.
- 28 Your share of instruction may cost
you a large sum of silver,

but it will bring you a large return
in gold.

May you take delight in the Lord’s mercy 29
and never be ashamed of praising
him.

Do your duty in good time,
and in his own time he will reward
you. 30

BARUCH

This book carries the name of Baruch, Jeremiah's close friend and secretary (Jer. chs. 32 and 45). If that Baruch were indeed the author, the book would have come from the sixth pre-Christian century, but a later date and different authorship seem involved. The book was probably written in Hebrew, but the original writing has not survived. It shows little or no unity respecting authorship, style, age, and even Greek translator or translators. The divergent viewpoints (compare 1.11 and 2.22 with 4.15,25) and the book's dependence on later writings (i.e. 1.15-3.8 on Neh. ch. 9 and Dan.9.4-19) suggest a date between 200 and 150 B.C., although a date as late as the first century B.C. is possible.

This anthology of prayers and hymns provides a rare glimpse of religion in the synagogues outside Palestine, reflecting devotion to the Temple and the religious authority at Jerusalem, resistance to foreign idolatry, and continuous meditation on the Law and other sacred writings like Jeremiah, Isaiah (chs. 40-55, 60-62), Daniel, Proverbs, and Job.

After a narrative introduction (1.1-14), there follow a group confession of sins and lamentation in prose (1.15-3.8), then in poetic meter a hymnic praise of Wisdom (3.9-4.4) and a medley of prophetic poems of hope or tender lament about Jerusalem (4.5-5.9).

A message to a conquered people

1 THIS IS THE BOOK OF BARUCH, SON of Neriah, son of Mahseiah, son
2 of Zedekiah, son of Hasadiah, son of Hilkiah, written in Babylon, on the seventh day of the month, in the fifth year after the Chaldaeans had captured and burnt Jerusalem.
3 Baruch read the book aloud to Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and to all the people who had 4 assembled to hear it: the nobles, the princes of the royal blood, the elders, and the whole community, high and low—in short, all who lived in Babylon, 5 by the river Soud. Then they prayed to the Lord with tears and fasting; and 6 each of them collected as much money
7 as he could, and they sent it to Jerusalem, to Jehoiakim the high priest, son of Hilkiah, son of Shallum, and to the priests and all the people who were 8 with him. This was the time when he took the vessels belonging to the house of the Lord which had been looted from the temple, and returned them to the land of Judah, on the tenth of the month Sivan. These were the silver vessels made by Zedekiah son of Josiah, king 9 of Judah, after Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had deported Jeconiah, the rulers, the captives, the nobles, and the common people from Jerusalem and taken them to Babylon.

They said: We are sending you 10
money to buy whole-offerings, sin-offerings, and incense; provide a grain-offering, and offer them all upon the altar of the Lord our God; and pray 11
for Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and for his son Belshazzar, that their life on earth may last as long as the heavens. So the Lord will give us 12 strength, and light to walk by, and we shall live under the protection of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and of Belshazzar his son; we shall give them long service and gain their favour.
13 Pray also for us to the Lord our God,
because we have sinned against him,
and to this day the Lord's anger and

1.1-14: Introduction. By means of a pseudohistorical setting this section unites the liturgical prayers and pilgrimages of the Jews in the Diaspora with those of their forefathers in the Babylonian Exile (587-539 B.C.). Historical difficulties are many, such as the month intended in v. 2. Too, Jehoiakim the high priest (v. 7) is unknown to us except in the historical romance of Jdt.4.6 (see n. there), where the spelling is "Joakim." The Temple is presumed to be destroyed in v. 2 and to be already rebuilt by its devastator in v. 10. Belshazzar (v. 11) was actually the son of Nabonidus, not of Nebuchadnezzar; see Dan.1.1 n., 5.2,13,18,22. (Nabonidus, the last king of Babylon, reigned from 555-539 B.C.). 2: Jerusalem fell in July 587 B.C. and was burned to the ground by order of Nebuchadnezzar a month later (2 Kgs.25.3,8-9). 3: Jeconiah: King Jehoiachin, considered the legitimate king by fellow exiles (see Ezek.1.2). 4: The river Soud was undoubtedly one of the many irrigation canals carrying water from the Euphrates. 5: Fasting became more frequent in postexilic times (Dan.9.3; Zech.7.1-5). 8: Sivan: third month (May-June). 11: This request to pray for the foreigner Nebuchadnezzar reveals a broad-minded spirit of prayer reaching beyond national prejudice as well as a monotheistic faith in one God for wrath have not been averted from us.

 14 You are to read this book that we are sending you, and make your confession in the house of the Lord on the feast day and during the festal season, 15 and say: The Lord our God is in the right; but on us the shame rests to this very day—on the men of Judah, the 16 citizens of Jerusalem, on our kings and rulers, on our priests and prophets, and 17 on our fathers. We have sinned against the Lord and disobeyed him; we did not 18 listen to the Lord our God or follow
 the precepts he gave us. From the day 19 when the Lord brought our fathers out of Egypt until now, we have been disobedient to the Lord our God and have 20 heedlessly disregarded his voice. So here we are today in the grip of adversity, suffering under the curse which the Lord commanded his servant Moses to pronounce, when he led our fathers 21 out of Egypt to give us a land flowing with milk and honey. Moreover we refused to hear the Lord our God
 speaking in all the words of the proph-22 ets he sent us; we went our own way, each following the promptings of his own wicked heart, serving other gods, doing what was evil in the sight of the Lord our God.

2 So the Lord made good the warning
 he had given to us, to our magistrates in Israel, our kings and our rulers, and 2 the men of Israel and Judah. Nowhere under heaven have such deeds been done as were done in Jerusalem, thus fulfilling what was foretold in the law
 3 of Moses, that we should eat the flesh of our children, one his own son and 4 another his own daughter. The Lord made our nation subject to all the kingdoms round us, our land a waste, our name a byword to all the nations among 5 whom he had scattered our people. Instead of rising to the top, they sank to the bottom, because we sinned against the Lord our God and did not listen to his voice. The Lord our God is in the 6 right; but on us and our fathers the shame rests to this very day. All these 7 evils of which the Lord warned us have come about. Yet we did not entreat the 8 Lord that we might all turn away from the thoughts of our wicked hearts. The 9 Lord kept strict watch and brought these evils on our heads, because he is just; he laid all these commandments upon us, but we did not listen to his 10 voice or follow the precepts which he gave us.

And now, Lord God of Israel, who 11 didst bring thy people out of Egypt with a mighty hand, with signs and portents, with great power and arm uplifted, winning for thyself a renown
 that lives on to this day: by our sin, 12 our godlessness, and our injustice we have broken all thy commandments, O Lord our God. Be angry with us, O 13 longer, for we are left a mere handful among the heathen where thou hast scattered us. Listen, O Lord, to our 14 prayer and our entreaty, deliver us for thy own sake, and grant us favour with those who have taken us into exile, so 15 that the whole earth may know that thou art the Lord our God, who hast named Israel and his posterity as thy own.

O Lord, look down from thy holy 16 dwelling and think of us. Turn thy ear to us, Lord, and hear us; open thine 17 eyes and see. The dead are in their graves, the breath is gone from their bodies; it is not they who can sing the Lord's praises or applaud his justice;
 18 it is living men, mourning their fall
 from greatness, walking the earth bent and feeble, blind and famished—it is these who will sing thy praises, O Lord,
 and applaud thy justice.

Not for any just deeds of our fathers 19

all men; see Rom.13.1-7. 14: The Jews fortunate to be living in Jerusalem are directed to make their humble confession of sin in the name of the exiles on the feast day of Tabernacles, the final harvest festival and victory celebration of the Lord's kingship (Lev.23.33-43; Zech.14.16-21).

1.15-3.8: Penitential prayer of the exiles. From an original Heb. text, this prose lament recasts a popular prayer, preserved even more carefully in Dan.9.4-19; see Ezra 9.6-15; Neh. ch. 9. Because of 2.17, this lament is to be dated around 180 B.C., the period of Ecclus., since both books are silent about the resurrection (Ecclus.17.27-28; Ps.6.5), which is explicitly stated in Dan.12.1-3 and 2 Macc. ch. 7. The principal theme is that of God's justice, his merciful fidelity in fulfilling his promises to Israel; see 1.15; 2.6. 20: Curse of Moses: Deut.28.15-37. 2.3: Eat the flesh of our children: see 2 Kgs.6.28; Lam.2.20. 11: Transition from the lament to Israel's petition. 17-18: For the pious Jew the impossibility of praising God in Sheol is the

and our kings do we lay before thee
 our plea for pity, O Lord our God.
 20 Thou hast vented upon us that wrath and anger of which thou didst warn us through thy servants the prophets who 21 said: 'These are the words of the Lord:
 Bow your shoulders and serve the king of Babylon and you shall remain in the 22 land that I gave to your fathers; but if you do not listen to the Lord and serve 23 the king of Babylon, then I will banish from Jerusalem and the cities of Judah all sounds of joy and merriment, the voice of bride and bridegroom; the whole land shall lie waste and uninhabited.' 24 But we did not obey thy command to serve the king of Babylon. And so thou didst make good the warning given through thy servants the prophets: the bones of our kings and of our fathers have been 25 taken from their resting-place; and there they lie, exposed to the heat by day and the frost by night. They died a painful death by famine, sword, and disease.<sup>a</sup> 26 And because of the wickedness of Israel and Judah the house that was named as thine has become what it is today.
 27 Yet thou hast shown us, O Lord our God, all thy wonted forbearance and 28 great mercy. For this is what thou didst promise through thy servant Moses, on the day thou didst command him to write thy law in the presence of the 29 Israelites: 'If you will not listen to my voice, this great swarming multitude will be reduced to a tiny remnant among 30 the heathen where I will scatter them. I know they will not hear me, this stubborn people, but in the land of their 31 exile they will come to their senses and know that I am the Lord their God. I will give them a mind to understand 32 and ears to hear. Then they will praise me in the land of their exile and will turn their thoughts to me; they will 33 repent of their stubbornness and their wicked deeds, for they will recall how their fathers sinned against the Lord.

 Then I will restore them to the land that 34 I swore to give to their forefathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they shall rule over it. And I will increase their number: they shall never dwindle away. I will enter into an eternal cov-35 enant with them, that I will become their God and they shall become my people.
 Never again will I remove my people Israel from the land that I have given
 them.'

O Lord Almighty, God of Israel, the 3 soul in anguish and the fainting spirit cry out to thee. Listen, Lord, and have 2 mercy, for we have sinned against thee.
 Thou art enthroned for ever; we are 3 for ever passing away. Now, Almighty
 4 Lord, God of Israel, hear the prayer of Israel's dead and of the sons of those who sinned against thee. They did not heed the voice of their God, and so we are in the grip of adversity. Do not re-5 call the misdeeds of our fathers, but remember now thy power and thy name, for thou art the Lord our God, 6 and we will praise thee, O Lord. It is 7 for this that thou hast put the fear of thee in our hearts, to make us call upon thy name. And we will praise thee in our exile, for we have put away from us all the wrongdoing of our fathers who sinned against thee. Today we are in 8 exile; thou hast scattered us and made us a byword and a curse, to be punished for all the sins of our fathers, who rebelled against the Lord our God.

LISTEN, ISRAEL, TO THE COMMANDMENTS 9

<sup>a</sup> disease: probable meaning (compare Jeremiah 32. 36);
 Gk. obscure.

greatest tragedy of death. Here it is given as a motive in asking God for deliverance. See Ps. 115.17-18. 21-24: Jer. 7.34 and 27.12 are merged; to have rejected Jeremiah was to have disobeyed God. Jeremiah advised surrender to the Babylonians while the city was under siege, and was considered a traitor; see Jer. 26.16-19; 38.1-13. 35: Eternal covenant: see Jer. 31.31; Ezek. 37.26. This expression of hope reverts to a more primitive stage of "messianism," for it is silent about David and Jerusalem (2 Sam. 7.12-16; 1 Chr. chs. 28-29) and the glorious rule (Amos 9.11-15) over all nations (Isa. 2.1-4). 3.4: Israel's dead: those still in exile; see Ezek. 37.11-13. 5-8: Here reappears the old theology which held that social and religious solidarity implied collective guilt and demanded collective punishment (Josh. ch. 7) so that children were punished for all the sins of the fathers. This view was condemned in its excessive form by Jeremiah (31.29) and Ezekiel (ch. 18). Compare Jn. 9.2.

3.9-4.4: In praise of Wisdom. This passage is in verse form like other Wisdom writings. Composed originally in Heb. during a peaceful period like that of Ecclus. (200-180 B.C.), it

10 of life; hear, and learn wisdom. Why is it, Israel, that you are in your enemies' country, that you have grown old in an alien land? Why have you shared the 11 defilement of the dead and been numbered with those that lie in the grave?
 12 It is because you have forsaken the fountain of wisdom. If you had walked 13 in the way of God, you would have lived in peace for ever. Where is understanding, where is strength, where is intelligence? Learn that, and then you will know where to find life and light to 14 walk by, long life and peace. Has any man discovered the dwelling-place of wisdom or entered her storehouse?
 15 Where are the rulers of the nations
 now? Where are those who have hunted 16 wild beasts or the birds of the air for sport? Where are those who have hoarded the silver and gold men trust
 in, never satisfied with their gains?
 17 Where are the silversmiths with their patient skill and the secrets of their 18 craft? They have all vanished and gone down to the grave, and others have risen to take their place. A younger 19 generation saw the light of day and dwelt in the land. But they did not learn 20 the way of knowledge, or discover its paths; they did not lay hold of it; their 21 sons went far astray. Wisdom was not heard of in Canaan, nor seen in Teman.
 22 The sons of Hagar who sought for understanding on earth, the merchants of Merran and Teman, the myth-makers, the seekers after knowledge, none of them discovered the way of wisdom, or remembered her paths.
 23 How great, O Israel, is God's dwelling-place, how vast the extent of 24 his domain! Great it is, and boundless, 25 lofty, and immeasurable. There in 26 ancient time the giants were born, a famous race, great in stature, skilled in war. But these men were not chosen by 27

 God, nor shown the way of knowledge.
 So their race died out because they had 28
 no understanding; they lacked the wit to survive. Has any man gone up to 29 heaven to gain wisdom and brought her down from the clouds? Has any 30 man crossed the sea to find her or bought her for fine gold? No one can 31 know the path or conceive the way that will lead to her. Only the One who 32 knows all things knows her: his understanding discovered her. He who established the earth for all time filled it with four-footed beasts. He sends forth the 33 light, and it goes on its way; he called it, it feared him and obeyed. The stars 34 shone at their appointed stations and rejoiced; he called them and they answered, 'We are here!' Joyfully they shone for their Maker. This is our God; 35 there is none to compare with him. The whole way of knowledge he found out and gave to Jacob his servant, and to Israel, whom he loved. Thereupon 37 wisdom appeared on earth and lived among men. She is the book of the 4 commandments of God, the law that stands for ever. All who hold fast to her shall live, but those who forsake her shall die. Return, Jacob, and lay 2 hold of her; set your course towards her radiance, and face her beacon light.
 Do not give up your glory to another 3
 or your privileges to an alien people.
 Happy are we, Israel, because we know 4
 what is pleasing to God!

Take heart, my people, you who keep 5
 Israel's name alive. You were sold to the 6 heathen, but not to be destroyed; it was because you roused God's anger that you were handed over to your enemies.
 You provoked your Maker by sacrific- 7 is related thematically to texts like Prov. ch. 1-9, Job 28.12-28, and Eccus. ch. 24. Addressing Israel, the writer celebrates God's supreme gift of the Law as the source of all life (see Deut. 4.1-40; Eccus. 24.19-34)—the extent of Baruch's "messianic" expectations. 10: Defilement of the dead: contact with the Babylonians who do not know the Lord or the Law, the source of life; see Deut. 4.4; Ezek. 4.13; 7.21-22; Ps. 119.93. 22-23: Israel's God-given wisdom excelled that of places famous for knowledge, like Canaan, from whom the invading Israelites learned city culture and its vices, or like Teman to the southeast (Job 4.1; Jer. 49.7), or the bedouin sons of Hagar (Gen. ch. 16), or Merran (perhaps, Midian, renowned merchants, Gen. 37.28). 24: God's dwelling-place is not the Jerusalem Temple but the cosmos (Ezek. ch. 1; Isa. 40.21-28). 26: Giants (Gen. 6.4) destroyed at the flood of Noah were popular figures in later Jewish literature.

4.5-5.9: Songs of encouragement and lament. These lyrics, composed originally in Gk. and showing the influence of Deut., Isa. chs. 40-66, and Jer., are unified by the recurring theme of God's eternity. 5: Keep Israel's name alive: physically by new generations of children and

ing to demons and to that which is not 8 God. You forgot the Everlasting God who nurtured you, and you grieved 9 Jerusalem who fostered you; for she saw how God's anger had come upon you, and she said: Listen, you neigh-10 bours of Zion, God has brought great grief upon me. I have seen the captivity of my sons and daughters which the 11 Everlasting has inflicted upon them; I nursed them in delight, but with tears and mourning I saw them go. Let no 12 one exult over me in my widowhood, bereaved of so many. I have been left desolate through the sins of my chil-13 dren, through their turning away from the law of God. They would not learn his statutes, or follow his commandments, or let God guide and train them
 in his righteousness.
 14 Come then, neighbours of Zion,
 remember the captivity of my sons and daughters which the Everlasting 15 has inflicted upon them. For he brought down on them a nation from far away,
 a ruthless nation speaking a strange language and without reverence for age 16 or pity for children. They carried off the widow's beloved sons, and left her in loneliness, deprived of her daughters.
 17,18 But I, how can I help you? Only the One who brought these evils upon you can deliver you from your enemies. Go 19 your way, my children, go, for I am left desolate. I have put off the robes of 20 peaceful days, and put on the sackcloth of a suppliant. I will cry out to the Everlasting as long as I live.
 21 Take heart, my children! Cry out to God, and he will rescue you from tyranny and from the power of your 22 enemies. For I have set my hope of your deliverance on the Everlasting; the Holy One, your everlasting saviour, has filled me with joy over the mercy soon to be 23 granted you. I saw you go with mourning and tears, but God will give you back to me with joy and gladness for 24 ever. For as the neighbours of Zion have now seen your captivity, so they will soon see your deliverance coming upon you from your God with the great glory and splendour of the Everlasting. My 25 children, endure in patience the wrath God has brought upon you; your enemy has hunted you down, but soon you will see him destroyed, and will put your foot upon his neck. My pam- 26

 pered children have trodden rough paths; they have been carried off like a flock seized by raiders.

Take heart, my children! Cry out to 27
 God, for he who afflicted you will not forget you. You once resolved to go 28 astray from God; now with tenfold zeal
 you must turn about and seek him.
 He who brought these calamities upon 29
 you will bring you everlasting joy when he delivers you.

Take heart, Jerusalem! He who 30 called you by name will comfort you.
 Wretched shall they be who despoiled 31
 you and gloated over your fall;
 wretched the cities where your children 32
 were slaves; wretched the city that received your sons! The same city that 33 rejoiced at your downfall and made merry over your ruin shall grieve over her own desolation. I will strip her of 34 the multitudes that were her boast, and turn her pride to mourning. Fire from 35
 the Everlasting shall be her doom for many a day, and long shall she be a haunt of demons.

Jerusalem, look eastwards and see 36
 the joy that is coming to you from God.
 They come, the sons from whom you 37
 parted, they come, gathered together at the word of the Holy One from east to west, rejoicing in the glory of God.

Jerusalem, strip off the garment of 5
 your sorrow and affliction, and put on for ever the glorious majesty that is the gift of God. Wrap about you his robe 2 of righteousness; set on your head for diadem the splendour of the Everlasting; for God will show your radiance 3 to every land under heaven. You shall 4 spiritually by obedience to God. 8: Everlasting God: a recurring expression found only in the poetic section 3.8-5.9. In contrast, the word "Lord" is found only in the first section. 12: Jerusalem's widowhood, as in Isa. ch. 54 or Lam.1.1-2, symbolizes her seeming rejection by God, her spouse. 24: Glory and splendour indicate an extraordinary manifestation of God's wonder from within Zion or Jerusalem (Isa.60.2). 30: Called you by name probably refers to God's own name (see 3.5), just as Jerusalem is to be clothed in God's robes (5.1-4), because she reveals his redemptive action in her midst. 35: Jerusalem's persecutors will be a desert, the traditional receive from God for ever the name Righteous Peace, Godly Splendour.

5 Jerusalem, arise and stand upon the height; look eastwards and see from west to east your children gathered together at the word of the Holy One, rejoicing that God has remembered them.
6 They went away from you on foot, led off by their enemies, but God is bringing them home to you borne aloft in 7 glory, like a king on his throne. For God has commanded every high mountain and the everlasting hills to be made low, and the valleys to be filled and levelled, so that Israel may walk safely in the glory of God. And woods and 8 every fragrant tree shall give Israel shade by God's command. For God 9 shall lead Israel with joy in the light of his glory, granting them his mercy and his righteousness.

---

haunt of demons (Tob.8.3; Lk.11.24). 5.5-9: These lines, reflecting Isa.40.3-5 and 60.1-2, are quoted almost verbatim in the nonbiblical Psalms of Solomon 11.2-7, dated around 50 B.C. Again the messianic prospects of Baruch are limited to the ingathering of the exiles (see Jer.31.7-14; Isa.43.1-7).

A LETTER OF JEREMIAH

This harangue against idolatry is repetitious, sarcastic, and impassioned. Possibly it originated as a synagogal sermon. Following a tradition known from 2 Macc.2.1-4, the author attributed it to Jeremiah, who actually did write a letter to the exiles in Babylon (Jer. ch. 29). The writer drew upon Jer.10.1-16 and other sources, mainly Isa.44.9-20.

The period in which he wrote, according to v. 3, was seven generations after the beginning of the Babylonian Exile; that date could be about 317 B.C. Some scholars, however, tend to date the book in the Maccabean period, between 165 and 110 B.C.

If "Babylon" is taken as a cryptic name for the area outside Judea, the letter could have been intended for the Jews in the Greek dispersion.

The language of the original seems to have been Hebrew (v. 72 n.); since there are no extant Hebrew manuscripts, some scholars think it could have been Aramaic or Greek. A fragment in the Greek (vv. 43-44) turned up in one of the caves where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found; scholars date the writing around 100 B.C.

The Latin Vulgate and the Authorized Version consider A Letter of Jeremiah to be ch. 6 of Baruch.

Two series of refrains divide the letter into paragraphs; vv. 16,23,29,65,69; and vv. 40,44,52,56.

The folly of idolatry

- 6<sup>a</sup> A COPY OF A LETTER SENT BY Jeremiah to the captives who were to be taken to Babylon by the king of Babylon, conveying a message entrusted to him by God.
- 2 The sins you have committed in the sight of God are the cause of your being led away captive to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon.
- 3 Once you are in Babylon, your stay there will be long; it will last for many years, up to seven generations; but afterwards I will lead you out in peace and prosperity.
- 4 Now in Babylon you will see carried on men's shoulders gods made of silver, gold, and wood, which fill the heathen with awe. Be careful, then, never to imitate these Gentiles; do not be overawed by their gods when you see them in the midst of a procession of worshippers. But say in your hearts, 'To thee alone, Lord, is worship due.'
- 7 For my angel is with you; your lives are in his care.
- 8 The idols are plated with gold and silver, they have tongues fashioned by a craftsman, but they are a fraud and cannot speak. And the people take gold and make crowns for the heads of their gods, as one might for a girl fond of finery. Sometimes also the priests filch gold and silver from their gods and spend it on themselves; they will even give some of it to the prostitutes in the inner chamber. They dress up the idols in clothes like human beings, these gods of silver, gold, and wood. But the gods, decked in purple though they are, cannot protect themselves against rust and moth. The dust in the temple, too, lies thick upon them, so that their faces have to be wiped clean. Like a human judge the god holds a sceptre, yet he cannot put to death anyone who offends him. In his right hand he has a dagger and an axe, yet he cannot deliver himself from war and pillage. This shows they are not gods, so have no fear of them.

Their gods are no more use than a broken tool, sitting there in their tem-

<sup>a</sup> The chapter and verse numbering is that of the Authorized Version, in which this forms chapter 6 of Baruch.

6.1-73: The folly of idolatry. 1: Major Gk. MSS. do not include this opening inscription as v. 1 and therefore differ in the numbering of the verses, being one digit lower than the numbers that appear here. 3: Seven generations may be symbolic of perfection or fullness, rounding out the Exile. But since this phrase differs from the phrase "seventy years" in Jer.25.12, some scholars take it literally, and reckoning a generation as forty years (Num.32.13), relate the 280 years to the fall of Jerusalem, either in 597 B.C. or in 587 B.C. (2 Kgs.24.10-17; 25.1-12). Hence, a Let. Jer. would then have been written in 317 or 307 B.C. See Introduction. 7: My angel: an indirect reference to God's continuing protection (Ex.23.20-23). 11: Sacred prostitutes accommodated

18 ples. Their eyes get filled with dust from the feet of those who come in. And just as the palace-court is barricaded to secure a traitor awaiting execution, so the priests secure their temples with doors and bolts and bars to guard 19 against plundering by robbers. They light lamps, more than they need for themselves—yet the idols can see none
 20-21 of them. They are like one of the beams of the temple; their hearts are eaten out, as the saying is, for creatures crawl out of the ground and devour them and their clothing. When their faces are blackened by the smoke of the temple they are quite unaware of it.
 22 Bats and swallows and birds of all kinds perch on their heads and bodies, and cats do the same. From all this 23 you may be sure that they are not gods, so have no fear of them.
 24 Though plated with gold for ornament, the idols will not shine, unless someone rubs off the tarnish. Even when they were being cast they did not 25 feel it. They were bought at great cost, but there is no breath in them. As they 26 have no real feet they are carried on men's shoulders, which shows how 27 worthless they are. Even those who serve them are ashamed, because if ever an idol falls on the ground, it does not get up by itself; nor, if anyone sets it up again, can it move by its own effort, and if it is tilted it cannot 28 straighten itself. To set offerings before them is like setting them before the dead. The sacrifices made to gods are sold by the priests, who spend the proceeds on themselves. Their wives are no better; they take portions of these sacrifices and cure the meat, and give 29 no share to the poor or helpless. Their offerings are touched by women who are menstruating or by mothers fresh from childbed. Be assured by all this that they are not gods, and have no
 30 fear of them. Why should they be called gods? These gods of silver, gold, and wood have food served to them by women. In their temples the priests sit shaven and shorn, with their clothes rent, and their heads uncovered. They shout and howl before these gods of theirs, like mourners at a funeral feast. The priests strip vestments from the gods to clothe their own wives and children. Should anyone do these gods either injury or service they will not be able to repay it. They cannot set up or depose a king. So also they are incapable of bestowing wealth or money; if someone makes a vow to them and does not honour it, they will never exact payment. They will never save any man from death, never rescue the weak from the strong. They cannot restore the blind man's sight or give relief to the needy. They do not pity the widow or befriend the orphan. They are like blocks from the quarry, these wooden things plated with gold and silver, and their worshippers will be humiliated. How then can anyone suppose them to be gods or call them so?

Besides, even the Chaldaeans themselves bring these idols of theirs into disrepute; for, when they see a dumb man without the power of articulate speech, they bring him into the temple and make him call upon Bel, as if Bel could understand him. They cannot see the folly of it and abandon the idols, because they themselves have no understanding. The women too sit in the street with cords round them, burning bran for incense. And when a passer-by has pulled one of them to him and she has lain with him, she taunts her neighbour, because she has not been thought as attractive as herself and her cord has not been broken. Everything to do with these idols is fraud and delusion. How then can anyone suppose them to be gods or call them so?

They are things manufactured by carpenters and goldsmiths; they can be nothing but what the craftsmen

male devotees for fertility rites in the inner chamber of their temples. 28: The poor were to be helped (Deut.14.28-29). 29-32: These actions at the pagan temples were forbidden to the Jews and indeed were repellent to them (Lev.12.1-4; 15.19-20; 21.5,11). 36-38: These statue-gods do not possess the kindly power of the Lord (Ps.146.7-9; Isa.35.4-6). 40: Chaldaeans: Babylonians. 41: Bel: the same as Marduk, the main god of Babylon (see Dan. & Bel) 43: The Greek writer, Herodotus, verifies this practice, demanded of all Babylonian women, to ask the gods

46 wish them to be. Even their makers' lives cannot be prolonged; what, then, 61
 47 can the things they make expect? It is simply a scandalous fraud that they have 62
 48 bequeathed to posterity. When war and disasters befall the gods, it is the priests who discuss amongst themselves where 63
 49 they and their gods can hide. How then can men fail to see that these are not gods, when they cannot save themselves 64
 50 from war and disaster? Since they are nothing but wood plated with gold and silver, they will in time be recognized for the frauds they are. All the heathen and their kings will plainly see that they are not gods but the work of men's hands, with no divine power in them at all. Can there still be anyone who does not realize that they are not gods?

53 They cannot set up a king over a country, and they cannot give men rain. They cannot decide a case or redress a wrong.<sup>b</sup> They are as helpless as crows tossed about in mid air. When fire breaks out in a temple belonging to those wooden gods all gilded and silvered, their priests will run away to safety, but the gods will be burnt up in the flames like timbers. They cannot resist king or enemy. How then can anyone allow or believe that they are gods?

57 They cannot save themselves from thieves and robbers, these wooden gods, plated with silver and gold. Anyone who can will strip away their gold and silver and make off with the clothing they wear, and the gods can do nothing to help themselves. It is better to be a king who proves his courage than such a sham god, better a household vessel that serves its owner's purpose, better even the door of a house that keeps the contents safe, or a wooden pillar in a palace. Sun and moon and the stars that shine so brightly are sent to serve a purpose, and they obey. So 61 too, when the lightning flashes, it is seen far and wide. It is the same with the wind; it blows in every land. And 62

 when God orders the clouds to travel over all the world they carry out their task, and so does fire when it is sent down from above to consume mountains and forests. But idols are not to be compared with any of these, in appearance or in power. It follows that they are not to be considered gods or called by that name, seeing that they are incapable of pronouncing judgement or of conferring benefits on mankind. Recognize, therefore, that 65 they are not gods, and have no fear of them.

They wield no power over kings, 66 either to curse them or to bless them; and they cannot provide heavenly 67 signs for the nations, either by shining like the sun or by giving light like the moon. They are more helpless than 68 wild beasts, which can at least save themselves by taking cover. There is no 69 evidence at all that they are gods, so have no fear of them.

These wooden gods of theirs, plated 70 with gold and silver, give no better protection than a scarecrow in a plot of cucumbers. They are like a thorn-bush 71 in a garden, a perch for every bird, like a corpse cast out in the dark. Such are their wooden gods, with their plating of gold and silver. The purple and 72 fine linen<sup>c</sup> rotting on them proves that they are not gods; in the end they will themselves be eaten away, held in contempt throughout the land.

Better, then, is an upright man who 73
 has no idols; he will be in no danger of contempt.

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read cannot judge in their own cause or redress a wrong done them.
<sup>c</sup> fine linen: probable meaning; Gk. marble.

for fertility in their marriage. 67: Even God cannot use the idols as signs (portents of his presence and activity) as he can do with natural phenomena; see Joel 2.30; Lk.21.11,25. 72: The Gk. text (see Tfn. c) apparently mistranslated a Heb. word meaning "linen."

THE SONG OF THE THREE

AN ADDITION IN THE GREEK VERSION OF DANIEL BETWEEN 3. 23 AND 3. 24

The three most substantial of many additions to the Hebrew-Aramaic text of Daniel are: The Song of the Three; Daniel and Susanna; and Daniel, Bel, and the Snake. Whether these materials were first written in Hebrew, Aramaic, or Greek is debated, but puns on two Greek words in Daniel and Susanna favor Greek as the original language of at least that addition. These additions were probably written during the second or first century B.C.

The Song of the Three has two parts: a prayer of Azariah (Abed-nego), vv. 1-22, and a hymn to God sung by the three companions of Daniel: Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, vv. 23-68. The addition echoes major biblical themes, reflecting especially the thought of Ps. 148 and the form of Ps. 136. The prayer and the hymn were used extensively in worship by churches in later centuries.

1 THEY WALKED IN THE HEART OF the fire, praising God and blessing
2 the Lord. Azariah stood still servants and thy worshippers. For thy 3 among the flames and began to pray ever; do not abandon us for 4 aloud: 'Blessed art thou, O Lord, the ever; do not annul thy covenant. Do
5 God of our fathers, thy name is not withdraw thy mercy from us, for 6 worthy of praise and glorious for ever: the sake of Abraham, thy beloved, for 7 thou art just in all thy deeds and true the sake of Isaac, thy servant, and 8 in all thy works; straight are thy Israel, thy holy one. Thou didst
9 paths, and all thy judgements just. promise to multiply their descendants
10 Just sentence hast thou passed in all as the stars in the sky and the sand on 11 that thou hast brought upon us and the sea-shore. But now, Lord, we 12 upon Jerusalem the holy city of all have been made the smallest of all 13 our fathers: yes, just sentence thou most abject in the world. We have no 14 passed upon our sins. For indeed ruler, no prophet, no leader now; there 15 we sinned and broke thy law in is no burnt-offering, no sacrifice, no 16 rebellion against thee, in all we did we oblation, no incense, no place to 17 sinned; we did not heed thy command- make an offering before thee and find 18 ments, we did not keep them, we did mercy. But because we come with 19 not do what thou hadst commanded con- trite heart and humbled spirit, 20 us for our good. In all the punish- accept us. As though we came with 21 ments thou hast sent upon us thy burnt-offerings of rams and bullocks 22 judgements have been just. Thou hast and with thousands of fat lambs, so let 23 handed us over to our bitterest our sacrifice be made before thee this 24 enemies, rebels against thy law, and day. Accept our pledge of loyalty to 25 to a wicked king, the vilest in the thee,<sup>a</sup> for no shame shall come to those 26 And so now we are speechless for who put their trust in thee. Now we will 27 shame: contempt has fallen on thy follow thee with our whole heart

<sup>a</sup> Accept our . . . thee: possible meaning; Gk. obscure.

1-27: Azariah prays. 1: They: Daniel's friends; see Dan.3.23. 2: Azariah: Abed-nego's Heb. name; see Dan.1.7. 3: Many OT passages declare that God was just in punishing Israel by the Babylonian Exile; see Neh.9.33; Lam.1.18. 9: The wicked king in Dan. is Nebuchadnezzar (Dan.3.19); in the writer's day, however, Antiochus IV Epiphanes was the vilest because he sacked Jerusalem and profaned the Temple; see 1 Macc.1.41-60. 11: For thy honour's sake: compare Ezek.36.22. 13: Thou didst promise: see Gen.15.5; 22.17. 14-15: Judah, deprived of its ruler, was the most abject because God's covenant with the Davidic dynasty seemed to be broken. See 2 Sam.7.13-16; Lam.2.9; Hos.3.4. 16-18: Accept: a technical cult term applied to sacrifices pleasing to God. Qualities of the spirit are seen as the cultic equivalents of animal and fear thee. We seek thy presence; 19 do not put us to shame, but deal with us in thy forbearance and in the 20 greatness of thy mercy. Grant us again thy marvellous deliverance, and win glory for thy name, O Lord. Let all who do thy servants harm be humbled; 21 may they be put to shame and stripped of all their power, and may their 22 strength be crushed; let them know that thou alone art the Lord God, and glorious over all the world.’

 23 The servants of the king who threw them in kept on feeding the furnace with naphtha, pitch, tow, and faggots, 24 and the flames poured out above it to 25 a height of seventy-five feet.<sup>b</sup> They spread out and burnt those Chaldeans
 who were caught near the furnace.
 26 But the angel of the Lord came down into the furnace to join Azariah and his companions; he scattered the flames 27 out of the furnace and made the heart of it as if a moist wind were whistling through. The fire did not touch them at all and neither hurt nor distressed
 them.

The praises of creation

28 THEN THE THREE WITH ONE VOICE praised and glorified and blessed God
 in the furnace:
 29 ‘Blessed art thou, O Lord, the God
 of our fathers;
 worthy of praise, highly exalted for
 ever.
 30 Blessed is thy holy and glorious
 name;
 highly to be praised, highly exalted
 for ever.
 31 Blessed art thou in thy holy and glorious temple;

most worthy to be hymned and glorified for ever.
 Blessed art thou who dost behold 32
 the depths from thy seat upon
 the cherubim;
 worthy of praise, highly exalted for
 ever.
 Blessed art thou on thy royal throne; 33
 most worthy to be hymned, highly exalted for ever.
 Blessed art thou in the dome of 34
 heaven;
 worthy to be hymned and glorified
 for ever.
 ‘Let the whole creation bless the Lord, 35
 sing his praise and exalt him for
 ever.
 Bless the Lord, you heavens; 36
 sing his praise and exalt him for
 ever.
 Bless the Lord, you angels of the 37
 Lord;
 sing his praise and exalt him for
 ever.
 Bless the Lord, all you waters above 38
 the heavens;
 sing his praise and exalt him for
 ever.
 Bless the Lord, all you his hosts; 39
 sing his praise and exalt him for
 ever.
 Bless the Lord, sun and moon; 40
 sing his praise and exalt him for
 ever.
 Bless the Lord, stars of heaven; 41
 sing his praise and exalt him for
 ever.
 Bless the Lord, all rain and dew; 42
 sing his praise and exalt him for
 ever.
 Bless the Lord, all winds that blow; 43
 sing his praise and exalt him for
 ever.

<sup>b</sup> Gk. forty-nine cubits.

sacrifices; compare 1 Sam.15.22; Ps.51.16–17; Hos.6.6. 20–21: God would win glory for his name by ending the power of Babylon and granting Israel deliverance from captivity as he did at the time of the Exodus from Egypt. 24: Naphtha: a natural petroleum substance. Faggots: bundles of sticks. 25: See Dan.3.22. 26: The angel of the Lord in the OT is often the Lord himself in angelic form; see Gen.16.7–14. 27: In Palestine, when a moist wind blows from the Mediterranean it brings refreshing coolness, in contrast to the hot wind which blows from the eastern desert.

28–68: A song of exaltation. The constant refrain recalls Ps. 136. 32: Thy seat is the mercy seat atop the Ark of the Covenant which was conceived as God’s throne; see Exod.25.20–22. 35: Let . . . creation bless: after addressing the Lord (vv. 29–34; see Ps.104), the song exhorts the whole creation, part by part (vv. 35–59), person by person (vv. 60–68), to bless the Lord, i.e. to praise God (compare Ps.148). 38: Waters . . . heavens: see Gen. 1.7; Ps.148.4. 39: Hosts:

44	Bless the Lord, fire and heat; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	Bless the Lord, all birds of the air; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	58
45	Bless the Lord, scorching blast and bitter cold; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	Bless the Lord, you cattle and wild beasts; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	59
46	Bless the Lord, dews and falling snow; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	'All men on earth, bless the Lord; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	60
47	Bless the Lord, nights and days; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	Bless the Lord. O Israel; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	61
48	Bless the Lord, light and darkness; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	Bless the Lord, you priests of the Lord; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	62
49	Bless the Lord, frost and cold; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	Bless the Lord, you servants of the Lord; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	63
50	Bless the Lord, rime and snow; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	Bless the Lord, all men of upright spirit; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	64
51	Bless the Lord, lightnings and clouds; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	Bless the Lord, you that are holy and humble in heart; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	65
52	'O earth, bless the Lord; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	Bless the Lord, Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	66
53	Bless the Lord, mountains and hills; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	For he has rescued us from the grave and from the power of death: he has saved us from the furnace of burning flame; he has rescued us from the heart of the fire.
54	Bless the Lord, all that grows in the ground; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endures for ever.	67
56	Bless the Lord, seas and rivers; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.	All who worship the Lord, bless the God of gods; sing his praise and give him thanks, for his mercy endures for ever.'	68
55	Bless the Lord, you springs; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.
57	Bless the Lord, you whales and all that swim in the waters; sing his praise and exalt him for ever.

---

compare Ps.148.2-3. 44-51: See Ps.148.8. 50: Rime: a type of frost. 53: See Ps.148.9. 56-65: Compare Ps.148.10-12.

DANIEL AND SUSANNA

The story of Susanna is a "detective story" from the second or first pre-Christian centuries. It is about Daniel, and is an addition to that book.

A masterpiece of the storyteller's art, the tale combines effective characterization with suspenseful plot development to proclaim its moral that God does not desert the innocent who trust and pray.

Some interpreters see the story as a criticism of the judicial system, especially the need to examine witnesses more carefully (vv. 48-49) and to insure against perjury by inflicting adequate punishment (v. 62).

This addition to Daniel appears in different places in the versions. In the Septuagint and Vulgate a slightly variant form of the story follows the end as ch. 13. The story comes first in the Greek text of Theodotus and in other versions, perhaps because Daniel is described (v. 45) as a "young man." On original language and the date, see Introduction to the Song of the Three.

Innocence vindicated

1 THERE ONCE LIVED IN BABYLON A
2 man named Joakim. He married
3 Susanna daughter of Hilkiah, a 4 very beautiful and devout woman. Her 5 parents, religious people, had brought 6 up their daughter according to the law
7 of Moses. Joakim was very rich and his 8 house had a fine garden adjoining it, 9 which was a regular meeting-place for 10 the Jews, because he was the man of 11 greatest distinction among them.
12 Now two elders of the community
13 were appointed that year as judges. It 14 was of them that the Lord had said,
15 'Wickedness came forth from Babylon 16 from elders who were judges and were 17 supposed to govern my people.' These 18 men were constantly at Joakim's house,
19 and everyone who had a case to be tried
20 came to them there.
21 When the people went away at noon,
22 Susanna used to go and walk in her 23 husband's garden. Every day the two 24 elders saw her entering the garden and 25 taking her walk, and they were obsessed 26 with lust for her. They no longer prayed 27 to God, but let their thoughts stray 28 from him and forgot the claims of 29 morality. They were both infatuated
30 with her; but they did not tell each 31 other what pangs they suffered, because 32 they were ashamed to confess that they wanted to seduce her. Day after day 12

they watched eagerly to see her.

One day they said, 'Let us go home; 13
it is time for lunch.' So they went off in 14 different directions, but soon retraced their steps and found themselves face to face. When they questioned one another, each confessed his passion.
Then they agreed on a time when they might find her alone.

And while they were watching for an 15
opportune day, she went into the garden as usual with only her two maids; it was very hot, and she wished to bathe there. No one else was in the 16 garden except the two elders, who had hidden and were spying on her. She said 17 to her maids, 'Bring me soap and olive oil, and shut the garden doors so that I can bathe.' They did as she told them: 18 they closed the garden doors and went out by the side door to fetch the things they had been ordered to bring; they did not see the elders because they were hiding. As soon as the maids had gone, 19
the two elders started up and ran to Susanna. 'Look!' they said, 'the garden 20 doors are shut, and no one can see us.
We are burning with desire for you, so consent and yield to us. If you refuse, 21
we shall give evidence against you that there was a young man with you and that was why you sent your maids away.' Susanna groaned and said: 'I 22

1-64: God's direct intervention fills a youth with wisdom to confound the craftiness of old age, thus vindicating innocence.

1-14: Wicked elders lust after Susanna. 2: Susanna means "lily." 4: Jewish names recorded on clay tablets in Babylonian archives show that some Jews became rich and rose to positions of distinction in their captivity in Babylon. 5: The Lord had said may allude to Jer.29.21-23.

15-27: Seduction attempted. 22: For an unfaithful wife the penalty was death by stoning; see see no way out. If I do this thing, the penalty is death; if I do not, you will have me at your mercy. My choice is made: I will not do it. It is better to be at your mercy than to sin against the Lord.'

With that Susanna gave a loud shout, but the two elders shouted her down. One of them ran and opened the garden door. The household, hearing the uproar in the garden, rushed in through the side door to see what had happened to her. And when the elders had told their story, the servants were deeply shocked, for no such allegation had ever been made against Susanna.

Next day, when the people gathered at her husband Joakim's house, the two elders came, full of their criminal design to put Susanna to death. In the presence of the people they said, 'Send for Susanna daughter of Hilkiah, Joakim's wife.' So they sent for her, and she came with her parents and children and all her relatives. Now Susanna was a woman of great beauty and delicate feeling. She was closely veiled, but those scoundrels ordered her to be unveiled so that they might feast their eyes on her beauty. Her family and all who saw her were in tears. Then the two elders stood up before the people and put their hands on her head. She looked up to heaven through her tears, for she trusted in the Lord. The elders said: 'As we were walking alone in the garden, this woman came in with two maids. She shut the garden doors and dismissed her maids. Then a young man, who had been in hiding, came and lay down with her. We were in a corner of the garden, and when we saw this wickedness we ran up to them. Though we saw them in the act, we could not hold the man; he was too strong for us, and he opened the door and forced his way out. We seized the woman and asked who the young man was, but she would not tell us. That is our evidence.'

As they were elders of the people and judges, the assembly believed them and condemned her to death. Then Susanna cried out loudly: 'Eternal God, who dost know all secrets and foresee all things, thou knowest that their evidence against me was false. And now I am to die, guiltless though I am of all the wicked things these men have said against me.'

The Lord heard her cry. Just as she was being led off to execution, God inspired a devout young man named Daniel to protest, and he shouted out, 'I will not have this woman's blood on my head.' All the people turned and asked him, 'What do you mean by that?' He came forward and said: 'Are you such fools, you Israelites, as to condemn a woman of Israel, without making careful inquiry and finding out the truth? Re-open the trial; the evidence these men have brought against her is false.'

So the people all hurried back, and the rest of the elders said to him, 'Come, take your place among us and state your case, for God has given you the standing of an elder.' Daniel said to them, 'Separate these men and keep them at a distance from each other, and I will examine them.' When they had been separated Daniel summoned one of them. 'You hardened sinner,' he said, 'the sins of your past have now come home to you. You gave unjust decisions, condemning the innocent, and acquitting the guilty, although the Lord has said, "You shall not put to death an innocent and guiltless man." Now then, if you saw this woman, tell us, under what tree did you see them together?' He answered, 'Under a clove-tree.'<sup>a</sup> Then Daniel retorted, 'Very good: this lie has cost you your life, for already God's angel has a clove: literally mastic.

Lev.20.10; Deut.22.21-22. 23: Sin against the Lord: see Gen.39.9; Ps.51.4. All sin is against God.

28-43: Susanna condemned through perjury. 34: To identify her as accused and themselves as witnesses of the crime and accusers, the elders put their hands on her head; see Lev.24.14.

44-49: Daniel intervenes. 46: According to Jewish tradition a herald preceded one being led to execution and appealed for possible evidence of his innocence. The entire community shared responsibility for blood shed in executions.

50-64: Susanna is acquitted; her accusers, the two elders, are put to death. 50: The invitation to Daniel to take his place as an elder is undoubtedly said in sarcasm. 53: See Exod.23.7.

56 received your sentence from God, and he will cleave<sup>b</sup> you in two.' And he told him to stand aside, and ordered them to bring in the other.

He said to him: 'Spawn of Canaan, no son of Judah, beauty has been your undoing, and lust has corrupted your 57 heart! Now we know how you have been treating the women of Israel, frightening them into consorting with you; but here is a woman of Judah who would not submit to your villainy. 58 Now then, tell me, under what tree did you surprise them together?' 'Under a yew-tree',<sup>c</sup> he replied. Daniel said to 59 him, 'Very good: this lie has cost you your life, for the angel of God is waiting with his sword to hew<sup>d</sup> you down and destroy you both.'

60 Then the whole assembly gave a great shout and praised God, the saviour of those who trust in him. They 61 turned on the two elders, for out of their own mouths Daniel had convicted them of giving false evidence; they 62 dealt with them according to the law of Moses, and put them to death, as they in their wickedness had tried to do to their neighbour. And so an innocent life was saved that day. Then Hilkiah 63 and his wife gave praise for their daughter Susanna, because she was found innocent of a shameful deed, and so did her husband Joakim and all her relatives. And from that day forward 64 Daniel was a great man among his people.

b clove . . . cleave: there is a play on words in the Gk.

c yew: literally oak.

d yew . . . hew: there is a play on words in the Gk.

56: Spawn of Canaan may be an allusion to the notorious sexual laxity of the Canaanites. 62: Deut.19.16-21 requires that a false witness receive the treatment he intended for the accused. During Alexander Jannaeus' reign (105-79 B.C.) the Sadducees sought to apply this law only in cases where the falsely accused was executed, but the Pharisees demanded stricter interpretation.

DANIEL, BEL, AND THE SNAKE

The third major addition to the Book of Daniel consists of two related tales designed to ridicule heathen idolatry. In the first story (vv. 1–22), Daniel is again presented (see Daniel and Susanna) as a clever detective who exposes the deception practiced by the priests of Bel. Daniel thus exposes the Bel statue as lifeless, no god at all. In the second story (vv. 23–42), Daniel demonstrates that a serpent worshiped by the Babylonians, while a living being, is surely not divine.

The wisdom and courage of the faithful Daniel and the truth that God delivers his faithful people are significant themes in both stories.

On date and original language, see Introduction to the Song of the Three.

The destruction of Bel

1 WHEN KING ASTYAGES WAS gathered to his fathers he was succeeded on the throne
2 by Cyrus the Persian. Daniel was a confidant of the king, the most honoured of all the King's Friends.
3 Now the Babylonians had an idol called Bel, for which they provided every day twelve bushels of fine flour, forty sheep, and fifty gallons of wine.
4 The king held it to be divine and went daily to worship it, but Daniel worshipped his God. So the king said to him, 'Why do you not worship Bel?'
5 He replied, 'Because I do not believe in man-made idols, but in the living God who created heaven and earth and is sovereign over all mankind.'
6 The king said, 'Do you think that Bel is not a living god? Do you not see how much he eats and drinks each day?'
7 Daniel laughed and said, 'Do not be deceived, your majesty; this Bel of yours is only clay inside and bronze outside, and has never eaten anything.'
8 Then the king was angry, and summoned the priests of Bel and said to them, 'If you cannot tell me who it is that eats up all these provisions, you shall die; but if you can show that it is Bel that eats them, then Daniel shall die for blasphemy against Bel.'
9 Daniel said to the king, 'Let it be as you command.' (There were seventy priests of Bel, not counting their wives and children.) Then the king went with Daniel into the temple of Bel. The 11 priests said, 'We are now going outside; set out the food yourself, your majesty, and mix the wine; then shut the door and seal it with your signet. When you come back in the morning, 12 if you do not find that Bel has eaten it all, let us be put to death; but if Daniel's charges against us turn out to be false, then he shall die.' They treated 13 the whole affair with contempt, because they had made a hidden entrance under the table, and they regularly went in by it and ate everything up.

So when the priests had gone, the 14 king set out the food for Bel; and Daniel ordered his servants to bring ashes and sift them over the whole temple in the presence of the king alone. Then they left the temple, closed the door, sealed it with the king's signet, and went away. During the night the 15 priests, with their wives and children, came as usual and ate and drank everything. Early in the morning the king 16 came, and Daniel with him. The king 17 said, 'Are the seals intact, Daniel?' He answered, 'They are intact, your majesty.' As soon as he opened the 18 door, the king looked at the table and cried aloud, 'Great art thou, O Bel! In thee there is no deceit at all.' But 19 Daniel laughed and held back the king from going in. 'Just look at the floor,' he said, 'and judge whose footprints these are.' The king said, 'I see the 20

1–22: Daniel destroys an idol. 1: King Astyages was the last king of the Medes, defeated by Cyrus the Persian about 550 B.C. 2: King's Friends: a technical term; see 1 Macc.2.18 n. 3: Cyrus became the king of the Babylonians by defeating Nabonidus, the last king of Babylon, in 539 B.C. Bel: the chief Babylonian god, also known as Marduk; see Jer.51.44. 6: Represented by a colossal image, Bel was believed a voracious eater. Historical sources confirm the huge footprints of men, women, and 21 children.' In a rage he put the priests under arrest, with their wives and children. Then they showed him the secret doors through which they used 22 to go in and consume what was on the table. So the king put them to death, and handed Bel over to Daniel, who destroyed the idol and its temple.

The destruction of the snake

23 NOW THERE WAS A HUGE SNAKE, which the Babylonians held to be divine.
 24 The king said to Daniel, 'You cannot say that this is not a living god; so 25 worship him.' Daniel answered, 'I will worship the Lord my God, for he 26 is the living God. But give me authority, your majesty, and without sword or staff I will kill the snake.' 'I give it 27 you', said the king. So Daniel took pitch and fat and hair, boiled them together, and made them into cakes, which he put into the mouth of the snake. When the snake ate them, it burst. Then Daniel said, 'See what 28 things you worship!' When the Babylonians heard of this they gathered in an angry crowd to oppose the king.
 'The king has turned Jew!' they cried.
 'He has pulled down Bel, killed the snake, and put the priests to the 29 sword.' So they went to the king and said, 'Hand Daniel over to us, or else
 we will kill you and your family.'
 30 The king, finding himself hard pressed, was compelled to give Daniel up to them. They threw him into the lion- 31 pit, and he was there for six days.

 There were seven lions in the pit, and 32
 every day two men and two sheep were fed to them; but now they were given nothing, to make sure that they would devour Daniel.

Now the prophet Habakkuk was in 33
 Judaea; he had made a stew and crumbled bread into the bowl, and he was on the way to his field, carrying it to the reapers, when an angel of the LORD 34
 said, 'Habakkuk, carry the meal you have with you to Babylon, for Daniel,
 who is in the lion-pit.' Habakkuk said, 35
 'My lord, I have never been to Babylon. I do not know where the lion-pit is.' Then the angel took the prophet 36 by the crown of his head, and carrying him by his hair, he swept him to Babylon with the blast of his breath
 and put him down above the pit.
 Habakkuk called out, 'Daniel, Daniel, 37
 take the meal that God has sent you!'
 Daniel said, 'O God, thou dost indeed 38
 remember me; thou dost never forsake those who love thee.' Then he got up 39 and ate; and God's angel returned Habakkuk at once to his home. On the 40 seventh day the king went to mourn for Daniel, but when he arrived at the pit and looked in, there sat Daniel!
 Then the king cried aloud, 'Great art 41 thou, O Lord, the God of Daniel, and there is no God but thou alone.'
 So the king drew Daniel up; and 42
 the men who had planned to destroy him he flung into the pit, and then and there they were eaten up before his eyes.

---

food offerings (v. 3). 22: Put them to death: see Dan.2.12; 6.24. Ancient historians record that the Persian King Xerxes (485-464 B.C.) destroyed the idol and its temple in 479 B.C.

23-42: The destruction of the snake. The serpent was often regarded in the Ancient Near East as a religious symbol; see Num.21.8; 2 Kgs.18.4. There is no evidence that the Babylonians worshiped a live snake. Earlier English translations speak of "dragon," rather than snake.

28-42: Daniel rescued. 31: The lion-pit: see Dan.6.16-24. 33: Habakkuk lived a century earlier and hence could not have so served. 34: The meal: see 1 Kgs.17.4-6. 36: For a precedent of a prophet carried by his hair see Ezek.8.3. 38: That God does not forsake those who love him is the point of all three additions to the Hebrew Daniel; it was an assurance needed by the Jews during the Maccabean struggle against King Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-164 B.C.).

THE PRAYER OF MANASSEH

This brief devotional piece conveys sincere repentance and deep religious feeling.

Manasseh, son of the good king Hezekiah, appears in 2 Kgs.21.1-18 as a most wicked ruler who led Judah into gross idolatry, including human sacrifice, and perpetrated extensive violence. The Chronicler adds, however, that this evil king, after a very, very long reign, repented of his evil and called upon God for deliverance. Restored to his kingdom after being carried off to Babylon, he instituted partial reforms (2 Chr.33.1-20).

Mention is made in 2 Chr.33.19 of a prayer of Manasseh, but no prayer is given there. To fill this gap, some pious Jew composed a prayer such as Manasseh might have voiced.

The date and origin of the prayer are uncertain, but many place the composition in the last pre-Christian centuries and consider it originally written in Greek instead of Hebrew or Aramaic.

In Roman Catholic tradition, wherein the Apocrypha are regarded as canonical, this book is not so regarded.

Repentance

1 LORD ALMIGHTY, God of our fathers,
of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob,
and of their righteous offspring;
2 who hast made heaven and earth in their manifold array;
3 who hast confined the ocean by thy word of command,
who hast shut up the abyss and sealed
it with thy fearful and glorious
name;
4 all things tremble and quake in the face of thy power.
5 For the majesty of thy glory is more than man can bear,
and none can endure thy menacing
wrath against sinners;
6 the mercy in thy promise is beyond measure: none can fathom it.
7 For thou art Lord Most High, compassionate, patient, and of great
mercy,
relenting when men suffer for their sins.
For out of thy great goodness thou,
O God,
hast promised repentance and remission to those who sin
against thee,

and in thy boundless mercy thou hast appointed repentance for sinners
as the way to salvation.<sup>a</sup>
So thou, Lord God of the righteous, 8
didst not appoint repentance for Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, who were righteous and did not sin
against thee,
but for me, a sinner,
whose sins are more in number than 9
the sands of the sea.
My transgressions abound, O Lord,
my transgressions abound,
and I am not worthy to look up and gaze at the height of heaven because of the number of my wrongdoings.
Bowed down with a heavy chain of 10
iron,
I grieve over my sins and find no relief,
because I have provoked thy anger
and done what is evil in thine eyes, setting up idols and so piling sin on
sin.
Now I humble my heart, imploring 11
thy great goodness.
I have sinned, O Lord, I have sinned, 12
and I acknowledge my transgressions.
I pray and beseech thee, 13
spare me, O Lord, spare me,

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses omit For out of . . . salvation.

1-8: God is praised as mighty Creator (1-4) who offers forgiveness to the penitent (5-8). 1: Righteous offspring: faithful Israelites, descendants of the patriarchs. 2-3: Word of command: the creative "God said" of Gen.1.6,10. Compare Job 38.8-11. 5: God's majesty was considered so awesome that no man could experience it and live. Compare Isa.6.5; Ezek. 1.28-2.2. 7: Since men suffer for their sins the possibility for repentance is a mercy from God.

9-13a: Repentance. 9: My wrongdoings: Manasseh's sins; see 2 Kgs.21.1-8. 10: Chain of iron: Manasseh's captivity in Babylon (2 Chr.33.11).

PRAYER OF MANASSEH

Repentance

destroy me not with my transgressions
on my head,
do not be angry with me for ever, nor store up evil for me.
Do not condemn me to the grave,
for thou, Lord, art the God of the penitent.
14 Thou wilt show thy goodness towards
me,

for unworthy as I am thou wilt save
me in thy great mercy;
and so I shall praise thee continually 15
all the days of my life.
For all the host of heaven sings thy
praise,
and thy glory is for ever and ever.
Amen.

---

13b–15: Confidence in divine mercy followed by a doxology closes the prayer. 13b: God stored up evil by being angry and not giving a person repentance. 15: To praise God continually with the lips as well as with a repentant and upright life was considered the object and fulfillment of human life and Israel's call; see Ps.51.13–17.

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE MACCABEES

The word Maccabee, possibly meaning "hammer," was a popular epithet for Judas (1 Macc.2.4), the third son of the priest Mattathias. The plural Maccabees came to allude to the Jewish guerrillas who, under Mattathias, revolted against the Seleucid kings of Syria then ruling Palestine. The revolt began in 167 B.C. This and three other books bear the name Maccabees; 1 and 2 Maccabees and the nonbiblical 4 Maccabees are about the revolt, but 3 Maccabees is not.

Written originally in Hebrew (only a Greek translation survived antiquity), 1 Maccabees summarizes the events (1.1-64) which spurred the revolt of Mattathias (2.1-70) and follows the course of the resistance as it was carried on by his sons, especially Judas (3.1-9.22), Jonathan (9.23-12.53), and Simon (13.1-16.24). The latter was named King of Judea about 150 B.C.

1 Maccabees is a simple history written in the manner of the day by an unknown adherent of the Hasmonean kings descended from Simon. It is also meant to teach the author's Palestinian contemporaries that by fidelity to the Law of God the Jewish people may expect continued divine support, for God is still active in Israel's history. The book was probably written about 100 B.C.

Antiochus and the Jewish revolt

1 ALLEXANDER OF MACEDON, THE SON of Philip, marched from the land of Kittim, defeated Darius, king of Persia and Media, and seized his throne, being already king of 2 Greece.<sup>a</sup> In the course of many campaigns he captured fortified towns, 3 slaughtered kings, traversed the earth to its remotest bounds, and plundered innumerable nations. When at last the world lay quiet under his rule, his 4 pride knew no limits; he built up an extremely powerful army, and ruled over countries, nations, and dominions; all paid him tribute.
5 The time came when he fell ill, and,
6 knowing that he was dying, he summoned his generals, nobles who had been brought up with him from childhood, and divided his empire among 7 them while he was still alive. Alexander had reigned twelve years when he died.
8 His generals took over the government,
9 each in his own province. On his death

they were all crowned as kings, and their descendants succeeded them for many years. They brought untold miseries upon the world.

A scion of this stock was that 10
wicked man, Antiochus Epiphanes, son of King Antiochus. He had been a hostage in Rome before he succeeded to the throne in the year 137 of the Greek era.<sup>b</sup>

At that time there appeared in Israel 11
a group of renegade Jews, who incited the people. 'Let us enter into a covenant with the Gentiles round about,' they said, 'because disaster upon disaster has overtaken us since we segregated ourselves from them.'
The people thought this a good argu- 12
ment, and some of them in their en- 13
thusiasm went to the king and received authority to introduce non-Jewish laws and customs. They built a sports- 14 stadium in the gentile style in Jerusalem.

<sup>a</sup> being . . . Greece: probable meaning; Gk. obscure.
<sup>b</sup> That is 175 B.C.

1.1-64: Background to the Maccabean revolt. The author notes the spread of Greek power from Alexander the Great (356-323 B.C.) through his successors, down to Antiochus IV Epiphanes. This Seleucid king's harsh treatment of the Jews and brutal imposition of Hellenic culture upon them led Mattathias to revolt. 1: Kittim: Macedonia. 3: Alexander's army reached the remotest bounds of the author's Mediterranean world, the Beas river of the Punjab in northern India. In his pride, Alexander accepted divine honors. 7: Alexander died at Babylon in June, 323 B.C., at the age of thirty-two. 8-9: After his death, Alexander's generals fought over his empire. Three powers emerged, the Antigonids of Macedonia, the Ptolemies of Egypt, and the Seleucids of Syria. 10: Antiochus IV, surnamed Epiphanes, i.e. "[God] manifest" but nicknamed "madman" (Gk. epimanes), was the son of Antiochus III, "the Great." On the father's defeat by the Romans at the battle of Magnesia (190 B.C.), the son was sent as a hostage to Rome to insure fidelity to the treaty of Apamea (188 B.C.). See 8.6-8. 11: The renegade Jews were led by

They removed their marks of circumcision and repudiated the holy covenant. They intermarried with Gentiles, and abandoned themselves to evil
ways.

When he was firmly established on his throne, Antiochus made up his mind to become king of Egypt and so to rule over both kingdoms. He assembled a powerful force of chariots, elephants, and cavalry, and a great fleet, and invaded Egypt. When battle was joined, Ptolemy king of Egypt was seized with panic and took to flight, leaving many dead. The fortified towns were captured and the land pillaged.

On his return from the conquest of Egypt, in the year 143,<sup>c</sup> Antiochus marched with a strong force against Israel and Jerusalem. In his arrogance he entered the temple and carried off the golden altar, the lamp-stand with all its equipment, the table for the Bread of the Presence, the sacred cups and bowls, the golden censers, the curtain, and the crowns. He stripped off all the gold plating from the temple front. He seized the silver, gold, and precious vessels, and whatever secret treasures
he found, and took them all with him when he left for his own country. He had caused much bloodshed, and he gloated over all he had done.

Great was the lamentation
throughout Israel;
rulers and elders groaned in bitter grief.
Girls and young men languished;
the beauty of our women was disfigured.
Every bridegroom took up the lament,
and every bride sat grieving in her chamber.
The land trembled for its inhabitants,

and all the house of Jacob was wrapped in shame.

Two years later, the king sent to the towns of Judaea a high revenue official, who arrived at Jerusalem with a powerful force. His language was friendly, but full of guile. For,
once he had gained the city's confidence,
he suddenly attacked it. He dealt it a heavy blow, and killed many Israelites, plundering the city and setting it ablaze.
He pulled down houses and walls on every side; women and children were made prisoners, and the cattle seized.

The city of David was turned into a citadel, enclosed by a high, stout wall with strong towers, and garrisoned by impious foreigners and renegades.
Having made themselves secure, they accumulated arms and provisions, and deposited there the massed plunder
of Jerusalem. There they lay in ambush, a lurking threat to the temple and a perpetual menace to Israel.

They shed the blood of the innocent round the temple;
they defiled the holy place.
The citizens of Jerusalem fled for fear of them;
she became the abode of aliens,
and alien herself to her offspring:
her children deserted her.
Her temple lay desolate as a
wilderness;
her feasts were turned to mourning,
her sabbaths to a reproach,
her honour to contempt.
The shame of her fall matched the greatness of her renown,
and her pride was bowed low in grief.

The king then issued a decree
throughout his empire: his subjects were all to become one people and

<sup>c</sup> That is 169 B.C.

Jason (Joshua), the brother of the Jewish high priest Onias III; see 2 Macc.4.7–20. 18: Ptolemy VI Philometor (180–145 B.C.). 20–24: Antiochus robbed the temple to replenish the royal treasury depleted by war. 29–32: Antiochus invaded Egypt again in 168 B.C. Forced to retire by the Roman emissary Popilius Laenas, who threatened war with Rome, Antiochus vented his wrath on Judea, which he thought to be in revolt. See 2 Macc.5.1–14. Two years later than Antiochus' first Egyptian campaign, i.e. in 167 B.C., Apollonius, chief of the Mysian mercenaries, was sent to put down the unruly city again; see 2 Macc.5.23b–26. 33–34: Impious foreigners (Seleucid troops) and renegades (Hellenizing Jews) now fortified the westernmost hill of Jerusalem. This citadel remained in their hands until 141 B.C., when Simon drove them out (1 Macc.13.49–50). 37–40: A lament similar to that of Ps.79. 41–50: Hoping to weld into a political unity the abandon their own laws and religion. The nations everywhere complied with the royal command, and many in Israel accepted the foreign worship, sacrificing to idols and profaning the sabbath. Moreover, the king sent agents with written orders to Jerusalem and the towns of Judaea. Ways and customs foreign to the country were to be introduced. Burnt-offerings, sacrifices, and libations in the temple were forbidden; sabbaths and feast-days were to be profaned; the temple and its ministers to be defiled. Altars, idols, and sacred precincts were to be established; swine and other unclean beasts to be offered in sacrifice. They must leave their sons uncircumcised; they must make themselves in every way abominable, unclean, and profane, and so forget the law and change all their statutes. The penalty for disobedience was death.

Such was the decree which the king issued to all his subjects. He appointed superintendents over all the people, and instructed the towns of Judaea to offer sacrifice, town by town. People thronged to their side in large numbers, every one of them a traitor to the law. Their wicked conduct throughout the land drove Israel into hiding in every possible place of refuge.

On the fifteenth day of the month Kislev in the year 145,<sup>d</sup> 'the abomination of desolation' was set up on the altar. Pagan altars were built throughout the towns of Judaea; incense was offered at the doors of houses and in the streets. All scrolls of the law which were found were torn up and burnt. Anyone discovered in possession of a Book of the Covenant, or conforming to the law, was put to death by the king's sentence. Thus month after month these wicked men used their power against the Israelites whom they found in their towns,

On the twenty-fifth day of the month they offered sacrifice on the pagan altar which was on top of the altar of the Lord. In accordance with the royal decree, they put to death women who had had their children circumcised. Their babies, their families, and those who had circumcised them, they hanged by the neck. Yet many in Israel found strength to resist, taking a determined stand against eating any unclean food. They welcomed death rather than defile themselves and profane the holy covenant, and so they died. The divine wrath raged against Israel.<sup>e</sup>

AT THIS TIME A CERTAIN MATTATHIAS, son of John, son of Symeon, appeared on the scene. He was a priest of the Joarib family from Jerusalem, who had settled at Modin. Mattathias had five sons, John called Gaddis, Simon called Thassis, Judas called Maccabaeus, Eleazar called Avaran, and Jonathan called Apphus.

When Mattathias saw the sacrilegious acts committed in Judaea and Jerusalem, he said:

'Oh! Why was I born to see this, the crushing of my people, the ruin of the holy city?

They sat idly by when it was surrendered, when the holy place was given up to the alien.

Her temple is like a man robbed of honour;

<sup>d</sup> That is 167 B.C.

<sup>e</sup> The divine . . . Israel: or Israel lived under a reign of terror.

many ethnic and linguistic groupings over which he ruled, Antiochus IV decreed a common culture (Hellenism) and religion (the worship of Zeus Olympios) for all of his subjects. For Jews, conformity to the decree meant abandonment of the Mosaic Law and apostasy from the God of Israel. 54: On December 7, 167 B.C., Antiochus built an altar to Zeus Olympios on the Temple's altar of holocausts (see v. 59). This abomination replaced the Holy of Holies as the center of worship in the Temple, and the worship of Zeus replaced that of Israel's God. 55: Apparently, Jews adopted Grecian shrines for their streets and houses. 57: Book of the Covenant: the Law of Moses. 59: December 17, 167 B.C. 62-63: See 2 Macc. 6.18-7.42 for examples.

2.1-70: Mattathias begins active resistance. What began under Mattathias' direction as armed resistance to the Hellenizing program eventually escalated into a war for autonomy led by his sons. 1: Joarib headed one priestly division of twenty-four appointed for alternate duty in the Temple. See 1 Chr. 24.1-19 (especially v. 7). Modin is modern el-Midyah, seven miles east of Lod. 2: The surnames of Mattathias' sons have been explained as meaning "fortunate," "burning," "designated by Yahweh" (or "the hammerer," or "hammer-headed"), "awake,"

- 9 its glorious vessels are carried off as spoil.
Her infants are slain in the street,
her young men by the sword of the foe.
- 10 Is there a nation that has not usurped her sovereignty,<sup>f</sup>
a people that has not plundered her?
- 11 She has been stripped of all her adornment,
no longer free, but a slave.
- 12 Now that we have seen our temple
with all its beauty and splendour laid waste and profaned by the 13 Gentiles, why should we live any longer? So Mattathias and his sons 14 tore their garments, put on sackcloth, and mourned bitterly.
- 15 The king's officers who were enforcing apostasy came to the town of Modin to see that sacrifice was offered,
16 and many Israelites went over to them.
Mattathias and his sons stood in a 17 group. The king's officers spoke to Mattathias: 'You are a leader here,' they said, 'a man of mark and influence 18 in this town, with your sons and brothers at your back. You be the first now to come forward and carry out the king's order. All the nations have done so, as well as the leading men in Judaea and the people left in Jerusalem.
Then you and your sons will be enrolled among the King's Friends; you will all receive high honours, rich rewards of silver and gold, and many further benefits.'
- 19 To this Mattathias replied in a ringing voice: 'Though all the nations within the king's dominions obey him
and forsake their ancestral worship, though they have chosen to submit to 20 his commands, yet I and my sons and brothers will follow the covenant of 21 our fathers. Heaven forbid we should ever abandon the law and its statutes.
22 We will not obey the command of the king, nor will we deviate one step from our forms of worship.'
- 23 As soon as he had finished, a Jew stepped forward in full view of all to offer sacrifice on the pagan altar at Modin, in obedience to the royal command. The sight stirred Mattathias 24

to indignation; he shook with passion, and in a fury of righteous anger rushed forward and slaughtered the traitor on the very altar. At the same time he 25 killed the officer sent by the king to enforce sacrifice, and pulled the pagan altar down. Thus Mattathias showed 26 his fervent zeal for the law, just as Phinehas had done by killing Zimri son of Salu. 'Follow me,' he shouted 27
through the town, 'every one of you who is zealous for the law and strives to maintain the covenant.' He and his 28 sons took to the hills, leaving all their belongings behind in the town.

At that time many who wanted to 29
maintain their religion and law went down to the wilds to live there. They 30 took their sons, their wives, and their cattle with them, for their miseries were more than they could bear. Word 31 soon reached the king's officers and the forces in Jerusalem, the city of David,
that men who had defied the king's order had gone down into hiding-places in the wilds. A large body of 32 men went quickly after them, came up with them, and occupied positions opposite. They prepared to attack them on the sabbath. 'There is still time,' 33
they shouted; 'come out, obey the king's command, and your lives will be spared.' 'We will not come out,' 34
the Jews replied; 'we will not obey the king's command or profane the sabbath.' Without more ado the attack 35 was launched; but the Israelites did 36
nothing in reply; they neither hurled stones, nor barricaded their caves.
'Let us all meet death with a clear 37
conscience,' they said; 'we call heaven and earth to testify that there is no justice in this slaughter.' So they were 38 attacked and massacred on the sabbath, men, women, and children, up to a thousand in all, and their cattle with them.

<sup>f</sup> Or occupied her palaces.

and "favorite." 18: Mattathias was offered the lowest of four honorary ranks of the King's Friends (friends, honored friends, first, and preferred friends). See 10.65; 11.27; 2 Macc.8.9. 24: Mattathias obeyed God's law. See Deut.13.6-11. 26: See Num.25.6-15. 29-38: Josephus (Ant. XII.6.2) records that Jews who had met secretly in a cave to observe the Sabbath were suffocated by setting fire to brush that had been piled at the mouth of the cave; see also 2

39 Great was the grief of Mattathias and his friends when they heard the news. They said to one another, 'If we all do as our brothers have done, if we refuse to fight the Gentiles for our lives as well as for our laws and customs, then they will soon wipe us off the face of the earth.' That day they decided that, if anyone came to fight against them on the sabbath, they would fight back, rather than all die as their brothers in the caves had done.

42 It was then that they were joined by a company of Hasidaeans, stalwarts of Israel, every one of them a volunteer in the cause of the law; and all who were refugees from the troubles came to swell their numbers, and so add to their strength. Now that they had an organized force, they turned their wrath on the guilty men and renegades. Those who escaped their fierce attacks took refuge with the Gentiles.

45 Mattathias and his friends then swept through the country, pulling down the pagan altars, and forcibly circumcising all the uncircumcised boys found within the frontiers of Israel. They hunted down their arrogant enemies, and the cause prospered in their hands. Thus they saved the law from the Gentiles and their kings, and broke the power of the tyrant.

49 The time came for Mattathias to die, and he said to his sons: 'Arrogance now stands secure and gives judgement against us; it is a time of calamity and raging fury. But now, my sons, be zealous for the law, and give your lives for the covenant of your fathers. Remember the deeds they did in their generations, and great glory and eternal fame shall be yours. Did not Abraham prove steadfast under trial, and so gain credit as a righteous man? Joseph kept the commandments, hard-pressed though he was, and became lord of Egypt. Phinehas, our father, never flagged in his zeal, and his was the covenant of an everlasting priesthood. Joshua kept the law, and he became a judge in Israel. Caleb bore witness before the congregation, and a share in the land was his reward. David was a man of loyalty, and he was granted the throne of an everlasting kingdom. Elijah never flagged in his zeal for the law, and he was taken up to heaven. Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael had faith, and they were saved from the blazing furnace. Daniel was a man of integrity, and he was rescued from the lions' jaws. As generation succeeds generation, follow their example; for no one who trusts in Heaven shall ever lack strength. Do not fear a wicked man's words; all his success will end in filth and worms. Today he may be high in honour, but tomorrow there will be no trace of him, because he will have returned to the dust and all his schemes come to nothing. But you, my sons, draw your courage and strength from the law, for by it you will win great glory.

'Now here is Symeon, your brother; I know him to be wise in counsel: always listen to him, for he shall be a father to you. Judas Maccabaeus has been strong and brave from boyhood; he shall be your commander in the field, and fight his people's battles. Gather to your side all who observe the law, and avenge your people's wrongs. Repay the Gentiles in their own coin, and always heed the law's commands.'

Then Mattathias blessed them, and was gathered to his fathers. He died in the year 146,<sup>g</sup> and was buried by his

<sup>g</sup> That is 166 B.C.

Macc.6.11. 42: The Hasidaeans ("Pious" or "Faithful") were the forerunners of both the Pharisees and the Essenes. 44: 2 Macc.8.1 estimates this organized force as numbering about 6,000. Guilty men: pagans. Renegades: apostate Jews. 48: They saved the law by preventing the absorption of Judaism into a mixture of pagan and Jewish worship. 49-70: Mattathias' deathbed scene recalls that of Jacob (Gen. ch. 49) and Moses (Deut. ch. 33). Mattathias urges imitation of those who remained faithful to God's word despite difficult circumstances: Abraham (Gen. ch. 22), Joseph (Gen. ch. 39), Phinehas (Num. ch. 25), Joshua (Josh. ch. 1), Caleb (Num. chs. 13-14), David (2 Sam. ch. 7.), Elijah (1 Kgs. ch. 18; 2 Kgs. ch. 2), Hananiah, Azariah, Mishael (Dan. ch. 1), and Daniel (Dan. ch. 6). See similar praises in Ecclus. chs. 44-50. 62: Filth and worms were the final lot of Antiochus (2 Macc.9.5-10). 65: Although Symeon was older, he became the leader of the people only after his brothers Judas and Jonathan had died. 70: Family tomb at Modin: see 13.25-30.

sons in the family tomb at Modin. All Israel raised a loud lament for him.

The war under Judas and Jonathan

3 THEN JUDAS MACCABAEUS CAME FORWARD in his father's place. He had the support of all his brothers and his father's followers, and they carried on the fight for Israel with zest.

3 He enhanced his people's glory. He put on his breastplate like a giant, and girt himself with weapons of war. He fought battle on battle; he guarded his army with his sword. 4 He was like a lion in his exploits, like a lion's whelp roaring for prey. 5 He hunted and tracked down the lawless; he blasted the troublers of his people. 6 The lawless cowered in fear of him; all evil-doers were confounded. The cause of freedom prospered in his hands; 7 he provoked many kings to anger. But he made Jacob glad by his deeds; he is remembered for ever in blessing. 8 He passed through the towns of Judaea; he destroyed the godless there. He turned wrath away from Israel; 9 his fame spread to the ends of the earth, and he rallied a people near to destruction.

10 Apollonius now collected a gentile force and a large contingent from 11 Samaria, to fight against Israel. When Judas heard of it, he marched out to meet him, and defeated and killed him. Many of the Gentiles fell, and the rest took to flight. From the arms they 12 captured, Judas took the sword of Apollonius, and used it in his campaigns for the rest of his life.

When Seron, who commanded the 13 army in Syria, heard that Judas had mustered a large force, consisting of all his loyal followers of military age, he 14 said to himself, 'I will win a glorious reputation in the empire by making war on Judas and his followers, who defy the royal edict.' Seron was re- 15 inforced by a strong contingent of renegade Jews, who marched up to help him take vengeance on Israel. When 16 he reached the pass of Beth-horon, Judas advanced to meet him with a handful of men. When his followers 17 saw the host coming against them, they said to Judas, 'How can so few of us fight against so many? Besides, we have had nothing to eat all day, and we are exhausted.'

Judas replied: 'Many can easily 18 be overpowered by a few; it makes no difference to Heaven to save by many or by few. Victory does not depend on 19 numbers; strength comes from Heaven alone. Our enemies come filled with 20 insolence and lawlessness to plunder and to kill us and our wives and children. But we are fighting for our 21 lives and our religion. Heaven will crush 22 them before our eyes. You need not be afraid of them.'

When he had finished speaking, he 23 launched a sudden attack, and Seron and his army broke before him. They 24 pursued them down the pass of Beth-horon as far as the plain; some eight hundred of the enemy fell, and the rest fled to Philistia.

3.1-9.73: The Jews regain religious freedom. Under Judas, the Jews defeat the forces of Antiochus and his son, purify the Temple, punish persecutors and regain religious freedom. When persecution is renewed, Judas resumes the struggle. Jonathan continues the war with success.

3.1-9: A poetic preface praises Judas. 5: Blasted: burned; see 5.5,35,44. 7: Kings: Antiochus IV Epiphanes (3.27), Antiochus V Eupator (6.28, but not mentioned by name; see 3.33 n.) and Demetrius I Soter (9.1). 8: By purging the land, Judas mollified the divine wrath. See 2 Macc. 6.12-16. 9: Ends of the earth: Rome; see 8.17-32.

3.10-24: Judas' early victories. 10: Apollonius, who had earlier sacked Jerusalem (1.29-35), now led a contingent including his Mysian mercenaries (2 Macc.5.24) against Judea. 16: Two towns, two miles apart, "Upper" and "Lower" Beth-horon, were connected by a pass which led from the coastal plains to the highlands north of Jerusalem. Judas ambushed Seron in the pass and defeated him with fewer men. 18-19: 1 Macc. never uses "God" or "Lord," but prefers Heaven. 24: Philistia: the seacoast, once home of the Philistines.

25 Thus Judas and his brothers began to be feared, and alarm spread to the 26 Gentiles all round. His fame reached the ears of the king, and the story of his battles was told in every nation.
 27 When King Antiochus heard this news, he flew into a rage and ordered all the forces of his empire to be assembled, an 28 immensely powerful army. He opened his treasury and gave a year's pay to his troops, ordering them to be prepared
 29 for any duty. But he found that his resources were running low; his tribute, too, had dwindled as a result of the disaffection and violence he had brought upon the world by abolishing
 30 traditional laws and customs. He now saw with alarm that he might be short of money, as had happened once or twice before, both for his normal expenses and for the gifts he had been accustomed to distribute with an even more lavish hand than any of his predecessors on the throne.
 31 For a time he was much perplexed; then he decided to go to Persia, collect the tribute due from the provinces, and raise a large sum of ready money.
 32 He left Lysias, a distinguished member of the royal family, as viceroy of the territories between the Euphrates and the Egyptian frontier. He also appointed him guardian of his son Antiochus
 33 until his return. He transferred to Lysias half the armed forces, together with the elephants, and told him all that he wanted done, especially to the population of Judaea and Jerusalem.
 34 Against these Lysias was to send a force, and break and destroy the strength of Israel and those who were left in Jerusalem, to blot out all memory of them from the place. He was to settle 36 foreigners in all their territory, and allot the land to the settlers. The other

 37 half of the forces the king took with him, and set out from Antioch, his capital, in the year 147.<sup>b</sup> He crossed the Euphrates and marched through the upper provinces.

Lysias chose Ptolemaeus son of 38 Dorymenes, with Nicanor and Gorgias, all three powerful members of the order of King's Friends, and sent with 39 them forty thousand infantry and seven thousand cavalry to invade Judaea and devastate the country as the king had commanded. They set out 40 with all their forces and encamped near Emmaus in the lowlands. The 41 merchants of the region, impressed by what they heard of the army, took a large quantity of silver and gold, with a supply of fetters, and came into the camp to buy the Israelites for slaves. The army was also reinforced by troops from Syria and Philistia.

Judas and his brothers saw that their 42 plight had become grave, with the enemy encamped inside their frontiers. They learnt, too, of the commands which the king had given for the complete destruction of the nation. So they 43 said to one another, 'Let us restore the shattered fortunes of our nation; let us fight for our nation and for the holy place.' They gathered in full 44 assembly to prepare for battle, and to pray and seek divine mercy and compassion.

<sup>b</sup> That is 165 B.C.

3.25-37: Antiochus goes to Persia. He makes provision for settling the "Jewish question" in his absence. That the king gathered a powerful army in response to the exploits of Judas is an exaggeration. A more likely reason was to quell a rebellion in the east, indicated by overdue tribute (v. 31), to secure the eastern frontier against the Parthians and to replenish his depleted treasury (vv. 29-30) by conquest. 29: Antiochus' problems largely resulted from his imposition of Hellenic religion and customs on native populations. 31: Persia in 1 and 2 Macc. is all the area east of the Tigris. 32: Lysias belonged to the highest court order of the realm, "the king's kinsmen." 33: The son is Antiochus V Eupator (164-161 B.C.), who was then only seven. 37: Antioch is modern Antakya in eastern Turkey. The upper provinces included the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates.

3.38-4.27: Judas defeats the Seleucid generals. See 2 Macc.8.8-29. 38: Ptolemaeus: in 2 Macc. 8.8, he is governor of Coele-syria and Phoenicia. His region included Palestine. Nicanor: see 1 Macc.7.26-50; 2 Macc.8.9; 14.15. Gorgias: see 5.59; 2 Macc.8.9; 10.14; 12.32-35. King's Friends: see 2:18 n. 40: Emmaus is about twenty miles northwest of Jerusalem. 41: Jews were to be sold as slaves to raise money for tribute (2 Macc.8.10-11). The Greek translator probably misread Aram (= Syria) for Edom, the Heb. words being easily confused. The main body of troops was already from Syria. 43-46: Because the holy place, the Temple, was defiled by the pagans and apostates (v. 45), the Jews assembled for prayer at Mizpah, an ancient Israelite

45 Jerusalem lay deserted like a wilderness;
 none of her children went in or out.
 Her holy place was trampled down;
 aliens and heathen lodged in her citadel.
 Joy had been banished from Jacob;
 and flute and harp were dumb.

46 They assembled at Mizpah, opposite Jerusalem, for in former times Israel had a place of worship at Mizpah.
 47 That day they fasted, put on sackcloth, sprinkled ashes on their heads, and tore their garments. They unrolled the scroll of the law, seeking the guidance which Gentiles seek from the images of their gods. They brought the priestly vestments, the firstfruits, and the tithes; they presented Nazirites who had completed their vows, and they cried to Heaven: 'What shall we do with these Nazirites, and where shall we take them? Thy holy place is trodden down and defiled, and sorrow and humiliation have come upon thy priests.
 52 And see, the Gentiles have gathered against us to destroy us. Thou knowest the fate they plan for us; how can we withstand them unless thou help us?'
 54 Then the trumpets sounded, and a great shout went up.

55 Judas then appointed leaders of the people, officers over thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens. As the law commands, he ordered back to their homes those who were building their houses or were newly wed or who were planting vineyards, or who were faint-hearted. Thereupon the army moved and took up their positions to the south of Emmaus, where Judas thus addressed them: 'Prepare for action and show yourselves men. Be ready at dawn to fight these Gentiles who are massed against us to destroy us and our holy place. Better die fighting than look on while calamity overwhelms our people and the holy place. But it will be as Heaven wills.'

Gorgias, taking a detachment of 4 five thousand men and a thousand picked cavalry, set out by night to attack 2 the Jewish army and fall upon them unawares; his guides were men from the citadel. But Judas had word of this, 3 and he and his soldiers moved out to attack the king's army in Emmaus, while its forces were still divided. 4 Gorgias reached the camp of Judas 5 during the night, but found no one there. He set out to search for them in the hills, thinking, 'These Jews are running away from us.'

At daybreak, there was Judas in the 6 plain with three thousand men, though they had not all the armour and the swords they wanted. They saw the 7 Gentiles' camp strongly fortified with breastworks, while mounted guards, seasoned troops, patrolled round it.

Judas said to his men: 'Do not be 8 afraid of their great numbers or panic when they charge. Remember how 9 fathers were saved at the Red Sea, when Pharaoh and his army were pursuing them. Let us cry now to 10 Heaven to favour our cause, to remember the covenant made with our fathers, and to crush this army before us today. Then all the Gentiles will know that 11 there is One who saves and liberates Israel.'

When the foreigners looked up and 12 saw them advancing to the attack, they marched out of their camp to give 13 battle. Judas and his men sounded their trumpets and closed with them. The 14 Gentiles broke, and fled to the plain. All the rearmost fell by the sword. 15 The pursuit was pressed as far as Gazara and the lowlands of Idumaea, Azotus and Jamnia; about three thousand of the enemy were killed.

Judas and his force then broke off 16 the pursuit and returned. He said to 17 sanctuary eight miles north of Jerusalem. See Judg.20.1; 1 Sam.7.5; 10.17; Jer.40.6. 48: Unable to cast lots (the Urim and Thummim of 1 Sam.14.41), after the Exile (Ezra 2.63; Neh.7.65), Israel sought guidance from the Lord by reading the scroll of the law. 49-51: The Nazirites could not complete their vows (see Num.6.1-21), because the holy place (Temple) was defiled. 55: The leaders included Judas' brothers (2 Macc.8.22-23). 56: See Deut.20.5-8. 2 Macc.8.13 cites only cowardice. 4.2: Men from the citadel: renegade Jews probably; see 1.33-34 n. 6: 2 Macc.8.16 doubles Judas' army. 8-11: See 2 Macc.8.16-20, where the incidents cited in Judas' speech as motives for confidence are different. Ancient authors reported what a speaker should have said rather than exact words. 15: The defeated enemy fled to the cities of the coastal

the people: 'Curb your greed for spoil; there is more fighting before us; 18 Gorgias and his force are in the hills near by. Stand firm now against our enemies and fight; after that, plunder as you please.'

19 Before Judas had finished speaking, an enemy patrol appeared, reconnoitring from the hills. They saw that their army was in flight, and that their camp was being set on fire; the smoke that met their gaze showed what had 21 happened. They were filled with panic as they took in the scene, and when they saw the army of Judas in the 22 plain, ready for battle, they all fled to Philistia.

23 Then Judas turned back to plunder the camp, and there they got much gold and silver, violet and purple stuffs, 24 and great riches. On their return they sang songs of thanksgiving and praised Heaven, 'for it is right, because his 25 mercy endures for ever'. That day saw a great deliverance for Israel.

26 Those of the Gentiles who escaped with their lives went and reported to 27 Lysias all that had happened. On hearing the news he was overwhelmed with disappointment, because Israel had not suffered the disaster he had 28 hoped for, and the issue was not what the king had ordered.

29 In the following year he gathered sixty thousand picked infantry and five thousand cavalry to make war on the Jews. They marched into Idumaea, and encamped at Bethsura, where Judas met them with ten thousand men. 30 When he saw the strength of the enemy's army, he prayed: 'All praise to thee, the Saviour of Israel, who didst break the attack of the giant by thy servant

David. Thou didst deliver the army of the Philistines into the power of Saul's son, Jonathan, and of his armour-bearer. In like manner put his army 31 into the power of thy people Israel. Humble their pride in their forces and their mounted men. Strike them with 32 panic, turn their insolent strength to water, make them reel under a crushing defeat. Overthrow them by the sword 33 of those who love thee, and let all who know thy name praise thee with songs of thanksgiving.'

So they joined battle, and Lysias 34 lost about five thousand men in the close fighting. When he saw his own 35 army routed and Judas's army full of daring, ready to live or die nobly, he departed for Antioch, and there collected a force of mercenaries, in order to return to Judaea with a much larger army than before.<sup>i</sup>

But Judas and his brothers said: 36 'Now that our enemies have been crushed, let us go up to Jerusalem to cleanse the temple and rededicate it.' 37 So the whole army was assembled and went up to Mount Zion. There they 38 found the temple laid waste, the altar profaned, the gates burnt down, the courts overgrown like a thicket or wooded hill-side, and the priests' rooms in ruin. They tore their garments, wailed 39 loudly, put ashes on their heads, and fell on their faces to the ground. They 40 sounded the ceremonial trumpets, and cried aloud to Heaven.

Then Judas detailed troops to engage the garrison of the citadel while he cleansed the temple. He selected 42 priests without blemish, devoted to the law, and they purified the temple, 43

i in order . . . before: probable meaning; Gk. obscure.

lowlands: Gazara (Gezer), Azotus (Ashdod), and Jammia (Jabneh). 23: The gold and silver of the slave traders now fell to their intended victims (2 Macc.8.25). 24: See the refrain of Ps.136. 26: The survivors included Nicanor (2 Macc.8.34-36).

4.28-35: Judas defeats Lysias at Bethsura. See 2 Macc.11.1-12. 28-29: In the following year, 164 B.C., Lysias besieged Bethsura (Beth-zur), which was friendly toward Judas (2 Macc.11.6-7). 30: Judas encouraged his men by recalling how, against all odds, David overcame Goliath (1 Sam. ch. 17) and Jonathan slew the Philistine outpost (1 Sam. ch. 14). 35: 2 Macc.11.13-15 notes that Lysias came to terms with the Jews some time after his devastating defeat in this battle.

4.36-61: The purification and dedication of the Temple. See 2 Macc.10.1-8. The death of Antiochus IV Epiphanes (6.1-16), and the accession of his son Antiochus V Eupator (6.17) preceded the Temple's purification (4.36-51) and dedication (4.52-59) in December 164 B.C. (2 Macc.9.1-29). 10.10-11 retains the correct historical sequence. 41: The citadel: see 1.33-34 n. 42: For earlier purifications of the Temple see 2 Kgs. 23.4-25; 2 Chr. ch. 29. 43: The stones which defiled the Temple, those of the altar to Zeus Olympios (1.54,59), were taken to an unclean

removing to an unclean place the stones 44 which defiled it. They discussed what to do with the altar of burnt-offering, 45 which was profaned, and rightly decided to demolish it, for fear it might become a standing reproach to them because it had been defiled by the Gentiles. They therefore pulled down 46 the altar, and stored away the stones in a fitting place on the temple hill, until a prophet should arise who could be 47 consulted about them. They took un-hewn stones, as the law commands, and built a new altar on the model of 48 the previous one. They rebuilt the temple and restored its interior, and 49 consecrated the temple courts. They renewed the sacred vessels and the lamp-stand, and brought the altar of incense and the table into the temple.
 50 They burnt incense on the altar and lit
 the lamps on the lamp-stand to shine 51 within the temple. When they had put the Bread of the Presence on the table and hung the curtains, all their work was completed.

52 Then, early on the twenty-fifth day
 of the ninth month, the month Kislev, 53 in the year 148,<sup>j</sup> sacrifice was offered as the law commands on the newly 54 made altar of burnt-offering. On the anniversary of the day when the Gentiles had profaned it, on that very day, it was rededicated, with hymns of thanksgiving, to the music of harps and 55 lutes and cymbals. All the people prostrated themselves, worshipping and praising Heaven that their cause had prospered.

56 They celebrated the rededication of the altar for eight days; there was great rejoicing as they brought burnt-offerings and sacrificed peace-offerings and thank-offerings. They decorated the 57 front of the temple with golden wreaths and ornamental shields. They renewed the gates and the priests' rooms, and fitted them with doors. There was great 58 merry-making among the people, and the disgrace brought on them by the Gentiles was removed.

Then Judas, his brothers, and the 59 whole congregation of Israel decreed that the rededication of the altar should be observed with joy and gladness at the same season each year, for eight days, beginning on the twenty-fifth of Kislev.

At that time they encircled Mount 60 Zion with high walls and strong towers to prevent the Gentiles from coming and trampling it down as they had done before. Judas set a garrison 61 there; he also fortified Bethsura, so that the people should have a fortress facing Idumaea.

WHEN THE GENTILES ROUND ABOUT 5
 heard that the altar had been rebuilt and the temple rededicated, they were furious, and determined to wipe out all 2
 those of the race of Jacob who lived among them. Thus began the work of massacre and extermination among the people.

Judas then made war on the descen- 3
 dants of Esau in Idumaea and attacked
 Acrabattene, because they had humbled
 Israel in. There he inflicted on them a place, i.e. a place for refuse (possibly the Kidron valley, see 2 Kgs.23.4,6,12). 44: The altar of burnt-offering had been profaned by the altar to Zeus built upon it, but because it had been devoted to the worship of the Lord, the stones were sacred and could not be put to a secular use. 46: Only a prophet could declare what should be done with the stones, but lack of a prophet is noted; see also 9.27; 14.41. 47: The law: Exod.20.25; Deut.27.5-6. 53-54: For the pertinent laws on sacrifice, see Exod.29.38-41; Num. 7.10-88. 56-59: The Jewish feast which commemorates the Temple's rededication in December 164 B.C., takes its present name from the Heb. word "Hanukkah," meaning "dedication." 60-61: Judas took precautions against further efforts of Lysias (v. 35).

<sup>j</sup> That is 164 B.C.

5.1-68: Judas rescues his persecuted countrymen. The dedication of the Temple and the Jewish exemption from the edict of Antiochus (2 Macc.11.27-33) which followed Judas' victory over Lysias (1 Macc.4.28-35) aroused the envy and hostility of neighboring peoples. Soon after Antiochus' death, a series of anti-Jewish incidents led Judas to undertake reprisals and to rescue and relocate those Jews in danger. 1: The Gentiles round about are those of Idumaea (vv. 3-5; 2 Macc.10.14-23), Ammon (vv. 6-8; possibly 2 Macc.8.30-33), Gilead (vv. 9-13,24-54; 2 Macc. 12.10-31), Galilee (vv. 14-23), and the land of the Philistines (vv. 66-68; 2 Macc.12.3-9). 2: The race of Jacob and similar archaic expressions in this chapter (e.g. the descendants of Esau, v. 3) are meant to evoke the memory of Israel's earlier conquest of the land, which the Jews still regarded as their own. 3: The location of Acrabattene is unknown. 4: The Baeanites severe and humiliating defeat, and took 4 spoils from them. He remembered also the wrong done by the Baeanites, who with their traps and road-blocks were 5 continually ambushing the Israelites. He first confined them to their forts and took up positions against them; then he solemnly committed them to destruction and set the forts ablaze with 6 all their occupants. He crossed over to the Ammonites, and came upon a strong and numerous force under the 7 command of a certain Timotheus. He fought many battles with them, and they broke before him and were crushed.

 8 After capturing Jazer and its dependent villages, he returned to Judaea.
 9 Then the Gentiles in Gilead gathered against the Israelites within their territory, intending to destroy them;
 but they took refuge in the fortress of 10 Dathema, and sent this letter to Judas
 and his brothers:

The Gentiles round us have 11 gathered to wipe us out. They are preparing to come and seize the fortress where we have taken refuge;
 Timotheus is in command of their 12 army. So come at once and rescue us from their clutches, for many of our number have already fallen.
 13 All our fellow-Jews in the region of Tubias have been massacred, their wives and their children taken captive, and their property carried off.
 About a thousand men there have lost their lives.

14 While the letter was being read,
 other messengers with their garments
 15 torn arrived from Galilee. 'Ptolemais, Tyre and Sidon,' they said, 'and all heathen Galilee have mustered their forces to make an end of us.'

16 When Judas and the people heard this, a full assembly was called to decide what they should do for their fellow-countrymen in distress and under enemy attack. Judas said to 17 Simon his brother, 'Choose your men, and go and rescue your countrymen

 in Galilee while I and my brother Jonathan march into Gilead.' The rest 18 of his forces he left for the defences of Judaea, with Josephus son of Zacharias, and Azarias, leading citizens, and gave 19 them this order: 'Take charge of the people of Jerusalem, but on no account join battle with the Gentiles until we return.' Simon was allotted three 20 thousand men for the march on Galilee, and Judas eight thousand for the march on Gilead.

Simon invaded Galilee and, after 21 many battles, broke the resistance of the Gentiles. He pursued them as far as 22 the gate of Ptolemais, killed nearly three thousand of them, and stripped their corpses. He took back with him 23 the Jews from Galilee and Arbatta, their wives and children, and all their property, and brought them to Judaea with great jubilation.

Meanwhile Judas Maccabaeus and 24 his brother Jonathan crossed the Jordan and made a three days' march through the desert. They came upon some 25 Nabataeans, who met them peacefully, and gave them an account of all that had happened to their fellow-Jews in Gilead: many of them were 26 held prisoner in Bozrah and Bezer, in Alema, Casphor, Maked, and Carnaim
 —all large fortified towns; and in 27 other towns of Gilead. 'Your enemies', they told them, 'are marshalling their forces to storm your fortresses tomorrow so as to capture them and destroy all the Jews in them in a single day.'

Then Judas and his army suddenly 28

are difficult to identify; perhaps they were nomads and the mercenaries of 2 Macc.10.14.
 6: Ammonites: people in the region near modern Amman, Jordan. 8: Ancient Jazer was west and slightly north of Amman. 9: Gilead, the area immediately east of the Jordan and to the north of the Jabbok river, extended north of the Yarmuk river in Hellenistic times. Dathema:
 location unknown. 11–13: The letter exaggerates. Not all the Jews in the region of Tubias, i.e.
 Gilead, were massacred; see vv. 26–27. 14–15: Heathen Galilee: the coastal region of Galilee, as the cities named indicate. 22: Ptolemais is modern Acre, a coastal town north of Haifa.
 23: For their own protection against reprisals, the Jews from Galilee and Arbatta (i.e. Nabata, the coastal region just south of Galilee) resettled in Judea. 25: The Nabataeans, an Arab people, grew rich as caravan traders. 26–36: These towns were all located east of the Sea of Galilee and just north of the Yarmuk river, but the precise location is not known in every turned aside to Bozrah by way of the desert, captured the town, and put all the males to the sword. He plundered all their property and set fire to the town. From there he made a night-march and came within reach of the fortress of Dathema. When dawn broke they saw in front of them an innumerable host, bringing up scaling-ladders and siege-engines and engaging the defenders, to capture the fortress. Judas saw that battle was already joined, and a cry went up to heaven from the town, with trumpeting and loud shouting. Judas said to his men: 'Now is the time to fight for our brothers.'

They marched out in three columns to take the enemy in the rear. Then they sounded the trumpets and cried aloud in prayer, and the army of Timotheus recognized that it was Maccabaeus and took to flight before him. He inflicted a severe defeat on them, and nearly eight thousand of the enemy fell that day.

Judas then turned aside to Alema,<sup>k</sup> attacked and captured it, and killed all the males. He plundered the town and set it on fire. From there he moved on and occupied Casphor, Maked, Bezer, and the other towns of Gilead.

After these events, Timotheus gathered another army, and took up position opposite Raphon, on the other side of the ravine. Judas sent spies to their camp, and they reported that all the Gentiles in the neighbourhood had rallied in very great strength to Timotheus, who had also hired Arab mercenaries to help them; they were encamped on the far side of the ravine, ready to engage him in battle. So Judas marched to meet them.

As Judas and his army were approaching the flooded ravine, Timotheus said to his officers: 'If Judas crosses over to our side first, we shall not be able to stand up to him; he will certainly get the better of us. If, however, his courage fails him and he takes up a position on the other side of the river, then we will cross over and get the better of him.' When Judas reached the ravine, he stationed the officers of the muster on its banks, with instructions that no one should be allowed to take up a fixed position, but that all should advance to battle. Thus Judas forestalled the enemy by crossing to attack them, with all his people following. The Gentiles broke before him; they all threw away their arms and took refuge in the temple at Carnaim. Judas captured the town and burnt the temple together with all its occupants: Carnaim was completely subdued and could no longer withstand him.

Then Judas gathered together all the Israelites in Gilead to escort them to Judaea. They amounted to an immense host, small and great, women and children, with their property. They came as far as Ephron, a large and strongly fortified town on the road: it was impossible to pass by it on either side; the only route was through the town. But the townsmen kept them out, barricading their gates with boulders. Judas sent them a conciliatory message: 'We have to pass through your territory to reach our own. No one shall do you any harm: we shall only march through.' But they refused to open their gates to him.

Judas issued orders to the whole host for everyone to halt where he was. Then the fighting men took up battle positions and attacked the town all that day and all the night, until it fell into their hands. They put every male to the sword, razed the town to the ground and plundered it, and then marched through it over the bodies of the dead. They crossed the Jordan to the great plain opposite Bethshan, while Judas brought up the stragglers and encouraged the people all along the road till he arrived in Judaea. They went up to Mount Zion with gladness and instance. 37: Raphon lay on a northern tributary of the Yarmuk. 39: Perhaps these mercenaries were the Arabs of 2 Macc.12.10-12. 42: The officers of the muster were scribes, who could easily make notes of the laggards. 43: The temple was that of Atargatis (the horned Astarte) at Carnaim, another city in the same region; see 2 Macc.12.26. 46: Ephron lay to the south of the Yarmuk, close to the Jordan. 52: Bethshan is the Scythopolis of 2 Macc.12.29-30, about four miles west of the Jordan and eighteen south of the Sea of Galilee. 54: The victors arrived jubilation, and offered burnt-offerings, because they had returned in safety without the loss of a single man.

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses read Maapha.

55 Now while Judas and Jonathan were 56 in Gilead, and Simon their brother in Galilee was besieging Ptolemais, the two commanders, Josephus son of Zacharias, and Azarias, heard of their 57 exploits in battle. 'We too', they said,
'must make a name for ourselves: let us go and fight the Gentiles in our neigh-58 bourhood.' So they gave orders to their forces and marched against Jamnia.
59 Gorgias came out of the town with his men to meet them in battle; and Jose-60 phus and Azarias were routed and pursued to the frontier of Judaea. Some two thousand of the people fell that 61 day. So the Israelites suffered a heavy defeat, because their commanders,
thinking to play the hero themselves,
had not obeyed Judas and his brothers.
62 They were not, however, of that family to whom it was granted to bring deliverance to Israel.

63 Judas and his brothers won a great reputation in all Israel and among the Gentiles, wherever their fame was 64 heard, and crowds flocked to acclaim
them.

65 After this, Judas marched out with his brothers and made war on the descendants of Esau to the south. He struck at Hebron and its villages, demolished its fortifications, and burnt 66 down its forts on all sides. He then set out to invade Philistine territory, march-67 ing through Marisa. On that day several priests, who had ill-advisedly gone into action wishing to distinguish them-68 selves, fell in battle. Then Judas turned aside to Azotus in Philistia. He pulled down their altars, burnt the images of their gods, carried off the spoil from their towns, and returned to Judaea.

As King Antiochus marched through 6
the upper provinces he heard that there was a city in Persia called Elymais, famous for its wealth in silver and gold. Its temple was very rich, full of 2 gold shields, coats of mail, and arms,
left there by Alexander son of Philip,
king of Macedon and the first to be king over the Greeks. Antiochus came 3 and tried to capture and plunder the city, but failed because his plan had become known to the citizens. They 4 gave battle and put him to flight, and he withdrew to Babylon in bitter disappointment.

A messenger met him in Persia with 5
the news that the armies which had invaded Judaea were in full retreat.
Lysias had marched up with an 6 exceptionally strong force, only to be flung back before the enemy, and the strength of the Jews had grown by the capture of arms, equipment, and spoils from the Syrian armies they had defeated. They had pulled down the 7 abomination he had built on the altar in Jerusalem, and surrounded their temple with high walls as before, and had even fortified Bethsura.

When the king heard this news, 8
he was thrown into such deep dismay that he took to his bed, ill with grief at the miscarriage of his plans. There 9
he lay for many days, his bitter grief breaking out again and again, and he realized that he was dying. So he 10 summoned all his Friends and said to them: 'Sleep has deserted me; the weight of care has broken my heart.
At first I said to myself, "Why am I 11 overwhelmed by this flood of trouble,
I who was kind and well-loved in the day of my power?" But now I re- 12 member the wrong I did in Jerusalem, when I took all her vessels of silver and gold, and when I made an unjustified

in time to celebrate the Feast of Weeks (Pentecost); 2 Macc.12.31. 55-64: The punitive raids of 2 Macc.12.3-9 preceded this incident. The defeat is here attributed to disobedience of orders, but 2 Macc.12.40 notes a different reason for the casualties. 62: The family is that of Mattathias and his sons. 65: The descendants of Esau: Edomites. Hebron is twenty miles south of Jerusalem. 66: Marisa lay west of Hebron. 67: See vv. 55-64.

6.1-17: The death of Antiochus IV. See 2 Macc.9.1-29. The author continues the story begun in 3.37. 1: The upper provinces were in Mesopotamia and the Iranian plateau. Elymais is not a city but the country Elam, the area around Susa, particularly north and east of that city. 2: Possibly the temple was that of Nanaea at Susa (see 2 Macc.1.13). Alexander: the Great. 5-7: Antiochus died after Lysias' defeat but before Judas purified the Temple. The author merely summarizes 4.28-61 here. 10: Friends: see 2.18 n. 12-13: Obviously, these are the attempt to wipe out the inhabitants of 13 Judaea. It is for this, I know, that these misfortunes have come upon me; and here I am, dying of grief in a foreign land.'

14 He summoned Philip, one of his Friends, and appointed him regent 15 over his whole empire, giving him the crown, the royal robe, and the signet-ring, with authority to take his son
 Antiochus and bring him up to be king.
 16 King Antiochus died there in the year
 149.<sup>l</sup>

17 When Lysias learnt that the king was dead, he placed the young Antiochus, whom he had brought up from boyhood, on the throne in succession to his father, and gave him the name of Eupator.

18 MEANWHILE THE GARRISON OF THE citadel were confining the Israelites to the neighbourhood of the temple, and giving continual support to the Gentiles 19 by their harassing tactics. Judas therefore determined to make an end of them.
 He gathered all the people together to lay siege to the citadel in the year 150,<sup>m</sup> erecting emplacements and siege-engines against the enemy.

21 Now some of the besieged garrison escaped and were joined by a number 22 of renegade Israelites. They went to the king and said: 'How long must we wait for you to do justice and avenge 23 our comrades? We were willing to serve your father, to follow his instructions and to obey his decrees, and what was 24 the result? Our own countrymen became our enemies. They actually killed as many of us as they could find, and 25 robbed us of our property. Nor are we the only ones to suffer at their hands.
 They have attacked all their neigh-26 bours as well. At this very moment they are besieging the citadel in Jerusalem and mean to capture it; and they have fortified both the temple and Bethsura. Unless your majesty quickly 27 overpowers them they will go to yet greater lengths, and you will not be able to keep them in check.'

When the king heard this he was 28 furious. He assembled all his Friends, the commanders of his army, and his cavalry officers. He was joined by 29 mercenary troops from other kingdoms and from the islands. His forces 30 numbered one hundred thousand infantry, twenty thousand cavalry, and thirty-two war-elephants. They passed 31 through Idumaea and laid siege to Bethsura. They kept up the attack for a long time and erected siege-engines,
 but the defenders made a sortie and set fire to them, and fought back manfully.

Judas now withdrew from the citadel 32 and encamped at Bethzacharia, opposite the camp of the king. Early next 33 morning the king broke camp and rushed his army along the road to Bethzacharia; there his forces were drawn up for battle and the trumpets 34 were sounded. The elephants were roused for battle with the juice of grapes and of mulberries. The great beasts 35 were distributed among the phalanxes;
 by each were stationed a thousand men, equipped with coats of chain-mail and bronze helmets. Five hundred picked horsemen were also assigned to each animal. These had been station-36 ed beforehand where the beast was;
 and wherever it went, they went with it, never leaving it. Each animal had 37 strong wooden turret fastened on its back with a special harness, by way of protection, and carried four<sup>n</sup> fighting men as well as an Indian driver. The 38 rest of the cavalry Lysias stationed on

<sup>l</sup> That is 163 B.C.

<sup>m</sup> That is 162 B.C.

<sup>n</sup> Probable reading; Gk. thirty-two (compare verse 30).

sentiments of the author and not those of Antiochus. 14-15: Earlier, Antiochus had entrusted his son to Lysias (3.33), who faithfully declared the young Antiochus V Eupator king (v. 17). Philip soon proved to be ambitious (vv. 55-56). 17: Eupator means "of a good father."

6.18-63: Lysias' second Judean campaign. 18-27: To neutralize the citadel (1.33-34 n.), Judas besieged it. King Antiochus V Eupator (v. 21) was reminded of the garrison's loyalty to his father, Antiochus IV Epiphanes (v. 23), and of Judas' attacks on all their neighbours (v. 25; 5.1-68). Actually, Lysias, the regent, was in charge, since the king was then only ten years old (1.33 n.). 28-63: See 2 Macc.13.1-26. 28: Friends: see 2.18 n. 29: These mercenary troops were Greek-speaking (2 Macc.13.2). 30: The exaggerated numbers soften Judas' defeat. 31: Because of his elephants and cavalry, Lysias kept to the coastal plain until he reached Bethsura, which Judas had garrisoned (4.61); then Lysias swung in from the south through Idumaea. 34: Roused:

either flank of the army, to harass the enemy while themselves protected by the phalanxes. When the sun shone on the gold and bronze shields, they lit up the hills, which flashed like torches.

Part of the king's army was deployed over the heights, and part over the low ground. They advanced confidently and in good order. All who heard the din of this marching multitude and its clashing arms shook with fear. It was a very great and powerful array indeed.

Judas advanced with his army and gave battle, and six hundred of the king's men were killed. Eleazar Avaran, seeing that one of the elephants wore royal armour and stood out above all the rest, thought that the king was riding on it. So he gave his life to save his people and win everlasting renown for himself. He ran boldly towards it, into the middle of the phalanx, dealing death right and left, while they fell back on either side before him. He got in underneath the elephant, and thrust at it from below and killed it. It fell to the ground on top of him, and there he died.

When the Jews saw the strength and impetus of the imperial forces, they fell back before them. Part of the king's army marched up to Jerusalem to renew the engagement, and the king put Judaea and Mount Zion into a state of siege. He made peace with the people of Bethsura, who abandoned the town, having no more food there to withstand a siege, as it was a sabbatical year when the land was left fallow. Thus the king occupied Bethsura and detailed a garrison to hold it.

He then attacked the temple and subjected it to a long siege; he set up emplacements and siege-engines, with flame-throwers, catapults for discharging stones and barbed missiles, and slings. But the defenders too constructed engines to counter his engines, and put up a prolonged resistance.

There was no food, however, in the stores<sup>o</sup> because of the sabbatical year; those who from time to time had arrived in Judaea as refugees from the Gentiles had eaten up all that remained of the provisions. There were only a few men left in the temple, because the famine had been too severe for them, and they had scattered to their own homes.

Lysias heard that Philip, whom King Antiochus had appointed before he died to educate his son Antiochus for the kingship, had returned from Persia and Media with the late king's expeditionary force, and that he was seeking to take over the government. So he hastily gave orders for departure, saying to the king, his commanders, and his troops: 'Every day we are growing weaker, provisions are low, the place we are besieging is strong, and the affairs of the empire are pressing. So let us offer these men terms and make peace with them and their whole nation. Let us guarantee their right to follow their laws and customs as they used to do, for it was our abolition of these very customs and laws that roused their resentment, and produced all these consequences.'

The proposal met with the approval of the king and the commanders, and an offer of peace was sent and accepted. The king and his commanders bound themselves by oath, and on the agreed terms the besieged emerged from their stronghold. But when the king entered Mount Zion and saw how strongly the place was fortified, he went back on the oath he had sworn, and gave orders for the surrounding wall to be demolished. He then set off at top speed for Antioch, where he found Philip in possession; a battle ensued, and the city was taken by storm.

IN THE YEAR 151,<sup>p</sup> DEMETRIUS SON OF Seleucus left Rome, landed with a

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses read in the temple. <sup>p</sup> That is 161 B.C.

intoxicated. 43: Eleazar was Judas' brother (2.5). 47: On lower ground (v. 40), Judas' guerrillas were no match for the superior armament and professionalism of the king's soldiers. 49: On the sabbatical year, see Exod.23.10-11; Lev.25.3-7. 55: King Antiochus: IV Epiphanes. 60: The king, i.e. Lysias (see vv. 18-27 n.), granted religious but not civil liberty. 2 Macc.11.22-26,27-33 describe the peace terms. 63: Josephus says Antiochus captured and killed Philip (Ant. XII.9.7).

7.1-25: The expedition of Bacchides and Alcimus. 1: Demetrius I Soter (161-150 B.C.), whose

- handful of men at a town on the coast, and there made himself king.
- 2 While he was travelling to the royal seat of his ancestors, the army seized Antiochus and Lysias, intending to hand them over to him. When this was reported to him, he said, 'Do not let me set eyes on them.' The soldiers accordingly put them to death, and Demetrius ascended the throne.
- 3 All the godless renegades from Israel, led by Alcimus, who aspired to be high priest, came to the king and brought charges against their people. They said to him: 'Judas and his brothers have killed all your supporters, and have driven us from our country.
- 4 Be pleased now to send a man whom you trust, to go and see what devastation they have brought upon us and upon the king's territory, and to punish them and all their supporters.' The king chose Bacchides, one of the royal Friends, who was governor beyond the Euphrates, a man of high standing in the empire and loyal to the king. He sent him and the godless Alcimus, on whom he had conferred the high-priesthood, with orders to take vengeance on Israel.
- 5 They set out with a large army and entered Judaea. Bacchides sent envoys to Judas and his brothers to make false offers of friendship; but when they saw what a large force he had brought with him, they took no notice of these offers.
- 6 A deputation of doctors of the law came before Alcimus and Bacchides, asking for justice. The Hasidaeans were in fact the first group in Israel to make overtures to them; for they said
- to themselves, 'A priest of the family of Aaron has come with their forces, and he will do us no harm.' The language of Alcimus was conciliatory; he assured them on oath that no harm was intended to them or their friends. But once he had gained their confidence, he arrested sixty of them and put them to death in a single day; as Scripture says:
- 'The bodies of thy saints were scattered,
their blood was shed round Jerusalem,
and there was none to bury them.'
- This put all the people in fear and terror of them, and they said to each other, 'There is neither truth nor justice among them; they have broken their pledge and the oath they swore.' Then Bacchides left Jerusalem and camped in Bethzaith; and he ordered the arrest of many of those who had deserted to him, together with some of the people, and had them slaughtered and thrown into a great pit. He assigned the whole district to Alcimus, detailed some troops to assist him, and returned to the king.
- Alcimus fought hard for his high-priesthood. All the trouble-makers rallied to him; they gained control over Judaea, and did terrible damage in Israel. When Judas saw all the mischief which Alcimus and his followers had brought upon the Israelites, far worse than anything the Gentiles had done, he marched through all the territory of Judaea and its environs, punishing deserters and debarring hopes to succeed his uncle Epiphanes (175–164 B.C.) were frustrated earlier when the Romans instead recognized the young Eupator (164–161 B.C.), escaped from Rome, where he had been held hostage, and moved to claim the kingdom once ruled by his father Seleucus IV (187–175 B.C.). The coastal town was Tripolis (2 Macc.14.1). 2: As Demetrius marched on Antioch, his ancestral seat, the citizens there and the army switched allegiance to him. 5–7: The Jewish historian Josephus says (Ant. XII.9.7) that Alcimus (also called Jakeimos) succeeded Menelaus (2 Macc.13.4–8) as high priest. Perhaps Judas was forced by his treaty with Lysias to accept the defiled Alcimus for a time (2 Macc.14.3). The change of government may have seemed to Judas the opportunity for driving out Alcimus. 8: Bacchides, one of the royal Friends (see 2.18 n.), governed the area between the Euphrates and Egypt (Lysias had the same territory; 3.32). The king planned to go east—as Epiphanes had (3.27–37)—to subdue the eastern provinces. 12–13: Some of Judas' Hasidaeans (2.42; 2 Macc.14.6) now left him, recognized Alcimus, and asked for justice, i.e. terms for reconciliation. 16–17: See Ps.79.2–3. 19: Bethzaith is about three and a half miles north of Bethsura. Bacchides thus fulfilled his commission (v. 9). 20–25: Pushed from the cities by Alcimus' superior numbers, Judas denied him the countryside by guerrilla warfare.

25 them from access to the country districts. When Alcimus saw that Judas and his band had grown powerful, and recognized that he was unable to withstand them, he returned to the king and accused them of atrocities.

26 Then the king sent Nicanor, one of his distinguished commanders and a bitter enemy of Israel, with orders to wipe them out. Nicanor arrived at Jerusalem with a large force, and sent envoys to Judas and his brothers to make false offers of friendship: 'Let there be no quarrel between us,' he said; 'I propose to come with a few men for a friendly personal meeting.'

29 He came to Judas and they greeted one another as friends, yet the enemy were preparing to kidnap Judas. 30 When Judas discovered that Nicanor's visit was a trick, he took alarm and 31 refused to meet him again. Nicanor, realizing that his plan had been detected, marched out to engage Judas 32 near Capharsalama. About five hundred of Nicanor's army were killed, and the rest escaped to the city of David.

33 After these events, Nicanor went up to Mount Zion, and some of the priests and members of the senate came out from the temple to give him a friendly welcome, and to show him the burnt-offering which was being sacrificed for the king. But he mocked them, jeered at them, and spat on them,<sup>q</sup> boasting and swearing angrily: 'Unless Judas and his army are surrendered to me at once, when I return victorious I will burn down this house.' And he went off 36 in a rage. Thereupon the priests went in, and stood facing the altar and the 37 temple. They wept and said: 'Thou didst choose this house to bear thy name, to be a house of prayer and 38 supplication for thy people; take vengeance on this man and his army, and make them fall by the sword. Remember all their blasphemy, and grant them no reprieve.'

Nicanor moved from Jerusalem and 39 encamped at Beth-horon, where he was joined by an army from Syria. Judas 40 encamped at Adasa with three thousand men; there he prayed in these words: 'There was a king whose followers 41 blasphemed, and thy angel came forth and struck down one hundred and 42 eighty-five thousand of them. So do thou crush this army before us today, and let all men know that Nicanor has 43 reviled thy holy place; judge him as his wickedness deserves.'

The armies joined battle on the 43 thirteenth of the month Adar, and the army of Nicanor suffered a crushing defeat, he himself being the first to fall in the battle. When his army saw that 44 Nicanor had fallen, they threw away their arms and took to flight. The 45 Jews, sounding the signal trumpets in the enemy's rear, pursued them as far as Gazara, a day's journey from Adasa. From all the villages of Judaea 46 round about, the inhabitants came out and attacked their flanks, forcing them back upon their pursuers. They all fell by the sword; there were no survivors. The Jews seized spoil and booty; 47 they cut off Nicanor's head and that right hand which he had stretched out so arrogantly, and brought them to be displayed at Jerusalem. There was 48 great public rejoicing and that day was kept as a special day of jubilation. It 49 was ordained that the day should be observed annually, on the thirteenth of Adar. Thus Judaea entered upon a short 50 period of peace.

NOW JUDAS HAD HEARD ABOUT THE 8 Romans: they were renowned for their

<sup>q</sup> Literally and polluted them.

7.26-50: Nicanor's defeat. See 2 Macc.14.11-15.37. 26: Nicanor had ample reason (3.38-4.25) to be Israel's bitter enemy. Formerly in charge of the king's elephants, he was now made governor of Judea (2 Macc.14.12). 27-30: 2 Macc.14.18-30 records a brief period of peace and friendship between Judas and Nicanor which is omitted here. 31: Capharsalama is about seven miles from Jerusalem. 32: City of David: Jerusalem. 33: The sacrifice offered for the king was proof of basic loyalty to the empire. 34-38: Contrast Nicanor's attitude with that expressed in Isa.56.6-8. 41: Judas refers to the angelic slaughter (plague may be meant) of Sennacherib's army besieging Jerusalem (2 Kgs.19.35; 2 Macc.15.22). 43: Adar: March, 160 B.C. 49: The feast of Nicanor was dropped from the Jewish calendar after the destruction of the Temple in 70 A.D.

8.1-32: Judas' treaty with the Romans. Hoping to curb the Seleucids, Judas allied himself military power and for the welcome they gave to those who became their allies; any who joined them could be sure of their firm friendship. He was told about the wars they had fought, and the valour they had shown in their conquest of the Gauls, whom they had laid under tribute. He heard of their successes in Spain, where they had seized silver-mines and gold-mines, maintaining their hold on the entire country—distant as it was from their own land—by their patience and good judgement. There were kings from far and near who had marched against them, but they had been beaten off after crushing defeats; others paid them annual tribute.

They had crushed in battle and conquered Philip, and Perseus king of Kittim, and all who had attacked them. Antiochus the Great, king of Asia, had marched against them with one hundred and twenty elephants, with cavalry and chariots and an immense force, but they had totally defeated him. They had taken the king alive, and had required that he and his successors should pay them a large annual tribute, give hostages, and cede the territories of India, Media, and Lydia, together with some of their finest provinces. These they had taken from him and given to King Eumenes.

When the Greeks planned to attack and destroy them, they heard of it and sent a single general against them. Battle was joined, and many of the Greeks fell; the Romans took their women and children prisoner, plundered their territory and annexed it, razed their fortifications, and made them slaves, as they are to this day. The remaining kingdoms, the islands, and all who had ever opposed them, they destroyed or reduced to slavery. With their friends, however, and who put themselves under their protection, they maintained firm friendship. They thus conquered kings near and far, and all who heard their fame went in fear of them. Those whom they wished to help and to appoint as kings, became kings, and those they wished to depose, they deposed; and thus they rose to great heights of power. For all this, not one of them made any personal claim to greatness by wearing the crown or donning the purple. They had established a senate where three hundred and twenty senators met daily to deliberate, giving constant thought to the proper ordering of the affairs of the common people. They entrusted their government and the ruling of all their territory to one of their number every year, all obeying this one man without envy or jealousy among themselves.

Judas accordingly chose Eupolemus son of John son of Accos, and Jason son of Eleazar, and sent them to Rome to conclude a treaty of friendship and alliance, so that the Romans might rid them of tyranny, for it was clear that the Greek empire was reducing Israel to slavery. They made the long journey to Rome and entered the Senate, where they spoke as follows: 'Judas, known as Maccabaeus, his brothers, and the Jewish people have sent us to you to conclude a treaty of friendly alliance with you, so that we may be enrolled as your allies and friends.' The Romans with the Romans, who seized the opportunity to befriend an enemy of Demetrius while extending their own influence. 2: The Cisalpine Gauls were conquered very easily in the second century B.C. 5: Philip V of Macedon (Kittim) was defeated in 197 B.C.; Perseus, Philip's son, was defeated in 168 B.C. 6–8: Antiochus (III) the Great, king of Asia, i.e. the lands at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, lost to Lucius Scipio at Magnesia (now western Turkey) in 190 B.C. The author uses an exaggerated report; Antiochus had only fifty-four elephants and was not captured. Under the treaty of Apamea (188 B.C.), Antiochus and his successors had to pay tribute (see 2 Macc. 8.10) and give hostages; see 1.10 n. 8: Ionia (here by scribal error, India), Mysia (here, Media), and Lydia, territories in Asia Minor, were ceded to Eumenes II of Pergamum (in western Turkey), an ally of Rome at Magnesia. 9–10: The Roman consul Lucius Mummius defeated the Achaean League of Greek city-states in 146 B.C. The author gets ahead of himself here; in 160 B.C., Judas would not have heard of this. 13: Among the kings appointed by the Romans was Alexander Balas (10.1). 15–16: It was three hundred (not three hundred and twenty) Roman senators, who did not meet daily, nor did they elect one man, but two consuls, who ruled jointly. While very pro-Roman in his report, the author has an imperfect knowledge of Rome's government. 17: John, the father of Eupolemus, had earlier won concessions for the

---

22 found the proposal acceptable, and the following is a copy of the reply which they inscribed on tablets of bronze and sent to Jerusalem, so that the Jews there might have a record of the treaty of alliance:

23 Success to the Romans and the Jewish nation by sea and land for ever! May sword and foe be far from them! But if war breaks out first against Rome or any of her allies throughout her dominion, then the Jewish nation shall support them whole-heartedly as occasion may require. To the enemies of Rome or of her allies the Jews shall neither give nor supply provisions, arms, money, or ships; so Rome has decided; and they shall observe their commitments, without compensation.

27 Similarly, if war breaks out first against the Jewish nation, then the Romans shall give them hearty support as occasion may require. To their enemies there shall be given neither provisions, arms, money, nor ships; so Rome has decided. These commitments shall be kept without breach of faith.

29 These are the terms of the agreement which the Romans have made with the Jewish people. But if, hereafter, both parties shall agree to add or to rescind anything, then they shall do as they decide; any such addition or rescindment shall be valid.

31 To this the Romans added: As for the misdeeds which King Demetrius is perpetrating against the Jews, we have written to him as follows: 'Why have you oppressed our friends and allies the Jews so harshly? If they make any further complaint against you, then we will see that justice is done them, and will make war upon you by sea and by land.'

When Demetrius heard that Nicanor 9 and his forces had fallen in battle, he sent Bacchides and Alcimus a second time into Judaea, with the right wing of his army. They marched along the 2 Gilgal road, laid siege to Messaloth in Arbela, and captured it, inflicting heavy loss of life.

In the first month of the year 152,<sup>r</sup> 3 they moved camp to Jerusalem. From 4 there they marched to Berea with twenty thousand infantry and two thousand cavalry. Now Judas was in 5 camp at Alasa, with three thousand picked men. But when they saw the size 6 of the enemy forces, their courage failed, and many deserted, leaving a mere eight hundred men in the field.

When Judas saw that with the 7 campaign going against him his army had melted away, his heart sank, for there was no time to rally them. Though much discouraged, he said to 8 those who were left, 'Let us move to the attack and see if we can defeat them.' But his men tried to dissuade 9 him: 'Impossible!' they said. 'No; let us save our lives now and come back later with our comrades to fight them. Now we are too few.' But Judas replied: 10 'Heaven forbid that I should do such a thing as run away! If our time is come, let us die bravely for our fellow-countrymen, and leave no stain on our honour.'

The Syrian army left its camp and 11 took up position to meet the Jews. The cavalry<sup>s</sup> was divided into two detachments; the slingers and the archers went ahead of the main force, and the picked troops were in the front line. Bacchides was on the right. 12 The phalanx came on in two divisions with trumpets sounding; Judas's men 13 also sounded their trumpets. The earth shook at the din of the armies as

<sup>r</sup> That is 160 B.C.

<sup>s</sup> The Syrian army . . . cavalry; or The Jewish army left its camp and stood to meet the enemy. The Syrian cavalry . . .

Jews from Antiochus III (2 Macc.4.11). 22: Josephus says that the tablets of bronze were kept in Rome's capitol (Ant. XII.10.6); a copy was sent in a letter to Judas. 23-30: The treaty follows the standard Roman form for a treaty between equals. 31: This addition came separately; it is not part of the treaty.

9.1-22: The defeat and death of Judas. 1: As before (7.8-10), the king sent an army too large for Judas to defeat in open battle. 2: Messaloth in Arbela: about three miles west of Lake Gennesaret. 4-5: Berea is located ten miles north of Jerusalem; Alasa is less than a mile away.

battle was joined, and they fought from dawn until evening.

14 When Judas saw that Bacchides and the main strength of his army was on the right flank, all his stout-hearted
15 men rallied to him, and they broke the Syrian right; then he pursued them as 16 far as Mount Azotus. When the Syrians on the left wing saw that their right had been broken, they turned about and followed on the heels of Judas and his men, attacking them in the 17 rear. The fighting became very heavy,
18 and many fell on both sides. Judas himself fell, and the rest of the Jews 19 took to flight. Jonathan and Simon carried off Judas their brother; they buried him in the family tomb at 20 Modin, and wept over him. Great was the grief in Israel, and they mourned for many days, saying,

21 'How is our champion fallen,
the saviour of Israel!'

22 The rest of the history of Judas, his wars, exploits, and achievements—all these were so numerous that they have not been written down.

23 AFTER THE DEATH OF JUDAS THE renegades raised their heads in every part of Israel, and all the evil-doers
24 reappeared. In those days a terrible famine broke out, and the country went 25 over to their side. Bacchides chose apostates to be in control of the country.
26 These men set inquiries on foot, and tracked down the friends of Judas and brought them before Bacchides, who took vengeance on them, loading them with indignities. It was a time of 27 great affliction for Israel, worse than any since the day when prophets ceased to appear among them. Then all the 28 friends of Judas assembled and said to Jonathan: 'Since your brother Judas

29 died, there has not been a man like him to take the lead against our enemies, Bacchides and those of our own nation who are hostile to us. Today, 30 therefore, we choose you to succeed him as our ruler and leader and to fight our battles.' So Jonathan took over the 31 leadership at that time in place of his brother Judas.

The news reached Bacchides, and he 32 set himself to kill Jonathan. When 33 Jonathan and his brother Simon and all their men learnt of this, they took refuge in the desert of Tekoa, encamping by the pool of Asphar. Bacchides discovered this on the sabbath, 34 and crossed the Jordan with his whole army. So Jonathan sent his brother 35 John to take the camp followers and appeal to his friends the Nabataeans to look after their baggage train, which was of some size. But the Jambrites
36 appeared from Medaba and kidnapped John; they seized the baggage and made off with it. Some time afterwards, news
37 was brought to Jonathan and his brother Simon that the Jambrites were celebrating an important wedding, and bringing the bride, the daughter of one of the great nobles of Canaan, from Nadabath with a large retinue. Remembering how their brother John
38 had been killed, Jonathan and his men

15: Mount Azotus is a scribal error for Mount Hazor, some six miles from Berea; see 2 Sam. 13.23; Neh. 11.33. 19: Later, Simon turned the family tomb at Modin into a monument; see 13.25–30. 22: This verse echoes the stock phrase used of the kings (1 Kgs. 11.41).

9.23–73: Jonathan continues the struggle. Jonathan improves the Jewish position through political and military activity and fortifies Judea.

9.23–31: Jonathan replaces Judas. Passing over Simon, the elder brother, for reasons unknown to us, the Jews chose Jonathan to lead them. 24: Since the king's men controlled food supplies, the famine brought about desertions to their side. 27: Malachi is the last of the universally recognized prophets in the Bible (about 500–450 B.C.), but scholars discern the presence of later prophetic material in other books, as in Zech. chs. 9–14, which speak of the Greeks and describe conditions during the Greek period of the fourth and third centuries B.C. The author also notes the lack of a prophet in 4.46; 14.41.

9.32–49: Jonathan escapes Bacchides. 33: The mountainous and deserted region about Tekoa enabled Jonathan to evade pursuit and to assemble his forces. 34: This verse is a misplaced repetition of the substance of v. 43. 35: Nabataeans: see 5.25 n. 36: The Jambrites, probably an Arab tribe, were based at Medaba, a city some fifteen miles southeast of the Jordan's entrance into the Dead Sea. They not only kidnapped John, they killed him (vv. 38,42). 37: The Greek translator misread the original Heb. kenaani, "trader," as the ancient name for the Holy Land, Canaan. This was a great merchant's daughter. Nadabath (= Nabatha =

39 set out and hid themselves under cover of a hill. They looked out and there they saw the bridegroom, in the middle of a bustling crowd and a train of baggage, coming to meet the bridal party, escorted by his friends and kinsmen fully armed, to the sound of drums and instruments of music.
40 Emerging from ambush, Jonathan attacked and cut them down; many fell, while others made off into the hills and the Jews took all their goods as 41 spoil. So the wedding was turned into mourning, and the sound of music to 42 lamentation. The blood of their brother was fully avenged, and Jonathan returned to the marshes of Jordan.

43 Bacchides heard this and came to the banks of Jordan on the sabbath
44 with a powerful force. Jonathan said to his men: 'Now is the time to fight for our lives; we are today in worse 45 plight than ever: the enemy in front, the water of Jordan behind, to right and left marsh and thicket; there is 46 no escape. Cry to Heaven to save you from the hands of the enemy.' Battle 47 was joined, and Jonathan had raised his hand to strike down Bacchides, when he fell back and evaded him.
48 Then Jonathan and his men leapt into the Jordan and swam over to the other side; but the enemy did not cross the 49 river in pursuit. The army of Bacchides lost about a thousand men that day.

50 Bacchides returned to Jerusalem and fortified with high walls, gates, and bars a number of places in Judaea: the fortress at Jericho, Emmaus and Beth-horon, Bethel, Timnath-pharathon, and Tephon; in all of these he placed garrisons to harass Israel. He 52 fortified the towns of Bethsura and Gazara and the citadel, placing forces and stores of provisions there. He took 53 the sons of the leading men of the country as hostages and put them under guard in the citadel at Jerusalem.

In the second month of the year 54 153,<sup>t</sup> Alcimus gave orders for the wall of the inner court of the temple to be demolished, thereby destroying the work of the prophets. But at the 55 moment when he began demolition, Alcimus had a stroke, which put a stop to his activities. Paralysed and with his speech impaired, he could not utter a word or give final instructions about his property. Thus he died in 56 great torment. On learning that Alcimus was dead, Bacchides returned 57 to the king, and for two years Judaea had peace.

Then the renegades put their heads 58 together: 'Look!' they said, 'Jonathan and his people are living in peace and security. Let us bring Bacchides here; he will capture them all in a single 59 night.' They went and conferred with Bacchides, and he set out with a large 60 force, sending letters secretly to all his supporters in Judaea, with instructions to seize Jonathan and his men. But they were unable to do so, because their plan leaked out. About 61 fifty of the ringleaders of this villainy in Judaea were seized and put to death. Jonathan, Simon, and their men then 62 made their way out to Bethbasi in the desert, built up its ruined fortifications, and strengthened it. When Bacchides 63

<sup>t</sup> That is 159 B.C.

Nebo) was a little town on Mount Nebo not far from Medaba. 42: Blood vengeance was considered a duty by ancient Semitic peoples. In desert regions, it was a deterrent to the type of crime committed against John. 43: Bacchides thought ambush on the sabbath would add to the surprise. 44-48: When the trap was sprung, in one of the many loops of the Jordan where it enters the Dead Sea, Jonathan had to abandon his spoils and save his men. Bacchides blocked his way; Jambrites probably pursued. Fighting his way through, Jonathan crossed to the west bank and the safety of his camp. Bacchides did not follow, perhaps pausing to pick up the spoils. 49: A thousand casualties, the report of the partisan, seems exaggerated.

9.50-53: Bacchides fortifies Judea. Bacchides assured Seleucid control of Judea by fortifying strategic sites. Timnath-pharathon, and Tephon were in Samaria and governed the northern approaches to Judea. The hostages guaranteed the cooperation of their fathers.

9.54-57: Alcimus dies. The author views the death of Alcimus as punishment for his ordering the destruction of the wall separating the inner court, to which the Israelites had access, from the outer court, where Gentiles were permitted. 54: The prophets whose work Alcimus destroyed were Haggai and Zechariah, who had brought about reconstruction of the Temple (520-516 B.C.), after the Babylonian Exile. 57: Judaea had peace, because Bacchides had effectively curbed Jewish resistance for a time.

9.58-73: Jonathan escapes and defeats Bacchides. 62: Bethbasi lay between Bethlehem and learnt of this, he gathered together all his army and sent word to those in 64 Judaea. He came and took up position against Bethbasi, and attacked it for a 65 long time, erecting siege-engines. Jonathan left his brother Simon in the town and slipped out into the country 66 with a few men. He attacked Odomera and his people and the Phasirites in 67 their encampment; he began to get the better of them and to advance towards Bethbasi with his forces.

Simon and his men made a sally out of the town and set fire to the siege-engines. They fought Bacchides and 68 defeated him. They kept up heavy pressure upon him, and so his plan and his expedition proved fruitless. 69 There was great anger against the renegades at whose instance he had invaded the land, and many of them were put to death. Bacchides then decided to return to his own country. 70 When Jonathan learnt of this, he sent envoys to Bacchides to arrange terms of peace with him and a return of the 71 Jewish prisoners. Bacchides agreed and did as Jonathan proposed, swearing to do him no harm for the rest of his 72 life. He sent him back the prisoners he had taken previously from Judaea, and returned to his own country; never 73 again did he enter their territory. So the war came to an end in Israel. Jonathan took up residence in Michmash and began to govern the people, rooting the godless out of Israel.

Jonathan rules the nation

10 IN THE YEAR 160,<sup>u</sup> ALEXANDER EPIPHANES son of Antiochus came and took possession of Ptolemais, where he was 2 welcomed and proclaimed king. When King Demetrius heard of this, he 3 raised a huge army and marched out to meet him in battle. At the same 4 time Demetrius sent Jonathan a letter in friendly and flattering terms; for he 5 said to himself, 'Let us forestall Alexander by making peace with the Jews before Jonathan comes to terms with 6 him against us, for he will remember all the harm we have done him by our 7 treatment of his brothers and of his nation.' He gave Jonathan authority to 8 collect and equip an army, conferred on him the title of ally, and ordered the hostages in the citadel to be handed 9 over to him. Jonathan came to Jerusalem and read the letter aloud before 10 all the people and the garrison of the citadel, who were filled with apprehension 11 when they heard that the king had given Jonathan authority to raise 12 an army. They surrendered the hostages 13 to him, and he restored them to their parents.

Jonathan took up his quarters in 10 Jerusalem and began to repair and rebuild the city. He gave orders to 11 those engaged on the work to build the walls and surround Mount Zion with a fortification of squared stones, 12 and this was done. The foreigners in the strongholds which Bacchides had built 13 made their escape, each man leaving his post and returning to his own country; 14 however, in Bethsura there were still left some of those who had abandoned the law and ordinances, and had found asylum there.

King Alexander heard of the promises which Demetrius had sent to

<sup>u</sup> That is 152 B.C.

Tekoa, about three miles north and slightly east of the latter. 66: Odomera and the Phasirites were presumably allies of Bacchides whom Jonathan surprised at night before they could join the siege at Bethbasi. 68–69: Conditions elsewhere in the empire must have brought about the recall of Bacchides and forced him to make a treaty with the unruly Jonathan. See, similarly, 6.55–61. 70: The return of the Jewish prisoners did not include the hostages in the citadel (9.53; 10.6). 73: From Michmash, eight miles northeast of Jerusalem, the emboldened Jonathan continued the purge of his enemies.

10.1–12.53: Jonathan is appointed high priest and wields both political and religious authority. Demetrius makes overtures.

10.1–21: Jonathan is courted by rival kings. 1: Alexander Balas (150–145 B.C.) also called Epiphanes (because he claimed Antiochus IV was his father) took possession of Ptolemais by treason, according to Josephus (Ant. XIII.2.1). 2: Alexander lost this first battle. 6–14: Jonathan took full advantage of Demetrius' situation and promises, even though he was going over to Alexander. 9: The hostages: see 9.50–53 n. 10: Rebuild the city: see 1.31; 4.60. 12: The foreigners may have gone to help Demetrius. 14: Bethsura, Gazara (11.41; 13.43) and the citadel at Jonathan, and was told of the battles and heroic deeds of Jonathan and his brothers, and the hardships they had endured. 'Where shall we ever find another man like this?' he exclaimed. 'Let us make him our friend and ally.' He therefore wrote a letter to Jonathan to this effect:

King Alexander to his brother Jonathan, greeting.

We have heard about you, what a valiant man you are and how fit to be our friend. Now therefore we do appoint you this day to be High Priest of your nation with the title of King's Friend, to support our cause and to keep friendship with us.

He sent him a purple robe and a gold crown.

Jonathan assumed the vestments of the high priest in the seventh month of the year 160<sup>v</sup> at the Feast of Tabernacles, and he gathered an army together and prepared a large supply of arms.

When this news reached Demetrius he was mortified. 'How did we come to let Alexander forestall us', he asked, 'in gaining the friendship and support of the Jews? I too will send them cordial messages and offer honours and gifts to keep them on my side.' So he sent a message to the Jews to this effect:

King Demetrius to the Jewish nation, greeting.

We have heard with great pleasure that you have kept your agreements and remained in friendship with us and have not gone over to our enemies. Continue, then, to keep faith with us, and we shall reward you well for all that you do in our cause, both by granting you numerous exemptions and making you gifts.

I hereby release and exempt you and all Jews whatsoever from tribute, from the tax on salt, and from the crown-money. From today and hereafter I release you from the one-third of the grain-harvest and the half of the fruit-harvest due to me. From today and for all time, I will no longer exact them from Judaea or from the three administrative districts, formerly part of Samaria and Galilee, which I now attach to Judaea. Jerusalem and its environs, with its tithes and tolls, shall be sacred and tax free. I also surrender authority over the citadel in Jerusalem and grant the High Priest the right to garrison it with men of his own choice. All Jewish prisoners of war taken from Judaea into any part of my kingdom, I set at liberty without ransom. No man shall exact any levy whatsoever on the cattle of the Jews. All their festivals, sabbaths, new moons, and appointed days, and three days preceding and following each festival, shall be days of exemption and release for all the Jews in my kingdom; no one shall have authority to impose any exaction or burden on a Jew in any respect.

Jews shall be enlisted in the forces of the King to the number of thirty thousand men; they shall receive the usual army pay. Some of them shall be stationed in the great royal fortresses, others put in positions of trust in the kingdom. Their commanders and officers shall be of their own race, and they shall follow their own customs, just as the King has ordered for Judaea.

The three districts added to Judaea from the territory of Samaria shall be attached to Judaea so as to be

<sup>v</sup> That is 152 B.C.

Jerusalem (Ant. XIII.21.1) received the renegade Jews. 20: Jonathan already belonged to a priestly family (2.1). The purple robe and gold crown symbolized the high priesthood. The purple robe also identified Jonathan as a King's Friend (see 2.18 n.). 21: For the Feast of Tabernacles, see Lev.23.33-36. By officiating, Jonathan implicitly declared himself for Alexander.

10.22-50: Demetrius appeals to the Jewish nation as a whole. 30: The three . . . districts (11.34) are Apherema (= Ephraim; Jn.11.54), Lydda, and Ramathaim (= Aramathea, Mk.15.43). 31: Being sacred, Jerusalem could pay its taxes to God (via the Temple) instead of to the king. 32: Demetrius recognized the status of High Priest conferred on Jonathan by Alexander! 36: Jewish soldiers would be paid as usual, but at the king's expense and not, as under one authority, and subject to the High Priest alone.

39 Ptolemais and the lands belonging to it I make over to the temple in 40 Jerusalem, to meet the expenses proper to it. I give fifteen thousand silver shekels annually, charged on my own royal accounts, to be drawn from such places as may prove convenient.
 41 And the arrears of the subsidy, in so far as it has not been paid by the revenue officials, as it formerly was, shall henceforth be paid in for the needs of the temple. In addition, the five thousand silver shekels which used to be taken from the annual income of the temple are also released, because they belong to the ministering priests. Whoever shall take sanctuary in the temple of Jerusalem, or in any part of its precincts, because of a debt to the crown or any other debt, shall be free from distraint on his person or on his property within my kingdom.
 44 The cost of the rebuilding and repair of the temple shall be borne by the royal revenue; also the repair of the walls of Jerusalem and its surrounding fortification, as well as of the fortresses in Judaea, shall be at the expense of the royal revenue.

46 When Jonathan and the people heard these proposals, they did not believe or accept them, for they recalled the terrible calamity the king had brought upon Israel, and his harsh oppression. They favoured Alexander, because it was he who had been the initiator of peaceful overtures; so they remained his allies to the end.

48 King Alexander mustered powerful forces and took up position against Demetrius, and the two kings joined battle. The army of Alexander took to flight, and Demetrius pursued him and got the better of them. He fought hard till sunset, but on that day Demetrius fell.

51 Thereupon Alexander sent ambassadors to Ptolemy king of Egypt, with a message to this effect: 'I have returned to my kingdom and sit on the throne of my ancestors. I have assumed the government, defeated Demetrius, and made myself master of our country; for I gave him battle, and he and his army were crushed by us, and we sit on the throne of his kingdom. Let us now form an alliance; make me your son-in-law by giving me your daughter in marriage, and I will give presents to you and her worthy of your royal state.'

King Ptolemy replied: 'It was a happy day when you returned to the land of your ancestors and ascended the throne of their realm. I will now do as you ask; only come to Ptolemais so that we may meet, and I will become your father-in-law as you propose.'

In the year 162,<sup>w</sup> Ptolemy set out from Egypt, with his daughter Cleopatra, and arrived at Ptolemais, where King Alexander met him, and Ptolemy gave him his daughter in marriage. The wedding was celebrated in royal style, with great pomp.

King Alexander wrote to Jonathan to come and meet him. Jonathan went in state to Ptolemais, where he met the two kings; he gave them silver and gold, and also made many gifts to their Friends; and so he won their favour.

There were some scoundrelly Jewish renegades who conspired to lodge complaints against Jonathan. The king, however, paid no attention to them, but gave orders for Jonathan to be divested of the garment he wore and robed in purple, and this was done. The king made him sit at his side, and told his officers to go with Jonathan into the centre of the city and proclaim that no one should bring any complaint against him or make trouble for him for any reason whatsoever. When this proclamation was made and those who planned to lodge complaints saw Jonathan's splendour, and the purple robe he wore, they all made off. Thus the king honoured him, enrolling him in the first class of the order of King's was customary, at Judea's. 39: Demetrius gave away Ptolemais, which Alexander held (10.1).

<sup>w</sup> That is 150 B.C.

10.51-66: Jonathan at Alexander's wedding. Alexander married Cleopatra Thea, daughter of Ptolemy VI Philometor (180-145 B.C.). 65: First . . . King's Friends: see 2.18 n. Governor: presumably of Judea.

66 Friends, and making him a general and a provincial governor. Jonathan returned to Jerusalem well pleased with his success.

67 IN THE YEAR 165,<sup>x</sup> DEMETRIUS, THE SON of King Demetrius, arrived in the land of his fathers from Crete. King Alexander was greatly upset by this news, and returned to Antioch. Demetrius appointed as his commander Apollonius the governor of Coele-syria, who raised a powerful force and encamped at Jamnia. From there he sent this message to Jonathan the high priest:

70 'You are all alone in resisting us, and you are making me look ridiculous and absurd. Why do you defy us up there in the hills? If you have confidence in your forces, come down to meet us on the plain, and let us try conclusions with each other there, for I have the power of cities behind me.

72 Make inquiries; find out who I am and who are our allies; you will be told that you cannot stand your ground against us, for your predecessors have twice

73 been routed in their own territory, and now you will not be able to resist my cavalry, and such a force as mine, on the plain, where there is not so much as a stone or a pebble to give you cover, or any place to which you can escape.'

74 Jonathan was provoked by this message from Apollonius. He took ten thousand men and marched out from Jerusalem, and was joined by his brother Simon with reinforcements.

75 He laid siege to Joppa, whose gates the citizens had closed against him because

76 Apollonius had a garrison there. But when fighting started, the citizens took fright and opened the gates; thus Jonathan became master of Joppa. When

77 Apollonius heard of it he took three thousand cavalry and a large force of infantry, and marched to Azotus as if to pass through it, but at the same time, relying on his numerous cavalry, he advanced into the plain. Jonathan went in pursuit as far as Azotus, where the armies joined battle. But Apollonius had left a thousand cavalry in hiding in their rear, and Jonathan discovered that there was an ambush behind him. The enemy surrounded his army, showering arrows on our people from dawn till dusk. But they stood fast as Jonathan had ordered them, and the enemy cavalry grew weary. At that point Simon led out his troops and joined battle with the enemy phalanx, now that the cavalry was exhausted. They were routed by him and took to flight.

The horsemen scattered across the plain and took refuge in Azotus, where they sought asylum in the temple of Dagon their idol. But Jonathan set fire to Azotus and its surrounding villages, and plundered them; the temple of Dagon, and those who had taken refuge there, he destroyed with fire. The numbers of those who fell by the sword, together with those who lost their lives in the fire, reached eight thousand. Jonathan marched away from Azotus, and encamped at Ascalon, where the citizens came out to meet him with great pomp. Then he and his men returned to Jerusalem loaded with spoil.

When King Alexander heard of all this, he did Jonathan still greater honour, sending him the gold clasp which it is the custom to give to the King's Kinsmen. He also presented him with Accaron and all its districts.

The king of Egypt collected a huge army, countless as the sand on the sea-shore, and a great fleet of ships, meaning to make himself master of Alexander's kingdom by treachery and add it to his own. He set out for Syria with professions of peace, and the people of the towns proceeded to open their gates to him and went to meet

x That is 147 B.C.

10.67-89: Jonathan defeats Apollonius. Demetrius II (145-139 and 129-125 B.C.), son of Demetrius I (161-150 B.C.), arrived in Cilicia to claim the Seleucid throne. 69: This Apollonius had helped Demetrius I to escape from Rome. 71-73: On the plains, the Jews often proved to be no match for the superior armaments—chariots, cavalry, elephants—of their enemies. 74-76: Jonathan's capture of Joppa cut Apollonius' line of communications. 77-87: Pretending to retreat even further southward, Apollonius lured Jonathan into the plain. Trapped, Jonathan won anyway, with the help of Simon's fresh reserves. 89: The gold clasp signifying Jonathan's new promotion fastened the recipient's purple cloak at the shoulder.

11.1-19: Alexander and Ptolemy fall out. 3: The garrisons indicate Ptolemy's treacherous him; King Alexander had ordered them to do this, because Ptolemy was his father-in-law.

3 As he went on his progress from town to town, Ptolemy left a detachment of troops in each of them as a
4 garrison. When he reached Azotus, he was shown the burnt-out temple of Dagon, the city itself and its ruined suburbs strewn with corpses, and, piled up along his way, the bodies of those who had been burned in the course
5 of the fighting. They told the king that it was Jonathan's doing, hoping that he would reprimand him; but the king
6 said nothing. Jonathan met him in state at Joppa, where they exchanged greet-7 ings and passed the night. Jonathan accompanied the king as far as the river Eleutherus and then returned to 8 Jerusalem. King Ptolemy made himself master of the coast towns as far as Seleucia-by-the-sea. He was harbouring malicious designs against Alexander.

9 He sent ambassadors to King Demetrius with the following message: 'I propose that you and I should make a pact: I will give you my daughter, now Alexander's wife, and you shall reign
10 over the kingdom of your father. I now regret having given my daughter to him, for he has tried to kill me.'

11 He maligned Alexander in this way because he coveted his kingdom, and he took his daughter away and gave her to Demetrius. This led to a breach between him and Alexander, and to open enmity.

13 Ptolemy now entered Antioch, where he assumed the crown of Asia; thus he wore two crowns, that of Egypt and that of Asia.

14 King Alexander was at this time in Cilicia, because the inhabitants of that region were in revolt. But when he heard the news he marched against Ptolemy, who came to meet him with a powerful 15 army and routed him. Alexander fled to Arabia for protection, and King Ptolemy was triumphant. Zabdiel the 17 Arab chieftain cut off Alexander's head and sent it to Ptolemy. But two 18 days later King Ptolemy died, and his garrisons in the fortresses were killed by the inhabitants. So in the year 167<sup>y</sup> 19 Demetrius became king.

At this time Jonathan gathered 20 together the Judaeans to assault the citadel in Jerusalem, and they brought up many siege-engines against it. But 21 a number of renegades, enemies of their own people, went to the king and reported that Jonathan was besieging the citadel. The king was furious at the 22 news and immediately moved his quarters to Ptolemais. He wrote to Jonathan ordering him to raise the siege, and to meet him for conference at Ptolemais with all speed.

When Jonathan received this letter,
23 he gave orders for the siege to be continued. Then, selecting elders of Israel and priests to accompany him, he set out on his dangerous mission. He took with him silver and gold, 24 and robes, and many other gifts, and went to meet the king at Ptolemais.

He won the favour of Demetrius, although some renegade Jews tried to lodge 25 complaints against him. But the king treated him just as his predecessors had done, honouring him in the presence of 26 all his Friends. He confirmed him in the high-priesthood and in all his former 27 dignities, and appointed him head of the first class of the King's Friends.

Jonathan requested the king to 28 exempt Judaea and the three Samaritan districts<sup>z</sup> from tribute, promising him in return three hundred talents. King 29 Demetrius consented, writing to Jonathan on all these affairs as follows:

King Demetrius to his brother Jonathan, and to the Jewish nation, greeting.

<sup>y</sup> That is 145 B.C.
<sup>z</sup> three . . . districts: probable reading; Gk. three districts and Samaria.

intent. 6-7: Apparently, Ptolemy deceived Jonathan. The Eleutherus river is the Nahr el-Kebir, nineteen miles north of Tripolis. 13: Ptolemy did not want all of Asia (i.e. the Seleucid empire; see 8.6) but only Palestine. He left the rest for Demetrius. 18: Ptolemy died of wounds received in battle with Alexander at the Oenoparas river near Antioch. 19: The sixteen-year-old Demetrius now began to call himself Nicator, "Conquerer," because of his success over Alexander.

11.20-53: Jonathan serves Demetrius. 20-27: Jonathan wins over the new king as he had Alexander (10.59-66). 30: Jonathan was brother or kinsman to Demetrius as he had once been

31 This is a copy of our letter written to our kinsman Lasthenes about you, which we have had made for your information:

32 'King Demetrius to his respected kinsman Lasthenes, greeting.

33 'Because our friends the Jewish nation show us goodwill, and observe their obligations to us, we are resolved to become their benefactor. We have therefore settled on them the lands of Judaea and the three districts, Apherema, Lydda, and Ramathaim, which are now transferred from Samaria to Judaea, together with all the lands adjacent thereto, for the benefit of the priesthood at Jerusalem. This is a transfer of the annual dues which the King formerly received from these territories, from the produce of the soil and of the orchards. Other of our revenues, the tithes and tolls now pertaining to us, the salt-pans, and the crown-money, all these we shall cede to them. These provisions are irrevocable from now for all future time. See to it then that you make a copy of them to be given to Jonathan and set by him in a conspicuous position on the holy mountain.'

38 When King Demetrius saw that the country was quiet under his rule and resistance was at an end, he disbanded all his forces, sending every man home, with the exception of the foreign mercenaries he had hired from the islands of the Gentiles. Then all the troops enlisted under his predecessors turned against the king. A certain Trypho, formerly of the party of Alexander, aware of the disaffection of all the forces towards Demetrius, went to Imalcue, the Arab chieftain, who had charge of the child Antiochus, Alexander's son, and kept pressing him to hand the boy over to him to be made king in succession to his father. He also informed Imalcue of all the measures Demetrius was taking and of his unpopularity with his troops. There he remained for some time.

Meanwhile Jonathan sent to King Demetrius requesting him to withdraw from the citadel in Jerusalem and from the fortresses, the garrisons which were constantly harassing Israel. Demetrius sent Jonathan this reply: 'I will not only meet your request, but when opportunity arises I will do you and your people the highest honour. And now be so good as to send men to support me, for all my troops are in revolt.'

Jonathan dispatched three thousand fighting men to Antioch, and the king was much relieved at their arrival. The citizens poured into the centre of the city, a hundred and twenty thousand strong, bent on killing the king. He took refuge in the palace, while the citizens seized control of the streets and fighting broke out. King Demetrius called the Jews to his assistance, and they rallied to him at once. They then dispersed all over the city and slaughtered that day as many as a hundred thousand, setting the city on fire and taking much booty. And thus they saved the king's life.

When the citizens saw that the Jews had the city completely at their mercy, their courage failed them and they clamoured to the king to accept their surrender and to stop the Jews fighting against them and the city. They threw down their arms and made peace; and the Jews, now in high repute with the king and all his subjects, returned to Jerusalem loaded with booty. But when King Demetrius was secure upon his throne, with the country quiet under him, he went back on all his promises to Alexander (10.89). 31: Lasthenes was leader of the Cretan mercenaries (10.67) and chief minister to the king. 32-37: Many of the privileges promised by Demetrius I (10.25-45) were confirmed by his son, but nothing is said of the citadel. Demetrius also confirmed Jonathan in the dignities conferred by Alexander (10.20,65). 38: The King kept his Cretan mercenaries (see 10.67), but he dismissed his regular army without its normal peacetime pay. 39: Diodotus Trypho changed sides frequently, having served Demetrius I, Alexander, Ptolemy, Demetrius II, and now Antiochus. 41: Demetrius I had not kept his promise (10.32) to give the citadel to the high priest. The other garrisons are Bethsura (10.14) and Gazara (13.43). 43: Trypho had sparked a revolt. 44-50: Actually, the Cretan mercenaries put down the revolt, according to the ancient historians Diodorus and Josephus, but Jewish aid turned the tide in the king's favor. 53: Severe pressure: the demand for tribute (according to Josephus, Ant. XIII.5.3).

and broke off relations with Jonathan; instead of repaying the benefits he had received, he put severe pressure upon him.

54 After this, Trypho returned, and with him Antiochus, a mere lad.
55 Antiochus was crowned, and all the forces Demetrius had so contemptuously discharged rallied to the king. These fought against Demetrius, and 56 he was utterly routed. Trypho brought up his elephants and made himself 57 master of Antioch. The young Antiochus wrote to Jonathan confirming him in the high-priesthood, with authority over the four districts, and making him
58 one of the King's Friends. He also sent him a service of gold plate, and gave him the right to drink from a gold cup, to be robed in purple, and to wear the gold clasp. He appointed Jonathan's brother Simon as officer commanding the area from the Ladder of Tyre to the borders of Egypt.
60 Jonathan made a tour through the country on the far side of the river and the towns there; and all the forces of Syria gathered to his support.

He went to Ascalon, where he was received with great honour by the citizens. From there he went on to Gaza, but the inhabitants closed the gates against him; so he blockaded the city, set fire to its suburbs, and plundered 62 them. The citizens of Gaza then sought peace, and he made terms with them, taking the sons of their magistrates as hostages and sending them off to Jerusalem; he himself continued his progress through the country in the direction of Damascus.

63 Jonathan heard that Demetrius's officers had arrived at Kedesh-in-Galilee with a large force to prevent 64 him from reaching his objective. He went to meet them, leaving his brother 65 Simon in Judaea. Simon took up position against Bethsura and, after prolonged fighting, blockaded it. Finally the citizens sued for terms of peace and Simon consented; he evicted them, took over the town, and installed a garrison there.

Jonathan, who had encamped with his army by the Lake of Gennesaret, marched out early in the morning into the plain of Asor. There in the plain the gentile army was advancing to meet him; they had set an ambush for him in the hills, while they themselves confronted him. When the men from the ambush emerged and joined in the fighting, all Jonathan's men took to flight; not one remained except Mattathias son of Absalom, and Judas son of Chalphi, officers in the army. Jonathan tore his clothes, put dust upon his head, and prayed. Then he turned upon the enemy and routed them in headlong flight. When the fugitives of Jonathan's army saw this, they rallied to him and joined in the pursuit as far as the enemy base at Kedesh; there they encamped. That day about three thousand of the Gentiles fell. Jonathan then returned to Jerusalem.

JONATHAN NOW SAW HIS OPPORTUNITY and sent picked men on a mission to Rome to confirm and renew the treaty of friendship with that city. He sent letters to the same effect to Sparta and to other places. The envoys travelled to Rome and went to the Senate House to deliver their message: 'Jonathan the High Priest and the Jewish people have sent us to renew their former pact of friendship and alliance.' The Romans gave them letters requiring the authorities in each place to give them safe conduct to Judaea.

Here follows a transcript of the letter which Jonathan wrote to the Spartans:

Jonathan the High Priest, the Senate of the Jews, the priests, and 11.54-74: Jonathan goes over to Antiochus. 54: Antiochus VI Epiphanes Dionysius was a mere lad dominated by his minister Trypho. 57: The four districts probably included those of 10.30 n., 38; 11.34. 59: The Ladder of Tyre, a series of mountainous ascents, lies north of Ptolemais. 61: Gaza and other coastal cities were still in Demetrius' control. 63: Kedesh was only twenty-two miles southeast of Tyre. 67: The plain of Asor (Hazor) is just west of the Jordan above the Sea of Galilee. 68: Demetrius' generals Sarpedon and Palamedes set the ambush. 70: Josephus says about fifty remained with Mattathias and Judas (Ant. XIII.5.7). 71: Tore his clothes . . . dust: signs of distress.

12.1-23: The treaties with Sparta and Rome. 2: The defeat of the Achaean League by the

the rest of the Jewish people, to our brothers of Sparta, greeting.

7 On a previous occasion a letter was sent to Onias the High Priest from Arius your king, acknowledging our kinship; a copy is given below.

8 Onias welcomed your envoy with full honours and received the letter in which the terms of the alliance and friendship were set forth. We do not regard ourselves as needing such alliances, since our support is the holy books in our possession. Nevertheless, we now venture to send and renew our pact of brotherhood and friendship with you, so that we may not become estranged, for it is many years since you wrote to us. We never lose any opportunity, on festal and other appropriate days, of remembering you at our sacrifices and in our prayers, as it is right and proper to remember kinsmen; and we rejoice at your fame. We ourselves have been under the pressure of hostile attacks on every side; all the surrounding kings have made war upon us. In the course of these wars we had no wish to trouble you or the rest of our allies and friends: we have the aid of Heaven to support us, and so we have been saved from our enemies, and they have been humbled. Accordingly, we chose Numenius son of Antiochus, and Antipater son of Jason, and have sent them to the Romans to renew our former friendship and alliance with them.

17 We instructed them to go to you also with our greetings, and to deliver this letter about the renewal of our pact of brotherhood. And now we pray you to send us a reply to this letter.

19 This is a copy of the letter sent by the Spartans to Onias:

20 Arius, King of Sparta, to Onias the High Priest, greeting.

A document has come to light which shows that Spartans and Jews are kinsmen, descended alike from Abraham. Now that we have learnt this, we beg you to write and tell us how your affairs prosper. The message we return to you is, 'What is yours, your cattle and every kind of property, is ours, and what is ours is yours', and we have therefore instructed our envoys to report to you in these terms.

Jonathan heard that Demetrius's generals had returned to attack him with larger forces than before. He marched from Jerusalem and met them in the region of Hamath, giving them no chance to set foot in his territory. He sent spies to their camp, who on their return reported that preparations were being made for a night attack. At sunset Jonathan gave orders to his men to stay awake and stand to arms all night, ready for battle; and he stationed outposts all round the camp. When the enemy heard that Jonathan and his men were ready for battle, they were alarmed; their courage failed, and they withdrew, first lighting watch-fires in their camp. Jonathan and his men, seeing the watch-fires burning, did not realize what had happened until morning. Then Jonathan set out in pursuit, but failed to overtake them, for they had crossed the river Eleutherus. So Jonathan turned aside against the Arabs called Zabadaeans, and he dealt them a severe blow and plundered them. He struck camp and came to Damascus, and then made a march through the whole country.

Simon set out and marched as far as Ascalon and the neighbouring fortresses. He then turned towards Joppa; he had heard that the citizens intended to hand it over to the supporters of Demetrius, but before they could do so, he occupied the town and placed a garrison there to defend it.

Romans in 146 B.C. brought Sparta to new prominence in Greece. 6: The Senate (gerousia) was the forerunner of the Sanhedrin. 7: Onias I (about 300 B.C.) received the letter of Arius I (309–265 B.C.). 10: A pact of brotherhood in the ancient world often resulted in the diplomatic fiction of a common ancestry (see v. 21). 16: Possibly the Jason of 8.17.

12.24–38: Further military activity. 25: The region of the "entrance to Hamath" lay between the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon ranges. 30: Eleutherus: see 11.6–7 n. 36: The defenses razed

35 When Jonathan returned he convened the senate. With their agreement he decided to build fortresses in 36 Judaea, to heighten the walls of Jerusalem, and to erect a high barrier to separate the citadel from the city and so to isolate it that the garrison could 37 not buy or sell. They assembled to rebuild the city, for the wall along the ravine to the east had partly collapsed, and he repaired the section of the wall 38 called Chaphenatha. Simon also rebuilt and fortified Adida in the Shephelah, erecting gates and bars.

39 Trypho now aspired to be king of Asia; he meant to rebel against King Antiochus and assume the crown
40 himself. But he was afraid that Jonathan would fight to prevent this, so he cast about for some means of capturing and killing him. He set off and reached 41 Bethshan. Jonathan marched out to meet him with forty thousand picked troops, and he also reached Bethshan.
42 Trypho, seeing that Jonathan had a large force with him, was afraid to 43 attack. So he received him honourably and commended him to all his Friends, gave him presents, and ordered his Friends and his troops to obey Jonathan as they would himself.
44 He said to Jonathan: 'Why have you put all these men to so much trouble,
45 when we are not at war? Send them home now and choose a few to accompany you, and come with me to Ptolemais. I will hand it over to you with all the other fortresses, the rest of the troops, and all the officials, and then I will leave the country. This is the only 46 purpose of my coming.' Jonathan took him at his word and did as he said: he dismissed his forces and they returned to Judaea. He kept back three 47 thousand men, of whom he left two thousand in Galilee, while a thousand accompanied him. But when Jonathan 48 entered Ptolemais, the citizens closed the gates, seized him, and put to the sword all who had entered with him.

Trypho sent a force of infantry and 49 cavalry into Galilee to the great plain, to wipe out all Jonathan's men. They 50 now learnt that Jonathan had been seized and was lost, along with his escort, but they put heart into one another and marched in close formation, ready for battle. When their pursuers saw that they would fight to the death, they turned back. So all came 52 safely home to Judaea, mourning for Jonathan and his followers, and filled with alarm. All Israel was plunged in grief. The surrounding Gentiles were 53 now bent on destroying them root and branch, saying to themselves, 'The Jews have no leader or champion, so now is the time to attack, and we shall blot out all memory of them among men.'

The high-priesthood of Simon

THE NEWS REACHED SIMON THAT TRYPHO 13 had mustered a large force for the invasion and destruction of Judaea, and it threw the people into a state of 2 panic. When Simon saw this, he went up to Jerusalem, called an assembly, and encouraged them in these words: 3 'I need not remind you of all that my brothers and I and my father's house have done for the laws and the holy place, what battles we have fought, what hardships we have endured. My 4 brothers have all fallen in this cause, fighting for Israel, and I am the only one left. Now Heaven forbid that I 5 should grudge my own life in any moment of danger, for I am not worth more than my brothers. No! I will take 6

by Antiochus IV (1.31) and Antiochus V (6.62) were only partially rebuilt (10.10). The citadel was to be starved out. 37: Chapfenatha is thought to have been in the new or "second quarter" of Jerusalem, northwest of the Temple. 38: Adida, northeast of Lydda, lay in the Shephelah, the foothills east of the coastal plain.

12.39-53: Jonathan is captured by Trypho. 41: Trypho's armed presence must have made Jonathan wary enough to bring troops. 43: Friends: see 2.18 n. 49: The great plain: Esdraelon. 52: Their mourning was premature; Jonathan died later (13.23).

13.1-16.24: The high-priesthood of Simon. Simon's victories and relatively peaceful reign led the people to make his rule hereditary.

13.1-30: Simon becomes leader and frustrates Trypho. 3: The holy place: the Temple. 4: Eventually, all five brothers died violently (6.46; 9.18,36-38; 13.23; 16.16). 11: The inhabitants up the cause of my nation and the holy place, of your wives and children, since all the Gentiles in their hatred have gathered to destroy us.' At these words the people plucked up courage, and they shouted in answer: 'You shall be our leader in place of Judas and your brother Jonathan. Fight our battles, and we will do whatever you tell us.' So Simon mustered all the fighting men and hurried on the completion of the walls of Jerusalem until it was fortified on all sides. He sent Jonathan son of Absalom with a considerable force to Joppa; he expelled its inhabitants and remained in possession of the town.

Trypho marched out from Ptolemais with a large force to invade Judaea, taking Jonathan with him as a prisoner. Simon encamped at Adida on the edge of the plain. When Trypho learnt that Simon had come forward to take the place of his brother Jonathan, and that he was about to join battle with him, he sent envoys to Simon with the following message: 'We are detaining your brother Jonathan because of certain monies which he owed to the royal treasury in connection with the offices he held. To ensure that he will not again revolt if we release him, send one hundred talents of silver and two of his sons as hostages, and we will let him go.' Simon himself realized that this was a trick, but he had the money and the children brought to him, fearing that otherwise he might arouse deep animosity among the people, who would say, 'It was because you did not send the money and the children that Jonathan lost his life.' So he sent the children and the hundred talents, but Trypho broke his word and did not release Jonathan.

After this, Trypho set out to invade the country and ravage it, taking a roundabout way through Adora. Simon and his army marched parallel with him everywhere he went. Meanwhile the garrison of the citadel were sending emissaries to Trypho, urging him to come to them by way of the desert, and to send them provisions. Trypho prepared to send all his cavalry, but that night there was a severe snow-storm, which prevented their arrival; so he withdrew into Gilead. When he reached Bascama, he had Jonathan put to death, and there he was buried. Trypho then turned and went back to his own country.

Simon had the body of his brother Jonathan brought to Modin, and buried in the town of their fathers; and all Israel made a great lamentation and mourned him for many days. Simon built a high monument over the tomb of his father and his brothers, visible at a great distance, faced back and front with polished stone. He erected seven pyramids, those for his father and mother and his four brothers arranged in pairs. For the pyramids he contrived an elaborate setting: he surrounded them with great columns surmounted with trophies of armour for a perpetual memorial, and between the trophies carved ships, plainly visible to all at sea. This mausoleum which he made at Modin stands to this day.

Trypho now plotted against the young King Antiochus and murdered him. He usurped his throne and assumed the crown of Asia. This was a disaster for the country.

Simon rebuilt the fortresses of Judaea, furnishing them with high towers and great walls with gates and bars; he also provisioned the fortresses. He sent representatives to King Demetrius to negotiate a remission of taxes for the country, on the ground that all Trypho's exactions had been exorbitant. Demetrius replied favourably to this request and wrote him a letter in the following terms:

King Demetrius to Simon the High Priest and friend of kings, and of Joppa were politically unreliable (12.33-34); see, similarly, 11.66. 16: The (ransom) money was in payment for the alleged debts, and the hostages were to assure Jonathan's compliance. 20: Adora (Dura): five miles southwest of Hebron. 21: The garrison needed provisions because of the siege (12.36). By way of the desert may have been via the Transjordan. 23: Bascama was located northeast of the Sea of Galilee. "Gilead" in v. 22 is the Greek text's error for "Galilee."

13.31-42: Simon supports Demetrius II again. 31: Actually, Trypho arranged for Antiochus VI's doctors to kill him during an operation in 139 B.C., some four years after he had deposed him. The crown of Asia was that of the Seleucid empire (8.6). 36: The letter repeats much of

to the Senate and nation of the Jews, greeting.

37 We have received the golden crown and the palm branch which you sent, and we are ready to make a lasting peace with you and to instruct the revenue officers to grant you immunities. All our agreements with you stand, and the strongholds which you built shall remain yours. 38 We give a free pardon for any errors of omission or commission, to take effect from the date of this letter. We remit the crown-money which you owed us, and every other tax formerly exacted in Jerusalem is henceforth cancelled. All those of 40 you who are suitable for enrolment in our retinue shall be so enrolled. Let there be peace between us.

41 In the year 170,<sup>a</sup> Israel was released 42 from the gentile yoke. The people began to write on their contracts and agreements, 'In the first year of Simon, the great high priest, general and leader of the Jews'.

43 Then Simon invested Gazara,<sup>b</sup> and surrounded it with his forces. He constructed a siege-engine and brought it up to the town, made a breach in 44 one of the towers and captured it. The men on the siege-engine leapt out of it into the town, and there was a great 45 commotion. The townspeople and their wives and children climbed up on to the city wall with their garments torn, clamouring to Simon to offer 46 them terms. 'Do not treat us as our wickedness deserves,' they cried, 'but 47 as your mercy prompts you.' Simon came to terms with them, and brought the war to an end. But he expelled them from the town, and after purifying the houses in which the idols stood, he made his entry with songs of thanksgiving and praise. He removed every 48 pollution from it and settled men in it who would keep the law. He strengthened its fortifications and built a residence there for himself.

The men in the citadel in Jerusalem 49 were prevented from going in and out to buy and sell in the country; famine set in and many of them died of starvation. They clamoured to Simon to 50 accept their surrender, and he agreed: he expelled them from the citadel and cleansed it from its pollutions. It was 51 on the twenty-third day of the second month in the year 171<sup>c</sup> that he made his entry, with a chorus of praise and the waving of palm branches, with lutes, cymbals, and zithers, with hymns and songs, to celebrate Israel's final riddance of a formidable enemy. Simon decreed that this day should be 52 observed as an annual festival. He fortified the temple hill opposite the citadel, and he and his men took up residence there. When Simon saw that 53 his son John had become a man, he made him commander of all the forces, with Gazara as his headquarters.

In the year 172,<sup>d</sup> King Demetrius 14 mustered his army and went into Media to recruit additional forces for his war against Trypho. When Arsakes 2 king of Persia and Media heard that Demetrius had entered his territories, he sent one of his generals to capture him alive. The general marched out and 3

<sup>a</sup> That is 142 B.C.
<sup>b</sup> Probable reading; Gk. Gaza.
<sup>c</sup> That is 141 B.C.
<sup>d</sup> That is 140 B.C.

11.33–37 (see 10.25–45). 37: The golden crown and the palm branch signify homage and allegiance. 39: These errors included support of Trypho. Remission of the crown-money (tribute), in effect, meant liberation (see v. 41). 40: Demetrius thought well of Jewish soldiers (11.41–51). 42: This first year was that of Simon's high priesthood and not the beginning of a new era, as the author thought.

13.43–53: Simon takes Gazara and the citadel. While Demetrius and Trypho were occupied with each other, Simon decided to remove the last hostile strongholds in Judea: Gazara (vv. 43–48) and the citadel (vv. 49–53). 44: The siege-engine was a tower as high as the city walls. 49: The siege may have lasted three years; see 12.36; 13.21. 50: The pollutions were pagan shrines; see 1.54. 51: This enemy had plagued Israel for over twenty-five years (1.33–36). 53: John Hyrcanus (134–104 B.C.) succeeded Simon as high priest.

14.1–3: The Parthian capture of Demetrius. Demetrius II (reigned 145–139 B.C. and 129–125 B.C.) went east to dislodge the Parthian King Mithridates I (also known dynastically as Arsakes VI, 171–138 B.C.) from captured Seleucid territories, as well as to gain troops. Captured by treachery, Demetrius was a Parthian prisoner until released in 129 B.C. He was murdered in 125 B.C.

defeated Demetrius, captured him and brought him to Arsakes, who put him in prison.

- 4 As long as Simon lived, Judaea was at peace. He promoted his people's welfare, and they lived happily all through the glorious days of his reign.
- 5 Among other notable achievements he captured the port of Joppa to secure his communications overseas. He extended his nation's territories and made himself master of the whole land.
- 6 He repatriated a large number of prisoners of war. Without meeting any resistance he gained control over Gazara and Bethsura and over the citadel, and removed their pollution.
- 7 They farmed their land in peace, and the land produced its crops, and the trees in the plains their fruit. Old men sat in the streets, talking together of their blessings; and the young men dressed themselves in splendid military style. Simon supplied the towns with food in plenty and equipped them with weapons for defence. His renown reached the ends of the earth. He restored peace to the land, and there were great rejoicings throughout Israel.
- 8 Each man sat under his own vine and fig-tree, and they had no one to fear.
- 9 Those were days when every enemy vanished from the land and every hostile king was crushed. Simon gave his protection to the poor among the people; he paid close attention to the law and rid the country of lawless and wicked men. He gave new splendour to the temple and furnished it with a wealth of sacred vessels.
- 10 THE REPORT OF JONATHAN'S DEATH reached Rome, and Sparta too, and they were deeply grieved. When they heard, however, that his brother Simon had become high priest in his place, and was in firm control of the country and the towns in it, they inscribed on bronze tablets a renewal of the treaty of friendship and alliance which they had established with his brothers Judas and Jonathan. This was read before the assembly in Jerusalem. The following is a copy of the letter from Sparta:

The rulers and city of Sparta to the High Priest Simon, to the Senate, the priests, and the rest of the Jewish people, our brothers, greeting.

The envoys you sent to our people have told us about your fame and honour; their visit has given us great pleasure. We have entered a transcript of the message they brought in the minutes of the public assembly: 'Numenius son of Antiochus, and Antipater son of Jason, envoys of the Jews, visited us to renew their treaty of friendship with us. It was resolved by the public assembly to receive these men with honour and to place a copy of their address in the public archives, so that the Spartans might have it on permanent record. A copy of this document has been made for Simon the High Priest.'

After this, Simon sent Numenius to Rome with a large gold shield, worth a thousand minas, to confirm the alliance with the Romans.

When the people heard of these events they asked themselves how they could show their gratitude to Simon and his sons. For he, with his brothers and his father's family, had stood firm, fought off the enemies of Israel, and ensured his nation's freedom. So an inscription was engraved on tablets of bronze and placed on a monument on Mount Zion. A copy of the inscription follows:

14.4-15: Simon's achievements. 6: Simon extended the nation's territories by the addition of Joppa, Gazara, and Bethsura. Josephus adds Jamnia (Ant. XIII.6.7). 7: Simon repatriated Galilean Jews (5.23). 8-15: Simon's reign has the blessings promised for observance of the Law. See Lev.26.3-4; Zech.3.10; 8.4. 12: That each man enjoy his own vine and fig-tree is an ancient expression for universal peace and contentment; see 1 Kgs.4.25; Isa.36.16; Mic.4.4.

14.16-24: Renewal of alliances with Rome and Sparta. In antiquity, when leadership changed, treaties were renewable. 17-19: The more important treaty with the Romans is placed first and summarized. 22: These were also Jonathan's envoys (12.16). 24: After this visit to Sparta, the envoys continued on to Rome.

14.25-49: The edict honoring Simon. The decree honors Simon in the way that Greek cities honored their benefactors. 27: Tablets of bronze preserved important documents (8.22 n.);

On the eighteenth day of the month Elul, in the year 172,<sup>e</sup> the third year of Simon's high-priesthood, at Asaramel, in a large assembly of priests, people, rulers of the nation, and elders of the land, the following facts were placed on record. Whereas our land had been subject to frequent wars, Simon son of Mattathias, a priest of the Joarib family, and his brothers, risked their lives in resisting the enemies of their people, in order that the temple and law might be preserved, and they brought great glory to their nation. Jonathan rallied the nation, became their high priest, and then was gathered to his fathers. Their enemies resolved to invade their land and destroy it, and to attack the temple. Then Simon came forward and fought for his nation. He spent large sums of his own money to arm the soldiers of his nation and to provide their pay. He fortified the towns of Judaea, and Bethsura on the boundaries of Judaea, formerly an enemy arsenal, and stationed a garrison of Jews there. He fortified Joppa by the sea, and Gazara near Azotus, formerly occupied by the enemy. There he settled Jews, and provided these towns with everything needful for their welfare. When the people saw Simon's patriotism and his resolution to win fame for his nation, they made him their leader and high priest, in recognition of all that he had done, of his just conduct, his loyalty to his nation, and his constant efforts to enhance its renown. His leadership was crowned with success, and the Gentiles were expelled from the land, as were also the troops in Jerusalem who had built themselves a citadel in the city of David, from which they sallied forth to bring defilement upon the whole precinct of the temple and do violence to its purity. He settled Jews in it and fortified it for the security of the land and of the city, and he raised the height of the walls of Jerusalem. King Demetrius confirmed him in the office of high priest, made him one of his Friends, and granted him the highest honours; for he had heard that the Romans were naming the Jews friends, allies, and brothers, and had gone in state to meet Simon's envoys.

The Jews and their priests confirmed Simon as their leader and high priest in perpetuity until a true prophet should appear. He was to be their general, and to have full charge of the temple; and in addition to this the supervision of their labour, of the country, and of the arms and fortifications was to be entrusted to him. He was to be obeyed by all; all contracts in the country were to be drawn up in his name. He was to wear the purple robe and the gold clasp.

None of the people or the priests shall have authority to abrogate any of these decrees, to oppose commands issued by Simon or convene any assembly in the land without his consent, to be robed in purple, or to wear the gold clasp. Whoever shall contravene these provisions or neglect any of them shall be liable to punishment. It is the unanimous decision of the people that Simon shall officiate in the ways here laid down. Simon has agreed and consented to be high priest, general and ethnarch of the Jews and the priests, and to be the protector of them all.

This inscription, it was declared, should be engraved on bronze tablets and set up within the precincts of the temple in a conspicuous position, and copies should be placed in the treasury, in the keeping of Simon and his sons.

<sup>e</sup> That is 140 B.C.

14.18). 28: The Heb. phrase for at Asaramel means "as prince of the people of God." 32: Simon's payment of soldiers with his own money indicated his princely status, since it followed royal custom. 41: The titles of leader and high priest were now made hereditary in Simon's family. For lack of prophecy see also 4.46; 9.27 n. 49: As successors of Simon, his sons received copies of the decree.

15 Antiochus son of King Demetrius sent a letter from overseas to Simon the high priest and ethnarch of the 2 Jews, and to the whole nation. The contents were as follows:

King Antiochus to Simon, High Priest and Ethnarch, and to the Jewish nation, greeting.

3 Whereas certain traitors have seized my ancestral kingdom, I have now decided to assert my claim to it, so that I may restore it to its former condition. I have raised a large body of mercenaries and fitted out ships of 4 war. I intend to land in my country and to attack those who have ravaged my kingdom and destroyed many of 5 its cities. Now therefore I confirm all the tax remissions which my royal predecessors granted you, and all their other remissions of 6 tribute. I permit you to mint your own coinage as currency for your country. Jerusalem and the temple
7 shall be free. All the arms you have prepared, and the fortifications which you have built and now hold, shall
8 remain yours. All debts now owing to the royal treasury and all future liabilities thereto shall be cancelled
9 from this time on for ever. When we have re-established our kingdom, we shall confer the highest honours upon you, your nation and temple, to make your country's greatness apparent to the whole world.

10 In the year 174,<sup>f</sup> Antiochus marched into his ancestral domain, and all the armed forces came over to him, leaving 11 very few with Trypho. Antiochus pursued him, and Trypho came as a fugitive to Dor by the sea. He knew 12 that his position was desperate now that all his troops had deserted. Antiochus, at the head of a hundred and twenty thousand trained soldiers and eight thousand horsemen, laid siege to Dor. He encircled the town, and his 14 ships joined in the blockade from the sea. He thus exerted heavy pressure on it from both land and sea, and prevented anyone from leaving or entering.

NUMENIUS AND HIS PARTY ARRIVED 15 from Rome with a letter to the various kings and countries, which read as follows:

Lucius, Consul of the Romans, to 16 King Ptolemy, greeting.

Envoys have come to us from our 17 friends and allies the Jews, sent by Simon the High Priest and the Jewish people, to renew their original treaty of friendship and alliance. They brought a gold shield worth a 18 thousand minas. We have decided, 19 therefore, to write to the kings and countries, requiring them to do no harm to the Jews, nor make war on them or their cities or their country, nor ally themselves with those who so make war. And we have decided 20 to accept the shield from them. If 21 therefore any traitors have escaped from their country to you, hand them over to Simon the High Priest to be punished by him according to the law of the Jews.

The same message was sent to King 22 Demetrius, to Attalus, Ariarathes, Arsakes, Sampsakes, and the Spartans, 23 and also to the following places: Delos, Myndos, Sicyon, Caria, Samos, Pamphylia, Lycia, Halicarnassus, Rhodes, Phaselis, Cos, Sidé, Aradus, Gortyna, <sup>f</sup> That is 138 B.C.

15.1-14: Antiochus VII seeks Simon's support in his struggles with Trypho for the throne of Demetrius II. 1: Antiochus VII Sidetes (138-129 B.C.) was the son of Demetrius I (161-150 B.C.) and brother of the captured Demetrius II (145-139, 129-125 B.C.). 6: Although Antiochus added to previous fiscal concessions the right to coin money (see 10.26-35; 13.37-39), Simon seems never to have used it. The right was soon revoked (15.27). 10-14: Antiochus married Cleopatra, the wife of his brother Demetrius. Trypho's troops deserted to her, and she transferred them to Antiochus' command. Dor lay fifteen miles south of Mount Carmel.

15.15-24: Return of the envoys. 16: Lucius Caecilius Metullus Calvus, who was Consul in 142 B.C., wrote (v. 16) to Ptolemy VIII (Euergetes II Physcon) of Egypt (145-116 B.C.). 22: Copies of the message went to Demetrius II of Asia (145-139 and 129-125 B.C.), Attalus II of Pergamum (159-138 B.C.), Ariarathes V of Cappadocia (162-131 B.C.), Arsakes VI (Mithridates I, 171-138 B.C.) of Parthia, and to various free city-states.

24 Cnidus, Cyprus, and Cyrene. A copy was sent to Simon the high priest.

25 KING ANTIOCHUS LAID SIEGE TO DOR for the second time,<sup>g</sup> and launched repeated attacks against it; he had siege-engines constructed, and blockaded Trypho, preventing all movement in or out of the town.

26 Simon sent Antiochus two thousand picked men to assist him, with silver 27 and gold and much equipment; but he refused the offer. He repudiated all his previous agreements with Simon and 28 broke off relations. He sent Athenobius, one of the Friends, to parley with him. This was his message: 'You are occupying Joppa and Gazara and the citadel in Jerusalem, cities that belong to my 29 kingdom. You have laid waste their territories, and done great damage to the country, and have made yourselves masters of many places in my kingdom. 30 I demand the return of the cities you have captured and the surrender of the tribute exacted from places beyond the frontiers of Judaea over which you 31 have assumed control. Otherwise, you must pay five hundred talents of silver on their account, and another five hundred as compensation for the destruction you have caused and for the loss of tribute from the cities. Failing this, we shall go to war with you.'

32 Athenobius, the King's Friend, came to Jerusalem, and when he saw the splendour of Simon's establishment, the gold and silver vessels on his sideboard, and his display of wealth, he was amazed. He delivered the king's 33 message, to which Simon replied: 'We have not occupied other people's land or taken other people's property, but only the inheritance of our ancestors, unjustly seized for a time by 34 our enemies. We have grasped our opportunity and have claimed our 35 patrimony. With regard to Joppa and Gazara, which you demand, these towns were doing a great deal of damage among our people and in our land. For these we offer one hundred talents.'

Athenobius answered not a word, but went off in a rage to the king; he 36 reported what Simon had said, and described Simon's splendour and all the things he had seen. The king was furious.

Meanwhile Trypho boarded a ship 37 and made good his escape to Orthosia. The king appointed Kendebaeus as 38 commander-in-chief of the coastal zone, and gave him infantry and cavalry. He instructed him to blockade Judaea, 39 to rebuild Kedron and strengthen its gates, and to make war on our people, while he himself continued the pursuit of Trypho. Kendebaeus arrived 40 in Jamnia and began to harass our people by invading Judaea, and by capturing and killing the inhabitants. He rebuilt Kedron, stationing cavalry 41 and troops there to sally out and patrol the roads of Judaea, in accordance with the king's instructions.

John came from Gazara and re- 16 ported to his father Simon the results of Kendebaeus's campaign. Simon 2 summoned his two eldest sons Judas and John, and said to them: 'My brothers and I and my father's family have fought Israel's battles from our youth until this day, and many a time we have been successful in rescuing Israel. Now I am old, but mercifully 3 you are in the prime of life. Take my place and my brother's and go out and fight for our nation. And may help from on high be with you.'

He then levied from the country 4 twenty thousand picked warriors and cavalry, and they marched against Kendebaeus. After passing the night at Modin they rose early and proceeded 5 to the plain, where a large force of infantry and cavalry stood ready to meet them on the far side of a gully. When his army had taken up a position 6

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses read on the second day.

15.25-36: Antiochus VII alienates Simon. 26-27: Josephus says the king accepted this aid (Ant. XIII.7.2). 30: The places beyond the frontiers probably include those of 11.34. 32: King's Friends: see 2.18 n.

15.37-16.10: John Hyrcanus defeats Kendebaeus. 37: From Orthosia, north of Tripolis, Trypho went to Apamea where Antiochus captured and killed him. 38: Simon held this post under Antiochus VI (11.59). 39: Kedron lay three miles southeast of Jamnia. 16.3: Simon was about sixty years old. 4: This is the first mention of Maccabean cavalry. 6: John's crossing recalls Judas's (5.40,43).

opposite, John saw that his men were afraid to cross the gully. So he crossed first himself; his men saw him and followed. John drew up his army with the cavalry in the centre of the infantry, for the enemy cavalry were very numerous. The trumpets were sounded, and Kendebaeus and his army were routed; many of them fell, and the remainder took refuge in the fortress. It was in this engagement that John's brother Judas was wounded. John kept up the pursuit until Kendebaeus reached Kedron, which he had rebuilt. The enemy took refuge in the towers in the open country round Azotus, whereupon John set fire to Azotus. Some two thousand of the enemy fell in the fighting, and John returned to Judaea in safety.

11 Now Ptolemaeus son of Abubus had been appointed commander for the plain of Jericho. He had great wealth, 12 for he was the high priest's son-in-law. 13 But he became over-ambitious; he proposed to make himself master of the country and plotted to put Simon and his sons out of the way. In the course of a tour to inspect the towns in that region and to attend to their needs, Simon came to Jericho with his sons Mattathias and Judas in the year 177,<sup>h</sup> in the eleventh month, the month of Shebat. The son of Abubus, with treachery in his heart, received them at the small fort called Dok which he had built, and entertained them lavish-

ly. But he had men in concealment there, and when Simon and his sons had drunk freely, Ptolemaeus and his accomplices jumped up, seized their weapons, and rushed in to the banquet. They attacked Simon and killed him, along with his two sons and some of his servants. It was an act of base treachery in which evil was returned for good.

Ptolemaeus sent news of this in a dispatch to the king, asking him to send troops to his assistance and to give him authority over the country and its towns. He sent some of his men to Gazara to kill John, and wrote to the army officers urging them to join him, and offering them silver and gold and presents. Other troops he sent to take Jerusalem and the temple hill. But someone ran ahead and reported to John at Gazara that his father and brothers had been murdered, and that Ptolemaeus had sent men to kill him as well. When John heard this he was beside himself; he arrested the men who came to kill him, and put them to death, because he had discovered their plot against his life.

The rest of the story of John, his wars and the deeds of valour he performed, the walls he built, and his exploits, are written in the annals of his high-priesthood from the time when he succeeded his father.

<sup>h</sup> That is 134 B.C.

---

16.11–24: John Hyrcanus succeeds his murdered father. 15: The hill fortress of Dok lay five miles northwest of Jericho. 16: Josephus says the sons were killed later (Ant. XIII.8.1). 18: Ptolemaeus appealed to Antiochus VII. 22: Eventually, Ptolemaeus fled to Philadelphia (Amman). 23–24: The wording recalls that used of the kings of Israel (1 Kgs.14.19,29). The annals have been lost.

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE MACCABEES

2 Maccabees is a shortened version of a five-volume historical work, now lost, by Jason of Cyrene (2 Macc.2.19–32). To this shortened version the “abbreviator” prefixed two letters (1.1–10a; 1.10b–2.18) which Palestinian Jews addressed to their Egyptian brethren, urging them to observe the feast celebrating the Temple’s rededication in 164 B.C. The abridgment of Jason’s work exemplifies “pathetic history,” a genre of writing which seeks not only to tell the story, but to arouse the reader’s sympathetic emotions and give him pleasure. With invented dialogue, exaggerated numbers, apparitions and miracles, the “abbreviator,” or Epitomist, as he is technically called, traces the decline of the high priesthood (3.1–4.50), Antiochus Epiphanes’ attempt to impose Hellenism upon the Jews (5.1–7.42), and Judas Maccabeus’ successful resistance, culminating in his triumphal cleansing of the Temple (8.1–10.8), and his subsequent struggles (10.9–15.39).

2 Maccabees was written in Greek in Egypt about 124 B.C. It covers the period approximately 180–160 B.C., and parallels the events narrated in 1 Macc.1.10–7.50.

Foreword: letters to the Jews in Egypt

1 TO THEIR JEWISH KINSMEN IN EGYPT, the Jews who are in Jerusalem and those in the country of Judaea send brotherly greeting.

2 May God give you peace and prosperity and remember his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, his faithful
3 servants. May he give to you all a will to worship him, to fulfil his purposes
4 eagerly with heart and soul. May he give you a mind open to his law and 5 precepts. May he make peace and answer your prayers, and be reconciled to you and not forsake you in an evil
6 hour. Here and now we are praying for you.

7 In the reign of Demetrius, in the year 169,<sup>a</sup> we the Jews wrote to you during the persecution and the crisis that came upon us in those years since the time when Jason and his partisans revolted from the holy land and the kingdom. They set the porch of the temple on fire 8 and shed innocent blood. Then we prayed to the Lord and were answered. We offered a sacrifice and fine flour, we lit the lamps, and set out the Bread of the Presence. And now, you are to 9 observe the celebration of a Feast of Tabernacles in the month Kislev.

Written in the year 188.<sup>b</sup> 10

FROM THE PEOPLE OF JERUSALEM AND Judaea, from the Senate, and from Judas, to Aristobulus, the teacher of King Ptolemy and a member of the high-priestly family, and to the Jews in Egypt, greeting and good health.

We have been saved by God from 11 great dangers, and give him all thanks, as men standing ready to resist the king.

a That is 143 B.C. b That is 124 B.C.

1.1–10a: The first letter. The Palestinian Jews urge those in Egypt to observe the feast (v. 9) which celebrates the rededication of the Temple. This letter, written in 124 B.C. (= 188 in the Seleucid calendar) refers to an earlier letter of 143 B.C. (= 169 in the Seleucid calendar), which described the events from Jason’s apostasy (4.7–5.10) to the Temple’s dedication (10.1–8; 1 Macc.4.36–61) and probably informed the Egyptian Jews of Jonathan’s death (1 Macc.12.39–53; 13.23). 1–2: The two-fold salutation includes the Hellenistic greeting and the Hebrew peace. 7–8a: Jason slaughtered his own people (5.5–7) in the holy land (Zech.2.12), thus also revolting against the Seleucid kingdom. 8b: After purifying the Temple, Judas and his men offered a sacrifice there (10.3; 1 Macc.4.50–51). 9: A feast is now to take place in Kislev (December); it came to be called Hanukkah. The biblical Feast of Tabernacles, which Hanukkah resembles at least in length (eight days), was in Tishri (September–October).

1.10b–2.18: The second letter. Written earlier, in 164 B.C., this letter urges Egyptian Jews to celebrate the dedication of the newly purified Temple (10.1–8; 1 Macc.4.36–59) even though not prescribed in the Pentateuch, since Judas’ victory was God’s salvation for all Jews (2.17). 10: Aristobulus was a Jewish “philosopher” of Alexandria, who “taught” Ptolemy VI Philometor (180–145 B.C.) by dedicating a book to him which “proved” that the Greeks derived their wisdom and philosophy from the Law and the Prophets. 11: The king is Antiochus IV Epiphanes

12 It was God who drove out the enemy force in the holy city.

13 For when the king went into Persia with an army that seemed invincible, they were cut to pieces in the temple of Nanaea through a stratagem employed by Nanaea's priests. Antiochus, along with his Companions, arrived at the temple to marry the goddess, in order to secure the considerable treasure by way of dowry. After this had been laid out by the priests, he went into the temple precinct with a small retinue. When Antiochus entered, the priests shut the sanctuary, opened a secret door in the panelling, and hurled stones at them. The king fell, as if struck by a thunderbolt. They hacked off limbs and heads and threw them to those outside.

17 Blessed in all things be our God, who handed over the evil-doers to death!

18 We are about to celebrate the purification of the temple on the twenty-fifth of Kislev, and think it right to inform you, so that you also for your part may celebrate a Feast of Tabernacles, in honour of the fire which appeared when Nehemiah offered sacrifices, after he had built the temple and the altar. When our fathers were carried off to Persia, the pious priests of those days secretly took fire from the altar and concealed it in a dry well. It proved a safe hiding-place and remained undiscovered. After many years had passed, in God's good time, Nehemiah was sent back by the king of Persia. He then dispatched the descendants of the priests who had hidden it to get the fire, and they informed our people that they found, not fire, but a thick liquid. Nehemiah ordered them to draw some out and bring it to him. When the materials of the sacrifice had been presented, he ordered the priests to sprinkle this liquid over the wood and the things laid upon it, and this was done. Some time passed; then the sun, which earlier had been hidden by clouds, shone out and the altar burst into a great blaze, so that everyone marvelled. As the sacrifice was burning, the priests offered prayer, they and all those present: Jonathan began and the rest responded, led by Nehemiah.

The prayer was in this style: 'O Lord God, creator of all things, thou the terrible, the mighty, the just, and the merciful, the only King, the only gracious one, the only giver, the only just, omnipotent, and everlasting one, who dost deliver Israel from every evil, who didst choose the patriarchs and set them apart: accept this sacrifice on behalf of thy whole people Israel; they are thy own, watch over them and sanctify them. Gather the dispersed, free those who are in slavery among the heathen, look favourably on the despised and detested; let the heathen know that thou art our God. Punish our oppressors for their insolent brutality and make them suffer torment; but plant thy people in thy holy place, as Moses said.'

Then the priests chanted the hymns. After the materials of the sacrifice had been consumed, Nehemiah further ordered what remained of the liquid to be poured over some great stones.<sup>c</sup> At this a flame shot up, but burnt itself out as soon as the fire on the altar outshone it.<sup>d</sup>

These events became widely known. The king of Persia was told that, in the place where the priests who were deported had hidden the fire, a liquid had appeared, and that Nehemiah and

<sup>c</sup> what remained . . . stones: so some witnesses; others read that great stones should enclose what remained of the liquid.

<sup>d</sup> Or but hardly had the light been reflected from the altar, when it burnt itself out.

(175–164 B.C.). 13: The Elamite goddess Nanaea (Anaitis) was identified with the Greek goddess Artemis in Hellenistic times. 16–17: Actually, Antiochus was driven off, not killed (9.2). The letter writer's sources may have confused the king's representative with the king himself. 18: Lighting candles, fire, is a special feature of the present feast of Hanukkah. The temple was built long before Nehemiah's time; see Ezra 3.1–2; 6.6–16. The fire at the time of Nehemiah's sacrifices is not found in the Book of Nehemiah but apparently comes from the apocryphal memoirs of Nehemiah (2.13), now lost. The purpose of the allusion is to emphasize the privileges of the Temple and the continuity and orthodoxy of its worship. The many difficulties in the story that follows show its fictional character. 19: The Exile (587 B.C.); see 2 Kgs. 25.11–12) was to Babylon, which later became part of the Persian empire. 20: The king who sent Nehemiah to govern Palestine was Artaxerxes I Longimanus (464–424 B.C.). The thick liquid was naphtha, his companions had used it to burn up 34 the materials of the sacrifice. When he had verified the fact, the king enclosed 35 the site and made it sacred. The custodians he appointed received a share of the very substantial revenue 36 that the king derived from it. Nehemiah and his companions called the liquid

 'nephtar', which means 'purification';
 but most people call it 'naphtha'.

2 The records show that it was the prophet Jeremiah who ordered the exiles to hide the fire, as has been 2 mentioned; also that, having given them the law, he charged them not to neglect the ordinances of the Lord, or be led astray by the sight of images of 3 gold and silver with all their finery. In similar words he appealed to them not to abandon the law.

4 Further, this document records that, prompted by a divine message, the prophet gave orders that the Tent of Meeting and the ark should go with him. Then he went away to the mountain from the top of which Moses saw 5 God's promised land. When he reached the mountain, Jeremiah found a cave-dwelling; he carried the tent, the ark,
 and the incense-altar into it, then 6 blocked up the entrance. Some of his companions came to mark out the way, 7 but were unable to find it. When Jeremiah learnt of this he reprimanded them. 'The place shall remain unknown', he said, 'until God finally gathers his people together and shows 8 mercy to them. Then the Lord will bring these things to light again, and the glory of the Lord will appear with the cloud, as it was seen both in the time of Moses and when Solomon prayed that the shrine might be worthily consecrated.'

9 It was also related that Solomon, having the gift of wisdom, offered the dedication sacrifice at the completion of the temple; and that, just as Moses 10 prayed to the Lord and fire came down from heaven and burnt up the sacrificial offerings, so Solomon prayed and the fire came down and consumed the whole-offerings. (Moses said: 'The sin- 11 offering was burnt up in the same way because it was not eaten.') Solomon 12 celebrated the feast for eight days.

These same facts are set out in the 13 official records and in the memoirs of Nehemiah. Just as Nehemiah collected the chronicles of the kings, the writings of prophets, the works of David, and royal letters about sacred offerings, to find his library, so Judas also has 14 collected all the books that had been scattered as a result of our recent conflict. These are in our possession, and if you need any of them, send 15
 messengers for them.

As, then, we are about to celebrate 16
 the purification of the temple, we are writing to impress upon you the duty of celebrating this festival. God has 17 saved his whole people and granted to all of us the holy land, the kingship, the priesthood, and the consecration, as 18
 he promised by the law; and in him we have confidence that he will soon be merciful to us and gather us from every part of the world to the holy temple.
 For he has delivered us from great evils
 and purified the temple.

Preface to this abridgement

IN FIVE BOOKS JASON OF CYRENE HAS 19
 set out the history of Judas Maccabaeus and his brothers, the purification of the great temple, and the dedication of the altar. He has described the battles with 20
 Antiochus Epiphanes and with his son Eupator, and the apparitions from 21

---

or petroleum (v. 36). 36: The Persian word for the liquid is neft. Nephtar involves a play on this word and on the Heb. root thr, "purify." 2.4-8: This story is improbable, too; see Jer.3.16. Moses' mountain was Nebo (Deut.32.49). 9-10: On the theme of fire . . . from heaven, see Lev.9.24; Judg.6.21; 1 Kgs.18.38; 2 Chr.7.1. 11: The meaning of this verse is not clear but see Lev.10.16-20. 13: The inclusion of the royal letters of Persian kings shows this collection was not limited to sacred books. For Nehemiah's memoirs see 1.18 n.

2.19-32: A summary of the five books. The abbreviator leaves responsibility for accuracy to Jason, while attempting to make one readable, memorable, pleasurable, and profitable book out of Jason's five. 19: Jason is otherwise unknown. Cyrene (now in Libya) was culturally one with Egypt. 21: This is the first appearance of the term Judaism (see also 8.1; 14.38; Gal.1.14) to describe a way of life; it is contrasted to Hellenism (4.13).

heaven which appeared to those who vied with one another in fighting manfully for Judaism. Few though they were, they ravaged the whole country and routed the foreign hordes; they restored the world-renowned temple, freed the city of Jerusalem, and reaffirmed the laws which were in danger of being abolished. All this they achieved because the Lord was merciful and gracious to them.

These five books of Jason I shall try to summarize in a single work; for I was struck by the mass of statistics and the difficulty which the bulk of the material causes to those wishing to grasp the narratives of this history. I have tried to provide for the entertainment of those who read for pleasure, the convenience of students who must commit the facts to memory, and the profit of even the casual reader. The task which I have taken upon myself in making this summary is no easy one. It means toil and late nights, just as it is no light task for the man who plans a dinner-party and aims to satisfy his guests. Nevertheless, I will gladly undergo this hard labour for the benefit of readers in general. I shall leave to the original author the minute discussion of every detail, and concentrate on the main points of my outline. As the architect of a new house must concern himself with the whole of the structure, while the man who paints in encaustic on the walls needs to discover only what is necessary for the ornamentation, so, I judge, it is with me also. It is the province of the original author of a history to take possession of the field, to spread himself in discussion, and to inquire closely into particular questions. The man who makes a paraphrase must be allowed to aim at conciseness of expression and to omit a full treatment of the subject-matter.

Here, then, without adding anything further, I begin my narrative. It would be absurd to make a lengthy introduction to the history and cut short the history itself.

Syrian oppression of the Jews

DURING THE RULE OF THE HIGH PRIEST Onias, the holy city enjoyed complete peace and prosperity, and the laws were still observed most scrupulously, because he was a pious man and hated wickedness. The kings themselves held the sanctuary in honour and used to embellish the temple with the most splendid gifts; even Seleucus, king of Asia, bore all the expenses of the sacrificial worship from his own revenues.

But a certain Simon, of the clan Bilgah,<sup>f</sup> who had been appointed administrator of the temple, quarrelled with the high priest about the regulation of the city market. Unable to get the better of Onias, he went to Apollonius son of Thrasaeus, then governor of Coele-syria and Phoenicia, and alleged that the treasury at Jerusalem was full of untold riches—indeed the total of the accumulated balances was incalculable and did not correspond with the account for the sacrifices; he suggested that these balances might be brought under the control of the king. When Apollonius met the king, he reported what he had been told about the riches. The king selected Heliodorus, his chief minister, and sent him with orders to remove these treasures.

<sup>e</sup> for . . . of: so some witnesses; others read to win the gratitude of . . .

<sup>f</sup> So some witnesses (compare Nehemiah 12.5, 18); others read Benjamin.

3.1-4.50: The decline of the priesthood. After the defeat of Magnesia (190 B.C.) and the consequent loss of most of Asia Minor, the Seleucid kings needed money badly to pay the indemnities forced on them by the treaty of Apamea (188 B.C.). Seleucus saw a chance to rob the rich treasury of Jerusalem's Temple. The priesthood moves from Onias (3.1), to the usurper Jason (4.7), and then to Menelaus (4.23).

3.1-4.6: The story of Heliodorus and its aftermath. 1: Onias III, son of Simon II (Ecclus.50.1-21), was a descendant, through Jedaiah (Ezra 2.36), of Joshua, the high priest of the postexilic community (Hag.1.1). 3: Seleucus IV Philopator (187-175 B.C.) was king of Asia, i.e. of lands bordering the eastern Mediterranean. 4: Bilgah is one of the twenty-four divisions for priestly service listed in 1 Chr.24.1-19. 5: Apollonius was son of Menestheus (4.4,21). Coele-syria: southern Syria including Palestine. 7: Heliodorus, chancellor to Seleucus, later murdered the

8 Heliodorus set off at once, ostensibly to make a tour of inspection of the cities of Coele-syria and Phoenicia, but in fact to carry out the purpose of the 9 king. When he arrived at Jerusalem and had been courteously received by the high priest and the citizens, he explained why he had come: he told them about the allegations and asked 10 if they were in fact true. The high priest intimated that the deposits were held in trust for widows and orphans, apart from what belonged to Hyrcanus son of Tobias, a man of very high standing; the matter was being misrepresented by the impious Simon. In all there were 12 hundred of gold. It was unthinkable, he said, that wrong should be done to those who had relied on the sanctity of the place, on the dignity and inviolability of the world-famous temple. But Heliodorus, in virtue of the king's orders, replied that these deposits must without question be handed over to the royal treasury.

14 He fixed a day and went into the temple to make an inventory. At this there was great distress throughout the whole city. The priests, prostrating themselves in their vestments before the altar, prayed to Heaven, to the Lawgiver who had made deposits sacred, to keep them intact for their 16 rightful owners. The high priest's looks pierced every beholder to the heart, for his face and its changing colour betrayed the anguish of his soul. Alarm and shuddering gripped him, and the pain he felt was clearly apparent to the 18 onlookers. The people rushed pell-mell from their houses to join together in supplication because of the dishonour which threatened the holy place.
19 Women in sackcloth, their breasts bare, filled the streets; unmarried girls who were kept in seclusion ran to the gates or walls of their houses, while others leaned out from the windows; all with 20 outstretched hands made solemn entreaty to Heaven. It was pitiful to see the crowd all lying prostrate in utter confusion, and the high priest in an agony of apprehension.

While the people were calling upon 22 the Lord Almighty to keep the deposits intact and safe for those who had deposited them, Heliodorus proceeded 23 to carry out his decision. But at the very moment when he arrived with his 24 bodyguard at the treasury, the Ruler of spirits and of all powers produced a mighty apparition, so that all who had the audacity to accompany Heliodorus were faint with terror, stricken with 25 panic at the power of God. They saw a horse, splendidly caparisoned, with a rider of terrible aspect; it rushed fiercely at Heliodorus and, rearing up, attacked him with its hooves. The rider was wearing golden armour. There also 26 appeared to Heliodorus two young men of surpassing strength and glorious beauty, splendidly dressed. They stood on either side of him and scourged him, raining ceaseless blows upon him. He 27 fell suddenly to the ground, overwhelmed by a great darkness, and his men snatched him up and put him on a litter. This man, who so recently had 28 entered the treasury with a great throng and his whole bodyguard, was now borne off by them quite helpless, publicly compelled to acknowledge the sovereignty of God.<sup>g</sup>

While he lay speechless, deprived by 29 this divine act of all hope of recovery, the Jews were praising the Lord for the 30 miracle he had performed in his own house. The temple, which a short time before was full of alarm and confusion, now overflowed with joy and festivity, because the Lord Almighty had appeared.

Some of Heliodorus's companions
31 hastily begged Onias to pray to the Most High, and so to spare the life of their master now lying at his very last gasp. The high priest, fearing that the 32 king might suspect that Heliodorus had

<sup>g</sup> was now . . . of God: so some witnesses; others read they, recognizing the sovereignty of God, now bore off quite helpless.

king in an unsuccessful bid to assume the regency. 11: The Temple's treasure was today's equivalent of several million dollars. 12: Onias pleads a form of "sanctuary" or inviolability for the money (see, similarly, 1 Macc.10.43). 22-36: Miraculous apparitions are a feature of "pathetic" history. Some suggest Onias saved the treasure by conspiring with Heliodorus against Seleucus (see 4.2). 26: Two young men: angels.

met with foul play at the hands of the Jews, brought a sacrifice for the man's recovery. As the high priest was making the expiation, the same young men, dressed as before, again appeared to Heliodorus. They stood over him and said: 'Be very grateful to Onias the high priest; for his sake the Lord has spared your life. You have been scourged by God; now tell all men of his mighty power.' When they had said this, they vanished.

Heliodorus offered a sacrifice and made lavish vows to the Lord who had spared his life; then, after taking friendly leave of Onias, he led his troops back to the king. He bore witness to everyone of the miracles of the supreme God which he had seen with his own eyes.

When the king asked him what sort of man would be suitable to send to Jerusalem another time, Heliodorus replied: 'If you have an enemy or someone plotting against your government, that is the place to send him; you will receive him back soundly flogged, if he survives at all, for beyond doubt there is a divine power surrounding the temple. He whose habitation is in heaven watches over it himself and gives it his aid; those who approach the place with evil intent he strikes and destroys.'

So runs the story of Heliodorus and the preservation of the treasury.

4 BUT THE SIMON MENTIONED EARLIER, the man who had made allegations against his country about the money, slandered Onias, alleging that he had attacked Heliodorus and had been the author of these troubles. He had the effrontery to accuse him of conspiracy against the government—this benefactor of the holy city, this protector of his fellow-Jews, this zealot for the laws. The enmity grew so great that one of Simon's trusted followers even resorted to murder. Onias, realizing that Simon's rivalry was dangerous and that Apollonius son of Menestheus, governor of Coele-syria and Phoenicia, was encouraging his evil ways, paid a visit to the king. He did not appear as an accuser of his fellow-citizens, but as concerned for the interests of all the Jews, both as a nation and as individuals. For he saw that unless the king intervened there could not possibly be peace in public affairs, nor could Simon be stopped in his mad course.

But when Seleucus was dead and had been succeeded by Antiochus, known as Epiphanes, Jason, Onias's brother, obtained the high-priesthood by corrupt means. He petitioned the king and promised him three hundred and sixty talents in silver coin immediately, and eighty talents from future revenue. In addition he undertook to pay another hundred and fifty talents for the authority to institute a sports-stadium, to arrange for the education of young men there, and to enrol in Jerusalem a group to be known as the 'Antiochenes'.<sup>h</sup> The king agreed, and, as soon as he had seized the high-priesthood, Jason made the Jews conform to the Greek way of life.

He set aside the royal privileges established for the Jews through the agency of John, the father of that Eupolemus who negotiated a treaty of friendship and alliance with the Romans. He abolished the lawful way of life and introduced practices which were against the law. He lost no time in establishing a sports-stadium at the foot of the citadel itself, and he made the most outstanding of the young men assume the Greek athlete's hat. So Hellenism reached a high point with the introduction of foreign customs through the boundless wickedness of the impious Jason, no true high priest. As a result, the priests no longer had any enthusiasm for their duties at the

<sup>h</sup> Or enrol the inhabitants of Jerusalem as citizens of Antioch.

4.7-22: Jason as high priest introduces Hellenism. Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-164 B.C.) sought to unify his disparate subjects by imposing Hellenistic culture and religion on them. 7: Seleucus was dead, assassinated by Heliodorus. 9: The sports-stadium gave youth an education in cultural, physical, and premilitary affairs. The Antiochenes, honorary citizens of Antioch, the Seleucid capital, were a corporation of Hellenized Jews who had certain political and commercial privileges. 11: See 1 Macc.8.17. 12: Athlete's hat: the traditional wide-brimmed hat altar, but despised the temple and neglected the sacrifices; and in defiance of the law they eagerly contributed to the expenses of the wrestling-school whenever the opening gong called them. They placed no value on their hereditary dignities, but cared above everything for Hellenic honours. Because of this, grievous misfortunes beset them, and the very men whose way of life they strove after, and tried so hard to imitate, turned out to be their vindictive enemies. To act profanely against God's laws is no light matter, as will become clear in due time.

When the quinquennial games were being held at Tyre in the presence of the king, the blackguard Jason sent, as envoys to represent Jerusalem, Antiochenes carrying three hundred drachmas in cash for the sacrifice to Hercules. Even the bearers thought it improper that this money should be used for a sacrifice, and considered that it should be spent otherwise. So, thanks to the bearers, the money designed by the sender for the sacrifice to Hercules went to fit out the triremes.

When Apollonius son of Menestheus was sent to Egypt for the enthronement of King Philometor, Antiochus learnt that Philometor was now hostile to his state, and became anxious for his own security. So he went to Joppa, and then on to Jerusalem, where he was lavishly welcomed by Jason and the city and received with torch-light and ovations. After this, he quartered his army in Phoenicia.

Three years later, Jason sent Menelaus, brother of the Simon mentioned above, to convey money to the king and to carry out his directions about urgent business. But Menelaus established his position with the king by acting as if he were a person of great authority, outbid Jason by three hundred talents in silver, and so diverted the high-priesthood to himself. He arrived back with the royal mandate, but with nothing else to make him worthy of the high-priesthood; he still had the temper of a cruel tyrant and the fury of a savage beast. Jason, who had supplanted his own brother, was now supplanted in his turn and forced to flee to Ammonite territory. As for Menelaus, he continued to hold the high-priesthood but without ever paying any of the money he had promised the king, although it was demanded by Sostratus, the commander of the citadel, who was responsible for collecting the revenues. In consequence they were both summoned by the king. As their deputies, Menelaus left his brother Lysimachus, and Sostratus left Crates, the commander of the Cypriots.

It was at this point that the inhabitants of Tarsus and Mallus revolted, because their cities had been handed over as a gift to the king's concubine Antiochis. The king hastened off to restore order, leaving as regent Andronicus, one of his ministers. Menelaus, thinking he had obtained a favourable opportunity, made a present to Andronicus of some of the gold plate belonging to the temple which he had appropriated. He had already sold some of it to Tyre and to the neighbouring cities. When Onias heard this on good authority, he withdrew to sanctuary at Daphne near Antioch and denounced him. As a result, Menelaus approached Andronicus privately and urged him to kill Onias. The regent went to Onias bent on treachery; he greeted him, gave him assurances on oath, and persuaded him, though still suspicious, to leave the sanctuary. Then at once, with no respect for justice, he made away with him.

His murder filled not only Jews, but many from other nations as well, with alarm and anger. So when the king returned from Cilicia, the Jews of of Hermes, god of gymnastic skill. 19: The Tyrian god Melqart was, in Hellenistic fashion, assimilated to Heracles, the Roman Hercules. 20: Triremes were warships with three banks of oars. 21-22: Ptolemy VI Philometor (180-145 B.C.) planned to regain Palestine for Egypt; Epiphanes prepared for the invasion by stationing troops in Joppa and other Phoenician ports.

4.23-50: Menelaus as high priest. Corruption marks the reign of Menelaus, who succeeded in driving out his rivals. 23: Three years later: 171 B.C. Simon: see 3.4 n. 26: Jason fled east of the Jordan. 30: Tarsus and Mallus, which lay in Cilicia (on the southeast coast of Turkey), objected for reasons of revenue, not morality. 33: Onias took refuge in the temple of Apollo(!)

Antioch sent him a petition about the senseless killing of Onias, the Gentiles sharing in their detestation of the crime. Antiochus was deeply grieved, and was moved to pity and tears as he thought of the prudence and disciplined habits of the dead man. In a burning fury, he immediately stripped Andronicus of the purple, tore off his clothes, led him round the whole city to that very place where he had committed sacrilege against Onias, and there disposed of the murderer. Thus the Lord repaid him with the retribution he deserved.

Lysimachus committed many acts of sacrilegious plunder in Jerusalem with the connivance of Menelaus. When the news of them became public and the people heard that much of the gold plate had been disposed of, they banded together against Lysimachus. Since the crowds were seething with rage and getting out of hand, Lysimachus armed some three thousand men and began to launch a vicious attack, led by a certain Auranus, a man advanced in years and no less in folly. Realizing that the attack came from Lysimachus, some of the crowd seized stones and others blocks of wood, while others again took handfuls of the ashes that were lying round, and there was complete confusion as they all hurled them at Lysimachus and his men. As a result, they wounded many, killed some, and routed them all; the sacrilegious man himself they dispatched near the treasury.

An action was brought against Menelaus in connection with this incident. When the king came to Tyre, the three men sent by the Jewish senate pleaded the case before him. Menelaus's cause was as good as lost; but he promised a large sum of money to Ptolemaeus son of Dorymenes to win over the king. So Ptolemaeus led the king aside into a colonnade, as if to take the air, and persuaded him to change his mind. The king acquitted Menelaus, the cause of all the mischief, dismissed the charges brought against him, and condemned his unfortunate accusers to death, men who would have been discharged as entirely innocent had they appeared even before Scythians. Without more ado those who had pleaded for their city, their people, and their sacred vessels, suffered the unjust penalty. At this, even some of the Tyrians showed their detestation of the crime by providing a splendid funeral for the victims. Menelaus, thanks to the greed of those in power, remained in office. He went from bad to worse, this arch-plotter against his own fellow-citizens.

About this time Antiochus undertook his second invasion of Egypt. Apparitions were seen in the sky all over Jerusalem for nearly forty days: galloping horsemen in golden armour, companies of spearmen standing to arms, swords unsheathed, cavalry divisions in battle order. Charges and countercharges were made on each side, shields were shaken, spears massed and javelins hurled; breastplates and golden ornaments of every kind shone brightly. All men prayed that this apparition might portend good.

Upon a false report of Antiochus's death, Jason collected no less than a thousand men and made a surprise attack on Jerusalem. The defenders on the wall were driven back and the city was finally taken; Menelaus took refuge in the citadel, and Jason continued to massacre his fellow-citizens without pity. He little knew that success against one's own kindred is the greatest of failures, and he imagined that the trophies he raised marked the defeat of enemies, not of fellow-countrymen. He did not, however, gain control of the government; he gained only dishonour as the result of his plot, and returned again as a fugitive to Ammonite territory. His career came at Daphne, five miles southwest of Antioch. 45: Ptolemaeus, the governor of the region, later opposed the Maccabean resistance (8.8; 1 Macc.3.38). 47: The Scythians, who lived just north of the Black Sea, were notorious for their cruelty.

5.1-14: Jason's attack upon Jerusalem and its aftermath. 1: 168 B.C. 2-4: The Jewish historian Josephus describes similar celestial portents preceding the destruction of the Temple in 70 A.D. (B.J. VI.5.3). 8: The charge brought before Aretas (Harith I, king of the Nabataeans), Jason's to a miserable end; for, after being imprisoned by Aretas the ruler of the Arabs, he fled from city to city, hunted by all, hated as a rebel against the laws, and detested as the executioner of his country and his fellow-citizens, and finally was driven to take refuge in 9 Egypt. In the end the man who had banished so many from their native land himself died in exile after setting sail for Sparta, where he had hoped to obtain shelter because of the Spartans' 10 kinship with the Jews. He who had cast out many to lie unburied was himself unmourned; he had no funeral of any kind, no resting-place in the grave of his ancestors.

11 When news of this reached the king, it became clear to him that Judaea was in a state of rebellion. So he set out from Egypt in savage mood, took 12 Jerusalem by storm, and ordered his troops to cut down without mercy everyone they met and to slaughter those who took refuge in the houses. 13 Young and old were murdered, women and children massacred, girls and 14 infants butchered. At the end of three days their losses had amounted to eighty thousand: forty thousand killed in action, and as many sold into slavery.

15 Not satisfied with this, the king had the audacity to enter the holiest temple on earth, guided by Menelaus, who had turned traitor both to his religion 16 and his country. He laid impious hands on the sacred vessels; his desecrating hands swept together the votive offerings which other kings had set up to enhance the splendour and fame of the shrine.

17 The pride of Antiochus passed all bounds. He did not understand that the sins of the people of Jerusalem had angered the Lord for a short time, and that this was why he left the temple to 18 its fate. If they had not already been guilty of many sinful acts, Antiochus would have fared like Heliodorus who was sent by King Seleucus to inspect the treasury; like him he would have been scourged and his insolent plan 19 foiled at once. But the Lord did not choose the nation for the sake of the sanctuary; he chose the sanctuary for the sake of the nation. Therefore even 20 the sanctuary itself first had its part in the misfortunes that overtook the nation, and afterwards shared its good fortune. It was abandoned when the Lord Almighty was angry, but restored again in all its splendour when he became reconciled.

Antiochus, then, carried off eighteen 21 hundred talents from the temple and hastened back to Antioch. In his arrogance he was rash enough to think that he could make ships sail on dry land and men walk over the sea. He 22 left commissioners behind to oppress the Hebrews: in Jerusalem Philip, by race a Phrygian, by disposition more barbarous than his master, and in 23 Mount Gerizim, Andronicus, to say nothing of Menelaus, who was more brutally overbearing to the citizens than the others. Such was the king's hostility towards the Jews that he sent 24 Apollonius, the general of the Mysian mercenaries, with an army of twenty-two thousand men, and ordered him to kill all the adult males and to sell the women and boys into slavery. 25 When Apollonius arrived at Jerusalem, he posed as a man of peace; he waited until the holy sabbath day and, finding the Jews abstaining from work, he ordered a review of his troops. All who 26 came out to see the parade he put to the sword; then, charging into the city with his soldiers, he killed a great number of people.

BUT JUDAS, ALSO CALLED MACCABAEUS, 27 with about nine others, escaped into former protector, is not known. 9: For this fictional kinship, see 1 Macc.12.1–23, especially v. 10 n. 11: Forced out of Egypt by the Romans, Antiochus was already in a savage mood.

5.15–23a: Antiochus robs the Temple. This misplaced incident belongs after Antiochus' first Egyptian campaign in 169 b.c. (1 Macc.1.20–24). 16: Other kings included Seleucus IV (3.3). 21: The amount seems excessive. 22: Philip appears again in 6.11; 8.8. He is not the Philip of 9.29; 1 Macc.6.14,55–63. 23a: Andronicus is not the murderer of 4.31–38.

5.23b–27: Apollonius attacks Jerusalem; Judas flees. Epiphanes punished the revolt led by Jason and fortified Jerusalem. See 1 Macc.1.29–36. Later, Judas defeated and killed Apollonius (1 Macc.3.10–12). 27: The story of Mattathias is omitted (1 Macc. ch. 2; especially v. 28).

the desert, where he and his companions lived in the mountains, fending for themselves like the wild animals. They remained there living on what vegetation they found, so as to have no share in the pollution.

6 Shortly afterwards King Antiochus sent an elderly Athenian to force the Jews to abandon their ancestral customs and no longer regulate their lives according to the laws of God. He was also commissioned to pollute the temple at Jerusalem and dedicate it to Olympian Zeus, and to dedicate the sanctuary on Mount Gerizim to Zeus God of Hospitality, following the practice of the local inhabitants.

3 This evil hit them hard and was a severe trial. The Gentiles filled the temple with licentious revelry: they took their pleasure with prostitutes and had intercourse with women in the sacred precincts. They also brought forbidden things inside, and heaped the altar with impure offerings prohibited by the law. 5 It was forbidden either to observe the sabbath or to keep the traditional festivals, or to admit to being a Jew at all. On the monthly celebration of the king's birthday, the Jews were driven by brute force to eat the entrails of the sacrificial victims; and on the feast of Dionysus they were forced to wear ivy-wreaths and join the procession in his honour. At the instigation of the inhabitants of Ptolemais<sup>i</sup> an order was published in the neighbouring Greek cities to the effect that they should adopt the same policy of compelling the Jews to eat the entrails and should kill those who refused to change over to Greek ways.

10 Their miserable fate was there for all to see. For instance, two women were brought to trial for having had their children circumcised. They were paraded through the city, with their babies hanging at their breasts, and then flung down from the fortifications. Other Jews had assembled in caves near Jerusalem to keep the sabbath in secret; they were denounced to Philip and were burnt alive, since they scrupled to defend themselves out of regard for the holiness of the day.

Now I beg my readers not to be disheartened by these calamities, but to reflect that such penalties were inflicted for the discipline of our race and not for its destruction. It is a sign of great kindness that acts of impiety should not be let alone for long but meet their due recompense at once. The Lord did not see fit to deal with us as he does with the other nations: with them he patiently holds his hand until they have reached the full extent of their sins, but upon us he inflicted retribution before our sins reached their height. So he never withdraws his mercy from us; though he disciplines his people by calamity, he never deserts them. Let it be enough for me to have recalled this truth; after this short digression, I must continue with my story.

There was Eleazar, one of the leading teachers of the law, a man of great age and distinguished bearing. He was being forced to open his mouth and eat pork, but preferring an honourable death to an unclean life, he spat it out and voluntarily submitted to the flogging, as indeed men should act who have the courage to refuse to eat forbidden food even for love of life. For old acquaintance' sake, the officials in charge of this sacrilegious feast had a word with Eleazar in private; they urged him to bring meat which he was permitted to eat and had himself prepared, and only pretend to be eating the sacrificial meat as the king had ordered. In that way he would escape death and take advantage of the clemency which their long-standing

i Some witnesses read At the instigation of Ptolemaeus ...

6.1-17: The imposition of Hellenism. The author describes the religious persecution. See 1 Macc.1.41-64. 2: The Syrian deity, ba'al šamēm, "Lord of Heaven," was identified with the supreme Greek divinity, Zeus. Erection of an altar to him on the Temple's altar of holocausts constituted the "abomination" of 1 Macc.1.54; Dan.11.31. Josephus says the rival Samaritan temple on Mount Gerizim was dedicated to Zeus Hellenios (Ant. XII.5.5). 5: The impure offerings included swine; see v. 18; 7.1; Lev.11.7; 1 Macc.1.47. 7: Dionysus: god of revelry, identified with Roman Bacchus; ivy was his symbol. 11: See 1 Macc.2.29-41.

6.18-7.42: Examples of martyrdom. Old men, women, and children willingly die for the law. The stories are typical "Acts of Martyrs," a literary form to encourage others under persecution.

23 friendship merited. But Eleazar made an honourable decision, one worthy of his years and the authority of old age, worthy of the grey hairs he had attained to and wore with such distinction, worthy of his perfect conduct from childhood up, but above all, worthy of the holy and God-given law. So he answered at once: 'Send me quickly to my grave. If I went through with this pretence at my time of life, many of the young might believe that at the age of ninety Eleazar had turned apostate. If I practised deceit for the sake of a brief moment of life, I should lead them astray and bring stain and pollution on my old age. I might for the present avoid man's punishment, but, alive or dead, I shall never escape from the hand of the Almighty. So if I now die bravely, I shall show that I have deserved my long life and leave the young a fine example, to teach them how to die a good death, gladly and nobly, for our revered and holy laws.'

When he had finished speaking, he was immediately dragged away to be flogged. Those who a little while before had shown him friendship now became his enemies because, in their view, what he had said was madness. When he was almost dead from the blows, Eleazar sighed deeply and said: 'To the Lord belongs all holy knowledge. He knows what terrible agony I endure in my body from this flogging, though I could have escaped death; yet he knows also that in my soul I suffer gladly, because I stand in awe of him.'

31 So he died; and by his death he left a heroic example and a glorious memory, not only for the young but also for the great body of the nation.

7 Again, seven brothers with their mother had been arrested, and were being tortured by the king with whips and thongs to force them to eat pork, when one of them, speaking for all, said: 'What do you expect to learn by interrogating us? We are ready to die rather than break the laws of our fathers.' The king was enraged and ordered great pans and cauldrons to be heated up, and this was done at once. 4 Then he gave orders that the spokesman's tongue should be cut out and that he should be scalped and mutilated before the eyes of his mother and his six brothers. This wreck of a man the 5 king ordered to be taken, still breathing, to the fire and roasted in one of the pans. As the smoke from it streamed out far and wide, the mother and her sons encouraged each other to die nobly. 'The Lord God is watching', 6 they said, 'and without doubt has compassion on us. Did not Moses tell Israel to their faces in the song denouncing apostasy: "He will have compassion on his servants"?' 7

After the first brother had died in this way, the second was subjected to the same brutality. The skin and hair of his head were torn off, and he was asked: 'Will you eat, before we tear you limb from limb?' He replied in his 8 native language, 'Never!', and so he in turn underwent the torture. With his 9 last breath, he said: 'Fiend though you are, you are setting us free from this present life, and, since we die for his laws, the King of the universe will raise us up to a life everlastingly made new.'

After him the third was tortured. 10 When the question was put to him, he at once showed his tongue, boldly held out his hands, and said courageously: 11 'The God of heaven gave me these. His laws mean far more to me than they do, and it is from him that I trust to receive them back.' When they heard 12 this, the king and his followers were amazed at the young man's spirit and his utter disregard for suffering.

When he too was dead, they tortured 13 the fourth in the same cruel way. At the point of death, he said to the king: 'Better to be killed by men and cherish God's promise to raise us again. There will be no resurrection to life for you!'

Then the fifth was dragged forward 15 for torture. Looking at the king, he said: 'You have authority over men, mortal as you are, and can do as you

26: This verse hints at the sinner's punishment after death, an advance on earlier OT ideas (see also Dan.12.2). 7.1: In this contrived story, the chief persecutor, king Antiochus, appears himself. 6: See Deut.32.36. 8: The martyrs refuse to speak Greek (vv. 21,27; 12.37; 15.29). 9-14: The resurrection of the just appears throughout this story (see Dan.12.1-3); universal

17 please. But do not imagine that God has abandoned our race. Wait and see how his great power will torment you and your descendants.'

18 Next the sixth was brought and said with his dying breath: 'Do not delude yourself. It is our own fault that we suffer these things; we have sinned against our God and brought these appalling disasters upon ourselves. 19 But do not suppose you will escape the consequences of trying to fight against God.'

20 The mother was the most remarkable of all, and deserves to be remembered with special honour. She watched her seven sons all die in the space of a single day, yet she bore it bravely because she put her trust in the Lord. 21 She encouraged each in turn in her native language. Filled with noble resolution, her woman's thoughts fired by a manly spirit, she said to them: 22 'You appeared in my womb, I know not how; it was not I who gave you life and breath and set in order your bodily frames. It is the Creator of the universe who moulds man at his birth and plans the origin of all things. Therefore he, in his mercy, will give you back life and breath again, since now you put his laws above all thought of self.'

24 Antiochus felt that he was being treated with contempt and suspected an insult in her words. The youngest brother was still left, and the king, not content with appealing to him, even assured him on oath that the moment he abandoned his ancestral customs he would make him rich and prosperous, by enrolling him as a King's Friend and entrusting him with high office. Since the young man paid no attention to him, the king summoned the mother and urged her to advise the lad to save his life. After much urging from the king, she agreed to persuade her son. 27 She leaned towards him, and flouting the cruel tyrant, she said in their native language: 'My son, take pity on me. I carried you nine months in the womb, suckled you three years, reared you and brought you up to your

28 present age. I beg you, child, look at the sky and the earth; see all that is in them and realize that God made them out of nothing, and that man comes into being in the same way. Do not be 29 afraid of this butcher; accept death and prove yourself worthy of your brothers, so that by God's mercy I may receive you back again along with them.'

She had barely finished when the 30 young man spoke out: 'What are you all waiting for? I will not submit to the king's command; I obey the command of the law given by Moses to our ancestors. And you, King Antiochus, 31 who have devised all kinds of harm for the Hebrews, you will not escape God's hand. We are suffering for our own 32 sins, and though to correct and discipline us our living Lord is angry for a short time, yet he will again be reconciled to his servants. But you, 34 impious man, foulest of the human race, do not indulge vain hopes or be carried away by delusions of greatness, you who lay hands on God's servants. You are not yet safe from the judge- 35 ment of the almighty all-seeing God. My brothers have now fallen in loyalty 36 to God's covenant, after brief pain leading to eternal life;<sup>j</sup> but you will pay the just penalty of your insolence by the verdict of God. I, like my brothers, 37 surrender my body and my life for the laws of our fathers. I appeal to God to show mercy speedily to his people and by whips and scourges to bring you to admit that he alone is God. With me 38 and my brothers may the Almighty's anger, which has justly fallen on all our race, be ended!'

The king, exasperated by these 39 scornful words, was beside himself with rage. So he treated him worse than the others, and the young man died, 40 putting his whole trust in the Lord, without having incurred defilement. Then finally, after her sons, the mother 41 died.

<sup>j</sup> in loyalty . . . life: or after a brief time of pain, in loyalty to God's covenant of everlasting life.

resurrection is not explicitly taught. 17: The descendants are the king's successors. 24: Friend: see 1 Macc.2.18 n. 28: This is the first biblical mention of creation from nothingness; see Gen.1.1 n. 33: See 5.17. 38: See vicarious suffering also in Isa.52.13-53.12.

42 This, then, must conclude our account of the eating of the entrails and the monstrous outrages that accompanied it.

The revolt of Judas Maccabaeus

8 MEANWHILE JUDAS, ALSO CALLED MACCABAEUS, and his companions were making their way into the villages unobserved. They summoned their kinsmen and enlisted others who had remained faithful to Judaism, until they had collected about six thousand men. They invoked the Lord to look down and help his people, whom all were trampling under foot, to take pity on the temple profaned by impious men, and to have mercy on Jerusalem, which was being destroyed and would soon be levelled to the ground. They prayed him also to give ear to the blood that cried to him for vengeance, to remember the infamous massacre of innocent children and the deeds of blasphemy against his name, and to show his hatred of wickedness.

5 Once his band of partisans was organized, Maccabaeus proved invincible to the Gentiles, for the Lord's anger had changed to mercy. He came on towns and villages without warning and burnt them; he occupied the key positions, and inflicted many severe reverses on the enemy, choosing the night-time as being especially favourable for these attacks. His heroism<sup>b</sup> was talked about everywhere. When Philip realized that the small gains made by Judas were occurring with growing frequency, he wrote to Ptolemaeus, the governor of Coele-syria and Phoenicia, asking for his help in protecting the royal interests. Ptolemaeus 9 immediately selected Nicanor, son of Patroclus, a member of the highest order of King's Friends, and sent him at the head of at least twenty thousand troops of various nationalities to exterminate the entire Jewish race. With him Ptolemaeus associated Gorgias, a general of wide experience. Nicanor determined to pay off the two 10 thousand talents due from the king as tribute to the Romans, by the sale of the Jews he would take prisoner; and 11 he at once made an offer of Jewish slaves to the coastal towns, undertaking to deliver them at the price of ninety to the talent. But he did not expect the vengeance of the Almighty, which was soon to be at his heels.

Word of Nicanor's advance reached 12 Judas, and he informed his men that the enemy was at hand. The cowards 13 who doubted God's justice took themselves off and fled. But the rest disposed 14 of their remaining possessions, and they prayed together to the Lord to save them from the impious Nicanor, who had sold them even before they met in battle; and if they could not ask this 15 for their own merits, they did so on the ground of the covenants God had made with their ancestors, and of his holy and majestic Name which they bore. Maccabaeus assembled his fol- 16 lowers, six thousand in number, and appealed to them not to flee in panic before the enemy nor to be afraid of the great host which was attacking them without just cause. Rather they 17 should fight nobly, having before their eyes the wicked crimes of the Gentiles against the temple, their callous outrage upon Jerusalem, and, further, their

k Or His numerous force.

8.1-10.8: Judas Maccabaeus succeeds in purifying the Temple. The Lord's anger (6.12-17) is appeased and turns to mercy (8.5), enabling Judas and his guerrillas to rededicate the Temple.

8.1-36: Judas' initial successes. See 1 Macc.2.42-48. 2-3: The guerrillas pray, then fight. 2 Macc. emphasizes the role of prayer in the victories. For similar descriptions of the evils faced, see 1 Macc.1.24-28,36-40; 2.7-12; 3.45,50-53. 8-29,34-36: See 1 Macc.3.38-4.27. 8: Philip: see 5.22; 6.11. Ptolemaeus: see 4.45; 1 Macc.3.38. In Hellenistic times, Coele-syria designated first the region between the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon mountains, then also Palestine generally. 9: Victory for Nicanor (vv. 14-15; 1 Macc.3.38; 7.26-50), one of the King's Friends (see 1 Macc.2.18 n.), would exterminate the entire Jewish race by destroying defenders of its distinctiveness and assimilating the survivors to Hellenism. 10: The tribute may be arrears from the money owed by the treaty of Apamea (188 B.C.). 11: Nicanor's offer was half the average price per slave in Greece. 13: 1 Macc.3.56 gives the reasons of Deut.20.5-8 for their departure. 14: They disposed of their . . . possessions lest Nicanor confiscate them anyway.

suppression of the traditional Jewish 18 way of life. 'They rely on their weapons and their audacity,' he said, 'but we rely on God Almighty, who is able to overthrow with a nod our present assailants and, if need be, the whole 19 world.' He went on to recount to them the occasions when God had helped their ancestors: how, in Sennacherib's time, one hundred and eighty-five thou-20 sand of the enemy had perished, and also how, on the occasion of the battle against the Galatians in Babylonia, all the Jews engaged in the combat had numbered no more than eight thousand, with four thousand Macedonians, yet, when the Macedonians were hard pressed, the eight thousand through heaven's aid had destroyed
 one hundred and twenty thousand and taken much booty.

21 His words put them in good heart and made them ready to die for their laws and for their country. He then 22 divided the army into four and gave each of his brothers, Simon, Josephus, and Jonathan, command of a division 23 of fifteen hundred men. Besides this, he appointed Eleazar to read the holy book aloud<sup>l</sup>, and giving the signal for battle with the cry 'God is our help', and taking command of the leading division in person, he engaged Nicanor.
 24 The Almighty fought on their side, and they slaughtered over nine thousand of the enemy, wounded and disabled
 the greater part of Nicanor's forces, 25 and routed them completely. They seized the money of those who had come to buy them as slaves. After chasing the enemy a considerable distance, they were forced to break off 26 because it was late; for it was the day before the sabbath, and for that reason 27 they called off the pursuit. When they had collected the enemy's weapons and stripped the dead, they turned to keep the sabbath. They offered thanks and praises loud and long to the Lord who had kept the first drops of his mercy to 28 shed on them that day.<sup>m</sup> After the sabbath was over, they distributed some of the spoils among the victims of persecution and the widows and orphans; the remainder they divided among themselves. This done, all 29 together made supplication to the merciful Lord, praying him to be fully reconciled with his servants.

The Jews now engaged the forces of 30 Timotheus and Bacchides and killed over twenty thousand of them. They gained complete control of some high strongholds, and divided the immense booty, giving shares equal to their own to the victims of persecution, to the widows and orphans, and to the old men as well. They carefully collected 31 all the enemy's weapons and stored them at strategic points; the remainder of the spoils they brought into Jerusalem. They killed the officer command-32 ing the forces of Timotheus, an utterly godless man who had caused the Jews great suffering. During the victory 33 celebrations in their capital, they burnt alive the men who had set fire to the sacred gates, including Callisthenes,
 who had taken refuge in a small house;
 he thus received the due reward of his impiety.

Thus, by the Lord's help, Nicanor, 34-35 that double-dyed villain who had brought the thousand merchants to buy the Jewish captives, was humiliated
 by the very people whom he despised above all others. He threw off his magnificent uniform, and all alone like a runaway slave made his escape
 through the interior, and was, indeed, very lucky to reach Antioch after losing his whole army. So the man who had 36 undertaken to secure tribute for the Romans by taking prisoner the inhabitants of Jerusalem showed the world that the Jews had a champion and were therefore invulnerable, because they kept the laws he had given
 them.

<sup>l</sup> Besides . . . aloud: probable reading; Gk. obscure.
<sup>m</sup> kept . . . day: so some witnesses; others read brought them safely to that day and had appointed it as the beginning of mercy for them.

19: Sennacherib's time: see 2 Kgs.19.35. 20: This incident is otherwise unknown. 30-33: See 1 Macc.5.6-13,24-54. 30: For Timotheus see 1 Macc.5.6-8,37-44; 2 Macc.12.10-25, and for Bacchides, see 1 Macc.7.8-20. 33: Callisthenes is otherwise unknown. The fire may be that of 1 Macc.1.31. 36: Champion: God.

9 It so happened that, about this time, Antiochus had returned in disorder from Persia. He had entered the city of Persepolis and attempted to plunder its temples and assume control. But the populace rose and rushed to arms in their defence, with the result that Antiochus was routed by civilians and forced to beat a humiliating retreat. 10
 2 When he was near Ecbatana, news reached him of what had happened to Nicanor and the forces of Timotheus. 11
 4 Transported with fury, he conceived the idea of making the Jews pay for the injury inflicted by those who had put him to flight, and so he ordered his charioteer to drive without stopping until the journey was finished.

But riding with him was the divine judgement! For in his arrogance he said: 'When I reach Jerusalem, I will make it a common graveyard for the Jews.' But the all-seeing Lord, the God of Israel, struck him a fatal and invisible blow. As soon as he had said the words, he was seized with incurable pain in his bowels and with sharp internal torments—a punishment entirely fitting for one who had inflicted many unheard-of torments on the bowels of others. Still he did not in the least abate his insolence; more arrogant than ever, he breathed fiery threats against the Jews. After he had given orders to speed up the journey, it happened that he fell out of his chariot as it hurtled along, and so violent was his fall that every joint in his body was dislocated. He, who in his pretension to be more than man had just been thinking that he could command the waves of the sea and weigh high mountains on the scales, was brought to the ground and had to be carried in a litter, thus making God's power<sup>n</sup> manifest to all. Worms swarmed even from the eyes of this godless man and, while he was still alive and in agony, his flesh rotted off, and the whole army was disgusted by the stench of his decay. It was so unbearably offensive that nobody could escort the man who only a short time before had seemed to touch the stars in the sky.

In this broken state, Antiochus began to abate his great arrogance. Under God's lash, and racked with continual pain, he began to see things in their true light. He could not endure his own stench and said, 'It is right to submit oneself to God and, being mortal, not to think oneself equal to him.' Then the villain made a solemn promise to the Lord, who had no intention of sparing him any longer, and it was to this effect: Jerusalem the holy city, which he had been hurrying to level to the ground and to transform into a graveyard, he would now declare a free city; to all the Jews, whom he had not considered worthy of burial but only fit to be thrown out with their children as prey for birds and beasts, he would give privileges equal to those enjoyed by the citizens of Athens. The holy temple which he had earlier plundered he would adorn with the most splendid gifts; he would replace all the sacred utensils on a much more lavish scale; he would meet the cost of the sacrifices from his own revenues. In addition to all this, he would even turn Jew and visit every inhabited place to proclaim God's might.

When his pains in no way abated, because the just judgement of God had fallen on him, he was in despair and, as a kind of olive branch, wrote to the Jews the letter here copied:

To my worthy citizens, the Jews, warm greetings and good wishes for their health and prosperity from Antiochus, King and Chief Magistrate.

May you and your children flourish and your affairs go as you wish. Having my hope in heaven, I keep an

<sup>n</sup> Some witnesses read litter. God made his power . . .

9.1–29: The death of the persecutor. The false god Epiphanes, "(Zeus) manifest," falls by the manifest power of the true God. See 1 Macc.6.1–17. 8: See v. 12; 5.21. 9–17: Theology, rather than history, seems to be the object of the description of the king's last illness. The allusions are to Isa.14.11; 66.24; Ecclus.7.17; 19.3. For similar descriptions of the deaths of the impious, see Josephus on Herod the Great (Ant. XVII.6.5) and Acts 12.23 on Herod Agrippa. 18–27: The letter is sent to Hellenized Jews or Antiochenes. Jews faithful to the Law would not re-affectionate remembrance of your regards and goodwill.

As I was returning from Persia, I suffered a tiresome illness, and so I have judged it necessary to provide for the general safety of you all. Not that I despair of my condition—on the contrary I have good hopes of recovery—but I observed that my father, whenever he made an expedition east of the Euphrates, appointed a successor, so that, if anything unexpected should happen or if some tiresome report should spread, his subjects would not be disturbed, since they would know to whom the empire had been left. Further, I know well that the neighbouring princes on the frontiers of my kingdom are watching for an opportunity and waiting on events. So I have designated as king my son Antiochus, whom I frequently entrusted and recommended to most of you during my regular visits to the satrapies beyond the Euphrates. I have written to him what is here copied. Wherefore I pray and entreat each one of you to maintain your existing goodwill towards myself and my son, remembering the services I have rendered to you both as a community and as individuals. For I am sure my son will follow my own policy of moderation and benevolence and will accommodate himself to your wishes.

Thus this murderer and blasphemer, suffering the worst of agonies, such as he had made others suffer, met a pitiable end in the mountains of a foreign land. His body was brought back by Philip, his intimate friend; but he was afraid of Antiochus's son and went over to Ptolemy Philometor in Egypt.

Maccabaeus with his men, led by the Lord, recovered the temple and city of Jerusalem. He demolished the altars erected by the heathen in the public square, and their sacred precincts as well. When they had purified the sanctuary, they constructed another altar; then, striking fire from flints, they offered a sacrifice for the first time for two whole years, and restored the incense, the lights, and the Bread of the Presence. This done, they prostrated themselves and prayed the Lord not to let them fall any more into such disasters, but, should they ever happen to sin, to discipline them himself with clemency and not hand them over to blasphemous and barbarous Gentiles. The sanctuary was purified on the twenty-fifth of Kislev, the same day of the same month as that on which foreigners had profaned it. The joyful celebration lasted for eight days; it was like the Feast of Tabernacles, for they recalled how, only a short time before, they had kept that feast while they were living like wild animals in the mountains and caves; and so they carried garlanded wands and branches with their fruits, as well as palm-fronds, and they chanted hymns to the One who had so triumphantly achieved the purification of his own temple. A measure was passed by the public assembly to the effect that the entire Jewish race should keep these days every year.

The campaign against Eupator

WE HAVE ALREADY RECOUNTED THE end of Antiochus called Epiphanes. Now we will describe what happened member Antiochus' services (v. 26) kindly. 23: Antiochus III had appointed Seleucus IV to succeed him. 29: Philip: see 1 Macc.6.14-15.

10.1-8: Judas purifies the Temple. See 1 Macc.4.36-61. 2: See 1 Macc.1.47. 3: The interval of two years is three in 1 Macc.1.54; 4.52. For the incense, lights, and Bread, see Exod.30.7-8; 25.30. 5: December 17, 164 B.C. 6: Unable to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles properly while on the run (5.27; 6.6), Judas and his men now celebrate the Temple's purification and rededication as a Feast of Tabernacles in Kislev (1.9 n.). 7: Palm-fronds: symbols of independence found on Jewish coins of the period and later; see 1 Macc.13.51. 8: This explains the letters of 1.1-10a; 1.10b-2.18.

10.9-13.26: The defeat of Lysias and others. Since Antiochus V Eupator was only about seven years old when his father died, the main actors are Lysias and various generals.

10.9-12.1: Battles with Seleucid generals. The events leading up to the treaty with Lysias are under that godless man's son, Antiochus Eupator, in a brief summary of the principal evils brought about by his wars. At his accession, Eupator appointed as vicegerent a man called Lysias who had succeeded Ptolemaeus Macron as governor-general of Coele-syria and Phoenicia. For Ptolemaeus had taken the lead in reversing the former unjust treatment of the Jews and had attempted to maintain peaceful relations with them, and as a result he was denounced by the King's Friends to Eupator. On every side he was called traitor, because he had already abandoned Cyprus, entrusted to him by Philometor, and had gone over to Antiochus Epiphanes. He still enjoyed power, but no longer respect, and in despair he ended his life by poison.

When Gorgias became governor, he engaged mercenaries and took every opportunity of attacking the Jews. At the same time the Idumaeans, who were in control of strategic fortresses, were also harassing them; they harboured the fugitives from Jerusalem and tried to carry on the war. Maccabaeus and his men made public supplication and prayed God to fight on their side. They made an assault on the Idumaean fortresses, pressed the attack vigorously, and captured them; they drove off all who were manning the walls, and killed all they met, to the number of at least twenty thousand.

Nine thousand or more of the enemy took refuge in two towers, very strongly fortified and fully equipped against a siege. Maccabaeus himself set out for the places which were being hard pressed, but left Simon and Josephus behind, with Zacchaeus and his men, enough to prosecute the siege. But Simon's men were too fond of money, and when they were bribed with seventy thousand drachmas by some of those in the towers, they let them slip through their lines. When Maccabaeus was informed of this, he assembled the leaders of the army and denounced these men for having sold their brothers for money by letting their enemies escape. Then he executed the men who had turned traitor, and immediately the two towers fell to him. His military operations were completely successful; in the two fortresses he destroyed over twenty thousand of the enemy.

After his previous defeat by the Jews, Timotheus collected a huge force of mercenaries and Asian cavalry, and advanced to take Judaea by storm. As he approached, Maccabaeus and his men made their prayer to God. They sprinkled dust on their heads and put sackcloth round their waists; they prostrated themselves on the altar-step and begged God to favour them, 'to be an enemy of their enemies and an opponent of their opponents', as the law clearly states.

When they had finished their prayer, they took up their weapons, advanced a good distance from Jerusalem, and halted near the enemy. At first light the two armies joined battle. For the Jews, success and victory were guaranteed not only because of their bravery but even more because the Lord was their refuge, whereas the Gentiles had only their own fury to lead them into battle. As the fighting grew hot, the enemy saw in the sky five magnificent figures riding horses with golden bridles, who placed themselves at the head of the Jews, formed a circle round Maccabaeus, and kept him invulnerable under the protection of their armour. They launched arrows and thunderbolts at the enemy, who, confused and blinded, broke up in complete disorder. Twenty thousand five hundred of the described. 11: Although Lysias was regent and guardian of Antiochus V Eupator (164–161 B.C.), he had to struggle with Philip to maintain this post (1 Macc.3.33; 6.14,55–63). 12–13: Ptolemaeus had governed Cyprus for the Egyptian king Ptolemy VI Philometor (180–145 B.C.), but deserted to Epiphanes when that Seleucid king's fleet approached Cyprus. 14–23: See 1 Macc.5.3–5. 14: Gorgias was governor of Idumea (12.32). 17: The twenty thousand here, "nine thousand" in v. 18, and "seventy thousand" in v. 20 all seem excessive. The author tends to inflate numbers. 22: Once the evil is removed, God, who fights with Judas (v. 16), immediately allows success. The author never loses sight of the source of victory. 24–38: This incident, unparalleled in 1 Macc., belongs chronologically after 12.10–31; 1 Macc.5.9–13,24–54. 26: See Exod.23.22. 29–31: Fighting for the Law, Judas gets help from heaven, i.e., he receives supernatural infantry, as well as six hundred cavalry, were slaughtered.

32 Timotheus himself fled to a fortress called Gazara, commanded by Chaereas and strongly garrisoned. Maccabaeus and his men welcomed this, and for four days they laid siege to the place. The garrison, confident in the strength of their position, hurled horrible and impious blasphemies at them, until, at dawn on the fifth day, twenty young men from the force of Maccabaeus, burning with rage at the blasphemy, courageously stormed the wall and in savage anger cut down all they met. Under cover of this distraction others got up the same way, attacked the defenders, set light to the towers, and started fires on which they burnt the blasphemers alive. Others broke down the gates and let in the rest of the army, and thus the city was occupied. Timotheus had hidden himself in a cistern, but he was killed along with his brother Chaereas and Apollphanes. To celebrate their achievement, the Jews praised with hymns and thanksgivings the Lord who showers blessings on Israel and gives them the victory.

11 Very shortly afterwards, Lysias the vicegerent, the king's guardian and relative, angered by these events, collected about eighty thousand troops, in addition to his entire cavalry, and advanced on the Jews. He reckoned on making Jerusalem a settlement for Gentiles, subjecting the temple to taxation like all gentile shrines, and putting up the high-priesthood for sale annually. He reckoned not at all with the might of God, but was elated with his myriads of infantry, his thousands of cavalry, his eighty elephants. Penetrating into Judaea, he approached Bethsura, a fortified place about twenty miles from Jerusalem, and closely invested it.

6 When Maccabaeus and his men learnt that Lysias was besieging their fortresses, they and all the people, wailing and weeping, prayed the Lord to send a good angel to deliver Israel. Maccabaeus was the first to arm himself, and he urged the rest to share his danger and come to the help of their brothers. One and all, they set out eagerly. They were still in the neighbourhood of Jerusalem when there appeared at their head a horseman arrayed in white, brandishing his golden weapons. Then with one voice they praised their merciful God and felt so strong in spirit that they could have attacked not only men but also the most savage animals, and even walls of iron. They came on fully armed, with their heavenly ally, under the mercy of the Lord. They hurled themselves like lions against the enemy, cut down eleven thousand of them, as well as sixteen hundred cavalry, and put all the rest to flight. Most of those who escaped lost their weapons and were wounded, and Lysias saved his life only by running away.

Lysias was no fool, and as he took stock of the defeat he had suffered he realized that the Hebrews were invincible, because the mighty God fought on their side. So he proposed a settlement on terms entirely acceptable, promising also to win the king over by putting pressure on him to show friendship to the Jews. Maccabaeus agreed to all the proposals of Lysias out of regard for the general welfare, for the king had accepted all the proposals from the Jewish side which Maccabaeus had forwarded to Lysias in writing.

The letter of Lysias to the Jews ran as follows:

Lysias to the Jewish community, greeting.

Your representatives John and Absalom have handed to me the document here copied and have asked me to ratify what is contained in it. Whatever needed to be brought to the king's knowledge, I have communicated to him, and what was within my own competence, I have protection and truly miraculous military assistance. 11.1-15: See 1 Macc.4.28-35. This event preceded the death of Antiochus IV Epiphanes. 11: 1 Macc.4.34 gives much lower numbers. 13: The reason is the author's, not that of Lysias. 16-30: The letters, except for vv. 22-26, belong to the peace negotiations. 17: John may be Mattathias' son (1 Macc.2.2). 18: The king

19 granted. If, therefore, you maintain your goodwill towards the empire, I for my part will endeavour to promote your welfare for the future.
20 I have ordered your representatives and mine to confer with you about the details. Farewell.

The twenty-fourth of Dioscorus
in the year 148.<sup>o</sup>

22 The king's letter ran as follows:

King Antiochus to his brother
Lysias, greeting.

23 Now that our royal father has gone to join the gods, we desire that our subjects be undisturbed in the conduct of their own affairs. We have 24 learnt that the Jews do not consent to adopt Greek ways, as our father wished, but prefer their own mode of life and request that they be allowed to observe their own laws.
25 We choose, therefore, that this nation like the rest should be left undisturbed, and decree that their temple be restored to them and that they shall regulate their lives in accordance with their ancestral cus-26 toms. Have the goodness, therefore,
to inform them of this and ratify it,
so that, knowing what our intentions are, they may settle down confidently and quietly to manage their own affairs.

27 To the people the king's letter ran thus:

King Antiochus to the Jewish Senate and people, greeting.

28 We hope that you prosper. We too 29 are in good health. Menelaus has informed us of your desire to return 30 to your own homes. Therefore we declare an amnesty for all who return before the thirtieth of Xanthi-cus. The Jews may follow their 31 own food-laws as heretofore, and none of them shall be charged with any previous infringement. I am 32 sending Menelaus to reassure you.

Farewell. 33

The fifteenth of Xanthicus in the
year 148.<sup>o</sup>

The Romans also sent the Jews the 34
following letter:

Quintus Memmius and Titus Manius, Roman legates, to the Jewish people, greeting.

We give our assent to all that 35 Lysias, the king's relative, has granted you. But examine carefully 36 the questions which he reserved for reference to the king; then send someone immediately, so that we may make suitable proposals, for we are proceeding to Antioch. Send 37 messengers therefore without delay,
so that we also may know what your opinion is. Farewell. 38

The fifteenth of Xanthicus in the
year 148.<sup>o</sup>

When these agreements had been 12
concluded, Lysias went off to the king,
and the Jews returned to their farming.
But some of the governors in the re- 2
gion, Timotheus and Apollonius son of Gennaesus and also Hieronymus and Demophon, and in addition Nicanor, chief of the Cypriot mercenaries, would not allow them to enjoy security and live in quiet.

I MUST NOW DESCRIBE AN ATROCITY 3
committed by the inhabitants of Joppa.

<sup>o</sup> That is 164 B.C.

here is Epiphanes, not Eupator. 21: This is March 164 B.C. 22-26: This misplaced letter belongs to the peace negotiations following Lysias' second campaign against Judas (13.1-26; 1 Macc. 6.28-63). It confirms religious freedom for the Jews. Here the king is Antiochus V Eupator. The terms were forced on Lysias by political necessity (1 Macc.6.55-63). 23: The dynasty was considered to draw its origin from the gods; its rulers were given divine honors during their lifetime and so went to join the gods after death. 27-33: Antiochus retracts the hated edicts regarding food (6.7-8). Xanthicus: March-April. 34-38: The questions referred to the king (see v. 18) are not known. Quintus Memmius is otherwise unknown. Titus Manius is actually two men, Titus Manilius and Manius Sergius, both well-known Roman diplomats active in the east at this time.

12.2-45: Battles with neighboring peoples. See 1 Macc.5.1-68. Harassment by neighboring peoples led to a series of Jewish punitive raids. 2: For Timotheus, see 8.30-33; 10.24-38;

They invited the Jews living in the town to embark with their wives and children in boats which they provided, with no indication of any ill will towards them.

4 As it was a public decision by the whole town, and because they wished to live in peace and suspected nothing, they accepted; but when they were out at sea, the people of Joppa sank the boats, drowning no fewer than two

5 hundred of them. When Judas learnt of this brutal treatment of his fellow-countrymen, he alerted his troops, invoked God, the just judge, and fell upon their murderers. He set the harbour of Joppa on fire by night, burnt the shipping, and put to the sword those who had taken refuge

7 there. But finding the town gates closed, he withdrew, meaning however to return and root out the entire

8 community. When he learnt that the people of Jamnia intended to do the same to the Jews who lived among

9 them, he attacked Jamnia by night and set fire to its harbour and fleet; the light of the flames was visible in Jerusalem thirty miles away.

10 When they had marched more than a mile further in their advance against Timotheus, they were set upon by not less than five thousand Arabs, with

11 five hundred cavalry. A violent combat ensued, in which by divine help Judas and his men were victorious. The defeated nomads begged Judas to make an alliance with them, and promised to supply him with cattle and to give the 12 Jews every other kind of help. Judas realized that they could indeed be useful in many ways; so he agreed to make peace with them, and, after receiving assurances from him, they went back to their tents.

13 Judas also attacked Caspin, a walled town, strongly fortified and inhabited

14 by a motley crew of Gentiles. Confident in the strength of their walls and in their store of provisions, the defenders behaved provocatively towards Judas and his men, abusing them and also uttering the most wicked blasphemies. But they invoked the 15 world's great Sovereign who in the days of Joshua threw down the walls of Jericho without battering-rams or siege-engines. They attacked the wall fiercely and, by the will of God, captured the town. The carnage was 16 indescribable; the adjacent lake, a quarter of a mile wide, appeared to be overflowing with blood.

Advancing about ninety-five miles

17 from there, they reached Charax, which is inhabited by the Tubian Jews, as they are called. They did not find Timotheus there; he had by that time left the district, having had no success, but in one place he had left behind an extremely strong garrison. Dositheus

19 and Sosipater, Maccabaeus's generals, set out and destroyed the garrison, which consisted of over ten thousand men. Maccabaeus for his part grouped

20 his army in several divisions, appointed commanders for them,<sup>p</sup> and hurried after Timotheus, whose forces numbered a hundred and twenty thousand infantry and two thousand five hundred cavalry. When he learnt of Judas's

21 approach, Timotheus sent off the women and children with all the baggage to a town called Carnaim, this being an inaccessible place, hard to storm because all the approaches to it were narrow. But when Judas's first

22 division appeared, terror and panic seized the enemy at the manifestation of the all-seeing One. In their flight they rushed headlong in every direction, so that frequently they were injured by their comrades and were run through by the points of their swords. Judas pressed the pursuit vigorously

23 and put thirty thousand of these criminals to the sword. Timotheus him-

24

<sup>p</sup> Probable meaning, based on one Vs.: Gk. appointed them to command the divisions.

12.10-31; 1 Macc.5.24-54. The other governors are otherwise unknown. 10: This mile further is not measured from Joppa or Jamnia but from some unspecified point in Gilead. The verse abruptly introduces a sizeable fragment (vv. 10-31) from a narrative of Judas' battles with Timotheus (see v. 2) which seems to have become disarranged at some point in its transmission. 13: Caspin is the Casphor of 1 Macc.5.26,36. 15: Walls of Jericho: see Josh.6.1-21. 17: Charax is literally a fortified camp. These Tubian Jews lived in the region of Tubias, i.e. in Gilead (1 Macc.5.13). 21-26: For the battle near, and at, Carnaim, see 1 Macc.5.37-44. Atargatis was self was taken prisoner by the troops of Dositheus and Sosipater. With much cunning, he begged them to let him go in safety, pointing out that most of them had parents, and some of them brothers, who were in his hands, and might never be heard of again. He pledged himself over and over again to restore these hostages safe and sound; and so they let him go in order to save their relatives.

Judas moved on Carnaim and the sanctuary of Atargatis, and killed twenty-five thousand people there. After this victory and destruction he next marched on Ephron, a fortified town inhabited by a mixed population.<sup>q</sup> Stalwart young men took up their position in front of the walls and fought vigorously, while inside there was a great supply of engines of war and ammunition. But the Jews invoked the Sovereign whose might shatters all the strength of the enemy. They made themselves masters of the town and killed twenty-five thousand of the defenders. Leaving that place, they advanced to Scythopolis, some seventy-five miles from Jerusalem. The Jews who lived there testified to the goodwill shown them by the people of Scythopolis and the kindness with which they had treated them in their bad times; so Judas and his men thanked them, and charged them to be equally friendly to the Jewish race for the future. They returned to Jerusalem in time for the Feast of Weeks.

After celebrating Pentecost, as it is called, they advanced to attack Gorgias, the general in charge of Idumaea, who met them with three thousand infantry and four hundred cavalry. When the ranks joined battle, a small number of the Jews fell. But a cavalryman of great strength called Dositheus, one of the Tubian Jews, had hold of Gorgias by his cloak and was dragging the villain off by main force, with the object of taking him alive, when a Thracian horseman bore down on him and chopped off his arm; so Gorgias escaped to Marisa.

Esdrias and his men had been fighting for a long time and were exhausted. But Judas invoked the Lord to show himself their ally and leader in battle. Striking up hymns in his native language as a battle-cry, he put the forces of Gorgias to flight by a surprise attack.

Regrouping his forces, he led them to the town of Adullam. The seventh day was coming on, so they purified themselves, as custom dictated, and kept the sabbath there. Next day they went, as had by now become necessary, to collect the bodies of the fallen in order to bury them with their relatives in the ancestral graves. But on every one of the dead, they found, under the tunic, amulets sacred to the idols of Jamnia, objects which the law forbids to Jews. It was evident to all that here was the reason why these men had fallen. Therefore they praised the work of the Lord, the just judge, who reveals what is hidden; and, turning to prayer, they asked that this sin might be entirely blotted out. The noble Judas called on the people to keep themselves free from sin, for they had seen with their own eyes what had happened to the fallen because of their sin. He levied a contribution from each man, and sent the total of two thousand silver drachmas to Jerusalem for a sin-offering—a fit and proper act in which he took due account of the resurrection. For if he had not been expecting the fallen to rise again, it would have been foolish and superfluous to pray for the dead. But since he had in view the wonderful reward reserved for those who die a godly death, his purpose the famed Syrian goddess. 27–28: Judas took Ephron because it refused him passage (1 Macc. 5.46–51). 29: Scythopolis is the Bethshan of 1 Macc. 5.52. 31: For the Feast of Weeks, or Pentecost, see Exod. 34.22; Deut. 16.9–12. 32–45: See 1 Macc. 5.55–62, according to which Judas went to the relief of the defeated Josephus and Azarias (Esdrias, v. 36). 40: 1 Macc. 5.61 gives a different reason for the defeat. Deut. 7.25–26 forbade taking these idol amulets. 42–44: Judas, by prayer and sin-offering, hoped to avoid guilt by association (Josh. ch. 7) for the living. The author sees this as Judas' prayer for the dead. Thus, those who had died piously in battling for God's Law (v. 45) needed to be cleansed of this sin before the resurrection of the just (vv. 43–44). Later, Christian theologians would see here the essence of their doctrine of Purgatory.

<sup>q</sup> Some witnesses add where Lysias had his headquarters.

was a holy and pious one. And this was why he offered an atoning sacrifice to free the dead from their sin.

- 13 In the year 149,<sup>r</sup> information reached Judas and his men that Antiochus Eupator was advancing on Judaea
2 with a large army; he was accompanied by Lysias, his guardian and vicegerent, bringing in addition a Greek force, consisting of one hundred and ten thousand infantry, five thousand three hundred cavalry, twenty-two elephants, and three hundred chariots armed with scythes.
- 3 Menelaus also joined them and urged Antiochus on; this he did most disingenuously, not for his country's good, but because he believed he 4 would be maintained in office. However, the King of kings aroused the rage of Antiochus against Menelaus: Lysias produced evidence that this criminal was responsible for all Antiochus's troubles, and so the king ordered him to be taken to Beroea and there to be executed in the manner
5 customary at that place. Now in Beroea there is a tower some seventy-five feet<sup>s</sup> high, filled with ashes; it has a circular device sloping sheer on all
6 sides into the ashes. This is where the citizens take anyone guilty of sacrilege or any other notorious crime, and 7 thrust him to his doom; and such was the fate of the law-breaker Menelaus, who was not even allowed burial—a 8 fate he richly deserved. Many a time he had desecrated the hallowed ashes of the altar-fire, and by ashes he met his death.
- 9 So the king came on with the barbarous intention of inflicting on the Jews suffering far worse than his 10 father had inflicted. When Judas heard this he ordered the people to invoke the Lord day and night and pray that now more than ever he would come to their aid, since they were on the point of losing law, country, and temple; and that he would not allow 11 them, just when they had begun to breathe again, to fall into the hands of blaspheming Gentiles. They all obeyed

12 his orders: for three days without respite they prayed to their merciful Lord, they wailed, they fasted, they prostrated themselves. Then Judas urged them to action and called upon them to stand by him.

After holding a council of war with 13 the elders, he decided not to wait until the royal army invaded Judaea and took Jerusalem, but to march out and with God's help to bring things to a decision. He entrusted the outcome to 14 the Creator of the world; his troops he charged to fight bravely to the death for the law, for the temple and for Jerusalem, for their country and their way of life. He pitched camp near Modin, and giving his men the signal 15 for battle with the cry 'God's victory!', he made a night attack on the royal pavilion with a picked force of the bravest young men. He killed as many as two thousand in the enemy camp, and his men stabbed to death<sup>t</sup> the leading elephant and its driver. In the 16 end they reduced the whole camp to panic and confusion, and withdrew victorious. It was all over by daybreak, 17 through the help and protection which Judas had received from the Lord.

Now that he had had a taste of 18 Jewish daring, the king tried stratagems in attacking their strong-points. He advanced on Bethsura, one of their powerful forts; he was repulsed; he 19 attacked, he was beaten. Judas sent in supplies to the garrison, but a soldier 20 in the Jewish ranks, Rhodocus by name, betrayed their secrets to the

<sup>r</sup> That is 163 B.C.

<sup>s</sup> some . . . feet: Gk. fifty cubits.

<sup>t</sup> stabbed to death: probable reading, based on one Vs.

13.1–26: Lysias' second campaign against Judas. See 1 Macc. 6.28–63. While 2 Macc. speaks of victories and notes the eventual success of Judas, 1 Macc. points out more realistically how close to disaster the Jews came. Only the threat of Philip's coup at Antioch (v. 23; 1 Macc. 6.55–63) brought Lysias to the terms of the letter in 2 Macc. 11.22–26. 2: The figures here and in 1 Macc. 6.30 are inflated. 3: Antiochus V Eupator was a minor; Lysias as regent made the decisions. 4: Beroea is the name given to Aleppo by Seleucus I Nicator (305–281 B.C.). Menelaus' execution may have resulted from Lysias' frustration over Judas' subsequent victory, or it may have been due to Menelaus' failure to pay what he promised (4.27–28). 5–8: The method of execution was Persian. 15: See 8.23. Judas' brother Eleazar killed the elephant (1 Macc. 6.43–46). 18–23: See 1 Macc. 6.31, 49–50, 55–63.

enemy. However, he was tracked down, 22 arrested, and put away. The king parleyed for the second time with the inhabitants of Bethsura, and, when he had given and received guarantees, he withdrew; he then attacked Judas and 23 his men, but had the worst of it. He now received news that Philip, whom he had left in charge of state affairs in Antioch, had gone out of his mind. In dismay he summoned the Jews, agreed to their terms, took an oath to respect
 all their rights, and, after this settle-24 ment, offered a sacrifice, paid honour to the sanctuary and its precincts, and received Maccabaeus graciously. He left behind Hegemonides as governor of the region from Ptolemais to Gerra, 25 and went himself to Ptolemais. Its inhabitants were furious at the treaty
 he had made, and in their alarm wanted 26 to repudiate it. Lysias mounted the rostrum, made the best defence he could, won the people over, calmed them down, and, having thus gained their support, left for Antioch.

Such was the course of the king's offensive and retreat.

The victory of Maccabaeus over Nicanor

14 AFTER AN INTERVAL OF THREE YEARS, information reached Judas and his men that Demetrius son of Seleucus had sailed into the harbour of Tripolis 2 with a powerful army and fleet, and, after disposing of Antiochus and his guardian Lysias, had taken possession of the country.

3 There was a man called Alcimus, who had formerly been high priest but had submitted voluntarily to pollutions
 at the time of the secession. This man, realizing that there was not now the slightest guarantee of his safety, or any possibility of access to the holy altar, 4 came to King Demetrius, about the year 151,<sup>u</sup> and presented him with a gold crown and palm, and also some of the customary olive branches from the temple. On that particular occasion he kept quiet; but he found a chance 5 of forwarding his own mad scheme when Demetrius summoned him to his council and questioned him about the attitude and plans of the Jews. He replied: 'Those of the Jews who are 6 called Hasidaeans and are led by Judas Maccabaeus are keeping the war alive and fomenting sedition, refusing to leave the kingdom in peace. Thus, 7 although I have been deprived of my hereditary dignity—I mean the high-priesthood—I am here today for two 8 motives: first, a genuine concern for the king's rights; and secondly, a regard for my fellow-citizens, since our whole race is suffering considerable hardship

 as a result of the folly of the people I have just mentioned. I would advise 9 your majesty to acquaint yourself with every one of these matters and then make provision for our country and our beleaguered nation, as befits your universal kindness and goodwill. For 10
 the empire will enjoy no peace so long as Judas remains alive.'

When he had spoken to this effect, 11
 the other Friends, who were hostile to Judas, immediately inflamed Demetrius still more. The king at once selected 12 Nicanor, commander of the elephant corps, gave him command of Judaea, and sent him off with a commission to 13
 dispose of Judas himself and disperse his forces, and to install Alcimus as high priest of the great temple. The 14 gentile population of Judaea, refugees from the attacks of Judas, now flocked to Nicanor, thinking that defeat and misfortune for the Jews would mean prosperity for themselves.

When they learnt of Nicanor's 15 offensive and the gentile attack, the Jews sprinkled dust over themselves and prayed to the One who established

<sup>u</sup> That is 161 B.C.

14.1–15.37: The victory of Maccabaeus over Nicanor. 2 Macc. details the final major victory of Judas. See 1 Macc. ch. 7. 1: Demetrius I Soter (161–150 B.C.) was the oldest surviving son of Seleucus IV (187–175 B.C.) and considered Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 B.C.) and his son Antiochus V Eupator (164–161 B.C.) as usurpers. 3: The author barely alludes to Bacchides' earlier expedition and its resultant establishment of Alcimus as high priest (1 Macc.7.8–25). The secession or separation is probably the persecution of Epiphanes, which divided the Jews. 6: The Hasidaeans (1 Macc.2.42–43; 7.12–18) were forerunners of the parties of the Pharisees and the Essenes. 11: Friends: See 1 Macc. 2.18 n. 12: Nicanor: see 8.8–29; 1 Macc.3.38–4.25;

his people for ever, who never fails to manifest himself when his chosen are 16 in need of help. At their leader's command, they immediately struck camp and joined battle with the enemy
 17 at the village of Adasa.<sup>v</sup> Simon, the brother of Judas, had fought an engagement with Nicanor, but, because the enemy came up<sup>w</sup> unexpectedly, he 18 had suffered a slight reverse. In spite of this, when Nicanor learnt how brave Judas and his troops were and how courageously they fought for their country, he shrank from deciding the 19 issue in battle. So he sent Posidonius, Theodotus, and Mattathias to negotiate a settlement.

20 After a lengthy consideration of the proposals, Judas informed his men of them; they were unanimous in agreeing
 21 to make peace. A day was fixed for a private meeting of the leaders. A chariot advanced from each of the two lines, and seats were placed for them;
 22 but Judas posted armed men at strategic points ready to deal with any unforeseen treachery on the enemy's part. The discussion between the two 23 leaders was harmonious. Nicanor stayed some time in Jerusalem and behaved correctly; he dismissed the crowds that had flocked round him, 24 and kept Judas always close to himself. He had acquired a real affection for 25 him, and urged him to marry and start a family. So Judas married and settled down to the quiet life of an ordinary citizen.

26 Alcimus noticed their friendliness and got hold of a copy of the agreement they had concluded. He went to Demetrius and said that Nicanor was pursuing a policy detrimental to the interests of the empire, by appointing that traitor Judas King's Friend designate.
 27 The king was furious and was provoked by these villainous slanders to write to Nicanor expressing his dissatisfaction with the agreement and ordering him to arrest Maccabaeus 28 and send him at once to Antioch. This message filled Nicanor with dismay; he took it hard that he should have to break his agreement although the man had committed no offence, but 29 since there was no going against the king, he watched for a favourable opportunity of carrying out the order by means of some stratagem. Mac-

 30 cabaeus, however, observed that Nicanor had become less friendly towards him and no longer showed him the same civility. He realized that this unfriendliness boded no good, so he collected a large number of his followers and went into hiding from Nicanor.

When Nicanor recognized that he 31 had been outmanoeuvred by the resolute action of Judas, he went to the great and holy temple at the time when the priests were offering the regular sacrifices, and ordered them to surrender Judas to him. The priests declared 32 on oath that they did not know the whereabouts of the wanted man. But 33 Nicanor stretched out his right hand towards the shrine and swore this oath: 'Unless you surrender Judas into my custody, I will raze God's sanctuary to the ground, I will destroy the altar, and on this spot I will build a temple to Dionysus for all the world to see.'
 34 With these words he left; but the 35 priests with outstretched hands prayed to Heaven, the constant champion of our race: 'Lord, thou hast no need of 36 anything in the world, yet it was thy pleasure that among us there should be a shrine for thy dwelling-place. Now, Lord, who alone art holy, keep this house, so newly purified, for ever free from defilement.'

A man called Razis, a member of 37 the Jerusalem senate, was denounced to Nicanor. He was very highly spoken of, a patriot who for his loyalty was known as 'Father of the Jews'. In the 38 early days of the secession he had stood his trial for practising Judaism, and with the utmost eagerness had risked life and limb for that cause. Nicanor 39 wished to give clear proof of his hostility towards the Jews, and sent

<sup>v</sup> Adasa: probable reading; compare 1 Macc. 7. 40.

<sup>w</sup> came up: probable reading, based on one Vs.

7.26-50. 16-30: The preliminary skirmishes (vv. 15-19) and the friendship of Nicanor for Judas are summarized in 1 Macc. 7.27-30. 31-36: See 1 Macc. 7.33-38. 38: Secession: see v. 3 n.

more than five hundred soldiers to 40 arrest Razis; he reckoned that his arrest would be a severe blow to the 41 Jews. The troops were on the point of capturing the tower where Razis was,
 and were trying to force the outer door.
 Then an order was given to set the door
 on fire, and Razis, hemmed in on all 42 sides, turned his sword on himself. He preferred to die nobly rather than fall into the hands of criminals and be 43 subjected to gross humiliation. In his haste and anxiety he misjudged the blow, and with the troops pouring through the doors he ran without hesitation on to the wall and heroically threw himself down into the crowd.
 44 The crowd hurriedly gave way and he 45 fell in the space they left. He was still breathing, still on fire with courage;
 so, streaming with blood and severely wounded, he picked himself up and dashed through the crowd. Finally, 46 standing on a sheer rock, and now completely drained of blood, he took his entrails in both hands and flung them at the crowd. And thus, invoking the Lord of life and breath to give these entrails back to him again, he died.

15 Nicanor received information that Judas and his men were in the region of Samaria, and he determined to attack them on their day of rest, when it could be done without any danger.
 2 Those Jews who were forced to accompany his army said, 'Do not carry out such a savage and barbarous massacre, but respect the day singled out and made holy by the all-seeing 3 One.' The double-dyed villain retorted,
 'Is there a ruler in the sky who has ordered the sabbath day to be ob-4 served?' The Jews declared, 'The living Lord himself is ruler in the sky, and he ordered the seventh day to be kept 5 holy.' 'But I', replied Nicanor, 'am a ruler on earth, and I order you to take your arms and do your duty to the king.' However, he did not succeed in carrying out his cruel plan.

Now Nicanor, in his pretentious 6
 and extravagant conceit, had resolved upon erecting a public trophy from the spoils of Judas's forces. But Mac- 7 cabaeus's confidence never wavered,
 and he had not the least doubt that he would obtain help from the Lord. He 8 urged his men not to be afraid of the gentile attack, but to bear in mind the aid they had received from heaven in the past and so look to the Almighty for the victory which he would send this time also. He drew encouragement 9 for them from the law and the prophets and, by reminding them of the struggles
 they had already come through, filled them with a fresh enthusiasm. When 10 he had roused their courage, he gave them their orders, reminding them at the same time of the Gentiles' broken faith and perjury. He armed each one 11 of them, not so much with the security of shield and spear, as with the encouragement that brave words bring;
 and he also told them of a trustworthy dream he had had, a sort of waking vision, which put them all in good heart.

What he had seen was this: the 12 former high priest Onias appeared to him, that great gentleman of modest bearing and mild disposition, apt
 speaker, and exponent from childhood of the good life. With outstretched hands he was praying earnestly for the whole Jewish community. Next 13 there appeared in the same attitude a figure of great age and dignity, whose wonderful air of authority marked him
 as a man of the utmost distinction.
 Then Onias said, 'This is God's prophet 14
 Jeremiah, who loves his fellow-Jews
 and offers many prayers for our people and for the holy city.' Jeremiah 15 extended his right hand and delivered to Judas a golden sword, saying as he did so, 'Take this holy sword, the gift of 16
 God, and with it crush your enemies.'

The eloquent words of Judas had the 17 power of stimulating everyone to bravery and making men out of boys.

46: Razis, too, believes in the resurrection of the just. 15.1-5: Despite Nicanor's plan, Judas would fight on the Sabbath if attacked (1 Macc.2.41). 10: The Gentiles had perjured themselves with the Hasidaeans (1 Macc.7.12-18). Judas warned his men what to expect if they surrendered. 12-16: The vision of Onias III (3.1; 4.34) and Jeremiah represented the support of the Law (through the Temple's priesthood) and the Prophets for Judas' cause. The author notes the Encouraged by them, the Jews made up their minds not to remain in camp, but to take the offensive manfully and fight hand to hand with all their strength until the issue was decided. This they did because Jerusalem, their religion, and their temple were in danger. Their fear was not chiefly for their wives and children, not to mention brothers and relatives, but first and foremost for the sacred shrine. The distress of those shut up in Jerusalem was no less, for they were anxious at the prospect of a battle on open ground.

All were waiting for the decisive struggle which lay ahead. The enemy had already concentrated his forces; his army was drawn up in order of battle, the elephants stationed in a favourable position and the cavalry ranged on the flank. When Maccabaeus observed the deployment of the troops, the variety of their equipment, and the ferocity of the elephants, with hands upraised he invoked the Lord, the worker of miracles; for he knew that God grants victory to those who deserve it, not because of their military strength but as he himself decides. This was his prayer: 'Master, thou didst send thy angel in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah, and he killed as many as a hundred and eighty-five thousand men in Sennacherib's camp. Now, Ruler of heaven, send once again a good angel to go in front of us spreading fear and panic. May they be struck down by thy strong arm, these blasphemers who are coming to attack thy holy people!' Thus he ended.

Nicanor and his forces advanced with trumpets and war-songs, but Judas and his men joined battle with invocations and prayers. Fighting with their hands and praying to God in their hearts, they killed no fewer than thirty-five thousand men, and were greatly cheered by the divine intervention.

The action was over, and they were joyfully disbanding, when they recognized Nicanor lying dead in his armour. Then with tumultuous shouts they praised their Master in their native language. Judas their leader, who always fought body and soul on behalf of his fellow-Jews, never losing his youthful patriotism, now ordered Nicanor's head to be cut off, also his hand and arm, and taken to Jerusalem. On arrival there he summoned all the people and stationed the priests before the altar. Then he sent for the men in the citadel, and showed them the head of the blackguardly Nicanor and the hand which this bragging blasphemer had extended against the Almighty's holy temple. He cut out the tongue of the impious Nicanor, and said he would give it to the birds bit by bit; and he gave orders that the evidence of what Nicanor's folly had brought upon him should be hung up opposite the shrine. They all made the sky ring with the praises of the Lord who had shown his power: 'Praise to him who has preserved his own sanctuary from defilement!' Judas hung Nicanor's head from the citadel, a clear proof of the Lord's help, for all to see. It was unanimously decreed that this day should never pass unnoticed but be regularly celebrated. It is the thirteenth of the twelfth month, called Adar in Aramaic, the day before Mordecai's Day. Such, then, was the fate of Nicanor, and from that time Jerusalem has remained in the possession of the Hebrews.

AT THIS POINT I WILL BRING MY WORK to an end. If it is found well written and aptly composed, that is what I myself hoped for; if cheap and mediocre, I could only do my best. For, just as it is disagreeable to drink wine alone or water alone, whereas the mixing of the two gives a pleasant and delightful taste, so too variety of style in a literary work charms the ear of the reader. Let this then be my final word.

intercessory prayer of the saints (vv. 12,14). 22: Judas refers to the angelic slaughter (probably by plague) of Sennacherib's army as it besieged Jerusalem (2 Kgs.19.35; Isa.37.36; 1 Macc.7.41). 33: Instead of having a public trophy or monument to Judas' defeat (v. 6), Nicanor became one to his own. 36: The feast of Nicanor was struck from the Jewish calendar after the destruction of the Temple in 70 A.D. For Mordecai's Day, see Esther 3.7; 9.20-23.

15.38-39: The Epitomist ends his version before the story of Judas's death (1 Macc.9.1-22).

THE NEW ENGLISH BIBLE

THE NEW TESTAMENT
OXFORD STUDY EDITION

CONTENTS

Introduction to the New Testament	iii
Marginal Numbers	vi
The Gospel According to Matthew	3
The Gospel According to Mark	42
The Gospel According to Luke	67
The Gospel According to John	108
Acts of the Apostles	141
The Letter of Paul to the Romans	183
The First Letter of Paul to the Corinthians	201
The Second Letter of Paul to the Corinthians	218
The Letter of Paul to the Galatians	230
The Letter of Paul to the Ephesians	237
The Letter of Paul to the Philippians	243
The Letter of Paul to the Colossians	249
The First Letter of Paul to the Thessalonians	254
The Second Letter of Paul to the Thessalonians	258
The First Letter of Paul to Timothy	261
The Second Letter of Paul to Timothy	267
The Letter of Paul to Titus	271
The Letter of Paul to Philemon	274
A Letter to Hebrews	276
A Letter of James	289
The First Letter of Peter	294
The Second Letter of Peter	299
The First Letter of John	302
The Second Letter of John	307
The Third Letter of John	308
A Letter of Jude	309
The Revelation of John	313

INTRODUCTION TO THE NEW TESTAMENT

This translation of the New Testament was undertaken with the object of providing English readers, whether familiar with the Bible or not, with a faithful rendering of the best available Greek text into the current speech of our own time, and a rendering which should harvest the gains of recent biblical scholarship.

It is now some three centuries and a half since King James's men put out what we have come to know as the Authorized Version. Two hundred and seventy years later the New Testament was revised. The Revised Version of the New Testament, which appeared in 1881, marked a new departure especially in that it abandoned the so-called Received Text, which had reigned ever since printed editions of the New Testament began, but which the advance of textual criticism had antiquated. The Revisers no longer followed (as their predecessors had done) the text of the majority of manuscripts, which, being for the most part of late date, had been exposed not only to the accidental corruptions of long-continued copying, but also in part to deliberate correction and 'improvement'. Instead, they followed a very small group of manuscripts, the earliest, and in their judgement the best, of those which had survived. During the years which have passed since their time, textual criticism has not stood still. Manuscripts have been discovered of substantially earlier date than any which the Revisers knew. Other important sources of evidence have been either freshly discovered or made more fully available. Meanwhile the methods of textual criticism have themselves been refined and estimates of the value of particular manuscripts have sometimes been reconsidered. The problem of restoring a form of text as near as possible to the vanished autographs now appears less simple than it did to our predecessors. There is not at the present time any critical text which would command the same degree of general acceptance as the Revisers' text did in its day. Nor has the time come, in the judgement of most scholars, to construct such a text, since new material constantly comes to light, and the debate continues. The present translators therefore could do no other than consider variant readings on their merits, and, having weighed the evidence for themselves, select for translation in each passage the reading which to the best of their judgement seemed most likely to represent what the author wrote. Where other readings seemed to deserve serious consideration they have been recorded in footnotes. In assessing the evidence, the translators have taken into account (a) ancient manuscripts of the New Testament in Greek, (b) manuscripts of early translations into other languages, and (c) quotations from the New Testament by early Christian writers. These three sources of evidence are collectively referred to as 'witnesses'. A large number of variants, however, are such as could make no appreciable difference to the meaning so far as it could be represented in translation, and these have been passed over in silence. The translators are well aware that their judgement is at best provisional, but they believe the text they have followed to be an improvement on that underlying the earlier translations. This text can now be read in The Greek New Testament, edited by R. V. G. Tasker (Oxford and Cambridge University Presses, 1964).

So much for the text. The next step was the effort to understand the original as accurately as possible, as a preliminary to turning it into English. The Revisers of 1881 believed that a better knowledge of the Greek language made it possible to correct a number of mistranslations in the older version, though in doing so they were somewhat limited by the instruction 'to introduce as few alterations as possible . . . consistently with faithfulness'. Since their time the study of the Greek language has no more stood still than has textual criticism. In particular, our knowledge of the kind of Greek used by most of the New Testament writers has been greatly enriched since 1881 by the discovery of many thousands of papyrus documents in popular or non-literary Greek of about the same period as the New Testament. It would be wrong to suggest that they lead to any far-reaching change in our understanding of the Greek of the New Testament period, but they have often made possible a better appreciation of the finer shades of idiom, which sometimes clarifies the meaning of passages in the New Testament. Its language is indeed in many respects more flexible and easy-going than the Revisers were ready to allow, and invites the translator to use a larger freedom.

Our task, however, differed in an important respect from that of the Revisers of 1881. They were instructed not only to introduce as few alterations as possible, but also 'to limit, as far as possible, the expression of such alterations to the language of the Authorised and earlier English Versions'. The present translators were subject to no such limitation. In accordance with the original decision of the Joint Committee they were to make the attempt to use consistently the idiom of contemporary English to convey the meaning of the Greek.

The older translators, on the whole, considered that fidelity to the original demanded that they should reproduce, as far as possible, characteristic features of the language in which it was written, such as the syntactical order of words, the structure and division of sentences, and even such irregularities of grammar as were indeed natural enough to authors writing in the easy idiom of popular Hellenistic Greek, but less natural when turned into English. The present translators were enjoined to replace Greek constructions and idioms by those of contemporary English.

This meant a different theory and practice of translation, and one which laid a heavier burden on the translators. Fidelity in translation was not to mean keeping the general framework of the original intact while replacing Greek words by English words more or less equivalent. A word, indeed, in one language is seldom the exact equivalent of a word in a different language. Each word is the centre of a whole cluster of meanings and associations, and in different languages these clusters overlap but do not often coincide. The place of a word in the clause or sentence, or even in a larger unit of thought, will determine what aspect of its total meaning is in the foreground. The translator can hardly hope to convey in another language every shade of meaning that attaches to the word in the original, but if he is free to exploit a wide range of English words covering a similar area of meaning and association he may hope to carry over the meaning of the sentence as a whole. Thus we have not felt obliged (as did the Revisers of 1881) to make an effort to render the same Greek word everywhere by the same English word. We have in this respect returned to the wholesome practice of King James's men, who (as they expressly state in their preface) recognized no such obligation.

We have conceived our task to be that of understanding the original as precisely as we could (using all available aids), and then saying again in our own native idiom what we believed the author to be saying in his. We have found that in practice this frequently compelled us to make decisions where the older method of translation allowed a comfortable ambiguity. In such places we have been aware that we take a risk, but we have thought it our duty to take the risk rather than remain on the fence.

In doing our work, we have constantly striven to follow our instructions and render the Greek, as we understood it, into the English of the present day, that is, into the natural vocabulary, constructions, and rhythms of contemporary speech. We have sought to avoid archaism, jargon, and all that is either stilted or slipshod.

It should be said that our intention has been to offer a translation in the strict sense, and not a paraphrase, and we have not wished to encroach on the field of the commentator. But if the best commentary is a good translation, it is also true that every intelligent translation is in a sense a paraphrase. The line between translation and paraphrase is a fine one. But we have had recourse to deliberate paraphrase with great caution, and only in a few passages where without it we could see no way to attain our aim of making the meaning as clear as it could be made. Taken as a whole, our version claims to be a translation, free, it may be, rather than literal, but a faithful translation nevertheless, so far as we could compass it.

For this edition, the translation of the New Testament has been given a careful revision, in which account has been taken of numerous criticisms and suggestions which have come in from various quarters. It is hoped that the modifications introduced, mostly in minor details and seldom reflecting any substantial change of view about the meaning of a passage, will be found to be in the direction of improvement.

In the course of revision, consideration has been given to passages from the Old Testament quoted in the New. These have now been harmonized with the present version of the Old Testament, where this seemed desirable, and practicable. But the quotations are in Greek, and the Greek is by no means always an exact equivalent of the Hebrew. Where it is not, we have deemed it our duty to render the Greek as it lay before us, and not to attempt to reproduce the underlying Hebrew. On this point there has been consultation between representatives of the Old and the New Testament panels.

The translators are as conscious as anyone can be of the limitations and imperfections of their work. No one who has not tried it can know how impossible an art translation is. Only those who have meditated long upon the Greek original are aware of the richness and subtlety of meaning that may lie even within the most apparently simple sentence, or know the despair that attends all efforts to bring it out through the medium of a different language. Yet we may hope that we have been able to convey to our readers something at least of what the New Testament has said to us during these years of work, and trust that under the providence of Almighty God this translation may open the truth of the Scriptures to many who have been hindered in their approach to it by barriers of language.

C. H. D.

Marginal Numbers

The conventional verse divisions in the New Testament date only from 1551 and have no basis in the manuscripts. Any system of division into numbered verses is foreign to the spirit of this translation, which is intended to convey the meaning in continuous natural English rather than to correspond sentence by sentence with the Greek.

For purposes of reference, and of comparison with other translations, verse numbers are placed in the margin opposite the line in which the first word belonging to the verse in question appears. Sometimes, however, successive verses are combined in a continuous English sentence, so that the precise point where a new verse begins cannot be fixed; occasionally in the interests of clarity the order of successive verses is reversed (e.g. at John 4.7,8).

THE GOSPEL

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW

The Gospel of Matthew has long been regarded as the most Jewish of the Gospels: the author's preference for the term kingdom of Heaven (see 3.2 n.), his description of Peter's commission in scribal categories (16.19 n.), and his interest in the Law (5.17-19 nn.) are traits which point in this direction. Yet, he shows an anti-Pharisaic bias (e.g. ch. 23), probably intends 23.37-24.2 to imply the repudiation of Israel, and concludes his book with a scene which directs the disciples out into the Gentile mission (28.16-20). With good reason (see 16.18 n.; 18.1-19.1 nn.), this has also been called an "ecclesiastical" Gospel; on almost every page the author's concern for the life of the Church may be detected.

The feature of the book which attracts immediate attention is the organization of the teaching tradition into five great discourses (chs. 5-7; 10; 13; 18; 24-25). A narrative section precedes each discourse. This scheme is prefaced by chs. 1-2, which introduce the Messiah-Son of David, and is climaxed by the concluding report of the crucifixion and resurrection in chs. 26-28.

The book was probably written about 90 A.D.

The coming of Christ

1 ATABLE OF THE DESCENT OF JESUS Christ, son of David, son of Abraham.

2 Abraham was the father of Isaac, Isaac of Jacob, Jacob of Judah and his 3 brothers, Judah of Perez and Zarah (their mother was Tamar), Perez of 4 Hezron, Hezron of Ram, Ram of Amminadab, Amminadab of Nahshon, 5 Nahshon of Salma, Salma of Boaz (his mother was Rahab), Boaz of Obed (his 6 mother was Ruth), Obed of Jesse; and Jesse was the father of King David.

David was the father of Solomon (his mother had been the wife of 7 Uriah), Solomon of Rehoboam, Rehoboam of Abijah, Abijah of Asa, Asa of Jehoshaphat, Jehoshaphat of Joram, 9 Joram of Azariah, Azariah of Jotham, Jotham of Ahaz, Ahaz of Hezekiah, 10 Hezekiah of Manasseh, Manasseh of Amon, Amon of Josiah; and Josiah 11 was the father of Jeconiah and his brothers at the time of the deportation to Babylon.

12 After the deportation Jeconiah was the father of Shealtiel, Shealtiel of 13 Zerubbabel, Zerubbabel of Abiud, Abiud of Eliakim, Eliakim of Azor, Azor of Zadok, Zadok of Achim, Achim 14 of Eliud, Eliud of Eleazar, Eleazar of Matthan, Matthan of Jacob, Jacob of Joseph, the husband of Mary, who gave 15 birth to<sup>a</sup> Jesus called Messiah.

There were thus fourteen generations 17 in all from Abraham to David, fourteen from David until the deportation to Babylon, and fourteen from the deportation until the Messiah.

THIS IS THE STORY OF THE BIRTH OF 18 the Messiah. Mary his mother was betrothed to Joseph; before their marriage she found that she was with 19 child by the Holy Spirit. Being a man of principle, and at the same time wanting to save her from exposure, Joseph desired to have the marriage 20 contract set aside quietly. He had resolved on this, when an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream. 'Joseph son of David,' said the angel, 'do not be afraid to take Mary home with you as your wife. It is by the Holy Spirit that she has conceived this child.

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses read Joseph, to whom was betrothed Mary, a virgin, who gave birth to . . . ; one witness has Joseph, and Joseph, to whom Mary, a virgin, was betrothed, was the father of . . .

1.1-17: Genealogy of the Messiah (compare Lk.3.23-38). 1: Lit. Christ (or Messiah, v. 17) means "anointed one" and was frequently used of the royal figure whose rule would bring about the final age of righteousness and justice. The genealogy presents Jesus as this ruler, descended from King David (vv. 1,6) through the royal line (vv. 6-11). 2-11: These names are drawn from Ruth 4.18-22; 1 Chr.2.1-3.19. 17: Fourteen generations: perhaps reflecting the numerical value of David in Heb.;  $d(4) + v(6) + d(4) = 14$ . Messiah: see v. 1 n.

1.18-25: The birth of Jesus (compare Lk.1.26-38; 2.1-7). The theme of the miraculous birth pervades the passage (vv. 18,20,23,25). 20: Both the angel ("messenger") and the dream are

21 She will bear a son; and you shall give him the name Jesus (Saviour), for he will save his people from their sins.'
 22 All this happened in order to fulfil what the Lord declared through the prophet: 'The virgin will conceive and bear a son, and he shall be called Emmanuel', a name which means 'God is with us'.
 24 Rising from sleep Joseph did as the angel had directed him; he took Mary home to be his wife, but had no intercourse with her until her son was born. And he named the child Jesus.

2 JESUS WAS BORN AT BETHLEHEM IN Judaea during the reign of Herod. After his birth astrologers from the east arrived in Jerusalem, asking, 'Where is the child who is born to be king of the Jews?'<sup>b</sup> We observed the rising of his star, and we have come to pay him homage.' King Herod was greatly perturbed when he heard this; and so was the whole of Jerusalem. He called a meeting of the chief priests and lawyers of the Jewish people, and put before them the question: 'Where is it that the Messiah is to be born?' 'At Bethlehem in Judaea', they replied; and they referred him to the prophecy which reads: 'Bethlehem in the land of Judah, you are far from least in the eyes of<sup>c</sup> the rulers of Judah; for out of you shall come a leader to be the shepherd of my people Israel.'
 7 Herod next called the astrologers to meet him in private, and ascertained from them the time when the star had appeared. He then sent them on to Bethlehem, and said, 'Go and make a careful inquiry for the child. When you have found him, report to me, so that I may go myself and pay him homage.'
 9 They set out at the king's bidding; and the star which they had seen at its rising went ahead of them until it stopped above the place where the child lay. At the sight of the star they were overjoyed. Entering the house, they saw the child with Mary his mother, and bowed to the ground in homage to him; then they opened their treasures and offered him gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh. And being warned in a dream not to go back to Herod, they returned home another way.

After they had gone, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream, and said to him, 'Rise up, take the child and his mother and escape with them to Egypt, and stay there until I tell you; for Herod is going to search for the child to do away with him.' So Joseph rose from sleep, and taking mother and child by night he went away with them to Egypt, and there he stayed till Herod's death. This was to fulfil what the Lord had declared through the prophet: 'I called my son out of Egypt.'

When Herod saw how the astrologers had tricked him he fell into a passion, and gave orders for the massacre of all children in Bethlehem and its neighbourhood, of the age of two years or less, corresponding with the time he had ascertained from the astrologers. So the words spoken through Jeremiah the prophet were fulfilled: 'A voice was heard in Rama, wailing and loud laments; it was Rachel weeping for her children, and refusing all consolation, because they were no more.'

The time came that Herod died; and an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt and said to him, 'Rise up, take the child and his mother, and go with them to the land of Israel, for the men who threatened customary devices for reporting revelations (see 2.12-13,22). 21,23: The chief significance of the account for Mt. lies in the pointedly explained names, Jesus and Emmanuel. 22-23: See Isa.7.14 n. Mt. frequently introduces OT quotations with a phrase like to fulfil what the Lord declared through the prophets (e.g. 2.15; 8.17; 27.9-10).

<sup>b</sup> Or Where is the king of the Jews who has just been born?
<sup>c</sup> Or least among.

2.1-12: The infant Jesus in Bethlehem. 1: Bethlehem, the city of David, was the expected birthplace of the Messiah (vv. 4-6). Reign of Herod: 37 B.C.-4 B.C. 4: Lawyers: interpreters of Scripture, especially of the Law of Moses. 6: Mic.5.2. In the OT shepherd frequently means "ruler."

2.13-23: Escape and return. The story of the flight to Egypt is told only by Mt. 15: Hos.11.1. 16: The massacre is not reported elsewhere, but Herod's barbarity was notorious. 18: Jer.31.15.

- 21 the child's life are dead.' So he rose, took mother and child with him, and came to the land of Israel. Hearing, however, that Archelaus had succeeded his father Herod as king of Judaea, he was afraid to go there. And being warned by a dream, he withdrew to the region of Galilee; there he settled in a town called Nazareth. This was to fulfil the words spoken through the prophets: 'He shall be called a Nazarene.'
- 3 ABOUT THAT TIME JOHN THE BAPTIST appeared as a preacher in the Judaean wilderness; his theme was: 'Repent; for the kingdom of Heaven is upon you!' It is of him that the prophet Isaiah spoke when he said, 'A voice crying aloud in the wilderness, "Prepare a way for the Lord; clear a straight path for him."'
- 4 John's clothing was a rough coat of camel's hair, with a leather belt round his waist, and his food was locusts and wild honey. They flocked to him from Jerusalem, from all Judaea, and the whole Jordan valley, and were baptized by him in the River Jordan, confessing their sins.
- 7 When he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming for baptism he said to them: 'You vipers' brood! Who warned you to escape from the coming retribution? Then prove your repentance by the fruit it bears; and do not presume to say to yourselves, "We have Abraham for our father." I tell you that God can make children for Abraham out of these stones here. Already the axe is laid to the roots of the trees; and every tree that fails to produce good fruit is cut down and thrown on the fire. I baptize you with water, for repentance; but the one who comes after me is mightier than I. I am not fit to take off his shoes. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire. His shovel is ready in his hand and he will winnow his threshing-floor; the wheat he will gather into his granary, but he will burn the chaff on a fire that can never go out.'
- Then Jesus arrived at the Jordan from Galilee, and came to John to be baptized by him. John tried to dissuade him. 'Do you come to me?' he said; 'I need rather to be baptized by you.' Jesus replied, 'Let it be so for the present; we do well to conform in this way with all that God requires.' John then allowed him to come. After baptism Jesus came up out of the water at once, and at that moment heaven opened; he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove to alight upon him; and a voice from heaven was heard saying, 'This is my Son, my Beloved,<sup>d</sup> on whom my favour rests.'
- d Or This is my only Son.*

22: Archelaus ruled from 4 B.C. to 6 A.D. 23: Probably Isa.11.1 (which contains a Heb. word, nezer, translated "branch," similar to Nazareth) is the intended reference.

3.1-12: The work of the Baptist (Mk.1.1-8; Lk.3.1-18; Jn.1.6,15,19-28). 1: Wilderness: the arid Judean territory southeast of Jerusalem, including the lower Jordan valley (v. 6). 2: Repent: to change one's mind (Gk.), to return, to turn around (Heb.). Kingdom: see Mk.1.15 n. In Jewish piety, Heaven was an ordinary manner of referring to God. 3: Isa.40.3. 4: 2 Kgs.1.8 attributes similar clothing to Elijah. 7: Baptism, dipping in water, was an important ritual in the Dead Sea community and was also administered to Gentile converts to Judaism. The Pharisees were a predominantly lay Jewish movement marked by an elastic interpretation of the Law, though in terms of a special, inherited tradition; they accepted as authoritative not only the "books of Moses," but also other literature including the prophets and other writings; they believed in such "new" doctrines as the resurrection; after the fall of Jerusalem (70 A.D.), they were the dominant force in Judaism. The Sadducees, who interpreted Scripture literally, were a priestly-oriented party who enjoyed considerable civil power in Roman times and were theologically conservative (e.g. they did not believe in the resurrection). There were other distinctive Jewish groups, including the Essenes (of whose literature and practices the Dead Sea Scrolls provide rich information); about these, the NT is silent. 9: Abraham for our father: see Lk.3.8n. 11: Holy Spirit and fire: see Lk.3.16 n.

3.13-17: The baptism of Jesus (Mk.1.9-11 n.; Lk.3.21-22; Jn.1.32-34). 14-15: Jesus' baptism by John presented several problems to the early church. These verses show, first, that John was subordinate to Jesus (v. 14) and second, that Jesus' submission to baptism was not evidence of his sinfulness (vv. 6,15). 16: The origin of the Spirit-dove imagery is unknown; the Spirit's "hovering" over the deep in Gen.1.2 is a frequently conjectured source. The descent of the Spirit appears to have marked Jesus' installation as Son in the primitive tradition. 17: On Son, Beloved, see Mk.1.11 n.

4 JESUS WAS THEN LED AWAY BY THE Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted by the devil.
 2 For forty days and nights he fasted, and at the end of them he was famished.
 3 The tempter approached him and said, 'If you are the Son of God, tell 4 these stones to become bread.' Jesus answered, 'Scripture says, "Man cannot live on bread alone; he lives on every word that God utters."
 5 The devil then took him to the Holy City and set him on the parapet of the temple. 'If you are the Son of God,' he said, 'throw yourself down; for Scripture says, "He will put his angels in charge of you, and they will support you in their arms, for fear you should strike your foot against a stone."
 7 Jesus answered him, 'Scripture says again, "You are not to put the Lord your God to the test."
 8 Once again, the devil took him to a very high mountain, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world in their glory. 'All these', he said, 'I will give you, if you will only fall down and do me homage.' But Jesus said, 'Begone, Satan! Scripture says, "You shall do homage to the Lord your God and worship him alone."
 11 Then the devil left him; and angels appeared and waited on him.
 12 When he heard that John had been arrested, Jesus withdrew to Galilee; and leaving Nazareth he went and settled at Capernaum on the Sea of Galilee, in the district of Zebulun and Naphtali. This was to fulfil the passage 15 in the prophet Isaiah which tells of 'the land of Zebulun, the land of Naphtali, the Way of the Sea, the land beyond Jordan, heathen Galilee', and says:

'The people that lived in darkness 16 saw a great light; light dawned on the dwellers in the land of death's dark shadow.'

From that day Jesus began to proclaim 17 the message: 'Repent; for<sup>e</sup> the kingdom of Heaven is upon you.'

JESUS WAS WALKING BY THE SEA OF 18 Galilee when he saw two brothers, Simon called Peter and his brother Andrew, casting a net into the lake; for they were fishermen. Jesus said to 19 them, 'Come with me, and I will make you fishers of men.' And at once they 20 left their nets and followed him.

He went on, and saw another pair of 21 brothers, James son of Zebedee and his brother John; they were in the boat with their father Zebedee, overhauling their nets. He called them, and at once 22 they left the boat and their father, and followed him.

He went round the whole of Galilee, 23 teaching in the synagogues, preaching the gospel of the Kingdom, and curing whatever illness or infirmity there was among the people. His fame reached 24 the whole of Syria; and sufferers from every kind of illness, racked with pain, possessed by devils, epileptic, or paralysed, were all brought to him, and he cured them. Great crowds also 25 followed him, from Galilee and the Ten Towns,<sup>f</sup> from Jerusalem and Judaea, and from Transjordan.

The Sermon on the Mount

WHEN HE SAW THE CROWDS HE WENT 5

<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses omit Repent; for. <sup>f</sup> Greek Decapolis.

4.1-11: The temptation (Mk.1.12-13; Lk.4.1-13). 1: The devil, or Satan, (v. 10) is properly defined as the tempter in v. 3; he is a personification of the evil force which opposes God. 2: Forty days and nights is reminiscent of fasts of Moses (Exod.34.28; Deut.9.9,18) and Elijah (1 Kgs.19.8). 3,6: The issue at stake in the incident is: if you are the Son of God, what is the meaning of true sonship? 4: Deut.8.3. 5: Holy City: Jerusalem. 6: Ps.91.11-12. 7: Deut.6.16. 8-9: The world is conceived as under Satan's power until God's kingdom is realized (v. 17). 10: Deut.6.13.

4.12-25: The beginning of Jesus' ministry (Mk.1.14-20; Lk.4.14-15; 5.1-11; Jn.1.35-51). 15-16: Isa.9.1-2. 17: On kingdom of Heaven, see 3.2 n. and Mk.1.15 n. 18-22: See Mk.1.16-20 n. 18: Simon called Peter: compare 16.18; Jn.1.42. 24: Devils: demons, spirits acting as agents of Satan to work evil. 25: Ten Towns: Decapolis, in Gk.; a confederation of ten independent cities, most of which were southeast of the Sea of Galilee.

5.1-7.29: The Sermon on the Mount is the first of five great discourses in Mt. (see Introduction). Mt. has organized traditions from various sources to develop the theme of the "higher righteousness" (v. 20 n.). 1: Hill: mountains are frequently associated with revelation (compare

- up the hill. There he took his seat, and when his disciples had gathered round him he began to address them. And this is the teaching he gave:
- 3 'How blest are these who know their need of God;
the kingdom of Heaven is theirs.
- 4 How blest are the sorrowful;
they shall find consolation.
- 5 How blest are those of a gentle spirit;
they shall have the earth for their possession.
- 6 How blest are those who hunger and thirst to see right prevail;<sup>g</sup>
they shall be satisfied.
- 7 How blest are those who show mercy;
mercy shall be shown to them.
- 8 How blest are those whose hearts are pure;
they shall see God.
- 9 How blest are the peacemakers;
God shall call them his sons.
- 10 How blest are those who have suffered persecution for the cause of right;
the kingdom of Heaven is theirs.
- 11 'How blest you are, when you suffer insults and persecution and every kind of calumny for my sake. Accept it with gladness and exultation, for you have a rich reward in heaven; in the same way they persecuted the prophets before you.

'You are salt to the world. And if salt becomes tasteless, how is its saltness to be restored? It is now good for nothing but to be thrown away and trodden underfoot.

'You are light for all the world. A town that stands on a hill cannot be hidden. When a lamp is lit, it is not put under the meal-tub, but on the lamp-stand, where it gives light to everyone in the house. And you, like the lamp, must shed light among your fellows, so that, when they see the good you do, they may give praise to your Father in heaven.

'DO NOT SUPPOSE THAT I HAVE COME to abolish the Law and the prophets; I did not come to abolish, but to complete. I tell you this: so long as heaven and earth endure, not a letter, not a stroke, will disappear from the Law until all that must happen has happened.<sup>h</sup> If any man therefore sets aside even the least of the Law's demands, and teaches others to do the same, he will have the lowest place in the kingdom of Heaven, whereas anyone who keeps the Law, and teaches others so, will stand high in the kingdom of Heaven. I tell you, unless you show yourselves far better men than the Pharisees and the

<sup>g</sup> Or to do what is right.

<sup>h</sup> Or before all that it stands for is achieved.

17.1; 28.16); contrast Lk.6.17. The Jewish teacher customarily sat when delivering instruction. 2: His disciples seems to limit the audience (but see 7.28).

5.3–10: The Beatitudes (Lk.6.20–23). 3: How blest (or "blessed") introduces a form, popularly called a beatitude, which in the OT and Apoc. commends a type of behavior or attitude for which this worldly happiness is the promised reward (Ps.1.1–2; Prov.8.32–34; Ecclus.25.7–10). In vv. 3–10 (compare Rev.1.3) the promise is eschatological; i.e. the rewards are related to God's coming kingdom and the beatitudes become conditions for admission to the kingdom. Know their need of God (for the familiar "poor in spirit") catches the religious dimension of a form of Jewish piety for which "poverty" and "utter dependence on God" were synonymous. 6: The text, to see right prevail, implies "to witness the final vindication of right"; Tfn. g, to do what is right, reflects the meaning the Gk. word dikaiosisyne usually has for Mt.

5.11–16: The task of the disciples. 11–12: The disciples are to expect suffering, which is their lot as prophets; compare Lk.6.22–23. 13–14: Both salt and light are metaphors for the learning of the wise and should perhaps be regarded as "names" (see 16.18 n.); see Mk.4.21; 9.50; Lk.8.16; 11.33; 14.34–35. 13: The word translated becomes tasteless can also mean "becomes foolish."

5.17–20: The permanence of the Law. 17: The Law (the "Five Books of Moses") and the writings of the prophets are regarded as one body of Scripture (compare 11.13). The section strongly affirms the abiding validity of the Law. 18: Stroke: Lk.16.17 n. 19: A scribe who sets aside (interprets too freely) the demands may, in effect, nullify both letter and spirit of the Law. 20: Show yourselves far better men calls for a "higher righteousness" which the remainder of the Sermon describes. Pharisees: see 3.7 n. Doctors of the law (scribes): interpreters of the Law; although there must have been Sadducean and other interpreters, Mt. probably refers here to legal specialists among the Pharisees. Enter the kingdom: participate in the salvation accompanying God's rule (see Mk.1.15 n.).

doctors of the law, you can never enter the kingdom of Heaven.

21 'You have learned that our forefathers were told, "Do not commit murder; anyone who commits murder must be brought to judgement." But what I tell you is this: Anyone who nurses anger against his brother<sup>i</sup> must be brought to judgement. If he abuses his brother he must answer for it to the court; if he sneers at him he will have to answer for it in the fires of hell.

23 'If, when you are bringing your gift to the altar, you suddenly remember that your brother has a grievance against you, leave your gift where it is before the altar. First go and make your peace with your brother, and only then come back and offer your gift.

25 'If someone sues you, come to terms with him promptly while you are both on your way to court; otherwise he may hand you over to the judge, and the judge to the constable, and you will be put in jail. I tell you, once you are there you will not be let out till you have paid the last farthing.

27 'You have learned that they were told, "Do not commit adultery." But what I tell you is this: If a man looks on a woman with a lustful eye, he has already committed adultery with her in his heart.

29 'If your right eye is your undoing, tear it out and fling it away; it is better for you to lose one part of your body than for the whole of it to be thrown into hell. And if your right hand is your undoing, cut it off and fling it away; it is better for you to lose one part of your body than for the whole of it to go to hell.

'They were told, "A man who divorces his wife must give her a note of dismissal." But what I tell you is this: If a man divorces his wife for any cause other than unchastity he involves her in adultery; and anyone who marries a divorced woman commits adultery.

'Again, you have learned that our forefathers were told, "Do not break your oath", and, "Oaths sworn to the Lord must be kept." But what I tell you is this: You are not to swear at all—not by heaven, for it is God's throne, nor by earth, for it is his footstool, nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King, nor by your own head, because you cannot turn one hair of it white or black. Plain "Yes" or "No" is all you need to say; anything beyond that comes from the devil.

'You have learned that they were told, "Eye for eye, tooth for tooth." But what I tell you is this: Do not set yourself against the man who wrongs you. If someone slaps you on the right cheek, turn and offer him your left. If a man wants to sue you for your shirt, let him have your coat as well. If a man in authority makes you go one mile, go with him two. Give when you are asked to give; and do not turn your back on a man who wants to borrow.

'You have learned that they were told, "Love your neighbour, hate your enemy." But what I tell you is this: Love your enemies<sup>j</sup> and pray for your

<sup>i</sup> Some witnesses insert without good cause.

<sup>j</sup> Some witnesses insert bless those who curse you, do good to those who hate you.

5.21-48: The meaning of the Law. A series of six statements characterized by the formula, You have learned... but what I tell you, gives the Law a more radical (usually, an inward) dimension 21-26: On murder and anger. 21: Exod.20.13; Deut.5.17, with some addition from the Jewish interpretative tradition. 23-24: A restored relationship with God (through altar sacrifice in the Jerusalem Temple) requires prior reconciliation with the brother (compare 6.14-15). 27-30: On adultery and lust. 27: Exod.20.14; Deut.5.18. 29-30: Compare 18.7-9 n.; Mk.9.43-48. 31-32: On divorce. Deut.24.1-4; first-century legal interpretation sometimes allowed men to divorce their wives for trivial reasons (see Mk.10.12 n.). 32: Other than unchastity (see also 19.9): omitted in Mk.10.11; Lk.16.18; 1 Cor.7.10-11. Matthew's form agrees with a strict type of Pharisaic interpretation. 33-37: On oath taking. 33: Lev.19.12; Num.30.2 34-36: Compare 23.16-22. 35: The great King: God. 37: This radical rule on oaths is carefully stated in Jas.5.12. 38-42: On retaliation (Lk.6.29-30). 38: Exod.21.23-24, Lev.24.19-20; Deut.19.21. 43-48: On enemies (Lk.6.27-28,32-36). 43: Love your neighbour (Lev.19.18) was central to Jewish, as well as Christian, ethical concern in the first century. Hate your enemy is not found in the OT or Pharisaic, Rabbinic Judaism; some other source must be assumed. The positive teaching radicalizes the obligation to love, not only by including

45 persecutors;<sup>k</sup> only so can you be children of your heavenly Father, who makes his sun rise on good and bad alike, and sends the rain on the honest
46 and the dishonest. If you love only those who love you, what reward can you expect? Surely the tax-gatherers 47 do as much as that. And if you greet only your brothers, what is there extraordinary about that? Even the heathen
48 do as much. There must be no limit to your goodness, as your heavenly Father's goodness knows no bounds.

6 'BE CAREFUL NOT TO MAKE A SHOW OF your religion before men; if you do, no reward awaits you in your Father's house in heaven.

2 'Thus, when you do some act of charity, do not announce it with a flourish of trumpets, as the hypocrites do in synagogue and in the streets to win admiration from men. I tell you this: they have their reward already.
3 No; when you do some act of charity, do not let your left hand know what
4 your right is doing; your good deed must be secret, and your Father who sees what is done in secret will reward you.<sup>l</sup>

5 'Again, when you pray, do not be like the hypocrites; they love to say their prayers standing up in synagogue and at the street-corners, for everyone to see them. I tell you this: they have
6 their reward already. But when you pray, go into a room by yourself, shut the door, and pray to your Father who is there in the secret place; and your Father who sees what is secret will reward you.<sup>l</sup>

7 'In your prayers do not go babbling on like the heathen, who imagine that the more they say the more likely they 8 are to be heard. Do not imitate them.

Your Father knows what your needs are before you ask him.

'This is how you should pray: 9

"Our Father in heaven,
thy name be hallowed;
thy kingdom come,
thy will be done,
on earth as in heaven.

Give us today our daily bread.<sup>m</sup> 10

Forgive us the wrong we have done,
as we have forgiven those who have wronged us.

And do not bring us to the test,
but save us from the evil one."<sup>n o</sup> 13

For if you forgive others the wrongs 14 they have done, your heavenly Father will also forgive you; but if you do not 15 forgive others, then the wrongs you have done will not be forgiven by your Father.

'So too when you fast, do not look 16 gloomy like the hypocrites: they make their faces unsightly so that other people may see that they are fasting. I tell you this: they have their reward already. But when you fast, anoint 17 your head and wash your face, so that 18 men may not see that you are fasting, but only your Father who is in the secret place; and your Father who sees what is secret will give you your reward.

'DO NOT STORE UP FOR YOURSELVES 19 treasure on earth, where it grows rusty and moth-eaten, and thieves break in to steal it. Store up treasure in heaven, 20 where there is no moth and no rust to spoil it, no thieves to break in and

k Some witnesses insert and those who treat you spitefully.

l Some witnesses add openly.

m Or our bread for the morrow.

n Or from evil.

o Some witnesses add For thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory, for ever. Amen.

enemies (v. 44), but by appealing to God's impartial dealing with all men (v. 45). 45: Sons: see Lk.6.35 n. 46-47: See 5.20. 48: See Lev.19.2. The verse summarizes vv. 21-48; only an unrestricted obedience, which measures itself by God's goodness, is true righteousness.

6.1-18: Sincere piety seeks to serve God unostentatiously, without the fanfare of the hypocrites (lit. "playactors," vv. 2,5,16). 2: Almsgiving (act of charity) was a special virtue in Judaism. Synagogue: see Lk.4.16 n. 9-13: The Lord's Prayer (compare the shorter form in Lk.11.2-4) centers in the hope for the kingdom of God (Mk.1.15 n.). 9: Rom.8.15 is an example of the importance early Christians attached to addressing God as Father. 11: The Gk. word translated daily (Tin. m: for the morrow) does not appear elsewhere and its meaning is uncertain; in context, the petition must be a statement of trust in the One whose rule is coming. 12,14-15: On forgiveness of others, see 18.21-35.

6.19-34: Trust in God and material possessions compared (Lk.11.34-36; 12.22-31,33-34).

- 21 steal. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.
- 22 'The lamp of the body is the eye. If your eyes are sound, you will have
- 23 light for your whole body; if the eyes are bad, your whole body will be in darkness. If then the only light you have is darkness, the darkness is doubly dark.
- 24 'No servant can be the slave of two masters; for either he will hate the first and love the second, or he will be devoted to the first and think nothing of the second. You cannot serve God and Money.
- 25 'Therefore I bid you put away anxious thoughts about food and drink to keep you alive, and clothes to cover your body. Surely life is more than food, the body more than clothes.
- 26 Look at the birds of the air; they do not sow and reap and store in barns, yet your heavenly Father feeds them.
- 27 You are worth more than the birds! Is there a man of you who by anxious thought can add a foot to his height?<sup>p</sup>
- 28 And why be anxious about clothes? Consider how the lilies grow in the fields; they do not work, they do not spin;<sup>q</sup> and yet, I tell you, even Solomon in all his splendour was not attired like one of these. But if that is how God clothes the grass in the fields, which is there today, and tomorrow is thrown on the stove, will he not all the more clothe you? How little faith you have!
- 31 No, do not ask anxiously, "What are we to eat? What are we to drink? What shall we wear?" All these are things for the heathen to run after, not for you, because your heavenly Father knows that you need them all. Set your mind on God's kingdom and his justice before everything else, and all the rest will come to you as well. So do not be anxious about tomorrow; tomorrow will look after itself. Each day has troubles enough of its own.
- 'PASS NO JUDGEMENT, AND YOU WILL 7 not be judged. For as you judge others, 2 so you will yourselves be judged, and whatever measure you deal out to others will be dealt back to you. Why 3 do you look at the speck of sawdust in your brother's eye, with never a thought for the great plank in your own? Or how can you say to your 4 brother, "Let me take the speck out of your eye", when all the time there is that plank in your own? You hypocrite! 5 First take the plank out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your brother's.
- 'Do not give dogs what is holy; do 6 not throw your pearls to the pigs: they will only trample on them, and turn and tear you to pieces.
- 'Ask, and you will receive; seek, and 7 you will find; knock, and the door will be opened. For everyone who 8 asks receives, he who seeks finds, and to him who knocks, the door will be opened.
- 'Is there a man among you who will 9 offer his son a stone when he asks for bread, or a snake when he asks for 10 fish? If you, then, bad as you are, 11 know how to give your children what is good for them, how much more will your heavenly Father give good things to those who ask him!
- 'Always treat others as you would 12 like them to treat you: that is the Law and the prophets.
- 'Enter by the narrow gate. The gate 13 is wide that leads to perdition, there is plenty of room on the road,<sup>r</sup> and many go that way; but the gate that leads to 14 life is small and the road is narrow,<sup>s</sup> and those who find it are few.
- 'Beware of false prophets, men who 15

<sup>p</sup> Or a day to his life.

<sup>q</sup> One witness reads Consider the lilies: they neither card nor spin, nor labour.

<sup>r</sup> Some witnesses read The road that leads to perdition is wide with plenty of room.

<sup>s</sup> Some witnesses read but the road that leads to life is small and narrow.

22: Sound and bad eyes probably contrast "generosity" and "stinginess." Generosity in acts of charity (v. 2 n.) is a way of storing up treasure in heaven (v. 20). 24: Lk.16.13. 25-34: God can be trusted from day to day (vv. 26,30,32); the man of faith (v. 30) is free to put God's kingdom first (v. 33).

7.1-14: General instructions. 1-5: Lk.6.37-38,41-42. 2: Mk.4.24. 7-11: Lk.11.9-13. 12: The Golden Rule (Lk.6.31) is a widespread principle in ancient ethical literature, including that of Judaism. A related summary of the Law and the prophets is found in 22.34-40 (compare Mk.12.28-34; Lk.10.25-28 n.). 13-14: Lk.13.23-24.

7.15-23: Warnings against false leaders (Lk.6.43-46). Since the false prophets appear as

Teaching and healing

come to you dressed up as sheep while underneath they are savage wolves.
 16 You will recognize them by the fruits they bear. Can grapes be picked from briars, or figs from thistles? In the same way, a good tree always yields good fruit, and a poor tree bad fruit.
 17 A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, or a poor tree good fruit. And when a tree does not yield good fruit it is cut down and burnt. That is why I say you will recognize them by their fruits.
 21 "Not everyone who calls me "Lord, Lord" will enter the kingdom of Heaven, but only those who do the will of my heavenly Father. When that day comes, many will say to me, "Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, cast out devils in your name, and in your name perform many miracles?" Then I will tell them to their face, "I never knew you; out of my sight, you and your wicked ways!"
 24 "What then of the man who hears these words of mine and acts upon them? He is like a man who had the sense to build his house on rock. The rain came down, the floods rose, the wind blew, and beat upon that house; but it did not fall, because its foundations were on rock. But what of the man who hears these words of mine and does not act upon them? He is like a man who was foolish enough to build his house on sand. The rain came down, the floods rose, the wind blew, and beat upon that house; down it fell with a great crash."
 28 When Jesus had finished this discourse the people were astounded at his teaching; unlike their own teachers he taught with a note of authority.

AFTER HE HAD COME DOWN FROM THE 8 hill he was followed by a great crowd. And now a leper<sup>1</sup> approached him, 2 bowed low, and said, "Sir, if only you will, you can cleanse me." Jesus 3 stretched out his hand, touched him, and said, "Indeed I will; be clean again." And his leprosy was cured immediately. Then Jesus said to him, 4 "Be sure you tell nobody; but go and show yourself to the priest, and make the offering laid down by Moses for your cleansing; that will certify the cure."

When he had entered Capernaum a 5 centurion came up to ask his help. "Sir," he said, 'a boy of mine lies at home paralysed and racked with pain.' Jesus said, 'I will come and cure him.'<sup>u</sup> 7 But the centurion replied, 'Sir, who am 8 I to have you under my roof? You need only say the word and the boy will be cured. I know, for I am myself 9 under orders, with soldiers under me. I say to one, "Go", and he goes; to another, "Come here", and he comes; and to my servant, "Do this", and he does it.' Jesus heard him with astonish- 10 ment, and said to the people who were following him, 'I tell you this: nowhere, even in Israel, have I found such faith.

'Many, I tell you, will come from east 11 and west to feast with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of Heaven. But those who were born to the king- 12 dom will be driven out into the dark, the place of wailing and grinding of teeth.'

Then Jesus said to the centurion, 13 'Go home now; because of your faith, <sup>1</sup> The words leper, leprosy, as used in this translation, refer to some disfiguring skin disease which entailed ceremonial defilement. It is different from what is now called leprosy.

<sup>u</sup> Or Am I to come and cure him?

sheep (although in disguise, v. 15) and confess Jesus as Lord (vv. 21–22), they represent a danger within the Church. 17–18: 12.33–35. 19: Compare 3.10; Lk.3.9. 23: Lk.13.27; Ps.6.8.

7.24–29: The wise and foolish builders (Lk.6.47–49) concludes the Sermon, warning the faithful to hear and act on Jesus' words. Of the five discourses in Mt. (see Introduction), only that in ch. 10 fails to close with a parable. 28: A phrase like when Jesus had finished this discourse marks the end of the four other collections in the book (11.1; 13.53; 19.1; 26.1).

8.1–9.38: Jesus' teaching and healing. While teaching is interspersed between narratives, this section is comprised primarily of a collection of ten miracles. 1–4: A leper healed (Mk.1.40–45; Lk.5.12–16). 2: A leper was the victim of a skin ailment (not Hansen's disease) which required his isolation from society; the rules are given in Lev. ch. 13. Cleanse: the leper asks to be rendered ritually pure as well as healed. 5–13: The centurion's servant (Lk.7.1–10; compare Jn.4.46–53). 5: Centurion: a commander of a unit of about one hundred infantry in the Roman army. Boy: the Gk. may mean "son" or "servant." 11–12: In Jewish thought, an eschatological banquet (feast) is a theme frequently connected with God's final rule; Lk.13.28–30. 11: Compare Ps.107.2–3. 13: A phrase like because of your faith is frequently associated with healing in the so let it be.' At that moment the boy recovered.

14 Jesus then went to Peter's house and found Peter's mother-in-law in bed with fever. So he took her by the hand; the fever left her, and she got up and waited on him.

16 When evening fell, they brought to him many who were possessed by devils; and he drove the spirits out with a word and healed all who were sick, to fulfil the prophecy of Isaiah: 'He took away our illnesses and lifted our diseases from us.'<sup>v</sup>

18 AT THE SIGHT OF THE CROWDS SURROUNDING him Jesus gave word to cross to the other shore. A doctor of the law came up, and said, 'Master, I will follow you wherever you go.' Jesus replied, 'Foxes have their holes, the birds their roosts; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head.' Another man, one of his disciples, said to him, 'Lord, let me go and bury my father first.' Jesus replied, 'Follow me, and leave the dead to bury their dead.' Jesus then got into the boat, and his disciples followed. All at once a great storm arose on the lake, till the waves were breaking right over the boat; but he went on sleeping. So they came and woke him up, crying: 'Save us, Lord; we are sinking!' 'Why are you such cowards?' he said; 'how little faith you have!' Then he stood up and rebuked the wind and the sea, and there was a dead calm. The men were astonished at what had happened, and exclaimed, 'What sort of man is this? Even the wind and the sea obey him.'

28 When he reached the other side, in the country of the Gadarenes, he was met by two men who came out from the tombs; they were possessed by devils, and so violent that no one dared pass that way. 'You son of God,' they shouted, 'what do you want with us? Have you come here to torment us before our time?' In the distance a large herd of pigs was feeding; and the devils begged him: 'If you drive us out, send us into that herd of pigs.' 'Begone!' he said. Then they came out and went into the pigs; the whole herd rushed over the edge into the lake, and perished in the water.

The men in charge of them took to their heels, and made for the town, where they told the whole story, and what had happened to the madmen. Thereupon all the town came out to meet Jesus; and when they saw him they begged him to leave the district and go. So he got into the boat and crossed over, and came to his own town.

And now some men brought him a paralysed man lying on a bed. Seeing their faith Jesus said to the man, 'Take heart, my son; your sins are forgiven.' At this some of the lawyers said to themselves, 'This is blasphemous talk.' Jesus knew what they were thinking, and said, 'Why do you harbour these evil thoughts? Is it easier to say, "Your sins are forgiven", or to say, "Stand up and walk"? But to convince you that the Son of Man has the right on earth to forgive sins—he turned to the paralysed man—'stand up, take your bed, and go home.' Thereupon the man got up, and went off home. The people were filled with awe at the sight, and praised God for granting such authority to men.

AS HE PASSED ON FROM THERE JESUS saw a man named Matthew at his seat in the custom-house, and said to him, 'Follow me'; and Matthew rose and followed him.

When Jesus was at table in the house, many bad characters—tax-gatherers and others—were seated with him and his disciples. The Pharisees noticed this, and said to his disciples, 'Why is it that

<sup>v</sup> Or and bore the burden of our diseases.

Gospels; usually, this faith seems to be simple confidence in Jesus' power to cure. 14–17: Peter's mother-in-law (Mk.1.29–34; Lk.4.38–41). 17: Isa.53.4. 18: Mk.4.35. 19–22: Lk.9.57–60. 20: Son of Man: see Mk.2.10 n. 23–27: Rebuke of a storm (Mk.4.35–41; Lk.8.22–25). 28–34: The Gadarene demoniacs (Mk.5.1–20; Lk.8.26–39). 28–29: The devils (see Mk.1.23 n.) recognize the son of God (see 16.16 n.; Mk.1.24 n.). 28: Gadarene: see Mk.5.1 n. Two men: Mk. and Lk. have one man. 30: Pigs are unclean animals in Mosaic law (Lev.11.7; Deut.14.8). 9.1–8: A paralytic; see Mk.2.1–12 nn.; Lk.5.17–20. 9: Matthew: called Levi in Mk.2.14; Lk.5.27. 10–13: Tax-gatherers and sinners. Mk.2.15–17; Lk.5.29–32. 10: Tax-gatherers: see Lk.3.12 n.

your master eats with tax-gatherers and sinners?" Jesus heard it and said, 'It is not the healthy that need a doctor, but the sick. Go and learn what that text means, "I require mercy, not sacrifice." I did not come to invite virtuous people, but sinners.'

Then John's disciples came to him with the question: 'Why do we and the Pharisees fast, but your disciples do not?' Jesus replied, 'Can you expect the bridegroom's friends to go mourning while the bridegroom is with them? The time will come when the bridegroom will be taken away from them; that will be the time for them to fast.'

'No one sews a patch of unshrunk cloth on to an old coat; for then the patch tears away from the coat, and leaves a bigger hole. Neither do you put new wine into old wineskins; if you do, the skins burst, and then the wine runs out and the skins are spoilt. No, you put new wine into fresh skins; then both are preserved.'

EVEN AS HE SPOKE, THERE CAME A president of the synagogue, who bowed low before him and said, 'My daughter has just died; but come and lay your hand on her, and she will live.' Jesus rose and went with him, and so did his disciples.

Then a woman who had suffered from haemorrhages for twelve years came up from behind, and touched the edge of his cloak; for she said to herself, 'If I can only touch his cloak, I shall be cured.' But Jesus turned and saw her, and said, 'Take heart, my daughter; your faith has cured you.' And from that moment she recovered.

When Jesus arrived at the president's house and saw the flute-players and the general commotion, he said, 'Be off! The girl is not dead: she is asleep'; and they only laughed at him. But, when everyone had been turned out, he went into the room and took the girl by the hand, and she got up. This story became the talk of all the country round.

As he passed on Jesus was followed by two blind men, who cried out, 'Son of David, have pity on us!' And when he had gone indoors they came to him. Jesus asked, 'Do you believe that I have the power to do what you want?' 'Yes, sir', they said. Then he touched their eyes, and said, 'As you have believed, so let it be'; and their sight was restored. Jesus said to them sternly, 'See that no one hears about this.' But as soon as they had gone out they talked about him all over the country-side.

They were on their way out when a man was brought to him, who was dumb and possessed by a devil; the devil was cast out and the patient recovered his speech. Filled with amazement the onlookers said, 'Nothing like this has ever been seen in Israel.'<sup>w</sup>

SO JESUS WENT ROUND ALL THE TOWNS and villages teaching in their synagogues, announcing the good news of the Kingdom, and curing every kind of ailment and disease. The sight of the people moved him to pity: they were like sheep without a shepherd, harassed and helpless; and he said to his disciples, 'The crop is heavy, but labourers are scarce; you must therefore beg the owner to send labourers to harvest his crop.'

Then he called his twelve disciples to him and gave them authority to cast out unclean spirits and to cure every kind of ailment and disease.

<sup>w</sup> Some witnesses add (34) But the Pharisees said, 'He casts out devils by the prince of devils.'

13: Hos.6.6; quoted again in 12.7. 14-17: Fasting (Mk.2.18-22; Lk.5.33-39). 14: John's disciples: see Mk.2.18 n. 16-17: See Mk. 2.21-22 n. 18-26: Jairus' daughter and a woman with a chronic ailment (Mk.5.21-43; Lk.8.40-56). See Mk.5.21-43 n. 18: A president of the synagogue: by name, Jairus in Mk.5.22; Lk.8.41. 22: Cured: see Lk.7.50 n. 23: Flute-players provided accompaniment to the customary wailing of mourners. 27-31: Two blind men (20.29-34; Mk.10.46-52; Lk.18.35-43). 32-33: A dumb man. Tfn. <sup>w</sup> may be borrowed from the story in 12.22-24.

9.35-38: A transition from the miracles of chs. 8-9 to the "missionary discourse" of ch. 10; compare 4.23-25. 36: Mk.6.34; Num.27.17; 1 Kgs.22.17.

10.1-11.1: The (second) missionary discourse. 1: Mk.3.14-15; 6.7; Lk.9.1. 2-4: Mk.3.16-19;

- 2 These are the names of the twelve apostles: first Simon, also called Peter, and his brother Andrew; James son of Zebedee, and his brother John; Philip and Bartholomew, Thomas and Matthew the tax-gatherer, James son of Alphaeus, Lebbeaus,<sup>x</sup> Simon, a member of the Zealot party, and Judas Iscariot, the man who betrayed him.
- 3 These twelve Jesus sent out with the following instructions: 'Do not take the road to gentile lands, and do not enter any Samaritan town; but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as you go proclaim the message: "The kingdom of Heaven is upon you." Heal the sick, raise the dead, cleanse lepers, cast out devils. You received without cost; give without charge.
- 4 'Provide no gold, silver, or copper to fill your purse, no pack for the road, no second coat, no shoes, no stick; the worker earns his keep.
- 5 'When you come to any town or village, look for some worthy person in it, and make your home there until you leave. Wish the house peace as you enter it, so that, if it is worthy, your peace may descend on it; if it is not worthy, your peace can come back to you. If anyone will not receive you or listen to what you say, then as you leave that house or that town shake the dust of it off your feet. I tell you this: on the day of judgement it will be more bearable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah than for that town.
- 6 'Look, I send you out like sheep among wolves; be wary as serpents, innocent as doves.
- 7 'And be on your guard, for men will hand you over to their courts, they will flog you in the synagogues, and you will be brought before governors and kings, for my sake, to testify before them and the heathen. But when you are arrested, do not worry about what you are to say; when the time comes, the words you need will be given you; for it is not you who will be speaking: it will be the Spirit of your Father speaking in you.
- 8 'Brother will betray brother to death, and the father his child; children will turn against their parents and send them to their death. All will hate you for your allegiance to me; but the man who holds out to the end will be saved. When you are persecuted in one town, take refuge in another; I tell you this: before you have gone through all the towns of Israel the Son of Man will have come.
- 9 'A pupil does not rank above his teacher, or a servant above his master. The pupil should be content to share his teacher's lot, the servant to share his master's. If the master has been called Beelzebub, how much more his household!
- 10 'So do not be afraid of them. There is nothing covered up that will not be uncovered, nothing hidden that will not be made known. What I say to you in the dark you must repeat in broad daylight; what you hear whispered you must shout from the house-tops. Do not fear those who kill the body, but cannot kill the soul. Fear him rather who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.
- 11 'Are not sparrows two a penny? Yet without your Father's leave not one of them can fall to the ground. As for you, even the hairs of your head have all been counted. So have no fear; you are worth more than any number of sparrows.
- 12 'Whoever then will acknowledge me before men, I will acknowledge him before my Father in heaven.

x Some witnesses read Thaddaeus.

Lk.6.14-16. 2: Apostles: commissioned representatives; this designation appears in Mt. only in this verse. 3: Lebbeaus: Mk.3.18, as well as many MSS. of Mt., has "Thaddaeus"; Lk.6.16 and Acts 1.13 have "Judas the son of James." 4: Zealot: see Mk.3.18 n. 5-6: Contrast the instruction in 28.19. 7-15: Mk.6.8-11; Lk.9.2-5; 10.3-12. 7: Compare the Baptist's (3.2) and Jesus' (4.17) messages. 8: On the close relation of healing and the kingdom, consider 12.28; Lk.10.9; 11.20; the Gospels present the career of Jesus as the proclamation of the kingdom joined with healing activity. 15: Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen. ch. 29) were the epitome of evil. 17-25: 24.9-13; Mk.13.9-13; Lk.12.11-12; 21.12-17,19. Persecution in both Jewish (v. 17) and Roman (v. 18) settings is assumed. 21: See vv. 35-36. 24-25: Lk.6.40; Jn.13.16. 25: Beelzebub: Satan (see 9.34; 12.22; Mk.3.22; Lk.11.15). 26-33: Lk.12.2-9. 26-27: Compare Mk.4.22, 24-25 n.; Lk.8.17; 12.2-3 n. 28: See Lk.12.4-5 n. 29-32: God's providence: 6.26-33; Lk.12.6-8.

33 before my Father in heaven; and whoever disowns me before men, I will disown him before my Father in heaven.
 34 'You must not think that I have come to bring peace to the earth; I have not come to bring peace, but a 35 sword. I have come to set a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, a son's wife against her mother-in-law; and a man will find his enemies under his own roof.
 37 'No man is worthy of me who cares more for father or mother than for me; no man is worthy of me who cares for son or daughter; no man is worthy of me who does not take up his cross and 39 walk in my footsteps. By gaining his life a man will lose it; by losing his life for my sake, he will gain it.

40 'To receive you is to receive me, and to receive me is to receive the One who 41 sent me. Whoever receives a prophet as a prophet will be given a prophet's reward, and whoever receives a good man because he is a good man will be
 42 given a good man's reward. And if anyone gives so much as a cup of cold water to one of these little ones, because he is a disciple of mine, I tell you this: that man will assuredly not go unrewarded.'

11 When Jesus had finished giving his twelve disciples their instructions, he left that place and went to teach and preach in the neighbouring towns.

2 JOHN, WHO WAS IN PRISON, HEARD what Christ was doing, and sent his own disciples to him with this message: 'Are you the one who is to come, or are we to expect some other?' Jesus answered, 'Go and tell John what you hear and see: the blind recover their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are made clean, the deaf hear, the dead are raised to life, the poor are hearing the 6 good news—and happy is the man who does not find me a stumbling-block.'

When the messengers were on their way back, Jesus began to speak to the people about John: 'What was the spectacle that drew you to the wilderness? A reed-bed swept by the wind? No? Then what did you go out to see? A man dressed in silks and satins? Surely you must look in palaces for that. But why did you go out? To see a prophet? Yes indeed, and far more than a prophet. He is the man of whom 10 Scripture says,

"Here is my herald, whom I send on ahead of you,
 and he will prepare your way before you."

I tell you this: never has there appeared on earth a mother's son greater than John the Baptist, and yet the least in the kingdom of Heaven is greater than he.

'Ever since the coming of John the Baptist the kingdom of Heaven has been subjected to violence and violent men<sup>y</sup> are seizing it. For all the prophets and the Law foretold things to come until John appeared, and John is the destined Elijah, if you will but accept it. If you have ears, then hear.

'How can I describe this generation? They are like children sitting in the market-place and shouting at each other,

"We piped for you and you would not dance."

"We wept and wailed, and you would not mourn."

For John came, neither eating nor drinking, and they say, "He is possessed." The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, "Look at him! a glutton and a drinker, a friend

<sup>y</sup> Or has been forcing its way forward, and men of force . . .

34–36: Lk.12.51,53; the proclamation of the kingdom calls for a decision which draws lines of separation. 37–39: Compare Lk.14.26–27. 38–39: Cross and losing life sayings are also connected in 16.24–25; Mk.8.34–35; Lk.9.23–24; life and follow me sayings, in Jn.12.25–26. The associated ideas would be particularly meaningful in situations involving mission or persecution. 39: Lk.17.33. 40–42: Jesus affirms his identification with his disciples. 11.1: See 7.28 n.

11.2–12.50: Claims and conflict. 11.2–19: Jesus and John the Baptist: see Lk.7.18–35 nn. 2: In prison: 14.3–4; Mk.6.17–18. 5: Isa.29.18–19; 35.5–6; 61.1. 10: Mal.3.1. 12–15: John's career marks the beginning of the fulfillment of God's promises; compare Lk.16.16 n. 14: John fulfills the prophecy on Elijah; Mal.4.5; see Lk.1.17. 19: Its results: lit. "her deeds"; compare Lk.7.25 n.

of tax-gatherers and sinners!" And yet God's wisdom is proved right by its results.'

- 20 THEN HE SPOKE OF THE TOWNS IN which most of his miracles had been performed, and denounced them for their impenitence. 'Alas for you, Chorazin!' he said; 'alas for you, Bethsaida! If the miracles that were performed in you had been performed in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. But it will be more bearable, I tell you, for Tyre and Sidon on the day of judgement than for you. And as for you, Capernaum, will you be exalted to the skies? No, brought down to the depths! For if the miracles had been performed in Sodom which were performed in you, Sodom would be standing to this day. But it will be more bearable, I tell you, for the land of Sodom on the day of judgement than for you.'
- 25 At that time Jesus spoke these words: 'I thank thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, for hiding these things from the learned and wise, and revealing them to the simple. Yes, Father, such<sup>z</sup> was thy choice. Everything is entrusted to me by my Father; and no one knows the Son but the Father, and no one knows the Father but the Son and those to whom the Son may choose to reveal him.
- 28 'Come to me, all whose work is hard, whose load is heavy; and I will give you relief. Bend your necks to my yoke, and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble-hearted; and your souls will find relief. For my yoke is good to bear, my load is light.'

Controversy

- 12 ONCE ABOUT THAT TIME JESUS WENT through the cornfields on the Sabbath;

and his disciples, feeling hungry, began to pluck some ears of corn and eat them. The Pharisees noticed this, and said to him, 'Look, your disciples are doing something which is forbidden on the Sabbath.' He answered, 'Have you not read what David did when he and his men were hungry? He went into the House of God and ate the sacred bread, though neither he nor his men had a right to eat it, but only the priests. Or have you not read in the Law that on the Sabbath the priests in the temple break the Sabbath and it is not held against them? I tell you, there is something greater than the temple here. If you had known what that text means, "I require mercy, not sacrifice", you would not have condemned the innocent. For the Son of Man is sovereign over the Sabbath.'

He went on to another place, and entered their synagogue. A man was there with a withered arm, and they asked Jesus, 'Is it permitted to heal on the Sabbath?' (They wanted to frame a charge against him.) But he said to them, 'Suppose you had one sheep, which fell into a ditch on the Sabbath; is there one of you who would not catch hold of it and lift it out? And surely a man is worth far more than a sheep! It is therefore permitted to do good on the Sabbath.' Turning to the man he said, 'Stretch out your arm.' He stretched it out, and it was made sound again like the other. But the Pharisees, on leaving the synagogue, laid a plot to do away with him.

Jesus was aware of it and withdrew. Many followed, and he cured all who were ill; and he gave strict injunctions that they were not to make him known. This was to fulfil Isaiah's prophecy:

'Here is my servant, whom I have chosen,

<sup>z</sup> Or Yes, I thank thee, Father, that such . . .

20-24: Judgment of Galilean cities (Lk.10.13-15). 21: Tyre and Sidon: Gentile (Phoenician) cities condemned by the prophets (Jer.47.4). Sackcloth and ashes: symbols of mourning. Sodom: see 10.15 n. 25-27: Thanksgiving for revelation. See Lk.10.21-22 n. 28-30: An invitation modeled on those extended by the heavenly Wisdom (Lk.7.35 n.); see Prov.8.1-21 and Eccles. 6.18-31. 12.1-14: Sabbath controversy (Mk.2.23-3.6 nn.; Lk.6.1-11). 1: Deut.23.25. 2: Exod. 20.10; Deut.5.14. 3: 1 Sam.21.1-7. 4: Lev.24.7-9. 5: Num.28.9-10. 7: Hos.6.6; compare 9.13. 9-14: See Mk.3.1-6 n. 11: Lk.14.5. 15-21: Healing the sick. 18-21: Isa.42.1-4. 22-29: Jesus and

- my beloved, on whom my favour rests;
I will put my Spirit upon him, and he will proclaim judgement among the nations.
- 19 He will not strive, he will not shout, nor will his voice be heard in the streets.
- 20 He will not snap off the broken reed, nor snuff out the smouldering wick, until he leads justice on to victory.
- 21 In him the nations shall place their hope.'
- 22 THEN THEY BROUGHT HIM A MAN WHO was possessed; he was blind and dumb; and Jesus cured him, restoring both speech and sight. The bystanders were all amazed, and the word went round:
- 24 'Can this be the Son of David?' But when the Pharisees heard it they said, 'It is only by Beelzebub prince of devils that this man drives the devils out.'
- 25 He knew what was in their minds; so he said to them, 'Every kingdom divided against itself goes to ruin; and no town, no household, that is divided against itself can stand. And if it is Satan who casts out Satan, Satan is divided against himself; how then can his kingdom stand? And if it is by Beelzebub that I cast out devils, by whom do your own people drive them out? If this is your argument, they themselves will refute you. But if it is by the Spirit of God that I drive out the devils, then be sure the kingdom of God has already come upon you.'
- 29 'Or again, how can anyone break into a strong man's house and make off with his goods, unless he has first tied the strong man up before ransacking the house?
- 30 'He who is not with me is against me, and he who does not gather with me scatters.
- 31 'And so I tell you this: no sin, no slander, is beyond forgiveness for men,
- except slander spoken against the Spirit, and that will not be forgiven. Any man who speaks a word against the Son of Man will be forgiven; but if anyone speaks against the Holy Spirit, for him there is no forgiveness, either in this age or in the age to come.
- 'Either make the tree good and its fruit good, or make the tree bad and its fruit bad; you can tell a tree by its fruit. You vipers' brood! How can your words be good when you yourselves are evil? For the words that the mouth utters come from the overflowing of the heart. A good man produces good from the store of good within himself; and an evil man from evil within produces evil.
- 'I tell you this: there is not a thoughtless word that comes from men's lips but they will have to account for it on the day of judgement. For out of your own mouth you will be acquitted; out of your own mouth you will be condemned.'
- At this some of the doctors of the law and the Pharisees said, 'Master, we should like you to show us a sign.' He answered: 'It is a wicked, godless generation that asks for a sign; and the only sign that will be given it is the sign of the prophet Jonah. Jonah was in the sea-monster's belly for three days and three nights, and in the same way the Son of Man will be three days and three nights in the bowels of the earth. At the Judgement, when this generation is on trial, the men of Nineveh will appear against it<sup>a</sup> and ensure its condemnation, for they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and what is here is greater than Jonah. The Queen of the South will appear at the Judgement when this generation is on trial,<sup>b</sup> and ensure its condemnation, for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon;
- <sup>a</sup> Or will rise again together with it.
<sup>b</sup> Or At the Judgement the Queen of the South will be raised to life together with this generation.

Satan (Mk.3.22-27; Lk.11.14-22). 23: Son of David: the Messiah (1.1 n.). 24-28: Beelzebub: Satan (v. 26). 27: Your own people (lit. "your sons") ascribes the effective practice of exorcism to others. 30: Lk.11.23; contrast Mk.9.39-40 n. 31-32: See Mk.3. 29n.; Lk.12.10. Mt. may intend the saying to distinguish between slander of the earthly Jesus and slander of the risen Lord. 33-37: 7.16-20; Lk.6.43-45. 38-42: The request for a sign (Lk.11.29-32) is perhaps regarded as evil because its intent is to "test" (compare 4.7). 39-41: Jonah 1.17; 3.5. The sign of the prophet Jonah for Mt. is interpreted by v. 40; compare Lk.11.29 n. Queen of the South:

and what is here is greater than Solomon.

- 43 'When an unclean spirit comes out of a man it wanders over the deserts seeking a resting-place, and finds none.
44 Then it says, "I will go back to the home I left." So it returns and finds the house unoccupied, swept clean, and tidy. Off it goes and collects seven other spirits more wicked than itself, and they all come in and settle down; and in the end the man's plight is worse than before. That is how it will be with this wicked generation.'
46 He was still speaking to the crowd when his mother and brothers appeared; they stood outside, wanting to speak to him. Someone said, 'Your mother and your brothers are here outside; they want to speak to you.'
48 Jesus turned to the man who brought the message, and said, 'Who is my mother? Who are my brothers?'; and pointing to the disciples, he said, 'Here are my mother and my brothers.
50 Whoever does the will of my heavenly Father is my brother, my sister, my mother.'

- 13 THAT SAME DAY JESUS WENT OUT AND
2 sat by the lake-side, where so many people gathered round him that he had to get into a boat. He sat there, and 3 all the people stood on the shore. He spoke to them in parables, at some length.
4 He said: 'A sower went out to sow. And as he sowed, some seed fell along the footpath; and the birds came and 5 ate it up. Some seed fell on rocky ground, where it had little soil, and it sprouted quickly because it had no
6 depth of earth; but when the sun rose the young corn was scorched, and as 7 it had no root it withered away. Some seed fell among thistles; and the thistles shot up, and choked the corn.
8 And some of the seed fell into good soil, where it bore fruit, yielding a hundredfold or, it might be, sixtyfold or thirtyfold. If you have ears, then 9 hear.'

The disciples went up to him and 10 asked, 'Why do you speak to them in parables?' He replied, 'It has been 11 granted to you to know the secrets of the kingdom of Heaven; but to those others it has not been granted. For the 12 man who has will be given more, till he has enough and to spare; and the man who has not will forfeit even what he has. That is why I speak to them in 13 parables; for they look without seeing, and listen without hearing or understanding. There is a prophecy of Isaiah 14 which is being fulfilled for them: "You may hear and hear, but you will never understand; you may look and look, but you will never see. For this people's 15 mind has become gross; their ears are dulled, and their eyes are closed. Otherwise, their eyes might see, their ears hear, and their mind understand, and then they might turn again, and I would heal them."

'But happy are your eyes because 16 they see, and your ears because they hear! Many prophets and saints, I tell 17 you, desired to see what you now see, yet never saw it; to hear what you hear, yet never heard it.

'You, then, may hear the parable of 18 the sower. When a man hears the word 19 that tells of the Kingdom but fails to understand it, the evil one comes and carries off what has been sown in his heart. There you have the seed sown 20 along the footpath. The seed sown on rocky ground stands for the man who, on hearing the word, accepts it at once with joy; but as it strikes no root in 21 him he has no staying-power, and when there is trouble or persecution on account of the word he falls away at once. The seed sown among thistles 22 represents the man who hears the word,

1 Kgs.10.1-10. 43-45: Lk.11.24-26. 43: Deserts were often associated with demons. 46-50: Mk.3.31-35; Lk.8.19-21.

13.1-53a: The third discourse (see Introduction) is comprised of parables of the kingdom (Mk. ch. 4; Lk.8.4-18; 10.23-24; 13.18-21). 2: On parables, see Mk.4.2 n. 3-9: The sower (Mk.4.1-9; Lk.8.4-8). 3-8: See Mk.4.3-8 n. 8: See Mk.4.8 n. 10-17: The use of parables (Mk.4.10-12; Lk.8.9-10; 10.23-24). See Mk.4.11 n., 13-20 n. 13: In Mt. the use of parables is a consequence of the failure to "see" or "hear"; contrast Mk.4.12 n. 14-16: Isa.6.9-10. 16-17: Lk.10.23-24. 18-23: An interpretation of the sower. See Mk.4.13-20 n. 19: The term understand here and in v. 23 is used to serve the view of Mt. that the disciples are men of insight but worldly cares and the false glamour of wealth choke it, and it proves barren. But the seed that fell into good soil is the man who hears the word and understands it, who accordingly bears fruit, and yields a hundredfold or, it may be, sixtyfold or thirtyfold.'

24 Here is another parable that he put before them: 'The kingdom of Heaven is like this. A man sowed his field with good seed; but while everyone was asleep his enemy came, sowed darnel among the wheat, and made off. When the corn sprouted and began to fill out, the darnel could be seen among it. The farmer's men went to their master and said, "Sir, was it not good seed that you sowed in your field? Then where has the darnel come from?" "This is an enemy's doing", he replied. "Well then," they said, "shall we go and gather the darnel?" "No," he answered; "in gathering it you might pull up the wheat at the same time. Let them both grow together till harvest; and at harvest-time I will tell the reapers, 'Gather the darnel first, and tie it in bundles for burning; then collect the wheat into my barn.'"

31 And this is another parable that he put before them: 'The kingdom of Heaven is like a mustard-seed, which a man took and sowed in his field. As a seed, mustard is smaller than any other; but when it has grown it is bigger than any garden-plant; it becomes a tree, big enough for the birds to come and roost among its branches.'

33 He told them also this parable: 'The kingdom of Heaven is like yeast, which a woman took and mixed with half a hundredweight of flour till it was all leavened.'

34 In all this teaching to the crowds Jesus spoke in parables; in fact he never spoke to them without a parable. This was to fulfil the prophecy of Isaiah:<sup>c</sup>

'I will open my mouth in parables;
I will utter things kept secret since the world was made.'

He then dismissed the people, and went into the house, where his disciples came to him and said, 'Explain to us the parable of the darnel in the field.' And this was his answer: 'The sower of the good seed is the Son of Man. The field is the world; the good seed stands for the children of the Kingdom, the darnel for the children of the evil one. The enemy who sowed the darnel is the devil. The harvest is the end of time. The reapers are angels. As the darnel, then, is gathered up and burnt, so at the end of time the Son of Man will send out his angels, who will gather out of his kingdom whatever makes men stumble, and all whose deeds are evil, and these will be thrown into the blazing furnace, the place of wailing and grinding of teeth. And then the righteous will shine as brightly as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. If you have ears, then hear.'

'The kingdom of Heaven is like treasure lying buried in a field. The man who found it, buried it again; and for sheer joy went and sold everything he had, and bought that field.'

'Here is another picture of the kingdom of Heaven. A merchant looking out for fine pearls found one of very special value; so he went and sold everything he had, and bought it.'

'Again the kingdom of Heaven is like a net let down into the sea, where fish of every kind were caught in it. When it was full, it was dragged ashore. Then the men sat down and collected the good fish into pails and threw the worthless away. That is how it will be at the end of time. The angels will go forth, and they will

<sup>c</sup> Some witnesses omit of Isaiah.

(contrast the tone of Mk.4.13). 24-30: The weeds in the field. 25: Darnel: a weed similar in appearance to wheat. 31-32: The mustard seed (see Mk.4.26-32 nn.; Lk.13.18-19). 33: Yeast (Lk.13.20-21). Although a fermenting agent (yeast) is regularly a symbol for evil influence elsewhere (e.g. 16.6,11; Gal.5.8-9); here the metaphor suggests the idea of the irreversible power of the kingdom. Half a hundredweight: fifty pounds. 35: Ps.78.2 is quoted; therefore, Isa. is not mentioned in some MSS. (TIn. c). 36-43: An interpretation of the parable of the weeds. 38: The evil one: the devil. 43: Dan.12.3. 44-46: The treasure and the pearls parables speak either (a) of the cost of the kingdom or (b) of its value which makes even that cost a joy. 47-50: The net. The proclamation of the kingdom attracts both good and bad; their separation must

50 separate the wicked from the good, and throw them into the blazing furnace, the place of wailing and grinding of teeth.
 51 'Have you understood all this?' he asked; and they answered, 'Yes.' He said to them, 'When, therefore, a teacher of the law has become a learner in the kingdom of Heaven, he is like a householder who can produce from his store both the new and the old.'

53 WHEN HE HAD FINISHED THESE PARABLES
 54 Jesus left that place, and came to his home town, where he taught the people in their synagogue. In amazement they asked, 'Where does he get this wisdom from, and these miraculous powers? Is he not the carpenter's son? Is not his mother called Mary, his brothers James, Joseph, Simon, and Judas? And are not all his sisters here with us? Where then has he got all this from?' So they fell foul of him, and this led him to say, 'A prophet will always be held in honour, except in his home town, and in his own family.'
 58 And he did not work many miracles there: such was their want of faith.

14 It was at that time that reports about Jesus reached the ears of Prince Herod. 'This is John the Baptist,' he said to his attendants; 'John has been raised to life, and that is why these miraculous powers are at work in him.'

3 NOW HEROD HAD ARRESTED JOHN, PUT him in chains, and thrown him into prison, on account of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife; for John had told him: 'You have no right to her.'
 5 Herod would have liked to put him to death, but he was afraid of the people, in whose eyes John was a prophet.
 6 But at his birthday celebrations the daughter of Herodias danced before the guests, and Herod was so delighted
 7 that he took an oath to give her anything she cared to ask. Prompted 8 by her mother, she said, 'Give me here on a dish the head of John the Baptist.' The king was distressed when he heard 9 it; but out of regard for his oath and for his guests, he ordered the request to be granted, and had John beheaded in 10 prison. The head was brought in on a dish and given to the girl; and she 11 carried it to her mother. Then John's disciples came and took away the body, and buried it; and they went and told 12 Jesus.

WHEN HE HEARD WHAT HAD HAPPENED 13 Jesus withdrew privately by boat to a lonely place; but people heard of it, and came after him in crowds by land from the towns. When he came ashore, 14 he saw a great crowd; his heart went out to them, and he cured those of them who were sick. When it grew late 15 the disciples came up to him and said, 'This is a lonely place, and the day has gone; send the people off to the villages to buy themselves food.' He 16 answered, 'There is no need for them to go; give them something to eat yourselves.' 'All we have here', they 17 said, 'is five loaves and two fishes.' 'Let me have them', he replied. So he 18, 19 told the people to sit down on the grass; then, taking the five loaves and the two fishes, he looked up to heaven, said the blessing, broke the loaves, and gave them to the disciples; and the disciples gave them to the people. They 20 all ate to their hearts' content; and the scraps left over, which they picked up, were enough to fill twelve great baskets. Some five thousand men shared in this 21 meal, to say nothing of women and children.

Then he made the disciples embark 22 and go on ahead to the other side, while he sent the people away; after 23 doing that, he went up the hill-side to pray alone. It grew late, and he was there by himself. The boat was already 24 wait for the final judgment. 51–52: The disciple's resources now include both the new message of the kingdom and the old tradition based on the law and the prophets. See 7.24–29 n. 53a: See 7.28 n.

13.53b–58: Jesus in Nazareth (Mk.6.1–6; compare Lk.4.16–30). 54: Home town: Nazareth. 57: Fell foul: were offended.

14.1–12: Herod and John (Mk.6.14–29; Lk.3.19–20; 9.7–9). 1: Herod: Antipas (Lk.3.1 n.).

14.13–21: Feeding of five thousand (Mk.6.30–44; Lk.9.10–17; Jn.6.1–13). See Mk.6.30–44 nn.

14.22–36: Walking on the sea (Mk.6.45–56 and note; Jn.6.16–21). The attempt of Peter to walk some furlongs from the shore,<sup>d</sup> battling with a head-wind and a rough sea. 25 Between three and six in the morning he came to them, walking over the lake. When the disciples saw him walking on the lake they were so shaken that they cried out in terror: 27 'It is a ghost!' But at once he spoke to them: 'Take heart! It is I; do not be afraid.'

28 Peter called to him: 'Lord, if it is you, tell me to come to you over the water.' 'Come', said Jesus. Peter stepped down from the boat, and walked over the water towards Jesus. 30 But when he saw the strength of the gale he was seized with fear; and beginning to sink, he cried, 'Save me, Lord.' Jesus at once reached out and caught hold of him, and said, 'Why did you hesitate? How little faith you have!' They then climbed into the boat; 33 and the wind dropped. And the men in the boat fell at his feet, exclaiming, 'Truly you are the Son of God.'

34 So they finished the crossing and 35 came to land at Gennesaret. There Jesus was recognized by the people of the place, who sent out word to all the country round. And all who were ill 36 were brought to him, and he was begged to allow them simply to touch the edge of his cloak. And everyone who touched it was completely cured.

15 THEN JESUS WAS APPROACHED BY A group of Pharisees and lawyers from 2 Jerusalem, with the question: 'Why do your disciples break the ancient tradition? They do not wash their hands 3 before meals.' He answered them: 'And what of you? Why do you break God's commandment in the interest of your 4 tradition? For God said, "Honour your father and mother", and, "The man who curses his father or mother 5 must suffer death." But you say, "If a man says to his father or mother, 'Anything of mine which might have been used for your benefit is set apart 6 for God', then he must not honour his father or his mother." You have made God's law null and void out of respect for your tradition. What hypocrisy! 7 Isaiah was right when he prophesied about you: "This people pays me 8 lip-service, but their heart is far from me; their worship of me is in vain, for 9 they teach as doctrines the commandments of men."

He called the crowd and said to 10 them, 'Listen to me, and understand this: a man is not defiled by what goes 11 into his mouth, but by what comes out of it.'

Then the disciples came to him and 12 said, 'Do you know that the Pharisees have taken great offence at what you have been saying?' His answer was: 13 'Any plant that is not of my heavenly Father's planting will be rooted up. Leave them alone; they are blind 14 guides,<sup>e</sup> and if one blind man guides another they will both fall into the ditch.'

Then Peter said, 'Tell us what that 15 parable means.' Jesus answered, 'Are 16 you still as dull as the rest? Do you 17 not see that whatever goes in by the mouth passes into the stomach and so is discharged into the drain? But what 18 comes out of the mouth has its origins in the heart; and that is what defiles a man. Wicked thoughts, murder, adul- 19 tery, fornication, theft, perjury, slander —these all proceed from the heart; and 20 these are the things that defile a man; but to eat without first washing his hands, that cannot defile him.'

Jesus and his disciples

JESUS THEN LEFT THAT PLACE AND 21 withdrew to the region of Tyre and Sidon. And a Canaanite woman from 22

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses read already well out on the water.
<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses insert of blind men.

on the water, told only in Mt., illustrates both the power of faith and the way fear threatens faith. 33: Unlike the report in Mk.6.52 (see n.), the event awakens a confession of faith in its observers. For Mt., understanding is characteristic of the disciples (see 16.12 n.). A confession (16.16; Mk.8.29) also follows the second account of a feeding and sea crossing in Mt. and Mk. (see Mk.6.30-44 nn.); compare Jn.6.16-21,66-71.

15.1-20: The ancient traditions (Mk.7.1-23). 2: See Mk.7.5 n. 4a: Exod.20.12; Deut.5.16. 4b: Exod.21.17; Lev.20.9. 8-9: Isa.29.13. 11: Defiled: made ritually impure.

15.21-31: Healings (Mk.7.24-31,36-37). See Mk.7.24-37 n. 22: The story revolves around a those parts came crying out, 'Sir! have 23 pity on me, Son of David; my daughter is tormented by a devil.' But he said not a word in reply. His disciples came and 24 urged him: 'Send her away; see how she comes shouting after us.' Jesus replied, 'I was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and to them alone.'

 25 But the woman came and fell at his 26 feet and cried, 'Help me, sir.' To this Jesus replied, 'It is not right to take the children's bread and throw it to 27 the dogs.' 'True, sir,' she answered;
 'and yet the dogs eat the scraps that 28 fall from their masters' table.' Hearing this Jesus replied, 'Woman, what faith you have! Be it as you wish!' And from that moment her daughter was restored to health.

29 After leaving that region Jesus took the road by the Sea of Galilee and went up to the hills. When he was 30 seated there, crowds flocked to him, bringing with them the lame, blind,
 dumb, and crippled, and many other sufferers; they threw them down at his 31 feet, and he healed them. Great was the amazement of the people when they saw the dumb speaking, the crippled strong, the lame walking, and sight restored to the blind; and they gave praise to the God of Israel.

32 Jesus called his disciples and said to them, 'I feel sorry for all these people;
 they have been with me now for three days and have nothing to eat. I do not want to send them away unfed; they 33 might turn faint on the way.' The disciples replied, 'Where in this lonely place can we find bread enough to feed 34 such a crowd?' 'How many loaves have you?' Jesus asked. 'Seven,' they replied; 35 'and there are a few small fishes.' So he ordered the people to sit down on the 36 ground; then he took the seven loaves and the fishes, and after giving thanks to God he broke them and gave to the disciples, and the disciples gave to the people. They all ate to their hearts' 37

 content; and the scraps left over,
 which they picked up, were enough to fill seven baskets. Four thousand men 38 shared in this meal, to say nothing of women and children. He then dismissed 39
 the crowds, got into a boat, and went to the neighbourhood of Magadan.

The Pharisees and Sadducees came, 16
 and to test him they asked him to show them a sign from heaven. His answer 2 was: 'It is a wicked generation that 4 asks for a sign; and the only sign that will be given it is the sign of Jonah.' So he went off and left them.

In crossing to the other side the 5 disciples had forgotten to take bread with them. So, when Jesus said to 6 them, 'Beware, be on your guard against the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees', they began to say among 7 themselves, 'It is because we have brought no bread!' Knowing what was 8
 in their minds, Jesus said to them:
 'Why do you talk about bringing no bread? Where is your faith? Do you 9 not understand even yet? Do you not remember the five loaves for the five thousand, and how many basketfuls 10
 you picked up? Or the seven loaves 11 for the four thousand, and how many basketfuls you picked up? How can 12
 you fail to see that I was not speaking about bread? Be on your guard, I said, against the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees.' Then they understood: 12 they were to be on their guard, not against baker's leaven, but against the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

WHEN HE CAME TO THE TERRITORY OF 13 Caesarea Philippi, Jesus asked his disciples, 'Who do men say that the

f. Some witnesses here insert 'In the evening you say, "It will be fine weather, for the sky is red"; (3) and in the morning you say, "It will be stormy today; the sky is red and lowering." You know how to interpret the appearance of the sky; can you not interpret the signs of the times?'

non-Jewish (Canaanite) woman and the question of Jesus' mission (v. 24). Mt. thinks of a mission limited to Israel during Jesus' human career (see 10.5-6) but ultimately intended to reach out to all (see 28.19).

15.32-39: Feeding of four thousand (Mk.8.1-10). See Mk.6.30-44 nn. 36: See Mk.8.6.

16.1-12: Sea crossing and discussions (Mk.8.11-21; Lk.11.29; 12.1.54-56). 1: After a boat trip (15.39), the question of a sign is again raised. 2-3: (Tfn. f). See Lk.12.54-56 n. 4: See 12.38-42 n., 39-41 n. 6: Leaven: see Mk.8.15 n. 12: Understanding is characteristic of the disciples in this Gospel; contrast Mk.8.17-18,21 n.

16.13-23: Peter's confession and Jesus' prediction of his suffering (Mk.8.27-33; Lk.9.18-22).

- 14 Son of Man is<sup>g</sup>? They answered, 'Some say John the Baptist, others Elijah, others Jeremiah, or one of the prophets.' 'And you,' he asked, 'who do you say I am?' Simon Peter answered: 'You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God.' Then Jesus said: 'Simon son of Jonah, you are favoured indeed! You did not learn that from mortal man; it was revealed to you by my heavenly Father. And I say this to you: You are Peter, the Rock; and on this rock I will build my church, and the powers of death shall never conquer it.<sup>h</sup> I will give you the keys of the kingdom of Heaven; what you forbid on earth shall be forbidden in heaven, and what you allow on earth shall be allowed in heaven.' He then gave his disciples strict orders not to tell anyone that he was the Messiah.
- 21 From that time Jesus began to make it clear to his disciples that he had to go to Jerusalem, and there to suffer much from the elders, chief priests, and doctors of the law; to be put to death and to be raised again on the third day. At this Peter took him by the arm and began to rebuke him: 'Heaven forbid!' he said. 'No, Lord, this shall never happen to you.' Then Jesus turned and said to Peter, 'Away with you, Satan; you are a stumbling-block to me. You think as men think, not as God thinks.'
- 24 Jesus then said to his disciples, 'If anyone wishes to be a follower of mine, he must leave self behind; he must take up his cross and come with me.'
- 25 Whoever cares for his own safety is lost; but if a man will let himself be lost for my sake, he will find his true self. What will a man gain by winning the whole world, at the cost of his true self? Or what can he give that will buy that self back? For the Son of Man is to come in the glory of his Father with his angels, and then he will give each man the due reward for what he has done. I tell you this: there are some of those standing here who will not taste death before they have seen the Son of Man coming in his kingdom.'

SIX DAYS LATER JESUS TOOK PETER, James, and John the brother of James, and led them up a high mountain where they were alone; and in their presence he was transfigured; his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became white as the light. And they saw Moses and Elijah appear, conversing with him. Then Peter spoke: 'Lord,' he said, 'how good it is that we are here! If you wish it, I will make three shelters here, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.' While he was still speaking, a bright cloud suddenly overshadowed them, and a voice called from the cloud: 'This is my Son, my Beloved,<sup>i</sup> on whom my favour rests; listen to him.' At the sound of the voice the disciples fell on their faces in terror. Jesus then came up to them, touched them, and said, 'Stand up; do not be afraid.' And when they raised their eyes they saw no one, but only Jesus.

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses read that I, the Son of Man, am.

<sup>h</sup> Or the gates of death shall never close upon it.

<sup>i</sup> Or This is my only Son.

13: Son of Man: see Mk.2.10 n. 14: See Mk.8.28 n. 16: Messiah: see 1.1 n. Son of (the living) God is a title with a wide range of meanings—from "a person who lives according to God's will" (see Lk.6.35 n.) to "a preexistent being of divine nature" (see Jn.1.14). Although Son of God apparently was not a pre-Christian title for the Messiah, the OT contains evidence of a "divine kingship" motif which might contribute to the synonymous use of the two terms (see Mk.1.1 n.). 18: Simon is given a new name, Rock, and the name is explained (compare Gen.32.28; also Mt.5.13–14 n.). In both Gk. and Aram. the name (Peter, "Rock") is a play on a common noun meaning "rock." In the Gospels the word church appears only here and in 18.17. 19: The keys may signify the office of doctor of the law (compare 23.13; Lk.11.52); to forbid and to allow are functions of legal authorities (2.4 n.; 5.20 n.). 21: Jesus must suffer: see Mk.8.31 n.; compare 17.22–23; 20.18–19. 23: Satan: tempter. Stumbling-block may be "stumbling stone" in contrast to v. 18.

16.24–28: Following Jesus (Mk.8.34–9.1; Lk.9.23–27). See 10.38–39 n.; Mk.8.34 n.

17.1–8: The transfiguration (Mk.9.2–8; Lk.9.28–36). The story is marked by a number of features characteristic of revelation scenes: the mountain (v. 1; see 5.1 n.), the cloud (v. 5; see, e.g. Exod.24.15–18), the heavenly voice (v. 5). 2: Transfigured: "changed in appearance," as the following words indicate (compare Lk.9.29). His face shone: see Exod.34.29–35. 3: Moses and Elijah: see Mk.8.28 n. 5: This is my Son: see Mk.1.11 n.

9 On their way down the mountain, Jesus enjoined them not to tell anyone of the vision until the Son of Man had been raised from the dead. The disciples put a question to him: 'Why then do our teachers say that Elijah must come first?' He replied, 'Yes, Elijah will come and set everything right. But I tell you that Elijah has already come, and they failed to recognize him, and worked their will upon him; and in the same way the Son of Man is to suffer at their hands.'
13 Then the disciples understood that he meant John the Baptist.

14 When they returned to the crowd, a man came up to Jesus, fell on his knees before him, and said, 'Have pity, sir, on my son: he is an epileptic and has bad fits, and he keeps falling about, often into the fire, often into water. I brought him to your disciples, but they could not cure him.' Jesus answered, 'What an unbelieving and perverse generation! How long shall I be with you? How long must I endure you? Bring him here to me.' Jesus then spoke sternly to the boy; the devil left him, and from that moment he was cured.

19 Afterwards the disciples came to Jesus and asked him privately, 'Why could not we cast it out?' He answered, 'Your faith is too small. I tell you this: if you have faith no bigger even than a mustard-seed, you will say to this mountain, "Move from here to there!", and it will move; nothing will prove impossible for you.'

22 THEY WERE GOING ABOUT TOGETHER IN Galilee when Jesus said to them, 'The Son of Man is to be given up into the power of men, and they will kill him; then on the third day he will be raised again.' And they were filled with grief.

On their arrival at Capernaum the collectors of the temple-tax came up to Peter and asked, 'Does your master not pay temple-tax?' 'He does', said Peter. When he went indoors Jesus forestalled him by asking, 'What do you think about this, Simon? From whom do earthly monarchs collect tax or toll? From their own people, or from aliens?' 'From aliens', said Peter. 'Why then,' said Jesus, 'their own people are exempt! But as we do not want to cause offence, go and cast a line in the lake; take the first fish that comes to the hook, open its mouth, and you will find a silver coin; take that and pay it in; it will meet the tax for us both.'

At that time the disciples came to Jesus and asked, 'Who is the greatest in the kingdom of Heaven?' He called a child, set him in front of them, and said, 'I tell you this: unless you turn round and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of Heaven. Let a man humble himself till he is like this child, and he will be the greatest in the kingdom of Heaven. Whoever receives one such child in my name receives me. But if a man is a cause of stumbling to one of these little ones who have faith in me, it would be better for him to have a millstone hung round his neck and be drowned in the depths of the sea. Alas for the world that such causes of stumbling arise! Come they must, but woe betide the man through whom they come!

'If your hand or your foot is your undoing, cut it off and fling it away; it is better for you to enter into life

j Some witnesses add (21) But there is no means of casting out this sort but prayer and fasting.

17.9-13: Elijah has come. Verse 13 identifies Elijah as John the Baptist. See also Mk.9.9-13 nn. 17.14-20: An epileptic boy (Mk.9.14-29; Lk.9.37-43a). 20: The importance of faith (see Mk.9.23 n.), central to the narrative, is further heightened by the hyperbole of a minute faith which achieves the impossible (compare Lk.17.6).

17.22-23: The second prediction (see 16.21) of suffering (Mk.9.30-32; Lk.9.43b-45) which in Mk.9.32 meets with bewilderment, arouses grief in Mt. (v. 23).

17.24-27: The temple-tax was required of every male Jew.

18.1-19.2: The fourth discourse (see Introduction) is sometimes described as a "book of church discipline." 1-14: The pastoral responsibility of Christian leaders is the subject of this section, in which children (vv. 2-5) and little ones (vv. 6,10,14) are terms for simple Christian believers. 1-5: Mk.9.33-37; 10.15; Lk.9.46-48; 18.17. The greatest is the one who can accept a position of humility. 6: Mk.9.42; Lk.17.1-2. To cause a little one to stumble (compare 5.19) is a heinous wrong. 7-9: Mk.9.43-48. The seriousness of causing sin is expressed in a series

- maimed or lame, than to keep two hands or two feet and be thrown into the eternal fire. If it is your eye that is your undoing, tear it out and fling it away; it is better to enter into life with one eye than to keep both eyes and be thrown into the fires of hell.
- 9 'Never despise one of these little ones; I tell you, they have their guardian angels in heaven, who look continually on the face of my heavenly Father.<sup>k</sup>
- 10 'What do you think? Suppose a man has a hundred sheep. If one of them strays, does he not leave the other ninety-nine on the hill-side and go in search of the one that strayed? And if he should find it, I tell you this: he is more delighted over that sheep than over the ninety-nine that never strayed.
- 11 In the same way, it is not your heavenly Father's will that one of these little ones should be lost.
- 12 'If your brother commits a sin,<sup>l</sup> go and take the matter up with him, strictly between yourselves, and if he listens to you, you have won your brother over. If he will not listen, take one or two others with you, so that all facts may be duly established on the evidence of two or three witnesses. If he refuses to listen to them, report the matter to the congregation; and if he will not listen even to the congregation, you must then treat him as you would a pagan or a tax-gatherer.
- 13 'I tell you this: whatever you forbid on earth shall be forbidden in heaven, and whatever you allow on earth shall be allowed in heaven.
- 14 'Again I tell you this: if two of you agree on earth about any request you have to make, that request will be granted by my heavenly Father. For where two or three have met together in my name, I am there among them.'
- 15 Then Peter came up and asked him, 'Lord, how often am I to forgive my brother if he goes on wronging me? As many as seven times?' Jesus replied, 'I do not say seven times; I say seventy times seven.<sup>m</sup>

'The kingdom of Heaven, therefore, 23 should be thought of in this way: There was once a king who decided to settle accounts with the men who served him. At the outset there appeared before 24 him a man whose debt ran into millions.<sup>n</sup> Since he had no means of 25 paying, his master ordered him to be sold to meet the debt, with his wife, his children, and everything he had. The man fell prostrate at his master's feet. "Be patient with me," he said, "and I will pay in full"; and the master was 27 so moved with pity that he let the man go and remitted the debt. But no 28 sooner had the man gone out than he met a fellow-servant who owed him a few pounds;<sup>o</sup> and catching hold of him he gripped him by the throat and said, "Pay me what you owe." The man fell 29 at his fellow-servant's feet, and begged him, "Be patient with me, and I will pay you"; but he refused, and had him 30 jailed until he should pay the debt. The other servants were deeply distressed 31 when they saw what had happened, and they went to their master and told him the whole story. He accordingly sent 32 for the man. "You scoundrel!" he said to him; "I remitted the whole of your debt when you appealed to me; were 33 you not bound to show your fellow-servant the same pity as I showed you?" And so angry was the master 34 that he condemned the man to torture until he should pay the debt in full. And that is how my heavenly Father 35 will deal with you, unless you each forgive your brother from your hearts.'

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses add (11) For the Son of Man came to save the lost.

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses insert against you.

<sup>m</sup> Or seventy-seven times.

<sup>n</sup> Literally who owed 10,000 talents.

<sup>o</sup> Literally owed him 100 denarii.

of effective hyperboles; such exaggerations as millstones around the neck (v. 6), amputated hands and feet, torn out eyes are meant seriously, but not literally. 10-14: The parable of the lost sheep illustrates the unrelenting love the church leader is to show for the little ones in his flock (contrast Lk.15.3-7 n.). 15-17: This rule regulates relations between fellow Christians; a similar rule was followed in the Dead Sea community. Compare Lk.17.3-4 n. 17: Congregation: or, "church"; see 16.18 n. 18: See 16.19 n. 21-22: Lk.17.4. 23-35: See 7.24-29 n. 23: In light of the magnitude of the debt (v. 24) the men who served the king would be officials of high rank. 24,28: The contrast between the millions of v. 24 and the insignificant amount of v. 28 (a few pounds) makes the first man's action in vv. 28-30 intolerable. 35: As in v. 15, the brother is

19 WHEN JESUS HAD FINISHED THIS DIScourse he left Galilee and came into the 2 region of Judaea across Jordan. Great crowds followed him, and he healed
them there.

3 Some Pharisees came and tested him by asking, 'Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife on any and every 4 ground?'<sup>p</sup> He asked in return, 'Have you never read that the Creator made them from the beginning male and 5 female?'; and he added, 'For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother, and be made one with his wife; and the two shall become one 6 flesh. It follows that they are no longer two individuals: they are one flesh.
What God has joined together, man 7 must not separate.' 'Why then', they objected, 'did Moses lay it down that a man might divorce his wife by note of 8 dismissal?' He answered, 'It was because your minds were closed that Moses gave you permission to divorce your wives; but it was not like that 9 when all began. I tell you, if a man divorces his wife for any cause other than unchastity, and marries another,
he commits adultery.'<sup>q</sup>

10 The disciples said to him, 'If that is the position with husband and wife, it is better not to marry.' To this he replied, 'That is something which not everyone can accept, but only those 12 for whom God has appointed it. For while some are incapable of marriage because they were born so, or were made so by men, there are others who have themselves renounced marriage
for the sake of the kingdom of Heaven.
Let those accept it who can.'

13 They brought children for him to lay his hands on them with prayer. The disciples rebuked them, but Jesus said 14 to them, 'Let the children come to me;

do not try to stop them; for the kingdom of Heaven belongs to such as these.' And he laid his hands on the 15 children, and went his way.

And now a man came up and asked 16 him, 'Master, what good must I do to gain eternal life?' 'Good?' said Jesus.
17 'Why do you ask me about that? One alone is good. But if you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments.'
'Which commandments?' he asked.
18 Jesus answered, 'Do not murder; do not commit adultery; do not steal; do not give false evidence; honour your 19 father and mother; and love your neighbour as yourself.' The young man 20 answered, 'I have kept all these.
Where do I still fall short?' Jesus said 21 to him, 'If you wish to go the whole way, go, sell your possessions, and give to the poor, and then you will have riches in heaven; and come, follow me.'
When the young man heard this, he 22 went away with a heavy heart; for he was a man of great wealth.

Jesus said to his disciples, 'I tell you 23 this: a rich man will find it hard to enter the kingdom of Heaven. I repeat, 24 it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.' The 25 disciples were amazed to hear this.
'Then who can be saved?' they asked.
Jesus looked at them, and said, 'For 26 men this is impossible; but everything is possible for God.'

<sup>p</sup> Or Is there any ground on which it is lawful for a man to divorce his wife?

<sup>q</sup> Some witnesses add And the man who marries a woman so divorced commits adultery.

for Mt. a fellow Christian. 19.1: This is the conclusion to ch. 18, the third discourse. See 7.28 n. 19.3-12: Marriage and divorce (see 5.31-32 n.; Mk.10.2-12; Lk.16.18; 1 Cor.7.10-11). 3: For Pharisees divorce was lawful but they disagreed about the grounds on which it may be allowed; see Mk.10.3 n. 4-6: See Mk.10.6,7-8 nn. 7-8: See Mk.10.4-5 n. 9: See 5.32 n. 10-12: Marriage and celibacy both fall within God's purpose; compare 1 Cor.7.25-28.

19.13-15: Children and the kingdom (Mk.10.13-16; Lk.18.15-17). Compare 18.2-4. 19.16-30: Possessions and the kingdom (Mk.10.17-31; Lk.18.18-30). 16-17: In Mk.10.17-18 and Lk.18.18-19 the opening exchange between Jesus and the young man could be interpreted as implying that Jesus disclaimed being good; Mt., then, might be thought to correct this implication by reformulating these verses. Yet the point is the same in the three Gospels: for life, a man must look to the One (God) who alone is good and who gives the commandments with which the quest for life begins (Lev.18.5). 18-19: Exod.20.12-16; Lev.19.18; Deut.5.16-20; compare 22.39; Rom.13.8-9. 19: Mt. has a special interest in the love commandment, which the parallel accounts omit in this narrative. 21: To go the whole way: lit. to be perfect. The remainder of the challenge (go, sell, give) makes the general counsel on almsgiving elsewhere (e.g. 6.22 n.) thoroughgoing. 22: Only Mt. calls him a young man. 24: Camel... eye of a

27 At this Peter said, 'We here have left everything to become your followers.
28 What will there be for us?' Jesus replied, 'I tell you this: in the world that is to be, when the Son of Man is seated on his throne in heavenly splendour, you my followers will have thrones of your own, where you will sit as judges of the twelve tribes of Israel. And anyone who has left brothers or sisters, father, mother, or children, land or houses for the sake of my name will be repaid many times over, and gain eternal life. But many who are first will be last, and the last first.'

20 'The kingdom of Heaven is like this. There was once a landowner who went out early one morning to hire labourers 2 for his vineyard; and after agreeing to pay them the usual day's wage<sup>r</sup> he sent 3 them off to work. Going out three hours later he saw some more men standing idle in the market-place. "Go and join the others in the vineyard," he said, "and I will pay you a fair wage"; 5 so off they went. At midday he went out again, and at three in the afternoon, and made the same arrangement as before. An hour before sunset he went out and found another group standing there; so he said to them, "Why are you standing about like this all day with nothing to do?" "Because no one has hired us", they replied; so he told them, "Go and join the others in the 8 vineyard." When evening fell, the owner of the vineyard said to his steward, "Call the labourers and give them their pay, beginning with those who came last and ending with the 9 first." Those who had started work an hour before sunset came forward, and 10 were paid the full day's wage.<sup>s</sup> When it was the turn of the men who had come first, they expected something extra, but were paid the same amount as the others. As they took it, they 11 grumbled at their employer: "These 12 late-comers have done only one hour's work, yet you have put them on a level with us, who have sweated the whole day long in the blazing sun!" The owner turned to one of them and 13 said, "My friend, I am not being unfair to you. You agreed on the usual wage for the day,<sup>t</sup> did you not? Take your 14 pay and go home. I choose to pay the last man the same as you. Surely I am 15 free to do what I like with my own money. Why be jealous because I am kind?" Thus will the last be first, and 16 the first last.'

Challenge to Jerusalem

JESUS WAS JOURNEYING TOWARDS JERU- 17 salem, and on the way he took the Twelve aside, and said to them, 'We 18 are now going to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be given up to the chief priests and the doctors of the law; they will condemn him to death and hand him over to the foreign 19 power, to be mocked and flogged and crucified, and on the third day he will be raised to life again.'

The mother of Zebedee's sons then 20 came before him, with her sons. She bowed low and begged a favour. 'What 21 is it you wish?' asked Jesus. 'I want you', she said, 'to give orders that in your kingdom my two sons here may sit next to you, one at your right, and the other at your left.' Jesus turned to 22 the brothers and said, 'You do not understand what you are asking. Can you drink the cup that I am to drink?' 'We can', they replied. Then he said 23 to them, 'You shall indeed share my cup; but to sit at my right or left is not needle is a hyperbole which prepares for v. 26. 27,29: In contrast to the rich man, the disciples have left everything and will . . . gain eternal life. 28: Lk.22.30. 30: 20.16; Mk.10.31; Lk.13.30.

<sup>r</sup> Literally one denarius for the day.

<sup>s</sup> Literally one denarius each.

<sup>t</sup> Literally You agreed on a denarius.

20.1-16: The laborers in the vineyard. The laborers are hired around 6 a.m. (v. 2), 9 a.m. (v. 3), noon (v. 5), 3 p.m. (v. 5), and 5 p.m. (v. 6). Only those hired in v. 2 are promised a specific amount (the usual day's wage). The surprise comes in vv. 9-10 when all received the same sum, regardless of their working hours.

20.17-19: The third prediction of suffering (16.21; 17.22-23; Mk.10.32-34 n.; Lk.18.31-34).

20.20-28: Position in the kingdom (Mk.10.35-45; Lk.22.24-27). 20: The mother initiates the request in Mt., the sons in Mk.10.35. 21: Right . . . left: see Mk.10.37 n. 22: Cup: see Mk.10.38 n. 23: See Mk.10.40 n. Some scholars interpret Kingdom here to mean the church, rather than the

for me to grant; it is for those to whom it has already been assigned by my Father.'

- 24 When the other ten heard this, they were indignant with the two brothers.
 25 So Jesus called them to him and said, 'You know that in the world, rulers lord it over their subjects, and their great men make them feel the weight of authority; but it shall not be so with you. Among you, whoever wants to be great must be your servant, and whoever wants to be first must be the willing slave of all—like the Son of Man; he did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give up his life as a ransom for many.'
 29 As they were leaving Jericho he was followed by a great crowd of people.
 30 At the roadside sat two blind men. When they heard it said that Jesus was passing they shouted, 'Have pity on us, Son of David.' The people told them sharply to be quiet. But they shouted all the more, 'Sir, have pity on us; have pity on us, Son of David.' Jesus stopped and called the men. 'What do you want me to do for you?' he asked.
 33 'Sir,' they answered, 'we want our sight.'
 34 Jesus was deeply moved, and touched their eyes. At once their sight came back, and they followed him.

- 21 THEY WERE NOW NEARING JERUSALEM; and when they reached Bethphage at the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent two disciples with these instructions: 'Go to the village opposite, where you will at once find a donkey tethered with her foal beside her; untie them, and 3 bring them to me. If anyone speaks to you, say, "Our Master needs them"; and he will let you take them at once.'<sup>u</sup> This was to fulfil the prophecy which 4 says, 'Tell the daughter of Zion, "Here 5 is your king, who comes to you in gentleness, riding on an ass, riding on the foal of a beast of burden.'"

The disciples went and did as Jesus 6 had directed, and brought the donkey 7 and her foal; they laid their cloaks on them and Jesus mounted. Crowds of 8 people carpeted the road with their cloaks, and some cut branches from the trees to spread in his path. Then 9 the crowd that went ahead and the others that came behind raised the shout: 'Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessings on him who comes in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the heavens!'

When he entered Jerusalem the 10 whole city went wild with excitement. 'Who is this?' people asked, and the 11 crowd replied, 'This is the prophet Jesus, from Nazareth in Galilee.'

Jesus then went into the temple and 12 drove out all who were buying and selling in the temple precincts; he upset the tables of the money-changers and the seats of the dealers in pigeons; and said to them, 'Scripture says, "My 13 house shall be called a house of prayer"; but you are making it a robbers' cave.'

In the temple blind men and cripples 14 came to him, and he healed them. The 15 chief priests and doctors of the law saw the wonderful things he did, and heard the boys in the temple shouting, world as destined to be reigned over by God. 28: Ransom for many: see Mk.10.45 n.; see also 2 Macc.7.37–38.

<sup>u</sup> Or "Our Master needs them and will send them back straight away."

20.29–34: Two blind men healed (Mk.10.46–52; Lk.18.35–43). 30: Two blind men: contrast Mk.10.46; Lk.18.35. 31: Son of David: see 1.1 n. 34: Followed: see Mk.10.52 n.

21.1–25.46: Jesus in Jerusalem (Mk.11.1–13.37 n.; Lk.19.28–21.38).

21.1–9: The entry into Jerusalem (Mk.11.1–11; Lk.19.28–38; Jn.12.12–19). 1: The Mount of Olives: associated with the appearance of the Messiah. The Gospel writers understand the entry as a messianic claim, and the account has been influenced by the picture of the humble king in Zech.9.9 (see v. 5 n.). 2: Mt. speaks of two animals, presumably because of his interpretation of the prophecy he records in v. 5. 5: Isa.62.11 and Zech.9.9 are combined; Jn.12.15 also quotes Zech. 9: Ps.118.25–26. Hosanna, lit. means "O, save!" In Jesus' day, it could be simply a shout of praise. Son of David: see 1.1 n.

21.10–17: Cleansing of the Temple (Mk.11.15–19; Lk.19.45–48). 11: Prophet: see 21.26,46; Mk.8.28 n. 12: The temple area involved would be the so-called Court of the Gentiles, to which even non-Jews were admitted. Money-changers converted ordinary money into the Tyrian half-shekels required at the Temple. Pigeons: for inexpensive animal sacrifices. See Mk.11.15–16 n. 13: See Mk.11.17 n.; Isa.56.7; Jer.7.11. 14: Mt. apparently sees this as the Temple's true function. 16: Ps.8.2.

16 'Hosanna to the Son of David!', and they asked him indignantly, 'Do you hear what they are saying?' Jesus answered, 'I do; have you never read that text, "Thou hast made children and babes at the breast sound aloud thy praise"?' Then he left them and went out of the city to Bethany, where he spent the night.

18 Next morning on his way to the city he felt hungry; and seeing a fig-tree at the roadside he went up to it, but found nothing on it but leaves. He said to the tree, 'You shall never bear fruit any more!'; and the tree withered away at once. The disciples were amazed at the sight. 'How is it', they asked, 'that the tree has withered so suddenly?' Jesus answered them, 'I tell you this: if only you have faith and have no doubts, you will do what has been done to the fig-tree; and more than that, you need only say to this mountain, "Be lifted from your place and hurled into the sea", and what you say will be done. And whatever you pray for in faith you will receive.'

23 He entered the temple, and the chief priests and elders of the nation came to him with the question: 'By what authority are you acting like this? Who gave you this authority?' Jesus replied, 'I have a question to ask you too; answer it, and I will tell you by what authority I act. The baptism of John: was it from God, or from men?' This set them arguing among themselves: 'If we say, "from God", he will say, "Then why did you not believe him?" But if we say, "from men", we are afraid of the people, for they all take John for a prophet.' So they answered, 'We do not know.' And Jesus said:

'Then neither will I tell you by what authority I act.

'But what do you think about this? 28 A man had two sons. He went to the first, and said, "My boy, go and work today in the vineyard." "I will, sir", 29 the boy replied; but he never went. The father came to the second and 30 said the same. "I will not", he replied, but afterwards he changed his mind and went. Which of these two did as 31 his father wished?" "The second", they said. Then Jesus answered, 'I tell you this: tax-gatherers and prostitutes are entering the kingdom of God ahead of you. For when John came to show 32 you the right way to live, you did not believe him, but the tax-gatherers and prostitutes did; and even when you had seen that, you did not change your minds and believe him.

'Listen to another parable. There was 33 a landowner who planted a vineyard: he put a wall round it, hewed out a winepress, and built a watch-tower; then he let it out to vine-growers and went abroad. When the vintage season 34 approached, he sent his servants to the tenants to collect the produce due to him. But they took his servants and 35 thrashed one, killed another, and stoned a third. Again, he sent other 36 servants, this time a larger number; and they did the same to them. At 37 last he sent to them his son. "They will respect my son", he said. But 38 when they saw the son the tenants said to one another, "This is the heir; come on, let us kill him, and get his 39 inheritance." And they took him, flung him out of the vineyard, and 40 killed him. When the owner of the vineyard comes, how do you think he

21.18–22: The cursing of the fig tree (Mk.11.12–14,20–25). 19: The narrative is frequently taken as an "acted parable or allegory" of the rejection of Israel or as a development of the parable in Lk.13.6–9. 20–22: The story has attracted sayings about the power of faith and prayer which are also found elsewhere (17.20; Lk.17.6).

21.23–27: Jesus' authority challenged (Mk.11.27–33; Lk.20.1–8). 25: From God: lit. "from heaven" (a typical Jewish circumlocution to avoid the careless use of "God"; compare 3.2 n.). 26: Prophet: see Mk.8.28 n.

21.28–32: The parable of the two sons. 31: That religious outcasts (tax-gatherers and prostitutes) should have priority over religious leaders is not a popular notion even in modern times. 32: In this context, to believe him (John the Baptist) appears to assure entrance into the kingdom.

21.33–46: The evil tenants (Mk.12.1–12; Lk.20.9–19). 33: If originally a parable, the story as now told has the marks of an allegory; see Mk.4.2 n. The vineyard is a conventional symbol for Israel as the chosen people; compare Isa.5.1–7. 34: Early Christian readers would identify the servants as the prophets and the tenants as the Jewish leaders of the day. 37: Son: Jesus.

41 will deal with those tenants?' 'He will bring those bad men to a bad end', they answered, 'and hand the vineyard over to other tenants, who will let him have his share of the crop when the 42 season comes.' Then Jesus said to them, 'Have you never read in the scriptures: "The stone which the builders rejected has become the main corner-stone. This is the Lord's doing, and it is wonderful in our eyes"?' There- 43 fore, I tell you, the kingdom of God will be taken away from you, and given to a nation that yields the proper fruit."<sup>v</sup>

45 When the chief priests and Pharisees heard his parables, they saw that he 46 was referring to them; they wanted to arrest him, but they were afraid of the people, who looked on Jesus as a prophet.

22 THEN JESUS SPOKE TO THEM AGAIN IN 2 parables: 'The kingdom of Heaven is like this. There was a king who prepared a feast for his son's wedding; 3 but when he sent his servants to summon the guests he had invited, 4 they would not come. He sent others again, telling them to say to the guests, "See now! I have prepared this feast for you. I have had my bullocks and fatted beasts slaughtered; everything is ready; come to the 5 wedding at once." But they took no notice; one went off to his farm, 6 another to his business, and the others seized the servants, attacked them 7 brutally, and killed them. The king was furious; he sent troops to kill those murderers and set their town on fire. 8 Then he said to his servants, "The wedding-feast is ready; but the guests I invited did not deserve the honour. 9 Go out to the main thoroughfares, and invite everyone you can find to the 10 wedding." The servants went out into the streets, and collected all they could find, good and bad alike. So the hall was packed with guests.

'When the king came in to see the 11 company at table, he observed one man who was not dressed for a wedding. "My friend," said the king, "how do 12 you come to be here without your wedding clothes?" He had nothing to say. The king then said to his atten- 13 dants, "Bind him hand and foot; turn him out into the dark, the place of wailing and grinding of teeth." For 14 though many are invited, few are chosen.'

THEN THE PHARISEES WENT AWAY AND 15 agreed on a plan to trap him in his own words. Some of their followers were 16 sent to him in company with men of Herod's party. They said, 'Master, you are an honest man, we know; you teach in all honesty the way of life that God requires, truckling to no man, whoever he may be. Give us your ruling 17 on this: are we or are we not permitted to pay taxes to the Roman Emperor?' Jesus was aware of their malicious 18 intention and said to them, 'You hypocrites! Why are you trying to catch me out? Show me the money in 19 which the tax is paid.' They handed him a silver piece. Jesus asked, 'Whose 20 head is this, and whose inscription?' 'Caesar's', they replied. He said to 21 them, 'Then pay Caesar what is due to Caesar, and pay God what is due to God.' This answer took them by 22 surprise, and they went away and left him alone.

The same day Sadducees came to 23 him, maintaining that there is no resurrection. Their question was this:

<sup>v</sup> Some witnesses add (44) Any man who falls on this stone will be dashed to pieces; and if it falls on a man he will be crushed by it.

42: The stone... is wonderful: Ps.118.22-23; see Mk.12.10-11 n.; Acts 4.11; 1 Pet.2.4,7. 22.1-14: The wedding feast (Lk.14.16-24). 2: Feast: see Lk.14.15 n. 3: To summon the guests: see Lk.14.17 n. 5-6: The feature of the servants being attacked is peculiar to Mt. (see Lk.14.18-20); the rejection of John and Jesus probably suggested this embellishment. 7: Here the tradition may reflect the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. 11-14: In light of v. 10, the expectation of "correct dress" may indicate that these verses are from a second "feast parable" which Mt. has appended to vv. 2-10.

22.15-22: Caesar's tax (Mk.12.13-17; Lk.20.20-26). 17: Advice against paying such taxes would amount to treason; advice in favor of paying would be unpopular with Jewish nationalists.

22.23-33: A resurrection puzzle (Mk.12.18-27; Lk.20.27-40). 23: On differences between

24 'Master, Moses said, "If a man should die childless, his brother shall marry the widow and carry on his brother's family." Now we knew of seven brothers. The first married and died, and as he was without issue his wife was left to his brother. The same thing happened with the second, and the third, and so on with all seven. Last of all the woman died. At the resurrection, then, whose wife will she be, for they had all married her?' Jesus answered: 'You are mistaken, because you know neither the scriptures nor the power of God. At the resurrection men and women do not marry; they are like angels in heaven.'

31 'But about the resurrection of the dead, have you never read what God himself said to you: "I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob"? He is not God of the dead but of the living.' The people heard what he said, and were astounded at his teaching.

34 Hearing that he had silenced the Sadducees, the Pharisees met together; and one of their number<sup>w</sup> tested him with this question: 'Master, which is the greatest commandment in the Law?' He answered, "'Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind." That is the greatest commandment. It comes first. The second is like it: "Love your neighbour as yourself." Everything in the Law and the prophets hangs on these two commandments.'

Turning to the assembled Pharisees 41 Jesus asked them, 'What is your opinion about the Messiah? Whose son is he?' 'The son of David', they replied. 'How then is it', he asked, 43 'that David by inspiration calls him "Lord"? For he says, "The Lord said 44 to my Lord, "Sit at my right hand until I put your enemies under your feet."' If David calls him "Lord", 45 how can he be David's son?' Not a man could say a word in reply; and from that day forward no one dared ask him another question.

JESUS THEN ADDRESSED THE PEOPLE AND 23 his disciples in these words: 'The 2 doctors of the law and the Pharisees sit in the chair of Moses; therefore do 3 what they tell you; pay attention to their words. But do not follow their practice; for they say one thing and do another. They make up heavy packs 4 and pile them on men's shoulders, but will not raise a finger to lift the load themselves. Whatever they do is done 5 for show. They go about with broad phylacteries<sup>x</sup> and with large tassels on their robes; they like to have places of 6 honour at feasts and the chief seats in synagogues, to be greeted respectfully 7 in the street, and to be addressed as "rabbi".'

'But you must not be called "rabbi"; 8 for you have one Rabbi, and you are all brothers. Do not call any man on 9

<sup>w</sup> Some witnesses insert a lawyer.
<sup>x</sup> See Deuteronomy 6. 8-9 and Exodus 13. 9.

Sadducees and Pharisees (v. 15), see 3.7 n. 24: Deut.25.5-10. 30: The scriptures: apparently Exod.3.6, which is quoted in v. 32 as proof of the resurrection.

22.34-40: The double commandment of love (Mk.12.28-34; compare Lk.10.25-28). 35: Mt. attributes the motive of testing to the inquirers; compare Mk.12.28; Lk.10.27 n. 37: Deut.6.5. 39: Lev.19.18. 40: Compare 7.12.

22.41-46: Messiah, son of David (Mk.12.35-37; Lk.20.41-44). 42: Messiah . . . the son of David: see 1.1 n. 44: Ps.110.1 is interpreted to mean "God (the Lord) said to the Messiah (my Lord)"; compare Acts 2.34-36. 45: While the story may represent a stratum of tradition which rejected a son of David Christology, that cannot have been the intention of the evangelist, in light e.g. of chs. 1-2.

23.1-39: Alas for lawyers and Pharisees (compare Lk.11.42-54). 1: It is difficult to decide whether ch. 23 is the climax of the reported controversy of the preceding chs. or the beginning of the final discourse in Mt. The fact that the Pharisees appear as Jesus' chief opponents in the synoptic Gospels—and especially in Mt.—probably reflects the situation after 70 A.D., when Pharisaism was the form of Judaism which the Church normally confronted. In the very old traditions of the passion (beginning with ch. 26 and its parallels), not the Pharisees, but the politically important priestly and Sadducaic elements seem to be most prominent in the fateful final conflict. 3: On doctors of the law (lawyers, vv. 13,15,23,25,27,29; teachers, v. 34!), see 2.4 n.; 5.20 n. The chair of Moses: at one time, a place provided in the synagogue for authoritative teaching. 5: Phylacteries were small leather containers holding certain passages of Scripture; compare Exod.13.9. 8-10: Rabbi, father, teacher: titles for teachers of the Law.

earth "father"; for you have one 10 Father, and he is in heaven. Nor must you be called "teacher"; you have one 11 Teacher, the Messiah. The greatest 12 among you must be your servant. For whoever exalts himself will be humbled;
 and whoever humbles himself will be exalted.

13 'Alas for you, lawyers and Pharisees, hypocrites that you are!
 You shut the door of the kingdom of Heaven in men's faces; you do not enter yourselves, and when others are entering, you stop them.<sup>y</sup>

15 'Alas for you, lawyers and Pharisees, hypocrites! You travel over sea and land to win one convert; and when you have won him you make him twice as fit for hell as you are yourselves.

16 'Alas for you, blind guides! You say,
 "If a man swears by the sanctuary, that is nothing; but if he swears by the gold in the sanctuary, he is bound by 17 his oath." Blind fools! Which is the more important, the gold, or the sanctuary which sanctifies the gold?

18 Or you say, "If a man swears by the altar, that is nothing; but if he swears
 by the offering that lies on the altar, he 19 is bound by his oath." What blindness!
 Which is the more important, the offering, or the altar which sanctifies 20 it? To swear by the altar, then, is to swear both by the altar and by whatever lies on it; to swear by the sanctuary is to swear both by the sanctuary and 22 by him who dwells there; and to swear by heaven is to swear both by the throne of God and by him who sits upon it.

23 'Alas for you, lawyers and Pharisees, hypocrites! You pay tithes of mint and dill and cummin; but you have overlooked the weightier demands of the Law, justice, mercy, and good faith. It is these you should have practised, without neglecting the others.

24 Blind guides! You strain off a midge, yet gulp down a camel!

'Alas for you, lawyers and Pharisees, 25
 hypocrites! You clean the outside of cup and dish, which you have filled inside by robbery and self-indulgence!
 Blind Pharisee! Clean the inside of the 26 cup first; then the outside will be clean also.

'Alas for you, lawyers and Pharisees, 27
 hypocrites! You are like tombs covered with whitewash; they look well from outside, but inside they are full of dead men's bones and all kinds of filth. So 28
 it is with you: outside you look like honest men, but inside you are brim-
 full of hypocrisy and crime.

'Alas for you, lawyers and Pharisees, 29
 hypocrites! You build up the tombs of the prophets and embellish the monuments of the saints, and you say, 30
 "If we had been alive in our fathers'
 time, we should never have taken part with them in the murder of the prophets." So you acknowledge that 31 you are the sons of the men who killed
 the prophets. Go on then, finish off 32
 what your fathers began!<sup>z</sup>

'You snakes, you vipers' brood, how 33
 can you escape being condemned to hell? I send you therefore prophets, 34 sages, and teachers; some of them you will kill and crucify, others you will flog in your synagogues and hound from city to city. And so, on you will 35 fall the guilt of all the innocent blood
 spilt on the ground, from innocent Abel to Zechariah son of Berachiah, whom you murdered between the sanctuary and the altar. Believe me, 36 this generation will bear the guilt of it all.

'O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that 37 murders the prophets and stones the messengers sent to her! How often have I longed to gather your children, as a hen gathers her brood under her wings;
 but you would not let me. Look, look! 38

<sup>y</sup> Some witnesses add (14) Alas for you, lawyers and Pharisees, hypocrites! You eat up the property of widows, while you say long prayers for appearance' sake. You will receive the severest sentence.

<sup>z</sup> Or You too must come up to your fathers' standards.

13: Alas for: see Lk.6.24–26 n. Shut the door: compare 16.19 n.; Lk.11.52. 16–22: The purpose of oaths of the type described was to guard against the profaning of the holy sanctuary or altar (and, ultimately, the name of God) by broken oaths; compare 5.33–37. 23: Tithes of such produce probably exceed the actual requirements of Deut.14.22–23. The weightier demands: see Mic.6.8. 24: Midge: or, gnat. 27–32: Compare Lk.11.44–48. 33: 3.7; Lk.3.7. 34–36: See Lk.11.49–51 n. 34: Teachers: see 23.3 n. 35: Abel: Gen.4.8. Son of Berachiah (2 Chr.24.20–22; Zech.1.1) is not found in Lk.11.51 (see n.); probably the identification is mistaken. 37–38: See

there is your temple, forsaken by 39 God.<sup>a b</sup> And I tell you, you shall never see me until the time when you say,
 "Blessings on him who comes in the name of the Lord."

Prophecies and warnings

24 JESUS WAS LEAVING THE TEMPLE WHEN his disciples came and pointed to the 2 temple buildings. He answered, "Yes, look at it all. I tell you this: not one stone will be left upon another; all will be thrown down."
 3 When he was sitting on the Mount of Olives the disciples came to speak to him privately. "Tell us," they said, "when will this happen? And what will be the signal for your coming and the end of the age?"
 4 Jesus replied: "Take care that no one 5 misleads you. For many will come claiming my name and saying, "I am the Messiah"; and many will be misled 6 by them. The time is coming when you will hear the noise of battle near at hand and the news of battles far away;
 see that you are not alarmed. Such things are bound to happen; but the 7 end is still to come. For nation will make war upon nation, kingdom upon kingdom; there will be famines and 8 earthquakes in many places. With all these things the birth-pangs of the new age begin.
 9 "You will then be handed over for punishment and execution; and men of all nations will hate you for your 10 allegiance to me. Many will fall from their faith; they will betray one 11 another and hate one another. Many false prophets will arise, and will 12 mislead many; and as lawlessness spreads, men's love for one another will grow cold. But the man who holds 13 out to the end will be saved. And this 14 gospel of the Kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the earth as a testimony to all nations; and then the end will come.

"So when you see "the abomination
 15 of desolation", of which the prophet Daniel spoke, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then 16 those who are in Judaea must take to the hills. If a man is on the roof, he 17 must not come down to fetch his goods from the house; if in the field, he must 18 not turn back for his coat. Alas for 19 women with child in those days, and for those who have children at the breast! Pray that it may not be winter 20 when you have to make your escape, or Sabbath. It will be a time of great 21 distress; there has never been such a time from the beginning of the world until now, and will never be again. If 22 that time of troubles were not cut short, no living thing could survive;
 but for the sake of God's chosen it will be cut short.

"Then, if anyone says to you, "Look, 23 here is the Messiah", or, "There he is",
 do not believe it. Impostors will come 24 claiming to be messiahs or prophets, and they will produce great signs and wonders to mislead even God's chosen, if such a thing were possible. See, I 25 have forewarned you. If they tell you, 26 "He is there in the wilderness", do not go out; or if they say, "He is there in a Or Look, your home is desolate.

b Some witnesses add and laid waste.

Lk.13.34-35 n. 39: For Mt., until the time looks forward to the end time; contrast Lk.13.35 n. Blessings . . . Lord: Ps.118.26.

24.1-26.1a: The (fifth) eschatological discourse. See 23.1 n.; 7.28 n. Compare Mk.13.1-37 n. 24.1-2: Temple's destruction predicted (Mk.13.1-4; Lk.21.5-7). Herod the Great instituted the building of a magnificent temple about 20 B.C.; although it was substantially complete, work on it still continued in Jesus' day (see Jn.2.20). Several traditions suggest that Jesus foretold the Temple's destruction (compare Jn.2.19); another form of the prediction had it that Jesus himself would destroy the Temple (compare 26.61; Mk.14.58; 15.29; Acts 6.14). The destruction occurred in 70 A.D. as a consequence of the revolt against Rome.

24.3-41: Signs, false signs, and warnings (Mk.13.3-37; Lk.21.8-36). 3: Mount of Olives: see 21.1 n. 4-5: Compare vv. 23-24; Acts 8.9-11. 8: Birth-pangs: conventional imagery for suffering associated with the dawn of the new age (e.g. 1 Thess.5.3). 13: 10.22. 14: See 28.18-20; Mk.13.10. 15: "The abomination of desolation" (see Dan.9.27; 11.31; 12.11): a symbol of pagan profanation of the holy place. The comment let the reader understand calls attention to the cryptic character of this material. 18: Lk.17.31. 20: Mt. alone shows concern about violating the rule limiting Sabbath travel; compare Mk.13.18. 21: Dan.12.1. 24: Deut.13.1-2. 26-28:

27 the inner room”, do not believe it. Like lightning from the east, flashing as far as the west, will be the coming of the Son of Man.

28 ‘Wherever the corpse is, there the vultures will gather.

29 ‘As soon as the distress of those days has passed, the sun will be darkened, the moon will not give her light, the stars will fall from the sky, the celestial powers will be shaken.

30 Then will appear in heaven the sign that heralds the Son of Man. All the peoples of the world will make lamentation, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven with great power and glory. With a trumpet blast he will send out his angels, and they will gather his chosen from the four winds, from the farthest bounds of heaven on every side.

32 ‘Learn a lesson from the fig-tree. When its tender shoots appear and are breaking into leaf, you know that summer is near. In the same way, when you see all these things, you may know that the end is near,<sup>c</sup> at the very door. I tell you this: the present generation will live to see it all. Heaven and earth will pass away; my words will never pass away.

36 ‘But about that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels in heaven, not even the Son; only the Father.

37 ‘As things were in Noah’s days, so will they be when the Son of Man comes. In the days before the flood they ate and drank and married, until the day that Noah went into the ark, and they knew nothing until the flood came and swept them all away. That is how it will be when the Son of Man comes. Then there will be two men in the field; one will be taken, the other left; two women grinding at the mill; one will be taken, the other left.

‘Keep awake, then; for you do not know on what day your Lord is to come. Remember, if the householder had known at what time of night the burglar was coming, he would have kept awake and not have let his house be broken into. Hold yourselves ready, therefore, because the Son of Man will come at the time you least expect him.

‘Who is the trusty servant, the sensible man charged by his master to manage his household staff and issue their rations at the proper time? Happy that servant who is found at his task when his master comes! I tell you this: he will be put in charge of all his master’s property. But if he is a bad servant and says to himself, “The master is a long time coming”, and begins to bully the other servants and to eat and drink with his drunken friends, then the master will arrive on a day that servant does not expect, at a time he does not know, and will cut him in pieces. Thus he will find his place among the hypocrites, where there is wailing and grinding of teeth.

‘When that day comes, the kingdom of Heaven will be like this. There were ten girls, who took their lamps and went out to meet the bridegroom. Five of them were foolish, and five prudent; when the foolish ones took their lamps, they took no oil with them, but the others took flasks of oil with their lamps. As the bridegroom was late in coming they all dozed off to sleep. But at midnight a cry was heard: “Here is the bridegroom! Come out to meet him.” With that the girls all got up and trimmed their lamps. The foolish said to the prudent, “Our lamps are going out; give us some of your oil.” “No,” they said; “there will never be enough for all of us. You had better go to the shop and buy some for

<sup>c</sup> Or that he is near.

Lk.17.23–24,37. 29: The portents described here have OT roots; e.g. Isa.13.10. 30: Dan.7.13. 31: Isa.27.13; 1 Cor.15.52; Deut.30.4. 34: Compare 10.23; 16.28. A late first-century Christian could have understood the saying literally only of the destruction of the Temple, not of the end of the age; see v. 36. 35: 5.18; Lk.16.17. 37–41: Lk.17.26–27,34–35; Gen. chs. 6–7.

24.42–26.1a: Parables of judgment.

24.43–44: The wakeful householder (Lk.12.39–40). The “thief” motif was widespread; e.g. 1 Thess.5.2; Rev.3.3.

24.45–51: The trusty servant (Lk.12.42–46).

25.1–13: The girls at the wedding celebration. The parable uses the wedding customs of the time to urge preparedness for the kingdom. 1: No doubt the early Church thought of Jesus as the

- 10 yourselves." While they were away the bridegroom arrived; those who were ready went in with him to the wedding; 11 and the door was shut. And then the other five came back. "Sir, sir," they cried, "open the door for us." But he 12 answered, "I declare, I do not know you." Keep awake then; for you never 13 know the day or the hour.
- 14 'It is like a man going abroad, who called his servants and put his capital 15 in their hands; to one he gave five bags of gold, to another two, to another one, each according to his capacity. Then he left the country.
16 The man who had the five bags went at once and employed them in business, 17 and made a profit of five bags, and the man who had the two bags made two.
18 But the man who had been given one bag of gold went off and dug a hole in the ground, and hid his master's 19 money. A long time afterwards their master returned, and proceeded to 20 settle accounts with them. The man who had been given the five bags of gold came and produced the five he had made: "Master," he said, "you left five bags with me; look, I have 21 made five more." "Well done, my good and trusty servant!" said the master. "You have proved trustworthy in a small way; I will now put you in charge of something big. Come and 22 share your master's delight." The man with the two bags then came and said,
"Master, you left two bags with me;
23 look, I have made two more." "Well done, my good and trusty servant!"
said the master. "You have proved trustworthy in a small way; I will now put you in charge of something big.
Come and share your master's delight."
24 Then the man who had been given one bag came and said, "Master, I knew you to be a hard man: you reap where you have not sown, you gather where 25 you have not scattered; so I was afraid, and I went and hid your gold in the ground. Here it is—you have what belongs to you." "You lazy 26 rascal!" said the master. "You knew that I reap where I have not sown, and gather where I have not scattered?
Then you ought to have put my 27 money on deposit, and on my return
I should have got it back with interest.
Take the bag of gold from him, and 28 give it to the one with the ten bags.
For the man who has will always be 29 given more, till he has enough and to spare; and the man who has not will forfeit even what he has. Fling the 30 useless servant out into the dark, the place of wailing and grinding of teeth!"
- 'When the Son of Man comes in his 31 glory and all the angels with him, he will sit in state on his throne, with all 32 the nations gathered before him. He will separate men into two groups, as a shepherd separates the sheep from the 33 goats, and he will place the sheep on his right hand and the goats on his left.
Then the king will say to those on his 34 right hand, "You have my Father's blessing; come, enter and possess the kingdom that has been ready for you since the world was made. For when I 35 was hungry, you gave me food; when thirsty, you gave me drink; when I was a stranger you took me into your home,
when naked you clothed me; when I 36 was ill you came to my help, when in prison you visited me." Then the 37 righteous will reply, "Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry and fed you, or thirsty and gave you drink, or 38 stranger and took you home, or naked and clothed you? When did we see 39 you ill or in prison, and come to visit you?" And the king will answer, 40 "I tell you this: anything you did for one of my brothers here, however humble, you did for me." Then he will 41 say to those on his left hand, "The curse is upon you; go from my sight

bridegroom. 13: Mt. interprets the parable in this way to carry forward the theme of 24.42–44.

25.14–30: The parable of the talents. In contrast to the similar parable in Lk.19.12–27 (see nn. there), immense sums are left in the hands of the servants. (In other, more literal, translations, "talents" appears rather than bags of gold: a talent was an ancient measure of money).

25.31–46: The sheep and the goats. See 7.24–29 n. The parable begins with familiar images: the Son of man . . . in his glory (v. 1; Dan.7.13–15); the assembling of the nations—i.e. even Gentiles (v. 2; e.g. Isa.2.2–4); the judging of the flocks (Ezek.34.17). 40: Brothers may be a technical term for "Christians"; see 18.35 n. 40,45: 10.42; Mk.9.41. 26.1a: See 7.28 n.

to the eternal fire that is ready for the 42 devil and his angels. For when I was hungry you gave me nothing to eat, 43 when thirsty nothing to drink; when I was a stranger you gave me no home,
 when naked you did not clothe me;
 when I was ill and in prison you did 44 not come to my help." And they too will reply, "Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or ill or in prison, and did 45 nothing for you?" And he will answer,
 "I tell you this: anything you did not do for one of these, however humble, 46 you did not do for me." And they will go away to eternal punishment, but the righteous will enter eternal life.'

The final conflict

26 WHEN JESUS HAD FINISHED THIS DIS-
 2 course he said to his disciples, 'You know that in two days' time it will be Passover, and the Son of Man is to be handed over for crucifixion.'

3 Then the chief priests and the elders
 4 of the nation met in the palace of the High Priest, Caiaphas; and there they conferred together on a scheme to have Jesus arrested by some trick and put to 5 death. 'It must not be during the festival,' they said, 'or there may be rioting among the people.'

6 JESUS WAS AT BETHANY IN THE HOUSE
 7 of Simon the leper, when a woman came to him with a small bottle of fragrant oil, very costly; and as he sat at table she began to pour it over his 8 head. The disciples were indignant when they saw it. 'Why this waste?' 9 they said; 'it could have been sold for a good sum and the money given to the poor.' Jesus was aware of this, and said 10 to them, 'Why must you make trouble for the woman? It is a fine thing she has done for me. You have the poor 11 among you always; but you will not always have me. When she poured 12 this oil on my body it was her way of preparing me for burial. I tell you 13 this: wherever in all the world this gospel is proclaimed, what she has done will be told as her memorial.'

THEN ONE OF THE TWELVE, THE MAN 14
 called Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priests and said, 'What will you give 15 me to betray him to you?' They weighed him out<sup>d</sup> thirty silver pieces.
 From that moment he began to look 16
 out for an opportunity to betray him.

On the first day of Unleavened 17
 Bread the disciples came to ask Jesus, 'Where would you like us to prepare for your Passover supper?'
 He answered, 'Go to a certain man in 18
 the city, and tell him, "The Master says, 'My appointed time is near; I am to keep Passover with my disciples at your house.'"' The disciples did as 19
 Jesus directed them and prepared for Passover.

In the evening he sat down with the 20
 twelve disciples; and during supper he 21 said, 'I tell you this: one of you will betray me.' In great distress they 22 exclaimed one after the other, 'Can you mean me, Lord?' He answered, 'One 23 who has dipped his hand into this bowl with me will betray me. The Son of 24 Man is going the way appointed for him in the scriptures; but alas for that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would be better for that

<sup>d</sup> Or agreed to pay him . . .

26.1b-27.66: The final conflict (Mk.14.1-15.47; Lk.22.1-23.56; Jn. chs. 12-19). See Lk.22.1-23.56 n. 2: See Mk.14.1 n. 6-13: Mk.14.3-9 (similar stories in Lk.7.36-50; Jn.12.1-8). 7: Pour: an act of social courtesy (compare Lk.7.44-46 n.). 12: The courtesy (v. 7) is given a significance that reaches beyond the woman's intention. 14-16: Mk.14.10-11; Lk.22.3-6. 15: Thirty silver pieces: compare Zech.11.12-13.

26.17-19: Preparation for the Passover (Mk.14.12-16; Lk.22.7-13). In Roman fashion Mt. (and Mk.; Lk.) describes the preparation (Thursday during the day) and the meal (Thursday evening) as taking place within the one day. However, by Jewish reckoning (in which a new day began at sunset), the preparation (vv. 17-19) fell on Nisan 14; evening (v. 20) was viewed as a new day, Nisan 15 (Passover). The crucifixion is thus also dated on Nisan 15 in the synoptic Gospels. Jn. dates the final meal and the crucifixion on Nisan 14 (e.g. Jn.18.28). 18: Jerusalem residents customarily provided visitors to the city with space for observing the Passover meal.

26.20-29: The Last Supper (Mk.14.17-25; Lk.22.14-38). 20: Sat down: lit. "reclined," as was the custom at Passover meals. 21-25: See also Jn.13.21-30. 24: The motif of Jesus' death as

25 man if he had never been born.' Then Judas spoke, the one who was to betray him: 'Rabbi, can you mean me?' Jesus replied, 'The words are yours.'<sup>e</sup>

26 During supper Jesus took bread, and having said the blessing he broke it and gave it to the disciples with the words: 'Take this and eat; this is my body.'
27 Then he took a cup, and having offered thanks to God he gave it to them with the words: 'Drink from it, 28 all of you. For this is my blood, the blood of the covenant, shed for many 29 for the forgiveness of sins. I tell you, never again shall I drink from the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new with you in the kingdom of my Father.'

30 After singing the Passover Hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives. 31 Then Jesus said to them, 'Tonight you will all fall from your faith on my account; for it stands written: "I will strike the shepherd down and the sheep of his flock will be scattered."
32 But after I am raised again, I will go on before you into Galilee.' Peter replied, 'Everyone else may fall away on your account, but I never will.' Jesus said to him, 'I tell you, tonight before the cock crows you will disown me three times.'
35 Peter said, 'Even if I must die with you, I will never disown you.' And all the disciples said the same.

36 JESUS THEN CAME WITH HIS DISCIPLES to a place called Gethsemane. He said to them, 'Sit here while I go over there to pray.' He took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee. Anguish and dismay came over him, and he said to them, 'My heart is ready to break with grief. Stop here, and stay awake with me.' He went on a little, fell on his face in prayer, and said, 'My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass me by. Yet not as I will, but as thou wilt.'

He came to the disciples and found 40 them asleep; and he said to Peter, 'What! Could none of you stay awake with me one hour? Stay awake, and 41 pray that you may be spared the test. The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.'

He went away a second time, and 42 prayed: 'My Father, if it is not possible for this cup to pass me by without my drinking it, thy will be done.' He came 43 again and found them asleep, for their eyes were heavy. So he left them and 44 went away again; and he prayed the third time, using the same words as before.

Then he came to the disciples and 45 said to them, 'Still sleeping? Still taking your ease? The hour has come! The Son of Man is betrayed to sinful men. Up, let us go forward; the 46 traitor is upon us.'

While he was still speaking, Judas, 47 one of the Twelve, appeared; with him was a great crowd armed with swords and cudgels, sent by the chief priests and the elders of the nation. The 48 traitor gave them this sign: 'The one I kiss is your man; seize him'; and 49 stepping forward at once, he said, 'Hail, Rabbi!', and kissed him. Jesus 50 replied, 'Friend, do what you are here to do.'<sup>f</sup> They then came forward, seized Jesus, and held him fast.

At that moment one of those with 51 Jesus reached for his sword and drew it, and he struck at the High Priest's servant and cut off his ear. But Jesus 52 said to him, 'Put up your sword. All who take the sword die by the sword.

<sup>e</sup> Or It is as you say.

<sup>f</sup> Or Friend, what are you here for?

the fulfillment of the scriptures is prominent in the passion narrative of each Gospel. It is to be recognized particularly in the way several OT passages (e.g. Ps.22) are introduced as part of the account (e.g. Mt.27.46). 26–29: See also 1 Cor.11.23–26. 28: The idea of sacrificial blood as the seal of a covenant relies on Exod.24.8 (Zech.9.11); see Lk.22.17–19 n. Many: see Mk.10.45 n.

26.30–46: Gethsemane (Mk.14.26–42; Lk.22.39–46). 30: Jn.18.1. Passover Hymn: the concluding half of the "Hallel," Pss.115–118. 31: Zech.13.7. 32: 28.7–10,16. 33–35: Lk.22.31–34; Jn.13.36–38 place this prediction prior to the departure from the supper. 36–46: See Lk.22.40–46 n. 38–39: Compare Jn.12.27–28. 38: Ps.42.6. 39: Cup: see Mk.10.38 n.; Jn.18.11. 42: 6.10.

26.47–56: The arrest (Mk.14.43–52; Lk.22.47–53; Jn.18.2–11). 48: The kiss was a disciple's usual greeting of his teacher. 51: Jn.18.10 identifies the one as Peter. 52: Jer.15.2; Rev.13.10.

- 53 Do you suppose that I cannot appeal to my Father, who would at once send to my aid more than twelve legions of angels? But how then could the scriptures be fulfilled, which say that this must be?'
- 54 At the same time Jesus spoke to the crowd: 'Do you take me for a bandit, that you have come out with swords and cudgels to arrest me? Day after day I sat teaching in the temple, and you did not lay hands on me. But this has all happened to fulfil what the prophets wrote.'
- 55 Then the disciples all deserted him and ran away.
- 57 JESUS WAS LED OFF UNDER ARREST TO the house of Caiaphas the High Priest, where the lawyers and elders were assembled. Peter followed him at a distance till he came to the High Priest's courtyard, and going in he sat down there among the attendants, meaning to see the end of it all.
- 58 The chief priests and the whole Council tried to find some allegation against Jesus on which a death-sentence could be based; but they failed to find one, though many came forward with false evidence. Finally two men alleged that he had said, 'I can pull down the temple of God, and rebuild it in three days.' At this the High Priest rose and said to him, 'Have you no answer to the charge that these witnesses bring against you?'
- 59 But Jesus kept silence. The High Priest then said, 'By the living God I charge you to tell us: Are you the Messiah, the Son of God?' Jesus replied, 'The words are yours.<sup>g</sup> But I tell you this: from now on, you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of God<sup>h</sup> and coming on the clouds of heaven.'
- 60 At these words the High Priest tore his robes and exclaimed, 'Blasphemy! Need we call further witnesses? You have heard the blasphemy. What is your opinion?' 'He is guilty,' they answered; 'he should die.'
- 61 Then they spat in his face and struck him with their fists; and others said, as they beat him, 'Now, Messiah, if you are a prophet, tell us who hit you.'
- 62 Meanwhile Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard when a serving-maid accosted him and said, 'You were there too with Jesus the Galilean.' Peter denied it in face of them all. 'I do not know what you mean', he said. He then went out to the gateway, where another girl, seeing him, said to the people there, 'This fellow was with Jesus of Nazareth.' Once again he denied it, saying with an oath, 'I do not know the man.' Shortly afterwards the bystanders came up and said to Peter, 'Surely you are another of them; your accent gives you away!' At this he broke into curses and declared with an oath: 'I do not know the man.' At that moment a cock crew; and Peter remembered how Jesus had said, 'Before the cock crows you will disown me three times.' He went outside, and wept bitterly.
- WHEN MORNING CAME, THE CHIEF priests and the elders of the nation met in conference to plan the death of Jesus. They then put him in chains and led him away, to hand him over to Pilate, the Roman Governor.
- When Judas the traitor saw that Jesus had been condemned, he was seized with remorse, and returned the thirty silver pieces to the chief priests and elders. 'I have sinned,' he said; 'I have brought an innocent man to his death.' But they said, 'What is that to

g Or It is as you say. h Literally of the Power.

53: Twelve legions: a legion was an infantry brigade numbering about five thousand men. 26.57-75: Before the Jewish authorities (Mk.14.53-72; Lk.22.54-71; Jn.18.12-27). The Gospel accounts of Jesus' appearance before Jewish officials are not entirely harmonious. Whatever proceedings took place before the native Council (v. 59 n.), the crucial outcome was the charge as transmitted for the Roman trial. 57: Caiaphas: see Lk.3.2 n. 59: The Council (or Sanhedrin) of Jerusalem was Judea's highest native judicial tribunal. 61: See 24.1-3 n. Two men: see Num.35.30; Deut.19.15. 63: Messiah, the Son of God: see 16.16 n. 64: Dan.7.13; Ps.110.1. 65-66: The claim to be the Messiah would not, in itself, be blasphemy; the penalty for blasphemy was death by stoning (Lev.24.13-16). 75: Compare v. 34. 27.1-31: Before Roman authority (Mk.15.1-20; Lk.23.1-25; Jn.18.28-19.16). 2: Pilate: see Lk.3.1 n. 3-10: Compare Acts 1.18-19. 9-10: Jer.32.6-13; Zech.11.12-13. 11: King: see

5 us? See to that yourself.' So he threw the money down in the temple and left them, and went and hanged himself.

6 Taking up the money, the chief priests argued: 'This cannot be put into the temple fund; it is blood-
7 money.' So after conferring they used it to buy the Potter's Field, as a
8 burial-place for foreigners. This explains the name 'Blood Acre', by which that field has been known ever since;
9 and in this way fulfilment was given to the prophetic utterance of Jeremiah: 'They took<sup>i</sup> the thirty silver pieces, the price set on a man's head (for that was his price among the Israelites), and gave the money for the potter's field, as the Lord directed me.'

11 Jesus was now brought before the Governor; and as he stood there the Governor asked him, 'Are you the king of the Jews?' 'The words are 12 yours',<sup>j</sup> said Jesus; and to the charges laid against him by the chief priests and elders he made no reply. Then Pilate said to him, 'Do you not hear all this evidence that is brought against 14 you?'; but he still refused to answer one word, to the Governor's great astonishment.

15 At the festival season it was the Governor's custom to release one prisoner chosen by the people. There was then in custody a man of some notoriety, called Jesus<sup>k</sup> Bar-Abbas.
17 When they were assembled Pilate said to them, 'Which would you like me to release to you—Jesus<sup>k</sup> Bar-Abbas, or 18 Jesus called Messiah?' For he knew that it was out of malice that they had brought Jesus before him.

19 While Pilate was sitting in court a message came to him from his wife: 'Have nothing to do with that innocent man; I was much troubled on his account in my dreams last night.'

20 Meanwhile the chief priests and elders had persuaded the crowd to ask for the release of Bar-Abbas and to have Jesus put to death. So when the Governor asked, 'Which of the two do you wish me to release to you?', they said, 'Bar-Abbas.' 'Then what am I to do with Jesus called Messiah?' asked Pilate; and with one voice they answered, 'Crucify him!' 'Why, what harm has he done?' Pilate asked; but they shouted all the louder, 'Crucify him!'

Pilate could see that nothing was being gained, and a riot was starting; so he took water and washed his hands in full view of the people, saying, 'My hands are clean of this man's blood; see to that yourselves.' And with one voice the people cried, 'His blood be on us, and on our children.' He then released Bar-Abbas to them; but he had Jesus flogged, and handed him over to be crucified.

PILATE'S SOLDIERS THEN TOOK JESUS into the Governor's headquarters, where they collected the whole company round him. They stripped him and dressed him in a scarlet mantle; and plaiting a crown of thorns they placed it on his head, with a cane in his right hand. Falling on their knees before him they jeered at him: 'Hail, King of the Jews!' They spat on him, and used the cane to beat him about the head. When they had finished their mockery, they took off the mantle and dressed him in his own clothes.

Then they led him away to be crucified. On their way out they met a man from Cyrene, Simon by name, and pressed him into service to carry his cross.

So they came to a place called Golgotha (which means 'Place of a skull') and there he was offered a draught of wine mixed with gall; but when he had tasted it he would not drink.

After fastening him to the cross they divided his clothes among them by casting lots, and then sat down there to keep watch. Over his head was placed the inscription giving the charge: 'This is Jesus the king of the Jews.'

<sup>i</sup> Or I took.

<sup>j</sup> Or it is as you say.

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses omit Jesus.

Lk.23.2 n. 15: The custom is known only from the Gospels. 16: Bar-Abbas: probably, "son of the father." The man was a revolutionary (Mk.15.7; Lk.23.25). 24: Deut.21.6-9.

27.32-66: The crucifixion (Mk.15.21-47; Lk.23.26-54; Jn.19.17-42). 32: Simon: see Mk.15.21 n.; contrast Jn.19.17. 34: Ps.69.21; see Lk.23.36 n. 35: Ps.22.18; see Lk.23.32 n.

- 38 Two bandits were crucified with him, they were filled with awe, and they said, one on his right and the other on his left. 'Truly this man was a son of God.'
- 39 The passers-by hurled abuse at him: A NUMBER OF WOMEN WERE ALSO 55
40 they wagged their heads and cried, present, watching from a distance; 'You would pull the temple down, they had followed Jesus from Galilee and build it in three days? and waited on him. Among them were 56
Come down from the cross and save Mary of Magdala, Mary the mother of yourself, if you are indeed the Son of James and Joseph, and the mother of 57
41 God.' So too the chief priests with the of Arimathaea, Joseph by name, and the lawyers and elders mocked at him: 'He was a man of means, and had himself saved others,' they said, 'but he cannot become a disciple of Jesus. He ap- 58
42 save himself. King of Israel, indeed! proached Pilate, and asked for the Let him come down now from the cross, and then we will believe him. 59
43 Did he trust in God? Let God rescue the body of Jesus; and Pilate gave orders him, if he wants him—for he said he that he should have it. Joseph took the 59
44 was God's Son.' Even the bandits who body, wrapped it in a clean linen were crucified with him taunted him in sheet, and laid it in his own unused 60
45 the same way. tomb, which he had cut out of the rock; he then rolled a large stone 61
46 From midday a darkness fell over against the entrance, and went away. the whole land, which lasted until Mary of Magdala was there, and the 61
47 three in the afternoon; and about three other Mary, sitting opposite the grave.
48 Jesus cried aloud, 'Eli, Eli, lema Next day, the morning after that 62
sabachthani?' which means, 'My God, Friday, the chief priests and the Pharisees came in a body to Pilate.
49 my God, why hast thou forsaken me?' 'Your Excellency,' they said, 'we recall 63
47 Some of the bystanders, on hearing how that impostor said while he was 63
48 this, said, 'He is calling Elijah.' One of still alive, "I am to be raised again after three days." So will you give 64
49 of them ran at once and fetched a sponge orders for the grave to be made secure until the third day? Otherwise 64
49 But the others said, 'Let us see if Elijah his disciples may come, steal the body, will come to save him.' and then tell the people that he has 65
50 Jesus again gave a loud cry, and been raised from the dead; and the 65
51 breathed his last. At that moment the final deception will be worse than the first.' 'You may have your guard,' said 65
52 curtain of the temple was torn in two Pilate; 'go and make it secure as best 66
52 from top to bottom. There was an you can.' So they went and made the 66
53 earthquake, the rocks split and the grave secure; they sealed the stone, and 66
53 graves opened, and many of God's left the guard in charge.
54 saints were raised from sleep; and THE SABBATH WAS OVER, AND IT WAS 28
54 coming out of their graves after his about daybreak on Sunday, when Mary 54 resurrection they entered the Holy City, / Or the Son of God.

38: Isa.53.12. 39: Ps.22.7. 40: 24.1-3 n. 43: Ps.22.8. 44: Compare Lk.23.39-43. 46: This is the first verse of Ps.22, the remembrance of which has influenced the crucifixion narrative at several points (e.g. vv. 35,43). 47: The anticipation of Elijah's return (see Mk.6.15 n.) lies behind this apparent misunderstanding of the cry. 48: Ps.69.21. 51: The rending of the curtain before the Holy of Holies may have signified to early Christians God's accessibility to all men at all times; see Exod.26.31-33; Lev.16.1-2. 54: Whatever a Roman soldier might mean by a son of God (perhaps, "divine hero"; see Mk.1.1 n.), the Gospel writer probably understood the words as a Christian confession (see Tfn. I). 59: Deut.21.22-23. 60: The tomb was a chamber cut into rock, with the entrance sealed by a wheel-like stone. 62-66: Only Mt. has this tradition, which seems intended to counteract claims like that in 28.13.

28.1-15: The empty tomb (Mk.16.1-8; Lk.24.1-11; Jn.20.1-18). 1: See Mk.16.1 n.;

of Magdala and the other Mary came 2 to look at the grave. Suddenly there was a violent earthquake; an angel of the Lord descended from heaven; he came to the stone and rolled it away, 3 and sat himself down on it. His face shone like lightning; his garments were 4 white as snow. At the sight of him the guards shook with fear and lay like the dead.

5 The angel then addressed the women:
 'You', he said, 'have nothing to fear. I know you are looking for Jesus who 6 was crucified. He is not here; he has been raised again, as he said he would be. Come and see the place where he 7 was laid, and then go quickly and tell his disciples: "He has been raised from the dead and is going on before you into Galilee; there you will see him." That is what I had to tell you.'

8 They hurried away from the tomb
 in awe and great joy, and ran to tell 9 the disciples. Suddenly Jesus was there in their path. He gave them his greeting, and they came up and clasped his feet, falling prostrate 10 before him. Then Jesus said to them,
 'Do not be afraid. Go and take word to my brothers that they are to leave for Galilee. They will see me there.'

The women had started on their way 11 when some of the guard went into the city and reported to the chief priests everything that had happened. After 12 meeting with the elders and conferring together, the chief priests offered the soldiers a substantial bribe and told 13 them to say, 'His disciples came by night and stole the body while we were asleep.' They added, 'If this should 14 reach the Governor's ears, we will put matters right with him and see that you do not suffer.' So they took the 15 money and did as they were told. This story became widely known, and is current in Jewish circles to this day.

The eleven disciples made their way 16 to Galilee, to the mountain where Jesus had told them to meet him. When 17 they saw him, they fell prostrate before him, though some were doubtful.
 Jesus then came up and spoke to them. 18
 He said: 'Full authority in heaven and on earth has been committed to me.
 Go forth therefore and make all 19
 nations my disciples; baptize men everywhere in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit, and 20 teach them to observe all that I have commanded you. And be assured, I am with you always, to the end of time.'

---

Lk.23.55-56 n. 2: Stone: 27.60 n. 4: Guards: see 27.62-66. 7-10: 26.32. 8: Contrast Mk.16.8. 11-15: 27.62-66; 28.4. 15: This day: i.e. in Mt.'s time the charge of the stolen body was used to counter the proclamation of Jesus' resurrection.

28.16-20: Appearance and commissioning in Galilee. 16: Mountain: see 5.1 n. 17: Fell prostrate: worshiped. 19: The command to go to all nations directs the Church into the Gentile mission, beyond the limits of 10.5-6. 20: All that I have commanded: compare chs. 5-7 (the Sermon on the Mount). I am with you: compare 1.23; 18.20.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MARK

Probably the oldest of the Gospels, Mark is a collection of traditions about Jesus brought together around 70 A.D. The import of the term "collection" should not mislead one to suppose that the material is presented haphazardly. On the contrary, the author depicts Jesus' early ministry as centered in Galilee, where he proclaims the kingdom of God and performs wonders; at its climax comes Peter's confession of faith and the first announcement of the passion (8.27-33). From that crucial point, the story moves relentlessly toward the cross and resurrection (chs. 14-16). Within this general framework, other "turning points" may also be found: e.g. 1.14; 3.6; 10.1.

Moreover, certain motifs which are of special concern to the evangelist are repeated. Perhaps the most important of these, at least in the Galilean section, is the kingdom's victory over demonic forces through Jesus' healing activity. Other Markan themes include the "secret of the Messiahship" (e.g. 1.34 n.) and the obtuseness even of the disciples (e.g. 8.17; 9.32).

The book's purpose is succinctly expressed: to proclaim the good news of Jesus Christ, the Son of God (1.1; 15.39).

---

The coming of Christ

1 HERE BEGINS THE GOSPEL OF JESUS Christ the Son of God.<sup>a</sup>

2 In the prophet Isaiah it stands written: 'Here is my herald whom I send on ahead of you, and he 3 will prepare your way. A voice crying aloud in the wilderness, "Prepare a way for the Lord; clear a straight path 4 for him.'" And so it was that John the Baptist appeared in the wilderness proclaiming a baptism in token of repentance, for the forgiveness of sins;
5 and they flocked to him from the whole Judaeon country-side and the city of Jerusalem, and were baptized
by him in the River Jordan, confessing their sins.

6 John was dressed in a rough coat of camel's hair, with a leather belt round

his waist, and he fed on locusts and wild honey. His proclamation ran: 7
'After me comes one who is mightier than I. I am not fit to unfasten his shoes. I have baptized you with water; 8 he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit.'

It happened at this time that Jesus 9 came from Nazareth in Galilee and was baptized in the Jordan by John. At the 10 moment when he came up out of the water, he saw the heavens torn open and the Spirit, like a dove, descending upon him. And a voice spoke from 11 heaven: 'Thou art my Son, my Beloved;<sup>b</sup> on thee my favour rests.'

Thereupon the Spirit sent him away 12
into the wilderness, and there he 13 remained for forty days tempted by

---

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses omit the Son of God.

<sup>b</sup> Or Thou art my only Son.

---

1.1-8: The work of the Baptist (Mt.3.1-12; Lk.3.1-20; Jn.1.6,15,19-28). 1: By gospel (i.e. the good news) the author means not the book, but the proclamation of Jesus Christ; it begins with the ministry of John the Baptist (compare Acts 1.22). Behind the use of the Son of God title in the Markan community are influences as diverse as the Jewish expectation of a royal Messiah (see Mt.1.1 n.) and Hellenistic ideas about wonder-working "divine heroes" and persons of divine nature. 2: Mal.3.1. 3: Isa.40.3. 4: Wilderness: Mt.3.1 n. Baptism: see Mt.3.7 n. Repentance: see Mt.3.2 n. 6: Elijah is clothed similarly in 2 Kgs.1.8. 7: The Baptist's role in the Gospel is as the forerunner of Christ; hence, he is sometimes identified with Elijah (see 6.15 n.; 9.11-12; Mt.11.14; 17.10-13). 8: Holy Spirit: see Lk.3.16 n.

1.9-11: The baptism of Jesus (Mt.3.13-17; Lk.3.21-22; Jn.1.32-34). In early Christian tradition, the striking account of Jesus' baptism by John serves at least three significant purposes: it narrates his becoming the Son (see Mt.3.16 n.); it explains the origin of the Church's initiatory rite; and it locates in the history of his people the beginning of Jesus' activity. 10-11: Spirit, dove: see Mt.3.16 n. 11: Ps.2.7 (Son) and Isa.42.1 (Beloved, meaning "chosen one") are combined.

1.12-13: The temptation (Mt.4.1-11; Lk.4.1-13). This brief account introduces a major concern of Mk.—the conflict of the Spirit-led Son with Satan, the evil one (3.22-30). 13: Forty Satan. He was among the wild beasts; and the angels waited on him.

In Galilee: success and opposition

14 AFTER JOHN HAD BEEN ARRESTED, JESUS came into Galilee proclaiming the 15 Gospel of God: 'The time has come; the kingdom of God is upon you; repent, and believe the Gospel.'
16 Jesus was walking by the Sea of Galilee when he saw Simon and his brother Andrew on the lake at work with a casting-net; for they were 17 fishermen. Jesus said to them, 'Come with me, and I will make you fishers 18 of men.' And at once they left their nets and followed him.
19 When he had gone a little further he saw James son of Zebedee and his brother John, who were in the boat
20 overhauling their nets. He called them; and, leaving their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men, they went off to follow him.
21 They came to Capernaum, and on the Sabbath he went to synagogue and 22 began to teach. The people were astounded at his teaching, for, unlike the doctors of the law, he taught with 23 a note of authority. Now there was a man in the synagogue possessed by an 24 unclean spirit. He shrieked: 'What do you want with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you<sup>c</sup> come to destroy us? I know who you are—the Holy One of God.'
25 Jesus rebuked him: 'Be silent', he said, 'and come out of him.' And the unclean 26 spirit threw the man into convulsions and with a loud cry left him. They were 27 all dumbfounded and began to ask one another, 'What is this? A new kind of teaching! He speaks with authority.

When he gives orders, even the unclean spirits submit.' The news spread rapidly, and he was soon spoken of all over the district of Galilee.

On leaving the synagogue they went 29 straight to the house of Simon and Andrew; and James and John went with them. Simon's mother-in-law was 30 ill in bed with fever. They told him about her at once. He came forward, 31 took her by the hand, and helped her to her feet. The fever left her and she waited upon them.

That evening after sunset they 32 brought to him all who were ill or possessed by devils; and the whole 33 town was there, gathered at the door. He healed many who suffered from 34 various diseases, and drove out many devils. He would not let the devils speak, because they knew who he was.

Very early next morning he got up 35 and went out. He went away to a lonely spot and remained there in prayer. But 36 Simon and his companions searched him out, found him, and said, 'They 37 are all looking for you.' He answered, 'Let us move on to the country towns 38 in the neighbourhood; I have to proclaim my message there also; that is 39 what I came out to do.' So all through Galilee he went, preaching in the 40 synagogues and casting out the devils.

Once he was approached by a leper,
40 who knelt before him begging his help. 'If only you will,' said the man, 'you 41 can cleanse me.' In warm indignation Jesus stretched out his hand,<sup>d</sup> touched 42 him, and said, 'Indeed I will; be clean again.' The leprosy left him im-

<sup>c</sup> Or You have.

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses read Jesus was sorry for him and stretched out his hand; one witness has simply He stretched out his hand.

days: see Mt.4.2 n. Satan: see Mt.4.1 n. Whether Mk. meant the beasts to represent the dangers of the wilderness or the restoration of creation's harmony is not clear.

1.14-20: The beginning of Jesus' ministry (Mt.4.12-22; Lk.4.14-15; 5.1-11; Jn.1.35-51). 15: The time is the long-anticipated dawning of the kingdom of God. The kingdom of God signifies God's final victory over evil, when his rule is fully established, as well as the sphere of salvation thus inaugurated. Repent: change your ways. 16-20: The first disciples are called without any indication of prior acquaintance with Jesus. 16: Simon: Peter (compare Mt.4.18). 18: Followed: became his disciples.

1.21-38: Jesus in Capernaum (Mt.8.14-17; Lk.4.31-43). 23: Unclean spirit: a demon, believed to have power to cause illness; see v. 32. Such demons are allied with Satan (see 3.22-23) in opposition to God's will for men. 24: The demon has knowledge not possessed by men. 24: Sunset: see Lk.4.40 n. 34: In Mk., Jesus repeatedly imposes silence about his identity, not only on demons (e.g. 3.12), but also on friends (e.g. 8.30).

1.40-45: A leper healed (Mt.8.1-4; Lk.5.12-16). 40: Leper... cleanse me: see Mt.8.2 n.

43 mediately, and he was clean. Then he dismissed him with this stern warning:
 44 'Be sure you say nothing to anybody. Go and show yourself to the priest, and make the offering laid down by Moses for your cleansing; that will certify the cure.' But the man went out and made the whole story public; he spread it far and wide, until Jesus could no longer show himself in any town, but stayed outside in the open country. Even so, people kept coming to him from all quarters.

2 When after some days he returned to Capernaum, the news went round that he was at home; and such a crowd collected that the space in front of the door was not big enough to hold them. And while he was proclaiming the message to them, a man was brought who was paralysed. Four men were carrying him, but because of the crowd they could not get him near. So they opened up the roof over the place where Jesus was, and when they had broken through they lowered the stretcher on which the paralysed man was lying. When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralysed man, 'My son, your sins are forgiven.'

6 Now there were some lawyers sitting there and they thought to themselves, 'Why does the fellow talk like that? This is blasphemy! Who but God alone can forgive sins?' Jesus knew in his own mind that this was what they were thinking, and said to them: 'Why do you harbour thoughts like these? Is it easier to say to this paralysed man, "Your sins are forgiven", or to say, "Stand up, take your bed, and walk"?'
 10 But to convince you that the Son of

Man has the right on earth to forgive sins'—he turned to the paralysed man—'I say to you, stand up, take your bed, and go home.' And he got up, and at once took his stretcher and went out in full view of them all, so that they were astounded and praised God. 'Never before', they said, 'have we seen the like.'

Once more he went away to the lake-side. All the crowd came to him, and he taught them there. As he went along, he saw Levi son of Alphaeus at his seat in the custom-house, and said to him, 'Follow me'; and Levi rose and followed him.

When Jesus was at table in his house, many bad characters—tax-gatherers and others—were seated with him and his disciples; for there were many who followed him. Some doctors of the law who were Pharisees noticed him eating in this bad company, and said to his disciples, 'He eats with tax-gatherers and sinners!' Jesus heard it and said to them, 'It is not the healthy that need a doctor, but the sick; I did not come to invite virtuous people, but sinners.'

Once, when John's disciples and the Pharisees were keeping a fast, some people came to him and said, 'Why is it that John's disciples and the disciples of the Pharisees are fasting, but yours are not?' Jesus said to them, 'Can you expect the bridegroom's friends to fast while the bridegroom is with them? As long as they have the bridegroom with them, there can be no fasting. But the time will come when the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and on that day they will fast.'

'No one sews a patch of unshrunk

43: See v. 34 n. 44: See Lev.14.1–32. 45: Mt. has no parallel to this verse, while Lk. recasts it, omitting the suggestion that Jesus could no longer show himself in any town.

2.1–3.6: Healing and conflict.

2.1–12: A paralytic (Mt.9.1–8; Lk.5.17–26). 4: A roof of mud and branches is meant (contrast Lk.5.19). 5: The account assumes a connection between illness and sin; compare Jn.9.2. Faith: see Mt.8.13 n. 6: Lawyers: see Mt.2.4 n. 10: Son of Man in some NT contexts may be only the equivalent of a Semitic phrase meaning "man." In most places, however, Son of Man is a title for an exalted figure who will serve as judge at the end of history (see Dan.7.13–14). The expression is found almost exclusively in sayings attributed to Jesus. In some occurrences, the Son of Man is clearly identified with Jesus, even in his earthly humility and suffering.

2.13–17: Jesus, friend of outcasts (Mt.9.9–13; Lk.5.27–32). 15: Eating with tax-gatherers (see Lk.3.12 n.) and other outcasts was a practice of Jesus' of which his opponents strongly disapproved.

2.18–22: Fasting (Mt.9.14–17; Lk.5.33–39). 18: John's disciples developed into a continuing religious movement; see Acts 19.1–6. 21–22: Such a radical distinction between the new and the old shows the seriousness of the reported conflict.

cloth on to an old coat; if he does, the patch tears away from it, the new from the old, and leaves a bigger hole. No one puts new wine into old wine-skins; if he does, the wine will burst the skins, and then wine and skins are both lost. Fresh skins for new wine!

23 One Sabbath he was going through the cornfields; and his disciples, as they went, began to pluck ears of corn. 24 The Pharisees said to him, 'Look, why are they doing what is forbidden on the Sabbath?' He answered, 'Have you never read what David did when he and his men were hungry and had nothing to eat? He went into the House of God, in the time of Abiathar the High Priest, and ate the sacred bread, though no one but a priest is allowed to eat it, and even gave it to his men.'

27 He also said to them, 'The Sabbath was made for the sake of man and not man for the Sabbath: therefore the Son of Man is sovereign even over the Sabbath.'

3 On another occasion when he went to synagogue, there was a man in the congregation who had a withered arm; 2 and they were watching to see whether Jesus would cure him on the Sabbath, so that they could bring a charge 3 against him. He said to the man with the withered arm, 'Come and stand out here.' Then he turned to them: 'Is it permitted to do good or to do evil on the Sabbath, to save life or to kill?' 5 They had nothing to say; and, looking round at them with anger and sorrow at their obstinate stupidity, he said to the man, 'Stretch out your arm.' He stretched it out and his arm was 6 restored. But the Pharisees, on leaving the synagogue, began plotting against him with the partisans of Herod to see how they could make away with him.

JESUS WENT AWAY TO THE LAKE-SIDE 7 with his disciples. Great numbers from Galilee, Judaea and Jerusalem, Idumaea and Transjordan, and the neighbourhood of Tyre and Sidon, heard what he was doing and came to see him. So he told his disciples to have 9 a boat ready for him, to save him from being crushed by the crowd. For he 10 cured so many that sick people of all kinds came crowding in upon him to touch him. The unclean spirits 11 too, when they saw him, would fall at his feet and cry aloud, 'You are the Son of God'; but he insisted that they 12 should not make him known.

He then went up into the hill-country 13 and called the men he wanted; and they went and joined him. He appointed 14 twelve as his companions, whom he would send out to proclaim the Gospel, with a commission to drive 15 out devils. So he appointed the Twelve: 16 to Simon he gave the name Peter; then 17 came the sons of Zebedee, James and his brother John, to whom he gave the name Boanerges, Sons of Thunder; then Andrew and Philip and Bartholomew and Matthew and Thomas and James the son of Alphaeus and Thad-daeus and Simon, a member of the Zealot party, and Judas Iscariot, the 19 man who betrayed him.

He entered a house; and once more 20 such a crowd collected round them that they had no chance to eat. When his 21 family heard of this, they set out to take charge of him; for people were saying that he was out of his mind.<sup>e</sup>

The doctors of the law, too, who had 22 come down from Jerusalem, said, 'He is possessed by Beelzebul', and, 'He drives out devils by the prince of devils.' So he called them to come forward, 23

<sup>e</sup> Or of him. 'He is out of his mind', they said.

2.23-3.6: Sabbath controversy (Mt.12.1-14; Lk.6.1-11). Strict Sabbath observance required refraining from all work and was of prime importance for first-century Jewish piety. 23: Deut.23.25. 24: Exod.20.10; Deut.5.14. 26: Abiathar is a slip of the memory; Abiathar's father, Ahimelech, was the priest in this instance (1 Sam.21.1-6). On the rule involved, see Lev.24.7-9. 27: Deut.5.12-14. 28: Son of Man: see 2.10 n. 3.1-6: While healing in general was prohibited on the Sabbath, Pharisaic interpretation permitted treatment when a life was at stake.

3.7-12: Summary of activity and Jesus' rapport with the common people (Mt.4.24-25; 12.15-16; Lk.6.17-19).

3.13-19: The Twelve appointed (Mt.10.1-4; Lk.6.12-16). 18: The Zealot party was a group of violent revolutionaries.

3.20-30: Suspicion and accusation (Mt.12.22-37; Lk.11.14-23; 12.10). 22: Beelzebul: Satan.

and spoke to them in parables: 'How 24 can Satan drive out Satan? If a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom 25 cannot stand; if a household is divided against itself, that house will never 26 stand; and if Satan is in rebellion against himself, he is divided and cannot stand; and that is the end of him.

27 'On the other hand, no one can break into a strong man's house and make off with his goods unless he has first tied the strong man up; then he can ransack the house.

28 'I tell you this: no sin, no slander, is 29 beyond forgiveness for men; but whoever slanders the Holy Spirit can never be forgiven; he is guilty of eternal sin.' 30 He said this because they had declared that he was possessed by an unclean
 spirit.

31 Then his mother and his brothers arrived, and remaining outside sent in a message asking him to come out to 32 them. A crowd was sitting round and word was brought to him: 'Your mother and your brothers are outside 33 asking for you.' He replied, 'Who is my 34 mother? Who are my brothers?' And looking round at those who were sitting in the circle about him he said,
 'Here are my mother and my brothers.
 35 Whoever does the will of God is my brother, my sister, my mother.'

4 ON ANOTHER OCCASION HE BEGAN TO teach by the lake-side. The crowd that gathered round him was so large that he had to get into a boat on the lake,
 and there he sat, with the whole crowd
 on the beach right down to the water's 2 edge. And he taught them many things by parables.

As he taught he said:

'Listen! A sower went out to sow. 3
 And it happened that as he sowed, some 4 seed fell along the footpath; and the 5 birds came and ate it up. Some seed 5 fell on rocky ground, where it had little soil, and it sprouted quickly because it had no depth of earth; but when the 6
 sun rose the young corn was scorched,
 and as it had no root it withered away.
 Some seed fell among thistles; and the 7
 thistles shot up and choked the corn, and it yielded no crop. And some of the 8 seed fell into good soil, where it came up and grew, and bore fruit; and the yield was thirtyfold, sixtyfold, even a hundredfold.' He added, 'If you have 9 ears to hear, then hear.'

When he was alone, the Twelve and 10
 others who were round him questioned him about the parables. He replied, 11
 'To you the secret of the kingdom of God has been given; but to those who are outside everything comes by way of parables, so that (as Scripture says) 12
 they may look and look, but see nothing; they may hear and hear, but understand nothing; otherwise they might turn to God and be forgiven.'

So he said, 'You do not understand 13 this parable? How then are you to understand any parable? The sower 14 sows the word. Those along the foot- 15 path are people in whom the word is sown, but no sooner have they heard it than Satan comes and carries off the word which has been sown in them.
 It is the same with those who receive 16
 the seed on rocky ground; as soon as they hear the word, they accept it with joy, but it strikes no root in them; they 17 have no staying-power; then, when

29: A difficult saying (compare Mt.12.31-32 n.; Lk.12.10), which appears in several forms in early Christian literature, is interpreted by Mk. to prohibit slander against the power at work in Jesus (v. 30).

3.31-35: Jesus' true family (Mt.12.46-50; Lk.8.19-21). 31: Arrived: see v. 21.

4.1-34: The use of parables (Mt. ch. 13; Lk.8.4-18; 13.18-21). 2: A parable is a realistic story or true-to-experience observation which points beyond the everyday situation it describes. The parable is to be contrasted with the allegory, which is a puzzle whose meaning is discovered by unlocking the symbolic significance of each detail in the story. The parable's message is found by letting the metaphor stimulate the imagination to see things (God's kingdom, human relations, life) in a new way. 3-8: The procedure in farming was to sow the seed first and then to plow. Inevitably, some seed would fall on ground with an abundance of subsurface rock. 8: The yield exceeds normal expectations. 11: The secret probably is that God's kingdom is manifesting itself. Here, parables appears to mean "puzzles" and may mistranslate a Semitic word; if so, the translation had fateful consequences (vv. 13-20 n.). 12: See Isa.6.9-10; in Mk. (but see Mt.13.13 n.), the parables are a cause of that hardening of men's hearts which occurs within God's purpose (compare Jn.12.40). 13-20: In line with v. 11 (see n.), the parable is there is trouble or persecution on account of the word, they fall away at once. Others again receive the seed among thistles; they hear the word, but worldly cares and the false glamour of wealth and all kinds of evil desire come in and choke the word, and it proves barren. And there are those who receive the seed in good soil; they hear the word and welcome it; and they bear fruit thirtyfold, sixtyfold, or a hundred-fold.'

21 He said to them, 'Do you bring in the lamp to put it under the meal-tub, or under the bed? Surely it is brought to be set on the lamp-stand. For nothing is hidden unless it is to be disclosed, and nothing put under cover unless it is to come into the open. If you have ears to hear, then hear.'

24 He also said, 'Take note of what you hear; the measure you give is the measure you will receive, with something more besides. For the man who has will be given more, and the man who has not will forfeit even what he has.'

26 He said, 'The kingdom of God is like this. A man scatters seed on the land; he goes to bed at night and gets up in the morning, and the seed sprouts and grows—how, he does not know. The ground produces a crop by itself, first the blade, then the ear, then full-grown corn in the ear; but as soon as the crop is ripe, he plies the sickle, because harvest-time has come.'

30 He said also, 'How shall we picture the kingdom of God, or by what parable shall we describe it? It is like the mustard-seed, which is smaller than any seed in the ground at its sowing. But once sown, it springs up and grows taller than any other plant, and forms branches so large that the birds can settle in its shade.'

With many such parables he would give them his message, so far as they were able to receive it. He never spoke to them except in parables; but privately to his disciples he explained everything.

Miracles of Christ

THAT DAY, IN THE EVENING, HE SAID TO them, 'Let us cross over to the other side of the lake.' So they left the crowd and took him with them in the boat where he had been sitting; and there were other boats accompanying him. A heavy squall came on and the waves broke over the boat until it was all but swamped. Now he was in the stern asleep on a cushion; they roused him and said, 'Master, we are sinking! Do you not care?' He awoke, rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, 'Hush! Be still!' The wind dropped and there was a dead calm. He said to them, 'Why are you such cowards? Have you no faith even now?' They were awestruck and said to one another, 'Who can this be? Even the wind and the sea obey him.'

So they came to the other side of the lake, into the country of the Gerasenes. As he stepped ashore, a man possessed by an unclean spirit came up to him from among the tombs where he had his dwelling. He could no longer be controlled; even chains were useless; he had often been fettered and chained up, but he had snapped his chains and broken the fetters. No one was strong enough to master him. And so, unceasingly, night and day, he would cry aloud among the tombs and on the hill-sides and cut himself with stones. When he saw Jesus in the distance, he ran and flung himself down before him, interpreted as an allegory. 21: Mt.5.15; Lk.8.16. 22: Mt.10.26; Lk.8.17; 12.2. 24-25: Compare Mt.7.2; 13.12; Lk.6.38; 8.18; the use of these sayings at this place (vv. 10-12,33-34) underlines the privileged knowledge of the chosen ones, the secret truth which they will one day make public (v. 22). 26-32: The kingdom is all but invisible, but its consummation is certain. 30: The mustard seed (Mt.13.31-32; Lk.13.18-19) is proverbially, although not literally, the smallest seed. 32: Compare Dan.4.12. 34: See vv. 24-25 n.

4.35-41: Rebuke of a storm (Mt.8.23-27; Lk.8.22-25).

5.1-20: The Gerasene demoniac (Mt.8.28-34; Lk.8.26-39). 1: Country of the Gerasenes would mean Gerasa (Jerash), a city of the Decapolis (Mt.4.25 n.). Mt.8.28 (Gadarene), Lk.8.26 (Gergesene), and manuscripts of all three synoptics show confusion about the location. A place on the southeast side of the Sea of Galilee is apparently meant. 2: See 1.23. 6: See Mt.8.28-29 n.

7 shouting loudly, 'What do you want with me, Jesus, son of the Most High God? In God's name do not torment me.' (For Jesus was already saying to him, 'Out unclean spirit, come out of this man!') Jesus asked him, 'What is your name?' 'My name is Legion,' he said, 'there are so many of us.' And he begged hard that Jesus would not send them out of the country.

11 Now there happened to be a large herd of pigs feeding on the hill-side, and the spirits begged him, 'Send us among the pigs and let us go into them.' He gave them leave; and the unclean spirits came out and went into the pigs; and the herd, of about two thousand, rushed over the edge into the lake and were drowned.

14 The men in charge of them took to their heels and carried the news to the town and country-side; and the people came out to see what had happened.

15 They came to Jesus and saw the madman who had been possessed by the legion of devils, sitting there clothed and in his right mind; and they were afraid. The spectators told them how the madman had been cured and what had happened to the pigs. Then they begged Jesus to leave the district.

18 As he was stepping into the boat, the man who had been possessed begged to go with him. Jesus would not allow it, but said to him, 'Go home to your own folk and tell them what the Lord in his mercy has done for you.' The man went off and spread the news in the Ten Towns<sup>f</sup> of all that Jesus had done for him; and they were all amazed.

21 As soon as Jesus had returned by boat to the other shore, a great crowd once more gathered round him. While he was by the lake-side, the president of one of the synagogues came up, Jairus by name, and, when he saw him, threw himself down at his feet and pleaded with him. 'My little daughter', he said, 'is at death's door. I beg you to come and lay your hands on her to cure her and save her life.'

So Jesus went with him, accompanied by a great crowd which pressed upon him.

Among them was a woman who had suffered from haemorrhages for twelve years; and in spite of long treatment by many doctors, on which she had spent all she had, there had been no improvement; on the contrary, she had grown worse. She had heard what people were saying about Jesus, so she came up from behind in the crowd and touched his cloak; for she said to herself, 'If I touch even his clothes, I shall be cured.' And there and then the source of her haemorrhages dried up and she knew in herself that she was cured of her trouble. At the same time Jesus, aware that power had gone out of him, turned round in the crowd and asked, 'Who touched my clothes?' His disciples said to him, 'You see the crowd pressing upon you and yet you ask, "Who touched me?"' Meanwhile he was looking round to see who had done it. And the woman, trembling with fear when she grasped what had happened to her, came and fell at his feet and told him the whole truth. He said to her, 'My daughter, your faith has cured you. Go in peace, free for ever from this trouble.'

While he was still speaking, a message came from the president's house, 'Your daughter is dead; why trouble the Rabbi further?' But Jesus, overhearing the message as it was delivered, said to the president of the synagogue, 'Do not be afraid; only have faith.' After this he allowed no one to accompany him except Peter and James and James's brother John. They came to the president's house, where he found a great commotion, with loud crying and wailing. So he went in and said to them, 'Why this crying and commotion? The child is not dead: she is asleep'; and they only laughed at him. But after turning all the others out, he took the child's father

<sup>f</sup> Greek Decapolis.

9: Power over a person was believed to be gained by knowing his name. Legion: a Roman army unit of about five thousand men. 11: Pigs: see Mt.8.30 n. 20: Ten Towns: see Mt.4.25 n.

5.21-43: Jairus' daughter and a woman with a chronic ailment (Mt.9.18-26; Lk.8.40-56). Both narratives display the elements common to ancient miracle stories: description, cure, proof of cure (compare 5.1-16). 34: On cured, see Lk.7.50 n. 38: The customary noisy mourning practices.

and mother and his own companions and went in where the child was 41 lying. Then, taking hold of her hand, he said to her, 'Talitha cum', which 42 means, 'Get up, my child.' Immediately the girl got up and walked about—she was twelve years old. At that they were 43 beside themselves with amazement. He gave them strict orders to let no one hear about it, and told them to give her something to eat.
 6 He left that place and went to his home town accompanied by his disci-
 2 ples. When the Sabbath came he began to teach in the synagogue; and the large congregation who heard him were amazed and said, 'Where does he get it from?', and, 'What wisdom is this 3 that has been given him?', and, 'How does he work such miracles? Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary,<sup>g</sup> the brother of James and Joseph and Judas and Simon? And are not his sisters here with us?' So they fell foul of him.
 4 Jesus said to them, 'A prophet will always be held in honour except in his home town, and among his kinsmen
 5 and family.' He could work no miracle there, except that he put his hands on 6 a few sick people and healed them; and he was taken aback by their want of faith.

ON ONE OF HIS TEACHING JOURNEYS
 7 round the villages he summoned the Twelve and sent them out in pairs on a mission. He gave them authority over 8 unclean spirits, and instructed them to take nothing for the journey beyond a stick: no bread, no pack, no money in 9 their belts. They might wear sandals, 10 but not a second coat. 'When you are admitted to a house', he added, 'stay 11 there until you leave those parts. At any place where they will not receive
 you or listen to you, shake the dust off your feet as you leave, as a warning to 12 them.' So they set out and called 13 publicly for repentance. They drove out many devils, and many sick people

 they anointed with oil and cured.

Now King Herod heard of it, for the 14 fame of Jesus had spread; and people were saying,<sup>h</sup> 'John the Baptist has been raised to life, and that is why these miraculous powers are at work in him.'
 Others said, 'It is Elijah.' Others again, 15 'He is a prophet like one of the old prophets.' But Herod, when he heard 16 of it, said, 'This is John, whom I beheaded, raised from the dead.'

For this same Herod had sent and 17 arrested John and put him in prison on account of his brother Philip's wife, Herodias, whom he had married. John had told Herod, 'You have no right to your brother's wife.' Thus Herodias 18 nursed a grudge against him and would willingly have killed him, but she could not; for Herod went in awe 20 of John, knowing him to be a good and holy man; so he kept him in custody.
 He liked to listen to him, although the listening left him greatly perplexed.

Herodias found her opportunity 21 when Herod on his birthday gave a banquet to his chief officials and commanders and the leading men of Galilee. Her daughter came in<sup>i</sup> and 22 danced, and so delighted Herod and his guests that the king said to the girl,
 'Ask what you like and I will give it you.' And he swore an oath to her:
 23 'Whatever you ask I will give you, up to half my kingdom.' She went out and 24 said to her mother, 'What shall I ask for?' She replied, 'The head of John the Baptist.' The girl hastened back at once 25 to the king with her request: 'I want you to give me here and now, on a dish,
 the head of John the Baptist.' The king 26 was greatly distressed, but out of regard for his oath and for his guests
 he could not bring himself to refuse her.

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses read Is not this the son of the carpenter and Mary ...
<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses read and he said ...
<sup>i</sup> Or A festive occasion came when Herod on his birthday gave ... of Galilee. The daughter of Herodias came in ...

41: Talitha cum is Aram.; the command is preserved in transliteration, perhaps in the belief that the strange-sounding phrase has special power.

6.1-6: Jesus in Nazareth (Mt.13.53b-58; compare Lk.4.16-30). 1: Home town: Nazareth. 3: Fell foul: were offended.

6.7-13: Mission of the Twelve (Mt.9.35; 10.1,9-11,14; Lk.9.1-6). 7: See Mt.10.8 n. 6.14-29: Herod and John (Mt.14.1-12; Lk.3.19-20; 9.7-9). 14: The Herod meant is Antipas (see Lk.3.1 n.); he was actually a client prince, not a king. 15: Elijah was expected to return to introduce the age of salvation (Mal.4.5-6; Eccclus.48.10).

27 So the king sent a soldier of the guard with orders to bring John's head. The soldier went off and beheaded him in the prison, brought the head on a dish, and gave it to the girl; and she gave it to her mother.

29 When John's disciples heard the news, they came and took his body away and laid it in a tomb.

30 The apostles now rejoined Jesus and reported to him all that they had done and taught. He said to them, 'Come with me, by yourselves, to some lonely place where you can rest quietly.' (For they had no leisure even to eat, so many were coming and going.) Accordingly, they set off privately by boat for a lonely place. But many saw them leave and recognized them, and came round by land, hurrying from all the towns towards the place, and arrived there first.

34 When he came ashore, he saw a great crowd; and his heart went out to them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd; and he had much to teach them. As the day wore on, his disciples came up to him and said, 'This is a lonely place and it is getting very late; send the people off to the farms and villages round about, to buy themselves something to eat.' 'Give them something to eat yourselves,' he answered. They replied, 'Are we to go and spend twenty pounds<sup>j</sup> on bread to give them a meal?' 'How many loaves have you?' he asked; 'go and see.' They found out and told him, 'Five, and two fishes also.' He ordered them to make the people sit down in groups on the green grass, and they sat down in rows, a hundred rows of fifty each. Then, taking the five loaves and the two fishes, he looked up to heaven, said the blessing, broke the loaves, and gave them to the disciples to distribute. He also divided the two fishes among them. 42 They all ate to their hearts' content; 43 and twelve great basketfuls of scraps were picked up, with what was left of the fish. Those who ate the loaves 44 numbered five thousand men.

As soon as it was over he made his 45 disciples embark and cross to Bethsaida ahead of him, while he himself sent the people away. After taking leave of 46 them, he went up the hill-side to pray. It grew late and the boat was already 47 well out on the water, while he was alone on the land. Somewhere between 48 three and six in the morning, seeing them labouring at the oars against a head-wind, he came towards them, walking on the lake. He was going to pass them by; but when they saw him 49 walking on the lake, they thought it was a ghost and cried out; for they all saw him and were terrified. But at once he spoke to them: 'Take heart! It is I; do not be afraid.' Then he climbed into the boat beside them, and the wind 50 dropped. At this they were completely dumbfounded, for they had not understood the incident of the loaves; their 52 minds were closed.

So they finished the crossing and 53 came to land at Gennesaret, where they made fast. When they came ashore, he was immediately recognized; and the 54 people scoured that whole country-side and brought the sick on stretchers to any place where he was reported to be. Wherever he went, to farmsteads, 56 villages, or towns, they laid out the sick in the market-places and begged him to let them simply touch the edge of his cloak; and all who touched him were cured.

Growing tension

A GROUP OF PHARISEES, WITH SOME 7 doctors of the law who had come from Jerusalem, met him and noticed that 2 some of his disciples were eating their food with 'defiled' hands—in other words, without washing them. (For the 3

j Literally 200 denarii.

6.30–44: Feeding of five thousand (Mt.14.13–21; Lk.9.10–17; Jn.6.1–13). Mt.5.32–39 and Mk.8.1–10 both have a second account of the feeding of a multitude (followed by a sea crossing); some believe the two accounts are variant forms of the same report. 30: Apostles: see Mt.10.2 n. 37: Twenty pounds (Tfn. j, 200 denarii): one denarius was about a day's wage. 41: See 8.6 n.

6.45–56: Walking on the sea (Mt.14.22–36; Jn.6.15–21). 52: The obtuseness of the disciples here contrasts sharply with the ending of the episode in Mt.14.33 (see n.); in 8.14–21 the obtuseness theme is expanded.

7.1–23: The ancient traditions (Mt.15.1–20). 3: Washing the hands was an act of ritual

Pharisees and the Jews in general never eat without washing the hands,<sup>k</sup> in obedience to an old-established tradition; and on coming from the marketplace they never eat without first washing. And there are many other points on which they have a traditional rule to maintain, for example, washing of cups and jugs and copper bowls.) Accordingly, these Pharisees and the lawyers asked him, 'Why do your disciples not conform to the ancient tradition, but eat their food with defiled hands?' He answered, 'Isaiah was right when he prophesied about you hypocrites in these words: "This people pays me lip-service, but their heart is far from me: their worship of me is in vain, for they teach as doctrines the commandments of men." You neglect the commandment of God, in order to maintain the tradition of men.'

He also said to them, 'How well you set aside the commandment of God in order to maintain your tradition! Moses said, "Honour your father and your mother", and, "The man who curses his father or mother must suffer death." But you hold that if a man says to his father or mother, "Anything of mine which might have been used for your benefit is Corban"' (meaning, set apart for God), 'he is no longer permitted to do anything for his father or mother. Thus by your own tradition, handed down among you, you make God's word null and void. And many other things that you do are just like that.'

On another occasion he called the people and said to them, 'Listen to me, all of you, and understand this: nothing that goes into a man from outside can defile him; no, it is the things that come out of him that defile a man.'

When he had left the people and gone indoors, his disciples questioned him about the parable. He said to them, 'Are you as dull as the rest? Do you not see that nothing that goes from outside into a man can defile him, because it does not enter into his heart but into his stomach, and so passes out into the drain?' Thus he declared all foods clean. He went on, 'It is what comes out of a man that defiles him. For from inside, out of a man's heart, come evil thoughts, acts of fornication, of theft, murder, adultery, ruthless greed, and malice; fraud, indecency, envy, slander, arrogance, and folly; these evil things all come from inside, and they defile the man.'

Then he left that place and went away into the territory of Tyre. He found a house to stay in, and he would have liked to remain unrecognized, but this was impossible. Almost at once a woman whose young daughter was possessed by an unclean spirit heard of him, came in, and fell at his feet. (She was a Gentile, a Phoenician of Syria by nationality.) She begged him to drive the spirit out of her daughter. He said to her, 'Let the children be satisfied first; it is not fair to take the children's bread and throw it to the dogs.' 'Sir,' she answered, 'even the dogs under the table eat the children's scraps.' He said to her, 'For saying that, you may go home content; the unclean spirit has gone out of your daughter.' And when she returned home, she found the child lying in bed; the spirit had left her.

On his return journey from Tyrian territory he went by way of Sidon to the Sea of Galilee through the territory of the Ten Towns.<sup>n</sup> They brought to him a man who was deaf and had an impediment in his speech, with the request that he would lay his hand on him. He took the man aside, away from the crowd, put his fingers into his ears,

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses insert with the fist; others insert frequently, or thoroughly.

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses read establish.

<sup>m</sup> Some witnesses here add (16) If you have ears to hear, then hear.

<sup>n</sup> Greek Decapolis.

purification. 5: The ancient tradition (also, v. 13) was not only the OT but also the oral expansion of the Law accepted by the Pharisees (see Mt.3.7 n.). 6-7: Isa.29.13. 10a: Exod.20.12; Deut.5.16. 10b: Exod.21.17; Lev.20.9. 11: The technicalities of the Corban oath are unclear. 15: Defile: render ritually impure.

7.24-37: Healings (Mt.15.21-28). Jesus now appears in territory that is predominantly Gentile. 24-30: See Mt.15.22 n. 26: Phoenician: or, as in Mt.15.22, Canaanite. 31: The itinerary

34 spat, and touched his tongue. Then, looking up to heaven, he sighed, and said to him, 'Ephphatha', which means 35 'Be opened.' With that his ears were opened, and at the same time the impediment was removed and he spoke 36 plainly. Jesus forbade them to tell anyone; but the more he forbade them, the more they published it. Their astonishment knew no bounds: 'All that he does, he does well,' they said; 'he even makes the deaf hear and the dumb speak.'

8 THERE WAS ANOTHER OCCASION ABOUT this time when a huge crowd had collected, and, as they had no food, Jesus called his disciples and said to them,
 2 'I feel sorry for all these people; they have been with me now for three days
 3 and have nothing to eat. If I send them home unfed, they will turn faint on the way; some of them have come from a 4 distance.' The disciples answered, 'How can anyone provide all these people
 5 with bread in this lonely place?' 'How many loaves have you?' he asked; and 6 they answered, 'Seven.' So he ordered the people to sit down on the ground; then he took the seven loaves, and, after giving thanks to God, he broke the bread and gave it to his disciples to distribute; and they served it out to 7 the people. They had also a few small fishes, which he blessed and ordered 8 them to distribute. They all ate to their hearts' content, and seven baskets were 9 filled with the scraps that were left. The people numbered about four thousand.
 10 Then he dismissed them; and, without delay, got into the boat with his disciples and went to the district of Dalmanutha.<sup>o</sup>
 11 Then the Pharisees came out and engaged him in discussion. To test him they asked him for a sign from heaven.

He sighed deeply to himself and said, 12
 'Why does this generation ask for a sign? I tell you this: no sign shall be given to this generation.' With that 13 he left them, re-embarked, and went off to the other side of the lake.

Now they had forgotten to take bread 14 with them; they had no more than one loaf in the boat. He began to warn 15 them: 'Beware,' he said, 'be on your guard against the leaven of the Pharisees and the leaven of Herod.' They said among themselves, 'It is 16 because we have no bread.' Knowing 17 what was in their minds, he asked them, 'Why do you talk about having no bread? Have you no inkling yet? Do you still not understand? Are your minds closed? You have eyes: can you 18 not see? You have ears: can you not hear? Have you forgotten? When I 19 broke the five loaves among five thousand, how many basketfuls of scraps did you pick up?' 'Twelve,' they said. 'And how many when I broke 20 the seven loaves among four thousand?' They answered, 'Seven.' He said, 'Do 21 you still not understand?'

They arrived at Bethsaida. There the 22 people brought a blind man to Jesus and begged him to touch him. He took 23 the blind man by the hand and led him away out of the village. Then he spat on his eyes, laid his hands upon him, and asked whether he could see anything. The man's sight began to come 24 back, and he said, 'I see men; they look like trees, but they are walking about.' Jesus laid his hands on his eyes 25 again; he looked hard, and now he was cured so that he saw everything clearly. Then Jesus sent him home, saying, 26
 'Do not tell anyone in the village.'<sup>p</sup>

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses give Magedan; others give Magdala.
<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses read Do not go into the village.

described is strange. Ten Towns: see Mt.4.25 n. 34: Ephphatha is transliterated Aram., compare 5.41 (see n.). 36: See 1.34 n.

8.1-10a: Feeding of four thousand. (Mt.15.32-39; compare 6.30-44). 6: The words used are rather reminiscent of eucharistic language; see, e.g. Lk.22.19, but also Acts 27.35.

8.10b-21: Sea crossing and discussions (Mt.16.1-12; Lk.11.29; 12.1). 12: No sign is stronger than Mt.12.38-42 (see nn.); 16.4; Lk.11.29. 15: Leaven is a conventional symbol for an evil influence; compare Mt.13.33 n. 17-18, 21: As in 6.52, the disciples are unable to understand. V. 18 brings to mind the outsiders who could not grasp the parables in 4.11-12 (compare Jer.5.21; Ezek.12.2; Isa.6.9-10; contrast Mt.16.12).

8.22-26: Healing of a blind man. Mk. probably intended this to be understood symbolically: the disciples' eyes (v. 18) are also gradually opened, as the following narrative shows (vv. 27-29).

27 JESUS AND HIS DISCIPLES SET OUT FOR the villages of Caesarea Philippi. On the way he asked his disciples, 'Who do men say I am?' They answered, 'Some say John the Baptist, others Elijah, others one of the prophets.' 28 'And you,' he asked, 'who do you say I am?' Peter replied: 'You are the Messiah.' Then he gave them strict orders not to tell anyone about him; 29 and he began to teach them that the Son of Man had to undergo great sufferings, and to be rejected by the elders, chief priests, and doctors of the law; to be put to death, and to rise again 30 three days afterwards. He spoke about it plainly. At this Peter took him by the arm and began to rebuke him. But Jesus turned round, and, looking at his disciples, rebuked Peter. 'Away with you, Satan,' he said; 'you think as men think, not as God thinks.' 31 Then he called the people to him, as well as his disciples, and said to them, 'Anyone who wishes to be a follower of mine must leave self behind; he must take up his cross, and come with me. Whoever cares for his own safety is lost; but if a man will let himself be lost for my sake and for the Gospel, that man is safe. What does a man gain by winning the whole world at the cost of his true self? What can he give to buy that self back? If anyone is ashamed of me and mine<sup>q</sup> in this wicked and godless age, the Son of Man will be ashamed of him, when he comes in the glory of his Father and of the holy angels.'<sup>r</sup> 32 He also said, 'I tell you this: there are some of those standing here who will not taste death before they have seen the kingdom of God already come in power.'

Six days later Jesus took Peter, 2 James, and John with him and led them up a high mountain where they were alone; and in their presence he was transfigured; his clothes became dazzling white, with a whiteness no bleacher 3 on earth could equal. They saw Elijah 4 appear, and Moses with him, and there they were, conversing with Jesus. Then 5 Peter spoke: 'Rabbi,' he said, 'how good it is that we are here! Shall we make three shelters, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah?' (For 6 he did not know what to say; they were so terrified.) Then a cloud appeared, casting its shadow over them, 7 and out of the cloud came a voice: 'This is my Son, my Beloved;<sup>s</sup> listen to him.' And now suddenly, when they 8 looked around, there was nobody to be seen but Jesus alone with themselves.

On their way down the mountain, he 9 enjoined them not to tell anyone what they had seen until the Son of Man had risen from the dead. They seized 10 upon those words, and discussed among themselves what this 'rising from the dead' could mean. And they put a 11 question to him: 'Why do our teachers say that Elijah must come first?' He 12 replied, 'Yes, Elijah does come first to set everything right. Yet how is it<sup>t</sup> that the scriptures say of the Son of Man that he is to endure great sufferings and to be treated with contempt? How- 13

q Some witnesses read me and my words.
r Some witnesses read Father with the holy angels.
s Or This is my only Son.
t Or Elijah, you say, comes first to set everything right: then how is it . . .

8.27-33: Peter's confession and Jesus' prediction of his suffering (Mt.16.13-23; Lk.9.18-22). 27: Caesarea Philippi locates the event on the edge of Gentile territory. 28: The return of an ancient prophet (see 6.15 n.) or the coming of a prophet like Moses (Deut.18.15) or the appearance of a true prophet (1 Macc.4.46) in connection with the messianic age were popular expectations. 30: Messiah: see Mt.1.1 n. 31: This is the first of three (see 9.31-32; 10.33-34) predictions of the suffering of the Son of Man (see 2.10 n.). These predictions probably reflect the way in which the cross and resurrection were preached by early missionaries, so that their present form may have been influenced by that preaching. From this point the story of Mk. moves forward with the cross clearly in view. 32: Suffering and death were not a part of the popular program for the Messiah. 33: Satan: see Mt.4.1 n.

8.34-9.1: Following Jesus (Mt.16.24-28; Lk.9.23-27). See Mt.10.38-39 n. 34: The expression, take up his cross, is more than a metaphor for burden-bearing or even "sacrificial living"; the possibility of actually dying must be among the terms of discipleship.

9.2-8: The transfiguration (Mt.17.1-8; Lk.9.28-36). See notes on Mt.17.1-8.

9.9-13: Elijah has come (Mt.17.9-13). 9-10: Since death did not fit the conception held of the Son of Man (8.32), it seemed impossible to think of his resurrection. 11-13: On Elijah and his identification with the Baptist, see 6.15 n.; 8.28 n.; Lk.1.17 n.

ever, I tell you, Elijah has already come and they have worked their will upon him, as the scriptures say of him.'

14 When they came back to the disciples they saw a large crowd surrounding them and lawyers arguing with them.

15 As soon as they saw Jesus the whole crowd were overcome with awe, and they ran forward to welcome him.

16 He asked them, 'What is this argument about?' A man in the crowd spoke up: 'Master, I brought my son to you. He is possessed by a spirit which makes

18 him speechless. Whenever it attacks him, it dashes him to the ground, and he foams at the mouth, grinds his teeth, and goes rigid. I asked your disciples to cast it out, but they

19 failed.' Jesus answered: 'What an unbelieving and perverse generation! How long shall I be with you? How long must I endure you? Bring him to me.' So they brought the boy to him; and as soon as the spirit saw him it threw the boy into convulsions, and he fell on the ground and rolled about

21 foaming at the mouth. Jesus asked his father, 'How long has he been like this?' 'From childhood,' he replied; 'often it has tried to make an end of him by throwing him into the fire or into water. But if it is at all possible for you, take pity upon us and help us.'

23 'If it is possible!' said Jesus. 'Everything is possible to one who has faith.'

24 'I have faith,' cried the boy's father; 'help me where faith falls short.' Jesus saw then that the crowd was closing in upon them, so he rebuked the unclean spirit. 'Deaf and dumb spirit,' he said, 'I command you, come out of him

26 and never go back!' After crying aloud and racking him fiercely, it came out; and the boy looked like a corpse; in

27 fact, many said, 'He is dead.' But Jesus took his hand and raised him to his feet, and he stood up.

Then Jesus went indoors, and his disciples asked him privately, 'Why could not we cast it out?' He said, 'There is no means of casting out this sort but prayer.'<sup>u</sup>

THEY NOW LEFT THAT DISTRICT AND made a journey through Galilee. Jesus wished it to be kept secret; for he was teaching his disciples, and telling them, 'The Son of Man is now to be given up into the power of men, and they will kill him, and three days after being killed, he will rise again.' But they did not understand what he said, and were afraid to ask.

So they came to Capernaum; and when he was indoors, he asked them, 'What were you arguing about on the way?' They were silent, because on the way they had been discussing who was the greatest. He sat down, called the Twelve, and said to them, 'If anyone wants to be first, he must make himself last of all and servant of all.' Then he took a child, set him in front of them, and put his arm round him. 'Whoever receives one of these children in my name', he said, 'receives me; and whoever receives me, receives not me but the One who sent me.'

John said to him, 'Master, we saw a man driving out devils in your name, and as he was not one of us, we tried to stop him.' Jesus said, 'Do not stop him; no one who does a work of divine power in my name will be able the next moment to speak evil of me. For he who is not against us is on our side. I tell you this: if anyone gives you a cup of water to drink because you are followers

<sup>u</sup> Some witnesses add and fasting.

9.14-29: An epileptic boy (Mt.17.14-20; Lk.9.37-43a). 23: Faith, an important element in early Christian miracle stories, receives special stress in this account; the father's response (v. 24) is that of every man who knows his faith is incomplete. 29: Only prayer succeeds in the difficult situation because only God's power is adequate.

9.30-32: The second prediction (see 8.31 n.) of suffering (Mt.17.22-23; Lk.9.43b-45) is given; as often in Mk., the disciples still do not understand (see 8.17-18,21 n.).

9.33-37: Greatness and servanthood (Mt.18.1-5; Lk.9.46-48). 35: 10.43-44; Mt.20.26-27; 23.11; Lk.22.26. 37: Mt.10.40.

9.38-41: An exorcist who is not a disciple (Lk.9.49-50). 39-40: The saying assumes that the unnamed exorcist is friendly, as v. 41 perhaps shows. Mt.12.30 and Lk.11.23 preserve a similar saying which assumes the opposite, i.e. the one not clearly "with us" is "against us." 41: See Mt.10.42 for a somewhat different version of this verse.

of the Messiah, that man assuredly will not go unrewarded.

42 'As for the man who is a cause of stumbling to one of these little ones who have faith, it would be better for him to be thrown into the sea with a millstone round his neck. If your hand is your undoing, cut it off; it is better for you to enter into life maimed than to keep both hands and go to hell and the unquenchable fire.'<sup>v</sup> And if your foot is your undoing, cut it off; it is better to enter into life a cripple than to keep both your feet and be thrown into hell.<sup>w</sup> And if it is your eye, tear it out; it is better to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye than to keep both eyes and be thrown into hell, where the devouring worm never dies and the fire is not quenched.

49 'For everyone will be salted with fire. Salt is a good thing; but if the salt loses its saltness, what will you season it with?

'Have salt in yourselves; and be<sup>x</sup> at peace with one another.'

10 ON LEAVING THOSE PARTS HE CAME into the regions of Judaea and Transjordan; and when a crowd gathered round him once again, he followed his usual practice and taught them. 2 The question was put to him:<sup>y</sup> 'Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife?' 3 This was to test him. He asked in return, 'What did Moses command 4 you?' They answered, 'Moses permitted a man to divorce his wife by note of dismissal.' Jesus said to them, 'It was because your minds were closed 6 that he made this rule for you; but in the beginning, at the creation, God 7 made them male and female. For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother, and be made one with his wife;<sup>z</sup> and the two shall become one 8 flesh. It follows that they are no longer two individuals: they are one flesh. What God has joined together, man 9 must not separate.'

When they were indoors again the 10 disciples questioned him about this matter; he said to them, 'Whoever 11 divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her: so too, 12 if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery.'

They brought children for him to 13 touch. The disciples rebuked them, but when Jesus saw this he was indignant, and said to them, 'Let the children come to me; do not try to stop them; for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these. I tell you, 15 whoever does not accept the kingdom of God like a child will never enter it.' And he put his arms round them, laid his hands upon them, and blessed them.

As he was starting out on a journey, 17 a stranger ran up, and, kneeling before him, asked, 'Good Master, what must I do to win eternal life?' Jesus said to him, 'Why do you call me good? No one is good except God alone. You 19 know the commandments: "Do not murder; do not commit adultery; do not steal; do not give false evidence; do not defraud; honour your father and mother."' 'But, Master,' he replied, 20 'I have kept all these since I was a boy.' Jesus looked straight at him; his heart warmed to him, and he said, 'One thing

<sup>v</sup> Some witnesses add (44) where the devouring worm never dies and the fire is not quenched.

<sup>w</sup> Some witnesses add (46) where the devouring worm never dies and the fire is not quenched.

<sup>x</sup> Or Have the salt of fellowship and be . . . ; or You have the salt of fellowship between you; then be . . .

<sup>y</sup> Some witnesses read The Pharisees came forward and asked him the question . . .

<sup>z</sup> Some witnesses omit and be made . . . wife.

9.42-50: On being an example (Mt.18.6-9; Lk.17.1-2). Mk. uses the negative illustration of the cause of stumbling (v. 42) and the positive metaphor of salt which seasons (v. 50) to encourage exemplary living. 42-48: See Mt.18.7-9 n. 50: Compare Mt.5.13; Lk.14.34-35.

10.1-12: Marriage and divorce (Mt.19.1-12; compare Mt.5.31-32 n.; Lk.16.18; 1 Cor.7.10-11). 1: Judaea and Transjordan anticipates v. 32. 3: The question is only a test, since the Law clearly allows divorce. 4-5: The divorce provisions of Deut.24.1-4 were provided to guide men whose minds were closed to the intention of the Creator. 6: Gen.1.27. 7-8: From Gen.2.(21-)24 Jesus argues that in God's purpose marriage establishes an indissoluble unity. 12: Since Jewish women could not divorce their husbands, this verse has been added to meet the needs of a Gentile environment.

10.13-16: Children and the kingdom (Mt.19.13-15; Lk.18.15-17). 15: Like a child: with simple trust; see Mt.18.3.

10.17-31: Possessions and the kingdom (Mt.19.16-30; Lk.18.18-30). 17-19a: No one is good except God: see Mt.19.16-17 n. 19: Exod.20.12-16; Deut.5.16-20. 21: See Mt.19.21 n.

you lack: go, sell everything you have, and give to the poor, and you will have riches in heaven; and come, follow me.' At these words his face fell and he went away with a heavy heart; for he was a man of great wealth.

Jesus looked round at his disciples and said to them, 'How hard it will be for the wealthy to enter the kingdom of God!' They were amazed that he should say this, but Jesus insisted, 'Children, how hard it is<sup>a</sup> to enter the kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.' They were more astonished than ever, and said to one another, 'Then who can be saved?' Jesus looked at them and said, 'For men it is impossible, but not for God; everything is possible for God.'

At this Peter spoke. 'We here', he said, 'have left everything to become your followers.' Jesus said, 'I tell you this: there is no one who has given up home, brothers or sisters, mother, father or children, or land, for my sake and for the Gospel, who will not receive in this age a hundred times as much—houses, brothers and sisters, mothers and children, and land—and persecutions besides; and in the age to come eternal life. But many who are first will be last and the last first.'

Challenge to Jerusalem

THEY WERE ON THE ROAD, GOING UP TO Jerusalem, Jesus leading the way; and the disciples were filled with awe, while those who followed behind were afraid. He took the Twelve aside and began to tell them what was to happen to him. 'We are now going to Jerusalem,' he said; 'and the Son of Man will be given up to the chief priests and the doctors of the law; they will condemn him to death and hand him over to the foreign power. He will be mocked and spat upon, flogged and killed; and three days afterwards, he will rise again.'

James and John, the sons of Zebedee, approached him and said, 'Master, we should like you to do us a favour.' 'What is it you want me to do?' he asked. They answered, 'Grant us the right to sit in state with you, one at your right and the other at your left.' Jesus said to them, 'You do not understand what you are asking. Can you drink the cup that I drink, or be baptized with the baptism I am baptized with?' 'We can', they answered. Jesus said, 'The cup that I drink you shall drink, and the baptism I am baptized with shall be your baptism; but to sit at my right or left is not for me to grant; it is for those to whom it has already been assigned.'<sup>b</sup>

When the other ten heard this, they were indignant with James and John. Jesus called them to him and said, 'You know that in the world the recognized rulers lord it over their subjects, and their great men make them feel the weight of authority. That is not the way with you; among you, whoever wants to be great must be your servant, and whoever wants to be first must be the willing slave of all. For even the Son of Man did not come to be served but to serve, and to give up his life as a ransom for many.'

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses insert for those who trust in riches.
<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses add by my Father.

25–27: Eye of a needle: see Mt.19.24 n. 28–30: See Mt.19.27,29 n. 31: Mt.19.30; 20.16; Lk.13.30. 10.32–34: The third prediction (see 8.31 n.) of suffering (Mt.20.17–19; Lk.18.31–34). The story must end in Jerusalem (v. 32) and Mk. has had the end in mind from the beginning. Yet, the geographical notice takes on increased importance through its connection with the third passion prediction (vv. 33–34) and by the subsequent attention to itinerary (v. 46; 11.1). The tension and drama mount as the account moves toward its climax.

10.35–45: Position in the kingdom (Mt.20.20–28; Lk.22.24–27). 35: James and John, along with Peter, are given unusual prominence in the Gospels (e.g. 1.16–20; 9.2). 37: Seats on the right and left hands are reserved for men of great authority. 38: The cup immediately suggests 14.36; but as a metaphor for experiencing trouble, "drinking of a cup" was a familiar manner of speaking (e.g. Ps.75.8; compare Jn.18.11). Unless the phrase about baptism has been added as a way of referring specifically to Christian martyrdom, the saying alludes to the ancient picture of the sufferer as a victim of overwhelming "waves" of tribulation; compare Lk.12.50. 40: Tfn. b correctly interprets the verse; see Mt.20.23. 45: Lit. ransom is the sum paid to win freedom for slaves or captives; it is one of several metaphors employed to express the idea

- 46 They came to Jericho; and as he was leaving the town, with his disciples and a large crowd, Bartimaeus son of Timaeus, a blind beggar, was seated at the roadside. Hearing that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to shout, 'Son of David, Jesus, have pity on me!' Many of the people told him to hold his tongue; but he shouted all the more, 'Son of David, have pity on me.' Jesus stopped and said, 'Call him'; so they called the blind man and said, 'Take heart; stand up; he is calling you.' At that he threw off his cloak, sprang up, and came to Jesus. Jesus said to him, 'What do you want me to do for you?' 'Master,' the blind man answered, 'I want my sight back.' Jesus said to him, 'Go; your faith has cured you.' And at once he recovered his sight and followed him on the road.
- 11 THEY WERE NOW APPROACHING JERUSALEM, and when they reached Bethphage and Bethany, at the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples with these instructions: 'Go to the village opposite, and, just as you enter, you will find tethered there a colt which no one has yet ridden. Untie it and bring it here. If anyone asks, "Why are you doing that?," say, "Our Master<sup>c</sup> needs it, and will send it back here without delay.'" So they went off, and found the colt tethered at a door outside in the street. They were untying it when some of the bystanders asked, 'What are you doing, untying that colt?' They answered as Jesus had told them, and were then allowed to take it. So they brought the colt to Jesus and spread their cloaks on it, and he mounted. And people carpeted the road with their cloaks, while others spread brushwood which they had cut in the fields; and those who went ahead and the others who came behind shouted, 'Hosanna! Blessings on him who comes in the name of the Lord! Blessings on the coming kingdom of our father David! Hosanna in the heavens!'
- He entered Jerusalem and went into the temple, where he looked at the whole scene; but, as it was now late, he went out to Bethany with the Twelve.
- On the following day, after they had left Bethany, he felt hungry, and, noticing in the distance a fig-tree in leaf, he went to see if he could find anything on it. But when he came there he found nothing but leaves; for it was not the season for figs. He said to the tree, 'May no one ever again eat fruit from you!' And his disciples were listening.
- So they came to Jerusalem, and he went into the temple and began driving out those who bought and sold in the temple. He upset the tables of the money-changers and the seats of the dealers in pigeons; and he would not allow anyone to use the temple court as a thoroughfare for carrying goods.
- <sup>c</sup> Or Its owner.

that Jesus' death effects mankind's salvation. The Heb. term for many is equivalent to "all" in some contexts.

10.46-52: Blind Bartimaeus healed (Mt.20.29-34; Lk.18.35-43). 46: Son of Timaeus simply translates the Aram. name, Bartimaeus. 47: Son of David: see Mt.1.1 n. 52: Cured: see Lk.7.50 n. With Jerusalem and the cross so near, followed him on the way implies courageous discipleship.

11.1-13.37: Jesus in Jerusalem (Mt.21.1-25.46; Lk.19.28-21.38). From this point, the Gospel narrative becomes increasingly circumstantial with respect to sequence of events, locations (four place names in 11.1!), and time (especially in Mk. where the material is organized carefully, using the scheme of the "days of the last week"). Such attention to detail and the dramatic character of the reported events and controversies signal the approaching climax of the story.

11.1-11: The entry into Jerusalem (Mt.21.1-9; Lk.19.28-38; Jn.12.12-19). 1: See Mt.21.1 n. 9-10; Ps.118.25-26. Hosanna: see Mt.21.9 n. 11: Nearby Bethany seems to have served as Jesus' base for Jerusalem activities; only Mk. delays the cleansing of the Temple to the next day (see Mt.21.12; Lk.19.45).

11.12-14: The cursing of the fig tree (Mt.21.18-19). The story is in two parts, with the end in vv. 20-25. In Mt. the two parts are presented as a single unit following the cleansing of the Temple. 14: See Mt.21.19 n.

11.15-19: Cleansing of the Temple (Mt.21.10-17; Lk.19.45-48). 15-16: Jesus' objections to the misuse of the Temple agree with Jewish regulations of the time. On temple, money-changers,

17 Then he began to teach them, and said, 'Does not Scripture say, "My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations"? But you have made it a 18 robbers' cave.' The chief priests and the doctors of the law heard of this and sought some means of making away with him; for they were afraid of him, because the whole crowd was spell-
19 bound by his teaching. And when evening came he went out of the city.
20 Early next morning, as they passed by, they saw that the fig-tree had 21 withered from the roots up; and Peter, recalling what had happened, said to him, 'Rabbi, look, the fig-tree which 22 you cursed has withered.' Jesus answered them, 'Have faith in God. I tell 23 you this: if anyone says to this mountain, "Be lifted from your place and hurled into the sea", and has no
24 inward doubts, but believes that what he says is happening, it will be done
25 for him. I tell you, then, whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you have received it and it will be yours.
26 'And when you stand praying, if you have a grievance against anyone, forgive him, so that your Father in heaven may forgive you the wrongs you have done.'<sup>d</sup>

27 THEY CAME ONCE MORE TO JERUSALEM. And as he was walking in the temple court the chief priests, lawyers, and 28 elders came to him and said, 'By what authority are you acting like this? Who gave you authority to act in this way?'
29 Jesus said to them, 'I have a question to ask you too; and if you give me an answer, I will tell you by what authority 30 I act. The baptism of John: was it from 31 God, or from men? Answer me.' This set them arguing among themselves: 'What shall we say? If we say, "from 32 God", he will say, "Then why did you not believe him?" Shall we say, "from men"?'—but they were afraid of the people, for all held that John was in fact a prophet. So they answered, 'We 33 do not know.' And Jesus said to them, 'Then neither will I tell you by what authority I act.'

He went on to speak to them in 12 parables: 'A man planted a vineyard and put a wall round it, hewed out a winepress, and built a watch-tower; then he let it out to vine-growers and went abroad. When the season came, 2 he sent a servant to the tenants to collect from them his share of the produce. But they took him, thrashed him, and 3 sent him away empty-handed. Again, 4 he sent them another servant, whom they beat about the head and treated outrageously. So he sent another, and 5 that one they killed; and many more besides, of whom they beat some, and killed others. He had now only one 6 left to send, his own dear son.<sup>e</sup> In the end he sent him. "They will respect my son", he said. But the tenants said to 7 one another, "This is the heir; come on, let us kill him, and the property will be ours." So they seized him and 8 killed him, and flung his body out of the vineyard. What will the owner of 9 the vineyard do? He will come and put the tenants to death and give the vineyard to others.

'Can it be that you have never read 10 this text: "The stone which the builders rejected has become the main cornerstone. This is the Lord's doing, and it is 11 wonderful in our eyes"?'

Then they began to look for a way to 12 arrest him, for they saw that the parable was aimed at them; but they were afraid of the people, so they left him alone and went away.

A NUMBER OF PHARISEES AND MEN OF 13 Herod's party were sent to trap him with a question. They came and said, 14
d Some witnesses add (26) But if you do not forgive others, then the wrongs you have done will not be forgiven by your Father in heaven. e Or his only son.

pigeons, see Mt.21.12 n. 17: For all nations probably indicates a concern for Gentile worship; see Mt.21.12 n.; Isa.56.7; Jer.7.11; compare Mt.21.13; Lk.19.46.

11.20–25: The lesson of the fig tree. See Mt.21.20–22 n.

11.27–33: Jesus' authority challenged (Mt.21.23–27; Lk.20.1–8). 30: From God: see Mt.21.25 n. 32: Prophet: see 8.28 n.

12.1–12: The evil tenants (Mt.21.33–46; Lk.20.9–19). 1: On parables, vineyard, see Mt.21.33 n. 2: On servant, tenants, see Mt.21.34 n. 6: Son: Jesus. 10–11: Ps.118.22–23. Early Christians applied this and other OT "stone sayings" to Jesus; compare 1 Pet.2.6–8.

12.13–17: Caesar's tax (Mt.22.15–22; Lk.20.20–26). 14: Taxes: see Mt.22.17 n.

15 'Master, you are an honest man, we know, and truckle to no one, whoever he may be; you teach in all honesty the way of life that God requires. Are we or are we not permitted to pay taxes to the Roman Emperor? Shall we pay or not?' He saw how crafty their question was, and said, 'Why are you trying to catch me out? Fetch me a silver piece, and let me look at it.' They brought one, and he said to them, 'Whose head is this, and whose inscription?' 'Caesar's', they replied. Then Jesus said, 'Pay Caesar what is due to Caesar, and pay God what is due to God.' And they heard him with astonishment.

18 Next Sadducees came to him. (It is they who say that there is no resurrection.) Their question was this: 'Master, Moses laid it down for us that if there are brothers, and one dies leaving a wife but no child, then the next should marry the widow and carry on his brother's family. Now there were seven brothers. The first took a wife and died without issue. Then the second married her, and he too died without issue. So did the third. Eventually the seven of them died, all without issue. Finally the woman died. At the resurrection, when they come back to life, whose wife will she be, since all seven had married her?' Jesus said to them, 'You are mistaken, and surely this is the reason: you do not know either the scriptures or the power of God. When they rise from the dead, men and women do not marry; they are like angels in heaven.'

26 'But about the resurrection of the dead, have you never read in the Book of Moses, in the story of the burning bush, how God spoke to him and said, "I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob"? God is not God of the dead but of the living. You are greatly mistaken.'

28 Then one of the lawyers, who had been listening to these discussions and had noted how well he answered, came forward and asked him, 'Which commandment is first of all?' Jesus answered, 'The first is, "Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God is the only Lord; love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind, and with all your strength." The second is this: "Love your neighbour as yourself." There is no other commandment greater than these.' The lawyer said to him, 'Well said, Master. You are right in saying that God is one and beside him there is no other. And to love him with all your heart, all your understanding, and all your strength, and to love your neighbour as yourself—that is far more than any burnt offerings or sacrifices.' When Jesus saw how sensibly he answered, he said to him, 'You are not far from the kingdom of God.'

After that nobody ventured to put any more questions to him; and Jesus went on to say, as he taught in the temple, 'How can the teachers of the law maintain that the Messiah is "Son of David"? David himself said, when inspired by the Holy Spirit, "The Lord said to my Lord, "Sit at my right hand until I put your enemies under your feet."' David himself calls him "Lord"; how can he also be David's son?'

There was a great crowd and they listened eagerly.<sup>f</sup> He said as he taught them, 'Beware of the doctors of the law, who love to walk up and down in long robes, receiving respectful greetings in the street; and to have the chief seats in synagogues, and places of honour at feasts. These are the men who eat up the property of widows, while they say long prayers for appearance' sake, and they will receive the severest sentence.'<sup>g</sup>

Once he was standing opposite the 41

<sup>f</sup> Or The mass of the people listened eagerly.

<sup>g</sup> Or As for those who eat up the property of widows, while they say long prayers for appearance' sake, they will have an even sterner judgement to face.

12.18–27: A resurrection puzzle (Mt.22.23–33; Lk.20.27–40). 18: On differences between Sadducees and Pharisees (v. 13), see Mt.3.7 n. 19: Deut.25.5–10. 24: Scriptures: v. 26; see Mt.22.30 n. 26: Exod.3.6.

12.28–34: The double commandment of love (Mt.22.34–40; compare Lk.10.25–28). 30: Deut.6.4–5; the verses comprise the "Jewish creed." 31: Lev.19.18. 32–34: Compare Lk.10.27 n.

12.35–37: Messiah, son of David (Mt.22.41–46; Lk.20.41–44). 35: Messiah . . . son of David: see Mt.1.1 n. 36: Ps.110.1; see Mt.22.44 n. 37: See Mt.22.45 n.

12.38–40: Warning against pride (see Mt.23.6; Lk.11.43; 20.45–47).

- temple treasury, watching as people dropped their money into the chest. Many rich people were giving large sums. Presently there came a poor widow who dropped in two tiny coins, together worth a farthing. He called his disciples to him. 'I tell you this,' he said: 'this poor widow has given more than any of the others; for those others who have given had more than enough, but she, with less than enough, has given all that she had to live on.'
- 13 AS HE WAS LEAVING THE TEMPLE, ONE of his disciples exclaimed, 'Look, Master, what huge stones! What fine buildings!' Jesus said to him, 'You see these great buildings? Not one stone will be left upon another; all will be thrown down.'
- 3 When he was sitting on the Mount of Olives facing the temple he was questioned privately by Peter, James, John, and Andrew. 'Tell us,' they said, 'when will this happen? What will be the sign when the fulfilment of all this is at hand?'
- 5 Jesus began: 'Take care that no one misleads you. Many will come claiming my name, and saying, "I am he"; and many will be misled by them.'
- 7 'When you hear the noise of battle near at hand and the news of battles far away, do not be alarmed. Such things are bound to happen; but the end is still to come. For nation will make war upon nation, kingdom upon kingdom; there will be earthquakes in many places; there will be famines. With these things the birth-pangs of the new age begin.'
- 9 'As for you, be on your guard. You will be handed over to the courts. You will be flogged in synagogues. You will be summoned to appear before governors and kings on my account to testify in their presence. But before the end the Gospel must be proclaimed to all nations. So when you are arrested and taken away, do not worry beforehand about what you will say, but when the time comes say whatever is given you to say; for it is not you who will be speaking, but the Holy Spirit. Brother will betray brother to death, and the father his child; children will turn against their parents and send them to their death. All will hate you for your allegiance to me; but the man who holds out to the end will be saved.'
- 'But when you see "the abomination of desolation" usurping a place which is not his (let the reader understand), then those who are in Judaea must take to the hills. If a man is on the roof, he must not come down into the house to fetch anything out; if in the field, he must not turn back for his coat. Alas for women with child in those days, and for those who have children at the breast! Pray that it may not come in winter. For those days will bring distress such as never has been until now since the beginning of the world which God created—and will never be again. If the Lord had not cut short that time of troubles, no living thing could survive. However, for the sake of his own, whom he has chosen, he has cut short the time.'
- 'Then, if anyone says to you, "Look, here is the Messiah", or, "Look, there he is", do not believe it. Impostors will come claiming to be messiahs or prophets, and they will produce signs and wonders to mislead God's chosen, if such a thing were possible. But you be on your guard; I have forewarned you of it all.'
- 'But in those days, after that distress,

---

12.41–44: The widow's gift (Lk.21.1–4). 41: Chest: see Lk.21.1 n. 42: Coins: see Lk.21.2 n. 13.1–37: The eschatological discourse. All three synoptic Gospels introduce at this point (Mt.24.1; Lk.21.5) a collection of sayings, some of which relate to the destruction of Jerusalem, some to the end of history. Standing immediately before the passion narrative (chs. 14–15), this chapter, built out of diverse traditions, serves as a solemn final message of judgment and warning.

13.1–2: Temple's destruction predicted (Mt.24.1–3 n.; Lk.21.5–7). 13.3–37: Signs, false signs, and warnings (Mt.24.4–44; Lk.21.8–36). 3: Mount of Olives: Mt.21.1 n. The limiting of the audience to Peter, James, John, and Andrew makes the discourse in Mk. secret teaching. 5–6: See vv. 21–23. 8: Birth-pangs: see Mt.24.8 n. 9–13: Mt.10.17–21. 11: Mt.10.20; Lk.12.11–12. 13: Mt.10.22. 14: "The abomination of desolation": see Mt.24.15 n. 16: Lk.17.31. 19: Dan.12.1. 22: Deut.13.1–2. 23: Forewarned: see vv. 5–6. 24–26: See Mt.24.29 n.

the sun will be darkened, the moon will 25 not give her light; the stars will come falling from the sky, the celestial powers 26 will be shaken. Then they will see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with 27 great power and glory, and he will send out the angels and gather his chosen from the four winds, from the farthest bounds of earth to the farthest bounds of heaven.

28 'Learn a lesson from the fig-tree.
 When its tender shoots appear and are breaking into leaf, you know that 29 summer is near. In the same way, when you see all this happening, you may know that the end is near,<sup>b</sup> at the 30 very door. I tell you this: the present generation will live to see it all. Heaven 31 and earth will pass away; my words will never pass away.

32 'But about that day or that hour no one knows, not even the angels in heaven,
 not even the Son; only the Father.

33 'Be alert, be wakeful.<sup>c</sup> You do not 34 know when the moment comes. It is like a man away from home: he has left his house and put his servants in charge, each with his own work to do, and he has ordered the door-keeper to 35 stay awake. Keep awake, then, for you do not know when the master of the house is coming. Evening or midnight, 36 cock-crow or early dawn—if he comes suddenly, he must not find you asleep.
 37 And what I say to you, I say to everyone: Keep awake.'

The final conflict

14 NOW THE FESTIVAL OF PASSOVER AND Unleavened Bread was only two days off; and the chief priests and the doctors of the law were trying to devise some cunning plan to seize him and put him 2 to death. 'It must not be during the festival,' they said, 'or we should have rioting among the people.'

Jesus was at Bethany, in the house of 3
 Simon the leper. As he sat at table, a woman came in carrying a small bottle
 of very costly perfume, pure oil of nard.
 She broke it open and poured the oil
 4 over his head. Some of those present said to one another angrily, 'Why this waste? The perfume might have been 5 sold for thirty pounds<sup>d</sup> and the money given to the poor'; and they turned upon her with fury. But Jesus said, 6
 'Let her alone. Why must you make trouble for her? It is a fine thing she has done for me. You have the poor among 7
 you always, and you can help them whenever you like; but you will not always have me. She has done what lay 8 in her power; she is beforehand with anointing my body for burial. I tell 9 you this: wherever in all the world the Gospel is proclaimed, what she has done will be told as her memorial.'

Then Judas Iscariot, one of the 10 Twelve, went to the chief priests to betray him to them. When they heard 11 what he had come for, they were greatly pleased, and promised him money; and he began to look for a good opportunity to betray him.

NOW ON THE FIRST DAY OF UNLEAVENED 12 Bread, when the Passover lambs were being slaughtered, his disciples said to him, 'Where would you like us to go and prepare for your Passover supper?'
 So he sent out two of his disciples with 13
 these instructions: 'Go into the city,
 and a man will meet you carrying a jar of water. Follow him, and when he 14 enters a house give this message to the householder: "The Master says, 'Where is the room reserved for me to eat the Passover with my disciples?'" He will 15 show you a large room upstairs, set out in readiness. Make the preparations for us there.' Then the disciples went 16 <sup>h</sup> Or that he is near. <sup>i</sup> Some witnesses add and pray.
<sup>j</sup> Literally 300 denarii; some witnesses read more than 300 denarii.

26: Dan.7.13. 27: Deut.30.4; Isa.60.4-5. 30: 9.1; see Mt.24.34 n. Compare v. 32. 31: Compare Mt.5.17; Lk.16.17.

14.1-15.47: The final conflict (Mt.26.1-27.66; Lk.22.1-23.56; Jn. chs.12-19). See Lk.22.1-23.56 n. 1: Passover and Unleavened Bread were originally two festivals (see Lev.23.5-6) which had coalesced as a celebration of the deliverance from Egypt (Exod.12.1-20). 3-9: Mt.26.6-13 (similar stories in Lk.7.36-50; Jn.12.1-8). 3: Poured: see Mt.26.7 n. 8: See Mt.26.12 n. 10-11: Mt.26.14-16; Lk.22.3-6.

14.12-16: Preparation for the Passover (Mt.26.17-19; Lk.22.7-13). 12: See Mt.26.17 n. 14-15: See Mt.26.18 n.

off, and when they came into the city they found everything just as he had told them. So they prepared for Passover.

17 In the evening he came to the house
18 with the Twelve. As they sat at supper Jesus said, 'I tell you this: one of you will betray me—one who is eating with 19 me.' At this they were dismayed; and one by one they said to him, 'Not I, 20 surely?' 'It is one of the Twelve', he said, 'who is dipping into the same 21 bowl with me. The Son of Man is going the way appointed for him in the scriptures; but alas for that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would be better for that man if he had never been born.'

22 During supper he took bread, and having said the blessing he broke it and gave it to them, with the words: 'Take 23 this; this is my body.' Then he took a cup, and having offered thanks to God
he gave it to them; and they all drank 24 from it. And he said, 'This is my blood, the blood of the covenant, shed for 25 many. I tell you this: never again shall I drink from the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God.'

26 After singing the Passover Hymn,
they went out to the Mount of Olives.
27 And Jesus said, 'You will all fall from your faith; for it stands written: "I will strike the shepherd down and the 28 sheep will be scattered." Nevertheless, after I am raised again I will go on 29 before you into Galilee.' Peter answered, 'Everyone else may fall away, 30 but I will not.' Jesus said, 'I tell you this: today, this very night, before the cock crows twice, you yourself will 31 disown me three times.' But he insisted and repeated: 'Even if I must die with you, I will never disown you.' And they all said the same.

32 WHEN THEY REACHED A PLACE CALLED
Gethsemane, he said to his disciples,

'Sit here while I pray.' And he took 33
Peter and James and John with him.
Horror and dismay came over him,
and he said to them, 'My heart is ready 34
to break with grief; stop here, and stay awake.' Then he went forward a little, 35 threw himself on the ground, and prayed that, if it were possible, this hour might pass him by. 'Abba, Father,' 36
he said, 'all things are possible to thee;
take this cup away from me. Yet not what I will, but what thou wilt.'

He came back and found them 37
asleep; and he said to Peter, 'Asleep, Simon? Were you not able to stay awake for one hour? Stay awake, all 38 of you; and pray that you may be spared the test. The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.' Once more he 39 went away and prayed.<sup>k</sup> On his return 40
he found them asleep again, for their eyes were heavy; and they did not know how to answer him.

The third time he came and said to 41 them, 'Still sleeping? Still taking your ease? Enough!<sup>l</sup> The hour has come.
The Son of Man is betrayed to sinful men. Up, let us go forward! My 42
betrayer is upon us.'

Suddenly, while he was still speaking, 43
Judas, one of the Twelve, appeared,
and with him was a crowd armed with swords and cudgels, sent by the chief priests, lawyers, and elders. Now the 44 traitor had agreed with them upon a signal: 'The one I kiss is your man;
seize him and get him safely away.'
When he reached the spot, he stepped 45
forward at once and said to Jesus,
'Rabbi', and kissed him. Then they 46
seized him and held him fast.

One of the party<sup>m</sup> drew his sword, 47
and struck at the High Priest's servant,
cutting off his ear. Then Jesus spoke: 48
'Do you take me for a bandit, that you have come out with swords and cudgels

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses add using the same words.
<sup>l</sup> The Greek is obscure; a possible meaning is 'The money has been paid', 'The account is settled.'
<sup>m</sup> Or of the bystanders.

14.17-25: The Last Supper (Mt.26.20-29; Lk.22.14-23). 17-21: See also Jn.13.21-30. 18: Ps.41.9. Sat: see Mt.26.20 n. 21: Scriptures: see Mt.26.24 n. 22-25: See also 1 Cor.11.23-26. 24: Blood of the covenant: Mt.26.28 n.; Lk.22.17-19 n. Many: see Mk.10.45 n.

14.26-42: Gethsemane (Mt.26.30-46; Lk.22.39-46). 26: Jn.18.1. Hymn: see Mt.26.30 n. 27: Zech.13.7. 28: See 16.7. 32-42: See Lk.22.40-46 n. 34-36: Compare Jn.12.27-28. 34: Ps.42.6. 36: Abba: Aram. for "Father"; see Rom.8.15; Gal.4.6. Cup: see Mk.10.38 n.; Jn.18.11.

14.43-52: The arrest (Mt.26.47-56; Lk.22.47-53; Jn.18.2-12). 44: Kiss: see Mt.26.48 n.

49 to arrest me? Day after day I was within your reach as I taught in the temple, and you did not lay hands on me. But let the scriptures be fulfilled.'
50 Then the disciples all deserted him and ran away.

51 Among those following was a young man with nothing on but a linen cloth.
52 They tried to seize him; but he slipped out of the linen cloth and ran away naked.

53 THEN THEY LED JESUS AWAY TO THE High Priest's house, where the chief priests, elders, and doctors of the law were all assembling. Peter followed him at a distance right into the High Priest's courtyard; and there he remained, sitting among the attendants, warming himself at the fire.

55 The chief priests and the whole Council tried to find some evidence against Jesus to warrant a death-sentence, but failed to find any. Many gave false evidence against him, but their statements did not tally. Some stood up and gave false evidence against him to this effect: 'We heard him say, "I will pull down this temple, made with human hands, and in three days I will build another, not made with hands."' But even on this point their evidence did not agree.

60 Then the High Priest stood up in his place and questioned Jesus: 'Have you no answer to the charges that these witnesses bring against you?' But he kept silence; he made no reply.

Again the High Priest questioned him: 'Are you the Messiah, the Son of the Blessed One?' Jesus said, 'I am; and you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of God<sup>n</sup> and coming with the clouds of heaven.' Then the High Priest tore his robes and said, 'Need we call further witnesses? You have heard the blasphemy. What is your opinion?' Their judgement was unanimous: that he was guilty and should be put to death.

Some began to spit on him, blind-folded him, and struck him with their fists, crying out, 'Prophesy!'<sup>o</sup> And the High Priest's men set upon him with blows.

Meanwhile Peter was still below in the courtyard. One of the High Priest's serving-maids came by and saw him there warming himself. She looked into his face and said, 'You were there too, with this man from Nazareth, this Jesus.' But he denied it: 'I know nothing,' he said; 'I do not understand what you mean.' Then he went outside into the porch;<sup>p</sup> and the maid saw him there again and began to say to the bystanders, 'He is one of them'; and again<sup>q</sup> he denied it.

Again, a little later, the bystanders said to Peter, 'Surely you are one of them. You must be; you are a Galilean.' At this he broke out into curses, and with an oath he said, 'I do not know this man you speak of.' Then the cock crew a second time; and Peter remembered how Jesus had said to him, 'Before the cock crows twice you will disown me three times.' And he burst into tears.

AS SOON AS MORNING CAME, THE CHIEF 15 priests, having made their plan with the elders and lawyers in full council, put Jesus in chains; then they led him away and handed him over to Pilate. Pilate 2 asked him, 'Are you the king of the Jews?' He replied, 'The words are yours.'<sup>q</sup> And the chief priests brought 3 many charges against him. Pilate 4 questioned him again: 'Have you nothing to say in your defence? You see how many charges they are bringing against you.' But, to Pilate's astonishment, Jesus made no further reply.

At the festival season the Governor 6 used to release one prisoner at the people's request. As it happened, the 7

<sup>n</sup> Literally of the Power.

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses add Who hit you? as in Matthew and Luke.

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses insert and a cock crew.

<sup>q</sup> Or It is as you say.

47: One: see Mt.26.51 n. 51: The young man appears only in Mk. and his identity is unknown. 14.53-72: Before the Jewish authorities (Mt.26.57-75 n.; Lk.22.54-71; Jn.18.13-27). 55: Council: See Mt.26.59 n. 57-58; 13.2; 15.29; see Mt.24.1-3 n. 61: Messiah . . . Son: see Mt.16.16 n. 62: Dan.7.13; Ps.110.1. 63-64: Blasphemy: see Mt.26.65-66 n. 72: Compare v. 30.

15.1-20: Before Roman authority (Mt.27.1-31; Lk.23.1-25; Jn.18.28-19.16). 1: Pilate: see Lk.3.1 n. 2: King: see Lk.23.2 n. 6: Mt.27.15 n. 7: Barabbas: Mt.27.16 n.

man known as Barabbas was then in custody with the rebels who had committed murder in the rising. When the crowd appeared<sup>r</sup> asking for the usual favour, Pilate replied, 'Do you wish me to release for you the king of the Jews?' For he knew it was out of malice that they had brought Jesus before him. But the chief priests incited the crowd to ask him to release Barabbas rather than Jesus. Pilate spoke to them again: 'Then what shall I do with the man you call king of the Jews?' They shouted back, 'Crucify him!' 'Why, what harm has he done?' Pilate asked; but they shouted all the louder, 'Crucify him!' So Pilate, in his desire to satisfy the mob, released Barabbas to them; and he had Jesus flogged and handed him over to be crucified.

Then the soldiers took him inside the courtyard (the Governor's headquarters<sup>s</sup>) and called together the whole company. They dressed him in purple, and plaiting a crown of thorns, placed it on his head. Then they began to salute him with, 'Hail, King of the Jews!' They beat him about the head with a cane and spat upon him, and then knelt and paid mock homage to him. When they had finished their mockery, they stripped him of the purple and dressed him in his own clothes.

THEN THEY TOOK HIM OUT TO CRUCIFY him. A man called Simon, from Cyrene, the father of Alexander and Rufus, was passing by on his way in from the country, and they pressed him into service to carry his cross.

They brought him to the place called Golgotha, which means 'Place of a skull'. He was offered drugged wine, but he would not take it. Then they fastened him to the cross. They divided his clothes among them, casting lots to decide what each should have.

The hour of the crucifixion was nine in the morning, and the inscription giving the charge against him read, 'The king of the Jews.' Two bandits were crucified with him, one on his right and the other on his left.<sup>t</sup>

The passers-by hurled abuse at him: 'Aha!' they cried, wagging their heads, 'you would pull the temple down, would you, and build it in three days? Come down from the cross and save yourself!' So too the chief priests and lawyers jested with one another: 'He saved others,' they said, 'but he cannot save himself. Let the Messiah, the king of Israel, come down now from the cross. If we see that, we shall believe.' Even those who were crucified with him taunted him.

At midday a darkness fell over the whole land, which lasted till three in the afternoon; and at three Jesus cried aloud, 'Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?', which means, 'My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?'<sup>u</sup> Some of the bystanders, on hearing this, said, 'Hark, he is calling Elijah.' A man ran and soaked a sponge in sour wine and held it to his lips on the end of a cane. 'Let us see', he said, 'if Elijah will come to take him down.' Then Jesus gave a loud cry and died. And the curtain of the temple was torn in two from top to bottom. And when the centurion who was standing opposite him saw how he died,<sup>v</sup> he said, 'Truly this man was a son of God.'<sup>w</sup>

A NUMBER OF WOMEN WERE ALSO present, watching from a distance. Among them were Mary of Magdala, Mary the mother of James the younger and of Joseph, and Salome, who had all followed him and waited on him when he was in Galilee, and there were several

<sup>r</sup> Some witnesses read shouted.

<sup>s</sup> Greek praetorium.

<sup>t</sup> Some witnesses add (28) That that text of Scripture came true which says, 'He was reckoned among criminals.'

<sup>u</sup> Some witnesses read My God, my God, why hast thou shamed me?

<sup>v</sup> Some witnesses read saw that he died with a cry.

<sup>w</sup> Or the Son of God.

15.21-47: The crucifixion (Mt.27.32-66; Lk.23.26-54; Jn.19.17-42). 21: Simon was probably a Jew from Cyrene. The mention of Alexander and Rufus suggests that they may have been known in the church of Mk. Contrast Jn.19.17. 23: Ps.69.21; on wine, see Lk.23.36 n. 24: Ps.22.18. On crucifixion, see Lk.23.32 n. 25: Nine in the morning: contrast Jn.19.14. 29: See 14.57-58 n. 32b: Contrast Lk.23.39-43. 34: See Mt.27.46 n. 35: Elijah: see Mt.27.47 n. 36: Ps.69.21. 38: Curtain: see Mt.27.51 n. 39: Son of God: see Mt.27.54 n. 43: Council: see Mt.26.59 n. 46: Deut.21.22-23.

others who had come up to Jerusalem with him.

42 By this time evening had come; and 43 as it was Preparation-day (that is, the day before the Sabbath), Joseph of Arimathaea, a respected member of the Council, a man who looked forward to the kingdom of God, bravely went in to Pilate and asked for the body 44 of Jesus. Pilate was surprised to hear that he was already dead; so he sent for the centurion and asked him 45 whether it was long since he died. And when he heard the centurion's report,
 he gave Joseph leave to take the dead 46 body. So Joseph bought a linen sheet, took him down from the cross, and wrapped him in the sheet. Then he laid him in a tomb cut out of the rock, and rolled a stone against the entrance 47 And Mary of Magdala and Mary the mother of Joseph were watching and saw where he was laid.

16 When the Sabbath was over, Mary of Magdala, Mary the mother of James,
 and Salome bought<sup>x</sup> aromatic oils in-2 tending to go and anoint him; and very early on the Sunday morning, just after 3 sunrise, they came to the tomb. They were wondering among themselves who would roll away the stone for them from the entrance to the tomb, 4 when they looked up and saw that the stone, huge as it was, had been rolled 5 back already. They went into the tomb, where they saw a youth sitting on the right-hand side, wearing a white robe; 6 and they were dumbfounded. But he said to them, 'Fear nothing; you are looking for Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified. He has been raised again;
 he is not here; look, there is the place 7 where they laid him. But go and give this message to his disciples and Peter:
 "He is going on before you into Galilee;
 there you will see him, as he told you."
 8 Then they went out and ran away from the tomb, beside themselves with terror.

They said nothing to anybody, for they were afraid.<sup>y</sup>

When he had risen from the dead 9
 early on Sunday morning he appeared first to Mary of Magdala, from whom he had formerly cast out seven devils.
 She went and carried the news to 10
 mourning and sorrowful followers, but 11
 when they were told that he was alive and that she had seen him they did not believe it.

Later he appeared in a different guise 12
 to two of them as they were walking, on their way into the country. These 13 also went and took the news to the others, but again no one believed
 them.

Afterwards while the Eleven were at 14
 table he appeared to them and reproached them for their incredulity and dullness, because they had not believed those who had seen him after he was raised from the dead. Then he 15 said to them: 'Go forth to every part of the world, and proclaim the Good 16 News to the whole creation. Those who believe it and receive baptism will find salvation; those who do not believe 17 will be condemned. Faith will bring with it these miracles: believers will cast out devils in my name and speak 18
 in strange tongues; if they handle snakes or drink any deadly poison, they will come to no harm; and the sick on whom they lay their hands will recover.'

So after talking with them the Lord 19 Jesus was taken up into heaven, and he took his seat at the right hand of God;
 but they went out to make their proc- 20
 lamation everywhere, and the Lord

x Some witnesses omit When the Sabbath ... Salome, reading And they went and bought ...

y At this point some of the most ancient witnesses bring the book to a close; others continue with verses 9-20, as printed here, or in some cases expanded with additional matter; yet others insert here the paragraph And they delivered ... eternal salvation (here printed below verse 20), and in one of them this is the conclusion of the book; in the remainder, verses 9-20 follow it.

16.1-20: The empty tomb (Mt.28.1-8; Lk.24.1-9; Jn.20.1-3). 1: The Sabbath ended at sunset on Saturday; compare Lk.23.55-56 n. 3-4: Stone: Mt.27.60 n. 7: See 14.28. Perhaps the verse originally prepared for an account (now lost) of a Galilean appearance; compare Mt.28.16-20; Jn. ch. 21. 8: Textual evidence seems to favor the view that the Gospel ended here (Tfn. y). However, the phrase for they were afraid is more abrupt in Greek than in English, and many scholars believe that there must have been additional material. Vv. 9-20 are found in numerous witnesses. 9-11: Jn.20.11-18; Mt.28.9-10. 12-13: Lk.24.13-35. 14-16: Mt.28.16-20. 19: Lk.24.50-51. 20: However the book may have originally ended (Tfn. y), the Church in which worked with them and confirmed their words by the miracles that followed.

And they delivered all these instructions briefly to Peter and his companions. Afterwards Jesus himself sent out by them from east to west the sacred and imperishable message of eternal salvation.<sup>z</sup> z See note y on page 65.

---

it was cherished was not left in fear (v. 8), but went out to make their proclamation everywhere. If Mk. indeed ended at v. 8, the felt need which prompted additions was the absence of a resurrection appearance (found in Mt.28.18, Lk.24.15-27, and Jn.20.14-17) which is foreshadowed in 14.28, but not thereafter directly narrated. The addition, or additions, provide both a resurrection appearance and also (v. 19) the ascension of the risen Christ to heaven (compare Acts 1.9-11).

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO LUKE

The Gospel of Luke was written about 90 A.D. by a Gentile Christian, one of the first Church writers with a real awareness of himself as a literary figure (see 1.1-4 n). Basic to the design of his work is the place that Luke assigns the career of Jesus in a more comprehensive view of the course of God's dealings with men. Jesus' ministry is the period in terms of which the previous and subsequent history of salvation is given meaning: it is the culmination of ancient Israel's promise and the ground of the Church's hope and life.

After a lengthy introduction (1.1-4.13), Luke describes Jesus' career as a procession that begins in Galilee (4.14-9.50) and moves on the way to Jerusalem (9.51-19.27) where the nature of divine Sonship is fully revealed (19.28-24.53).

But the story of salvation does not end here. It is taken up again in a second volume (Acts of the Apostles) where, in the experience of the Church, the way that once led to Jerusalem now extends to "the ends of the earth" (Acts 1.8).

1 THE AUTHOR TO THEOPHILUS: MANY writers have undertaken to draw up an account of the events that
2 have happened among us, following the traditions handed down to us by the original eyewitnesses and servants
3 of the Gospel. And so I in my turn, your Excellency, as one who has gone over the whole course of these events in detail, have decided to write a
4 connected narrative for you, so as to give you authentic knowledge about the matters of which you have been informed.

The coming of Christ

5 IN THE DAYS OF HEROD KING OF JUDAEA there was a priest named Zechariah, of the division of the priesthood called after Abijah. His wife also was of priestly descent; her name was Elizabeth. Both of them were upright and devout, blamelessly observing all the commandments and ordinances of the 7 Lord. But they had no children, for Elizabeth was barren, and both were well on in years.

Once, when it was the turn of his division and he was there to take part in divine service, it fell to his lot, by priestly custom, to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and offer the incense; and the whole congregation was at prayer outside. It was the hour of the incense-offering. There appeared to him an angel of the Lord standing on the right of the altar of incense. At this sight Zechariah was startled, and fear overcame him. But the angel said to him, 'Do not be afraid, Zechariah; your prayer has been heard: your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you shall name him John. Your heart will thrill with joy and many will be glad that he was born; for he will be great in the eyes of the Lord. He shall never touch wine or strong drink. From his very birth he will be filled with the Holy Spirit; and he will bring back many Israelites to the Lord their God. He will go before him as forerunner,<sup>a</sup> possessed by the spirit and power of Elijah, to reconcile father and child, to convert the rebellious to the ways of

<sup>a</sup> Or In his sight he will go forth.

1.1-4: The preface follows the form customary in the literature of the period (compare Acts 1.1-5). 1: Both this Gospel and Acts are dedicated to an unknown Theophilus (lit. "friend of God"), perhaps a Roman official (v. 3, your Excellency; see Acts 23.26). Many perhaps should be understood as "several" writers. 3: A connected narrative may imply logical, rather than strictly chronological, arrangement.

1.5-80: Preparation for Jesus' birth.

1.5-25: The birth of John the Baptist is promised. 5: There were twenty-four divisions of the priesthood, to whom the privilege of temple service fell by rotation (v. 8). 7: Compare Gen.17.15-18.15. 9: To offer the (morning or evening) incense was a highly cherished honor. 13: John: see vv. 60,63 n. 15: There are OT provisions against wine and strong drink for priests (Lev.10.8-11) and Nazirites (Num.6.1-21). 17: The words spirit and power of Elijah and allusions

- the righteous, to prepare a people that shall be fit for the Lord.'
- 18 Zechariah said to the angel, 'How can I be sure of this? I am an old man and my wife is well on in years.'
- 19 The angel replied, 'I am Gabriel; I stand in attendance upon God, and I have been sent to speak to you and bring you this good news. But now listen: you will lose your power of speech, and remain silent until the day when these things happen to you, because you have not believed me, though at their proper time my words will be proved true.'
- 21 Meanwhile the people were waiting for Zechariah, surprised that he was staying so long inside. When he did come out he could not speak to them, and they realized that he had had a vision in the sanctuary. He stood there making signs to them, and remained dumb.
- 23 When his period of duty was completed Zechariah returned home.
- 24 After this his wife Elizabeth conceived, and for five months she lived in seclusion, thinking, 'This is the Lord's doing; now at last he has deigned to take away my reproach among men.'
- 26 In the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God to a town in Galilee called Nazareth, with a message for a girl betrothed to a man named Joseph, a descendant of David; the girl's name was Mary. The angel went in and said to her, 'Greetings, most favoured one! The Lord is with you.'
- 29 But she was deeply troubled by what he said and wondered what this greeting might mean. Then the angel said to her, 'Do not be afraid, Mary, for God has been gracious to you; you shall conceive and bear a son, and you shall give him the name Jesus. He will be great; he will bear the title "Son of
- the Most High"; the Lord God will give him the throne of his ancestor David, and he will be king over Israel<sup>b</sup> for ever; his reign shall never end.' 'How can this be?' said Mary; 'I am still a virgin.' The angel answered, 'The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; and for that reason the holy child to be born will be called "Son of God".<sup>c</sup> Moreover your kinswoman Elizabeth has herself conceived a son in her old age; and she who is reputed barren is now in her sixth month, for God's promises can never fail.'<sup>d</sup>
- 37 'Here am I,' said Mary; 'I am the Lord's servant; as you have spoken, so be it.' Then the angel left her.
- About this time Mary set out and went straight to a town in the uplands of Judah. She went into Zechariah's house and greeted Elizabeth. And when Elizabeth heard Mary's greeting, the baby stirred in her womb. Then Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit and cried aloud, 'God's blessing is on you above all women, and his blessing is on the fruit of your womb. Who am I, that the mother of my Lord should visit me? I tell you, when your greeting sounded in my ears, the baby in my womb leapt for joy. How happy is she who has had faith that the Lord's promise would be fulfilled!'
- And Mary<sup>e</sup> said:
- 'Tell out, my soul, the greatness of the Lord,
rejoice, rejoice, my spirit, in God my saviour;
- b* Literally the house of Jacob.
c Or the child to be born will be called holy, "Son of God".
d Some witnesses read for with God nothing will prove impossible.
e So the majority of witnesses; some read Elizabeth; the original may have had no name.

to Mal.3.1; 4.5-6 suggest a near identification of the Baptist and Elijah (see Mt.11.14; 17.10-13) not characteristic of Lk. outside this chapter. 19: Gabriel (Dan.8.16-17; 9.21-22) was regarded as the angel of highest rank, especially in the noncanonical book of Enoch. 25: My reproach: the shame associated with barrenness; see 1 Sam.1.1-20; Ps.113.9.

1.26-38: Jesus' birth promised (see Mt.1.18-25). As in Mt., the story speaks of a miraculous birth (vv. 34-35), stresses Joseph's Davidic descent (vv. 27,32), and emphasizes the child's names or titles (vv. 31,32,35). 32: Son of the Most High: a title for the royal Messiah (see Mt.1.1 n.) as is shown by the words, throne of his ancestor David (1 Chr.17.7-14; Isa.11.1-10). 34: Not physical impregnation by a divine being, but a miraculous generation of life through the Spirit is meant.

1.39-56: Mary visits Elizabeth. 43: Lk., as here, frequently uses the title Lord for Jesus; but in

48 so tenderly has he looked upon his servant,
 humble as she is.
 For, from this day forth,
 all generations will count me blessed, 49 so wonderfully has he dealt with me,
 the Lord, the Mighty One.

His name is Holy;
 50 his mercy sure from generation to generation
 toward those who fear him;
 51 the deeds his own right arm has done disclose his might:
 the arrogant of heart and mind he has put to rout, 52 he has brought down monarchs from their thrones,
 but the humble have been lifted
 high.
 53 The hungry he has satisfied with good things,
 the rich sent empty away.

He has ranged himself at the side of Israel his servant;
 55 firm in his promise to our forefathers,
 he has not forgotten to show mercy
 to Abraham
 and his children's children, for
 ever.'

56 Mary stayed with her about three months and then returned home.

57 NOW THE TIME CAME FOR ELIZABETH'S child to be born, and she gave birth 58 to a son. When her neighbours and relatives heard what great favour the Lord had shown her, they were as 59 delighted as she was. Then on the eighth day they came to circumcise the child; and they were going to name 60 him Zechariah after his father. But his mother spoke up and said, 'No! he is 61 to be called John.' 'But', they said,
 'there is nobody in your family who has that name.' They inquired of his 62 father by signs what he would like him to be called. He asked for a writing- 63 tablet and to the astonishment of all wrote down, 'His name is John.'

 Immediately his lips and tongue were 64 freed and he began to speak, praising God. All the neighbours were struck 65 with awe, and everywhere in the uplands of Judaea the whole story became common talk. All who heard 66
 it were deeply impressed and said,
 'What will this child become?' For indeed the hand of the Lord was upon him.<sup>f</sup>

And Zechariah his father was filled 67 with the Holy Spirit and uttered this
 prophecy:

'Praise to the God of Israel! 68
 For he has turned to his people, saved
 them and set them free,
 and has raised up a deliverer of 69
 victorious power
 from the house of his servant
 David.

So he promised: age after age he 70 proclaimed
 by the lips of his holy prophets, that he would deliver us from our 71
 enemies,
 out of the hands of all who hate us;
 that he would deal mercifully with 72
 our fathers,
 calling to mind his solemn
 covenant.

Such was the oath he swore to our 73
 father Abraham,
 to rescue us from enemy hands, 74
 and grant us, free from fear, to worship him
 with a holy worship, with 75
 uprightness of heart,
 in his presence our whole life long.

<sup>f</sup> Some witnesses read 'What will this child become, for indeed the hand of the Lord is upon him?'

vv. 45-46 it refers to God. 46-55: The "Magnificat" reads like a very old hymn celebrating God's goodness to Israel (vv. 54-55); compare 1 Sam.2.1-10. 59: Circumcision on the eighth day was prescribed in the Law (Lev.12.3; Lk.2.21). 60,63: The emphasis shows that the meaning of the name John ("God is gracious") is important.

1.67-79: The "Benedictus" celebrates the coming of the royal Messiah (v. 69), the fulfillment of the promise to Abraham (vv. 73-75), and John's Elijah-like commission (vv. 76-77; Mal.3.1; Isa.40.3; see v. 17 n.).

76 And you, my child, you shall be called Prophet of the Highest, for you will be the Lord's forerunner to prepare his way
77 and lead his people to salvation
through knowledge of him,
by the forgiveness of their sins:
78 for in the tender compassion of our God
the morning sun from heaven
will rise<sup>g</sup> upon us, 79 to shine on those who live in darkness,
under the cloud of death,
and to guide our feet into the way of peace.<sup>h</sup>

80 As the child grew up he became strong in spirit; he lived out in the wilds until the day when he appeared publicly before Israel.

2 IN THOSE DAYS A DECREE WAS ISSUED BY the Emperor Augustus for a registration to be made throughout the 2 Roman world. This was the first registration of its kind; it took place when Quirinius<sup>h</sup> was governor of 3 Syria. For this purpose everyone made
4 his way to his own town; and so Joseph went up to Judaea from the 5 town of Nazareth in Galilee, to register at the city of David, called Bethlehem, because he was of the house of David by descent; and with him went Mary who was betrothed to 6 him. She was expecting a child, and while they were there the time came 7 for her baby to be born, and she gave birth to a son, her first-born. She wrapped him in his swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them to lodge in the house.

8 Now in this same district there were shepherds out in the fields, keeping watch through the night over their 9 flock, when suddenly there stood before them an angel of the Lord, and the splendour of the Lord shone round

them. They were terror-stricken, but 10 the angel said, 'Do not be afraid; I have good news for you: there is great joy coming to the whole people.
Today in the city of David a deliverer 11
has been born to you—the Messiah, the Lord.<sup>i</sup> And this is your sign: you 12 will find a baby lying wrapped in his swaddling clothes, in a manger.' All at 13 once there was with the angel a great company of the heavenly host, singing
the praises of God:

'Glory to God in highest heaven, 14
and on earth his peace for men on whom his favour rests.'<sup>j</sup>

After the angels had left them and 15 gone into heaven the shepherds said to one another, 'Come, we must go straight to Bethlehem and see this thing that has happened, which the 16 Lord has made known to us.' So they went with all speed and found their way to Mary and Joseph; and the baby was lying in the manger. When 17 they saw him, they recounted what they had been told about this child; and all 18 who heard were astonished at what the shepherds said. But Mary treasured up 19 all these things and pondered over them. Meanwhile the shepherds re- 20 turned glorifying and praising God for what they had heard and seen; it had all happened as they had been told.

Eight days later the time came to 21
circumcise him, and he was given the name Jesus, the name given by the angel before he was conceived.

Then, after their purification had 22 been completed in accordance with the Law of Moses, they brought him up to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord (as prescribed in the law of the 23

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses read has risen.

<sup>h</sup> Or This was the first registration carried out while Quirinius . . .

<sup>i</sup> Some witnesses read to you—the Lord's Messiah.

<sup>j</sup> Some witnesses read and on earth his peace, his favour towards men.

2.1–40: The birth of Jesus. 1: Augustus reigned from 30 B.C. to 14 A.D. 2: The registration under Quirinius is dated in 6 or 7 A.D. by the first-century Jewish historian Josephus. 7: The first-born belong to God and must be redeemed (Exod.13.1–2,12–13); see vv. 22–24. Swaddling clothes: the cloth strips with which infants were wrapped. A manger (or small feed trough) would serve well as a crib. 11: Deliverer (or, "Savior") may be a play on the name Jesus; compare Mt.1.21. Lord: see 1.43 n. 13: The angel who brings the message is joined by a great company (compare Dan.7.10). 21: Eight days: see 1.59 n. On Jesus, see v. 11 n. 22–24: See v. 7 n.;

Lord: 'Every first-born male shall be deemed to belong to the Lord'), and also to make the offering as stated in the law: 'A pair of turtle doves or two young pigeons.'

There was at that time in Jerusalem a man called Simeon. This man was upright and devout, one who watched and waited for the restoration of Israel, and the Holy Spirit was upon him. It had been disclosed to him by the Holy Spirit that he would not see death until he had seen the Lord's Messiah. Guided by the Spirit he came into the temple; and when the parents brought in the child Jesus to do for him what was customary under the Law, he took him in his arms, praised God, and said:

'This day, Master, thou givest thy servant his discharge in peace; now thy promise is fulfilled. For I have seen with my own eyes the deliverance which thou hast made ready in full view of all the nations: a light that will be a revelation to the heathen, and glory to thy people Israel.'

The child's father and mother were full of wonder at what was being said about him. Simeon blessed them and said to Mary his mother, 'This child is destined to be a sign which men reject; and you too shall be pierced to the heart. Many in Israel will stand or fall<sup>k</sup> because of him, and thus the secret thoughts of many will be laid bare.'

There was also a prophetess, Anna the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher. She was a very old woman, who had lived seven years with her husband after she was first married, and then alone as a widow to the age of eighty-four.<sup>l</sup> She never left the temple, but worshipped day and night, fasting and praying. Coming up at that very moment, she returned thanks to God; and she talked about the child to all who were looking for the liberation of Jerusalem.

When they had done everything prescribed in the law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee to their own town of Nazareth. The child grew big and strong and full of wisdom; and God's favour was upon him.

Now it was the practice of his parents to go to Jerusalem every year for the Passover festival; and when he was twelve, they made the pilgrimage as usual. When the festive season was over and they started for home, the boy Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem. His parents did not know of this; but thinking that he was with the party they journeyed on for a whole day, and only then did they begin looking for him among their friends and relations. As they could not find him they returned to Jerusalem to look for him; and after three days they found him sitting in the temple surrounded by the teachers, listening to them and putting questions; and all who heard him were amazed at his intelligence and the answers he gave. His parents were astonished to see him there, and his mother said to him, 'My son, why have you treated us like this? Your father and I have been searching for you in great anxiety.' 'What made you search?' he said. 'Did you not know that I was bound to be in my Father's house?' But they did not understand what he meant. Then he went back with them to Nazareth, and continued to be under their authority; his mother treasured up all these things in her heart. As Jesus grew up he advanced in wisdom and in favour with God and men.

<sup>k</sup> Or Many in Israel will fall and rise again . . .

<sup>l</sup> Or widow for another eighty-four years.

Lev.12.1-8. 25-26: The restoration of Israel was expected of the Messiah (see Acts 1.6). 29: Discharge suggests "liberation." 31-32: The Messiah's function beyond Israel is stated in terms of Isa.52.10; 42.6; 49.6. 38: Liberation of Jerusalem: see vv. 25-26 n.

2.41-52: Jesus in the Temple as a boy. 41: Deut.16.16 required Jewish men to be in Jerusalem every year for the Passover festival, which celebrated Israel's escape from Egypt (Exod. ch. 12). 52: Wisdom (also v. 40) is a complex term which includes such meanings as "practical knowledge about life," "knowledge of the Law," and "revealed knowledge."

3 IN THE FIFTEENTH YEAR OF THE EMPEROR Tiberius, when Pontius Pilate was governor of Judaea, when Herod was prince of Galilee, his brother Philip prince of Ituraea and Trachonitis, and
 2 Lysanias prince of Abilene, during the high-priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas, the word of God came to John son of Zechariah in the wilderness.
 3 And he went all over the Jordan valley proclaiming a baptism in token of repentance for the forgiveness of 4 sins, as it is written in the book of the prophecies of Isaiah:

‘A voice crying aloud in the wilderness, “Prepare a way for the Lord;
 clear a straight path for him.

5 Every ravine shall be filled in,
 and every mountain and hill levelled;
 the corners shall be straightened,
 and the rugged ways made smooth;
 6 and all mankind shall see God’s deliverance.”’

7 Crowds of people came out to be baptized by him, and he said to them: ‘You vipers’ brood! Who warned you to escape from the coming retribution?
 8 Then prove your repentance by the fruit it bears; and do not begin saying to yourselves, “We have Abraham for our father.” I tell you that God can make children for Abraham out of 9 these stones here. Already the axe is laid to the roots of the trees; and every tree that fails to produce good fruit is cut down and thrown on the fire.’
 10 The people asked him, “Then what 11 are we to do?” He replied, “The man with two shirts must share with him who has none, and anyone who has food must do the same.’ Among those 12 who came to be baptized were tax-gatherers, and they said to him, ‘Master, what are we to do?’ He told 13 them, ‘Exact no more than the assessment.’ Soldiers on service also asked 14 him, ‘And what of us?’ To them he said, ‘No bullying; no blackmail; make do with your pay!’

The people were on the tiptoe of 15 expectation, all wondering about John, whether perhaps he was the Messiah, but he spoke out and said to them all:
 16 ‘I baptize you with water; but there is one to come who is mightier than I. I am not fit to unfasten his shoes. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire. His shovel is ready in his 17 hand, to winnow his threshing-floor and gather the wheat into his granary; but he will burn the chaff on a fire that can never go out.’

In this and many other ways he made 18 his appeal to the people and announced the good news. But Prince Herod, when 19 he was rebuked by him over the affair of his brother’s wife Herodias and for his other misdeeds, crowned them all 20 by shutting John up in prison.

DURING A GENERAL BAPTISM OF THE 21 people, when Jesus too had been baptized and was praying, heaven opened and the Holy Spirit descended
 22 on him in bodily form like a dove; and there came a voice from heaven, ‘Thou art my Son, my Beloved;<sup>m</sup> on thee my favour rests.’<sup>n</sup>

When Jesus began his work he was 23

m Or Thou art my only Son.

n Some witnesses read My Son art thou; this day I have begotten thee.

3.1–20: The work of the Baptist. (Mt.3.1–12; Mk.1.1–8; Jn.1.6,15,19–28). 1: Tiberius’ fifteenth year: 27 A.D. Roman governors ruled Judaea after 6 A.D.; Pilate’s tenure covered 26–36. Herod Antipas (a son of Herod the Great), who ruled Galilee and Perea, is meant. 2: Annas was an influential former high priest; Caiaphas, his son-in-law, was high priest during Pilate’s governorship. Wilderness: see Mt.3.1 n. 3: Baptism: see Mt.3.7 n. 4–6: Isa.40.3–5. 8: Descendants of Abraham share the promise made to him (Gen.17.4–8; 22.18). 12: Tax-gatherers were private citizens who contracted with the Roman authorities to collect duties in a specific area; Jews who engaged in this “business” were regarded as traitors. 15–16: See Mk.1.7 n. 16: With the Holy Spirit and with fire probably originally meant “with divine power and judgment”; for Lk., fire is symbolically identified with Spirit (see Acts 1.5; 2.1–5). 19: See Mk.6.17–20.

3.21–22: The baptism of Jesus (Mt.3.13–17; Mk.1.9–11 n.; Jn.1.32–34). 21: Jesus’ praying is frequently mentioned by Lk. (e.g. 5.16; 9.18). 22: Spirit, dove: see Mt.3.16 n. Beloved: see Mk.1.11 n.

3.23–38: Genealogy of Jesus (compare Mt.1.1–17). V. 20 formally closes the career of the Baptist; with v. 21 attention turns exclusively to Jesus whose genealogy is given. 23: Thirty about thirty years old, the son, as people thought, of Joseph, son of Heli, 24 son of Matthat, son of Levi, son of 25 Melchi, son of Jannai, son of Joseph,

 26 son of Mattathiah, son of Amos, son
 27 of Nahum, son of Esli, son of Naggai,
 28 son of Maath, son of Mattathiah, son
 29 of Semein, son of Josech, son of Joda, 30 son of Johanan, son of Rhesa, son of 31 Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, son of 32 Neri, son of Melchi, son of Addi, son
 33 of Cosam, son of Elmadam, son of Er, 34 son of Joshua, son of Eliezer, son of 35 Jorim, son of Matthat, son of Levi, 36 son of Symeon, son of Judah, son of 37 Joseph, son of Jonam, son of Eliakim, 38 son of Melea, son of Menna, son of 39 Mattatha, son of Nathan, son of 40 David, son of Jesse, son of Obed, son 41 of Boaz, son of Salmon, son of 42 Nahshon, son of Amminadab,<sup>o</sup> son of 43 Arni,<sup>p</sup> son of Hezron, son of Perez, 44 son of Judah, son of Jacob, son of 45 Isaac, son of Abraham, son of Terah, 46 son of Nahor, son of Serug, son of 47 Reu, son of Peleg, son of Eber, son of 48 Shelah, son of Cainan, son of Arpach-49 shad, son of Shem, son of Noah, son
 50 of Lamech, son of Methuselah, son of 51 Enoch, son of Jared, son of Mahalaleel, 52 son of Cainan, son of Enosh, son of 53 Seth, son of Adam, son of God.

4 Full of the Holy Spirit, Jesus
 2 returned from the Jordan, and for 3 forty days was led by the Spirit up and 4 down the wilderness and tempted by 5 the devil.

All that time he had nothing to eat,
 and at the end of it he was famished.
 3 The devil said to him, 'If you are the 4 Son of God, tell this stone to become 5 bread.' Jesus answered, 'Scripture says, "Man cannot live on bread alone."<sup>o</sup>

5 Next the devil led him up and showed him in a flash all the kingdoms of the world. 'All this dominion will I 6 give to you,' he said, 'and the glory that goes with it; for it has been put in my hands and I can give it to anyone I choose. You have only to do 7 homage to me and it shall all be yours.' Jesus answered him, 'Scripture 8 says, "You shall do homage to the Lord your God and worship him alone."<sup>o</sup>

The devil took him to Jerusalem and 9 set him on the parapet of the temple.
 'If you are the Son of God,' he said,
 'throw yourself down; for Scripture 10 says, "He will give his angels orders to take care of you"; and again, "They 11 will support you in their arms for fear
 you should strike your foot against a stone."<sup>o</sup>' Jesus answered him, 'It has 12 been said, "You are not to put the Lord your God to the test."<sup>o</sup>

So, having come to the end of all his 13 temptations, the devil departed, biding his time.

In Galilee: success and opposition

THEN JESUS, ARMED WITH THE POWER 14 of the Spirit, returned to Galilee; and reports about him spread through the whole country-side. He taught in their 15 synagogues and all men sang his praises.

So he came to Nazareth, where he 16 had been brought up, and went to synagogue on the Sabbath day as he regularly did. He stood up to read the lesson and was handed the scroll of the 17 prophet Isaiah. He opened the scroll and found the passage which says,

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses add son of Admin.

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses read Aram; Ruth 4. 19 and 1 Chronicles
 2. 9 have Ram.

years old would mean shortly after 25 A.D., reckoning from Herod's death in 4 B.C. (Mt.2.1-20.) 31: While descent from David is still important for the Messiah (Mt.1.1 n.), vv. 23-31 do not trace Jesus' ancestry through David's royal progeny (as does Mt.1.6-11). 38: The genealogy extends beyond Abraham (i.e. beyond the Jewish limits of Mt.1.1-17) to Adam, son of God, perhaps to affirm Jesus' kinship with all mankind.

4.1-13: The temptation (Mt.4.1-11; Mk.1.12-13). Except for a different sequence of temptations, the account closely parallels Mt. 4.1-11 (see notes there). 13: Biding his time implies the later renewal of the contest (see 22.3,28,31).

4.14-15: Jesus appears in Galilee (Mt.4.12-17; Mk.1.14-15). 14: In Jesus' ministry, the Spirit is uniquely operative (3.22; 4.1,18-21). The phrase returned to Galilee, i.e. home (see 2.39), prepares for the scene in vv. 16-30. 15: Taught in their synagogues: see Mt.9.35.

4.16-30: Jesus in Nazareth (compare Mt.13.54-58; Mk.6.1-6). 16: Only Lk. places the Nazareth visit at the beginning of Jesus' ministry. The synagogue was a place for instruction

18 'The spirit of the Lord is upon me because he has anointed me;
he has sent me to announce good news to the poor,
to proclaim release for prisoners and
recovery of sight for the blind;
to let the broken victims go free, 19 to proclaim the year of the Lord's favour.'

20 He rolled up the scroll, gave it back to the attendant, and sat down; and all eyes in the synagogue were fixed on
him.

21 He began to speak: 'Today', he said,
'in your very hearing this text has come 22 true.'<sup>q</sup> There was a general stir of admiration; they were surprised that words of such grace should fall from his lips. 'Is not this Joseph's son?' they 23 asked. Then Jesus said, 'No doubt you will quote the proverb to me,
"Physician, heal yourself!", and say,
"We have heard of all your doings at Capernaum; do the same here in your 24 own home town." I tell you this,' he went on: 'no prophet is recognized in 25 his own country. There were many widows in Israel, you may be sure, in Elijah's time, when for three years and six months the skies never opened, and famine lay hard over the whole country;
26 yet it was to none of those that Elijah was sent, but to a widow at Sarepta in the territory of Sidon. Again, in the 27 time of the prophet Elisha there were many lepers in Israel, and not one of them was healed, but only Naaman, 28 the Syrian.' At these words the whole 29 congregation were infuriated. They leapt up, threw him out of the town,
and took him to the brow of the hill
on which it was built, meaning to hurl 30 him over the edge. But he walked straight through them all, and went away.

31 Coming down to Capernaum, a town in Galilee, he taught the people on 32 the Sabbath, and they were astounded

at his teaching, for what he said had the note of authority. Now there was a 33 man in the synagogue possessed by a devil, an unclean spirit. He shrieked at the top of his voice, 'What do you 34 want with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you<sup>r</sup> come to destroy us? I know who you are—the Holy One of God.' Jesus rebuked him: 'Be silent', he said, 35 'and come out of him.' Then the devil, after throwing the man down in front of the people, left him without doing him any injury. Amazement fell on 36 them all and they said to one another:
'What is there in this man's words? He gives orders to the unclean spirits with authority and power, and out they go.'
So the news spread, and he was the 37 talk of the whole district.

On leaving the synagogue he went to 38 Simon's house. Simon's mother-in-law was in the grip of a high fever; and they asked him to help her. He came and 39 stood over her and rebuked the fever.
It left her, and she got up at once and waited on them.

At sunset all who had friends
40 suffering from one disease or another brought them to him; and he laid his hands on them one by one and cured them. Devils also came out of many of 41 them, shouting, 'You are the Son of God.' But he rebuked them and forbade them to speak, because they knew that he was the Messiah.

When day broke he went out and 42 made his way to a lonely spot. But the people went in search of him, and when they came to where he was they pressed him not to leave them. But he 43 said, 'I must give the good news of the kingdom of God to the other towns
also, for that is what I was sent to do.'
So he proclaimed the Gospel in the 44 synagogues of Judaea.<sup>s</sup>

<sup>q</sup> Or 'Today', he said, 'this text which you have just heard has come true.'

<sup>r</sup> Or 'You have.'

<sup>s</sup> Or the Jewish synagogues: some witnesses read the synagogues of Galilee.

in the Law and for nonsacrificial worship. Sabbath begins at sunset on Friday. 18-19: Isa. 61.1-2; 58.6. 18: Spirit: see 4.14 n. 20: Sat: see Mt.5.1 n. 25-27: Two OT examples of God's goodness to non-Israelites are cited (1 Kgs. ch. 17; 2 Kgs.5.1-19), thus emphasizing the universal reach of Jesus' mission.

4.31-44: Jesus in Capernaum (Mt.8.14-17; Mk.1.21-38). 33: Devil: see Mk.1.23 n. 38: Simon: Peter (see Mt.4.18). 40: Sunset on Saturday marks the end of Sabbath; see v. 16 n. 44: For Lk., Judaea sometimes means the entire "Holy Land" (including Galilee).

5 One day as he stood by the Lake of Gennesaret, and the people crowded
 upon him to listen to the word of God, 2 he noticed two boats lying at the water's edge; the fishermen had come ashore and were washing their nets.
 3 He got into one of the boats, which belonged to Simon, and asked him to put out a little way from the shore;
 then he went on teaching the crowds 4 from his seat in the boat. When he had finished speaking, he said to Simon,
 'Put out into deep water and let down
 5 your nets for a catch.' Simon answered,
 'Master, we were hard at work all night and caught nothing at all; but if you say so, I will let down the nets.'
 6 They did so and made a big haul of 7 fish; and their nets began to split. So they signalled to their partners in the other boat to come and help them.
 This they did, and loaded both boats
 8 to the point of sinking. When Simon saw what had happened he fell at Jesus's knees and said, 'Go, Lord, 9 leave me, sinner that I am!' For he and all his companions were amazed at the catch they had made; so too were his partners James and John, Zebedee's sons. 'Do not be afraid,' said Jesus to Simon; 'from now on you will be 11 catching men.' As soon as they had brought the boats to land, they left everything and followed him.
 12 He was once in a certain town where there happened to be a man covered with leprosy; seeing Jesus, he bowed to the ground and begged his help.
 'Sir,' he said, 'if only you will, you can 13 cleanse me.' Jesus stretched out his hand, touched him, and said, 'Indeed
 I will; be clean again.' The leprosy left 14 him immediately. Jesus then ordered him not to tell anybody. 'But go,' he said, 'show yourself to the priest, and make the offering laid down by Moses for your cleansing; that will certify the 15 cure.' But the talk about him spread all the more; great crowds gathered to hear him and to be cured of their ailments. And from time to time he would withdraw to lonely places for prayer.

One day he was teaching, and 17
 Pharisees and teachers of the law were sitting round. People had come from every village of Galilee and from Judaea and Jerusalem,† and the power of the Lord was with him to heal the sick. Some men appeared carrying a 18 paralysed man on a bed. They tried to bring him in and set him down in front of Jesus, but finding no way to 19
 do so because of the crowd, they went up on to the roof and let him down through the tiling, bed and all, into the middle of the company in front of Jesus. When Jesus saw their faith, he 20 said, 'Man, your sins are forgiven you.'

The lawyers and the Pharisees began 21 saying to themselves, 'Who is this fellow with his blasphemous talk? Who but God alone can forgive sins?' But 22 Jesus knew what they were thinking and answered them: 'Why do you harbour thoughts like these? Is it 23 easier to say, "Your sins are forgiven
 you", or to say, "Stand up and walk"?
 But to convince you that the Son of 24
 Man has the right on earth to forgive sins—he turned to the paralysed man
 —'I say to you, stand up, take your bed, and go home.' And at once he 25 rose to his feet before their eyes, took up the bed he had been lying on, and went home praising God. They were 26
 all lost in amazement and praised God;
 filled with awe they said, 'You would never believe the things we have seen
 today.'

Later, when he went out, he saw a 27
 tax-gatherer, Levi by name, at his seat
 in the custom-house, and said to him,
 'Follow me'; and he rose to his feet, 28
 left everything behind, and followed
 him.

† Some witnesses read and Pharisees and teachers of the law, who had come from every village of Galilee and from Judaea and Jerusalem, were sitting round.

5.1–11: The first disciples called (compare Mt.4.18–22; Mk.1.16–20; Jn.1.35–51; 21.1–8).
 1: Lake of Gennesaret: Sea of Galilee.

5.12–16: A leper healed (Mt.8.1–4; Mk.1.40–45). 12: Leprosy, cleanse: see Mt.8.2 n. 14: See Lev.14.1–32. 16: Prayer: see 3.21 n.

5.17–6.11: Healing and conflict.

5.17–26: A paralytic (Mt.9.1–8; Mk.2.1–12). 17: Power may mean "Spirit"; see 4.14 n.
 19: Tiling: compare Mk.2.4 n. 21: Lawyers: see Mt.2.4 n. 24: Son of Man: see Mk.2.10 n.

5.27–32: Friend of outcasts (Mt.9.9–13; Mk.2.13–17). 27: A tax-gatherer was despised; see 3.12 n.

29 Afterwards Levi held a big reception in his house for Jesus; among the 30 guests was a large party of tax-gatherers and others. The Pharisees and the lawyers of their sect com-31 plained to his disciples: 'Why do you eat and drink', they said, 'with tax-gatherers and sinners?' Jesus answered 32 them: 'It is not the healthy that need a doctor, but the sick; I have not come to invite virtuous people, but to call sinners to repentance.'

33 Then they said to him, 'John's disciples are much given to fasting and the practice of prayer, and so are the disciples of the Pharisees; but yours 34 eat and drink.' Jesus replied, 'Can you make the bridegroom's friends fast
while the bridegroom is with them?
35 But a time will come: the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and that will be the time for them to fast.'

36 He told them this parable also: 'No one tears a piece from a new cloak to 37 patch an old one: if he does, he will have made a hole in the new cloak, and the patch from the new will not match the old. Nor does anyone put new wine into old wine-skins; if he does,
the new wine will burst the skins, the wine will be wasted, and the skins 38, 39 ruined. Fresh skins for new wine! And no one after drinking old wine wants new; for he says, "The old wine is good."'

6 One Sabbath he was going through the cornfields, and his disciples were 2 plucking the ears of corn, rubbing them in their hands, and eating them. Some of the Pharisees said, 'Why are you 3 doing what is forbidden on the Sabbath?' Jesus answered, 'So you 4 have not read what David did when he and his men were hungry? He went into the House of God and took the sacred bread to eat and gave it to his men, though priests alone are allowed to eat it, and no one else.' He also 5 said, 'The Son of Man is sovereign even over the Sabbath.'

On another Sabbath he had gone to 6 synagogue and was teaching. There happened to be a man in the congregation whose right arm was withered; 7
and the lawyers and the Pharisees were on the watch to see whether Jesus would cure him on the Sabbath, so that they could find a charge to bring against him. But he knew what was in their 8 minds and said to the man with the withered arm, 'Get up and stand out here.' So he got up and stood there.
Then Jesus said to them, 'I put the 9 question to you: is it permitted to do good or to do evil on the Sabbath, to save life or to destroy it?' He looked 10 round at them all and then said to the man, 'Stretch out your arm.' He did so, and his arm was restored. But they 11 were beside themselves with anger, and began to discuss among themselves
what they could do to Jesus.

During this time he went out one 12 day into the hills to pray, and spent the night in prayer to God. When day 13 broke he called his disciples to him,
and from among them he chose twelve and named them Apostles: Simon, 14 to whom he gave the name of Peter, and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew, Matthew and 15 Thomas, James son of Alphaeus, and Simon who was called the Zealot,
Judas son of James, and Judas Iscariot
16 who turned traitor.

He came down the hill with them
17 and took his stand on level ground.
There was a large concourse of his disciples and great numbers of people from Jerusalem and Judaea and from 29: Reception: only Lk. clearly places the dinner in Levi's house (compare Mt.9.10; Mk.2.15).

5.33-39: Fasting and prayer (Mt.9.14-17; Mk.2.18-22). 33: John's disciples: see Mk.2.18 n.
36-38: See Mk.2.21-22 n. 39: This may have been intended as sarcastic comment about the preference of Jesus' opponents for the old ways.

6.1-11: Sabbath controversy (Mt.12.1-14; Mk.2.23-3.6). See Mk.2.23-3.6 n. 1: Deut.23.25.
2: Exod.20.10; Deut.5.14. 3: 1 Sam.21.1-7. 4: Lev.24.7-9. 7-11: See Mk.3.1-6 n.

6.12-16: The Twelve chosen (Mt.10.1-4; Mk.3.13-19). The choosing of the Twelve is a prelude to the sermon which follows; notice again the reference to prayer (3.21 n.). 13: Apostles:
see Mt.10.2 n. 15: Zealot: Mk.3.18 n.

6.17-49: Sermon on the Plain. The Sermon in Lk. includes sayings also found in the Sermon on the Mount in Mt. chs. 5-7.

6.17-19: The setting. See Mt.4.25; 12.15-21; Mk.3.7-12. 17: Contrast Mt.5.1. Lk. thinks of mountains for settings requiring privacy; public teaching tends to take place on level ground.

the seaboard of Tyre and Sidon, who had come to listen to him, and to be cured of their diseases. Those who were troubled with unclean spirits were cured; and everyone in the crowd was trying to touch him, because power went out from him and cured them all.

20 THEN TURNING TO HIS DISCIPLES HE began to speak:

'How blest are you who are in need; the kingdom of God is yours.

21 'How blest are you who now go hungry; your hunger shall be satisfied.

'How blest are you who weep now; you shall laugh.

22 'How blest you are when men hate you, when they outlaw you and insult you, and ban your very name as infamous, because of the Son of Man. 23 On that day be glad and dance for joy; for assuredly you have a rich reward in heaven; in just the same way did their fathers treat the prophets.

24 'But alas for you who are rich; you have had your time of happiness.

25 'Alas for you who are well-fed now; you shall go hungry.

'Alas for you who laugh now; you shall mourn and weep.

26 'Alas for you when all speak well of you; just so did their fathers treat the false prophets.

27 'But to you who hear me I say:

'Love your enemies; do good to those who hate you; bless those who curse you; pray for those who treat you spitefully. When a man hits you on the cheek, offer him the other cheek too; when a man takes your coat, let him have your shirt as well. Give to everyone who asks you; when a man takes what is yours, do not demand it back. Treat others as you would like them to treat you.

32 'If you love only those who love you, what credit is that to you? Even sinners love those who love them. Again, if you do good only to those who do good to you, what credit is that to you? Even sinners do as much. And if you lend only where you expect to be repaid, what credit is that to you? Even sinners lend to each other to be repaid in full. But you must love your enemies and do good; and lend without expecting any return;<sup>u</sup> and you will have a rich reward: you will be sons of the Most High, because he himself is kind to the ungrateful and wicked. Be compassionate as your Father is compassionate.

'Pass no judgement, and you will not be judged; do not condemn, and you will not be condemned; acquit, and you will be acquitted; give, and gifts will be given you. Good measure, pressed down, shaken together, and running over, will be poured into your lap; for whatever measure you deal out to others will be dealt to you in return.'

He also offered them a parable: 'Can one blind man be guide to another? Will they not both fall into the ditch? A pupil is not superior to his teacher; but everyone, when his training is complete, will reach his teacher's level.

'Why do you look at the speck of sawdust in your brother's eye, with never a thought for the great plank in your own? How can you say to your brother, "My dear brother, let me take the speck out of your eye", when you are blind to the plank in your own? You hypocrite! First take the plank out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your brother's.

'There is no such thing as a good

<sup>u</sup> Or without ever giving up hope; some witnesses read without giving up hope of anyone.

6.20-23: The Beatitudes (Mt.5.3-12). On form, see Mt.5.3 n. Unlike Mt., Lk. reports all these Beatitudes in the second person. Also, Lk. does not "spiritualize" the conditions described as "blest"; see vv. 24-26 n.

6.24-26: The Woes (Alas for you . . .) represent a form which warns against qualities of life or types of behavior that have bad consequences; here, the warning has been heightened to eschatological threat. As vv. 20,21,24,25 show, in need and hungry are understood literally by Lk.; contrast Mt.5.3 n., 6 n.

6.27-36: Love of enemies (Mt.5.39-42,44-48). 31: The Golden Rule; see Mt.7.12 n. 35: Sonship is shown in behavior that conforms to God's dealing with men.

6.37-46: Judging others (Mt.7.1-5). 39: Mt.15.14. 40: Mt.10.24-25; Jn.13.16. 43-46: Proof of goodness (Mt.7.16-21; 12.33-35).

tree producing worthless fruit, nor yet a worthless tree producing good fruit.
 44 For each tree is known by its own fruit: you do not gather figs from thistles, and you do not pick grapes
 45 from brambles. A good man produces good from the store of good within himself; and an evil man from evil within produces evil. For the words that the mouth utters come from the overflowing of the heart.
 46 'Why do you keep calling me "Lord, Lord"—and never do what I tell you?
 47 Everyone who comes to me and hears what I say, and acts upon it—I will 48 show you what he is like. He is like a man who, in building his house, dug deep and laid the foundations on rock. When the flood came, the river burst upon that house, but could not shift it,
 49 because it had been soundly built. But he who hears and does not act is like a man who built his house on the soil without foundations. As soon as the river burst upon it, the house collapsed, and fell with a great crash.'

7 WHEN HE HAD FINISHED ADDRESSING the people, he went to Capernaum. A centurion there had a servant whom he valued highly; this servant was ill and near to death. Hearing about Jesus, he sent some Jewish elders with the request that he would come and save his servant's life. They approached Jesus and pressed their petition earnestly: 'He deserves this favour from you,' they said, 'for he is a friend of our nation and it is he who built us our synagogue.' Jesus went with them; but when he was not far from the house, the centurion sent friends with this message: 'Do not trouble further, sir; it is not for me to have you under my roof, and that is why I did not presume to approach you in person. But say the word and my servant will be cured. I know, for in my position I am myself under orders, with soldiers under me. I say to one, "Go", and he goes; to another, "Come here", and he comes; and to my servant, "Do this", and he does it.' When Jesus heard this, he admired the man, and, turning to the crowd that was following him, he said, 'I tell you, nowhere, even in Israel, have I found faith like this.' And the messengers returned to the house and found the servant in good health.

Afterwards Jesus went to a town called Nain, accompanied by his disciples and a large crowd. As he approached the gate of the town he met a funeral. The dead man was the only son of his widowed mother; and many of the townspeople were there with her. When the Lord saw her his heart went out to her, and he said, 'Weep no more.' With that he stepped forward and laid his hand on the bier; and the bearers halted. Then he spoke: 'Young man, rise up!' The dead man sat up and began to speak; and Jesus gave him back to his mother. Deep awe fell upon them all, and they praised God. 'A great prophet has arisen among us', they said, and again, 'God has shown his care for his people.' The story of what he had done ran through all parts of Judaea and the whole neighbourhood.

John too was informed of all this by his disciples. Summoning two of their number he sent them to the Lord with this message: 'Are you the one who is to come, or are we to expect some other?' The messengers made their way to Jesus and said, 'John the Baptist has sent us to you: he asks, "Are you the one who is to come, or are we to expect some other?"' There and then he cured many sufferers from diseases, plagues, and evil spirits; and on many blind people he bestowed sight. Then he gave them his answer: 'Go', he said, 'and tell John what you

v Some witnesses read On the next day.

6.47-49: The wise and foolish builders (Mt.7.24-27).

7.1-10: The centurion's servant (Mt.8.5-13). 2: Centurion: see Mt.8.5 n. In Lk., the sick person is clearly a servant; compare Mt.8.5 n.

7.11-17: The widow's son. Compare 1 Kgs.17.17-24; 2 Kgs.4.32-37.

7.18-35: Jesus and John the Baptist (Mt.11.2-19). The passage advances high claims for both Jesus and the Baptist. John's question (v. 19) elicits not only Jesus' testimony about his own works (vv. 22-23), but also his commendation of the Baptist (vv. 24-28). Vv. 22-23 are based on have seen and heard: how the blind recover their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are made clean, the deaf hear, the dead are raised to life, the poor are hearing the good news—and happy is the man who does not find me a stumbling-block.’

24 After John’s messengers had left, Jesus began to speak about him to the crowds: ‘What was the spectacle that drew you to the wilderness? A reed-bed swept by the wind? No? Then what did you go out to see? A man dressed in silks and satins? Surely you must look in palaces for grand clothes and luxury. But what did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes indeed, and far more than a prophet. He is the man of whom Scripture says,

“Here is my herald, whom I send on ahead of you,
and he will prepare your way before you.”

28 I tell you, there is not a mother’s son greater than John, and yet the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.’

29 When they heard him, all the people, including the tax-gatherers, praised God, for they had accepted John’s baptism; but the Pharisees and lawyers, who refused his baptism, had rejected<sup>w</sup> God’s purpose for themselves.

31 ‘How can I describe the people of this generation? What are they like? 32 They are like children sitting in the market-place and shouting at each other,

“We piped for you and you would not dance.”

“We wept and wailed, and you would not mourn.”

33 For John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you say, “He is possessed.” The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and you say, “Look at him! a glutton and a drinker, a friend of tax-gatherers and sinners!” And yet God’s wisdom is proved right by all who are her children.’

One of the Pharisees invited him to eat with him; he went to the Pharisee’s house and took his place at table. A woman who was living an immoral life in the town had learned that Jesus was at table in the Pharisee’s house and had brought oil of myrrh in a small flask. She took her place behind him, by his feet, weeping. His feet were wetted with her tears and she wiped them with her hair, kissing them and anointing them with the myrrh. When his host the Pharisee saw this he said to himself, ‘If this fellow were a real prophet, he would know who this woman is that touches him, and what sort of woman she is, a sinner.’ Jesus took him up and said, ‘Simon, I have something to say to you.’ ‘Speak on, Master’, said he. ‘Two men were in debt to a money-lender: one owed him five hundred silver pieces, the other fifty. As neither had anything to pay with he let them both off. Now, which will love him most?’ Simon replied, ‘I should think the one that was let off most.’ ‘You are right’, said Jesus. Then turning to the woman, he said to Simon, ‘You see this woman? I came to your house: you provided no water for my feet; but this woman has made my feet wet with her tears and wiped them with her hair. You gave me no kiss; but she has been kissing my feet ever since I came in. You did not anoint my head with oil; but she has anointed my feet with myrrh. And so, I tell you, her great love proves that her many sins have been forgiven; where little has been forgiven, little love is shown.’ Then he said to her, ‘Your sins are forgiven.’ The other guests began to ask themselves, ‘Who <sup>w</sup> Or . . . greater than he. And all the people, including the tax-gatherers, when they heard him, accepted John’s baptism and acknowledged the righteous dealing of God; but the Pharisees and lawyers, by refusing his baptism, rejected . . .’

Isa.29.18–19; 35.5–6; 61.1. 27: Mal.3.1. 33: Possessed, i.e. by a demon, out of his mind. 34: Tax-gatherers: see Lk.3.12 n. 35: Wisdom is the personified source of revelation as in Prov.1.20–33; Eccles.24.1–23.

7.36–50: Dinner with a Pharisee (compare Mt.26.6–13; Mk.14.3–9; Jn.12.1–8). 37: Custom permitted such intrusions on private parties. Myrrh: a fragrant substance. 40: Simon was a name in common use. 44–46: Special courtesies which the host might have provided are

50 is this, that he can forgive sins?' But he said to the woman, 'Your faith has saved you; go in peace.'

8 AFTER THIS HE WENT JOURNEYING FROM town to town and village to village, proclaiming the good news of the kingdom of God. With him were the
2 Twelve and a number of women who had been set free from evil spirits and infirmities: Mary, known as Mary of Magdala, from whom seven devils had 3 come out, Joanna, the wife of Chuza a steward of Herod's, Susanna, and many others. These women provided for them out of their own resources.

4 People were now gathering in large numbers, and as they made their way to him from one town after another, he
5 said in a parable: 'A sower went out to sow his seed. And as he sowed, some seed fell along the footpath, where it
6 was trampled on, and the birds ate it up. Some seed fell on rock and, after 7 coming up, withered for lack of moisture. Some seed fell in among 8 thistles, and the thistles grew up with it and choked it. And some of the seed
9 fell into good soil, and grew, and yielded a hundredfold.' As he said this he called out, 'If you have ears to hear, then hear.'

9 His disciples asked him what this parable meant, and he said, 'It has been
10 granted to you to know the secrets of the kingdom of God; but the others have only parables, so that they may look but see nothing, hear but understand nothing.'

11 'This is what the parable means. The seed is the word of God. Those 12 along the footpath are the men who hear it, and then the devil comes and carries off the word from their hearts for fear they should believe and be 13 saved. The seed sown on rock stands for those who receive the word with joy when they hear it, but have no root; they are believers for a while, but in the time of testing they desert. That which fell among thistles represents those who hear, but their further 14 growth is choked by cares and wealth and the pleasures of life, and they bring nothing to maturity. But the seed in 15 good soil represents those who bring a good and honest heart to the hearing of the word, hold it fast, and by their perseverance yield a harvest.

'Nobody lights a lamp and then 16 covers it with a basin or puts it under the bed. On the contrary, he puts it on a lamp-stand so that those who come in may see the light. For there is 17 nothing hidden that will not become public, nothing under cover that will not be made known and brought into the open.

'Take care, then, how you listen; for 18 the man who has will be given more, and the man who has not will forfeit even what he thinks he has.'

His mother and his brothers arrived 19 but could not get to him for the crowd. He was told, 'Your mother and 20 brothers are standing outside, and they want to see you.' He replied, 'My 21 mother and my brothers—they are those who hear the word of God and act upon it.'

One day he got into a boat with his 22 disciples and said to them, 'Let us cross over to the other side of the lake.' So they put out; and as they 23 sailed along he went to sleep. Then a heavy squall struck the lake; they began to ship water and were in grave 24 danger. They went to him, and roused him, crying, 'Master, Master, we are sinking!' He awoke, and rebuked the 25 wind and the turbulent waters. The storm subsided and all was calm. 'Where is your faith?' he asked. In fear and astonishment they said to one another, 'Who can this be? He gives his orders to wind and waves, and they obey him.'

performed instead by the woman. 50: In miracle stories the Gk. words here translated saved you mean "cured you" (e.g. 8.48).

8.1-3: Women disciples serve.

8.4-15: The parable of the sower and its meaning (Mt.13.1-23; Mk.4.1-20). 4: On parables, see Mk.4.2 n. 6: See Mk.4.3-8 n. 8: See Mk.4.8 n. 9-10: Look, hear: see Mk.4.12 n.; Mt.13.13 n. 11-15: See Mk.4.13-20 n.

8.16-21: Miscellaneous sayings. 16-18: See Mk.4.24-25 n. 16: Mt.5.15; Mk.4.21. 17: Mt.10.26; Mk.4.22. 18: 19.26; Mt.13.12; 25.29; Mk.4.25. 19-21: Mt.12.46-50; Mk.3.31-35.

8.22-25: Rebuke of a storm (Mt.8.23-27; Mk.4.35-41).

26 So they landed in the country of the Gergesenes,<sup>x</sup> which is opposite Galilee.
 27 As he stepped ashore he was met by a man from the town who was possessed by devils. For a long time he had neither worn clothes nor lived in a house, but stayed among the tombs.
 28 When he saw Jesus he cried out, and fell at his feet shouting, 'What do you want with me, Jesus, son of the Most High God? I implore you, do not torment me.'
 29 For Jesus was already ordering the unclean spirit to come out of the man. Many a time it had seized him, and then, for safety's sake, they would secure him with chains and fetters; but each time he broke loose, and with the devil in charge made off to the solitary places.
 30 Jesus asked him, 'What is your name?' 'Legion', he replied. This was because so many devils had taken possession of him. And they begged him not to banish them to the Abyss.
 32 There happened to be a large herd of pigs nearby, feeding on the hill; and the spirits begged him to let them go into these pigs. He gave them leave;
 33 the devils came out of the man and went into the pigs, and the herd rushed over the edge into the lake and were drowned.
 34 The men in charge of them saw what had happened, and, taking to their heels, they carried the news to the town and country-side; and the people came out to see for themselves. When they came to Jesus, and found the man from whom the devils had gone out sitting at his feet clothed and in his right mind, they were afraid.
 36 The spectators told them how the madman had been cured. Then the whole population of the Gergesene<sup>y</sup> district asked him to go, for they were in the grip of a great fear. So he got into the boat and returned. The man from whom the devils had gone out begged leave to go with him; but he said, 'and tell them everything that God has done for you.' The man went all over the town spreading the news of what Jesus had done for him.
 39 Jesus sent him away: 'Go back home,'

When Jesus returned, the people<sup>40</sup> welcomed him, for they were all expecting him. Then a man appeared—<sup>41</sup> Jairus was his name and he was president of the synagogue. Throwing himself down at Jesus's feet he begged him to come to his house, because he had an only daughter, about twelve years old, who was dying. And while Jesus was on his way he could hardly breathe for the crowds.

Among them was a woman who had<sup>43</sup> suffered from haemorrhages for twelve years; and<sup>42</sup> nobody had been able to cure her. She came up from behind and touched the edge of<sup>a</sup> his cloak, and at once her haemorrhage stopped. Jesus<sup>45</sup> said, 'Who was it that touched me?' All disclaimed it, and Peter and his companions said, 'Master, the crowds are hemming you in and pressing upon you!' But Jesus said, 'Someone did<sup>46</sup> touch me, for I felt that power had gone out from me.' Then the woman,<sup>47</sup> seeing that she was detected, came trembling and fell at his feet. Before all the people she explained why she had touched him and how she had been instantly cured. He said to her, 'My<sup>48</sup> daughter, your faith has cured you. Go in peace.'

While he was still speaking, a man<sup>49</sup> came from the president's house with the message, 'Your daughter is dead; trouble the Rabbi no further.' But Jesus<sup>50</sup> heard, and interposed. 'Do not be afraid,' he said; 'only show faith and she will be well again.' On arrival at<sup>51</sup> the house he allowed no one to go in with him except Peter, John, and James, and the child's father and mother. And all were weeping and lamenting for her. He said, 'Weep no more; she is not dead: she is asleep';
<sup>x</sup> Some witnesses read Gerasenes; others read Gadarenes.
<sup>y</sup> Some witnesses read Gerasene; others read Gadarene.
<sup>z</sup> Some witnesses add though she had spent all she had on doctors.
<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses omit the edge of.

8.26-39: The Gergesene demoniac (Mt.8.28-34; Mk.5.1-20). 26: Gergesenes: see Mk.5.1 n. 28: Son: see Mt.8.28-29 n. 30: On name, Legion, see Mk.5.9 n. 32: Pigs: see Mt.8.30 n. 8.40-56: Jairus' daughter and a woman with a chronic ailment (Mt.9.18-26; Mk.5.21-43). See Mk.5.21-43 n. 48: Cured: see 7.50 n. 50: Rabbi: lit. "my teacher," a respectful form of address to a teacher of the Law.

53 and they only laughed at him, well
54 knowing that she was dead. But Jesus took hold of her hand and called her:
55 'Get up, my child.' Her spirit returned,
she stood up immediately, and he told 56 them to give her something to eat. Her parents were astounded; but he forbade
them to tell anyone what had happened.

9 HE NOW CALLED THE TWELVE TOGETHER and gave them power and authority to overcome all the devils and to cure
2 diseases, and sent them to proclaim the 3 kingdom of God and to heal. 'Take nothing for the journey,' he told them,
'neither stick nor pack, neither bread
nor money; nor are you each to have a 4 second coat. When you are admitted to a house, stay there, and go on from 5 there. As for those who will not receive you, when you leave their town shake the dust off your feet as a warning to 6 them.' So they set out and travelled from village to village, and everywhere
they told the good news and healed
the sick.

7 Now Prince Herod heard of all that was happening, and did not know what to make of it; for some were saying that John had been raised from 8 the dead, others that Elijah had appeared, others again that one of the old prophets had come back to life.
9 Herod said, 'As for John, I beheaded him myself; but who is this I hear such talk about?' And he was anxious to see him.

10 On their return the apostles told Jesus all they had done; and he took them with him and withdrew privately 11 to a town called Bethsaida. But the crowds found out and followed him.
He welcomed them, and spoke to them about the kingdom of God, and cured
those who were in need of healing.

When evening was drawing on, the 12
Twelve came up to him and said, 'Send these people away; then they can go into the villages and farms round about to find food and lodging; for we are in a lonely place here.' 'Give them 13
something to eat yourselves', he replied.
But they said, 'All we have is five loaves and two fishes, nothing more—unless perhaps we ourselves are to go and buy provisions for all this company.' (There 14 were about five thousand men.) He said to his disciples, 'Make them sit down in groups of fifty or so.' They did so 15 and got them all seated. Then, taking 16
the five loaves and the two fishes, he looked up to heaven, said the blessing over them, broke them, and gave them to the disciples to distribute to the people. They all ate to their hearts' 17
content; and when the scraps they left were picked up, they filled twelve great baskets.

One day when he was praying alone 18
in the presence of his disciples, he asked them, 'Who do the people say I am?' They answered, 'Some say John 19
the Baptist, others Elijah, others that one of the old prophets has come back to life.' 'And you,' he said, 'who do 20 you say I am?' Peter answered, 'God's Messiah.' Then he gave them strict 21 orders not to tell this to anyone. And 22
he said, 'The Son of Man has to undergo great sufferings, and to be rejected by the elders, chief priests, and doctors of the law, to be put to death and to be raised again on the third day.'

And to all he said, 'If anyone wishes 23
to be a follower of mine, he must leave self behind; day after day he must take up his cross, and come with me.
Whoever cares for his own safety is 24 lost; but if a man will let himself be lost for my sake, that man is safe.

9.1-6: Mission of the Twelve (see 10.1 n.; Mt.9.35; 10.1,9-11,14; Mk.6.7-13). 1-2: Cure, proclaim: see Mt.10.8 n.

9.7-9: Herod and Jesus (Mt.14.1-2; Mk.6.14-16). 7: Herod: Antipas (see 3.1 n.). John: the Baptist. 8: Elijah: see Mk.6.15 n.

9.10-17: Feeding of five thousand (Mt.14.13-21; Mk.6.30-44; Jn.6.1-13). See Mk.6.30-44 n.; Lk. has only one account of such a feeding.

9.18-22: Peter's confession and Jesus' prediction of his suffering (Mt.16.13-23; Mk.8.27-33; Jn.6.66-71). 18: Praying alone: see 3.21 n. 19: John, Elijah: see Mk.8.28 n. 20: Messiah: see Mt.1.1 n. 22: 9.44; 18.31-33; see Mk.8.31 n.

9.23-27: Following Jesus (Mt.16.24-28; Mk.8.34-9.1). 23: Cross: see Mt.10.38-39 n. The addition of day after day in Lk. (compare Mt.16.24; Mk.8.34 n.) spiritualizes the meaning of take up his cross.

25 What will a man gain by winning the whole world, at the cost of his true self? For whoever is ashamed of me and mine,<sup>b</sup> the Son of Man will be ashamed of him, when he comes in his glory and the glory of the Father and the holy angels. And I tell you this: there are some of those standing here who will not taste death before they have seen the kingdom of God.<sup>c</sup>

28 About eight days after this conversation he took Peter, John, and James with him and went up into the hills to pray. And while he was praying the appearance of his face changed and his clothes became dazzling white. Suddenly there were two men talking with him; these were Moses and Elijah, who appeared in glory and spoke of his departure, the destiny he was to fulfil in Jerusalem. Meanwhile Peter and his companions had been in a deep sleep; but when they awoke, they saw his glory and the two men who stood beside him. And as these were moving away from Jesus, Peter said to him, 'Master, how good it is that we are here! Shall we make three shelters, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah?'; but he spoke without knowing what he was saying. The words were still on his lips, when there came a cloud which cast a shadow over them; they were afraid as they entered the cloud, and from it came a voice: 'This is my Son, my Chosen; listen to him.'<sup>c</sup>

36 When the voice had spoken, Jesus was seen to be alone. The disciples kept silence and at that time told nobody anything of what they had seen.

37 Next day when they came down from the hills he was met by a large crowd. All at once there was a shout from a man in the crowd: 'Master, look at my son, I implore you, my only child.'

39 From time to time a spirit seizes him, gives a sudden scream, and throws him into convulsions with foaming at the mouth, and it keeps on mauling him and will hardly let him go. I asked your disciples to cast it out, but they could not.' Jesus answered, 'What an unbelieving and perverse generation! How long shall I be with you and endure you all? Bring your son here.' But before the boy could reach him the devil dashed him to the ground and threw him into convulsions. Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, cured the boy, and gave him back to his father. And they were all struck with awe at the majesty of God.

Amid the general wonder and admiration at all he was doing, Jesus said to his disciples, 'What I now say is for you: ponder my words. The Son of Man is to be given up into the power of men.' But they did not understand this saying; it had been hidden from them, so that they should not<sup>c</sup> grasp its meaning, and they were afraid to ask him about it.

A dispute arose among them: which of them was the greatest? Jesus knew what was passing in their minds, so he took a child by the hand and stood him at his side, and said, 'Whoever receives this child in my name receives me; and whoever receives me receives the One who sent me. For the least among you all—he is the greatest.'

'Master,' said John, 'we saw a man driving out devils in your name, but as he is not one of us we tried to stop him.' Jesus said to him, 'Do not stop him, for he who is not against you is on your side.'

Journeys and encounters

AS THE TIME APPROACHED WHEN HE was to be taken up to heaven, he set his face resolutely towards Jerusalem, <sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read me and my words.

<sup>c</sup> Or it was so obscure to them that they could not ...

9.28–36: The transfiguration (Mt.17.1–8; Mk.9.2–8). See Mt.17.1–8 nn. 28: To pray: see 3.21 n. 31: Departure may refer to death or to Jesus' death, resurrection, and ascension.

9.37–43a: An epileptic boy (Mt.17.14–20; Mk.9.14–29). Lk. has greatly abbreviated the story.

9.43b–45: The second prediction (see 9.19) of suffering (Mt.17.22–23; Mk.9.30–32).

9.46–50: The true disciple (Mt.18.1–5; Mk.9.33–41). The true disciple is not embroiled in arguments about rank (v. 46) or privilege (vv. 49–50); rather he knows the joy of humble service (v. 48). 49–50: See Mk.9.39–40 n.

9.51–19.27: The Lukan travel narrative. Perhaps taking his clue from brief but dramatic

52 and sent messengers ahead. They set out and went into a Samaritan village 53 to make arrangements for him; but the villagers would not have him because 54 he was making for Jerusalem. When the disciples James and John saw this they said, 'Lord, may we call down fire 55 from heaven to burn them up<sup>d</sup>?' But 56 he turned and rebuked them,<sup>e</sup> and they went on to another village.

57 As they were going along the road a man said to him, 'I will follow you 58 wherever you go.' Jesus answered,
'Foxes have their holes, the birds their roosts; but the Son of Man has 59 nowhere to lay his head.' To another he said, 'Follow me', but the man replied,
'Let me go and bury my father first.'
60 Jesus said, 'Leave the dead to bury their dead; you must go and announce the kingdom of God.'

61 Yet another said, 'I will follow you, sir; but let me first say good-bye to my 62 people at home.' To him Jesus said,
'No one who sets his hand to the plough and then keeps looking back<sup>f</sup>
is fit for the kingdom of God.'

10 After this the Lord appointed a further seventy-two<sup>g</sup> and sent them on ahead in pairs to every town and place
2 he was going to visit himself. He said to them: 'The crop is heavy, but labourers are scarce; you must therefore beg the owner to send labourers to 3 harvest his crop. Be on your way. And look, I am sending you like lambs 4 among wolves. Carry no purse or pack, and travel barefoot. Exchange no 5 greetings on the road. When you go into a house, let your first words be, 6 "Peace to this house." If there is a man of peace there, your peace will rest upon him; if not, it will return and 7 rest upon you. Stay in that one house, sharing their food and drink; for the worker earns his pay. Do not move 8 from house to house. When you come into a town and they make you welcome, eat the food provided for you; heal the sick there, and say, "The 9 kingdom of God has come close to you." When you enter a town and they 10 do not make you welcome, go out into its streets and say, "The very dust of 11 your town that clings to our feet we wipe off to your shame. Only take note of this: the kingdom of God has come close." I tell you, it will be more 12 bearable for Sodom on the great Day than for that town.

'Alas for you, Chorazin! Alas for 13 you, Bethsaida! If the miracles that were performed in you had been performed in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago, sitting in sackcloth and ashes. But it will be 14 more bearable for Tyre and Sidon at the Judgement than for you. And as 15 for you, Capernaum, will you be exalted to the skies? No, brought down to the depths!

'Whoever listens to you listens to 16 me; whoever rejects you rejects me.
And whoever rejects me rejects the One who sent me.'

The seventy-two<sup>g</sup> came back jubilant.
17 'In your name, Lord,' they said, 'even the devils submit to us.' He replied, 'I 18 watched how Satan fell, like lightning, out of the sky. And now you see that I 19 have given you the power to tread underfoot snakes and scorpions and all the forces of the enemy, and

d Some witnesses add as Elijah did.

e Some witnesses insert 'You do not know', he said, 'to what spirit you belong; (56) for the Son of Man did not come to destroy men's lives but to save them.'

f Some witnesses read 'No one who looks back as he sets hand to the plough ...'

g Some witnesses read seventy.

notices in Mk.10.1,32, Lk. has developed the journey to Jerusalem into a narrative which prepares, not only for the death and resurrection in the Holy City (see, e.g. 13.33), but also for the subsequent journey of the church to the "ends of the earth" (Acts 1.8; see, e.g. 9.51-10.24 with notes). For most of this section (see 18.15-17 n.) Lk. does not follow the order of Mk.

9.51-10.24: The mission of the seventy-two. 51: Taken up: see Acts 1.11. 52: The enmity between Jews and Samaritans was ancient and deep, of the sort possible only where there are rival claims to being the true guardians of a common tradition (the Law of Moses). 57-62: Three candidates who wish to follow in Jesus' way are introduced; in each case, the heavy demands of discipleship are presented (compare Mt.8.19-22). 10.1: Lk. has two missions: of the Twelve (9.1-6; perhaps a symbolic mission to Israel) and of the seventy-two (perhaps, symbolically, to the Gentile nations). 2-12: Compare Mt.9.37-38; 10.7-16; Mk.6.7-11. 8-9: Heal, kingdom: see Mt.10.8 n. 12: Sodom: see Mt.10.15 n. 13-15: Tyre, Sidon: see Mt.11.21 n. 16: See Mt.10.40-42 n.; Jn.13.20. 18: I watched how Satan fell may report a vision of God's

20 nothing will ever harm you.<sup>h</sup> Nevertheless, what you should rejoice over is not that the spirits submit to you, but that your names are enrolled in heaven.’

21 At that moment Jesus exulted in the Holy<sup>i</sup> Spirit and said, ‘I thank thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, for hiding these things from the learned and wise, and revealing them to the simple. Yes, Father, such<sup>j</sup> was thy choice.’ Then turning to his disciples he said,<sup>k</sup> ‘Everything is entrusted to me by my Father; and no one knows who the Son is but the Father, or who the Father is but the Son, and those to whom the Son may choose to reveal him.’

23 Turning to his disciples in private he said, ‘Happy the eyes that see what you are seeing! I tell you, many prophets and kings wished to see what you now see, yet never saw it; to hear what you hear, yet never heard it.’

25 ON ONE OCCASION A LAWYER CAME forward to put this test question to him: ‘Master, what must I do to inherit eternal life?’ Jesus said, ‘What is written in the Law? What is your reading of it?’ He replied, ‘Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbour as yourself.’ ‘That is the right answer,’ said Jesus; ‘do that and you will live.’

29 But he wanted to vindicate himself, so he said to Jesus, ‘And who is my neighbour?’ Jesus replied, ‘A man was on his way from Jerusalem down to

Jericho when he fell in with robbers, who stripped him, beat him, and went off leaving him half dead. It so happened that a priest was going down by the same road; but when he saw him, he went past on the other side. So too a Levite came to the place, and when he saw him went past on the other side. But a Samaritan who was making the journey came upon him, and when he saw him was moved to pity. He went up and bandaged his wounds, bathing them with oil and wine. Then he lifted him on to his own beast, brought him to an inn, and looked after him there. Next day he produced two silver pieces and gave them to the innkeeper, and said, “Look after him; and if you spend any more, I will repay you on my way back.” Which of these three do you think was neighbour to the man who fell into the hands of the robbers?’ He answered, ‘The one who showed him kindness.’ Jesus said, ‘Go and do as he did.’

While they were on their way Jesus came to a village where a woman named Martha made him welcome in her home. She had a sister, Mary, who seated herself at the Lord’s feet and stayed there listening to his words. Now Martha was distracted by her many tasks, so she came to him and said, ‘Lord, do you not care that my sister has left me to get on with the work by myself? Tell her to come and lend a hand.’ But the Lord answered, ‘Martha, Martha, you are fretting and

h Or and he will have no way at all to harm you.

i Some witnesses omit Holy.

j Or Yes, I thank thee, Father, that such . . .

k Some witnesses omit Then . . . he said.

final victory or interpret the success of the disciples as a sign of that victory. 21–22: Revelation to the humble (simple), rather than to the “wise of the world” was a familiar theme, common in NT times, but with ancient roots; see, e.g. Isa.29.14; Prov.26.12; 1 Cor.1.19–20. 23–24: Mt.13.16–17.

10.25–28: The double commandment of love (Mt.22.34–40; Mk.12.28–31). 27: The commandments are taken from Deut.6.5; Lev.19.18. It is significant that, even though Lk. regards the question as a test, he can credit the lawyer with providing this summary of the Law; similar summaries can be found in Jewish sources of the period, as well as in Paul (Rom.13.9–10; Gal.5.14) and Jas.2.8. 28b: Do . . . live: Lev.18.5; the implication is that v. 27 comprehends the whole Law (compare Mt.22.40; Rom.10.5; 13.10).

10.29–37: The good Samaritan. The priest (v. 31) and the Levite (v. 32), as Temple officials, represent highly visible members of the religious establishment. While their failure to act as neighbors would attract the attention of the hearers of the parable, the hearers would also know that contact with the body beside the road—if it was dead—would render them unfit for Temple service. 33: Among Jews nothing good would be expected of a Samaritan (see 9.52 n.), which makes his action all the more notable.

10.38–42: Mary and Martha. 38: The words on their way pick up the theme of the journey;

42 fussing about so many things; but one thing is necessary.<sup>l</sup> The part that Mary has chosen is best; and it shall not be taken away from her.<sup>l</sup>

11 Once, in a certain place, Jesus was at prayer. When he ceased, one of his disciples said, 'Lord, teach us to pray, 2 as John taught his disciples.' He answered, 'When you pray, say,

"Father,<sup>m</sup> thy name be hallowed; thy kingdom come."<sup>n</sup>

3 Give us each day our daily bread.<sup>o</sup>

4 And forgive us our sins, for we too forgive all who have done us wrong.

And do not bring us to the test."<sup>p</sup>

5 Then he said to them, 'Suppose one of you has a friend who comes to him in the middle of the night and says,

6 "My friend, lend me three loaves, for a friend of mine on a journey has turned up at my house, and I have 7 nothing to offer him"; and he replies from inside, "Do not bother me. The door is shut for the night; my children and I have gone to bed; and I cannot get up and give you what you want."

8 I tell you that even if he will not provide for him out of friendship, the very shamelessness of the request will make him get up and give him all he 9 needs. And so I say to you, ask, and you will receive; seek, and you will find; knock, and the door will be 10 opened. For everyone who asks receives, he who seeks finds, and to him who knocks, the door will be opened.

11 'Is there a father among you who will offer his son<sup>q</sup> a snake when he 12 asks for fish, or a scorpion when he 13 asks for an egg? If you, then, bad as you are, know how to give your children what is good for them, how much more will the heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit? to those who ask him!'

HE WAS DRIVING OUT A DEVIL WHICH 14 was dumb; and when the devil had come out, the dumb man began to speak. The people were astonished, but some of them said, 'It is by 15 Beelzebub prince of devils that he drives the devils out.' Others, by way 16 of a test, demanded of him a sign from heaven. But he knew what was in 17 their minds, and said, 'Every kingdom divided against itself goes to ruin, and a divided household falls. Equally if 18 Satan is divided against himself, how can his kingdom stand?—since, as you would have it, I drive out the devils by Beelzebub that I 19 cast out devils, by whom do your own people drive them out? If this is your argument, they themselves will refute you. But if it is by the finger of God 20 that I drive out the devils, then be sure the kingdom of God has already come upon you.

'When a strong man fully armed is 21 on guard over his castle his possessions are safe. But when someone stronger 22 comes upon him and overpowers him, he carries off the arms and armour on which the man had relied and divides the plunder.

'He who is not with me is against me, 23 and he who does not gather with me scatters.<sup>s</sup>

'When an unclean spirit comes out 24 of a man it wanders over the deserts seeking a resting-place; and if it finds none, it says, "I will go back to the

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses read but few things are necessary, or rather, one alone; others omit you are fretting . . . necessary.

<sup>m</sup> Some witnesses read Our Father in heaven.
<sup>n</sup> One witness reads thy kingdom come upon us; some others have thy Holy Spirit come upon us and cleanse us; some insert thy will be done, on earth as in heaven.
<sup>o</sup> Or our bread for the morrow.

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses add but save us from the evil one (or from evil).

<sup>q</sup> Some witnesses insert a stone when he asks for bread, or . . .

<sup>r</sup> Some witnesses read a good gift; some others read good things.

<sup>s</sup> Some witness add me.

see 9.51–19.27 n. Martha and Mary (vv. 38–39) are presumably the sisters mentioned in Jn. ch. 11.

11.1–13: On prayer. 1: The occasion for the Lord's Prayer is reported in this way only by Lk. 2–4: See Mt.6.9–13 n. 2: Father: see Mt.6.9 n. 3: Daily: see Mt.6.11 n. 9–13: Mt.7.7–11. 13: Emphasis on the Holy Spirit is a characteristic of Lk.; Mt.7.11 has "give good things."

11.14–36: Signs, Beelzebub, Jonah. 14–23: Mt.12.22–30; Mk.3.22–27. 15: Beelzebub: Satan. 16: The demand for a sign (see Mt.12.38–42 n.) could not be satisfied by exorcism, since there were other exorcists (v. 19); the observers are challenged to see the kingdom of God (v. 20) bursting upon them in the activity of Jesus. 20: Finger of God is a lively metaphor which calls to mind Exod.8.19; Mt.12.28 reads instead "Spirit of God." 23: See Mk.9.39–40 n. 24–26:

25 home I left." So it returns and finds 26 the house<sup>t</sup> swept clean, and tidy. Off it goes and collects seven other spirits more wicked than itself, and they all come in and settle down; and in the end the man's plight is worse than before.
 27 While he was speaking thus, a woman in the crowd called out, 'Happy
 the womb that carried you and the 28 breasts that suckled you!' He rejoined,
 'No, happy are those who hear the word of God and keep it.'
 29 With the crowds swarming round him he went on to say: 'This is a wicked generation. It demands a sign, and the only sign that will be given it 30 is the sign of Jonah. For just as Jonah was a sign to the Ninevites, so will the Son of Man be to this gener-31 ation. At the Judgement, when the men of this generation are on trial, the Queen of the South will appear against<sup>u</sup> them and ensure their condemnation, for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and what is here is greater 32 than Solomon. The men of Nineveh will appear at the Judgement when this generation is on trial, and ensure<sup>v</sup> its condemnation, for they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and what is here is greater than Jonah.
 33 'No one lights a lamp and puts it in a cellar,<sup>w</sup> but rather on the lamp-stand so that those who enter may see the 34 light. The lamp of your body is the eye.
 When your eyes are sound, you have light for your whole body; but when the eyes are bad, you are in darkness.
 35 See to it then that the light you have is 36 not darkness. If you have light for your whole body with no trace of darkness, it will all be as bright as when a lamp flashes its rays upon you.'

37 WHEN HE HAD FINISHED SPEAKING, A Pharisee invited him to a meal. He came in and sat down. The Pharisee 38 noticed with surprise that he had not begun by washing before the meal. But 39

 the Lord said to him, 'You Pharisees!
 You clean the outside of cup and plate; but inside you there is nothing but greed and wickedness. You fools! 40 Did not he who made the outside make the inside too? But let what is in the 41 cup<sup>x</sup> be given in charity, and all is clean.

'Alas for you Pharisees! You pay 42 tithes of mint and rue and every garden-herb, but have no care for justice and the love of God. It is these you should have practised, without neglecting the others.<sup>y</sup>

'Alas for you Pharisees! You love 43
 the seats of honour in synagogues, and salutations in the market-places.

'Alas, alas, you are like unmarked 44
 graves over which men may walk without knowing it.'

In reply to this one of the lawyers 45
 said, 'Master, when you say things like this you are insulting us too.' Jesus 46 rejoined: 'Yes, you lawyers, it is no better with you! For you load men with intolerable burdens, and will not put a single finger to the load.

'Alas, you build the tombs of the 47
 prophets whom your fathers murdered,
 and so testify that you approve of the 48
 deeds your fathers did; they committed the murders and you provide the tombs.

'This is why the Wisdom of God 49 said, "I will send them prophets and messengers; and some of these they will persecute and kill"; so that this 50 generation will have to answer for the blood of all the prophets shed since the

<sup>t</sup> Some witnesses insert unoccupied.

<sup>u</sup> Or will be raised to life together with . . .

<sup>v</sup> Or At the Judgement the men of Nineveh will rise again together with this generation and will ensure . . .

<sup>w</sup> Some witnesses insert or under the meal-tub.

<sup>x</sup> Or what you can afford.

<sup>y</sup> Some witnesses omit It is . . . others.

Mt.12.43-45. 24: Deserts: see Mt.12.43 n. 29-32; Mt.12.38-42. 29: Sign: see Mt.12.38-42 n. Lk. has nothing like Mt.12.40 and interprets the sign of Jonah as the prophet's preaching (v. 32). 33: Mt.5.15. 34-36: Eyes . . . sound . . . eyes . . . bad: see Mt.6.22 n. For Lk. the sayings speak of the light by which Jesus is seen; sound eyes are organs of spiritual perception.

11.37-54: Alas for Pharisees and lawyers (compare Mt. ch. 23). 38: Washing: see Mk.7.3 n. 42: Mic.6.8. 43: 20.46; Mk.12.38-39. 44: Graves were believed to make a man ritually unclean (see Num.19.16). 49-51: The introductory formula reads as if a document authored by the Wisdom of God is being quoted (compare Mk.7.10; 12.36). Wisdom (see Lk.7.35 n.) was thought of as sending prophets in every generation (vv. 49-50; e.g. Wis.7.27 and chs. 10-11). Mt.23.34

- 51 foundation of the world; from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah who perished between the altar and the sanctuary. I tell you, this generation will have to answer for it all.
- 52 'Alas for you lawyers! You have taken away the key of knowledge. You did not go in yourselves, and those who were on their way in, you stopped.'
- 53 After he had left the house, the lawyers and Pharisees began to assail him fiercely and to ply him with a host of questions, laying snares to catch him with his own words.
- 12 MEANWHILE, WHEN A CROWD OF MANY thousands had gathered, packed so close that they were treading on one another, he began to speak first to his disciples: 'Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees; I mean their hypocrisy.
- 2 There is nothing covered up that will not be uncovered, nothing hidden that will not be made known. You may take it, then, that everything you have said in the dark will be heard in broad daylight, and what you have whispered behind closed doors will be shouted from the house-tops.
- 4 'To you who are my friends I say: Do not fear those who kill the body and after that have nothing more they can do. I will warn you whom to fear: fear him who, after he has killed, has authority to cast into hell. Believe me, he is the one to fear.
- 6 'Are not sparrows five for twopence? And yet not one of them is overlooked by God. More than that, even the hairs of your head have all been counted. Have no fear; you are worth more than any number of sparrows.
- 8 'I tell you this: everyone who acknowledges me before men, the Son of Man will acknowledge before the angels of God; but he who disowns me before men will be disowned before the angels of God.
- 'Anyone who speaks a word against the Son of Man will receive forgiveness; but for him who slanders the Holy Spirit there will be no forgiveness.
- 'When you are brought before synagogues and state authorities, do not begin worrying about how you will conduct your defence or what you will say. For when the time comes the Holy Spirit will instruct you what to say.'
- A man in the crowd said to him, 'Master, tell my brother to divide the family property with me.' He replied, 'My good man, who set me over you to judge or arbitrate?'<sup>z</sup> Then he said to the people, 'Beware! Be on your guard against greed of every kind, for even when a man has more than enough, his wealth does not give him life.' And he told them this parable: 'There was a rich man whose land yielded heavy crops. He debated with himself: "What am I to do? I have not the space to store my produce. This is what I will do," said he: "I will pull down my storehouses and build them bigger. I will collect in them all my corn and other goods, and then say to myself, "Man, you have plenty of good things laid by, enough for many years: take life easy, eat, drink, and enjoy yourself."'" But God said to him, "You fool, this very night you must surrender your life; you have made your money—who will get it now?" That is how it is with the man who amasses wealth for himself and remains a pauper in the sight of God.<sup>a</sup>
- 'Therefore', he said to his disciples, 'I bid you put away anxious thoughts about food to keep you alive and clothes to cover your body. Life is more than food, the body more than clothes. Think of the ravens: they neither sow nor reap; they have no attributes the saying to Jesus. 51: Abel to . . . Zechariah: from the first prophet to the last. 52: Key of knowledge: see Mt.16.19 n.; 23.13.

<sup>z</sup> Some witnesses omit or arbitrate.

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses omit That . . . God; others add at the end When he said this he cried out, 'If you have ears to hear, then hear.'

12.1-59: Encouragement and warning. 1-12: Mt.10.26-33. 1: Leaven: see Mk.8.15 n. 2-3: 8.17; see Mt.10.26-27; Mk.4.22,24-25 n. Here, the saying promises that hypocrisy (v. 1) will be exposed. 5: Him who . . . has authority: probably Satan is intended; but see Heb.10.30-31. 8: The saying is ambiguous about the relation of Jesus (me) and the Son of Man (see Mk.2.10 n.). 10: See Mt.12.31-32 n.; Mk.3.29 n. 11-12: 21.14-15; Mt.10.19-20; Mk.13.11. 13-14: The title Master probably indicates identification of Jesus as a rabbi, who as an expert on the Law would be expected to judge. 18: Corn: grain. 20: Jer.17.11 has a similar saying about a man storehouse or barn; yet God feeds them. You are worth far more than the birds! Is there a man among you who by anxious thought can add a foot to his height<sup>b</sup>? If, then, you cannot do even a very little thing, why are you anxious about the rest?

27 'Think of the lilies: they neither spin nor weave;<sup>c</sup> yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his splendour was not attired like one of these. But if that is how God clothes the grass, which is growing in the field today, and tomorrow is thrown on the stove, how much more will he clothe you! How little faith you have! And so you are not to set your mind on food and drink; you are not to worry. For all these are things for the heathen to run after; but you have a Father who knows that you need them. No, set your mind upon his kingdom, and all the rest will come to you as well.

32 'Have no fear, little flock; for your Father has chosen to give you the Kingdom. Sell your possessions and give in charity. Provide for yourselves purses that do not wear out, and never-failing treasure in heaven, where no thief can get near it, no moth destroy it. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

35 'Be ready for action, with belts fastened and lamps alight. Be like men who wait for their master's return from a wedding-party, ready to let him in the moment he arrives and knocks.

37 Happy are those servants whom the master finds on the alert when he comes. I tell you this: he will fasten his belt, seat them at table, and come and wait on them. Even if it is the middle of the night or before dawn when he comes, happy they if he finds them alert. And remember, if the householder had known what time the burglar was coming he would not have let his house be broken into. Hold yourselves ready, then, because the Son of Man will come at the time you least expect him.'

Peter said, 'Lord, do you intend this parable specially for us or is it for everyone?' The Lord said, 'Well, who is the trusty and sensible man whom his master will appoint as his steward, to manage his servants and issue their rations at the proper time? Happy that servant who is found at his task when his master comes! I tell you this: he will be put in charge of all his master's property. But if that servant says to himself, "The master is a long time coming", and begins to bully the menservants and maids, and eat and drink and get drunk; then the master will arrive on a day that servant does not expect, at a time he does not know, and will cut him in pieces. Thus he will find his place among the faithless.

'The servant who knew his master's wishes, yet made no attempt to carry them out, will be flogged severely. But one who did not know them and earned a beating will be flogged less severely. Where a man has been given much, much will be expected of him; and the more a man has had entrusted to him the more he will be required to repay.

'I have come to set fire to the earth, and how I wish it were already kindled! I have a baptism to undergo, and what constraint I am under until the ordeal is over! Do you suppose I came to establish peace on earth? No indeed, I have come to bring division. For from now on, five members of a family will be divided, three against two and two against three; father against son and son against father, mother against daughter and daughter against mother, mother against son's wife and son's wife against her mother-in-law.'

He also said to the people, 'When you see cloud banking up in the west,

<sup>b</sup> Or a day to his life.

<sup>c</sup> Some witnesses read they grow, they do not toil or spin.

who gets his wealth unjustly. 22-31: See Mt.6.25-34 n. 32: Little flock: the community of the Messiah. 33-34: Mt.6.19-21. 35: With belts fastened: i.e. with the robe gathered securely at the waist so as to be ready for action. 39-46: Mt.24.43-51. 48: The privilege of special knowledge (compare 8.18) carries the burden of special responsibility. 49-53: Mt.10.34-36. 49: Fire is a symbol of judgment (compare 3.16 n.). 50: Baptism is a metaphor for martyrdom (compare Mk.10.38). 51: Peace, though promised in 2.14, is not to be hoped for apart from decisions which produce division. 52-53: See Mic.7.6. 54-56: The cloud blows in from the Mediterranean;

you say at once, "It is going to rain", 55 and rain it does. And when the wind is from the south, you say, "There will 56 be a heat-wave", and there is. What hypocrites you are! You know how to interpret the appearance of earth and sky; how is it you cannot interpret this fateful hour?

57 "And why can you not judge for yourselves what is the right course?
 58 When you are going with your opponent to court, make an effort to settle with him while you are still on the way; otherwise he may drag you before the judge, and the judge hand you over to the constable, and the constable put 59 you in jail. I tell you, you will not come out till you have paid the last farthing.'

13 AT THAT VERY TIME THERE WERE SOME people present who told him about the Galileans whose blood Pilate had 2 mixed with their sacrifices. He answered them: 'Do you imagine that, because these Galileans suffered this fate, they must have been greater sinners than 3 anyone else in Galilee? I tell you they were not; but unless you repent, you
 will all of you come to the same end.
 4 Or the eighteen people who were killed when the tower fell on them at Siloam—do you imagine they were more guilty than all the other people 5 living in Jerusalem? I tell you they were not; but unless you repent, you
 will all of you come to the same end.'

6 He told them this parable: 'A man had a fig-tree growing in his vineyard;
 and he came looking for fruit on it, but 7 found none. So he said to the vinedresser, "Look here! For the last three years I have come looking for fruit on this fig-tree without finding any. Cut it down. Why should it go on using up 8 the soil?" But he replied, "Leave it, sir, this one year while I dig round it and manure it. And if it bears next 9 season, well and good; if not, you shall have it down."

One Sabbath he was teaching in a 10
 synagogue, and there was a woman 11
 there possessed by a spirit that had crippled her for eighteen years. She was bent double and quite unable to stand up straight. When Jesus saw her 12
 he called her and said, 'You are rid of your trouble.' Then he laid his hands 13 on her, and at once she straightened up and began to praise God. But the 14 president of the synagogue, indignant
 with Jesus for healing on the Sabbath, intervened and said to the congregation, 'There are six working-days:
 come and be cured on one of them, and not on the Sabbath.' The Lord gave 15 him his answer: 'What hypocrites you are!' he said. 'Is there a single one of you who does not loose his ox or his donkey from the manger and take it out to water on the Sabbath? And 16 here is this woman, a daughter of Abraham, who has been kept prisoner by Satan for eighteen long years: was it wrong for her to be freed from her bonds on the Sabbath?' At these words 17 all his opponents were covered with confusion, while the mass of the people were delighted at all the wonderful things he was doing.

"What is the kingdom of God like?" 18
 he continued. 'What shall I compare it with? It is like a mustard-seed which a 19 man took and sowed in his garden;
 and it grew to be a tree and the birds
 came to roost among its branches.'

Again he said, 'The kingdom of God, 20
 what shall I compare it with? It is like 21 yeast which a woman took and mixed with half a hundredweight of flour till it was all leavened.'

HE CONTINUED HIS JOURNEY THROUGH 22

---

the scorching heat comes across the desert. Men who know so much about the weather should be able to see the imminence of the kingdom in Jesus' ministry. 57-59: Mt.5.25-26.

13.1-9: The necessity of repentance. 1: Pilate: see 3.1 n. The allusion is to an uprising of Galileans in Jerusalem which is not reported in other sources. 2: Those who suffered this fate might have been regarded as greater sinners since such a tragedy could be understood as God's judgment; see v. 4. 3,5: Jesus does not allow the view of v. 2 n. to become the basis for complacency; all are called to repent.

13.10-17: A Sabbath story. 13: Laid his hands on her: compare 4.40; 5.13. 14-15: Exod.20.9; Deut.5.13. See 14.5 n.; Jn.5.10-12.

13.18-21: The Kingdom of God. See notes on Mk.4.26-32,30,32 and Mt.13.33.

13.22-35: Continuing in the way. These verses are an interlude, during which the reader is towns and villages, teaching as he made his way towards Jerusalem. 23 Someone asked him, 'Sir, are only a few to be saved?' His answer was: 24 'Struggle to get in through the narrow door; for I tell you that many will try to enter and not be able. 25 'When once the master of the house has got up and locked the door, you may stand outside and knock, and say, "Sir, let us in!", but he will only answer, "I do not know where you come from." Then you will begin to say, "We sat at table with you and you taught in our streets." But he will repeat, "I tell you, I do not know where you come from. Out of my sight, all of you, you and your wicked ways!" There will be wailing and grinding of teeth there, when you see Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and yourselves thrown out. From east and west people will come, from north and south, for the feast in the kingdom of God. Yes, and some who are now last will be first, and some who are first will be last.' 31 At that time a number of Pharisees came to him and said, 'You should leave this place and go on your way; Herod is out to kill you.' He replied, 'Go and tell that fox, "Listen: today and tomorrow I shall be casting out devils and working cures; on the third day I reach my goal." However, I must be on my way today and tomorrow and the next day, because it is unthinkable for a prophet to meet his death anywhere but in Jerusalem. 34 'O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that murders the prophets and stones the messengers sent to her! How often have I longed to gather your children, as a hen gathers her brood under her wings; but you would not let me. Look, look! there is your temple, forsaken by God. And I tell you, you shall never see me until the time comes when you say, "Blessings on him who comes in the name of the Lord!"'

ONE SABBATH HE WENT TO HAVE A MEAL 14 in the house of a leading Pharisee; and they were watching him closely. There, 2 in front of him, was a man suffering from dropsy. Jesus asked the lawyers 3 and the Pharisees: 'Is it permitted to cure people on the Sabbath or not?' They said nothing. So he took the man, 4 cured him, and sent him away. Then 5 he turned to them and said, 'If one of you has a donkey<sup>d</sup> or an ox and it falls into a well, will he hesitate to haul it up on the Sabbath day?' To this they 6 could find no reply.

When he noticed how the guests were 7 trying to secure the places of honour, he spoke to them in a parable: 'When 8 you are asked by someone to a wedding-feast, do not sit down in the place of honour. It may be that some person more distinguished than yourself has been invited; and the host will 9 come and say to you, "Give this man your seat." Then you will look foolish as you begin to take the lowest place. 10 No, when you receive an invitation, go and sit down in the lowest place, so that when your host comes he will say, "Come up higher, my friend." Then all your fellow-guests will see the respect in which you are held. For 11 everyone who exalts himself will be humbled; and whoever humbles himself will be exalted.'

Then he said to his host, 'When you 12 are having a party for lunch or supper, do not invite your friends, your brothers or other relations, or your rich neighbours; they will only ask you back again and so you will be repaid. But when you give a party, ask the 13 poor, the crippled, the lame, and the blind; and so find happiness. For they 14 have no means of repaying you; but

d Some witnesses read son.

reminded of the theme of the journey (vv. 22,33); see 9.51–19.27 n. 23–24: Mt.7.13–14. 25–30: Mt.7.22–23; 8.11–12; 19.30; 25.10–12. 27: Ps.6.8. 29: Ps.107.3. On the feast, see 14.15 n. 31: Herod: Antipas (see 3.1 n.). 32–33: Today . . . tomorrow . . . the third day is a conventional manner of speaking of a short period of time. 34–35: This saying is a dirge which may be quoted as a lament of Wisdom (see 7.35 n.). 35: For Lk., until the time comes appears to point to the entry into Jerusalem (see 19.38); compare Mt.23.39 n. Blessings . . . Lord: Ps.118.26.

14.1–14: Jesus, a guest of a Pharisee. See Mk.3.1–6 n. 5: The Dead Sea community prohibited such activity on the Sabbath. 8–10: Compare Prov.25.6–7. 11: See 18.14; Mt.23.12.

you will be repaid on the day when good men rise from the dead.’

- 15 One of the company, after hearing all this, said to him, ‘Happy the man who shall sit at the feast in the kingdom of God!’ Jesus answered, ‘A man was giving a big dinner party and had sent out many invitations. At dinner-time he sent his servant with a message for his guests, “Please come, everything is now ready.” They began one and all to excuse themselves. The first said, “I have bought a piece of land and I must go and look over it; please accept my apologies.” The second said, “I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am on my way to try them out; please accept my apologies.” The next said, “I have just got married and for that reason I cannot come.” When the servant came back he reported this to his master. The master of the house was angry and said to him, “Go out quickly into the streets and alleys of the town, and bring me in the poor, the crippled, the blind, and the lame.”
- 22 The servant said, “Sir, your orders have been carried out and there is still room.” The master replied, “Go out on to the highways and along the hedgerows and make them come in; I want my house to be full. I tell you that not one of those who were invited shall taste my banquet.”
- 25 Once when great crowds were accompanying him, he turned to them and said: ‘If anyone comes to me and does not hate his father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters, even his own life, he cannot be a disciple of mine. No one who does not carry his cross and come with me can be a disciple of mine. Would any of you think of building a tower without first sitting down and calculating the cost, to see whether he could afford to finish it? Otherwise, if he has laid its foundation and then is not able to complete it, all the onlookers will laugh at him. “There is the man”, they will say, “who started to build and could not finish.” Or what king will march to battle against another king, without first sitting down to consider whether with ten thousand men he can face an enemy coming to meet him with twenty thousand? If he cannot, then, long before the enemy approaches, he sends envoys, and asks for terms. So also none of you can be a disciple of mine without parting with all his possessions. Salt is a good thing; but if salt itself becomes tasteless, what will you use to season it? It is useless either on the land or on the dung-heap; it can only be thrown away. If you have ears to hear, then hear.’

ANOTHER TIME, THE TAX-GATHERERS 15 and other bad characters were all crowding in to listen to him; and the Pharisees and the doctors of the law began grumbling among themselves: ‘This fellow’, they said, ‘welcomes sinners and eats with them.’ He answered them with this parable: ‘If one of you has a hundred sheep and loses one of them, does he not leave the ninety-nine in the open pasture and go after the missing one until he has found it? How delighted he is then! He lifts it on to his shoulders, and home he goes to call his friends and neighbours together. “Rejoice with me!” he cries. “I have found my lost sheep.” In the same way, I tell you, there will be greater joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous people who do not need to repent.

‘Or again, if a woman has ten silver pieces and loses one of them, does she not light the lamp, sweep out the house, and look in every corner till she has

14.15–24: The Great Supper (Mt.22.1–10). 15: The feast was a frequently used symbol of the joy of the kingdom; see 13.28–29. 17: The message is a customary courtesy reminder to guests who have been invited previously. 18: The excuses which follow are not frivolous, but the master’s anger (v. 21) is understandable since the guests had had a prior notice. 21,23: Lk. probably means for the two groups to represent (a) sinners among the Jews and (b) Gentiles. 14.25–35: The cost of discipleship. 26: Hate probably means “love less”; see Mt.10.37. 27: Carry his cross: see 9.23 n.; Mk.8.34 n.; Mt.10.38; 16.24. 34–35: Compare Mt.5.13; Mk.9.50.

15.1–32: Joy over repentant sinners. 1–2: Tax-gatherers: see Mk.2.15 n. 3–7: Lk. doubtless preserves the parable’s original concern for outcasts; Mt.18.10–14 (and n.) applies it differently.

9 found it? And when she has, she calls her friends and neighbours together, and says, "Rejoice with me! I have 10 found the piece that I lost." In the same way, I tell you, there is joy among the angels of God over one sinner who repents.'

11 Again he said: 'There was once a man
12 who had two sons; and the younger said to his father, "Father, give me my share of the property." So he divided 13 his estate between them. A few days later the younger son turned the whole of his share into cash and left home for a distant country, where he squandered 14 it in reckless living. He had spent it all, when a severe famine fell upon that country and he began to feel the pinch.
15 So he went and attached himself to one of the local landowners, who sent him
16 on to his farm to mind the pigs. He would have been glad to fill his belly with<sup>e</sup> the pods that the pigs were eating; and no one gave him anything.
17 Then he came to his senses and said, "How many of my father's paid servants have more food than they can eat, and here am I, starving to death!
18 I will set off and go to my father, and say to him, 'Father, I have sinned, against God and against you; I am no longer fit to be called your son; treat me as one of your paid servants.'"'
20 So he set out for his father's house. But while he was still a long way off his father saw him, and his heart went out to him. He ran to meet him, flung his arms round him, and kissed him. The son said, "Father, I have sinned, against God and against you; I am no longer fit to be called your son."<sup>f</sup> But the father said to his servants, "Quick! fetch a robe, my best one, and put it on him; put a ring on his finger and shoes on his feet. Bring the fatted calf and kill it, and let us have a feast to celebrate the day. For this son of mine was dead and has come back to life; he was lost and is found." And the festivities began.

'Now the elder son was out on the 25 farm; and on his way back, as he approached the house, he heard music and dancing. He called one of the servants and asked what it meant. The 26 servant told him, "Your brother has come home, and your father has killed the fatted calf because he has him back safe and sound." But he was angry and 28 refused to go in. His father came out and pleaded with him; but he retorted, "You know how I have slaved for you 29 all these years; I never once disobeyed your orders; and you never gave me so much as a kid, for a feast with my friends. But now that this son of yours 30 turns up, after running through your money with his women, you kill the fatted calf for him." "My boy," said 31 the father, "you are always with me, and everything I have is yours. How 32 could we help celebrating this happy day? Your brother here was dead and has come back to life, was lost and is found."

He said to his disciples, 'There was a 16 rich man who had a steward, and he received complaints that this man was squandering the property. So he sent 2 for him, and said, "What is this that I hear? Produce your accounts, for you cannot be manager here any longer." The steward said to himself, "What 3 am I to do now that my employer is dismissing me? I am not strong enough to dig, and too proud to beg. I know 4 what I must do, to make sure that, when I have to leave, there will be people to give me house and home." He sum- 5 moned his master's debtors one by one. To the first he said, "How much do you owe my master?" He replied, "A 6 thousand gallons of olive oil." He said, "Here is your account. Sit down and

<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses read to have his fill of . . .

<sup>f</sup> Some witnesses add treat me as one of your paid servants.

12: The younger son's share would be one-third; see Deut.21.17. 13: The rate of emigration of Palestinian Jews to the urban centers of the Gentile world was very high. 15-16: Since pigs are unclean animals, everything about the job would have been repugnant. 20-23: Kiss, robe, ring, and fatted calf show that the son is not only forgiven, but received with honor. 31: The elder son is still accepted.

16.1-31: The uses of wealth. Except for vv. 16-18, the traditional units in ch. 16 seem to have been assembled around the theme of wealth. 1-8: This very difficult parable about a dishonest steward (v. 8) commends a scoundrel for having the good sense to act decisively in a

- make it five hundred; and be quick 7 about it." Then he said to another,
 "And you, how much do you owe?"
 He said, "A thousand bushels of wheat", and was told, "Take your account and make it eight hundred."
 8 And the master applauded the dishonest steward for acting so astutely.
 For the worldly are more astute than the other-worldly in dealing with their own kind.
- 9 'So I say to you, use your worldly wealth to win friends for yourselves, so that when money is a thing of the past
 you may be received into an eternal
 home.
- 10 'The man who can be trusted in little things can be trusted also in great; and the man who is dishonest in little things 11 is dishonest also in great things. If, then, you have not proved trustworthy with the wealth of this world, who will trust you with the wealth that is real?
 12 And if you have proved untrustworthy with what belongs to another, who will give you what is your own?
- 13 'No servant can be the slave of two masters; for either he will hate the first and love the second, or he will be devoted to the first and think nothing of the second. You cannot serve God and Money.'
- 14 The Pharisees, who loved money, 15 heard all this and scoffed at him. He said to them, 'You are the people who impress your fellow-men with your righteousness; but God sees through you; for what sets itself up to be admired by men is detestable in the sight of God.
- 16 'Until John, it was the Law and the prophets: since then, there is the good news of the kingdom of God, and everyone forces his way in.
- 17 'It is easier for heaven and earth to come to an end than for one dot or stroke of the Law to lose its force.

'A man who divorces his wife and 18 marries another commits adultery; and anyone who marries a woman divorced from her husband commits adultery.

'There was once a rich man, who 19 dressed in purple and the finest linen, and feasted in great magnificence every day. At his gate, covered with sores, 20 lay a poor man named Lazarus, who 21 would have been glad to satisfy his hunger with the scraps from the rich man's table. Even the dogs used to come and lick his sores. One day the 22 poor man died and was carried away by the angels to be with Abraham. The rich man also died and was buried, and 23 in Hades, where he was in torment, he looked up; and there, far away, was Abraham with Lazarus close beside him. "Abraham, my father," he called 24 out, "take pity on me! Send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water, to cool
 my tongue, for I am in agony in this fire." But Abraham said, "Remember, 25 my child, that all the good things fell to you while you were alive, and all the bad to Lazarus; now he has his consolation here and it is you who are in agony.
 But that is not all: there is a great 26 chasm fixed between us; no one from our side who wants to reach you can cross it, and none may pass from your side to us." "Then, father," he replied, 27 "will you send him to my father's house, where I have five brothers, to 28 warn them, so that they too may not come to this place of torment?" But 29 Abraham said, "They have Moses and the prophets; let them listen to them."
 "No, father Abraham," he replied, 30
 "but if someone from the dead visits them, they will repent." Abraham 31 answered, "If they do not listen to time of crisis. 8: Master (lit. "lord") may refer either to the rich man who discharged his steward or to Jesus. The other-worldly are, lit. "the sons of light" (Jn.12.36; 1 Th.5.5; Eph.5.8); the Dead Sea sect used "children of light" as a designation of itself as the community of the elect. 9: The saying perhaps commends dispensing wealth in acts of charity. 13: Mt.6.24. 16: John (the Baptist) marks the dividing line between the age of anticipation and the age of salvation. It is not clear on which side of the line John himself stands for Lk.; compare Mt.11.12-15 n. 17: Stroke: the allusion is to a small mark made in writing Heb. letters. 18: On divorce, see notes on Mt.5.31-32. 19-31: The "rich man-poor man" motif is found in similar stories from other sources. The primary theme is the reversal of fortunes in the world to come for the poor (righteous) and the rich (unrighteous). Their fates are seen as a motive for repentance. 29,31: The two ages of v. 16 are suggested by the appeal, on the one hand, to Moses and the prophets, and the hint, on the other hand, of one who will rise from the dead.

---

Moses and the prophets they will pay no heed even if someone should rise from the dead.”

17 HE SAID TO HIS DISCIPLES, ‘CAUSES OF stumbling are bound to arise; but woe betide the man through whom they come. It would be better for him to be thrown into the sea with a millstone round his neck than to cause one of these little ones to stumble. Keep watch on yourselves.

‘If your brother wrongs you, reprove him; and if he repents, forgive him.

4 Even if he wrongs you seven times in a day and comes back to you seven times saying, “I am sorry”, you are to forgive him.’

5 The apostles said to the Lord, ‘Increase our faith’; and the Lord replied, ‘If you had faith no bigger even than a mustard-seed, you could say to this mulberry-tree, “Be rooted up and replanted in the sea”; and it would at once obey you.

7 ‘Suppose one of you has a servant ploughing or minding sheep. When he comes back from the fields, will the master say, “Come along at once and sit down”? Will he not rather say, “Prepare my supper, fasten your belt, and then wait on me while I have my meal; you can have yours afterwards”?

9 Is he grateful to the servant for carrying out his orders? So with you: when you have carried out all your orders, you should say, “We are servants and deserve no credit; we have only done our duty.”

11 In the course of his journey to Jerusalem he was travelling through the borderlands of Samaria and Galilee.

12 As he was entering a village he was met by ten men with leprosy. They stood some way off and called out to him, 13 ‘Jesus, Master, take pity on us.’ When he saw them he said, ‘Go and show yourselves to the priests’; and while they were on their way, they were made clean. One of them, finding himself 15 cured, turned back praising God aloud. He threw himself down at Jesus’s feet 16 and thanked him. And he was a Samaritan. At this Jesus said: ‘Were 17 not all ten cleansed? The other nine, where are they? Could none be found 18 to come back and give praise to God except this foreigner?’ And he said to 19 the man, ‘Stand up and go on your way; your faith has cured you.’

THE PHARISEES ASKED HIM, ‘WHEN WILL 20 the kingdom of God come?’ He said, ‘You cannot tell by observation when the kingdom of God comes. There will 21 be no saying, “Look, here it is!” or “there it is!”; for in fact the kingdom of God is among you.’<sup>g</sup>

He said to the disciples, ‘The time 22 will come when you will long to see one of the days of the Son of Man, but you will not see it. They will say to you, 23 “Look! There!” and “Look! Here!” Do not go running off in pursuit. For 24 like the lightning-flash that lights up the earth from end to end, will the Son of Man be when his day comes. But 25 first he must endure much suffering and be repudiated by this generation.

‘As things were in Noah’s days, so 26 will they be in the days of the Son of Man. They ate and drank and married, 27

<sup>g</sup> Or for in fact the kingdom of God is within you, or for in fact the kingdom of God is within your grasp, or for suddenly the kingdom of God will be among you.

17.1–10: Faithful discipleship. 1–2: See Mt.18.6 n.,7–9 n.; Mk.9.42. 3–4: Compare Mt.18.15, 21–22. The responsibility for righting a wrong between brothers lies with the one who is wronged (v. 3) and has no limits (v. 4). Lk. does not have the Church discipline provisions of Mt.18.16–17. 5–6: Compare Mt.17.20. The hyperbole of a faith which uproots trees corresponds to the hyperbolic challenges of vv. 2,4.

17.11–19: Ten lepers on the way. 11: Journey to Jerusalem: see 13.22–35 n. Through the border lands of Samaria and Galilee is an attempt to translate a Gk. phrase which is grammatically and geographically difficult; Lk. is more interested in the journey than in its precise itinerary. 12: Leprosy: see Mt.8.2 n. 16: That a Samaritan should be the one to show gratitude is a surprise; see 9.52 n.; 10.33 n.

17.20–37: The coming of the kingdom. 21: The verse is sufficiently ambiguous to invite alternative translations (see Tfn. g; Mt.24.23). The when of the Pharisee’s question (v. 20) provides the unifying thread for vv. 20–37, so that Lk. appears to understand v. 21 in a manner consistent with the futuristic thrust of the remaining verses. 23–24: Compare Mt.24.26–27; Mk.13.21. 24: The coming of the Son of Man (see Mk.2.10 n.) will leave no room for guesses until the day that Noah went into the ark and the flood came and made an end of them all. As things were in Lot's days, also: they ate and drank; they bought and sold; they planted and built; but the day that Lot went out from Sodom, it rained fire and sulphur from the sky and made an end of them all—it will be like that on the day when the Son of Man is revealed.

31 'On that day the man who is on the roof and his belongings in the house must not come down to pick them up; he, too, who is in the fields must not go back. Remember Lot's wife. Whoever seeks to save his life will lose it; and whoever loses it will save it, and live.

34 'I tell you, on that night there will be two men in one bed: one will be taken, the other left. There will be two women together grinding corn: one will be taken, the other left.<sup>h</sup> When they heard this they asked, 'Where, Lord?' He said, 'Where the corpse is, there the vultures will gather.'

18 HE SPOKE TO THEM IN A PARABLE TO show that they should keep on praying and never lose heart: 'There was once a judge who cared nothing for God or man, and in the same town there was a widow who constantly came before him demanding justice against her opponent. For a long time he refused; but in the end he said to himself, "True, I care nothing for God or man: but this widow is so great a nuisance that I will see her righted before she wears me out with her persistence."' The Lord said, 'You hear what the unjust judge says; and will not God vindicate his chosen, who cry out to him day and night, while he listens patiently to them?' I tell you, he will vindicate them soon enough. But when the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on earth?'

And here is another parable that he told. It was aimed at those who were sure of their own goodness and looked down on everyone else. 'Two men went up to the temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax-gatherer. The Pharisee stood up and prayed thus: "I thank thee, O God, that I am not like the rest of men, greedy, dishonest, adulterous; or, for that matter, like this tax-gatherer. I fast twice a week; I pay tithes on all that I get." But the other kept his distance and would not even raise his eyes to heaven, but beat upon his breast, saying, "O God, have mercy on me, sinner that I am." It was this man, I tell you, and not the other, who went home acquitted of his sins. For everyone who exalts himself will be humbled; and whoever humbles himself will be exalted.'

They even brought babies for him to touch. When the disciples saw them they rebuked them, but Jesus called for the children and said, 'Let the little ones come to me; do not try to stop them; for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these. I tell you that whoever does not accept the kingdom of God like a child will never enter it.'

A man of the ruling class put this question to him: 'Good Master, what must I do to win eternal life?' Jesus said to him, 'Why do you call me good? No one is good except God alone. You know the commandments: "Do not commit adultery; do not murder; do

<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses add (36) two men in the fields: one will be taken, the other left.
<sup>i</sup> Or delays to help them.
<sup>j</sup> Some witnesses read stood up by himself and prayed thus; others read stood up and prayed thus privately.

(v. 23), but will be self-illuminating. 27: Mt.24.37–39. Noah: Gen. chs. 6–7. 28–32: The days of Lot: Gen.19.1–29. 31: Mt.24.17–18; Mk.13.15–16. 33: The reference to Lot's wife (v. 32) gives the saying about saving and losing life an unusual setting; see Mt.10.38–39 n. 34–35: Mt.24.40–41. 37: Mt.24.28.

18.1–17: Preparation for the kingdom. 1: To keep on praying is a familiar theme (3.21 n.); never to lose heart may indicate that this parable is meant for a time of trouble (perhaps of persecution, vv. 6–7). 6–7: The point is not that God must be worn down like the unjust judge, but rather that the prayers of the chosen will surely be heard by the Righteous Judge. Compare 11.11–13. 9: Pharisee: Mt.3.7 n. Tax-gatherer: Lk.3.12 n. 11–12: For the original hearers, the Pharisee would be a genuinely good man, fasting far beyond the Law's requirements, tithing above the literal commandment (Deut.14.22–29). 14: The tax-gatherer is acquitted because he knows his sin and repents; see 15.7,10. 15–17: Mt.19.13–15; 18.3; Mk.10.13–16. For the first time since 9.51, Lk. again takes up the content and order of Mk.

18.18–30: Possessions and the kingdom (Mt.19.16–30; Mk.10.17–31). 18–20a: See Mt.19.16–17 n. 18: Only Lk. places the man in the ruling class. 20: Exod.20.12–16; Deut.5.16–20.

not steal; do not give false evidence; 21 honour your father and mother.” The man answered, ‘I have kept all these 22 since I was a boy.’ On hearing this Jesus said, ‘There is still one thing lacking: sell everything you have and distribute to the poor, and you will have riches in heaven; and come, follow 23 me.’ At these words his heart sank; for 24 he was a very rich man. When Jesus saw it he said, ‘How hard it is for the wealthy to enter the kingdom of God! 25 It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.’ Those 26 who heard asked, ‘Then who can be saved?’ He answered, ‘What is impossible for men is possible for God.’ 28 Peter said, ‘We here have left our belongings to become your followers.’ 29 Jesus said, ‘I tell you this: there is no one who has given up home, or wife, brothers, parents, or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God, who will not be repaid many times over in this age, and in the age to come have eternal life.’

Challenge to Jerusalem

31 HE TOOK THE TWELVE ASIDE AND SAID, ‘We are now going up to Jerusalem; and all that was written by the prophets will come true for the Son of Man. He will be handed over to the foreign power. He will be mocked, maltreated, and spat upon. They will flog him and kill him. And on the third day he will rise again.’ But they understood nothing of all this; they did not grasp what he was talking about; its meaning was concealed from them. 35 As he approached Jericho a blind man sat at the roadside begging. 36 Hearing a crowd going past, he asked 37 what was happening. They told him, ‘Jesus of Nazareth is passing by.’ Then 38 he shouted out, ‘Jesus, Son of David, have pity on me.’ The people in front 39 told him to hold his tongue; but he called out all the more, ‘Son of David, have pity on me.’ Jesus stopped and ordered the man to be brought to him. When he came up he asked him, ‘What 41 do you want me to do for you?’ ‘Sir, I want my sight back’, he answered. Jesus said to him, ‘Have back your 42 sight; your faith has cured you.’ He 43 recovered his sight instantly; and he followed Jesus, praising God. And all the people gave praise to God for what they had seen.

Entering Jericho he made his way 19 through the city. There was a man 2 there named Zacchaeus; he was superintendent of taxes and very rich. He was eager to see what Jesus looked 3 like; but, being a little man, he could not see him for the crowd. So he ran on 4 ahead and climbed a sycamore-tree in order to see him, for he was to pass that way. When Jesus came to the place, he 5 looked up and said, ‘Zacchaeus, be quick and come down; I must come and stay with you today.’ He climbed 6 down as fast as he could and welcomed him gladly. At this there was a general 7 murmur of disapproval. ‘He has gone in’, they said, ‘to be the guest of a sinner.’ But Zacchaeus stood there and 8 said to the Lord, ‘Here and now, sir, I give half my possessions to charity; and if I have cheated anyone, I am ready to repay him four times over.’ Jesus said to him, ‘Salvation has come 9 to this house today!—for this man too is a son of Abraham, and the Son of 10 Man has come to seek and save what is lost.’

While they were listening to this, he 11 went on to tell them a parable, because he was now close to Jerusalem and they thought the reign of God might 22: See Mt.19.21 n. 25,27: On camel, needle, see Mt.19.24 n. 28–30: See Mt.19.27,29 n.

18.31–34: The third prediction of suffering. See 9.22,44–45; Mt.20.17–19; Mk.10.32–34 n.

18.35–43: A blind man healed (Mt.20.29–34; Mk.10.46–52). 38: Son of David: see Mt.1.1 n. 42: Cured: see 7.50 n. 43: Followed: see Mk.10.52 n.

19.1–10: Zacchaeus. 2: Superintendent of taxes: see 3.12 n. 7: Guest of a sinner: see Mk.2.15 n. On the restitution of illegal gain, see Lev.6.1–7.

19.11–27: The parable of the pounds (compare Mt.25.14–30). 11: Close to Jerusalem is the last of several notices which serve the “journey theme”; with v. 27 Luke’s special section comes to a close (see 9.51–19.27 n.). Lk. employs the parabolic tradition to prepare for (apparent) defeat rather than (immediate) victory in Jerusalem and to encourage patient and trustworthy

12 dawn at any moment. He said, 'A man of noble birth went on a long journey abroad, to be appointed king and then 13 return. But first he called ten of his servants and gave them a pound each, saying, "Trade with this while I am 14 away." His fellow-citizens hated him, and they sent a delegation on his heels
to say, "We do not want this man as 15 our king." However, back he came as king, and sent for the servants to whom he had given the money, to see what 16 profit each had made. The first came and said, "Your pound, sir, has made 17 ten more." "Well done," he replied;
"you are a good servant. You have shown yourself trustworthy in a very small matter, and you shall have 18 charge of ten cities." The second came
and said, "Your pound, sir, has made 19 five more"; and he also was told, "You 20 too, take charge of five cities." The third came and said, "Here is your pound,
sir; I kept it put away in a handker-21 chief. I was afraid of you, because you are a hard man: you draw out what you never put in and reap what you did 22 not sow." "You rascal!" he replied;
"I will judge you by your own words.
You knew, did you, that I am a hard man, that I draw out what I never put 23 in, and reap what I did not sow? Then why did you not put my money on deposit, and I could have claimed it with interest when I came back?"
24 Turning to his attendants he said,
"Take the pound from him and give it 25 to the man with ten." "But, sir," they 26 replied, "he has ten already." "I tell you," he went on, "the man who has will always be given more; but the man who has not will forfeit even what he 27 has. But as for those enemies of mine who did not want me for their king, bring them here and slaughter them in my presence."

WITH THAT JESUS WENT FORWARD AND 28
began the ascent to Jerusalem. As he 29 approached Bethphage and Bethany at the hill called Olivet, he sent two of the disciples with these instructions: 'Go to 30
the village opposite; as you enter it you will find tethered there a colt which no one has yet ridden. Untie it and bring it here. If anyone asks why you are 31
untying it, say, "Our Master needs
it.'" The two went on their errand and 32
found it as he had told them; and while 33
they were untying the colt, its owners
asked, 'Why are you untying that colt?'
They answered, 'Our Master needs it.' 34
So they brought the colt to Jesus. 35

Then they threw their cloaks on the colt, for Jesus to mount, and they 36 carpeted the road with them as he went on his way. And now, as he approached 37
the descent from the Mount of Olives,
the whole company of his disciples in their joy began to sing aloud the praises of God for all the great things
they had seen:

'Blessings on him who comes as king 38
in the name of the Lord!
Peace in heaven, glory in highest
heaven!'

Some Pharisees who were in the 39 crowd said to him, 'Master, reprimand your disciples.' He answered, 'I tell you, 40 if my disciples keep silence the stones
will shout aloud.'

When he came in sight of the city, he 41
wept over it and said, 'If only you had 42 known, on this great day, the way that service while waiting for the kingdom. 12 (also 15,27): The matter of a man who journeys abroad, to be appointed king may be an allusion to some historical incident involving Rome and a member of the Herodian dynasty. However, the rejected king (vv. 15,27) of Lk. is intended allegorically as a reference to the Messiah. 13: The ten servants introduced here dwindle to three in vv. 16,18,20; Mt.25.14-15 also has only three. Pound translates "mina," a modest sum (in contrast to the sizable responsibilities of Mt.25.14-30). 27: See v. 11 n.

19.28-21.38: Jesus in Jerusalem (Mt.21.1-25.46; Mk.11.1-13.37). See Mk.11.1-13.37 n.
19.28-40: The entry into Jerusalem (Mt.21.1-9; Mk.11.1-11; Jn.12.12-15). 28: The ascent to Jerusalem marks the end of the "travel narrative" (see 9.51-19.27 n.) and the beginning of the final stage of Jesus' ministry. In Jerusalem, the Holy City, Jesus' Sonship is fully revealed and the stage is set for the new beginning which Acts reports (see Introduction). 29: Olivet: see Mt.21.1 n. 38: Ps.118.26; Lk. has Jesus acclaimed as king without mention of David (compare Mt.21.9; Mk.11.10), perhaps to emphasize that Jesus is more than a Davidic ruler (see 20.41-44). Peace, glory recall the angelic hymn in 2.14.

19.41-44: Prediction of Jerusalem's destruction. Lk. writes after the fall of Jerusalem (70 A.D.), leads to peace! But no; it is hidden 43 from your sight. For a time will come upon you, when your enemies will set up siege-works against you; they will encircle you and hem you in at every 44 point; they will bring you to the ground, you and your children within your walls, and not leave you one stone standing on another, because you did not recognize God's moment when it came.'

45 Then he went into the temple and 46 began driving out the traders, with these words: 'Scripture says, "My house shall be a house of prayer"; but you have made it a robbers' cave.'

47 Day by day he taught in the temple.
 And the chief priests and lawyers were bent on making an end of him, with the 48 support of the leading citizens, but found they were helpless, because the people all hung upon his words.

20 ONE DAY, AS HE WAS TEACHING THE people in the temple and telling them
 the good news, the priests and lawyers, and the elders with them, came upon 2 him and accosted him. 'Tell us', they said, 'by what authority you are acting like this; who gave you this authority?'
 3 He answered them, 'I have a question 4 to ask you too: tell me, was the baptism of John from God or from 5 men?' This set them arguing among themselves: 'If we say, "from God", he will say, "Why did you not believe 6 him?" And if we say, "from men", the people will all stone us, for they are convinced that John was a prophet.'
 7 So they replied that they could not tell.
 8 And Jesus said to them, 'Then neither will I tell you by what authority I act.' 9 He went on to tell the people this parable: 'A man planted a vineyard, let it out to vine-growers, and went 10 abroad for a long time. When the season came, he sent a servant to the tenants to collect from them his share of the produce; but the tenants thrashed

 him and sent him away empty-handed.
 He tried again and sent a second ser- 11
 vant; but he also was thrashed, outrageously treated, and sent away empty-handed. He tried once more with 12 a third; this one too they wounded and flung out. Then the owner of the vineyard said, "What am I to do? I will 13 send my own dear son;<sup>k</sup> perhaps they will respect him." But when the tenants 14 saw him they talked it over together.
 "This is the heir," they said; "let us kill him so that the property may come to us." So they flung him out of the 15 vineyard and killed him. What then will the owner of the vineyard do to them?
 He will come and put these tenants to 16
 death and let the vineyard to others.'

When they heard this, they said,
 'God forbid!' But he looked straight 17
 at them and said, 'Then what does this text of Scripture mean: "The stone which the builders rejected has become the main corner-stone"? Any man who 18 falls on that stone will be dashed to pieces; and if it falls on a man he will be crushed by it.'

The lawyers and chief priests wanted 19
 to lay hands on him there and then,
 for they saw that this parable was aimed at them; but they were afraid of the people. So they watched their opportu- 20 nity and sent secret agents in the guise of honest men, to seize upon some word of his as a pretext for handing him over to the authority and jurisdiction of the Governor. They put 21
 a question to him: 'Master,' they said,
 'we know that what you speak and teach is sound; you pay deference to no one, but teach in all honesty the way of life that God requires. Are we or 22

<sup>k</sup> Or my only son.

but the language of this oracle is natural to the threatened destruction (compare Ps.137.9; Isa.29.3-4; Jer.6.6-8).

19.45-48: Cleansing of the Temple (Mt.21.10-17; Mk.11.15-19; compare Jn.2.12-22). See notes at parallel passages. 47-48: Although Lk. relates the cleansing episode very briefly, he depicts Jesus as "in control" of the Temple.

20.1-8: Jesus' authority challenged (Mt.21.23-27; Mk.11.27-33). 4: From God: see Mt.21.25 n. 6: Prophet: see Mk.8.28 n.

20.9-18: The evil tenants (Mt.21.33-43; Mk.12.1-11). 9: On parable, vineyard, see Mt.21.33 n. 10: On servant, tenants, see Mt.21.34 n. 13: Son: Jesus. 17: Ps.118.22; see Mk.12.10-11 n. 18: Isa.8.14-15.

20.19-26: Caesar's tax (Mt.22.15-22; Mk.12.13-17). 22: Taxes: see Mt.22.17 n.

are we not permitted to pay taxes to the 23 Roman Emperor? He saw through 24 their trick and said, 'Show me a silver piece. Whose head does it bear, and whose inscription?' 'Caesar's', they 25 replied. 'Very well then,' he said, 'pay Caesar what is due to Caesar, and pay 26 God what is due to God.' Thus their attempt to catch him out in public failed, and, astonished by his reply,
 they fell silent.

27 Then some Sadducees came forward.
 They are the people who deny that there is a resurrection. Their question 28 was this: 'Master, Moses laid it down for us that if there are brothers, and one dies leaving a wife but no child, then the next should marry the widow and 29 carry on his brother's family. Now, there were seven brothers: the first 30 took a wife and died childless; then the 31 second married her, then the third. In this way the seven of them died leaving 32 no children. Afterwards the woman 33 also died. At the resurrection whose wife is she to be, since all seven had 34 married her?' Jesus said to them, 'The men and women of this world marry; 35 but those who have been judged worthy of a place in the other world and of the resurrection from the dead, do not 36 marry, for they are not subject to death any longer. They are like angels; they are sons of God, because they share in 37 the resurrection. That the dead are raised to life again is shown by Moses himself in the story of the burning bush, when he calls the Lord, "the God 38 of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob". God is not God of the dead but of the living;
 for him all are<sup>1</sup> alive.'

39 At this some of the lawyers said, 40 'Well spoken, Master.' For there was no further question that they ventured to put to him.

He said to them, 'How can they say 41
 that the Messiah is son of David? For 42 David himself says in the Book of Psalms: "The Lord said to my Lord,
 'Sit at my right hand until I make your 43 enemies your footstool.'" Thus David 44 calls him "Lord"; how then can he be David's son?'

In the hearing of all the people Jesus 45
 said to his disciples: 'Beware of the 46
 doctors of the law who love to walk up and down in long robes, and have a great liking for respectful greetings in the street, the chief seats in our synagogues, and places of honour at feasts. These are the men who eat up 47
 the property of widows, while they say long prayers for appearance' sake; and they will receive the severest sentence.'

He looked up and saw the rich 21 people dropping their gifts into the chest of the temple treasury; and he 2 noticed a poor widow putting in two tiny coins. 'I tell you this,' he said: 3
 'this poor widow has given more than any of them; for those others who have 4 given had more than enough, but she,
 with less than enough, has given all she had to live on.'

SOME PEOPLE WERE TALKING ABOUT THE 5
 temple and the fine stones and votive offerings with which it was adorned.
 He said, 'These things which you are 6 gazing at—the time will come when not one stone of them will be left upon another; all will be thrown down.'
 'Master,' they asked, 'when will it all 7 come about? What will be the sign when it is due to happen?'

He said, 'Take care that you are not 8 misled. For many will come claiming my name and saying, "I am he", and,
 "The Day is upon us." Do not follow

<sup>1</sup> Or they are all.

20.27–40: A resurrection puzzle (Mt.22.23–33; Mk.12.18–27). 27: Sadducees: see Mt.3.7 n. 28: Deut.25.5–10. 35–36: The mode of existence in the new age will be completely different than in this age. 36: Angels are sometimes called sons of God in the OT. 37: Exod.3.6.

20.41–44: Messiah, son of David (Mt.22.41–46; Mk.12.35–37). 41: Messiah . . . son of David: see Mt.1.1 n. 42–43: Ps.110.1; see Mt.22.44 n. 44: See Mt.22.45 n.

20.45–47: Warning against pride. 46: 11.43; Mt.23.6; Mk.12.38–40.

21.1–4: The widow's gift (Mk.12.41–44). 1: Several chests were located in the section of the Temple open to Jewish women. 2: The value of the coins was too small to be meaningfully defined in terms of modern currency.

21.5–38: The eschatological discourse. See Mk.13.1–37 n. 5–7: The Temple's destruction: see Mt.24.1–3 n.; Mk.13.1–4.

21.8–36: Signs, false signs, and warnings (Mt.24.4–44; Mk.13.5–7). 8: 17.23; see Mt.24.4–5 n.

9 them. And when you hear of wars and insurrections, do not fall into a panic.
 These things are bound to happen first;
 10 but the end does not follow immediately.
 Then he added, 'Nation will make war upon nation, kingdom upon kingdom; there will 11 be great earthquakes, and famines and plagues in many places; in the sky terrors and great portents.
 12 'But before all this happens they will set upon you and persecute you. You will be brought before synagogues and put in prison; you will be haled before kings and 13 governors for your allegiance to me. This will be your opportunity to testify; so make 14 up your minds not to prepare your defence beforehand, because I myself will give you 15 power of utterance and a wisdom which no opponent will be able to resist or refute.
 16 Even your parents and brothers, your relations and friends, will betray you.
 17 Some of you will be put to death; and all will hate you for your allegiance to me.
 18 But not a hair of your head shall be lost.
 By standing firm you will win true life
 19 for yourselves.
 20 'But when you see Jerusalem encircled by armies, then you may be sure that her 21 destruction is near. Then those who are in Judaea must take to the hills; those who are in the city itself must leave it, and 22 those who are out in the country must not enter; because this is the time of retribution, when all that stands written is to be fulfilled.
 23 Alas for women who are with child in those days, or have children at the breast!
 For there will be great distress in the land
 and a terrible judgement upon this people.
 24 They will fall at the sword's point; they will be carried captive into all countries;
 and Jerusalem will be trampled down by foreigners until their day has run its course.
 25 'Portents will appear in sun, moon,

and stars. On earth nations will stand helpless, not knowing which way to turn from the roar and surge of the sea; men will faint with terror at the thought of 26 all that is coming upon the world; for the celestial powers will be shaken. And then they will see the Son of Man coming on a cloud with great power and glory. When 27 all this begins to happen, stand upright and hold your heads high, because your liberation is near.'

He told them this parable: 'Look at the 28 fig-tree, or any other tree. As soon as it buds, you can see for yourselves that summer is near. In the same way, when 29 you see all this happening, you may know that the kingdom of God is near.'

'I tell you this: the present generation 30 will live to see it all. Heaven and earth will pass away; my words will never pass
 away.'

'Keep a watch on yourselves; do not let 31 your minds be dulled by dissipation and drunkenness and worldly cares so that the great Day closes upon you suddenly like 32 a trap; for that day will come on all men, wherever they are, the whole world over.
 Be on the alert, praying at all times for 33 strength to pass safely through all these imminent troubles and to stand in the presence of the Son of Man.'

His days were given to teaching in the 34 temple; and then he would leave the city and spend the night on the hill called Olivet. And in the early morning the 35 people flocked to listen to him in the temple.<sup>m</sup>

The final conflict

NOW THE FESTIVAL OF UNLEAVENED Bread, 22 known as Passover, was ap-

<sup>m</sup> Some witnesses here insert the passage printed on p. 138.

12-17: Mt.10.17-22. 14-15: 12.11-12; Acts 6.10. 16: 12.52-53. 17: Mt.10.22. 18: 12.7; Mt.10.30; Acts 27.34. 20: Lk. speaks, not of a cryptic "abomination of desolation" (Mt.24.15 n.), but directly of the siege of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. 22: Deut.32.35. 24: Isa.63.18; Zech.12.3 (Sept.). 25-26: See Mt.24.29 n. 27: Dan.7.13. 32: 9.27; see Mt.24.34 n. 33: 16.17.

21.37-38: Summary. Lk. apparently thinks of the final period in Jerusalem as longer than the "week" of Mk. (see Mk.11.1-13.37 n.).

22.1-23.56: The final conflict (Mt.26.1-27.66; Mk.14.1-15.47; Jn. chs. 12-19). While individual episodes (e.g. 23.27-31) can be removed from the narrative leading up to the crucifixion, the outline of the passion story appears to have been fixed quite early and is carried by all four Gospels in much the same form. However, Lk. and Jn., when compared with Mt.-Mk.,

- 2 proaching, and the chief priests and the doctors of the law were trying to devise some means of doing away with him; for they were afraid of the people.
- 3 Then Satan entered into Judas Iscariot, who was one of the Twelve; and Judas went to the chief priests and officers of the temple police to discuss ways and means of putting Jesus into their power. They were greatly pleased and undertook to pay him a sum of money. He agreed, and began to look out for an opportunity to betray him to them without collecting a crowd.
- 7 Then came the day of Unleavened Bread, on which the Passover victim had to be slaughtered, and Jesus sent Peter and John with these instructions: 'Go and prepare for our Passover supper.' 'Where would you like us to make the preparations?' they asked.
- 10 He replied, 'As soon as you set foot in the city a man will meet you carrying a jar of water. Follow him into the house that he enters and give this message to the householder: "The Master says, 'Where is the room in which I may eat the Passover with my disciples?'" He will show you a large room upstairs all set out: make the preparations there.'
- 13 They went and found everything as he had said. So they prepared for Passover.
- 14 When the time came he took his place at table, and the apostles with him; and he said to them, 'How I have longed<sup>n</sup> to eat this Passover with you before my death! For I tell you, never again shall I<sup>o</sup> eat it until the time when it finds its fulfilment in the kingdom of God.'
- 17 Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he said, 'Take this and share it among yourselves; for I tell you, from this moment I shall drink from the fruit of the vine no more until the time when the kingdom of God comes.' And he
- took bread, gave thanks, and broke it; and he gave it to them, with the words: "This is my body."<sup>p</sup>
- 'But mark this—my betrayer is here, 21 his hand with mine on the table. For the Son of Man is going his appointed way; but alas for that man by whom he is betrayed!' At this they began to ask 23 among themselves which of them it could possibly be who was to do this thing.
- Then a jealous dispute broke out: 24 who among them should rank highest? But he said, 'In the world, kings lord it 25 over their subjects; and those in authority are called their country's "Benefactors". Not so with you: on the contrary, the highest among you must bear himself like the youngest, the chief of you like a servant. For who is greater 27 —the one who sits at table or the servant who waits on him? Surely the one who sits at table. Yet here am I among you like a servant.
- 'You are the men who have stood 28 firmly by me in my times of trial; and 29 now I vest in you the kingship which my Father vested in me; you shall eat and drink at my table in my kingdom and sit<sup>q</sup> on thrones as judges of the twelve tribes of Israel.
- 'Simon, Simon, take heed: Satan has 31 been given leave to sift all of you like wheat; but for you I have prayed that 32 your faith may not fail; and when you have come to yourself, you must lend strength to your brothers.' 'Lord,' he 33 replied, 'I am ready to go with you to prison and death.' Jesus said, 'I tell you, 34

n Or said to them, 'I longed . . .'

o Some witnesses read For I tell you, I shall not . . .

p Some witnesses add, in whole or in part, and with various arrangements, the following: 'which is given for you; do this as a memorial of me.' (20) In the same way, he took the cup after supper, and said, 'This cup, poured out for you, is the new covenant sealed by my blood.'

q Or trial; and as my Father gave me the right to reign, so I give you the right to eat and to drink . . . and to sit . . .

show sufficient dissimilarity in detail as to suggest the existence of more than one passion tradition. 1: See Mk.14.1 n. 3–6: Mt.26.14–16; Mk.14.10–11. 3: See 4.13 n.; Satan is not mentioned as the agent in Mt. or Mk.; compare Jn.6.70–71; 13.2.27.

22.7–13: Preparation for the Passover (Mt.26.17–19; Mk.14.12–16). 7–8: See Mt.26.17 n. 10–12: See Mt.26.18 n.

22.14–38: The Last Supper (Mt.26.20–29; Mk.14.17–21). 14: See Mt.26.20 n. 15–20: See also 1 Cor.11.23–26. 17–19: Lk. apparently follows a special tradition which places the cup ahead of the loaf. If Tfn. p represents the original text, the new covenant (v. 20) refers to Jer.31.31; see Mt.26.28 n. 21–23: See also Jn.13.21–30. 24–26: Mt.20.25–28; Mk.10.42–45. 29: Compare Acts 1.6–8. 30: Mt.19.28. 31–34: Mt.26.30–35 (see 33–35 n.); Mk.14.26–31; Jn.13.36–38. 31: 4.13 n. 35: 10.4. 37: Isa.53.12.

Peter, the cock will not crow tonight until you have three times over denied that you know me.'

- 35 He said to them, 'When I sent you out barefoot without purse or pack, were you ever short of anything?'
 36 'No,' they answered. 'It is different now,' he said; 'whoever has a purse had better take it with him, and his pack too; and if he has no sword, let him
 37 sell his cloak to buy one. For Scripture says, "And he was counted among the outlaws", and these words, I tell you, must find fulfilment in me; indeed, all that is written of me is being fulfilled.'
 38 'Look, Lord,' they said, 'we have two swords here.' 'Enough, enough!' he replied.

- 39 THEN HE WENT OUT AND MADE HIS WAY as usual to the Mount of Olives, accompanied by the disciples. When he reached the place he said to them, 'Pray that you may be spared the hour of testing.' He himself withdrew from them about a stone's throw, knelt down, and began to pray: 'Father, if it be thy will, take this cup away from me. Yet not my will but thine be done.'
 43 And now there appeared to him an angel from heaven bringing him strength, and in anguish of spirit he prayed the more urgently; and his sweat was like clots of blood falling to the ground.<sup>r</sup>

- 45 When he rose from prayer and came to the disciples he found them asleep, worn out by grief. 'Why are you sleeping?' he said. 'Rise and pray that you may be spared the test.'

- 47 WHILE HE WAS STILL SPEAKING A CROWD appeared with the man called Judas, one of the Twelve, at their head. He came up to Jesus to kiss him; but Jesus said, 'Judas, would you betray the Son of Man with a kiss?'

- 49 When his followers saw what was coming, they said, 'Lord, shall we use our swords?' And one of them struck at the High Priest's servant, cutting off his right ear. But Jesus answered, 'Let them have their way.' Then he touched the man's ear and healed him.<sup>s</sup>

Turning to the chief priests, the officers of the temple police, and the elders, who had come to seize him, he said, 'Do you take me for a bandit, that you have come out with swords and cudgels to arrest me? Day after day, when I was in the temple with you, you kept your hands off me. But this is your moment—the hour when darkness reigns.'

Then they arrested him and led him away. They brought him to the High Priest's house, and Peter followed at a distance. They lit a fire in the middle of the courtyard and sat round it, and Peter sat among them. A serving-maid who saw him sitting in the firelight stared at him and said, 'This man was with him too.' But he denied it: 'Woman,' he said, 'I do not know him.' A little later someone else noticed him and said, 'You also are one of them.' But Peter said to him, 'No, I am not.' About an hour passed and another spoke more strongly still: 'Of course this fellow was with him. He must have been; he is a Galilean.' But Peter said, 'Man, I do not know what you are talking about.' At that moment, while he was still speaking, a cock crew; and the Lord turned and looked at Peter. And Peter remembered the Lord's words, 'Tonight before the cock crows you will disown me three times.'<sup>t</sup>

The men who were guarding Jesus mocked at him. They beat him, they blindfolded him, and they kept asking him, 'Now, prophet, who hit you? Tell us that.' And so they went on heaping insults upon him.

WHEN DAY BROKE, THE ELDERS OF THE

<sup>r</sup> Some witnesses omit And now . . . ground.

<sup>s</sup> Or 'Let me do as much as this', and touching the man's ear, he healed him.

<sup>t</sup> Some witnesses add (62) He went outside, and wept bitterly, as in Matthew 26. 75.

22.39–46: Gethsemane (Mt.26.30–46; Mk.14.26–42). 39: Jn.18.1. 40–46: Several elements in this scene are reminiscent of the Lord's Prayer (e.g. vv. 40,42,46). 42: Cup: see Mk.10.38 n.

22.47–53: The arrest (Mt.26.47–56; Mk.14.43–52; Jn.18.2–11). 47: Kiss: see Mt.26.48 n. 50: One: see Mt.26.51 n.

22.54–71: Before the Jewish authorities (Mt.26.57–75; Mk.14.53–72; Jn.18.12–27). See Mt.26.57–75 n. 61: Compare v. 34. 63–65: See Mt.26.67–68; Mk.14.65. 66: Council: see nation, chief priests, and doctors of the law assembled, and he was brought before their Council. 'Tell us,' they said, 'are you the Messiah?' 'If I tell you,' he replied, 'you will not believe me; and if I ask questions, you will not answer. But from now on, the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of Almighty God.'<sup>u</sup> 'You are the Son of God, then?' they all said, and he replied, 'It is you who say I am.'<sup>v</sup> They said, 'Need we call further witnesses? We have heard it ourselves from his own lips.'

23 With that the whole assembly rose, and they brought him before Pilate. They opened the case against him by saying, 'We found this man subverting our nation, opposing the payment of taxes to Caesar, and claiming to be Messiah, a king.'<sup>w</sup> Pilate asked him, 'Are you the king of the Jews?' He replied, 'The words are yours.'<sup>x</sup> Pilate then said to the chief priests and the crowd, 'I find no case for this man to answer.' But they insisted: 'His teaching is causing disaffection among the people all through Judaea. It started from Galilee and has spread as far as this city.'

When Pilate heard this, he asked if the man was a Galilean, and on learning that he belonged to Herod's jurisdiction he remitted the case to him, for Herod was also in Jerusalem at that time. When Herod saw Jesus he was greatly pleased; having heard about him, he had long been wanting to see him, and had been hoping to see some miracle performed by him. He questioned him at some length without getting any reply; but the chief priests and lawyers appeared and pressed the case against him vigorously. Then Herod and his troops treated him with contempt and ridicule, and sent him back to Pilate dressed in a gorgeous robe. That same day Herod and Pilate became friends; till then there had been a standing feud between them.

Pilate now called together the chief priests, councillors, and people, and said to them, 'You brought this man before me on a charge of subversion. But, as you see, I have myself examined him in your presence and found nothing in him to support your charges. No more did Herod, for he has referred him back to us. Clearly he has done nothing to deserve death. I therefore propose to let him off with a flogging.' But<sup>y</sup> there was a general outcry. 'Away with him! Give us Barabbas.' (This man had been put in prison for a rising that had taken place in the city, and for murder.) Pilate addressed them again, in his desire to release Jesus, but they shouted back, 'Crucify him, crucify him!' For the third time he spoke to them: 'Why, what wrong has he done? I have not found him guilty of any capital offence. I will therefore let him off with a flogging.' But they insisted on their demand, shouting that Jesus should be crucified. Their shouts prevailed and Pilate decided that they should have their way. He released the man they asked for, the man who had been put in prison for insurrection and murder, and gave Jesus up to their will.

AS THEY LED HIM AWAY TO EXECUTION they seized upon a man called Simon, from Cyrene, on his way in from the country, put the cross on his back, and made him walk behind Jesus carrying it.

Great numbers of people followed, many women among them, who mourned and lamented over him. Jesus turned to them and said, 'Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me; no,

<sup>u</sup> Literally of the Power of God.

<sup>v</sup> Or You are right, for I am.

<sup>w</sup> Or to be an anointed king.

<sup>x</sup> Or It is as you say.

<sup>y</sup> Some witnesses read (17) At festival time he was obliged to release one person for them; (18) and now...

Mt.26.59 n. 67,70: Messiah, Son: see Mt.1.1 n.; 16.16 n. 69: Dan.7.13; Ps.110.1. Son of Man: see Mk.2.10 n.

23.1-25: Before Roman authority (Mt.27.1-31; Mk.15.1-20; Jn.18.28-19.16). 1: Pilate: see 3.1 n. 2: Opposing the payment of Roman taxes and claiming to be king are obviously seditious; Lk. has made the charge quite clear (see v. 14). 4: In Lk., Pilate pronounces Jesus innocent three times in the course of the hearing (vv. 4,14,22); see Acts 3.13-14. 7: Herod: Antipas (see 3.1 n.). The appearance before Antipas is found only in Lk.; see Acts 4.27-28. 8: 9.9. 11: Compare Mt.27.27-31; Mk.15.16-20; Jn.19.2-3. 18: Barabbas: Mt.27.16 n.

23.26-56: The crucifixion (Mt.27.32-66; Mk.15.21-47; Jn.19.17-42). 26: Simon: see weep for yourselves and your children.

 29 For the days are surely coming when they will say, "Happy are the barren, the wombs that never bore a child, the breasts that never fed one." Then they will start saying to the mountains, "Fall on us", and to the hills, "Cover us." For if these things are done when the wood is green, what will happen when it is dry?

32 There were two others with him, criminals who were being led away to execution; and when they reached the place called The Skull, they crucified him there, and the criminals with him, one on his right and the other on his left. Jesus said, 'Father, forgive them; they do not know what they are doing.'<sup>z</sup>

They divided his clothes among them by casting lots. The people stood looking on, and their rulers jeered at him: 'He saved others: now let him save himself, if this is God's Messiah, his Chosen.' The soldiers joined in the mockery and came forward offering him their sour wine. 'If you are the king of the Jews,' they said, 'save yourself.' There was an inscription above his head which ran: 'This is the king of the Jews.'

39 One of the criminals who hung there with him taunted him: 'Are not you the Messiah? Save yourself, and us.' But the other rebuked him: 'Have you no fear of God? You are under the same sentence as he. For us it is plain justice; we are paying the price for our misdeeds; but this man has done nothing wrong.' And he said, 'Jesus, remember me when you come to your throne.'<sup>a</sup>
 43 He answered, 'I tell you this: today you shall be with me in Paradise.'

44 By now it was about midday and a darkness fell over the whole land, which lasted until three in the afternoon; the sun's light failed. And the curtain of the temple was torn in two.
 46 Then Jesus gave a loud cry and said,

'Father, into thy hands I commit my spirit'; and with these words he died. The centurion saw it all, and gave praise to God. 'Beyond all doubt', he said, 'this man was innocent.'

The crowd who had assembled for the spectacle, when they saw what had happened, went home beating their breasts.

HIS FRIENDS HAD ALL BEEN STANDING AT a distance; the women who had accompanied him from Galilee stood with them and watched it all.

Now there was a man called Joseph, a member of the Council, a good, upright man, who had dissented from their policy and the action they had taken. He came from the Judaeen town of Arimathaea, and he was one who looked forward to the kingdom of God. This man now approached Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Taking it down from the cross, he wrapped it in a linen sheet, and laid it in a tomb cut out of the rock, in which no one had been laid before. It was Friday, and the Sabbath was about to begin.

The women who had accompanied him from Galilee followed; they took note of the tomb and observed how his body was laid. Then they went home and prepared spices and perfumes: and on the Sabbath they rested in obedience to the commandment. But on the Sunday morning very early they came to the tomb bringing the spices they had prepared. Finding that the stone had been rolled away from the tomb, they went inside; but the body was not to be found. While they stood utterly at a loss, all of a sudden two men in dazzling garments were at their side. They were terrified, and stood with eyes cast down, but the men said, 'Why search among the dead for one

<sup>z</sup> Some witnesses omit Jesus said, 'Father . . . doing.'
<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses read come in royal power.

Mk.15.21 n.; contrast Jn.19.17. 29: Compare 21.23. 30: Hos.10.8. 32: Crucifixion was a form of Roman punishment reserved for dangerous criminals; further, Judaism regarded anyone who was crucified as cursed (Deut.21.23). 33: Isa.53.12. 34: Forgive them: compare Acts 7.60. 35: Ps.22.18. 36: The wine was probably offered as a sedative. 43: Paradise, in Jewish thought, was the garden in which the righteous lived after death; compare Rev.2.7. 45: Curtain: see Mt.27.51 n. 46: Ps.31.5. 49: Ps.38.11. 50: Council: see Mt.26.59 n. 53: Deut.21.22-23. 55-56: The women delay the burial anointing because the Sabbath has begun and work must be postponed (Deut.5.12-14).

24.1-11: The empty tomb (Mt.28.1-10; Mk.16.1-8; Jn.20.1-18). 2: Stone: see Mt.27.60 n.

6 who lives?<sup>b</sup> Remember what he told 7 you while he was still in Galilee, about the Son of Man: how he must be given up into the power of sinful men and be crucified, and must rise again on the 8 third day.' Then they recalled his words 9 and, returning from the tomb, they reported all this to the Eleven and all the others.

10 The women were Mary of Magdala, Joanna, and Mary the mother<sup>c</sup> of James, and they, with the other women, 11 told the apostles. But the story appeared to them to be nonsense, and they would not believe them.<sup>d</sup>

13 THAT SAME DAY TWO OF THEM WERE ON their way to a village called Emmaus, which lay about seven miles from 14 Jerusalem, and they were talking together about all these happenings.
15 As they talked and discussed it with one another, Jesus himself came up and 16 walked along with them; but something kept them from seeing who it was.
17 He asked them, 'What is it you are debating as you walk?' They halted, 18 their faces full of gloom, and one,
called Cleopas, answered, 'Are you the only person staying in Jerusalem not to know<sup>e</sup> what has happened there in the 19 last few days?' 'What do you mean?'
he said. 'All this about Jesus of Nazareth,' they replied, 'a prophet powerful in speech and action before 20 God and the whole people; how our chief priests and rulers handed him over to be sentenced to death, and crucified 21 him. But we had been hoping that he was the man to liberate Israel. What is more, this is the third day since it 22 happened, and now some women of our company have astounded us: they 23 went early to the tomb, but failed to find his body, and returned with a story that they had seen a vision of angels 24 who told them he was alive. So some of our people went to the tomb and found things just as the women had said; but him they did not see.'

25 'How dull you are!' he answered.
'How slow to believe all that the prophets said! Was the Messiah not bound to 26 suffer thus before entering upon his glory?' Then he began with Moses and 27

all the prophets, and explained to them
the passages which referred to himself
in every part of the scriptures.

By this time they had reached the 28 village to which they were going, and he made as if to continue his journey,
but they pressed him: 'Stay with us, 29
for evening draws on, and the day is almost over.' So he went in to stay with them. And when he had sat down with 30 them at table, he took bread and said
the blessing; he broke the bread, and offered it to them. Then their eyes were 31 opened, and they recognized him; and he vanished from their sight. They said 32 to one another, 'Did we not feel our hearts on fire as he talked with us on the road and explained the scriptures to us?'

Without a moment's delay they set 33 out and returned to Jerusalem. There they found that the Eleven and the rest of the company had assembled, and 34 were saying, 'It is true: the Lord has risen; he has appeared to Simon.' Then 35 they gave their account of the events of their journey and told how he had been recognized by them at the breaking of the bread.

As they were talking about all this, 36
there he was, standing among them.<sup>f</sup> Startled and terrified, they thought 37
they were seeing a ghost. But he said 38
'Why are you so perturbed? Why do questionings arise in your minds? 39 Look at my hands and feet. It is I myself. Touch me and see; no ghost has flesh and bones as you can see that I 40
have.'<sup>g</sup> They were still unconvinced, still wondering, for it seemed too good to be true. So he asked them, 'Have you anything here to eat?' They offered 42

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses insert He is not here: he has been raised.

<sup>c</sup> Or wife, or daughter.

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses add (12) Peter, however, got up and ran to the tomb, and, peering in, saw the wrappings and nothing more; and he went home amazed at what had happened.

<sup>e</sup> Or Have you been staying by yourself in Jerusalem, that you do not know . . .

<sup>f</sup> Some witnesses insert And he said to them, 'Peace be with you!'

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses insert (40) After saying this he showed them his hands and feet.

6: Contrast Mt.28.7; Mk.16.7; in Lk. the resurrection appearances are restricted to the vicinity of Jerusalem.

24.13-53: Appearances and commissioning. 27: Moses and all the prophets: v. 44; see Mt.5.17 n.

30: The scene obviously suggests a eucharistic setting. 34: 1 Cor.15.5. 36-43: Jn.20.19-29.

him a piece of fish they had cooked,
 43 which he took and ate before their eyes.
 44 And he said to them, 'This is what I meant by saying, while I was still with you, that everything written about me in the Law of Moses and in the proph-45 ets and psalms was bound to be fulfilled.' Then he opened their minds 46 to understand the scriptures. 'This', he said, 'is what is written: that the 47 Messiah is to suffer death and to rise from the dead on the third day, and that in his name repentance bringing the forgiveness of sins is to be proclaimed to all nations. Begin from Jerusalem; it is you who are the wit- 48

 nesses to it all. And mark this: I am 49 sending upon you my Father's promised gift; so stay here in this city until you are armed with the power from above.'

Then he led them out as far as 50
 Bethany, and blessed them with uplifted hands; and in the act of blessing 51
 he parted from them.<sup>h</sup> And they<sup>i</sup> re- 52 turned to Jerusalem with great joy, and 53 spent all their time in the temple praising God.

<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses add and was carried up into heaven.
<sup>i</sup> Some witnesses insert worshipped him and . . .

---

44: V. 27; Mt.5.17 n. 46: Hos.6.2. 47-49: Compare Mt.28.18-20; Acts 1.4-8. 47: From Jerusalem: v. 52 n. 49: Power from above: compare Acts 1.8; 2.1-4. 50-51: Acts 1.9-12. 52: As the Gospel concludes, the disciples are in Jerusalem (compare Acts 1.12-14), but the reader is assured (v. 47) that what began in Galilee and culminated in the Holy City would now move out "to the ends of the earth" (Acts 1.8).

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO JOHN

While the Gospel According to John stands in contrast to Matthew, Mark, and Luke in matters of theological perspective, arrangement of its contents, and its distinctive use of imagery and symbols, it nevertheless clearly belongs to the same form of literature as do the other three. Its author, whose identity is unknown, displays exact knowledge both of Palestinian topography and of the Judaism of the first Christian century. This Gospel seems to record a tradition independent of that reflected in Matthew, Mark, and Luke, a tradition which may well go back to John, the son of Zebedee (see 21.2 n.), to whom the book was ascribed in the late second century. In Christian tradition John has often been called the "spiritual" Gospel, because of its attention to the spiritual import of the incidents it reports.

The Gospel is frequently analyzed into "The Book of Signs" (1.19–12.50) and "The Book of Glory" (13.1–20.31), with 1.1–18 as a Prologue and ch. 21 as an Epilogue. A "sign" is an act of power by Jesus, which points to a truth inaccessible to sight and touch, but apprehensible by faith. Paradoxically, "glory," an Old Testament term signifying God's presence, is for the evangelist publicly manifest in the earthly career of Jesus—who, to eyes of faith, reveals himself as the Son of God in certain significant events and through his death and resurrection. The writer's aim is "that you may hold the faith that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that through this faith you may possess life by his name" (20.31).

The Gospel probably originated in Asia Minor, possibly at Ephesus, shortly before the end of the first century.

The coming of Christ

1 WHEN ALL THINGS BEGAN, THE Word already was.<sup>a</sup> The Word
2 dwelt with God, and what God
3 was, the Word was. The Word, then,
4 was with God at the beginning, and 5 through him all things came to be; no
6 single thing was created without him.
7 All that came to be was alive with his
8 life,<sup>b</sup> and that life was the light of men.
9 The light shines on in the dark, and the 10 darkness has never mastered it.
11 There appeared a man named John,
12 sent from God; he came as a witness 13 to testify to the light, that all might 14 become believers through him. He was 15 not himself the light; he came to bear 16 witness to the light. The real light which 17 enlightens every man was even then 18 coming into the world.<sup>c</sup>
19 He was in the world;<sup>d</sup> but the world, 20 though it owed its being to him, did not recognize him. He entered his own 11 realm, and his own would not receive 12

him. But to all who did receive him, to 13 those who have yielded him their allegiance, he gave the right to become 14 children of God, not born of any human stock, or by the fleshly desire of 15
a human father, but the offspring of God himself. So the Word became 16 flesh; he came to dwell among us, and 17
we saw his glory, such glory as befits 18
the Father's only Son, full of grace and 19
truth. 20

Here is John's testimony to him: he 15
cried aloud, "This is the man I meant when I said, "He comes after me, but takes rank before me"; for before I was born, he already was."

a Or The Word was at the creation.

b Or no single created thing came into being without him. There was life in him . . .

c Or The light was in being, light absolute, enlightening every man born into the world.

d Or The Word, then, was in the world.

1.1–18: The prologue. 1: The Word (Gk. logos) as the title of Jesus Christ (v. 17) appears only here in Jn.; compare 1 Jn.1.1; Rev.19.13. Word and related terms in earlier Jewish tradition (see Wis.9.1–4,9,17–18; Eccclus.24.1–12) prepared the way for its use here to denote Jesus as revealer of the unseen God. 4: Life in Jn. always means eternal (not merely natural) life (see 3.15). This life becomes the light of men in that it reveals the Father to them. 5: The darkness symbolizes those death-dealing forces in history irreconcilably opposed to God. 6: John (in Mt., Mk., Lk., "the Baptist") is in Jn. a witness (see 1.19–51 n.) to Jesus, but in every way less important than he (1.19–27; 3.25–30). 11: His own realm: the Holy Land. His own: the people of Israel. Jn. may think of the earlier appearance of the Word in the Mosaic Law (see v. 17; compare Eccclus.24.1–3,8,23). 14: Flesh: human. Came to dwell (lit. pitched his tent): perhaps an echo of the glory of God which filled the Tent of the Presence (Exod.40.34–38). Glory:

- 16 Out of his full store we have all received grace upon grace; for while the Law was given through Moses, grace and truth came through Jesus Christ.
- 17 No one has ever seen God; but God's only Son, he who is nearest to the Father's heart, he has made him known.<sup>e</sup>
- 18 THIS IS THE TESTIMONY WHICH JOHN gave when the Jews of Jerusalem sent a deputation of priests and Levites to ask him who he was. He confessed without reserve and avowed, 'I am not the Messiah.' 'What then? Are you Elijah?' 'No,' he replied. 'Are you the prophet we await?' He answered 'No.' 'Then who are you?' they asked. 'We must give an answer to those who sent us. What account do you give of yourself?'
- 19 He answered in the words of the prophet Isaiah: 'I am a voice crying aloud in the wilderness, "Make the Lord's highway straight."'
- 20 Some Pharisees who were in the deputation asked him, 'If you are not the Messiah, nor Elijah, nor the prophet, why then are you baptizing?' 'I baptize in water,' John replied, 'but among you, though you do not know him, stands the one who is to come after me. I am not good enough to unfasten his shoes.' This took place at Bethany beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing.
- 21 The next day he saw Jesus coming towards him. 'Look,' he said, 'there is the Lamb of God; it is he who takes away the sin of the world. This is he of whom I spoke when I said, "After me a - man is coming who takes rank before me"; for before I was born, he already was. I myself did not know who he was; but the very reason why I came, baptizing in water, was that he might be revealed to Israel.'
- 22 John testified further: 'I saw the Spirit coming down from heaven like a dove and resting upon him. I did not know him, but he who sent me to baptize in water had told me, "When you see the Spirit coming down upon someone and resting upon him, you will know that this is he who is to baptize in Holy Spirit."' I saw it myself, and I have borne witness. This is God's Chosen One.<sup>f</sup>
- 23 The next day again John was standing with two of his disciples when Jesus passed by. John looked towards him and said, 'There is the Lamb of God.' The two disciples heard him say this, and followed Jesus. When he turned and saw them following him, he asked, 'What are you looking for?' They said, 'Rabbi' (which means a teacher), 'where are you staying?' 'Come and see', he replied. So they went and saw where he was staying, and spent the rest of the day with him. It was then about four in the afternoon.
- 24 One of the two who followed Jesus after hearing what John said was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. The first thing he did was to find<sup>g</sup> his brother Simon. He said to him, 'We
- <sup>e</sup> Some witnesses read but the only one, the one nearest to the Father's heart, has made him known; others read but the only one, himself God, the nearest to the Father's heart, has made him known.
- <sup>f</sup> Some witnesses read This is the Son of God.
- <sup>g</sup> Some witnesses read In the morning he found . . .

radiance; therefore, the presence of God. 16: Grace upon grace: God's gift to mankind in Jesus Christ is added to that of the Mosaic Law. 18: The generalization that no one has ever seen God is modified in 14.9; there, to have seen Jesus is equivalent to having seen God.

1.19-51: Testimonies to Jesus. The language of the courtroom, frequent in biblical literature (e.g. Isa.43.10-13), is particularly important to the description of Jesus' public life in Jn. Thus testimony (v. 19 and elsewhere) has a quasi-judicial meaning and seems to point to the climax at 12.31-32 ("judgement for this world"). 19: The Jews is the evangelist's generalized name for the religious authorities who oppose Jesus (such as the chief priests, scribes, etc., of the Synoptics), not literally meant to include all Jews. The term probably also reflects tensions between the Johannine church and the synagogue late in the first century. 20-21: The Messiah: see Mt.1.1 n. Elijah: see Mt.17.10-13; Mk.6.15 n. Prophet: see 6.14 n.; Mk.8.28 n. 23: See Isa.40.3. 24: Pharisees: see Mt.3.7 n. 27: To unfasten his shoes: the task of the slave who washed the master's feet. 28: The exact location of this Bethany is unknown. 29: The Lamb of God derives from Isa.53.7-12, especially Isa.53.7. See also 1 Cor.5.7 where Jesus is identified with the paschal lamb of Exod.12.3-10. Compare 19.14 n. 30: Although Jesus appears in history after John, in reality he already was, i.e. already existed before John's time. In Jn., Jesus has always existed (1.1; 8.56-57). 32: Jn. does not narrate the baptism of Jesus as do Mt., Mk., Lk., but only the coming down of the Spirit which accompanied it; see Mk.1.9-11 n. 34: Chosen One: see Isa.42.1. 35: Two disciples: see v. 40. 40: Andrew appears more prominently in Jn.

have found the Messiah' (which is the 42 Hebrew for 'Christ'). He brought Simon to Jesus, who looked at him and said, 'You are Simon son of John.
 You shall be called Cephas' (that is, Peter, the Rock).
 43 The next day Jesus decided to leave
 44 for Galilee. He met Philip, who, like Andrew and Peter, came from Bethsaida, and said to him, 'Follow me.' 45 Philip went to find Nathanael, and told him, 'We have met the man spoken of by Moses in the Law, and by the prophets: it is Jesus son of Joseph, 46 from Nazareth.' 'Nazareth!' Nathanael exclaimed; 'can anything good come from Nazareth?' Philip said, 'Come 47 and see.' When Jesus saw Nathanael coming, he said, 'Here is an Israelite worthy of the name; there is nothing 48 false in him.' Nathanael asked him,
 'How do you come to know me?' Jesus replied, 'I saw you under the fig-tree 49 before Philip spoke to you.' 'Rabbi,' said Nathanael, 'you are the Son of 50 God; you are king of Israel.' Jesus answered, 'Is this the ground of your faith, that I told you I saw you under the fig-tree? You shall see greater 51 things than that.' Then he added, 'In truth, in very truth I tell you all, you shall see heaven wide open, and God's angels ascending and descending upon the Son of Man.'

Christ the giver of life

2 ON THE THIRD DAY THERE WAS A wedding at Cana-in-Galilee. The 2 mother of Jesus was there, and Jesus 3 and his disciples were guests also. The wine gave out, so Jesus's mother said to him, 'They have no wine left.' He 4 answered, 'Your concern, mother, is not mine. My hour has not yet come.'

 His mother said to the servants, 'Do 5 whatever he tells you.' There were six 6 stone water-jars standing near, of the kind used for Jewish rites of purification; each held from twenty to thirty gallons. Jesus said to the servants, 7
 'Fill the jars with water', and they filled them to the brim. 'Now draw some 8 off', he ordered, 'and take it to the steward of the feast'; and they did so.
 The steward tasted the water now 9 turned into wine, not knowing its source; though the servants who had drawn the water knew. He hailed the bridegroom and said, 'Everyone serves 10
 the best wine first, and waits until the guests have drunk freely before serving the poorer sort; but you have kept the best wine till now.'

This deed at Cana-in-Galilee is the 11
 first of the signs by which Jesus revealed his glory and led his disciples to believe in him.

AFTER THIS HE WENT DOWN TO CAPER- 12
 naum in company with his mother, his brothers, and his disciples, but they did not stay there long. As it was near 13
 the time of the Jewish Passover, Jesus went up to Jerusalem. There he found 14
 in the temple the dealers in cattle, sheep,
 and pigeons, and the money-changers
 seated at their tables. Jesus made a 15 whip of cords and drove them out of the temple, sheep, cattle, and all. He upset the tables of the money-changers, scattering their coins. Then he turned 16
 on the dealers in pigeons: 'Take them

(6.8; 12.22) than in the Synoptics. 44: Bethsaida lay north of the Lake of Galilee and east of the Jordan. 45: Although Nathanael is sometimes identified with Bartholomew (Mk.3.18), this identification is not justified by NT evidence. 49: King: the Messiah (see Mt.1.1 n.). 51: Jacob's vision of God's angels mediating between heaven and earth (Gen.28.12) provides this image about the Son of Man (see Mk.2.10 n.).

2.1-12: First sign at Cana. 1: Jn. envisages the events of 1.19-2.12 as encompassing a week. He has previously (1.19-28,29-34,35-42,43-51) indicated the first four days of Jesus' ministry; hence the third day here marks the conclusion of this week. Cana is nine miles north of Nazareth. The mother of Jesus appears again in 19.25-27. 4: Mother: lit. woman. Hour in Jn. denotes the climactic moment of Jesus' passion and glorification (see also 12.27). 11: Signs: see Introduction. His glory: see 12.23; 17.24. 12: Capernaum (Mk.1.21-28) is on the Lake of Galilee.

2.13-25: The cleansing of the Temple. 13: Jn. understands Jesus' ministry to have spanned three Passovers (see also 6.4; 11.55) of which this is the first. Contrast the Synoptics where only a single Passover is involved. On Passover, see Mk.14.1 n. 14: The temple here includes the entire area of which the sanctuary proper is the center; see v. 19 n. Money-changers: see Mt.21.12 n. 15: This action is symbolic; there are a good many "acted" prophecies in the OT out,' he said; 'you must not turn my 17 Father's house into a market.' His disciples recalled the words of Scrip-18 ture, 'Zeal for thy house will destroy me.' The Jews challenged Jesus: 'What 19 sign', they asked, 'can you show as authority for your action?' 'Destroy 20 this temple,' Jesus replied, 'and in three days I will raise it again.' They said,

 'It has taken forty-six years to build 21 this temple. Are you going to raise it again in three days?' But the temple he 22 was speaking of was his body. After his resurrection his disciples recalled what he had said, and they believed the Scripture and the words that Jesus had spoken.

23 WHILE HE WAS IN JERUSALEM FOR Passover many gave their allegiance to him when they saw the signs that he 24 performed. But Jesus for his part would not trust himself to them. He knew men 25 so well, all of them, that he needed no evidence from others about a man, for he himself could tell what was in a man.

3 THERE WAS ONE OF THE PHARISEES named Nicodemus, a member of the 2 Jewish Council, who came to Jesus by night. 'Rabbi,' he said, 'we know that you are a teacher sent by God; no one could perform these signs of yours un-3 less God were with him.' Jesus answered, 'In truth, in very truth I tell you, unless a man has been born over again he cannot see the kingdom of 4 God.' 'But how is it possible', said
 Nicodemus, 'for a man to be born when he is old? Can he enter his mother's womb a second time and be 5 born?' Jesus answered, 'In truth I tell you, no one can enter the kingdom of God without being born from water and spirit. Flesh can give birth only to 6 flesh; it is spirit that gives birth to spirit. You ought not to be astonished, 7 then, when I tell you that you must be born over again. The wind<sup>h</sup> blows 8 where it wills; you hear the sound of it, but you do not know where it comes from, or where it is going. So with everyone who is born from spirit<sup>h</sup>.

Nicodemus replied, 'How is this 9 possible?' 'What!' said Jesus. 'Is this famous teacher of Israel ignorant of such things? In very truth I tell you, we 11 speak of what we know, and testify to what we have seen, and yet you all reject our testimony. If you disbelieve me 12 when I talk to you about things on earth, how are you to believe if I should talk about the things of heaven?

'No one ever went up into heaven 13 except the one who came down from heaven, the Son of Man whose home is in heaven.<sup>i</sup> This Son of Man must be 14 lifted up as the serpent was lifted up by Moses in the wilderness, so that every-15 one who has faith in him may in him possess eternal life.

'God loved the world so much that 16 he gave his only Son, that everyone who has faith in him may not die but have eternal life. It was not to judge 17

<sup>h</sup> wind and spirit are translations of the same Greek word, which has both meanings.
<sup>i</sup> Some witnesses omit whose home is in heaven.

(see, e.g. Jer.13.1-11). 16: Market: see Zech.14.21. 17: In Jn. the term recalled usually points to something associated with Jesus which was understood only in Christian reflection after his time (see v. 22; 12.16; 14.26). See Ps.69.9 and Tfn. q there. 19: Temple here indicates the sanctuary itself; contrast v. 14. 20: Forty-six years: see Mt.24.1-3 n. The date would appear to be 27 A.D. 21: His body: Jesus' risen body was to supersede the sanctuary; see Mt.24.1-3 n. 23: See 4.48 n.

3.1-21: Jesus with Nicodemus. 1: Pharisees: Mt.3.7 n. Jewish Council: Judea's highest native court, called the Sanhedrin in other translations. Nicodemus reappears at 7.50; 19.39. Rabbi: see Mt.23.8-10 n. 3: The Gk. for over again can also mean "from above." The expression kingdom of God, frequent in the Synoptics (see Mk.1.15 n.), is found in Jn. only here and in v. 5. 5: Water and spirit: baptism; see 1 Cor.6.11. 6: Flesh describes man in his creaturely limitations, while spirit can reflect divine action on man. The contrast between flesh and spirit, frequent in the Hellenistic world, is given a strongly religious turn here and in 6.63; 7.79. In 4.24, God is described as spirit. 8: Wind, spirit: Tfn. h. 13: Went up: writing after the resurrection, Jn. refers to the ascension as a past event. 14: Lifted up is a term with a paradoxical double meaning which includes both Jesus' crucifixion and his glorification (see 8.28; 12.32,34). On Moses and the serpent, see Num.21.4-9; Wis.16.5-6. 16: God's giving his only Son in love may allude to Abraham's near sacrifice of Isaac (Gen.22.1-12); see Rom.8.32. In Jn. the world may denote mankind in a good sense (as here) but also in a pejorative sense as in 12.31. 17: Although Jesus' purpose is to save rather than to condemn, Jn. is aware of Jesus' role as judge (5.22; 9.39).

the world that God sent his Son into the world, but that through him the world might be saved.

18 'The man who puts his faith in him does not come under judgement; but the unbeliever has already been judged in that he has not given his allegiance

19 to God's only Son. Here lies the test: the light has come into the world, but men preferred darkness to light because

20 their deeds were evil. Bad men all hate the light and avoid it, for fear their

21 practices should be shown up. The honest man comes to the light so that it may be clearly seen that God is in all he does.'

22 AFTER THIS, JESUS WENT INTO JUDAEA with his disciples, stayed there with

23 them, and baptized. John too was baptizing at Aenon, near to Salim, because water was plentiful in that

24 region; and people were constantly coming for baptism. This was before John's imprisonment.

25 Some of John's disciples had fallen into a dispute with Jews about purification; so they came to him and said,

26 'Rabbi, there was a man with you on the other side of the Jordan, to whom you bore your witness. Here he is, baptizing, and crowds are flocking to

27 him.' John's answer was: 'A man can have only what God gives him. You

28 yourselves can testify that I said, "I am not the Messiah; I have been sent as his forerunner." It is the bridegroom to

29 whom the bride belongs. The bridegroom's friend, who stands by and listens to him, is overjoyed at hearing

30 the bridegroom's voice. This joy, this perfect joy, is now mine. As he grows

31 greater, I must grow less.'

He who comes from above is above all others; he who is from the earth belongs to the earth and uses earthly speech. He who comes from heaven<sup>j</sup> bears witness to what he has seen and heard, yet no one accepts his witness. To accept his witness is to attest that

33 God speaks the truth; for he whom

34 God sent utters the words of God, so measureless is God's gift of the Spirit. The Father loves the Son and has

35 entrusted him with all authority. He who

36 puts his faith in the Son has hold of eternal life, but he who disobeys the Son shall not see that life; God's wrath rests upon him.

A REPORT NOW REACHED THE PHARISEES: 4 'Jesus is winning and baptizing more disciples than John'; although, in fact, 2 it was only the disciples who were baptizing, and not Jesus himself. When Jesus learned this, he left Judaea and

3 set out once more for Galilee. He had

4 to pass through Samaria, and on his

5 way came to a Samaritan town called Sychar, near the plot of ground which

6 Jacob gave to his son Joseph and the spring called Jacob's well. It was about noon, and Jesus, tired after his journey, sat down by the well.

The disciples had gone away to the 8 town to buy food. Meanwhile a

7 Samaritan woman came to draw water. Jesus said to her, 'Give me a drink.' The Samaritan woman said, 'What!

9 You, a Jew, ask a drink of me, a Samaritan woman?' (Jews and Samaritans, it should be noted, do not use

10 vessels in common.<sup>k</sup>) Jesus answered her, 'If only you knew what God gives,

and who it is that is asking you for a drink, you would have asked him and he would have given you living water.'

11 'Sir,' the woman said, 'you have no bucket and this well is deep. How can you give me "living water"?' Are you a

12 greater man than Jacob our ancestor, who gave us the well, and drank from it

<sup>j</sup> Some witnesses insert is above all and . . .
<sup>k</sup> Of Jews, it should be noted, are not on familiar terms with Samaritans; some witnesses omit these words.

3.22-36: Jesus and John. 22: The statement that Jesus baptized is qualified in 4.2. 23: Aenon (Aram. "springs"): like Salim, probably a Samaritan village. 24: Mk.1.14, however, states that Jesus began his ministry after John's arrest. 29: The bridegroom imagery recalls the OT theme of God's marriage with Israel (Hos. chs. 1-2). For Jesus' self-designation as the bridegroom see Mk.2.19-20; compare Mt.25.1-13. The imagery appears also in Rev.19.7; 21.2.

4.1-42: Jesus and the Samaritans. 5: Sychar is probably Shechem, connected with Jacob in Gen.33.18-19. 9: After the fall of the kingdom of Israel (721 B.C.) the population was mixed, though largely Gentile. The descendants are the Samaritans. Rebuffed by the Jews returning from the Babylonian Exile (Neh.3.20), the Samaritans built their own temple on Mount Gerizim (v. 20). 10: Living water, from a spring (contrasted in Jer.2.13 with cistern water), here sym-

himself, he and his sons, and his cattle 13 too?" Jesus said, 'Everyone who drinks 14 this water will be thirsty again, but whoever drinks the water that I shall give him will never suffer thirst any more. The water that I shall give him will be an inner spring always welling 15 up for eternal life.' 'Sir,' said the woman, 'give me that water, and then I shall not be thirsty, nor have to come all this way to draw.'
 16 Jesus replied, 'Go home, call your 17 husband and come back.' She answered,
 'I have no husband.' 'You are right',
 said Jesus, 'in saying that you 18 have no husband, for, although you have had five husbands, the man with whom you are now living is not your husband; you told me the truth there.'
 19 'Sir,' she replied, 'I can see that you are 20 a prophet. Our fathers worshipped on this mountain, but you Jews say that the temple where God should be worshipped 21 is in Jerusalem.' 'Believe me,' said Jesus, 'the time is coming when you will worship the Father neither on 22 this mountain, nor in Jerusalem. You Samaritans worship without knowing what you worship, while we worship
 what we know. It is from the Jews that 23 salvation comes. But the time approaches, indeed it is already here, when those who are real worshippers will worship the Father in spirit and in truth. Such are the 24 worshippers whom the Father wants. God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and in truth.' The woman 25 answered, 'I know that Messiah' (that is Christ) 'is coming. When he comes 26 he will tell us everything.' Jesus said,
 'I am he, I who am speaking to you now.'
 27 At that moment his disciples returned,
 and were astonished to find him talking with a woman; but none of them said, 28 'What do you want?' or, 'Why are you talking with her?' The woman put down her water-jar and went away to the town, 29 where she said to the people, 'Come and see a man who has told me everything I ever did.

 Could this be the Messiah?' They came 30 out of the town and made their way towards him.

Meanwhile the disciples were urging 31 him, 'Rabbi, have something to eat.'
 But he said, 'I have food to eat of which 32 you know nothing.' At this the disciples 33 said to one another, 'Can someone have brought him food?' But Jesus said 34 'It is meat and drink for me to do the will of him who sent me until I have finished his work.'

'Do you not say, "Four months more 35 and then comes harvest"? But look, I tell you, look round on the fields; they are already white, ripe for harvest. The 36 reaper is drawing his pay and gathering a crop for eternal life, so that sower and reaper may rejoice together. That is 37 how the saying comes true: "One sows, and another reaps." I sent you to reap 38 a crop for which you have not toiled.
 Others toiled and you have come in for the harvest of their toil.'

Many Samaritans of that town came 39 to believe in him because of the woman's testimony: 'He told me everything I ever 40 did.' So when these Samaritans had come to him they pressed him to stay with them; and he stayed there two days.
 41 Many more became believers because of what they heard from his own lips. They 42 told the woman, 'It is no longer because of what you said that we believe, for we have heard him ourselves; and we know that this is in truth the Saviour of the world.'

WHEN THE TWO DAYS WERE OVER HE
 43 set out for Galilee; for Jesus himself 44 declared that a prophet is without honour in his own country. On his 45 arrival in Galilee the Galileans gave him a welcome, because they had seen all that he did at the festival in Jerusalem; they had been at the festival themselves.

Once again he visited Cana-in-46 Galilee, where he had turned the water

bolizes the Holy Spirit. 16: Husband: a play on words is involved, since the same Gk. word means both "husband" and "man." 23: God is to be worshipped in spirit and truth, rather than by visits to cultic holy places. 24: That God is spirit does not mean for Jn. that God is remote from history; rather, it affirms his involvement in history. 35: Compare Mt.9.37-38.

4.43-54: Second sign at Cana. See 2.1-11. 44: See Mk.6.4. 45: In Jerusalem: see 2.23. 46: This into wine. An officer in the royal service was there, whose son was lying ill at Capernaum. When he heard that Jesus had come from Judaea into Galilee, he came to him and begged him to go down and cure his son, who was at the point of death. Jesus said to him, 'Will none of you ever believe without seeing signs and portents?' The officer pleaded with him, 'Sir, come down before my boy dies.' Then Jesus said, 'Return home; your son will live.' The man believed what Jesus said and started for home. When he was on his way down his servants met him with the news, 'Your boy is going to live.' So he asked them what time it was when he began to recover. They said, 'Yesterday at one in the afternoon the fever left him.' The father noted that this was the exact time when Jesus had said to him, 'Your son will live', and he and all his household became believers.

54 This was now the second sign which Jesus performed after coming down from Judaea into Galilee.

5 LATER ON JESUS WENT UP TO JERUSALEM for one of the Jewish festivals.<sup>l</sup>
 2 Now at the Sheep-Pool in Jerusalem there is a place with five colonnades. Its name in the language of the Jews is 3 Bethesda. In these colonnades there lay a crowd of sick people, blind, lame,
 5 and paralysed.<sup>m</sup> Among them was a man who had been crippled for thirty-
 6 eight years. When Jesus saw him lying there and was aware that he had been ill a long time, he asked him, 'Do you want to recover?' 'Sir,' he replied, 'I have no one to put me in the pool when the water is disturbed, but while I am moving, someone else is in the pool 8 before me.' Jesus answered, 'Rise to your feet, take up your bed and walk.' The man recovered instantly, took up his stretcher, and began to walk.

That day was a Sabbath. So the Jews said to the man who had been cured, 'It is the Sabbath. You are not allowed to carry your bed on the Sabbath.' He answered, 'The man who cured me said, "Take up your bed and walk."' They asked him, 'Who is the man who told you to take up your bed and walk?' But the cripple who had been cured did not know; for the place was crowded and Jesus had slipped away. A little later Jesus found him in the temple and said to him, 'Now that you are well again, leave your sinful ways, or you may suffer something worse.' The man went away and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had cured him.

It was works of this kind done on the Sabbath that stirred the Jews to persecute Jesus. He defended himself by saying, 'My Father has never yet ceased his work, and I am working too.' This made the Jews still more determined to kill him, because he was not only breaking the Sabbath, but, by calling God his own Father, he claimed equality with God.

To this charge Jesus replied, 'In truth, in very truth I tell you, the Son can do nothing by himself; he does only what he sees the Father doing: what the Father does, the Son does. For the Father loves the Son and shows him all his works, and will show greater yet, to fill you with wonder. As the Father raises the dead and gives them life, so the Son gives life to men, officer was probably in the employ of Herod Antipas (see Lk.3.1 n.). 48: Jn. exhibits an ambivalence with respect to signs, which provide the substance of 1.19-12.50 (the Book of Signs; see Introduction). Here, Jn. attempts to establish limits to their significance; signs and portents cannot produce real faith, for Jesus is no mere wonder-worker.

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses read for the Jewish festival.

<sup>m</sup> Some witnesses add waiting for the disturbance of the water; some further insert (4) for from time to time an angel came down into the pool and stirred up the water. The first to plunge in after this disturbance recovered from whatever disease had afflicted him.

5.1-15: Cure of a cripple on the Sabbath. 1: One of the Jewish festivals: possibly Pentecost. 2: In addition to the four colonnades which surrounded the pool, a fifth divided it in half. 14: Since Jesus' admonition, leave your sinful ways, comes after the healing, it is not intended to connect the man's disability with sin (see 9.3). Rather, it teaches that the purpose of the healing is to lead to a new life.

5.16-30: Jesus' divine Sonship. For Jn., Jesus is the Son of God in that he exercises uniquely divine prerogatives which show he is one with the Father (10.30; 17.11,22). 17: God continues his work even on the Sabbath in sustaining the world. 19-30: That the Son . . . does only what he sees the Father doing (v. 19) is explained in the following verses. First (vv. 21,24-26), as the

22 as he determines. And again, the 23 Father does not judge anyone, but has given full jurisdiction to the Son; it is his will that all should pay the same honour to the Son as to the Father. To deny honour to the Son is to deny it to the Father who sent him.

24 'In very truth, anyone who gives heed to what I say and puts his trust in him who sent me has hold of eternal life, and does not come up for judgement, but has already passed from death to life.

25 In truth, in very truth I tell you, a time
 is coming, indeed it is already here, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and all who hear shall 26 come to life. For as the Father has life-giving power in himself, so has the Son,
 by the Father's gift.

27 'As Son of Man, he has also been 28 given the right to pass judgement. Do not wonder at this, because the time is coming when all who are in the grave shall hear his voice and come out:
 29 those who have done right will rise to life; those who have done wrong will rise to hear their doom. I cannot act by 30 myself; I judge as I am bidden, and my sentence is just, because my aim is not my own will, but the will of him who sent me.

31 'If I testify on my own behalf, that 32 testimony does not hold good. There is another who bears witness for me, and 33 I know that his testimony holds. Your messengers have been to John; you 34 have his testimony to the truth. Not that I rely on human testimony, but I remind you of it for your own salvation.
 35 John was a lamp, burning brightly, and for a time you were ready to exult in his 36 light. But I rely on a testimony higher than John's. There is enough to testify that the Father has sent me, in the works my Father gave me to do and to finish—the very works I have in hand.

This testimony to me was given by the 37
 Father who sent me, although you never heard his voice, or saw his form.
 But his word has found no home in 38
 you, for you do not believe the one whom he sent. You study the scriptures 39 diligently, supposing that in having them you have eternal life; yet, although their testimony points to me,
 you refuse to come to me for that life. 40

'I do not look to men for honour. 41
 But with you it is different, as I know 42
 well, for you have no love for God in
 you. I have come accredited by my 43 Father, and you have no welcome for me; if another comes self-accredited you will welcome him. How can you 44 have faith so long as you receive honour from one another, and care nothing for the honour that comes from him who alone is God? Do not 45 imagine that I shall be your accuser at the Father's tribunal. Your accuser is Moses, the very Moses on whom you have set your hope. If you believed 46
 Moses you would believe what I tell you, for it was about me that he wrote. But if you do not believe what he wrote, 47
 how are you to believe what I say?'

SOME TIME LATER JESUS WITHDREW TO 6
 the farther shore of the Sea of Galilee (or Tiberias), and a large crowd of 2
 people followed who had seen the signs
 he performed in healing the sick. Then 3
 Jesus went up the hill-side and sat down with his disciples. It was near the time 4 of Passover, the great Jewish festival.
 Raising his eyes and seeing a large 5
 crowd coming towards him, Jesus said to Philip, 'Where are we to buy bread to feed these people?' This he said to 6 test him; Jesus himself knew what he meant to do. Philip replied, 'Twenty 7 pounds' would not buy enough bread
 n Literally 200 denarii.

Son, he gives life to men (v. 21). Second (vv. 22,27–30), as Son of Man (see Mk.2.10 n.), he is the judge of mankind at the final resurrection (vv. 28–29).

5.31–47: Further testimonies to Jesus. See 1.19–51 and n. The preceding material seems to be regarded as Jesus' testimony to himself; now other witnesses are evoked. 32: Another: God; see 8.18. 33–35: John: see 1.35–39. 36–37: Jesus' works: for example, 2.1–11. 39–40: The scriptures: see, for example, 6.45. The passage may reflect debate with opponents over the proper interpretation of OT passages. 46: The appeal to Moses refers specifically to Deut.18.15, or possibly to the Pentateuch as a whole.

6.1–15: The sign of the bread. 3: Hill-side: a frequent motif; see Mt.5.1 n. Jn. may wish to contrast Jesus, who takes his disciples onto the mountain with him, with Moses, who ascended alone according to Exod.19.10–24. 7: The sum of money was the equivalent of two hundred for every one of them to have a little.’

 8 One of his disciples, Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, said to him, 9 ‘There is a boy here who has five barley loaves and two fishes; but what is that 10 among so many?’ Jesus said, ‘Make the people sit down.’ There was plenty of 11 grass there, so the men sat down, about five thousand of them. Then Jesus took the loaves, gave thanks, and distributed them to the people as they sat there. He 12 did the same with the fishes, and they had as much as they wanted. When everyone had had enough, he said to his disciples, ‘Collect the pieces left 13 over, so that nothing may be lost.’ This they did, and filled twelve baskets with the pieces left uneaten of the five barley loaves, 14 When the people saw the sign Jesus had performed, the word went round, ‘Surely this must be the prophet that was to come into the world.’ Jesus, 15 aware that they meant to come and seize him to proclaim him king, withdrew again to the hills by himself.
 16 At nightfall his disciples went down
 17 to the sea, got into their boat, and pushed off to cross the water to Capernaum. Darkness had already fallen, and Jesus had not yet joined 18 them. By now a strong wind was blowing and the sea grew rough. When they 19 had rowed about three or four miles they saw Jesus walking on the sea and approaching the boat. They were terrified, but he called out, ‘It is I; do 20 not be afraid.’ Then they were ready to take him aboard, and immediately the boat reached the land they were making for.
 22 NEXT MORNING THE CROWD WAS STANDing on the opposite shore. They had seen only one boat there, and Jesus, they knew, had not embarked with his disciples, who had gone away without him. Boats from Tiberias, however, 23 came ashore<sup>o</sup> near the place where the people had eaten the bread over which the Lord gave thanks.<sup>p</sup> When the 24 people saw that neither Jesus nor his disciples were any longer there, they themselves went aboard these boats and made for Capernaum in search of Jesus. They found him on the other 25 side. ‘Rabbi,’ they said, ‘when did you come here?’ Jesus replied, ‘In very truth 26

 I know that you have not come looking for me because you saw signs, but because you ate the bread and your hunger was satisfied. You must work, 27 not for this perishable food, but for the food that lasts, the food of eternal life.

‘This food the Son of Man will give you, for he it is upon whom God the Father has set the seal of his authority.’ ‘Then what must we do’, they asked 28 him, ‘if we are to work as God would have us work?’ Jesus replied, ‘This is 29
 the work that God requires: believe in the one whom he has sent.’

They said, ‘What sign can you give 30 us to see, so that we may believe you? What is the work you do? Our 31 ancestors had manna to eat in the desert; as Scripture says, “He gave them bread from heaven to eat.”’ Jesus answered, ‘I tell you this; the 32 truth is, not that Moses gave you the bread from heaven, but that my Father gives you the real bread from heaven. The bread that God gives comes down<sup>q</sup> 33 from heaven and brings life to the world.’ They said to him, ‘Sir, give us 34
 this bread now and always.’ Jesus said 35 to them, ‘I am the bread of life. Whoever comes to me shall never be hungry, and whoever believes in me shall never be thirsty. But you, as I 36

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses read Other boats from Tiberias came ashore . . .

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses omit over which . . . thanks.

<sup>q</sup> Or is he who comes down . . .

days’ wages. 14: The prophet here, as in 1.21,25, is the one like Moses (see Deut.18.15). 15: The avoidance of being proclaimed king probably is intended to clarify for the reader that Jesus was not a political figure; see 18.33–37.

6.16–21. Jesus walks on the Sea of Galilee. 18: The incident of the storm is described tersely compared with Mk.6.47–51. 20: The scene focuses on Jesus’ words, “It is I (lit. ‘I am’); do not be afraid” (see 8.24 n.).

6.22–71: The bread of life. 26–28: The crowd fails to see beyond the material “sign” of the miraculous feeding to the food of eternal life which the Son of Man will give. 31: On manna, see Exod.16.14. The quotation is from Ps.78.24. 32–33: Jesus, sent by the Father (3.31), is the real bread from heaven. 32: Moses: compare v.14 n. 35: Never . . . be thirsty: see 4.14–15.

said, do not believe although you have 37 seen.' All that the Father gives me will come to me, and the man who comes 38 to me I will never turn away. I have come down from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of him who sent 39 me. It is his will that I should not lose even one of all that he has given me,
 but raise them all up on the last day.
 40 For it is my Father's will that everyone who looks upon the Son and puts his faith in him shall possess eternal life;
 and I will raise him up on the last
 day.'

41 At this the Jews began to murmur disapprovingly because he said, 'I am the bread which came down from 42 heaven.' They said, 'Surely this is Jesus son of Joseph; we know his father and mother. How can he now say, "I have 43 come down from heaven"?' Jesus answered, 'Stop murmuring among 44 yourselves. No man can come to me unless he is drawn by the Father who sent me; and I will raise him up on the 45 last day. It is written in the prophets:
 "And they shall all be taught by God."
 Everyone who has listened to the Father and learned from him comes to me.

46 'I do not mean that anyone has seen the Father. He who has come from God has seen the Father, and he alone.
 47 In truth, in very truth I tell you, the believer possesses eternal life. I am the 48 bread of life. Your forefathers ate the manna in the desert and they are dead.
 50 I am speaking of the bread that comes down from heaven, which a man may 51 eat, and never die. I am that living bread which has come down from heaven; if anyone eats this bread he shall live for ever. Moreover, the bread which I will give is my own flesh; I give it for the life of the world.'

52 This led to a fierce dispute among the Jews. 'How can this man give us his 53 flesh to eat?' they said. Jesus replied,
 'In truth, in very truth I tell you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood you can have no life in

 you. Whoever eats my flesh and drinks 54 my blood possesses eternal life, and I will raise him up on the last day. My 55 flesh is real food; my blood is real drink. Whoever eats my flesh and 56 drinks my blood dwells continually in me and I dwell in him. As the living 57 Father sent me, and I live because of the Father, so he who eats me shall live because of me. This is the bread which 58 came down from heaven; and it is not like the bread which our fathers ate:
 they are dead, but whoever eats this bread shall live for ever.'

THIS WAS SPOKEN IN SYNAGOGUE WHEN
 59 Jesus was teaching in Capernaum.
 Many of his disciples on hearing it 60 exclaimed, 'This is more than we can stomach! Why listen to such talk?'
 Jesus was aware that his disciples were 61 murmuring about it and asked them,
 'Does this shock you? What if you see the Son of Man ascending to the place where he was before? The spirit alone 63 gives life; the flesh is of no avail; the words which I have spoken to you are both spirit and life. And yet there are 64 some of you who have no faith.' For Jesus knew all along who were without faith and who was to betray him. So 65 he said, 'This is why I told you that no one can come to me unless it has been granted to him by the Father.'

From that time on, many of his 66 disciples withdrew and no longer went about with him. So Jesus asked the 67 Twelve, 'Do you also want to leave me?' Simon Peter answered him, 'Lord, 68 to whom shall we go? Your words are words of eternal life. We have faith, 69 and we know that you are the Holy
 One of God.' Jesus answered, 'Have I 70 not chosen you, all twelve? Yet one of you is a devil.' He meant Judas, son of 71 Simon Iscariot. He it was who would betray him, and he was one of the Twelve.

r Some witnesses add me.

37b: See 17.2,7,24. 45: See Isa.54.13; Jer.31.33-34 for the experiential, inner knowledge of God. 51-54: Notice the allusion to Jesus' words over the bread and wine at the Last Supper (see 1 Cor.11.24). 63: Until Jesus' glorification (v. 62; 7.39), his words are not known as spirit and life (see 2.22; 12.16). 68-69: Peter's profession of faith; see Mt.16.13-16 where no mention is made of disciples who have withdrawn from Jesus. 70-71: In Mt.16.23, Jesus addresses Peter as "Satan"; here, Judas is identified as a devil.

The great controversy

7 AFTERWARDS JESUS WENT ABOUT IN Galilee. He wished to avoid Judaea because the Jews were looking for a chance to kill him. As the Jewish Feast of Tabernacles was close at hand, his brothers said to him, 'You should leave this district and go into Judaea, so that your disciples there may see the great things you are doing. Surely no one can hope to be in the public eye if he works in seclusion. If you really are doing such things as these, show yourself to the world.' For even his brothers had no faith in him. Jesus said to them, 'The right time for me has not yet come, but any time is right for you. The world cannot hate you; but it hates me for exposing the wickedness of its ways. Go to the festival yourselves. I am not<sup>5</sup> going up to this festival because the right time for me has not yet come.' With this answer he stayed behind in Galilee.

10 Later, when his brothers had gone to the festival, he went up himself, not publicly, but almost in secret. The Jews were looking for him at the festival and asking, 'Where is he?', and there was much whispering about him in the crowds. 'He is a good man', said some. 'No,' said others, 'he is leading the people astray.' However, no one talked about him openly, for fear of the Jews.

14 WHEN THE FESTIVAL WAS ALREADY HALF over, Jesus went up to the temple and began to teach. The Jews were astonished: 'How is it', they said, 'that this untrained man has such learning?' Jesus replied, 'The teaching that I give is not my own; it is the teaching of him who sent me. Whoever has the will to do the will of God shall know whether my teaching comes from him or is merely my own. Anyone whose teaching is merely his own, aims at honour for himself. But if a man aims at the honour of him who sent him he is sincere, and there is nothing false in him.

'Did not Moses give you the Law? 19 Yet you all break it. Why are you trying to kill me?' The crowd answered, 20 'You are possessed! Who wants to kill you?' Jesus replied, 'Once only have I 21 done work on the Sabbath, and you are all taken aback. But consider: Moses 22 gave you the law of circumcision (not that it originated with Moses but with the patriarchs) and you circumcise on the Sabbath. Well then, if a child is 23 circumcised on the Sabbath to avoid breaking the Law of Moses, why are you indignant with me for giving health on the Sabbath to the whole of a man's body? Do not judge superficially, but 24 be just in your judgements.'

At this some of the people of 25 Jerusalem began to say, 'Is not this the man they want to put to death? And 26 here he is, speaking openly, and they have not a word to say to him. Can it be that our rulers have actually decided that this is the Messiah? And 27 yet we know where this man comes from, but when the Messiah appears no one is to know where he comes from.' Thereupon Jesus cried aloud as he taught in the temple, 'No doubt you know me; no doubt you know where I come from.<sup>6</sup> Yet I have not come of my own accord. I was sent by the One who truly is, and him you do not know. I know him because I come 29 from him and he it is who sent me.' At this they tried to seize him, but no one laid a hand on him because his appointed hour had not yet come. Yet 31 among the people many believed in him. 'When the Messiah comes,' they

<sup>5</sup> Some witnesses read not yet.

<sup>6</sup> Or: Do you know me? And do you know where I come from?

7.1-36: The Feast of Tabernacles. 2: Tabernacles was a thanksgiving festival, associated with Israel's wandering in the desert, held for seven days in September-October (Lev.23.39-43; Deut.16.13-15). In Jn. chs. 7-8, it provides the background in terms of which Jesus' self-revelation is interpreted (see v. 37 n.; 8.12 n.). 6: The right time: the moment determined by God's will. Jn. consistently conceives of a preordained schedule of events in the career of Jesus. 8: I am not going up involves a play on words in that it can also refer to Jesus' ascension (20.17). 15: Jesus apparently lacks formal schooling in Scripture and, therefore, is regarded as untrained. 19: The polemic against the Law is heightened as the Gospel proceeds; see 8.17 n.; 10.34. 21: See 5.1-9. 26: Our rulers: that is, leaders. 27: The hidden character of the Messiah was a motif, too, in ancient Jewish Enoch literature; it is possibly alluded to in Mk.8.28; Mt.24.23-27, said, 'is it likely that he will perform more signs than this man?'

32 The Pharisees overheard these mutterings of the people about him, so the chief priests and the Pharisees sent temple police to arrest him. Then Jesus said, 'For a little longer I shall be with you; then I am going away to him who sent me. You will look for me, but you will not find me. Where I am, you cannot come.' So the Jews said to one another, 'Where does he intend to go, that we should not be able to find him? Will he go to the Dispersion among the Greeks, and teach the Greeks?'

36 What did he mean by saying, "You will look for me, but you will not find me. Where I am, you cannot come"?'<sup>u</sup>

37 ON THE LAST AND GREATEST DAY OF THE festival Jesus stood and cried aloud, 'If anyone is thirsty let him come to me; whoever believes in me, let him drink.' As Scripture says, 'Streams of living water shall flow out from within him.'<sup>v</sup> He was speaking of the Spirit which believers in him would receive later; for the Spirit had not yet been given, because Jesus had not yet been glorified.

40 On hearing this some of the people said, 'This must certainly be the expected prophet.' Others said, 'This is the Messiah.' Others again, 'Surely the Messiah is not to come from Galilee? Does not Scripture say that the Messiah is to be of the family of David, from David's village of Bethlehem?'

43 Thus he caused a split among the people. Some were for seizing him, but no one laid hands on him.

45 The temple police came back to the chief priests and Pharisees, who asked, 'Why have you not brought him?'

46 'No man', they answered, 'ever spoke as this man speaks.' The Pharisees <sup>47</sup> retorted, 'Have you too been misled? Is there a single one of our rulers who <sup>48</sup> has believed in him, or of the Pharisees? As for this rabble, which cares nothing <sup>49</sup> for the Law, a curse is on them.' Then <sup>50</sup> one of their number, Nicodemus (the man who had once visited Jesus), intervened. 'Does our law', he asked <sup>51</sup> them, 'permit us to pass judgement on a man unless we have first given him a hearing and learned the facts?' 'Are <sup>52</sup> you a Galilean too?' they retorted. 'Study the scriptures and you will find that prophets do not come from Galilee.'<sup>w</sup>

ONCE AGAIN JESUS ADDRESSED THE <sup>8</sup>12 people: 'I am the light of the world. No follower of mine shall wander in the dark; he shall have the light of life.' The Pharisees said to him, 'You are <sup>13</sup> witness in your own cause; your testimony is not valid.' Jesus replied, <sup>14</sup> 'My testimony is valid, even though I do bear witness about myself; because I know where I come from, and where I am going. You do not know either where I come from or where I am going. You judge by worldly standards. I pass judgement on no man, but <sup>15</sup> if I do judge, my judgement is valid because it is not I alone who judge, but I and he who sent me. In your own law <sup>17</sup> it is written that the testimony of two witnesses is valid. Here am I, a witness <sup>18</sup> in my own cause, and my other witness is the Father who sent me.' They <sup>19</sup> asked, 'Where is your father?' Jesus replied, 'You know neither me nor my

<sup>u</sup> Some witnesses here insert the passage printed on p. 138.
<sup>v</sup> Or 'If any man is thirsty let him come to me and drink. He who believes in me, as Scripture says, streams of living water shall flow out from within him.'
<sup>w</sup> Some witnesses here insert the passage 7. 53-8. 11, which is printed on p. 138.

as well. 33-36: The theme of going away, with the significant overtone of Jesus' ascension, recurs in 8.21; 13.33.

7.37-52: Jesus, the source of living water. 37: At Tabernacles (see 7.2 n.), water was carried in a gold pitcher from the spring of Siloam and was poured out as a petition for rain. 38: Scripture: see Isa.12.3; Pss.78.15-16; 105.41. The text presents Jesus, not the believer (see Tfn. v), as the source of living water, a symbol of the Spirit. 39: See Jn.14.15-16. The giving of the Spirit is the result of Jesus' death and glorification. 42: 2 Sam.7.12-14; Mic.5.2. That Jesus was descended from King David was a significant motif in early Christology (see Mt.1.1 n.; Rom.1.3; 2 Tim.2.8). 52: See Tfn. w.

8.12-30: Jesus, the light of the world. 12: At Tabernacles (see 7.2 n.) the Temple court was brightly illuminated; Jesus is described as the light (see 1.4 n.,9; 3.19; 9.5; 12.46) who brings life to men (1.4). 14: See 5.31. 17: By referring to the law as your own, Jn. has Jesus dissociate himself from the Mosaic institutions (see 7.19) or from Judaism (see 1.19 n.). 19: See 14.7; 16.3.

Father; if you knew me you would know my Father as well.'

20 These words were spoken by Jesus in the treasury as he taught in the temple. Yet no one arrested him, because his hour had not yet come.

21 Again he said to them, 'I am going away. You will look for me, but you will die in your sin; where I am going you cannot come.' The Jews then said, 'Perhaps he will kill himself: is that what he means when he says, "Where 23 I am going you cannot come"?' So Jesus continued, 'You belong to this world below, I to the world above. Your home is in this world, mine is not. 24 That is why I told you that you would die in your sins. If you do not believe that I am what I am, you will die in your sins.' They asked him, 'Who are you?' Jesus answered, 'Why should I 26 speak to you at all?<sup>x</sup> I have much to say about you—and in judgement. But he who sent me speaks the truth, and what I heard from him I report to the world.'

27 They did not understand that he was speaking to them about the Father. So 28 Jesus said to them, 'When you have lifted up the Son of Man you will know that I am what I am. I do nothing on my own authority, but in all that I say, 29 I have been taught by my Father. He who sent me is present with me, and has not left me alone; for I always do 30 what is acceptable to him.' As he said this, many put their faith in him.

31 Turning to the Jews who had believed him, Jesus said, 'If you dwell within the revelation I have brought, 32 you are indeed my disciples; you shall know the truth, and the truth will set you free.' They replied, 'We are 33 Abraham's descendants; we have never been in slavery to any man. What do you mean by saying, "You will become 34 free men"?' 'In very truth I tell you', said Jesus, 'that everyone who commits sin is a slave. The slave has no permanent standing in the household, but the son belongs to it for ever. If then the Son sets you free, you will indeed be free.

'I know that you are descended from 37 Abraham, but you are bent on killing me because my teaching makes no headway with you. I am revealing in 38 words what I saw in my Father's presence; and you are revealing in action what you learned from your father.' They retorted, 'Abraham is our 39 father.' 'If you were Abraham's children', Jesus replied, 'you would do as Abraham did.<sup>y</sup> As it is, you are bent on 40 killing me, a man who told you the truth, as I heard it from God. That is not how Abraham acted. You are 41 doing your own father's work.'

They said, 'We are not base-born; God is our father, and God alone.' Jesus said, 'If God were your father, 42 you would love me, for God is the source of my being, and from him I come. I have not come of my own accord; he sent me. Why do you not 43 understand my language? It is because my revelation is beyond your grasp.

'Your father is the devil and you 44 choose to carry out your father's desires. He was a murderer from the beginning, and is not rooted in the truth; there is no truth in him. When he tells a lie he is speaking his own language, for he is a liar and the 45 father of lies. But I speak the truth and therefore you do not believe me. Which of you can prove me in the 46 wrong?<sup>z</sup> If what I say is true, why do you not believe me? He who has God 47 for his father listens to the words of God. You are not God's children; that is why you do not listen.'

The Jews answered, 'Are we not right 48

<sup>x</sup> Or What I have told you all along.

<sup>y</sup> Some witnesses read 'If you are Abraham's children', Jesus replied, 'do as Abraham did.'

<sup>z</sup> Or Which of you convicts me of sin?

20: In the treasury: see Lk.21.1 n. 21: See 7.33–36 and n. Your sin: the refusal to believe in Jesus as the Son of God (see also v. 24). 24: I am what I am (lit. "I am"): perhaps this is an echo of Exod.3.14 used to indicate Jesus' divine nature (see vv. 28,58; 13.19). 25: The meaning of Jesus' reply is not sufficiently clear for any translation to be regarded as secure (see Tfn. x). 28: Lifted up is another term with extended meaning. Jesus is lifted up on the cross, but this is also his exaltation or glorification (12.32).

8.31–59: Further controversies. 32: Set you free: from sin. The saving truth is not abstract but rather that found in the gospel and apprehended by faith. 35: This seems to be a parenthetical remark by Jn., not a word of Jesus; compare Heb.3.3–6. 48: Samaritan: a term of abuse;

in saying that you are a Samaritan, and that you are possessed?" "I am not possessed," said Jesus; "I am honouring my Father, but you dishonour me. I do not care about my own glory; there is one who does care, and he is judge. In very truth I tell you, if anyone obeys my teaching he shall never know what it is to die."

The Jews said, "Now we are certain that you are possessed. Abraham is dead; the prophets are dead; and yet you say, "If anyone obeys my teaching he shall not know what it is to die." Are you greater than our father Abraham, who is dead? The prophets are dead too. What do you claim to be?"

Jesus replied, "If I glorify myself, that glory of mine is worthless. It is the Father who glorifies me, he of whom you say, "He is our God", though you do not know him. But I know him; if I said that I did not know him I should be a liar like you. But in truth I know him and obey his word.

"Your father Abraham was overjoyed to see my day; he saw it and was glad." The Jews protested, "You are not yet fifty years old. How can you have seen Abraham?"<sup>a</sup> Jesus said, "In very truth I tell you, before Abraham was born, I am."

They picked up stones to throw at him, but Jesus was not to be seen; and he left the temple.<sup>b</sup>

9 AS HE WENT ON HIS WAY JESUS SAW A man blind from his birth. His disciples put the question, "Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents? Why was he born blind?" "It is not that this man or his parents sinned," Jesus answered; "he was born blind so that God's power might be displayed in curing him. While daylight lasts we<sup>c</sup> must carry on the work of him who sent me; night comes, when no one can work. While I am in the world I am the light of the world."

With these words he spat on the ground and made a paste with the spittle; he spread it on the man's eyes, and said to him, "Go and wash in the pool of Siloam." (The name means 'sent'.) The man went away and washed, and when he returned he could see.

His neighbours and those who were accustomed to see him begging said, "Is not this the man who used to sit and beg?" Others said, "Yes, this is the man." Others again said, "No, but it is someone like him." The man himself said, "I am the man." They asked him, "How were your eyes opened?" He replied, "The man called Jesus made a paste and smeared my eyes with it, and told me to go to Siloam and wash. I went and washed, and gained my sight." "Where is he?" they asked. He answered, "I do not know."

THE MAN WHO HAD BEEN BLIND WAS brought before the Pharisees. As it was a Sabbath day when Jesus made the paste and opened his eyes, the Pharisees now asked him by what means he had gained his sight. The man told them, "He spread a paste on my eyes; then I washed, and now I can see." Some of the Pharisees said, "This fellow is no man of God; he does not keep the Sabbath." Others said, "How could such signs come from a sinful man?" So they took different sides. Then they continued to question him: "What have you to say about him? It was your eyes he opened." He answered, "He is a prophet."

The Jews would not believe that the man had been blind and had gained his sight, until they had summoned his parents and questioned them: "Is this man your son? Do you say that he was born blind? How is it that he can see now?" The parents replied, "We know that he is our son and that he was born

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses read How can Abraham have seen you?
<sup>b</sup> Or the division may be made after the words was not to be seen; the paragraph following would then begin Then Jesus left the temple, and as he went . . .
<sup>c</sup> Some witnesses read I.

see 4.9 n. 56: He saw it: similarly 12.41 with respect to Isaiah. Since the Christ was preexistent, he already existed in Abraham's time and Isaiah's. Later Jewish tradition (based on Gen. 15.13-17) portrays Abraham as having had the entire future history of his descendants revealed to him. 58: I am: see 8.24 n. The preexistent Christ preceded Abraham.

9.1-41: Cure of a blind man on the Sabbath. This "sign" reveals Jesus as the light of men, who not only restores physical sight, but confers spiritual sight through faith and baptism. 2-3: Compare Lk.13.1-5. 6: A ritual "anointing." 7: Siloam: Heb. shiloah, lit. "sent," but denoting "conduit." Jn. wishes to associate Jesus and the pool, both sent by God; Jn. sees

- 21 blind. But how it is that he can now see, or who opened his eyes, we do not know. Ask him; he is of age; he will speak for himself.' His parents gave this answer because they were afraid of the Jews; for the Jewish authorities had already agreed that anyone who acknowledged Jesus as Messiah should be banned from the synagogue. That is why the parents said, 'He is of age; ask him.'
- 22 So for the second time they summoned the man who had been blind, and said, 'Speak the truth before God. We know that this fellow is a sinner.'
- 23 'Whether or not he is a sinner, I do not know', the man replied. 'All I know is this: once I was blind, now I can see.'
- 24 'What did he do to you?' they asked. 'How did he open your eyes?' 'I have told you already,' he retorted, 'but you took no notice. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you also want to become his disciples?' Then they became abusive. 'You are that man's disciple,' they said, 'but we are disciples of Moses. We know that God spoke to Moses, but as for this fellow, we do not know where he comes from.'
- 25 The man replied, 'What an extraordinary thing! Here is a man who has opened my eyes, yet you do not know where he comes from! It is common knowledge that God does not listen to sinners; he listens to anyone who is devout and obeys his will. To open the eyes of a man born blind—it is unheard of since time began. If that man had not come from God he could have done nothing.' 'Who are you to give us lessons,' they retorted, 'born and bred in sin as you are?' Then they expelled him from the synagogue.
- 26 Jesus heard that they had expelled him. When he found him he asked, 'Have you faith in the Son of Man<sup>d</sup>?' The man answered, 'Tell me who he is, sir, that I should put my faith in him.'
- 'You have seen him,' said Jesus; 'indeed, it is he who is speaking to you.' 'Lord, I believe', he said, and bowed before him.
- Jesus said, 'It is for judgement that I have come into this world—to give sight to the sightless and to make blind those who see.' Some Pharisees in his company asked, 'Do you mean that we are blind?' 'If you were blind,' said Jesus, 'you would not be guilty, but because you say "We see", your guilt remains.'
- 'IN TRUTH I TELL YOU, IN VERY TRUTH, the man who does not enter the sheepfold by the door, but climbs in some other way, is nothing but a thief or a robber. The man who enters by the door is the shepherd in charge of the sheep. The door-keeper admits him, and the sheep hear his voice; he calls his own sheep by name, and leads them out. When he has brought them all out, he goes ahead and the sheep follow, because they know his voice. They will not follow a stranger; they will run away from him, because they do not recognize the voice of strangers.'
- This was a parable that Jesus told them, but they did not understand what he meant by it.
- So Jesus spoke again: 'In truth, in very truth I tell you, I am the door of the sheepfold. The sheep paid no heed to any who came before me, for these were all thieves and robbers. I am the door; anyone who comes into the fold through me shall be safe. He shall go in and out and shall find pasturage.'
- 'The thief comes only to steal, to kill, to destroy; I have come that men may have life, and may have it in all its fullness. I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep. The hireling, when he sees the wolf coming, abandons the sheep and baptismal symbolism in the incident. 22: Banned from the synagogue: the practice of expelling Jewish Christians apparently arose near the end of the first century. See also v. 34. 29: The issue of where he (Jesus) comes from is raised in different, "earthly" ways by Jesus' opponents (see also 7.27,41-42); Jn. intends the question to elicit the response: "From God" (v. 33; 8.42). 35-38: The dialogue is often viewed as reflecting the late first-century baptismal interrogation of the neophyte.

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses read Son of God.

10.1-21: Jesus, the Good Shepherd. 3: God is spoken of often as the shepherd; see Isa.40.11; Jer.23.3; Ps.23.1. 11: The ancient ideal of a good shepherd (as in Ezek.34.23) is regarded as runs away, because he is no shepherd and the sheep are not his. Then the wolf harries the flock and scatters the 13 sheep. The man runs away because he is a hireling and cares nothing for the sheep.

14 'I am the good shepherd; I know my own sheep and my sheep know me—
15 as the Father knows me and I know the Father—and I lay down my life for the 16 sheep. But there are other sheep of mine, not belonging to this fold, whom I must bring in; and they too will listen to my voice. There will then be one 17 flock, one shepherd. The Father loves me because I lay down my life, to receive it back again. No one has robbed me of it; I am laying it down of my own free will. I have the right to lay it down, and I have the right to receive it back again; this charge I have received from my Father.'

19 These words once again caused a split among the Jews. Many of them said, 'He is possessed, he is raving. Why 20 listen to him?' Others said, 'No one possessed by an evil spirit could speak like this. Could an evil spirit open blind men's eyes?'

22 IT WAS WINTER, AND THE FESTIVAL OF THE Dedication was being held in 23 Jerusalem. Jesus was walking in the temple precincts, in Solomon's Portico.
24 The Jews gathered round him and asked: 'How long must you keep us in suspense? If you are the Messiah say so plainly.' 'I have told you,' said Jesus, 'but you do not believe. My deeds done in my Father's name are my credentials, 25 but because you are not sheepl of my flock you do not believe. My own sheep listen to my voice; I know them and they follow me. I give them eternal life and they shall never perish; no one shall snatch them from my care. My 26 Father who has given them to me is greater than all, and no one can snatch them<sup>e</sup> out of the Father's care. My 27 Father and I are one.'

Once again the Jews picked up stones
28 to stone him. At this Jesus said to them, 'I have set before you many good deeds, done by my Father's power; for which of these would you stone me?' The Jews replied, 'We are 29 not going to stone you for any good deed, but for your blasphemy. You, a mere man, claim to be a god.'<sup>f</sup> Jesus 30 answered, 'Is it not written in your own Law, "I said: You are gods"? Those 31 are called gods to whom the word of God was delivered—and Scripture cannot be set aside. Then why do you
32 charge me with blasphemy because I, consecrated and sent into the world by the Father, said, "I am God's son"?' 33

'If I am not acting as my Father
34 would, do not believe me. But if I am, 35 accept the evidence of my deeds, even if you do not believe me, so that you may recognize and know that the Father is in me, and I in the Father.'

This provoked them to one more 36 attempt to seize him. But he escaped from their clutches.

Victory over death

JESUS WITHDREW AGAIN ACROSS THE
37 Jordan, to the place where John had been baptizing earlier. There he stayed, while crowds came to him. They said, 38 'John gave us no miraculous sign, but all that he said about this man was true.'
39 Many came to believe in him there.

There was a man named Lazarus
40 who had fallen ill. His home was at Bethany, the village of Mary and her

<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses read My Father is greater than all, and that which he has given me no one can snatch . . . ; others read That which my Father has given me is greater than all, and no one can snatch it . . .
<sup>f</sup> Or claim to be God.

fulfilled in Jesus. 16: Other sheep: Gentiles. 17–18: A series of key expressions—lay down, receive it back, and right—reflect a major motif that the anticipated crucifixion and vindication of Jesus are not imposed by human decision, but result from Jesus' free decision in obedience to the Father's will. 21: An allusion to the incident in ch. 9.

10.22–39: Further controversy. 22: Dedication, Hanukkah, a Jewish feast held in December, commemorated the reconsecration of the Temple (164 B.C.) after its profanation by Antiochus Epiphanes (167 B.C.). 24–38: This exchange can call to mind the trial scene before the Sanhedrin (see Lk.22.66–71). Here, too, the issue is raised whether Jesus claims to be Messiah (vv. 24–31) or the Son of God (vv. 33–38). 34: You are gods: an allusion to Ps.82.6.

10.40–11.54: The supreme sign: Lazarus' resurrection. 40: See 1.28. 11.1: This Bethany

2 sister Martha. (This Mary, whose brother Lazarus had fallen ill, was the woman who anointed the Lord with ointment and wiped his feet with her hair.) The sisters sent a message to him: 'Sir, you should know that your friend lies ill.' When Jesus heard this he said, 'This illness will not end in death; it has come for the glory of God, to bring glory to the Son of God.' And therefore, though he loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus, after hearing of his illness Jesus waited for two days in the place where he was.

7 After this, he said to his disciples, 'Let us go back to Judaea.' 'Rabbi,' his disciples said, 'it is not long since the Jews there were wanting to stone you. Are you going there again?' Jesus replied, 'Are there not twelve hours of daylight? Anyone can walk in daytime without stumbling, because he sees the light of this world. But if he walks after nightfall he stumbles, because the light fails him.'

11 After saying this he added, 'Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep, but I shall go and wake him.' The disciples said, 'Master, if he has fallen asleep he will recover.' Jesus, however, had been speaking of his death, but they thought that he meant natural sleep. Then Jesus spoke out plainly: 'Lazarus is dead. I am glad not to have been there; it will be for your good and for the good of your faith. But let us go to him.'

16 Thomas, called 'the Twin', said to his fellow-disciples, 'Let us also go, that we may die with him.'

17 ON HIS ARRIVAL JESUS FOUND THAT Lazarus had already been four days in the tomb. Bethany was just under two miles from Jerusalem, and many of the people had come from the city to Martha and Mary to condole with them on their brother's death. As soon as she heard that Jesus was on his way, Martha went to meet him, while Mary stayed at home.

Martha said to Jesus, 'If you had been here, sir, my brother would not have died. Even now I know that whatever you ask of God, God will grant you.' Jesus said, 'Your brother will rise again.' 'I know that he will rise again', said Martha, 'at the resurrection on the last day.' Jesus said, 'I am the resurrection and I am life.<sup>g</sup> If a man has faith in me, even though he die, he shall come to life; and no one who is alive and has faith shall ever die. Do you believe this?' 'Lord, I do,' she answered; 'I now believe that you are the Messiah, the Son of God who was to come into the world.'

With these words she went to call her sister Mary, and taking her aside, she said, 'The Master is here; he is asking for you.' When Mary heard this she rose up quickly and went to him. Jesus had not yet reached the village, but was still at the place where Martha had met him. The Jews who were in the house condoling with Mary, when they saw her start up and leave the house, went after her, for they supposed that she was going to the tomb to weep there.

So Mary came to the place where Jesus was. As soon as she caught sight of him she fell at his feet and said, 'O sir, if you had only been here my brother would not have died.' When Jesus saw her weeping and the Jews her companions weeping, he sighed heavily and was deeply moved. 'Where have you laid him?' he asked. They replied, 'Come and see, sir.' Jesus wept. The Jews said, 'How dearly he must have loved him!' But some of them said, 'Could not this man, who opened the blind man's eyes, have done something to keep Lazarus from dying?'

Jesus again sighed deeply; then he went over to the tomb. It was a cave,

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses omit and I am life.

(contrast 1.28) was a town near Jerusalem (see v. 18). Mary and her sister Martha appear in Lk.10.38–42. On Mary's anointing of Jesus, see 12.1–8 and nn. 2: Lord: a title rare in Jn. before the postresurrection narratives (see 6.23, and probably 4.1); it is frequent in Lk.–Acts, and in Paul's letters. 4: Son of God: see 5.16–30 n. 9: The light of this world: the sun, but with the overtone that even daylight is a sign through which Jesus reveals himself as the true light. 17: It was popularly held that corruption of the body began the third day after death; hence, the point of four days is to assert that Lazarus was truly dead and his resurrection real. 25: I am the resurrection and I am life: This, like other sayings in Jn. (e.g., 3.13; 5.25; 17.10 n.; perhaps

39 with a stone placed against it. Jesus said, 'Take away the stone.' Martha, the dead man's sister, said to him, 'Sir, by now there will be a stench; he has 40 been there four days.' Jesus said, 'Did I not tell you that if you have faith you 41 will see the glory of God?' So they removed the stone.

Then Jesus looked upwards and said, 'Father, I thank thee; thou hast heard 42 me. I knew already that thou always hearest me, but I spoke for the sake of the people standing round, that they might believe that thou didst send me.'
43 Then he raised his voice in a great cry: 'Lazarus, come forth.' The dead man came out, his hands and feet swathed in linen bands, his face wrapped in a cloth. Jesus said, 'Loose him; let him go.'

45 NOW MANY OF THE JEWS WHO HAD come to visit Mary and had seen what 46 Jesus did, put their faith in him. But some of them went off to the Pharisees and reported what he had done.
47 Thereupon the chief priests and the Pharisees convened a meeting of the Council. 'What action are we taking?' they said. 'This man is performing 48 many signs. If we leave him alone like this the whole populace will believe in him. Then the Romans will come and sweep away our temple and our nation.'
49 But one of them, Caiaphas, who was High Priest that year, said, 'You know nothing whatever; you do not use your judgement; it is more to your interest that one man should die for the people, than that the whole nation should be destroyed.' He did not say this of his 51 own accord, but as the High Priest in office that year, he was prophesying that Jesus would die for the nation—would 52 die not for the nation alone but to gather together the scattered children of God. So from that day on they 53 plotted his death.

Accordingly Jesus no longer went 54 about publicly in Judaea, but left that region for the country bordering on the desert, and came to a town called Ephraim, where he stayed with his disciples.

THE JEWISH PASSOVER WAS NOW AT 55 hand, and many people went up from the country to Jerusalem to purify themselves before the festival. They 56 looked out for Jesus, and as they stood in the temple they asked one another, 'What do you think? Perhaps he is not coming to the festival.' Now the chief 57 priests and the Pharisees had given orders that anyone who knew where he was should give information, so that they might arrest him.

SIX DAYS BEFORE THE PASSOVER FESTIVAL 12 Jesus came to Bethany, where Lazarus lived whom he had raised from the dead. There a supper was given in his 2 honour, at which Martha served, and Lazarus sat among the guests with Jesus. Then Mary brought a pound of 3 very costly perfume, pure oil of nard, and anointed the feet of Jesus and wiped them with her hair, till the house was filled with the fragrance. At this, 4 Judas Iscariot, a disciple of his—the one who was to betray him—said, 'Why 5 was this perfume not sold for thirty pounds<sup>h</sup> and given to the poor?' He 6 said this, not out of any care for the poor, but because he was a thief; he used to pilfer the money put into the common purse, which was in his charge. 'Leave her alone', said Jesus. 7 'Let her keep it till the day when she prepares for my burial; for you have 8

<sup>h</sup> Literally for 300 denarii.

4.38), is best understood if the speaker is viewed as the risen Christ. 40: This remark reflects Jesus' previous statements to the disciples (v. 4) and Martha (vv. 25–26). Glory of God: see Introduction. 45–48: Jn. views the raising of Lazarus as the chief basis of the hostility which caused Jesus' death (but, on the other hand, see 10.17–18 n.). 47: Jn. alone ascribes to the Pharisees a role in the ordeal of Jesus (see 18.3), probably reflecting the tension between Christianity and Pharisaic Judaism when this Gospel was written about 90 A.D. 49: Caiaphas was high priest from 18 to 36 A.D. 52: The scattered children of God probably denotes the Gentiles. 54: Ephraim: not the well-known region, but a town which cannot now be located.

11.55–12.50: Conclusion of Jesus' public ministry. 55: This is the third Passover in Jesus' public life (see 2.13 n.; 6.4). 12.1: See Mk.14.3–9 for a different account of Jesus' anointing. 3: That Mary anointed the feet (rather than the head) of Jesus is strange; compare Lk.7.37–38,

the poor among you always, but you will not always have me.<sup>4</sup>

9 A great number of the Jews heard that he was there, and came not only to see Jesus but also Lazarus whom he had raised from the dead. The chief priests then resolved to do away with Lazarus as well, since on his account many Jews were going over to Jesus and putting their faith in him.

12 THE NEXT DAY THE GREAT BODY OF pilgrims who had come to the festival, hearing that Jesus was on the way to Jerusalem, took palm branches and went out to meet him, shouting, 'Hosanna! Blessings on him who comes in the name of the Lord! God bless the king of Israel!' Jesus found a donkey and mounted it, in accordance with the text of Scripture: 'Fear no more, daughter of Zion; see, your king is coming, mounted on an ass's colt.'

16 At the time his disciples did not understand this, but after Jesus had been glorified they remembered that this had been written about him, and that this had happened to him. The people who were present when he called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead told what they had seen and heard. That is why the crowd went to meet him; they had heard of this sign that he had performed. The Pharisees said to one another, 'You see you are doing no good at all; why, all the world has gone after him!'

20 AMONG THOSE WHO WENT UP TO worship at the festival were some Greeks. They came to Philip, who was from Bethsaida in Galilee, and said to him, 'Sir, we should like to see Jesus.' So Philip went and told Andrew, and the two of them went to tell Jesus. Then Jesus replied: 'The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified. In truth, in very truth I tell you, a grain of wheat remains a solitary grain unless it falls into the ground and dies; but if it dies, it bears a rich harvest. The man who loves himself is lost, but he who hates himself in this world will be kept safe for eternal life. If anyone serves me, he must follow me; where I am, my servant will be. Whoever serves me will be honoured by my Father.

'Now my soul is in turmoil, and what am I to say? Father, save me from this hour.' No, it was for this that I came to this hour. Father, glorify thy name.' A voice sounded from heaven: 'I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again.' The crowd standing by said it was thunder, while others said, 'An angel has spoken to him.' Jesus replied, 'This voice spoke for your sake, not mine. Now is the hour of judgement for this world; now shall the Prince of this world be driven out. And I shall draw all men to myself, when I am lifted up from the earth.' This he said to indicate the kind of death he was to die.

The people answered, 'Our Law teaches us that the Messiah continues for ever. What do you mean by saying that the Son of Man must be lifted up? What Son of Man is this?' Jesus answered them: 'The light is among you still, but not for long. Go on your way while you have the light, so that darkness may not overtake you. He who journeys in the dark does not know where he is going. While you have the light, trust to the light, so that you may become men of light.' After these words Jesus went away from them into hiding.

IN SPITE OF THE MANY SIGNS WHICH Jesus had performed in their presence they would not believe in him, for the prophet Isaiah's utterance had to be

i Some witnesses omit for you have . . . have me.
j Or . . . turmoil. Shall I say, "Father, save me from this hour"?

perhaps a related tradition. 9-11: The raising of Lazarus is linked by these verses to the messianic entry in vv. 12-19; in Jewish tradition, the advent of the Messiah was related to the resurrection of the dead. 12-19: Jesus' entry into the city is interpreted as messianic by citing Zech.9.9. 13: Hosanna: see Mt.21.9 n. 16: Remembered: see 2.17 n. 20: Some Greeks: possibly Gentiles who acknowledged the God of Israel; see Acts 10.2 n. 23: Hour: see 2.4 n. 27: My soul is in turmoil introduces a scene reminiscent of the Synoptic narrative of Jesus' suffering in Gethsemane (see Mk.14.32-42). 31-32: Judgement for this world: see 1.19-51 n. 35-36: The theme of judgment and salvation is restated in terms of light and darkness (see 1.5; 3.19-21). 37-43: Jn. concludes the Book of Signs (see Introduction) by noting that Jesus' own people did not respond to him. 38-41: Jesus' lack of success with fellow Jews is explained by two citations fulfilled: 'Lord, who has believed what we reported, and to whom has the Lord's power been revealed?' So it was that they could not believe, for there is another saying of Isaiah's: 'He has blinded their eyes and dulled their minds, lest they should see with their eyes, and perceive with their minds, and turn to me to heal them.' Isaiah said this because<sup>k</sup> he saw his glory and spoke about him.

For all that, even among those in authority a number believed in him, but would not acknowledge him on account of the Pharisees, for fear of being banned from the synagogue. For they valued their reputation with men rather than the honour which comes from God.

SO JESUS CRIED ALOUD: 'WHEN A MAN believes in me, he believes in him who sent me rather than in me; seeing me, he sees him who sent me. I have come into the world as light, so that no one who has faith in me should remain in darkness. But if anyone hears my words and pays no regard to them, I am not his judge; I have not come to judge the world, but to save the world. There is a judge for the man who rejects me and does not accept my words; the word that I spoke will be his judge on the last day. I do not speak on my own authority, but the Father who sent me has himself commanded me what to say and how to speak. I know that his commands are eternal life. What the Father has said to me, therefore—that is what I speak.'

Farewell discourses

13 IT WAS BEFORE THE PASSOVER FESTIVAL. Jesus knew that his hour had come and he must leave this world and go to the Father. He had always loved his own who were in the world, and now he was to show the full extent of his love.

The devil had already put it into the mind of Judas son of Simon Iscariot to betray him. During supper, Jesus, well aware that the Father had entrusted everything to him, and that he had come from God and was going back to God, rose from table, laid aside his garments, and taking a towel, tied it round him. Then he poured water into a basin, and began to wash his disciples' feet and to wipe them with the towel.

When it was Simon Peter's turn, Peter said to him, 'You, Lord, washing my feet?' Jesus replied, 'You do not understand now what I am doing, but one day you will.' Peter said, 'I will never let you wash my feet.' 'If I do not wash you,' Jesus replied, 'you are not in fellowship with me.' 'Then, Lord,' said Simon Peter, 'not my feet only; wash my hands and head as well!'

Jesus said, 'A man who has bathed needs no further washing; he is altogether clean; and you are clean, though not every one of you.' He added the words 'not every one of you' because he knew who was going to betray him.

After washing their feet and taking his garments again, he sat down. 'Do you understand what I have done for you?' he asked. 'You call me "Master" and "Lord", and rightly so, for that is what I am. Then if I, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet. I have set you an example: you are to do as I have done for you. In very truth I tell you, a servant is not greater than his master, nor a messenger than the one who sent him. If you know this, happy are you if you act upon it.

I am not speaking about all of you; I know whom I have chosen. But there

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses read when.

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses read needs only to wash his feet.

from the prophet Isaiah (53.1; 6.10). Moreover, Jn. interprets Isa.6.1-13 as a preview of Christ's glorification. 44-50: The message of the Book of Signs (see Introduction) is recapitulated in these verses.

13.1-30: The Last Supper. 1: His hour had come: an important theme of the Johannine passion narrative is that Jesus knew in advance all that was to happen to him (see 16.28; 18.4; 19.28). 3-5: Jesus washes his disciples' feet to symbolize the humiliation of his death, which is the sole source of forgiveness of sins and of fellowship with him (v. 8). 7: The contrast between the disciples' limited understanding before Jesus' death and their future understanding, to take place one day is frequent; see 2.22; 12.16; 16.12. 11: Betray him: 6.64. 18: See Ps.41.9.

is a text of Scripture to be fulfilled: "He who eats bread with me has turned against me."<sup>m</sup> I tell you this now, before the event, so that when it happens you may believe that I am what I am. In very truth I tell you, he who receives any messenger of mine receives me; receiving me, he receives the One who sent me.<sup>19</sup>

21 After saying this, Jesus exclaimed in deep agitation of spirit, 'In truth, in very truth I tell you, one of you is going to betray me.' The disciples looked at one another in bewilderment: whom could he be speaking of? One of them, the disciple he loved, was reclining close beside Jesus. So Simon Peter nodded to him and said, 'Ask who it is he means.' That disciple, as he reclined, leaned back close to Jesus and asked, 'Lord, who is it?' Jesus replied, 'It is the man to whom I give this piece of bread when I have dipped it in the dish.' Then, after dipping it in the dish, he took it out and gave it to Judas son of Simon Iscariot. As soon as Judas had received it Satan entered him. Jesus said to him, 'Do quickly what you have to do.' No one at the table understood what he meant by this. Some supposed that, as Judas was in charge of the common purse, Jesus was telling him to buy what was needed for the festival, or to make some gift to the poor. As soon as Judas had received the bread he went out. It was night.<sup>22</sup>

31 WHEN HE HAD GONE OUT JESUS SAID, 'Now the Son of Man is glorified, and in him God is glorified. If God is glorified in him,<sup>n</sup> God will also glorify him in himself; and he will glorify him now. My children, for a little longer I am with you; then you will look for me, and, as I told the Jews, I tell you now, where I am going you cannot come. I give you a new commandment: love one another; as I have loved you, so you are to love one another. If there is this love among you, then all will know that you are my disciples.'<sup>23</sup>

Simon Peter said to him, 'Lord, 36 where are you going?' Jesus replied, 'Where I am going you cannot follow me now, but one day you will.' Peter 37 said, 'Lord, why cannot I follow you now? I will lay down my life for you.' Jesus answered, 'Will you indeed lay 38 down your life for me? I tell you in very truth, before the cock crows you will have denied me three times.

'Set your troubled hearts at rest. 14 Trust in God always; trust also in me. There are many dwelling-places in my 2 Father's house; if it were not so I should have told you; for I am going there on purpose to prepare a place for you.<sup>o</sup> And if I go and prepare a place 3 for you, I shall come again and receive you to myself, so that where I am you may be also; and my way there is 4 known to you.'<sup>p</sup> Thomas said, 'Lord, 5 we do not know where you are going, so how can we know the way?' Jesus 6 replied, 'I am the way; I am the truth and I am life; no one comes to the Father except by me.

'If you knew me you would know my 7 Father too.<sup>q</sup> From now on you do know him; you have seen him.' Philip 8 said to him, 'Lord, show us the Father and we ask no more.' Jesus answered, 9 'Have I been all this time with you, Philip, and you still do not know me? Anyone who has seen me has seen the Father. Then how can you say, "Show us the Father"?' Do you not believe 10 that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? I am not myself the source of the words I speak to you: it is the Father who dwells in me doing his own work. Believe me when I say that I am 11 in the Father and the Father in me; or else accept the evidence of the deeds themselves. In truth, in very truth I tell 12 you, he who has faith in me will do what

m Literally has lifted his heel against me.

n Some witnesses omit If God . . . in him.

o Or if it were not so, should I have told you that I am going to prepare a place for you?

p Some witnesses read also. You know where I am going and you know the way.

q Some witnesses read If you know me you will know my Father too.

19: I am: see 8.24 n. 23: The disciple he loved: see 18.15 n. 27: The words Satan entered him prepare the reader to see that Jesus' confrontation in 18.2-6 is really with Satan. See also Lk 22.3.

13.31-14.31: Jesus' farewell discourse. This final message is partly repeated later in chs. 15-16. 33: See 7.34; 8.21. 34: Jesus' death for his friends (15.13) makes the observance of the new commandment of fraternal love possible. 14.1: The words set your troubled hearts at rest (repeated

I am doing; and he will do greater things still because I am going to the Father. Indeed anything you ask in my name I will do, so that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If you ask anything in my name I will do it.

‘If you love me you will obey my commands; and I will ask the Father, and he will give you another to be your Advocate, who will be with you for ever—the Spirit of truth. The world cannot receive him, because the world neither sees nor knows him; but you know him, because he dwells with you and is<sup>r</sup> in you. I will not leave you bereft; I am coming back to you. In a little while the world will see me no longer, but you will see me; because I live, you too will live; then you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me and I in you. The man who has received my commands and obeys them—he it is who loves me; and he who loves me will be loved by my Father; and I will love him and disclose myself to him.’

Judas asked him—the other Judas, not Iscariot—‘Lord, what can have happened, that you mean to disclose yourself to us alone and not to the world?’ Jesus replied, ‘Anyone who loves me will heed what I say; then my Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our dwelling with him; but he who does not love me does not heed what I say. And the word you hear is not mine: it is the word of the Father who sent me. I have told you all this while I am still here with you; but your Advocate, the Holy Spirit whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you everything, and will call to mind all that I have told you.’

‘Peace is my parting gift to you, my own peace, such as the world cannot give. Set your troubled hearts at rest, and banish your fears. You heard me say, “I am going away, and coming back to you.” If you loved me you would have been glad to hear that I was going to the Father; for the Father is greater than I. I have told you now, beforehand, so that when it happens you may have faith.

‘I shall not talk much longer with you, for the Prince of this world approaches. He has no rights over me; but the world must be shown that I love the Father, and do exactly as he commands; so up, let us go forward!’<sup>t</sup>

‘I AM THE REAL VINE, AND MY FATHER IS the gardener. Every barren branch of mine he cuts away; and every fruiting branch he cleans, to make it more fruitful still. You have already been cleansed by the word that I spoke to you. Dwell in me, as I in you. No branch can bear fruit by itself, but only if it remains united with the vine; no more can you bear fruit, unless you remain united with me.

‘I am the vine, and you the branches. He who dwells in me, as I dwell in him, bears much fruit; for apart from me you can do nothing. He who does not dwell in me is thrown away like a withered branch. The withered branches are heaped together, thrown on the fire, and burnt.

‘If you dwell in me, and my words dwell in you, ask what you will, and you shall have it. This is my Father’s glory, that you may bear fruit in plenty and so be my disciples.’<sup>u</sup> As the Father has loved me, so I have loved you. Dwell in my love. If you heed my commands, you will dwell in my love, as I have heeded my Father’s commands, and dwell in his love.

<sup>r</sup> Some witnesses insert me.

<sup>s</sup> Some witnesses read shall be.

<sup>t</sup> Or for the Prince of this world is coming, though he has nothing in common with me. But he is coming so that the world may recognize that I love the Father, and do exactly as he commands. Up, and let us go forward to meet him!

<sup>u</sup> Some witnesses read that you may bear fruit in plenty. Thus you will be my disciples.

at v. 27) state the theme of the discourse; i.e. Jesus’ departure is to make possible the mutual indwelling of Father, Son, and disciples (see vv. 2,20,23). 13–14: The phrases in my name and I will do indicate the belief that Jesus and the Father are so related (vv. 9–10) that petitionary prayer may be directed to the Son. See 15.16 n.; 16.23–26 n. 26: Your Advocate is identified as the Holy Spirit sent in Jesus’ name by the Father (compare v. 16). Compare 1 Jn.2.1 n. 28: The Father is greater than I: see v. 10; 5.19 n.

15.1–17: The abiding of Christians in Jesus and in one another. 1: Jesus, the real vine, fulfills the prophetic images of Israel as vineyard (Isa.5.1–7) and vine (Jer.2.21; Ezek.19.10–14). 4: The invitation to dwell in me implies obedience to Jesus’ commands (v. 10), especially that

11 'I have spoken thus to you, so that my joy may be in you, and your joy
 complete.<sup>v</sup> This is my commandment:
 12 love one another, as I have loved you.
 13 There is no greater love than this, that a man should lay down his life for his 14 friends. You are my friends, if you 15 do what I command you. I call you servants no longer; a servant does not know what his master is about. I have called you friends, because I have disclosed to you everything that I heard 16 from my Father. You did not choose me: I chose you. I appointed you to go on and bear fruit, fruit that shall last;
 so that the Father may give you all that 17 you ask in my name. This is my commandment to you: love one another.
 18 'If the world hates you, it hated me 19 first, as you know well.<sup>w</sup> If you belonged to the world, the world would love its own; but because you do not belong to the world, because I have chosen you out of the world, for that 20 reason the world hates you. Remember what I said: "A servant is not greater than his master." As they persecuted me, they will persecute you; they will follow your teaching as little as they 21 have followed mine. It is on my account that they will treat you thus, because they do not know the One who sent me.
 22 'If I had not come and spoken to them, they would not be guilty of sin;
 but now they have no excuse for their 23 sin: he who hates me, hates my Father.
 24 If I had not worked among them and accomplished what no other man has done, they would not be guilty of sin;
 but now they have both seen and hated 25 both me and my Father.<sup>x</sup> However, this text in their Law had to come true:<sup>y</sup>
 "They hated me without reason."
 26 'But when your Advocate has come,

whom I will send you from the Father—the Spirit of truth that issues from the Father—he will bear witness to me. And you also are my witnesses, 27 because you have been with me from the first.

'I have told you all this to guard you 16
 against the breakdown of your faith.
 They will ban you from the synagogue; 2
 indeed, the time is coming when anyone who kills you will suppose that he is performing a religious duty. They will 3 do these things because they do not know either the Father or me. I have 4 told you all this so that when the time comes for it to happen you may remember my warning. I did not tell you this at first, because then I was with you; but now I am going away to him 5 who sent me. None of you asks me
 "Where are you going?" Yet you are 6 plunged into grief because of what I have told you. Nevertheless I tell you 7
 the truth: it is for your good that I am leaving you. If I do not go, your Advocate will not come, whereas if I 8 go, I will send him to you. When he comes, he will confute the world, and show where wrong and right and judgement lie. He will convict them of 9 wrong, by their refusal to believe in me;
 he will convince them that right is on 10
 my side, by showing that I go to the Father when I pass from your sight;
 and he will convince them of divine 11
 judgement, by showing that the Prince of this world stands condemned.

'There is still much that I could say 12
 to you, but the burden would be too great for you now. However, when he 13

<sup>v</sup> Or so that I may have joy in you and your joy may be complete.

<sup>w</sup> Or bear in mind that it hated me first.

<sup>x</sup> Or but now they have indeed seen my work and yet hated both me and my Father.

<sup>y</sup> Or let this text in their Law come true.

of fraternal love (v. 17). 14: The title friend denotes great intimacy; it was bestowed on Abraham (Isa.41.8; Jas.2.23). 16: In this passage (see 16.23–26 n.), the efficacy of prayer in my name is presented as a product of the close union with Jesus (see v. 4 n.) to which the disciples have been called.

15.18–27: The Christian is separated from the world. 18: The world: a term often ambivalent, here indicates Jesus' enemies, as in 12.31; 14.17; 16.33; 17.9; see 3.16 n. 20: The servant, master saying occurs several times with varying interpretations; see 13.16 (compare 12.26); Mt.10.24; Lk.6.40. 25: See Pss.35.19; 69.4.

16.1–15: Jesus' departure; the sending of the Advocate. 4: Remember: 2.17 n. 7–11: As the one who represents the risen Christ, the Advocate is here assigned a three-fold task: to pass judgment on the sin of the world, to testify to Jesus' presence with the Father, and to attest to God's condemnation of the powers of evil. See also v. 13; 14.26.

comes who is the Spirit of truth, he will guide you into all the truth; for he will not speak on his own authority, but will tell only what he hears; and he will make known to you the things that are coming. He will glorify me, for everything that he makes known to you he will draw from what is mine. All that the Father has is mine, and that is why I said, "Everything that he makes known to you he will draw from what is mine."

16 'A LITTLE WHILE, AND YOU SEE ME NO more; again a little while, and you will see me.' Some of his disciples said to one another, 'What does he mean by this: "A little while, and you will not see me, and again a little while, and you will see me", and by this: "Because I am going to my Father"?' So they asked, 'What is this "little while" that he speaks of? We do not know what he means.'

19 Jesus knew that they were wanting to question him, and said, 'Are you discussing what I said: "A little while, and you will not see me, and again a little while, and you will see me"?' In very truth I tell you, you will weep and mourn, but the world will be glad. But though you will be plunged in grief, 21 your grief will be turned to joy. A woman in labour is in pain because her time has come; but when the child is born she forgets the anguish in her joy that a man has been born into the world. So it is with you; for the moment you are sad at heart; but I shall see you again, and then you will be joyful, and no one shall rob you of 23 your joy. When that day comes you will ask nothing of me. In very truth I tell you, if you ask the Father for anything 24 in my name, he will give it you.<sup>2</sup> So far you have asked nothing in my name. Ask and you will receive, that your joy may be complete.

'Till now I have been using figures 25 of speech; a time is coming when I shall no longer use figures, but tell you of the Father in plain words. When 26 that day comes you will make your request in my name, and I do not say that I shall pray to the Father for you, for the Father loves you himself, be- 27 because you have loved me and believed that I came from God. I came from the 28 Father and have come into the world. Now I am leaving the world again and going to the Father.' His disciples said, 29 'Why, this is plain speaking; this is no figure of speech. We are certain now 30 that you know everything, and do not need to be questioned; because of this we believe that you have come from God.'

Jesus answered, 'Do you now be- 31 lieve? Look,<sup>a</sup> the hour is coming, has 32 indeed already come, when you are all to be scattered, each to his home, leaving me alone. Yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me. I have 33 told you all this so that in me you may find peace. In the world you will have trouble. But courage! The victory is mine; I have conquered the world.'

AFTER THESE WORDS JESUS LOOKED UP 17 to heaven and said:

'Father, the hour has come. Glorify thy Son, that the Son may glorify thee. For thou hast made him sovereign over 2 all mankind, to give eternal life to all whom thou hast given him. This is 3 eternal life: to know thee who alone art truly God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent.

'I have glorified thee on earth by 4 completing the work which thou gavest me to do; and now, Father, glorify me 5 in thy own presence with the glory which I had with thee before the world began.

<sup>2</sup> Some witnesses read if you ask the Father for anything, he will give it you in my name.

<sup>a</sup> Or At the moment you believe; but look . . .

16.16-33: Jesus' return to the disciples. 16: You will see me is a promise which includes Christ's postresurrection appearances, his presence through the Spirit, and his second (final) coming. 23-26: Jn. now completes his teaching on prayer in my name (see 14.13-14 n.; 15.16 n.): it is a form of prayer which arises from Jesus' glorification and the gift of the Spirit (vv. 13-14); it is heard because of the intimacy between the Father and the believer. 32: Mk.14.27 and Mt.26.31 connect this prophecy with the Gethsemane scene; see Zech. 13.7.

17.1-8: Jesus prays for the revelation of God's glory. 1: Jesus' intercession has a high-priestly character reminiscent of Rom.8.34 and Heb. He does not pray for himself, except perhaps in v. 5, but for the completion of his mission, to reveal the unseen God, who can be seen in the Son.

- 6 'I have made thy name known to the men whom thou didst give me out of the world. They were thine, thou gavest them to me, and they have obeyed thy 7 command. Now they know that all thy 8 gifts have come to me from thee; for I have taught them all that I learned from thee, and they have received it: they know with certainty that I came from thee; they have had faith to believe that thou didst send me.
- 9 'I pray for them; I am not praying for the world but for those whom thou hast given me, because they belong to thee. All that is mine is thine, and what is thine is mine; and through them has my glory shone.
- 11 'I am to stay no longer in the world, but they are still in the world, and I am on my way to thee. Holy Father, protect by the power of thy name those whom thou hast given me,<sup>b</sup> that they may be one, as we are one. When I was with them, I protected by the power of thy name those whom thou hast given me,<sup>c</sup> and kept them safe. Not one of them is lost except the man who must be lost, for Scripture has to be fulfilled.
- 13 'And now I am coming to thee; but while I am still in the world I speak these words, so that they may have my joy within them in full measure. I have delivered thy word to them, and the world hates them because they are strangers in the world, as I am. I pray thee, not to take them out of the world, but to keep them from the evil one. They are strangers in the world, as I am. Consecrate them by the truth;<sup>d</sup> thy word is truth. As thou hast sent me into the world, I have sent them into the world, and for their sake I now consecrate myself, that they too may be consecrated by the truth.<sup>d</sup>
- 20 'But it is not for these alone that I pray, but for those also who through their words put their faith in me; may 21 they all be one: as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, so also may they be in us, that the world may believe that thou didst send me. The glory which 22 thou gavest me I have given to them, that they may be one, as we are one; I in them and thou in me, may they be perfectly one. Then the world will learn that thou didst send me, that thou didst love them as thou didst me.
- 'Father, I desire that these men, who 24 are thy gift to me, may be with me where I am, so that they may look upon my glory, which thou hast given me because thou didst love me before the world began. O righteous Father, 25 although the world does not know thee, I know thee, and these men know that thou didst send me. I made thy name known to them, and will make it known, so that the love thou hadst for me may be in them, and I may be in them.'

The final conflict

AFTER THESE WORDS, JESUS WENT OUT 18 with his disciples, and crossed the Kedron ravine. There was a garden there, and he and his disciples went into it. The place was known to Judas, 2 his betrayer, because Jesus had often met there with his disciples. So Judas 3 took a detachment of soldiers, and police provided by the chief priests and the Pharisees, equipped with lanterns, torches, and weapons, and made his way to the garden. Jesus, knowing all 4 that was coming upon him, went out to them and asked, 'Who is it you want?'

b Or keep in loyalty to thee those whom thou hast given me; some witnesses read protect them by the power of thy name which thou hast given me.

c Or kept in loyalty to thee those whom thou hast given me; some witnesses read protected them by the power of thy name which thou hast given me.

d Or in truth.

17.9–19: Jesus' intercession for the disciples. 10: Through them has my glory shone refers to the disciple's postresurrection faith, which grasps Jesus' identity as the Son of God. 12: The man who must be lost is Judas (see 6.70–71). 19: I now consecrate myself expresses Jesus' self-offering to God through his death.

17.20–26: Jesus' intercession for future Christians. 20: Through their words: i.e. the gospel handed down by the first disciples, which provides the occasion for the gift of faith to future Christians (see Rom.10.10–17). 23: The world will learn: the complete unity of the believers will challenge the world to recognize Jesus' mission from the Father.

18.1–11: The garden. 1: The Kedron ravine lay between Mount Moriah to the west, and the Mount of Olives to the east. Jn. lacks the place name Gethsemane (Mk.14.32) and Jesus' prayer and struggle (Mk.14.33–42); but see 12.27 n. 3: See 11.47 n. 4: Knowing all: compare 10.17–18 n.

5 'Jesus of Nazareth', they answered. Jesus said, 'I am he.' And there stood
6 Judas the traitor with them. When he said, 'I am he', they drew back and fell
7 to the ground. Again Jesus asked, 'Who is it you want?' 'Jesus of Nazareth', 8 they answered. Then Jesus said, 'I have told you that I am he. If I am the man
9 you want, let these others go.' (This was to make good his words, 'I have not lost one of those whom thou gavest
10 me.'). Thereupon Simon Peter drew the sword he was wearing and struck at the High Priest's servant, cutting off his right ear. (The servant's name was 11 Malchus.) Jesus said to Peter, 'Sheathe your sword. This is the cup the Father has given me; shall I not drink it?'

12 THE TROOPS WITH THEIR COMMANDER, and the Jewish police, now arrested
13 Jesus and secured him. They took him first to Annas.<sup>e</sup> Annas was father-in-law of Caiaphas, the High Priest for that 14 year<sup>e</sup>—the same Caiaphas who had advised the Jews that it would be to their interest if one man died for the 15 whole people. Jesus was followed by Simon Peter and another disciple. This disciple, who was acquainted with the High Priest, went with Jesus into the 16 High Priest's courtyard, but Peter halted at the door outside. So the other disciple, the High Priest's acquaintance, went out again and spoke to the woman at the door, and brought Peter 17 in. The maid on duty at the door said to Peter, 'Are you another of this man's 18 disciples?' 'I am not', he said. The servants and the police had made a charcoal fire, because it was cold, and were standing round it warming themselves. And Peter too was standing with them, sharing the warmth.

The High Priest questioned Jesus 19 about his disciples and about what he taught. Jesus replied, 'I have spoken 20 openly to all the world; I have always taught in synagogues and in the temple, where all Jews congregate; I have said nothing in secret. Why question me?
21 Ask my hearers what I told them; they know what I said.' When he said this, 22 one of the police who was standing next to him struck him on the face, exclaiming, 'Is that the way to answer the High Priest?' Jesus replied, 'If I
23 spoke amiss, state it in evidence; if I spoke well, why strike me?'

So Annas sent him bound to 24 Caiaphas the High Priest.<sup>f</sup>

Meanwhile Simon Peter stood warming himself. The others asked, 'Are you another of his disciples?' But he denied it: 'I am not', he said. One of the High 26 Priest's servants, a relation of the man whose ear Peter had cut off, insisted, 'Did I not see you with him in the garden?' Peter denied again; and just 27 then a cock crew.

FROM CAIAPHAS JESUS WAS LED INTO 28 the Governor's headquarters. It was now early morning, and the Jews themselves stayed outside the headquarters to avoid defilement, so that they could eat the Passover meal.<sup>g</sup> So Pilate went out to them and asked, 29 'What charge do you bring against this man?' 'If he were not a criminal,' they 30 replied, 'we should not have brought him before you.' Pilate said, 'Take him 31 away and try him by your own law.' The Jews answered, 'We are not

<sup>e</sup> See note on verse 24.

<sup>f</sup> Some witnesses give this verse after first to Annas in verse 13; others at the end of verse 13.

<sup>g</sup> Or could share in the offerings of the Passover season.

9: His words: see 6.39; 17.12. 11: The words seem to echo Jesus' prayer in Mk.14.36; Mt.26.39, 42; Lk.22.42.

18.12-27: Interrogation by Annas. 12: The Gk. term for troops (lit. 'cohort') may imply Roman intervention. 13: Annas had been high priest from 6-15 A.D. 14: The same Caiaphas: see 11.49 (and n.)-51. 15: Another is plausibly the same disciple as in 20.2-10, the friend of Peter (13.23-25; 21.7,20-24), possibly John, the son of Zebedee. 20: The tradition consistently records the claim that Jesus taught openly in the Temple; see Mt.26.55; Mk.14.49; Lk.22.53. 24: Jn. apparently omits an official Jewish trial, substituting for it an informal hearing; but see 10.24-38 n.

18.28-19.16: Jesus and Pilate. 28: The site of the trial was either the Fortress Antonia, which was connected with the Temple area, or the palace which had been built by Herod and was sometimes used as the Governor's headquarters. In Jn. the Passover meal was celebrated in the evening following Jesus' crucifixion, in apparent contradiction to the other Gospels (see Mt.26.17 n.). 31: We are not allowed: under Roman rule, the Sanhedrin lacked the authority

32 allowed to put any man to death.' Thus they ensured the fulfilment of the words by which Jesus had indicated the manner of his death,

33 Pilate then went back into his headquarters and summoned Jesus. 'Are you the king of the Jews?' he asked.<sup>h</sup>
 34 Jesus said, 'Is that your own idea, or have others suggested it to you?'
 35 'What! am I a Jew?' said Pilate. 'Your own nation and their chief priests have brought you before me. What have you done?' Jesus replied, 'My kingdom does not belong to this world. If it did, my followers would be fighting to save me from arrest by the Jews. My kingly authority comes from elsewhere.' 'You are a king, then?' said Pilate. Jesus answered, "'King" is your word. My task is to bear witness to the truth. For this was I born; for this I came into the world, and all who are not deaf to truth listen to my voice.' Pilate said, 'What is truth?', and with those words went out again to the Jews. 'For my part,' he said, 'I find no case against him. But you have a custom that I release one prisoner for you at Passover. Would you like me to release the king of the Jews?' Again the clamour rose: 'Not him; we want Barabbas!' (Barabbas was a bandit.)

19 Pilate now took Jesus and had him flogged; and the soldiers plaited a crown of thorns and placed it on his head, and robed him in a purple cloak. Then time after time they came up to him, crying, 'Hail, King of the Jews!', and struck him on the face,

4 Once more Pilate came out and said to the Jews, 'Here he is; I am bringing him out to let you know that I find no case against him'; and Jesus came out, wearing the crown of thorns and the purple cloak. 'Behold the Man!' said

Pilate. The chief priests and their 6 henchmen saw him and shouted, 'Crucify! crucify!' 'Take him and crucify him yourselves,' said Pilate; 'for my part I find no case against him.' The Jews answered, 'We have a law; 7 and by that law he ought to die, because he has claimed to be Son of God.'

When Pilate heard that, he was more 8 afraid than ever, and going back into 9 his headquarters he asked Jesus, 'Where have you come from?' But Jesus gave him no answer. 'Do you refuse to 10 speak to me?' said Pilate. 'Surely you know that I have authority to release you, and I have authority to crucify you?' 'You would have no authority 11 at all over me', Jesus replied, 'if it had not been granted you from above; and therefore the deeper guilt lies with the man who handed me over to you.'

From that moment Pilate tried hard 12 to release him; but the Jews kept shouting, 'If you let this man go, you are no friend to Caesar; any man who claims to be a king is defying Caesar.' When Pilate heard what they were 13 saying, he brought Jesus out and took his seat on the tribunal at the place known as 'The Pavement' ('Gabbatha' in the language of the Jews). It was the 14 eve of Passover,<sup>i</sup> about noon. Pilate said to the Jews, 'Here is your king.' They shouted, 'Away with him! Away 15 with him! Crucify him!' 'Crucify your king?' said Pilate. 'We have no king but Caesar', the Jews replied. Then at 16 last, to satisfy them, he handed Jesus over to be crucified.

JESUS WAS NOW TAKEN IN CHARGE AND, 17 carrying his own cross, went out to the Place of the Skull, as it is called (or, in to execute criminals, though some commentators have raised questions about the full accuracy of the statement. 32: See 3.14; 8.28; 12.32. 33: The implication of king of the Jews is ambiguous. Either it might be a purely religious title ("king of Israel," see 1.49) or, on the contrary, it could carry the political connotation of opposition to Rome. 40: Bandit: probably, a revolutionary. 19.1-5: Jn. highlights Jesus' royalty by locating his mockery as king in the center of his trial by Romans. 11: Jn. views Pilate as the appointed instrument of the divine will in these predetermined events. Who handed me over: either the high priest (18.28,35) or, perhaps, Judas (13.2). 13: Took his seat: the Gk. is ambiguous; it could mean that Pilate seated Jesus on the tribunal. 14: About noon: the time when the paschal lamb was slaughtered by the priests; Jesus is the "paschal lamb"; see also 1.29 n.

<sup>h</sup> Or 'You are king of the Jews, I take it', he said.
<sup>i</sup> Or It was Friday in Passover.

19.17-37: Events on Calvary. 17: Unlike the Synoptics, Jn. does not mention Simon of Cyrene (Mk.15.21 n.). His account also omits the mockery at the cross, the darkness, the tearing 18 the Jews' language, 'Golgotha'), where they crucified him, and with him two others, one on the right, one on the left, and Jesus between them.

19 And Pilate wrote an inscription to be fastened to the cross; it read, 'Jesus of Nazareth King of the Jews.' This inscription was read by many Jews, because the place where Jesus was crucified was not far from the city, and the inscription was in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek. Then the Jewish chief priests said to Pilate, 'You should not write "King of the Jews"; write, "He claimed to be king of the Jews."' Pilate replied, 'What I have written, I have written.'

23 The soldiers, having crucified Jesus, took possession of his clothes, and divided them into four parts, one for each soldier, leaving out the tunic. The tunic was seamless, woven in one piece throughout; so they said to one another, 'We must not tear this; let us toss for it'; and thus the text of Scripture came true: 'They shared my garments among them, and cast lots for my clothing.'

25 That is what the soldiers did. But meanwhile near the cross where Jesus hung stood his mother, with her sister, Mary wife of Clopas, and Mary of Magdala. Jesus saw his mother, with the disciple whom he loved standing beside her. He said to her, 'Mother, there is your son'; and to the disciple, 'There is your mother'; and from that moment the disciple took her into his home.

28 After that, Jesus, aware that all had now come to its appointed end, said in fulfilment of Scripture, 'I thirst.' A jar stood there full of sour wine; so they soaked a sponge with the wine, fixed it on a javelin,<sup>j</sup> and held it up to his lips.

30 Having received the wine, he said, 'It is accomplished!' He bowed his head and gave up his spirit.<sup>k</sup>

Because it was the eve of Passover,<sup>l</sup> 31 the Jews were anxious that the bodies should not remain on the cross for the coming Sabbath, since that Sabbath was a day of great solemnity; so they requested Pilate to have the legs broken and the bodies taken down. 32 The soldiers accordingly came to the first of his fellow-victims and to the second, and broke their legs; but when they came to Jesus, they found that he was already dead, so they did not break his legs. But one of the soldiers 34 stabbed his side with a lance, and at once there was a flow of blood and water. This is vouched for by an 35 eyewitness, whose evidence is to be trusted. He knows that he speaks the truth, so that you too may believe; for 36 this happened in fulfilment of the text of Scripture: 'No bone of his shall be broken.' And another text says, 'They shall look on him whom they pierced.'

AFTER THAT, PILATE WAS APPROACHED 38 by Joseph of Arimathaea, a disciple of Jesus, but a secret disciple for fear of the Jews, who<sup>m</sup> asked to be allowed to remove the body of Jesus. Pilate gave the permission; so Joseph came and took the body away. He was joined by 39 Nicodemus (the man who had first visited Jesus by night), who brought with him a mixture of myrrh and aloes, more than half a hundredweight. They 40 took the body of Jesus and wrapped it, with the spices, in strips of linen cloth according to Jewish burial-customs. Now at the place where he had been 41 crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new tomb, not yet used for burial. There, because the tomb was 42 near at hand and it was the eve of the Jewish Sabbath, they laid Jesus.

<sup>j</sup> So one witness; the others read on marjoram.

<sup>k</sup> Or breathed out his life.

<sup>l</sup> Or Because it was Friday in Passover . . .

<sup>m</sup> Or of Arimathaea. He was a disciple of Jesus, but had gone into hiding for fear of the Jews. He now . . .

of the Temple curtain, and the centurion's remark (see Mk.15.29-39). 19: Jn. ascribes to the Romans a bitter irony in this scornful inscription about Jesus' kingship; see Mt.27.37; Mk.15.26; Lk.23.38. 23: His clothes: see Ps.22.18. 25-27: Jn. alone mentions the presence of Jesus' mother and her relationship to the beloved disciple. 34: In the blood and water Jn. perceives a deep theological significance (see 7.38-39; 1 Jn.5.6,8); he intends this as a symbol of the gift of the Spirit or, possibly, of baptism. 35: This eyewitness is the beloved disciple of v. 26. 36: Compare Exod.12.46. 37: See Zech.12.10.

19.38-42: Jesus' burial. 39: Nicodemus: see 3.1. Jn. omits the presence of the women (compare Mt.27.61; Mk.15.47; Lk.23.55-56). 40: In accordance with Jewish burial-customs the corpse was not eviscerated, as in Egyptian mummification; thus, Jesus' body would remain intact.

20 EARLY ON THE SUNDAY MORNING, WHILE it was still dark, Mary of Magdala came to the tomb. She saw that the stone had been moved away from the entrance, and ran to Simon Peter and the other disciple, the one whom Jesus loved. 'They have taken the Lord out of his tomb,' she cried, 'and we do not know where they have laid him.' So Peter and the other set out and made their way to the tomb. They were running side by side, but the other disciple outran Peter and reached the tomb first. He peered in and saw the linen wrappings lying there, but did not enter. Then Simon Peter came up, following him, and he went into the tomb. He saw the linen wrappings lying, and the napkin which had been over his head, not lying with the wrappings but rolled together in a place by itself. Then the disciple who had reached the tomb first went in too, and he saw and believed; until then they had not understood the scriptures, which showed that he must rise from the dead. So the disciples went home again; but Mary stood at the tomb outside, weeping. As she wept, she peered into the tomb; and she saw two angels in white sitting there, one at the head, and one at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. They said to her, 'Why are you weeping?' She answered, 'They have taken my Lord away, and I do not know where they have laid him.' With these words she turned round and saw Jesus standing there, but did not recognize him. Jesus said to her, 'Why are you weeping? Who is it you are looking for?' Thinking it was the gardener, she said, 'If it is you, sir, who removed him, tell me where you have laid him, and I will take him away.' Jesus said, 'Mary!' She turned to him and said, 'Rabbuni!' (which is Hebrew for 'My Master'). Jesus said, 'Do not cling to me,<sup>n</sup> for I have not yet ascended to the Father. But go to my brothers, and tell them that I am now ascending<sup>o</sup> to my Father and your Father, my God and your God.' Mary of Magdala went to the disciples with her news: 'I have seen the Lord!' she said, and gave them his message.

Late that Sunday evening, when the disciples were together behind locked doors, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood among them. 'Peace be with you!' he said, and then showed them his hands and his side. So when the disciples saw the Lord, they were filled with joy. Jesus repeated, 'Peace be with you!', and said, 'As the Father sent me, so I send you.' Then he breathed on them, saying, 'Receive the Holy Spirit! If you forgive any man's sins, they stand forgiven; if you pronounce them unforgiven, unforgiven they remain.'

One of the Twelve, Thomas, that is 'the Twin', was not with the rest when Jesus came. So the disciples told him, 'We have seen the Lord.' He said, 'Unless I see the mark of the nails on his hands, unless I put my finger into the place where the nails were, and my hand into his side, I will not believe it.'

A week later his disciples were again in the room, and Thomas was with them. Although the doors were locked, Jesus came and stood among them, saying, 'Peace be with you!' Then he said to Thomas, 'Reach your finger here; see my hands. Reach your hand here and put it into my side. Be unbelieving no longer, but believe.' Thomas said, 'My Lord and my God!'

<sup>n</sup> Or Touch me no more.

<sup>o</sup> Or I am going to ascend . . .

20.1–23: The first Easter. 1: Sunday became the Christian day of worship rather than Saturday. 2: Lord: see 11.2 n. The other disciple: see 18.15 n. 6–8: Peter's reaction shows that inspection of the empty tomb did not in itself cause faith in Jesus' resurrection; however, the disciple (v. 2) whom Jn. favors above Peter saw and believed. 9: That without Christian faith the disciples had not understood the scriptures is crucial, since it shows that the OT in itself had not led them to anticipate Jesus' resurrection. 14: Mary did not recognize him because she did not yet have faith in the risen Jesus. 17: Jesus' prohibition, do not cling to me, shows that Mary's gesture of adoration is premature, because his glorification is incomplete. 22: Breathed on them recalls God's creative action in Gen.2.7. 23: The risen Lord bestows the power to forgive sins on the Church.

20.24–29: Thomas. This account of Thomas' doubt and ensuing faith invites belief which is not dependent on physical evidence.

- 29 Jesus said, 'Because you have seen me you have found faith. Happy are they who never saw me and yet have found faith.'
- 30 There were indeed many other signs that Jesus performed in the presence of his disciples, which are not recorded in this book. Those here written have been recorded in order that you may hold the faith<sup>p</sup> that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that through this faith you may possess life by his name.
- 21 SOME TIME LATER, JESUS SHOWED HIMSELF to his disciples once again, by the 2 Sea of Tiberias; and in this way. Simon Peter and Thomas 'the Twin' were together with Nathanael of Cana-in-Galilee. The sons of Zebedee and two 3 other disciples were also there. Simon Peter said, 'I am going out fishing.' 'We will go with you', said the others. So they started and got into the boat. But that night they caught nothing.
- 4 Morning came, and there stood Jesus on the beach, but the disciples did not 5 know that it was Jesus. He called out to them, 'Friends, have you caught 6 anything?' They answered 'No.' He said, 'Shoot the net to starboard, and you will make a catch.' They did so, and found they could not haul the net aboard, there were so many fish in it.
- 7 Then the disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, 'It is the Lord!' When Simon Peter heard that, he wrapped his coat about him (for he had stripped) and plunged into the sea.
- 8 The rest of them came on in the boat, towing the net full of fish; for they were not far from land, only about a hundred yards.
- 9 When they came ashore, they saw a charcoal fire there, with fish laid on it, and some bread. Jesus said, 'Bring 10 some of your catch.' Simon Peter went aboard and dragged the net to land,
- full of big fish, a hundred and fifty-three of them; and yet, many as they were, the net was not torn. Jesus said, 12 'Come and have breakfast.' None of the disciples dared to ask 'Who are you?' They knew it was the Lord. Jesus now came up, took the bread, 13 and gave it to them, and the fish in the same way.
- This makes the third time that Jesus 14 appeared to his disciples after his resurrection from the dead.
- After breakfast, Jesus said to Simon 15 Peter, 'Simon son of John, do you love me more than all else<sup>q</sup>?' 'Yes, Lord,' he answered, 'you know that I love you.'<sup>r</sup> 'Then feed my lambs', he said. A second time he asked, 'Simon son of 16 John, do you love me?' 'Yes, Lord, you know I love you.'<sup>r</sup> 'Then tend my sheep.' A third time he said, 'Simon son 17 of John, do you love me<sup>s</sup>?' Peter was hurt that he asked him a third time. 'Do you love me?'<sup>t</sup> 'Lord,' he said, 'you know everything; you know I love you.'<sup>r</sup> Jesus said, 'Feed my sheep.
- 'And further, I tell you this in very 18 truth: when you were young you fastened your belt about you and walked where you chose; but when you are old you will stretch out your arms, and a stranger will bind you fast, and carry you where you have no wish to go.' He said this to indicate the manner 19 of death by which Peter was to glorify God. Then he added, 'Follow me.'
- Peter looked round, and saw the 20 disciple whom Jesus loved following—the one who at supper had leaned back close to him to ask the question, 'Lord, who is it that will betray you?' When 21 he caught sight of him, Peter asked, 'Lord, what will happen to him?' Jesus said, 'If it should be my will that 22

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses read that you may come to believe . . .

<sup>q</sup> Or more than they do.

<sup>r</sup> Or that I am your friend.

<sup>s</sup> Or are you my friend.

<sup>t</sup> Or that at the third asking he should have said, 'Are you my friend?'

20.30–31: The first conclusion of the Gospel. See 21.1–25 n. 30: Although Jn. is aware of many other signs, he has recounted only seven. 31: The purpose of the Gospel is expressly stated here.

21.1–25: The epilogue. This chapter is sometimes regarded as a later appendix. 2: The sons of Zebedee, prominent in Mt., Mk., Lk., are now mentioned for the first time in Jn.; some scholars think this points to John, the son of Zebedee, as the source of this Gospel's tradition. 7: Note this Gospel's apparent preference for the beloved disciple over Peter. 12: Hesitation or doubt appears in all accounts of the disciples' postresurrection experiences (see Mt.28.17; Lk.24.37–38; Jn.20.25). 15–17: Peter is given a unique task among the disciples (see Mt.16.18; Lk.22.31–32). 20: See 13.23–25. 22: Until I come probably has more than one meaning: see he wait until I come, what is it to you? Follow me.'

23 That saying of Jesus became current in the brotherhood, and was taken to mean that that disciple would not die. But in fact Jesus did not say that he would not die; he only said, 'If it should be my will that he wait until I come, what is it to you?'

24 It is this same disciple who attests what has here been written. It is in fact he who wrote it, and we know that his testimony is true.<sup>u</sup>

25 There is much else that Jesus did. If it were all to be recorded in detail, I suppose the whole world could not hold the books that would be written.

out in the middle they said to him, 4
'Master, this woman was caught in the 5
very act of adultery. In the Law Moses 5 has laid down that such women are to 6 be stoned. What do you say about it?' 6
They put the question as a test, hoping 6 to frame a charge against him. Jesus 7 bent down and wrote with his finger on 7
the ground. When they continued to 7 press their question he sat up straight 7 and said, 'That one of you who is 8
faultless shall throw the first stone.' 8
Then once again he bent down and 8 wrote on the ground. When they heard 9
what he said, one by one they went 9 away,<sup>v</sup> the eldest first; and Jesus was 9 left alone, with the woman still standing 10
there. Jesus again sat up and<sup>w</sup> said to 10
the woman, 'Where are they? Has no 11
one condemned you?' She answered, 11
'No one, sir.' Jesus said, 'Nor do I 11 condemn you. You may go; do not 11 sin again.'

*An incident in the temple**

53* AND THEY WENT EACH TO HIS HOME, 1,2 and Jesus to the Mount of Olives. At 1,2 daybreak he appeared again in the 1,2 temple, and all the people gathered 1,2 round him. He had taken his seat and 1,2 3 was engaged in teaching them when 3
the doctors of the law and the Pha- 3
risees brought in a woman caught 3 committing adultery. Making her stand

<sup>u</sup> Some witnesses here insert the passage printed below.

* This passage, which in the most widely received editions of the New Testament is printed in the text of John, 7. 53–8. 11, has no fixed place in our witnesses. Some of them do not contain it at all. Some place it after Luke 21. 28, others after John 7. 36, or 7. 52, or 21. 24.

<sup>v</sup> Some witnesses insert convicted by their conscience.
<sup>w</sup> Some witnesses insert seeing no one but the woman.

16.16 n. 24: This same disciple refers to the one on whose authority the Gospel of John rests.

7.53–8.11: The woman accused of adultery. 1: The terms Mount of Olives, daybreak (v. 2), the doctors of the law and the Pharisees (v. 3) are expressions more typical of the Synoptics, than of Jn. 5: See Lev.20.10; Deut.22.20–21. 6: The question was a test in that it posed a dilemma for Jesus: whether to show mercy or to advocate the death penalty. What, if anything, Jesus wrote on the ground is unimportant in the story. 11: Do not sin again: see 5.14.

ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

With this book the author of the third Gospel continues his story of the birth of the Christian Church. Acts shows a wide acquaintance with the Hellenistic world, its customs and political organizations; and its good, if not artistic, Greek betrays the hand of a cosmopolitan author, whom tradition has identified as Luke, a physician (Col.4.14; 2 Tim.4.11). Written to show how God continues to fulfill his plan for the salvation of mankind, a plan which our author understands to have begun with Israel, Acts follows the Church from its origin at Pentecost (ch. 2) through the geographical progression which Jesus himself had announced (1.8). Led by God's Spirit, the Church moved from a small Jewish group centered in Jerusalem to a worldwide movement embracing Rome, the capital of the world (ch. 28). This shift from Jewish to Gentile mission was a primary interest of the author, and he details how admission of the first Gentiles (ch. 10) led to a council (ch. 15) whose decision opened Christian fellowship to all men. Following ancient custom, Luke has composed summaries (e.g. 2.42-43; 5.12-16; 9.31-32) and speeches (e.g. 2.14-36; 3.12-26; 5.35-39; 7.2-53; 10.34-43; 15.13-21; 17.22-31; 28.25-28) as a method of informing the reader about the meaning of the events which he narrates. Our author may have had some sources at his disposal (e.g. the "we" sections: 16.10-18; 20.5-15; 21.1-18; 27.1-28.16; collections of local traditions from Palestine and Antioch), but he has worked them so skillfully into his narrative that their reconstruction is very difficult. That his sources were incomplete, however, is indicated by the inexact chronological references throughout the narrative, and by the fact that information contained in Paul's letters seems not to have been available to him. Despite that fact, Acts stands as a mighty witness to the conviction that God is at work within human history to accomplish his saving purpose for mankind.

The beginnings of the church

1 IN THE FIRST PART OF MY WORK, Theophilus, I wrote of all that Jesus
did and taught from the beginning 2 until the day when, after giving instructions through the Holy Spirit to the apostles whom he had chosen, he was 3 taken up to heaven. He showed himself to these men after his death, and gave ample proof that he was alive:
over a period of forty days he appeared to them and taught them about the 4 kingdom of God. While he was in their company he told them not to leave Jerusalem. 'You must wait', he said,
'for the promise made by my Father,
about which you have heard me speak:
5 John, as you know, baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit, and within the next few days.'
6 So, when they were all together, they asked him, 'Lord, is this the time when you are to establish once again the sovereignty of Israel?' He answered, 7

'It is not for you to know about dates or times, which the Father has set within his own control. But you will 8 receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you; and you will bear witness for me in Jerusalem, and all over Judaea and Samaria, and away to
the ends of the earth.'

When he had said this, as they 9 watched, he was lifted up, and a cloud removed him from their sight. As he 10 was going, and as they were gazing intently into the sky, all at once there stood beside them two men in white who said, 'Men of Galilee, why stand 11
there looking up into the sky? This Jesus, who has been taken away from you up to heaven, will come in the same way as you have seen him go.'

Then they returned to Jerusalem 12

1.1-5: Preface. 1: Theophilus (lit. lover of—or loved by—God) was probably a patron who would sponsor the distribution of this book. 2: These instructions are summarized in Lk.24.44-49. 3: Forty days is a general number; see Lk.4.1-2. 4: On the promise concerning baptism, see Lk.3.16; Isa.44.2-5; Ezek.39.28-29; Joel 2.28-29. 5: In Lk.3.16 this saying is attributed to John the Baptist.

1.6-14: Jesus' ascension. 6: All together may imply table-fellowship; compare 10.41. On the problem of when and how the Kingdom comes, see Lk.7.20-23; 19.11; 21.5-36. 7: Dates or times: see 1 Th.5.1. 8: Compare 28.14 n. 12: Sabbath day's journey: the travel permitted Jews, from the hill called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, no farther than a Sabbath day's journey. Entering the city they went to the room upstairs where they were lodging: Peter and John and James and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James son of Alphaeus and Simon the Zealot, and Judas son of James. All these were constantly at prayer together, and with them a group of women, including Mary the mother of Jesus, and his brothers.

It was during this time that Peter stood up before the assembled brotherhood, about one hundred and twenty in all, and said: 'My friends, the prophecy in Scripture was bound to come true, which the Holy Spirit, through the mouth of David, uttered about Judas who acted as guide to those who arrested Jesus. For he was one of our number and had his place in this ministry.' (This Judas, be it noted, after buying a plot of land with the price of his villainy, fell forward on the ground, and burst open, so that his entrails poured out. This became known to everyone in Jerusalem, and they named the property in their own language Akeldama, which means 'Blood Acre'.) 'The text I have in mind', Peter continued, 'is in the Book of Psalms: "Let his homestead fall desolate; let there be none to inhabit it"; and again, "Let another take over his charge." Therefore one of those who bore us company all the while we had the Lord Jesus with us, coming and going, from John's ministry of baptism until the day when he was taken up from us—one of those must now join us as a witness to his resurrection.'

Two names were put forward: Joseph, who was known as Barsabbas, and bore the added name of Justus; and Matthias. Then they prayed and said, 'Thou, Lord, who knowest the hearts of all men, declare which of these two thou hast chosen to receive this office of ministry and apostleship which Judas abandoned to go where he belonged.' They drew lots and the lot fell on Matthias, who was then assigned a place among the twelve apostles.<sup>a</sup>

WHILE THE DAY OF PENTECOST WAS running its course they were all together in one place, when suddenly there came from the sky a noise like that of a strong driving wind, which filled the whole house where they were sitting. And there appeared to them tongues like flames of fire, dispersed among them and resting on each one. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to talk in other tongues, as the Spirit gave them power of utterance.

Now there were living in Jerusalem devout Jews<sup>b</sup> drawn from every nation under heaven; and at this sound the crowd gathered, all bewildered because each one heard his own language spoken. They were amazed and in their astonishment exclaimed, 'Why, they are all Galileans, are they not, these men who are speaking? How is it then that we hear them, each of us in his own native language? Parthians, Medes, Elamites; inhabitants of Mesopotamia, of Judaea and Cappadocia, of Pontus and Asia, of Phrygia and Pamphylia, of Egypt and the districts of Libya around Cyrene; visitors from Rome, both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabs, we hear them telling in our own tongues the great things God has done.' And they were all amazed and about a thousand paces. 13: Room upstairs, or upper room, was a normal meeting place (see 20.8), not necessarily to be identified with the locus of the Last Supper. 14: Jesus' brothers are named in Mk.6.3. Hitherto they had not been his followers; compare Mk.3.21. Group of women: compare Lk.8.1-3; 23.49.

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses read was then appointed a colleague of the eleven apostles.

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read devout men.

1.15-26: Replacement of Judas. 16: Bound to come true: see 2.23 n. 17: One of our number: see Lk.6.12-16. 18: The meaning of fell forward is uncertain; Papias (an early second-century Christian) took it to mean "became swollen." According to Mt.27.5 Judas hanged himself. 20: The text is Pss.69.25; 109.8. 23: Many Jews bore two names, one Jewish (Joseph), the other Latin or Greek (Justus).

2.1-47: Pentecost. 1: Pentecost, fifty days following Passover, was a harvest festival which at this time celebrated the covenant (Lev.23.15-21). 2-3: Wind and fire are meant to be understood symbolically, not literally. 4: It is not clear whether other tongues means languages (vv. 6,8,11) or ecstatic speaking (v. 13.) 9-11: Examples are given illustrating the universality expressed in perplexed, saying to one another, 13 'What can this mean?' Others said contemptuously, 'They have been drinking!'

14 But Peter stood up with the Eleven,
 raised his voice, and addressed them:
 'Fellow Jews, and all you who live in Jerusalem, mark this and give me a 15 hearing. These men are not drunk, as you imagine; for it is only nine in the 16 morning. No, this is what the prophet 17 spoke of: "God says, 'This will happen in the last days: I will pour out upon everyone a portion of my spirit; and your sons and daughters shall prophesy;
 your young men shall see visions,
 and your old men shall dream dreams.
 18 Yes, I will endue even my slaves, both men and women, with a portion of my spirit, and they shall prophesy.
 19 And I will show portents in the sky above, and signs on the earth below—
 blood and fire and drifting smoke.
 20 The sun shall be turned to darkness,
 and the moon to blood, before that great, resplendent day, the day of the 21 Lord, shall come. And then, everyone who invokes the name of the Lord shall be saved.'"

22 'Men of Israel, listen to me: I speak of Jesus of Nazareth, a man singled out by God and made known to you through miracles, portents, and signs, which God worked among you through 23 him, as you well know. When he had been given up to you, by the deliberate
 will and plan of God, you used heathen 24 men to crucify and kill him. But God raised him to life again, setting him free from the pangs of death, because it could not be that death should keep him in its grip.

25 'For David says of him:

"I foresaw that the presence of the Lord would be with me always,
 for he is at my right hand so that I may not be shaken;

therefore my heart was glad and my 26 tongue spoke my joy;
 moreover, my flesh shall dwell in hope,
 for thou wilt not abandon my soul 27
 to death,
 nor let thy loyal servant suffer
 corruption.
 Thou hast shown me the ways of life, 28
 thou wilt fill me with gladness by thy presence."

'Let me tell you plainly, my friends, 29
 that the patriarch David died and was buried, and his tomb is here to this very day. It is clear therefore that he spoke 30
 as a prophet, who knew that God had sworn to him that one of his own direct descendants should sit on his throne;
 and when he said he was not abandoned 31
 to death, and his flesh never suffered corruption, he spoke with foreknowl-edge of the resurrection of the Mes- 32 siah. The Jesus we speak of has been raised by God, as we can all bear wit- 33
 ness. Exalted thus with God's right hand, he received the Holy Spirit from the Father, as was promised, and all that you now see and hear flows from 34 him. For it was not David who went up to heaven; his own words are:
 "The Lord said to my Lord, 'Sit at my right hand until I make your enemies 35
 your footstool.'" Let all Israel then 36 accept as certain that God has made this Jesus, whom you crucified, both Lord and Messiah.'

When they heard this they were cut 37
 to the heart, and said to Peter and the apostles,<sup>d</sup> 'Friends, what are we to do?'
 'Repent,' said Peter, 'repent and be 38
 baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus the Messiah for the forgiveness of your sins; and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For the promise 39 is to you, and to your children, and to

<sup>c</sup> Or at.

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses read the rest of the apostles.

v. 5. 14–36: Peter's sermon. 14: Addressed is the same word as "utterance" (v. 4); the Spirit also empowers Peter's words. 17–21: Joel 2.28–32a. 22: Proof of Jesus' divine mission by miracles is a regular part of Lukan theology; compare 10.38; Lk.4.16–27. 23: Plan of God is a regular motif of Lukan theology; compare Lk.22.22. 25–28: Ps.16.8–11a. 30: The language reflects Ps.132.11. 32: Bear witness: to qualify as an apostle one had to have seen the risen Jesus; see I Cor.9.1; 15.3–8. 36: This verse says nothing about the time at which Jesus became Messiah; for Luke, Jesus was Messiah already during his lifetime, see 10.38; Lk.4.18. 37–41: Response to the sermon. 38: Baptism and reception of the Holy Spirit are usually simultaneous; when all who are far away, everyone whom the Lord our God may call.'

40 In these and many other words he pressed his case and pleaded with them: 'Save yourselves', he said, 'from this 41 crooked age.' Then those who accepted his word were baptized, and some three thousand were added to their number that day.

42 They met constantly to hear the apostles teach, and to share the common life, to break bread, and to pray.

43 A sense of awe was everywhere, and many marvels and signs were brought

44 about through the apostles. All whose faith had drawn them together held

45 everything in common:<sup>e</sup> they would sell their property and possessions and make a general distribution as the need

46 of each required. With one mind they kept up their daily attendance at the temple, and, breaking bread in private

47 houses, shared their meals with unaffected joy, as they praised God and enjoyed the favour of the whole people. And day by day the Lord added to their number those whom he was saving.

3 ONE DAY AT THREE IN THE AFTERNOON, the hour of prayer, Peter and John were on their way up to the temple.

2 Now a man who had been a cripple from birth used to be carried there and laid every day by the gate of the temple called 'Beautiful Gate', to beg

3 from people as they went in. When he saw Peter and John on their way into

4 the temple he asked for charity. But Peter fixed his eyes on him, as John did also, and said, 'Look at us.'

5 Expecting a gift from them, the man

6 was all attention. And Peter said, 'I have no silver or gold; but what I have I give you: in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk.' Then he grasped

7 him by the right hand and pulled him up; and at once his feet and ankles

8 grew strong; he sprang up, stood on his feet, and started to walk. He entered the temple with them, leaping and

9 praising God as he went. Everyone saw him walking and praising God, and when they recognized him as the 10 man who used to sit begging at Beautiful Gate, they were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him.

And as he was clutching Peter and 11 John all the people came running in astonishment towards them in Solomon's Portico, as it is called. Peter saw

12 them coming and met them with these words: 'Men of Israel, why be surprised at this? Why stare at us as if we had made this man walk by some power or godliness of our own? The God of

13 Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our fathers, has given the highest honour to his servant Jesus, whom you committed for trial and repudiated in

14 Pilate's court—repudiated the one who was holy and righteous when Pilate had decided to release him. You begged as a

15 favour the release of a murderer, and killed him who has led the way to life. But God raised him from the dead; of 16 that we are witnesses. And the name of Jesus, by awakening faith, has strengthened this man, whom you see and know, and this faith has made him completely well, as you can all see for yourselves.

<sup>e</sup> Or All who had become believers held everything together in common.

they are not, it is due to special reasons; see 8.16–17; 10.47; 19.1–6. 42–47: Summary of early Christian life. 42: Break bread refers to common meals which included the Eucharist. 44–45: It was a usual practice in religious communities, including Qumran, to hold everything in common. Such common ownership (Gk., koina) was an expression of community (Gk., koinonia).

3.1–4.31: Apostolic activity and Jewish persecution.

3.1–10: Peter heals a cripple. 1: Herod's temple, an entire complex of courtyards and buildings, was still under construction. 2: The exact location of the Beautiful Gate is unknown. 6: Typically for Acts, the name of Jesus Christ implies acting in his full power and authority; see 4.10, 18, 30. 8: Jesus' word in Mt. 10.8 begins to receive its fulfillment.

3.11–26: Peter's second sermon. 11: Solomon's Portico was a colonnade on the east side of the great court of the Temple, the "Court of the Gentiles." 13: Servant as a title for Jesus is taken from Isa. 52.13–53.11, and is used only three other times in the NT, all in Acts (v. 26; 4.27, 30). The God of Abraham: see Exod. 3.6, 15. The reference shows that the church is the continuation of Israel. 14: On Pilate's decision, see Lk. 23.4a, 13–25. 15: Witnesses to resurrec-

17 'And now, my friends, I know quite well that you acted in ignorance, and so 18 did your rulers; but this is how God fulfilled what he had foretold in the utterances of all the prophets: that his 19 Messiah should suffer. Repent then and turn to God, so that your sins may be wiped out. Then the Lord may grant 20 you a time of recovery and send you the Messiah he has already appointed, that 21 is, Jesus. He must be received into heaven until the time of universal restoration comes, of which God spoke by 22 his holy prophets.<sup>f</sup> Moses said, "The Lord God will raise up a prophet for you from among yourselves as he
 23 raised me;<sup>g</sup> you shall listen to everything he says to you, and anyone who refuses to listen to that prophet must 24 be extirpated from Israel." And so said all the prophets, from Samuel onwards; with one voice they all predicted this present time.
 25 'You are the heirs of the prophets; you are within the covenant which God made with your fathers, when he said to Abraham, "And in your offspring all the families on earth shall find blessing."
 26 When God raised up his Servant, he sent him to you first, to bring you blessing by turning every one of you from your wicked ways.'
 4 They were still addressing the people when the chief<sup>h</sup> priests came upon them, together with the Controller of the Temple and the Sadducees, exasperated at their teaching the people and proclaiming the resurrection from the dead—the resurrection of Jesus. They were arrested and put in prison for the 4 night, as it was already evening. But many of those who had heard the message became believers. The number of men now reached about five thousand.
 5 Next day the Jewish rulers, elders, and doctors of the law met in Jerusalem. There were present Annas the 6 High Priest, Caiaphas, Jonathan,<sup>i</sup> Alexander, and all who were of the high-priestly family. They brought the 7 apostles before the court and began the examination. 'By what power', they asked, 'or by what name have such 8 men as you done this?' Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, answered, 'Rulers of the people and elders, if the 9 question put to us today is about help given to a sick man, and we are asked by what means he was cured, here is 10 the answer, for all of you and for all the people of Israel: it was by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom you crucified, whom God raised from the 11 dead; it is by his name<sup>j</sup> that this man stands here before you fit and well. This Jesus is the stone rejected by the 12 builders which has become the keystone—and you are the builders. There is no salvation in anyone else

 13 at all,<sup>k</sup> for there is no other name under heaven granted to men, by which we may receive salvation.'

Now as they observed the boldness
 13 of Peter and John, and noted that they were untrained laymen, they began to wonder, then recognized them as former companions of Jesus. And when 14 they saw the man who had been cured standing with them, they had nothing to say in reply. So they ordered them
 15 to leave the court, and then discussed the matter among themselves. 'What 16 are we to do with these men?' they said; 'for it is common knowledge in Jerusalem that a notable miracle has come about through them; and we

<sup>f</sup> Some witnesses add from the beginning of the world.

<sup>g</sup> Or like me.

<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses omit chief.

<sup>i</sup> Some witnesses read John.

<sup>j</sup> Some witnesses insert and no other.

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses omit There is no . . . at all.

tion: see 2.32 n. 17: You acted in ignorance: compare Lk.23.34. 18: See 2.23 n. 20: Send you the Messiah: Peter implies Jesus will return when the Jews turn to Jesus; compare Rom.11.25–31. 22: Compare Deut.18.15–19; Lev.23.29. 25: Compare Gen.22.18. Offspring here refers to Jesus, as in Gal.3.16. 26: That the Jews were the first to whom God sent his Son is a common theme in Acts; see Mk.7.27; Rom.1.16; 2.9.

4.1–31: Peter and John arrested, then freed. 1: The Controller of the Temple headed the Levitical guard which kept order in the Temple precincts. Sadducees: See Mt.3.7 n. 2: See 23.6–8; Lk.20.27. 5–22: Hearing before Jewish authorities. 5: Members of these groups constituted the Sanhedrin, the ruling council of the Jews. 6: The office of High Priest was no longer of lifetime tenure; because of its political prestige, it was granted and removed by Rome. The author may mean Annas (Lk.3.2 n.) or Ananias (23.2 n.). Neither was in office at this time, although the former still had great influence. 7: See 12.11–12. 11: Ps.118.22; compare 1 Pet.2.7–8.

17 cannot deny it. But to stop this from spreading further among the people, we had better caution them never again to speak to anyone in this name.' They then called them in and ordered them to refrain from all public speaking and teaching in the name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John said to them in reply: 'Is it right in God's eyes for us to obey you rather than God? Judge for yourselves. We cannot possibly give up speaking of things we have seen and heard.'

21 The court repeated the caution and discharged them. They could not see how they were to punish them, because the people were all giving glory to God for what had happened. The man upon whom this miracle of healing had been performed was over forty years old.

23 As soon as they were discharged they went back to their friends and told them everything that the chief priests and elders had said. When they heard it, they raised their voices as one man and called upon God:

25 'Sovereign Lord, maker of heaven and earth and sea and of everything in them, who by the Holy Spirit,<sup>1</sup> through the mouth of David thy servant, didst say,

26 "Why did the Gentiles rage and the peoples lay their plots in vain? The kings of the earth took their stand and the rulers made common cause against the Lord and against his Messiah."

27 They did indeed make common cause in this very city against thy holy servant Jesus whom thou didst anoint as Messiah. Herod and Pontius Pilate conspired with the Gentiles and peoples of Israel to do all the things which, under thy hand and by thy decree, were foreordained. And now, O Lord, mark their threats, and enable thy servants to speak thy word with all boldness. Stretch out thy hand to heal and cause signs and wonders to be done through the name of thy holy servant Jesus.'

31 When they had ended their prayer, the building where they were assembled rocked, and all were filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke the word of God with boldness.

32 THE WHOLE BODY OF BELIEVERS WAS united in heart and soul. Not a man of them claimed any of his possessions as his own, but everything was held in common, while the apostles bore witness with great power to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. They were all held in high esteem; for they had never a needy person among them, because all who had property in land or houses sold it, brought the proceeds of the sale, and laid the money at the feet of the apostles; it was then distributed to any who stood in need.

36 For instance, Joseph, surnamed by the apostles Barnabas (which means 'Son of Exhortation'), a Levite, by birth a Cypriot, owned an estate, which he sold; he brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

5 But there was another man, called Ananias, with his wife Sapphira, who sold a property. With the full knowledge of his wife he kept back part of the purchase-money, and part he brought and laid at the apostles' feet. But Peter said, 'Ananias, how was it that Satan so possessed your mind that you lied to the Holy Spirit, and kept back part of the price of the land? While it remained, did it not remain yours? When it was turned into money, was it not still at your own disposal?'

<sup>1</sup> Some witnesses omit by the Holy Spirit.

23-31: Return of Peter and John. 24: Sovereign Lord (Gk., despota), used also in Lk.2.29, is a Hellenistic prayer formula. 25: Compare Ps.2.1-2. 27: Herod Antipas: see Mk.6.14 n. Herod and Pontius Pilate: see Lk.23.6-12. 30: Cause signs and wonders: the further narrative of Acts shows the author felt this prayer was granted. 31: See 2.1-4.

4.32-5.12: Communal life. 32-37: All property was held in common. 32: See 2.44-45 n. 34: As 5.4 makes clear, such disposal of personal property was not mandatory, but was done at the prompting of the Spirit. 36: Joseph . . . Barnabas: see 11.22-26; 13.2-3.

5.1-12: Ananias and Sapphira. This story is intended to show the powerful and immediate presence of the Spirit with the early church, represented in the person of the apostles: compare vv. 15-16. 4: See 4.34. 5: The sin is that they lied, rather than any refusal to turn property over

What made you think of doing this thing? You have lied not to men but to 5 God.' When Ananias heard these words he dropped dead; and all the others 6 who heard were awestruck. The younger men rose and covered his body, then carried him out and buried him.
 7 About three hours passed, and then his wife came in, unaware of what had 8 happened. Peter turned to her and said, 'Tell me, were you paid such and such a price for the land?' 'Yes,' she 9 said, 'that was the price.' Then Peter said, 'Why did you both conspire to put the Spirit of the Lord to the test?
 Hark! there at the door are the footsteps of those who buried your husband; and they will carry you away.' 10 And suddenly she dropped dead at his feet. When the young men came in, they found her dead; and they carried her out and buried her beside her husband.
 11 And a great awe fell upon the whole church, and upon all who heard of 12 these events; and many remarkable and wonderful things took place among the people at the hands of the apostles.

THEY USED TO MEET BY COMMON
 13 consent in Solomon's Portico, no one from outside their number venturing to join with them. But people in general 14 spoke highly of them,<sup>m</sup> and more than that, numbers of men and women were added to their ranks as believers in the 15 Lord.<sup>n</sup> In the end the sick were actually carried out into the streets and laid there on beds and stretchers, so that even the shadow of Peter might fall on 16 one or another as he passed by; and the people from the towns round Jerusalem flocked in, bringing those who were ill or harassed by unclean spirits,
 and all of them were cured.
 17 Then the High Priest and his colleagues, the Sadducean party as it then was, were goaded into action by jea-18 lously. They proceeded to arrest the apostles, and put them in official custody. But an angel of the Lord 19 opened the prison doors during the night, brought them out, and said, 'Go, 20

 take your place in the temple and speak to the people, and tell them about this new life and all it means.' Accordingly 21
 they entered the temple at daybreak
 and went on with their teaching.

When the High Priest arrived with his colleagues they summoned the 'Sanhedrin', that is, the full senate of the Israelite nation, and sent to the jail to fetch the prisoners. But the 22 police who went to the prison failed to find them there, so they returned and reported, 'We found the jail secure- 23
 ly locked at every point, with the warders at their posts by the doors,
 but when we opened them we found no one inside.' When they heard this, the 24 Controller of the Temple and the chief priests were wondering what could have become of them,<sup>o</sup> and then a man 25 arrived with the report, 'Look! the men you put in prison are there in the temple teaching the people.' At that 26
 the Controller went off with the police and fetched them, but without using force for fear of being stoned by the people.

So they brought them and stood 27
 them before the Council; and the High Priest began his examination. 'We 28 expressly ordered you', he said, 'to desist from teaching in that name; and what has happened? You have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and you are trying to make us responsible for that man's death.' Peter replied for 29 himself and the apostles: 'We must obey God rather than men. The God 30 of our fathers raised up Jesus whom you had done to death<sup>p</sup> by hanging him on a gibbet. He it is whom God has 31 exalted with his own right hand<sup>q</sup> as <sup>m</sup> Or ... Portico. Although others did not venture to join them, the common people spoke highly of them.
<sup>n</sup> Or and an ever-increasing number of believers, both men and women, were added to the Lord.
<sup>o</sup> Or wondering about them, what this could possibly mean.
<sup>p</sup> Or ... Jesus, and you did him to death ...
<sup>q</sup> Or at his right hand.

to the apostles. 12: Along with vv. 15-16, this shows that the prayer in 4.30 was answered.
 13: Solomon's Portico: see 3.11 n.

5.13-42: Further Jewish persecution. 17: Despite such opposition by Jewish authorities, especially the priestly party, the masses of Jews remained sympathetic; see vv. 14, 26. 19: Angel: compare 12.6-10. 27-32: Peter before the Sanhedrin. 29: What Peter says is a summary of the whole apostolic tradition. 30: Hanging on a gibbet (regarded as equivalent to crucifixion):

leader and saviour, to grant Israel repentance and forgiveness of sins.

32 And we are witnesses to all this, and so is the Holy Spirit given by God to those who are obedient to him.<sup>r</sup>

33 This touched them on the raw, and they wanted to put them to death. But a member of the Council rose to his feet, a Pharisee called Gamaliel, a teacher of the law held in high regard by all the people. He moved that the men be put outside for a while. Then he said, 'Men of Israel, be cautious in deciding what to do with these men. Some time ago Theudas came forward, claiming to be somebody, and a number of men, about four hundred, joined him. But he was killed and his whole following was broken up and disappeared. After him came Judas the Galilean at the time of the census; he induced some people to revolt under his leadership, but he too perished and his whole following was scattered. And so now: keep clear of these men, I tell you; leave them alone. For if this idea of theirs or its execution is of human origin, it will collapse; but if it is from God, you will never be able to put them down, and you risk finding yourselves at war with God.'

40 They took his advice. They sent for the apostles and had them flogged; then they ordered them to give up speaking in the name of Jesus, and discharged them. So the apostles went out from the Council rejoicing that they had been found worthy to suffer indignity for the sake of the Name. And every day they went steadily on with their teaching in the temple and in private houses, telling the good news of Jesus the Messiah.<sup>r</sup>

The church moves outwards

DURING THIS PERIOD, WHEN DISCIPLES 6 were growing in number, there was disagreement between those of them who spoke Greek<sup>s</sup> and those who spoke the language of the Jews.<sup>t</sup> The former party complained that their widows were being overlooked in the daily distribution. So the Twelve called the whole 2 body of disciples together and said, 'It would be a grave mistake for us to neglect the word of God in order to wait at table. Therefore, friends, look 3 out seven men of good reputation from your number, men full of the Spirit and of wisdom, and we will appoint them to deal with these matters, while we devote 4 ourselves to prayer and to the ministry of the Word.' This proposal proved 5 acceptable to the whole body. They elected Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit, Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolas of Antioch, a former convert to Judaism. These they presented to the 6 apostles, who prayed and laid their hands on them.

The word of God now spread more 7 and more widely; the number of disciples in Jerusalem went on increasing rapidly, and very many of the priests adhered to the Faith.

Stephen, who was full of grace and 8 power, began to work great miracles and signs among the people. But some 9 members of the synagogue called the Synagogue of Freedmen, comprising Cyrenians and Alexandrians and people from Cilicia and Asia, came forward

<sup>r</sup> Or the good news that the Messiah was Jesus.

<sup>s</sup> Literally the Hellenists.

<sup>t</sup> Literally the Hebrews.

compare Deut.21.22-23; Gal.3.13. 33-39: Gamaliel's advice. 33: There is some question as to whether the Romans permitted the Jews to exercise such punishment at that time; see Jn.18.31. 34: As a Pharisee (see Mt.23.7 n.), Gamaliel (see 22.3 n.) belonged to a movement which opposed both the theology and politics of the Sadducees. 36-37: Theudas's rebellion occurred some years after Gamaliel is reported to have made this speech, and long after Judas led his uprising about 6 A.D. 40: Flogged: see Deut.25.1-3. Rabbinic law sets thirty-nine lashes as the maximum (see 2 Cor.11.24), although sentences of fewer were usual. 41: Compare Lk.6.22; 9.23; 1 Pet.4.14-18.

6.1-7.60: The Hellenists and Stephen.

6.1-7: Choosing the Seven. 1: Luke uses the word disciples as equivalent to Christians. Widows: see 1 Tim.5.3 n., 9 n. 3: Your number is addressed to the Hellenists, not all believers. 6: It is evident from the following verses that they were ordained as evangelists, rather than table overseers; compare 21.8. Paul and Barnabas were set apart for mission in the same way (13.3). This passage has nothing to do with the later "deaconate" as a church order.

6.8-15: Stephen is brought before the council. 8: By performing miracles and signs, Stephen functioned as an evangelist, rather than as a table waiter; see v. 2; see also 2.43; 14.3. 11: Jesus

10 and argued with Stephen, but could not hold their own against the inspired 11 wisdom with which he spoke. They then put up men who alleged that they had heard him make blasphemous statements against Moses and against 12 God. They stirred up the people and the elders and doctors of the law, set upon him and seized him, and brought 13 him before the Council. They produced false witnesses who said, 'This man is for ever saying things against this holy 14 place and against the Law. For we have heard him say that Jesus of Nazareth will destroy this place and alter the customs handed down to us by Moses.'
 15 And all who were sitting in the Council fixed their eyes on him, and his face appeared to them like the face of an angel.

7 Then the High Priest asked, 'Is this
 2 so?' And he said, 'My brothers, fathers of this nation, listen to me. The God of glory appeared to Abraham our ancestor while he was in Mesopotamia,
 3 before he had settled in Harran, and said: "Leave your country and your kinsfolk and come away to a land that
 4 I will show you." Thereupon he left the land of the Chaldaeans and settled in Harran. From there, after his father's death, God led him to migrate to this
 5 land where you now live. He gave him nothing in it to call his own, not one yard; but promised to give it in possession to him and his descendants after him, though he was then childless.
 6 God spoke in these terms: "Abraham's descendants shall live as aliens in a foreign land, held in slavery and oppression for four hundred years.
 7 And I will pass judgement", said God, "on the nation whose slaves they are; and after that they shall come out free, 8 and worship me in this place." He then gave him the covenant of circumcision, and so, after Isaac was born, he circumcised him on the eighth day; and

Isaac begot Jacob, and Jacob the twelve patriarchs.

'The patriarchs out of jealousy sold 9 Joseph into slavery in Egypt, but God was with him and rescued him from all his troubles. He also gave him a presence and powers of mind which so commended him to Pharaoh king of Egypt, that he appointed him chief administrator for Egypt and the whole of the royal household.

'But famine struck all Egypt and 11 Canaan, and caused great hardship; and our ancestors could find nothing to eat. But Jacob heard that there was food in Egypt and sent our fathers there. This was their first visit. On the 13 second visit Joseph was recognized by his brothers, and his family connections were disclosed to Pharaoh. So 14 Joseph sent an invitation to his father Jacob and all his relatives, seventy-five persons altogether; and Jacob went 15 down into Egypt. There he ended his days, as also our forefathers did. Their 16 remains were later removed to Shechem and buried in the tomb which Abraham had bought and paid for from the clan of Emmor at Shechem.

'Now as the time approached for 17 God to fulfil the promise he had made to Abraham, our nation in Egypt grew and increased in numbers. At length 18 another king, who knew nothing of Joseph, ascended the throne of Egypt. He made a crafty attack on our race, 19 and cruelly forced our ancestors to expose their children so that they should not survive. At this time Moses 20 was born. He was a fine child, and pleasing to God. For three months he was nursed in his father's house, and when he was exposed, Pharaoh's 21 daughter herself adopted him and brought him up as her own son. So 22 Moses was trained in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, a powerful speaker and a man of action.

also was charged with blasphemy; see Mk.14.64. 12: The people here oppose Stephen; compare 5.26. 14: Destroy this place: see Mt.24.1-3 n. A similar charge of trying to alter the customs was leveled against Paul (21.21).

7.1-53: Stephen's speech. 3: Gen.12.1. 5: See Gen.12.7; 17.8; for other discussions of Abraham, see Rom. ch. 4; Gal. ch. 3, 6: Four hundred years: Gen.15.13; but according to Exod. 12.40, it was 430 years. 14: Seventy-five persons are reported in Gen.46.27 Sept. 16: This is at variance with the OT, according to which Abraham bought the cave of Machpelah (Gen.23) at Hebron. The purchase from Emmor (Hamor) was made by Jacob (Gen.33.19) and provided Joseph's burial place at Shechem (Josh.24.32). 22: Powerful speaker: the opposite is reported in 23 'He was approaching the age of forty, when it occurred to him to look into the conditions of his fellow-countrymen the Israelites. He saw one of them being ill-treated, so he went to his aid, and avenged the victim by striking down the Egyptian. He thought his fellow-countrymen would understand that God was offering them deliverance through him, but they did not understand. The next day he came upon two of them fighting, and tried to bring them to make up their quarrel. "My men," he said, "you are brothers; why are you ill-treating one another?" But the man who was at fault pushed him away. "Who set you up as a ruler and judge over us?" he said. "Are you going to kill me as you killed the Egyptian yesterday?" At this Moses fled the country and settled in Midianite territory. There two sons were born to him.

30 'After forty years had passed, an angel appeared to him in the flame of a burning bush in the desert near Mount Sinai. Moses was amazed at the sight. But as he approached to look closely, the voice of the Lord was heard: "I am the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob." Moses was terrified and dared not look. Then the Lord said to him, "Take off your shoes; the place where you are standing is holy ground. I have indeed seen how my people are oppressed in Egypt and have heard their groans; and I have come down to rescue them. Up, then; let me send you to Egypt."

35 'This Moses, whom they had rejected with the words, "Who made you ruler and judge?"—this very man was commissioned as ruler and liberator by God himself, speaking through the angel who appeared to him in the bush.

36 It was Moses who led them out, working miracles and signs in Egypt, at the Red Sea, and for forty years in the desert. It was he again who said to the Israelites, "God will raise up a prophet for you from among yourselves as he raised me."<sup>u</sup> He it was who, when they were assembled there in the desert, conversed with the angel who spoke to him on Mount Sinai, and with our forefathers; he received the living utterances of God, to pass on to us.

39 'But our forefathers would not accept his leadership. They thrust him aside. They wished themselves back in Egypt, and said to Aaron, "Make us gods to go before us. As for that Moses, who brought us out of Egypt, we do not know what has become of him." That was when they made the bull-calf, and offered sacrifice to the idol, and held a feast in honour of the thing their hands had made. But God turned away from them and gave them over to the worship of the host of heaven, as it stands written in the book of the prophets: "Did you bring me victims and offerings those forty years in the desert, you house of Israel? No, you carried aloft the shrine of Moloch and the star of the god Rephan, the images which you had made for your adoration. I will banish you beyond Babylon."

44 'Our forefathers had the Tent of the Testimony in the desert, as God commanded when he told Moses to make it after the pattern which he had seen. Our fathers of the next generation, with Joshua, brought it with them when they dispossessed the nations whom God drove out before them, and there it was until the time of David. David found favour with God and asked to be allowed to provide a dwelling-place for the God of Jacob;<sup>v</sup> but it was Solomon who built him a house. However, the Most High does not live in houses made by men: as the prophet says, "Heaven is my throne and earth my footstool. What kind of house will you build for me, says the Lord; where is my resting-place? Are not all these 50 things of my own making?"

51 'How stubborn you are, heathen still

<sup>u</sup> Or like me.

<sup>v</sup> Some witnesses read for the house of Jacob.

Exod.4.10. In accordance with Hellenistic-Jewish practice, Moses is described in terms of the Hellenistic "divine man"; see 14.11 n.; 28.6 n. 23: Later Jewish tradition divided Moses' life into three periods of forty years each. 32: Exod.3.6. 33: Exod.3.5. 34: Exod.3.7. 37: Deut.18.15. 40: Exod.32.1-6. 42: See Amos 5.25-27. 48: For Stephen, building the Temple dishonored God. 49: Isa.66.1-2; compare 1 Kgs.8.29. 51: For a similar attack, see Jesus' words in Mt.23.13-36.

at heart and deaf to the truth! You always fight against the Holy Spirit. Like fathers, like sons. Was there ever a prophet whom your fathers did not persecute? They killed those who foretold the coming of the Righteous One; and now you have betrayed him and murdered him, you who received the Law as God's angels gave it to you, and yet have not kept it.'

This touched them on the raw and they ground their teeth with fury. But Stephen, filled with the Holy Spirit, and gazing intently up to heaven, saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at God's right hand. 'Look,' he said, 'there is a rift in the sky; I can see the Son of Man standing at God's right hand!' At this they gave a great shout and stopped their ears. Then they made one rush at him and, flinging him out of the city, set about stoning him. The witnesses laid their coats at the feet of a young man named Saul. So they stoned Stephen, and as they did so, he called out, 'Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.' Then he fell on his knees and cried aloud, 'Lord, do not hold this sin against them', and with that he died.

8 And Saul was among those who approved of his murder.

THIS WAS THE BEGINNING OF A TIME OF violent persecution for the church in Jerusalem; and all except the apostles were scattered over the country districts of Judaea and Samaria. Stephen was given burial by certain devout men, who made a great lamentation for him. Saul, meanwhile, was harrying the church; he entered house after house, seizing men and women, and sending them to prison.

As for those who had been scattered, they went through the country preaching the Word. Philip came down to a city in Samaria and began proclaiming the Messiah to them. The crowds, to a man, listened eagerly to what Philip said, when they heard him and saw the miracles that he performed. For in many cases of possession the unclean spirits came out with a loud cry; and many paralysed and crippled folk were cured; and there was great joy in that city.

A man named Simon had been in the city for some time, and had swept the Samaritans off their feet with his magical arts, claiming to be someone great. All of them, high and low, listened eagerly to him. 'This man', they said, 'is that power of God which is called "The Great Power".' They listened because they had for so long been carried away by his magic. But when they came to believe Philip with his good news about the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, men and women alike. Even Simon himself believed, and was baptized, and thereupon was constantly in Philip's company. He was carried away when he saw the powerful signs and miracles that were taking place.

The apostles in Jerusalem now heard that Samaria had accepted the word of God. They sent off Peter and John, who went down there and prayed for the converts, asking that they might receive the Holy Spirit. For until then the Spirit had not come upon any of 53: The Law as God's angels gave it to you: contrast Gal.3.19, where the intention seems to be to reduce the Law's importance.

7.54-60: The stoning of Stephen. 56: Son of Man: see Lk.12.8 n.; 22.69; Mk.2.10 n. 58: Saul (Paul) appears here for the first time in the Acts account. Stoning was the punishment for blasphemy; see Lev.24.10-16. 59: Receive my spirit: compare Lk.23.46. 60: Do not hold this sin: compare Lk.23.34. The account here seems intended to stress the similarity of Stephen's death to that of Jesus'.

8.1-40: The mission spreads beyond Jerusalem. 1: The violent persecution was apparently directed only against the Hellenistic Jews who shared Stephen's views. 3: See 9.1,21; 22.4; 26.10-11; 1 Cor.15.9; Gal.1.13,23; Phil.3.6. 5: Samaria is the area of the former Northern Kingdom of Israel, settled by non-Jews when it fell to Assyria (see 2 Kgs.17.24-41). 6: Like Stephen, Philip, one of the Seven, performed miracles and preached, thus doing the apostolic work; compare 4.30; 6.8 n. 8: Great joy: the Samaritans had a lively expectation of the coming of a redeemer; compare Jn.4.25. 9-24: Simon the magician. 9: His magical arts put Simon in competition with the wonder-working disciples of Jesus; compare Mk.13.22. Such competition was common, and recognized as valid, in the Hellenistic world. 15: Acts pictures Jerusalem as the continuing center of the church, overseeing all its operations. 16: Spirit had not yet come:

them. They had been baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus, that and nothing more. So Peter and John laid their hands on them and they received the Holy Spirit.

18 When Simon saw that the Spirit was bestowed through the laying on of the apostles' hands, he offered them money and said, 'Give me the same power too, so that when I lay my hands on anyone, he will receive the Holy Spirit.' Peter replied, 'Your money go with you to damnation, because you thought God's gift was for sale! You have no part nor lot in this, for you are dishonest with God. Repent of this wickedness and pray the Lord to forgive you for imagining such a thing. I can see that you are doomed to taste the bitter fruit and wear the fetters of sin.'<sup>w</sup> Simon answered, 'Pray to the Lord for me yourselves and ask that none of the things you have spoken of may fall upon me.'

25 So, after giving their testimony and speaking the word of the Lord, they took the road back to Jerusalem, bringing the good news to many Samaritan villages on the way.

26 Then the angel of the Lord said to Philip, 'Start out and go south to the road that leads down from Jerusalem to Gaza.' (This is the desert road.) So he set out and was on his way when he caught sight of an Ethiopian. This man was a eunuch, a high official of the Kandake, or Queen, of Ethiopia, in charge of all her treasure. He had been to Jerusalem on a pilgrimage and was now on his way home, sitting in his carriage and reading aloud the prophet Isaiah. The Spirit said to Philip, 'Go and join the carriage.' When Philip ran up he heard him reading the prophet Isaiah and said, 'Do you understand what you are reading?' He said, 'How can I understand unless someone will give me the clue?' So he asked Philip to get in and sit beside him.

The passage he was reading was this: 32 'He was led like a sheep to be slaughtered; and like a lamb that is dumb before the shearer, he does not open his mouth. He has been humiliated and has no redress. Who will be able to speak of his posterity? For he is cut off from the world of living men.'

'Now', said the eunuch to Philip, 34 'tell me, please, who it is that the prophet is speaking about here: himself or someone else?' Then Philip began. 35 Starting from this passage, he told him the good news of Jesus. As they were going along the road, they came to some water. 'Look,' said the eunuch, 'here is water: what is there to prevent my being baptized?';<sup>x</sup> and he ordered 38 the carriage to stop. Then they both went down into the water, Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. When they came up out of the water 39 the Spirit snatched Philip away, and the eunuch saw no more of him, but went happily on his way. Philip appeared at Azotus, and toured the country, preaching in all the towns till he reached Caesarea.

MEANWHILE SAUL WAS STILL BREATHING 9 murderous threats against the disciples of the Lord. He went to the High Priest and applied for letters to the synagogues at Damascus authorizing him to arrest anyone he found, men or women, who followed the new way, and bring them to Jerusalem. While he was still on the road and nearing Damascus, suddenly a light flashed from the sky all around him. He fell 4 to the ground and heard a voice saying, 'Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?'

<sup>w</sup> Literally you are for gall of bitterness and a fetter of unrighteousness.

<sup>x</sup> Some witnesses insert (37) Philip said, 'If you wholeheartedly believe, it is permitted.' He replied, 'I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.'

see 2.38 n. 17: Received the Holy Spirit: compare 10.44 n. 26–40: Philip and the Ethiopian eunuch. 27: In ancient times, Ethiopia, peopled by the Nubians, centered in what is now the Sudan; compare Ps.68.31. Eunuch: compare Isa.56.3–5. 28: Reading aloud was the common practice, even when reading alone. 32: Isa.53.7–8. Isa. ch. 53 was a key passage in the earliest Christian proclamation (compare Mt.8.17; Jn.12.38; 1 Pet.2.22–25). 38: They both went down into the water: baptism of adults was by immersion, as Rom.6.3–4 ('By baptism we were buried with him...') indicates.

9.1–30: Saul converted. 1: For other accounts of this conversion, see chs. 22; 26. 3: There is no hint in Acts that Paul at this time suffered inner turmoil; Phil.3.6 indicates he felt no guilt while pursuing the law. 4: Persecute me: Jesus identifies himself with the Church Paul is

5 'Tell me, Lord,' he said, 'who you are.'
 6 The voice answered, 'I am Jesus, whom
 7 you are persecuting. But get up and go 8 into the city, and you will be told what 9 you have to do.' Meanwhile the men
 10 who were travelling with him stood 11 speechless; they heard the voice but 12 could see no one. Saul got up from the 13 ground, but when he opened his eyes
 14 he could not see; so they led him by the 15 hand and brought him into Damascus.
 16 He was blind for three days, and took 17 no food or drink.
 18 There was a disciple in Damascus
 19 named Ananias. He had a vision in 20 which he heard the voice of the Lord:
 21 'Ananias!' 'Here I am, Lord', he 22 answered. The Lord said to him, 'Go at 23 once to Straight Street, to the house of 24 Judas, and ask for a man from Tarsus 25 named Saul. You will find him at 26 prayer; he has had a vision of a man
 27 named Ananias coming in and laying 28 his hands on him to restore his sight.'
 29 Ananias answered, 'Lord, I have often 30 heard about this man and all the harm
 31 he has done to thy people in Jeru-
 32 salem. And he is here with authority 33 from the chief priests to arrest all who 34 invoke thy name.' But the Lord said to 35 him, 'You must go, for this man is my 36 chosen instrument to bring my name
 37 before the nations and their kings, and 38 before the people of Israel. I myself will 39 show him all that he must go through 40 for my name's sake.'
 41 So Ananias went. He entered the 42 house, laid his hands on him and said, 43 'Saul, my brother, the Lord Jesus, who 44 appeared to you on your way here, has 45 sent me to you so that you may recover
 46 your sight, and be filled with the Holy 47 Spirit.' And immediately it seemed that 48 scales fell from his eyes, and he re-49 gained his sight. Thereupon he was 50 baptized, and afterwards he took food
 51 and his strength returned.

He stayed some time with the dis-

5 ciples in Damascus. Soon he was pro- 20
 6 claiming Jesus publicly in the syna-
 7 gogues: 'This', he said, is the Son of 21
 8 God.' All who heard were astounded.
 9 'Is not this the man', they said, 'who 10 was in Jerusalem trying to destroy 11 those who invoke this name? Did he 12 not come here for the sole purpose of 13 arresting them and taking them to the 14 chief priests?' But Saul grew more and 22
 15 more forceful, and silenced the Jews
 16 of Damascus with his cogent proofs
 17 that Jesus was the Messiah.

18 As the days mounted up, the Jews 23
 19 hatched a plot against his life; but 24
 20 their plans became known to Saul.
 21 They kept watch on the city gates day
 22 and night so that they might murder
 23 him; but his converts took him one 25
 24 night and let him down by the wall,
 25 lowering him in a basket.

26 When he reached Jerusalem he tried 26
 27 to join the body of disciples there; but 28 they were all afraid of him, because 29 they did not believe that he was really
 30 a convert. Barnabas, however, took him 27 31 by the hand and introduced him to the 32 apostles. He described to them how 33 Saul had seen the Lord on his journey, 34 and heard his voice, and how he had 35 spoken out boldly in the name of 36 Jesus at Damascus. Saul now stayed 28 37 with them, moving about freely in 38 Jerusalem. He spoke out boldly and 29
 39 openly in the name of the Lord, talking 40 and debating with the Greek-speaking
 41 Jews.<sup>y</sup> But they planned to murder 30 42 him, and when the brethren learned of 43 this they escorted him to Caesarea and 44 saw him off to Tarsus.

45 MEANWHILE THE CHURCH, THROUGHOUT 31
 46 Judaea, Galilee, and Samaria, was left 47 in peace to build up its strength. In 48 the fear of the Lord, upheld by the Holy 49 Spirit, it held on its way and grew in 50 numbers.

<sup>y</sup> Literally the Hellenists.

tormenting; compare Lk.10.16. 7: The details of who heard and who saw are reversed in 22.9.
 12: Mutually confirming visions or dreams also appear in Hellenistic religious literature.
 15: The people of Israel: Acts reports that Paul regularly preached to the Jews (13.15; 14.1; 17.1-2); his own letters give a different impression (Gal.1.16; 2.8). 17: Compare 22.12-16.
 20: At this point, the account in Acts begins to diverge significantly from Paul's account of these events in Gal.1.13-2.10. 23-25: Plot against Saul. 23: With a plot against his life, the prediction in v. 16 begins its fulfillment. 25: Compare 2 Cor.11.32-33. 26-30: Saul in Jerusalem.
 27: Paul gives a different account of these events in Gal.1.16-20.

9.31-43: Peter performs two miracles. Mighty deeds were understood to accredit authorita-

32 Peter was making a general tour, in the course of which he went down to visit God's people at Lydda. There he found a man named Aeneas who had been bed-ridden with paralysis for eight years. Peter said to him, 'Aeneas, Jesus Christ cures you; get up and make your bed', and immediately he stood up. All who lived in Lydda and Sharon saw him; and they turned to the Lord.

36 In Joppa there was a disciple named Tabitha (in Greek, Dorcas, meaning a gazelle), who filled her days with acts of kindness and charity. At that time she fell ill and died; and they washed her body and laid it in a room upstairs. As Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples, who had heard that Peter was there, sent two men to him with the urgent request, 'Please come over to us without delay.' Peter thereupon went off with them. When he arrived they took him upstairs to the room, where all the widows came and stood round him in tears, showing him the shirts and coats that Dorcas used to make while she was with them. Peter sent them all outside, and knelt down and prayed. Then, turning towards the body, he said, 'Get up, Tabitha.' She opened her eyes, saw Peter, and sat up. He gave her his hand and helped her to her feet. Then he called the members of the congregation and the widows and showed her to them alive. The news spread all over Joppa, and many came to believe in the Lord. Peter stayed on in Joppa for some time with one Simon, a tanner.

10 At Caesarea there was a man named Cornelius, a centurion in the Italian Cohort, as it was called. He was a religious man, and he and his whole family joined in the worship of God. He gave generously to help the Jewish people, and was regular in his prayers to God. One day about three in the afternoon he had a vision in which he clearly saw an angel of God, who came into his room and said, 'Cornelius!' He stared at him in terror. 'What is it, my lord?' he asked. The angel said, 'Your prayers and acts of charity have gone up to heaven to speak for you before God. And now send to Joppa for a man named Simon, also called Peter: he is lodging with another Simon, a tanner, whose house is by the sea.' So when the angel who was speaking to him had gone, he summoned two of his servants and a military orderly who was a religious man, told them the whole story, and sent them to Joppa. Next day, while they were still on their way and approaching the city, about noon Peter went up on the roof to pray. He grew hungry and wanted something to eat. While they were getting it ready, he fell into a trance. He saw a rift in the sky, and a thing coming down that looked like a great sheet of sail-cloth. It was slung by the four corners, and was being lowered to the ground. In it he saw creatures of every kind, whatever walks or crawls or flies. Then there was a voice which said to him, 'Up, Peter, kill and eat.' But Peter said, 'No, Lord, no: I have never eaten anything profane or unclean.' The voice came again a second time: 'It is not for you to call profane what God counts clean.' This happened three times; and then the thing was taken up again into the sky.

While Peter was still puzzling over the meaning of the vision he had seen, the messengers of Cornelius had been asking the way to Simon's house, and now arrived at the entrance. They called out and asked if Simon Peter was lodging there. But Peter was thinking over the vision, when the Spirit said to him, 'Some men are here look-

z One witness reads Two; others read Three.

tive persons; see 14.11 n. 35: In Acts, miracles validly lead to faith; but compare Jn.20.29; Mk.8.12; Mt.16.4. 36: For similarities between this account and a miracle of Jesus, see Mk.5.37-42. 39: On widows, compare 1 Tim.5.3 n., 9 n.

10.1-48: Peter and Cornelius. 1: Caesarea, the Roman capital of the provinces of Judea and Samaria, was the official residence of the procurators who ruled them. A centurion commanded one hundred men. A cohort was a military unit, part of a legion. 2: Worship of God, lit. he was a God-fearer: a term applied to Gentiles who observed Jewish rites without becoming converts; compare 13.50; 16.14. 14: Profane or unclean: see Lev. ch. 11. 15: The voice annuls Jewish food laws, and thus the distinction between Jew and Gentile; see also v. 28; Mk.7.1-23. 17: Cornelius: see v. 3. 19-22: This is another case of mutually confirming visions; see 9.12 n.

20 ing for you; make haste and go downstairs. You may go with them without any misgiving, for it was I who sent 21 them.' Peter came down to the men and said, 'You are looking for me?
Here I am. What brings you here?'
22 'We are from the centurion Cornelius,' they replied, 'a good and religious man, acknowledged as such by the whole Jewish nation. He was directed by a holy angel to send for you to his house and to listen to what 23 you have to say.' So Peter asked them in and gave them a night's lodging.
Next day he set out with them, accompanied by some members of the congregation at Joppa.
24 The day after that, he arrived at Caesarea. Cornelius was expecting them and had called together his relatives and close friends. When Peter 25 arrived, Cornelius came to meet him,
and bowed to the ground in deep reverence. But Peter raised him to his feet 26 and said, 'Stand up; I am a man like anyone else.' Still talking with him he went in and found a large gathering.
27 He said to them, 'I need not tell you that a Jew is forbidden by his religion to visit or associate with a man of another race; yet God has shown me 28 clearly that I must not call any man profane or unclean. That is why I came here without demur when you sent for me. May I ask what was your reason for sending?'
30 Cornelius said, 'Four days ago, just about this time, I was in the house here saying the afternoon prayers, when suddenly a man in shining robes stood 31 before me. He said: "Cornelius, your prayer has been heard and your acts of charity remembered before God. Send 32 to Joppa, then, to Simon Peter, and ask him to come. He is lodging in the house of Simon the tanner, by the sea." So I 33 sent to you there and then; it was kind of you to come. And now we are all met here before God, to hear all that the Lord has ordered you to say.'

Peter began: 'I now see how true it 34 is that God has no favourites, but that 35 in every nation the man who is god-fearing and does what is right is acceptable to him. He sent his word to the 36 Israelites and gave the good news of peace through Jesus Christ, who is Lord of all. I need not tell you what 37 happened lately all over the land of the Jews, starting from Galilee after the baptism proclaimed by John. You 38 know about Jesus of Nazareth, how God anointed him with the Holy Spirit and with power. He went about doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the devil, for God was with him. And we can bear witness to all 39 that he did in the Jewish country-side and in Jerusalem. He was put to death by hanging on a gibbet; but God raised 40 him to life on the third day, and allowed him to appear, not to the whole 41 people, but to witnesses whom God had chosen in advance—to us, who ate and drank with him after he rose from the dead. He commanded us to pro-42 claim him to the people, and affirm that he is the one who has been designated by God as judge of the living and the dead. It is to him that all the 43 prophets testify, declaring that everyone who trusts in him receives forgiveness
of sins through his name.'

Peter was still speaking when the 44 Holy Spirit came upon all who were listening to the message. The believers 45 who had come with Peter, men of Jewish birth, were astonished that the gift of the Holy Spirit should have been poured out even on Gentiles. For they 46 could hear them speaking in tongues of ecstasy and acclaiming the greatness of God. Then Peter spoke: 'Is anyone 47 prepared to withhold the water for baptism from these persons, who have received the Holy Spirit just as we did ourselves?' Then he ordered them to 48 be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ.

23: Some members: in 11.12 there are six who function as witnesses at this turning point in the life of the church. 30: Four days ago: the Gr. is obscure for this. 34-35: These verses justify the Gentile mission which now begins. 36-38: Lord of all, as well as doing good and healing, were claims commonly made for deities and rulers in the Hellenistic world. 41: Who ate and drank: compare 1.6; Lk.24.30,42. 42: As judge: compare 17.31. 43: All the prophets: see 3.24. Everyone: compare 13.39. 44-46: The coming of the Holy Spirit is here identified with speaking in tongues of ecstasy: see 8.15-17 where the same may be implied. 48: Baptized: see 2.38 n.

After that they asked him to stay on with them for a time.

- 11 News came to the apostles and the members of the church in Judaea that Gentiles too had accepted the word of 2 God; and when Peter came up to Jerusalem those who were of Jewish birth
 3 raised the question with him. 'You have been visiting men who are uncircumcised,' they said, 'and sitting at 4 table with them!' Peter began by laying before them the facts as they had happened.
 5 'I was in the city of Joppa', he said, 'at prayer; and while in a trance I had a vision: a thing was coming down that looked like a great sheet of sail-cloth, slung by the four corners and lowered
 6 from the sky till it reached me. I looked intently to make out what was in it and I saw four-footed creatures of the earth, wild beasts, and things that crawl or 7 fly. Then I heard a voice saying to me, 8 "Up, Peter, kill and eat." But I said, "No, Lord, no: nothing profane or unclean has ever entered my mouth." A voice from heaven answered a second time, "It is not for you to call profane 10 what God counts clean." This happened three times, and then they were all drawn up again into the sky. At that moment three men, who had been sent to me from Caesarea, arrived at the house where I was<sup>a</sup> staying; and the Spirit told me to go with them.<sup>b</sup> My six companions here came with me and 13 we went into the man's house. He told us how he had seen an angel standing in his house who said, "Send to Joppa 14 for Simon also called Peter. He will speak words that will bring salvation to you and all your household." Hardly had I begun speaking, when the Holy Spirit came upon them, just as upon 16 us at the beginning. Then I recalled what the Lord had said: "John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit." God gave 17 them no less a gift than he gave us when we put our trust in the Lord Jesus Christ; then how could I possibly stand in God's way?"

When they heard this their doubts 18 were silenced. They gave praise to God and said, 'This means that God has granted life-giving repentance to the Gentiles also.'

MEANWHILE THOSE WHO HAD BEEN 19 scattered after the persecution that arose over Stephen made their way to Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, bringing the message to Jews only and to no others. But there were some natives of 20 Cyprus and Cyrene among them, and these, when they arrived at Antioch, began to speak to Gentiles as well, telling them the good news of the Lord Jesus. The power of the Lord was with 21 them, and a great many became believers, and turned to the Lord.

The news reached the ears of the 22 church in Jerusalem; and they sent Barnabas to Antioch. When he arrived 23 and saw the divine grace at work, he rejoiced, and encouraged them all to hold fast to the Lord with resolute hearts; for he was a good man, full of 24 the Holy Spirit and of faith. And large numbers were won over to the Lord.

He then went off to Tarsus to look 25 for Saul; and when he had found him, 26 he brought him to Antioch. For a whole year the two of them lived in fellowship with the congregation there, and gave instruction to large numbers. It was in Antioch that the disciples first got the name of Christians.

During this period some prophets 27 came down from Jerusalem to Antioch.

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses read we were.

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses add making no distinctions; others add without any misgiving, as in 10. 20.

11.1–18: Peter in Jerusalem. 2: Of Jewish birth (or, of the circumcision party): compare Gal.2.12. 12: These companions are apparently to help Peter in his presentation. 15: At the beginning: i.e. Pentecost; compare 2.1–4 (and nn.); 10.44–46 (and n.). 16: See 1.5 n. 18: Repentance is also used as a synonym for faith in 5.31.

11.19–30: Expanding missionary activity among Gentiles. 19: Antioch, the third largest city in the Roman Empire, was the official residence of the Roman administrator of the province of Syria. Here, it now becomes the center of the Gentile mission. 20: For the first time, Gentiles are evangelized as a general practice. Vv. 19–20 reflect Acts' missionary scheme: first to Jews, then to Gentiles. 22: They sent Barnabas, apparently because the Gentile mission was still regarded with suspicion; compare 15.1; Gal.2.11–14. 26: The name of Christians, coined by outsiders, was not necessarily derisive in intent, as some interpreters assert. 27: Prophets: compare 13.1;

28 One of them, Agabus by name, was inspired to stand up and predict a severe and world-wide famine, which in fact 29 occurred in the reign of Claudius. So the disciples agreed to make a contribution, each according to his means, for the relief of their fellow-Christians in 30 Judaea. This they did, and sent it off to the elders, in the charge of Barnabas and Saul.

12 IT WAS ABOUT THIS TIME THAT KING Herod attacked certain members of the church. He beheaded James, the brother
 2 of John, and then, when he saw that the Jews approved, proceeded to arrest Peter also. This happened during the
 3 festival of Unleavened Bread. Having secured him, he put him in prison under a military guard, four squads of four men each, meaning to produce him in 4 public after Passover. So Peter was kept in prison under constant watch, while the church kept praying fervently for him to God.

6 On the very night before Herod had planned to bring him forward, Peter was asleep between two soldiers, secured by two chains, while outside the doors sentries kept guard over the
 7 prison. All at once an angel of the Lord stood there, and the cell was ablaze with light. He tapped Peter on the shoulder and woke him. 'Quick! Get up', he said, and the chains fell
 8 away from his wrists. The angel then said to him, 'Do up your belt and put your sandals on.' He did so. 'Now wrap your cloak round you and follow
 9 me.' He followed him out, with no idea that the angel's intervention was real:
 10 he thought it was just a vision. But they passed the first guard-post, then the second, and reached the iron gate leading out into the city, which opened for them of its own accord. And so they came out and walked the length of one street; and the angel left him.

Then Peter came to himself. 'Now I 11 know it is true,' he said; 'the Lord has sent his angel and rescued me from Herod's clutches and from all that the Jewish people were expecting.' When 12 he realized how things stood, he made for the house of Mary, the mother of John Mark, where a large company was at prayer. He knocked at the outer 13 door and a maid called Rhoda came to answer it. She recognized Peter's voice
 14 and was so overjoyed that instead of opening the door she ran in and announced that Peter was standing outside. 'You are crazy', they told her;
 15 but she insisted that it was so. Then they said, 'It must be his guardian angel.'

Meanwhile Peter went on knocking,
 16 and when they opened the door and saw him, they were astounded. With a 17 movement of the hand he signed to them to keep quiet, and told them how the Lord had brought him out of prison. 'Report this to James and the members of the church', he said. Then he left the house and went off elsewhere.

When morning came, there was 18 consternation among the soldiers: what could have become of Peter? Herod 19 made close search, but failed to find him, so he interrogated the guards and ordered their execution.

Afterwards he left Judaea to reside for a time at Caesarea. He had for some 20 time been furiously angry with the people of Tyre and Sidon, who now by common agreement presented themselves at his court. There they won over Blastus the royal chamberlain, and sued

15.32; 21.9. 28: Agabus: see 21.10–12. Claudius was emperor of Rome in 41–54 A.D. Although there was a famine in Palestine about 46–48, there is no other record of a world-wide famine. 29: There is some confusion as to when the contribution was sent. According to this account, it was sent prior to the Apostolic Council (ch. 15). According to Gal.2.10, it occurred after the Council, as is implied in Acts 24.17; compare Rom.15.25–29. The reference to Claudius (v. 28) makes either time possible.

12.1–25: Herod's persecution. 1: Herod Agrippa I ruled as king of Judea 41–44 A.D., by the appointment of the Emperor Claudius. 2: James, John: see Mk.1.19. On the fate of John, the NT is silent. 10: The wondrous opening of locked doors is a widespread theme in Hellenistic stories. 12: John Mark: 12.25; 13.5,13; Col.4.10; Philem.24; 2 Tim.4.11. 15: In popular thought, each person had a guardian angel who was identical in appearance to the person. 17: From this point on, James, Jesus' brother, emerges as the leader of the church in Jerusalem (compare Gal.1.19; 2.12), and there is no further mention of the Twelve. Peter reappears only at 15.7. 20: Since the time of Solomon, Phoenicia drew its supplies from Judea; see 1 Kgs.5.9–11;

for peace, because their country drew its supplies from the king's territory. 21 So, on an appointed day, attired in his royal robes and seated on the rostrum, 22 Herod harangued them; and the populace shouted back, 'It is a god speaking, not a man!' Instantly an angel of 23 the Lord struck him down, because he had usurped the honour due to God; he was eaten up with worms and died. 24 Meanwhile the word of God continued to grow and spread. 25 Barnabas and Saul, their task fulfilled, returned from Jerusalem,<sup>c</sup> taking John Mark with them.

The church breaks barriers

13 THERE WERE AT ANTIOCH, IN THE congregation there, certain prophets and teachers: Barnabas, Simeon called Niger, Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen, who had been at the court of Prince 2 Herod, and Saul. While they were keeping a fast and offering worship to the Lord, the Holy Spirit said, 'Set Barnabas and Saul apart for me, to do the work to which I have called them.' 3 Then, after further fasting and prayer, they laid their hands on them and let them go. 4 So these two, sent out on their mission by the Holy Spirit, came down to Seleucia, and from there sailed to 5 Cyprus. Arriving at Salamis, they declared the word of God in the Jewish synagogues. They had John with them 6 as their assistant. They went through the whole island as far as Paphos, and there they came upon a sorcerer, a Jew who posed as a prophet, Bar-Jesus by 7 name. He was in the retinue of the Governor, Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man, who had sent for Barnabas and Saul and wanted to hear the word of God. This Elymas the sorcerer (so 8 his name may be translated) opposed them, trying to turn the Governor away from the Faith. But Saul, also 9 known as Paul, filled with the Holy Spirit, fixed his eyes on him and said, 10 'You swindler, you rascal, son of the devil and enemy of all goodness, will you never stop falsifying the straight ways of the Lord? Look now, the hand 11 of the Lord strikes: you shall be blind, and for a time you shall not see the sunlight.' Instantly mist and darkness came over him and he groped about for someone to lead him by the hand. When the Governor saw what had 12 happened he became a believer, deeply impressed by what he learned about the Lord.

Leaving Paphos, Paul and his companions went by sea to Perga in Pamphylia; John, however, left them and returned to Jerusalem. From Perga they 14 continued their journey as far as Pisidian Antioch. On the Sabbath they went to synagogue and took their seats; and after the readings from the 15 Law and the prophets, the officials of the synagogue sent this message to them: 'Friends, if you have anything to say to the people by way of exhortation, let us hear it.' Paul rose, made a 16 gesture with his hand, and began:

'Men of Israel and you who worship our God, listen to me! The God of this 17 people of Israel chose our fathers. When they were still living as aliens in Egypt he made them into a nation and

<sup>c</sup> Some witnesses read their task fulfilled, returned to Jerusalem; or, as it might be rendered, their task at Jerusalem fulfilled, returned.

Ezek. 27.17. 23: Josephus (a first-century Jewish historian) confirms Herod's sudden death (Ant. xix, 8.2) and the detail that he was acclaimed as divine. After the death of Herod Agrippa I, Judea reverted to an imperial province, ruled by governors; see 23.24.

13.1-14.28: Paul's missionary travels (first journey). 1-3: Barnabas and Saul set apart. 1: Niger means black. Prince Herod is Herod Antipas, the Tetrarch, not the Herod of 12.1. 2: Acts' conviction that the Holy Spirit guided the Church is again evident here. 3: The laying on of hands commissioned persons for special tasks; compare 6.6. 4-12: Elymas confounded. 4: Travelers at that time sailed on any available boat; passenger ships plying regular routes were unknown. 6: Paphos was the capital of Cyprus. 8: The meaning of Elymas is unknown. 9: Paul a Latin name, would be appropriate for a Roman citizen (22.25-29); but see 1.23 n. 11: Acts' opposition to magic is clear here; compare also 8.9-11; 19.13-20. 13-15: To Pisidian Antioch. 13: There was some altercation accompanying John's leaving, as 15.38 makes clear. 14: Pisidian Antioch, a remotely situated Roman colony (see 16.12 n.), was in the southern part of the province of Galatia, as were the other cities visited on this "journey." 16-41: Paul's sermon. 17: As did Peter (13.25) and Stephen (7.2-50), Paul recounts the origins of the Jewish people as brought them out of that country with 18 arm outstretched. For some forty years he bore with their conduct<sup>d</sup> in the 19 desert. Then in the Canaanite country he overthrew seven nations, whose lands he gave them to be their heritage 20 for some four hundred and fifty years, and afterwards appointed judges for them until the time of the prophet Samuel.

21 Then they asked for a king and God gave them Saul the son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, who reigned 22 for forty years. Then he removed him and set up David as their king, giving him his approval in these words: "I have found David son of Jesse to be a man after my own heart, who will carry 23 out all my purposes." This is the man from whose posterity God, as he promised, has brought Israel a saviour, 24 Jesus. John made ready for his coming by proclaiming baptism as a token of repentance to the whole people of 25 Israel. And when John was nearing the end of his course, he said, "I am not what you think I am. No, after me comes one whose shoes I am not fit to unfasten."

26 My brothers, you who come of the stock of Abraham, and others among you who revere our God, we are the people to whom the message of this 27 salvation has been sent. The people of Jerusalem and their rulers did not recognize him, or understand the words of the prophets which are read Sabbath by Sabbath; indeed they fulfilled them by condemning him.
 28 Though they failed to find grounds for the sentence of death, they asked Pilate 29 to have him executed. And when they had carried out all that the scriptures said about him, they took him down from the gibbet and laid him in a tomb.
 30 But God raised him from the dead;
 31 and there was a period of many days during which he appeared to those who had come up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem.

"They are now his witnesses before our nation; and we are here to give you 32
 the good news that God, who made the promise to the fathers, has fulfilled it 33 for the children<sup>e</sup> by raising Jesus from the dead, as indeed it stands written, in the second<sup>f</sup> Psalm: "You are my son;
 this day I have begotten you." Again, 34 that he raised him from the dead, never again to revert to corruption, he declares in these words: "I will give you the blessings promised to David, holy and sure." This is borne out by another 35 passage: "Thou wilt not let thy loyal servant suffer corruption." As for 36 David, when he had served the purpose of God in his own generation, he died, and was gathered to his fathers, and suffered corruption; but the one whom 37
 God raised up did not suffer corruption; and you must understand, my 38 brothers, that it is through him that forgiveness of sins is now being proclaimed to you. It is through him that 39 everyone who has faith is acquitted of everything for which there was no acquittal under the Law of Moses.
 Beware, then, lest you bring down 40
 upon yourselves the doom proclaimed
 by the prophets: "See this, you scoffers, 41 wonder, and begone; for I am doing a deed in your days, a deed which you will never believe when you are told of it."

As they were leaving the synagogue 42
 they were asked to come again and speak on these subjects next Sabbath;
 and after the congregation had dis- 43
 persed, many Jews and gentile worshippers went along with Paul and Barnabas, who spoke to them and urged them to hold fast to the grace of God.

On the following Sabbath almost the 44 whole city gathered to hear the word of God. When the Jews saw the crowds, 45
 they were filled with jealous resentment, and contradicted what Paul said, with violent abuse. But Paul and Bar- 46

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses read he sustained them.

<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses read our children; others read us their children. <sup>f</sup> Some witnesses read first.

the necessary presupposition of understanding the Christian faith. 18b-19a: Compare Deut.7.1. 20: Afterwards refers to the occupation of Canaan (v. 19), not the 450 years; the Greek text is not entirely clear. 22: Compare 1 Sam.13.14; Ps.89.21. 25: Compare Mk.1.7; Lk.3.16. 33: Ps.2.7. 35-37: Compare 2.25-31. 35: Ps.16.10. 41: Hab.1.5. Paul's more sophisticated Christology, and his eschatological concerns, characteristic of his letters, are absent from this sermon. 42-52: Paul and Barnabas turn to Gentiles. 46: This point is repeated in 18.6 and 28.28; compare nabas were outspoken in their reply. 'It was necessary', they said, 'that the word of God should be declared to you first. But since you reject it and thus condemn yourselves as unworthy of eternal life, we now turn to the Gentiles. For these are our instructions from the Lord: "I have appointed you to be a light for the Gentiles, and a means of salvation to earth's farthest bounds."' When the Gentiles heard this, they were overjoyed and thankfully acclaimed the word of the Lord, and those who were marked out for eternal life became believers. So the word of the Lord spread far and wide through the region. But the Jews stirred up feeling among the women of standing who were worshippers, and among the leading men of the city; a persecution was started against Paul and Barnabas, and they were expelled from the district. So they shook the dust off their feet in protest against them and went to Iconium. And the converts were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.

14 At Iconium similarly they went into the Jewish synagogue and spoke to such purpose that a large body both of Jews and Gentiles became believers. But the unconverted Jews stirred up the Gentiles and poisoned their minds against the Christians. For some time Paul and Barnabas stayed on and spoke boldly and openly in reliance on the Lord; and he confirmed the message of his grace by causing signs and miracles to be worked at their hands. The mass of the townspeople were divided, some siding with the Jews, others with the apostles. But when a move was made by Gentiles and Jews together, with the connivance of the city authorities, to maltreat them and stone them, they got wind of it and made their escape to the Lycaonian cities of Lystra and Derbe and the surrounding country, where they continued to spread the good news.

At Lystra sat a crippled man, lame from birth, who had never walked in his life. This man listened while Paul was speaking. Paul fixed his eyes on him and saw that he had the faith to be cured, so he said to him in a loud voice, 'Stand up straight on your feet'; and he sprang up and started to walk. When the crowds saw what Paul had done, they shouted, in their native Lycaonian, 'The gods have come down to us in human form.' And they called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul they called Mercury, because he was the spokesman. And the priest of Jupiter, whose temple was just outside the city, brought oxen and garlands to the gates, and he and all the people were about to offer sacrifice.

But when the apostles Barnabas and Paul heard of it, they tore their clothes and rushed into the crowd shouting, 'Men, what is this that you are doing? We are only human beings, no less mortal than you. The good news we bring tells you to turn from these follies to the living God, who made heaven and earth and sea and everything in them. In past ages he allowed all nations to go their own way; and yet he has not left you without some clue to his nature, in the kindness he shows: he sends you rain from heaven and crops in their seasons, and gives you food and good cheer in plenty.'

With these words they barely managed to prevent the crowd from offering sacrifice to them.

Then Jews from Antioch and Iconium came on the scene and won over the crowds. They stoned Paul, and dragged him out of the city, thinking him dead. The converts formed a ring

g Or At Iconium they went together . . .

also 19.8-9. 50: The risen Jesus had foretold such persecution of Paul; see 9.16. 51: They thus follow a command of Jesus: Lk.9.5; compare 10.10-11. 14.1-7: On to Iconium. 1: Iconium, like Antioch a Roman colony, was a commercial center for its area (see 13.14 n.). 4: Paul and Barnabas are called apostles only here and in v. 14; the term is normally reserved in Acts for the leaders in Jerusalem (compare 15.2), although Paul himself claimed to be an apostle: see 1 Cor.9.1; Gal.1.1. 8-20: Paul and Barnabas at Lystra. 8: Lystra was also a Roman colony. 11: The idea of "divine men" was common in the Hellenistic world; great deeds were attributed to divine power in such persons; compare 28.6 n. 12: Jupiter: lit. Zeus. Mercury: lit. Hermes, the god who, in Greek mythology, brought men messages from the gods. 15: Ps.146.6; compare Acts 4.24. Peter also rejected any attribute of divinity (10.26). 19: See round him, and he got to his feet and went into the city. Next day he left with Barnabas for Derbe.

- 21 After bringing the good news to that town, where they gained many converts, they returned to Lystra, then to 22 Iconium, and then to Antioch, heartening the converts and encouraging them to be true to their religion. They warned them that to enter the kingdom of God we must pass through many hardships.
23 They also appointed elders for them in each congregation, and with prayer and fasting committed them to the Lord in whom they had put their faith.

- 24 Then they passed through Pisidia and 25 came into Pamphylia. When they had given the message at Perga, they went 26 down to Attalia, and from there set sail for Antioch, where they had originally been commended to the grace of God for the task which they had now completed. When they arrived and had 27 called the congregation together, they reported all that God had done through them, and how he had thrown open the gates of faith to the Gentiles.
28 And they stayed for some time with the disciples there.

- 15 NOW CERTAIN PERSONS WHO HAD COME down from Judaea began to teach the brotherhood that those who were not circumcised in accordance with Mosaic
2 practice could not be saved. That brought them into fierce dissension and controversy with Paul and Barnabas. And so it was arranged that these two and some others from Antioch should go up to Jerusalem to see the apostles and elders about this question.

- 3 They were sent on their way by the congregation, and travelled through Phoenicia and Samaria, telling the full story of the conversion of the Gentiles. The news caused great rejoicing among all the Christians there.

When they reached Jerusalem they 4 were welcomed by the church and the apostles and elders, and reported all that God had done through them. Then
5 some of the Pharisaic party who had become believers came forward and said, 'They must be circumcised and told to keep the Law of Moses.'

The apostles and elders held a meet-6 ing to look into this matter; and, after 7 a long debate, Peter rose and addressed them. 'My friends,' he said, 'in the early days, as you yourselves know, God made his choice among you and ordained that from my lips the Gentiles should hear and believe the message of the Gospel. And God, who can read
8 men's minds, showed his approval of them by giving the Holy Spirit to them, as he did to us. He made no difference
9 between them and us; for he purified their hearts by faith. Then why do you now 10 provoke God by laying on the shoulders of these converts a yoke which neither we nor our fathers were able to bear? No, we believe that it is by the 11 grace of the Lord Jesus that we are saved, and so are they.'

At that the whole company fell silent
12 and listened to Barnabas and Paul as they told of all the signs and miracles that God had worked among the Gentiles through them.

When they had finished speaking,
13 James summed up: 'My friends,' he said, 'listen to me. Simeon has told 14 how it first happened that God took notice of the Gentiles, to choose from among them a people to bear his name; and this agrees with the words of the 15 prophets, as Scripture has it:

"Thereafter I will return and rebuild 16 the fallen house of David;
even from its ruins I will rebuild it,
and set it up again,
that they may seek the Lord—all the 17 rest of mankind,

2 Cor.11.25. 21-28: Return to Antioch. 23: Prayer and fasting: compare 13.3. 28: Such inexact time references are typical of Acts, and make the construction of historical chronology impossible.

15.1-35: The Apostolic Council. 2: This is the controversy with which Paul's letter to the Galatians deals, although in that letter, it occurs much later in Paul's career (see Gal.2.1). 7: According to Gal.2.7-8, Peter was sent to the Jews. 8: Compare 10.44-45; 11.15. The conversion of Cornelius is the classic example in Acts. 10: That the law was not universally regarded as a burdensome yoke is clear from Ps.19.7-11. 13: James is at this time clearly the head of the mother church in Jerusalem; see 12.17 n. 14: Although a Simeon is mentioned in and the Gentiles, whom I have claimed for my own.

 Thus says the Lord, whose work it is,
 18 made known long ago.”

19 ‘My judgement therefore is that we should impose no irksome restrictions on those of the Gentiles who are turning 20 to God, but instruct them by letter to abstain from things polluted by contact with idols, from fornication, from anything that has been strangled, and 21 from blood.<sup>h</sup> Moses, after all, has never lacked spokesmen in every town for generations past; he is read in the synagogues Sabbath by Sabbath.’

22 Then the apostles and elders, with the agreement of the whole church, resolved to choose representatives and send them to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas. They chose two leading men in the community, Judas Barsabbas 23 and Silas, and gave them this letter to deliver:

‘We, the apostles and elders, send greetings as brothers to our brothers of gentile origin in Antioch, Syria, and 24 Cilicia. Forasmuch as we have heard that some of our number, without any instructions from us, have<sup>i</sup> disturbed
 you with their talk and unsettled your 25 minds, we have resolved unanimously to send to you our chosen representatives with our well-beloved Barnabas 26 and Paul, who have devoted themselves to the cause of our Lord Jesus 27 Christ. We are therefore sending Judas and Silas, who will themselves confirm 28 this by word of mouth. It is the decision of the Holy Spirit, and our decision, to lay no further burden 29 upon you beyond these essentials: you are to abstain from meat that has been offered to idols, from blood, from anything that has been strangled,<sup>j</sup> and from fornication.<sup>k</sup> If you keep yourselves free from these things you will be doing right. Farewell.’

So they were sent off on their jour- 30
 ney and travelled down to Antioch,
 where they called the congregation together, and delivered the letter. When 31
 it was read, they all rejoiced at the encouragement it brought. Judas and 32
 Silas, who were prophets themselves, said much to encourage and strengthen the members, and, after spending some 33 time there, were dismissed with the good wishes of the brethren, to return to those who had sent them.<sup>l</sup> But Paul 35
 and Barnabas stayed on at Antioch, and there, along with many others, they taught and preached the word of the Lord.

Paul leads the advance

AFTER A WHILE PAUL SAID TO BARNABAS, 36 ‘Ought we not to go back now to see how our brothers are faring in the various towns where we proclaimed
 the word of the Lord?’ Barnabas want- 37
 ed to take John Mark with them; but 38 Paul judged that the man who had deserted them in Pamphylia and had not gone on to share in their work was not the man to take with them now.
 The dispute was so sharp that they 39 parted company. Barnabas took Mark with him and sailed for Cyprus, while 40 Paul chose Silas. He started on his journey, commended by the brothers to the grace of the Lord, and travelled 41 through Syria and Cilicia bringing new strength to the congregations.

He went on to Derbe and to Lystra, 16
 and there he found a disciple named Timothy, the son of a Jewish Christian

<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses omit from fornication; others omit from anything that has been strangled; some add (after blood) and to refrain from doing to others what they would not like done to themselves.

<sup>i</sup> Some witnesses read have gone out and . . .
<sup>j</sup> Some witnesses omit from anything that has been strangled.

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses omit and from fornication; and some add and refrain from doing to others what you would not like done to yourselves.

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses add (34) But Silas decided to remain there.

13.1 in connection with Antioch, a center for the Gentile mission, Luke clearly refers here to Peter. 20: Paul does not mention any such compromise (see Gal.2.6,9-10); he seems to contradict it in 1 Cor.8.8; 10.27. 24-29: The apostolic letter. 24: Without any instructions: a different impression is given in Gal.2.12 (“from James”). 29: Observance of these rules would make possible table-fellowship with law-observing Jewish-Christians; see Lev. chs. 17-18.

15.36-18.22: Paul’s further missionary travels (second journey). 36-41: Paul and Barnabas separate. 36: See 14.28 n. 38: See 13.13. 39: In Gal.2.13, Paul’s dispute with Barnabas turned on the more basic issue of table-fellowship between Jewish and Gentile Christians. 16.1-5: Timothy chosen. 1: Timothy was a trusted associate (2 Cor.1.19; Rom.16.21), whom Paul

2 mother and a Gentile father. He was well spoken of by the Christians at 3 Lystra and Iconium, and Paul wanted to have him in his company when he left the place. So he took him and circumcised him, out of consideration for the Jews who lived in those parts; for they all knew that his father was a 4 Gentile. As they made their way from town to town they handed on the decisions taken by the apostles and elders in Jerusalem and enjoined their ob-
 5 servance. And so, day by day, the congregations grew stronger in faith and increased in numbers.
 6 They travelled through the Phrygian and Galatian region,<sup>m</sup> because they were prevented by the Holy Spirit from delivering the message in the province
 7 of Asia; and when they approached the Mysian border they tried to enter Bithynia; but the Spirit of Jesus would 8 not allow them, so they skirted<sup>n</sup> Mysia and reached the coast at Troas. During the night a vision came to Paul: a Macedonian stood there appealing to him and saying, 'Come across to Macedonia and help us.' After he had seen
 10 this vision we at once set about getting a passage to Macedonia, concluding that God had called us to bring them the good news.
 11 So we sailed from Troas and made a straight run to Samothrace, the next day to Neapolis, and from there to Philippi, a city of the first rank in that district of Macedonia, and a Roman colony. Here we stayed for some days,
 13 and on the Sabbath day we went outside the city gate by the river-side, where we thought there would be a place of prayer,<sup>o</sup> and sat down and talked to the women who had gathered 14 there. One of them named Lydia, a dealer in purple fabric from the city of Thyatira, who was a worshipper of God, was listening, and the Lord opened her heart to respond to what Paul said. She was baptized, and her household with her, and then she said to us, 'If you have judged me to be a believer in the Lord, I beg you to come and stay in my house.' And she insisted on our going.

Once, when we were on our way to 16 the place of prayer, we met a slave-girl who was possessed by an oracular spirit and brought large profits to her owners by telling fortunes. She followed Paul and the rest of us, shouting, 'These men are servants of the Supreme God, and are declaring to you a way of salvation.' She did this day after day, 18 until Paul could bear it no longer. Rounding on the spirit he said, 'I command you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her', and it went out there and then.

When the girl's owners saw that their 19 hope of gain had gone, they seized Paul and Silas and dragged them to the city authorities in the main square; and 20 bringing them before the magistrates, they said, 'These men are causing a disturbance in our city; they are Jews; they are advocating customs which it 21 is illegal for us Romans to adopt and follow.' The mob joined in the attack; 22 and the magistrates tore off the prisoners' clothes and ordered them to be flogged. After giving them a severe 23 beating they flung them into prison and ordered the jailer to keep them under close guard. In view of these 24 orders, he put them in the inner prison and secured their feet in the stocks.

About midnight Paul and Silas, at 25 their prayers, were singing praises to God, and the other prisoners were listening, when suddenly there was such 26 a violent earthquake that the founda-

<sup>m</sup> Or through Phrygia and the Galatian region.

<sup>n</sup> Possibly traversed.

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses read where there was a recognized place of prayer.

often sent on important errands; see 1 Cor.4.17; 16.10. 3: Paul did not think circumcision necessary for Christians; see Gal.2.3; 5.11; 6.15. 6-10: Paul's vision. 7: Bithynia was the northernmost province in Asia Minor. 9: Paul continues his westward movement; this seems to have been his overall strategy (see Rom.15.19 n.). Macedonia was a Roman province in northern Greece. 11-15: Lydia converted. 11: Samothrace is an island about halfway between Troas and Neapolis. 12: As a Roman colony, Philippi was a military outpost and had a civil government modeled after Rome. 14: Worshipper of God: see 10.2 n. 16-40: Trouble in Philippi. In using the name of Jesus Christ, Paul literally fulfills the prayer of 4.30. 19: Paul may refer to this episode in 1 Th.2.2. 22: Paul suffered three such floggings at the hands of the Romans, who used rods (see 2 Cor.11.25). 25-26: A violent earthquake...all the doors burst open;

tions of the jail were shaken; all the doors burst open and all the prisoners found their fetters unfastened. The jailer woke up to see the prison doors wide open, and assuming that the prisoners had escaped, drew his sword intending to kill himself. But Paul shouted, 'Do yourself no harm; we are all here.' The jailer called for lights, rushed in and threw himself down before Paul and Silas, trembling with fear. He then escorted them out and said, 'Masters, what must I do to be saved?' They said, 'Put your trust in the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved, you and your household.' Then they spoke the word of the Lord<sup>p</sup> to him and to everyone in his house. At that late hour of the night he took them and washed their wounds; and immediately afterwards he and his whole family were baptized. He brought them into his house, set out a meal, and rejoiced with his whole household in his new-found faith in God.

When daylight came the magistrates sent their officers with instructions to release the men. The jailer reported the message to Paul: 'The magistrates have sent word that you are to be released. So now you may go free, and blessings on your journey.'<sup>q</sup> But Paul said to the officers: 'They gave us a public flogging, though we are Roman citizens and have not been found guilty; they threw us into prison, and are they now to smuggle us out privately? No indeed! Let them come in person and escort us out.' The officers reported his words. The magistrates were alarmed to hear that they were Roman citizens, and came and apologized to them. Then they escorted them out and requested them to go away from the city. On leaving the prison, they went to Lydia's house, where they met their fellow-Christians, and spoke words of encouragement to them; then they departed.

17 THEY NOW TRAVELLED BY WAY OF Amphipolis and Apollonia and came to Thessalonica, where there was a

Jewish synagogue. Following his usual practice Paul went to their meetings; and for the next three Sabbaths he argued with them, quoting texts of Scripture which he expounded and applied to show that the Messiah had to suffer and rise from the dead. 'And this Jesus,' he said, 'whom I am proclaiming to you, is the Messiah.' Some of them were convinced and joined Paul and Silas; so did a great number of godfearing Gentiles and a good many influential women.<sup>r</sup>

But the Jews in their jealousy recruited some low fellows from the dregs of the populace, roused the rabble, and had the city in an uproar. They mobbed Jason's house, with the intention of bringing Paul and Silas before the town assembly. Failing to find them, they dragged Jason himself and some members of the congregation before the magistrates, shouting, 'The men who have made trouble all over the world have now come here; and Jason has harboured them. They all flout the Emperor's laws, and assert that there is a rival king, Jesus.' These words caused a great commotion in the mob, which affected the magistrates also. They bound over Jason and the others, and let them go.

As soon as darkness fell, the members of the congregation sent Paul and Silas off to Beroea. On arrival, they made their way to the synagogue. The Jews here were more civil than those at Thessalonica; they received the message with great eagerness, studying the scriptures every day to see whether it was as they said. Many of them therefore became believers, and so did a fair number of Gentiles, women of standing as well as men. But when the Thessalonian Jews learned that the word of God had now been proclaimed by Paul in Beroea, they came on there to stir up trouble and rouse the rabble. Thereupon the members of the congregation

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses read of God.

<sup>q</sup> Some witnesses read . . . free and take your journey.

<sup>r</sup> Some witnesses read a good many wives of leading men.

see 12.10 n. 37: Paul's letters do not mention his Roman citizenship. 38: Flogging Roman citizens was forbidden; hence, the magistrates were alarmed . . . and came and apologized to them. See 22.24 n. 17.1-9: Paul in Thessalonica: this city, the capital of the province of Macedonia, became an important Christian center (1 Th.1.8). 10-14: Trouble in Beroea. 13: Similar sent Paul off at once to go down to the coast, while Silas and Timothy both stayed behind. Paul's escort brought him as far as Athens, and came away with instructions for Silas and Timothy to rejoin him with all speed.

Now while Paul was waiting for them at Athens he was exasperated to see how the city was full of idols. So he argued in the synagogue with the Jews and gentile worshippers, and also in the city square every day with casual passers-by. And some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers joined issue with him. Some said, 'What can this charlatan be trying to say?'; others, 'He would appear to be a propagandist for foreign deities'—this because he was preaching about Jesus and Resurrection. So they took him and brought him before the Court of Areopagus<sup>s</sup> and said, 'May we know what this new doctrine is that you propound? You are introducing ideas that sound strange to us, and we should like to know what they mean.' (Now the Athenians in general and the foreigners there had no time for anything but talking or hearing about the latest novelty.)

Then Paul stood up before the Court of Areopagus<sup>t</sup> and said: 'Men of Athens, I see that in everything that concerns religion you are uncommonly scrupulous. For as I was going round looking at the objects of your worship, I noticed among other things an altar bearing the inscription "To an Unknown God". What you worship but do not know—this is what I now proclaim.

'The God who created the world and everything in it, and who is Lord of heaven and earth, does not live in shrines made by men. It is not because he lacks anything that he accepts service at men's hands, for he is himself the universal giver of life and breath and all else. He created every race of men of one stock, to inhabit the whole earth's surface. He fixed the epochs of their history<sup>u</sup> and the limits of their territory. They were to seek God, and, it might be, touch and find him; though indeed he is not far from each one of us, for in him we live and move, in him we exist; as some of your own poets<sup>v</sup> have said, "We are also his offspring." As God's offspring, then, we ought not to suppose that the deity is like an image in gold or silver or stone, shaped by human craftsmanship and design. As for the times of ignorance, God has overlooked them; but now he commands mankind, all men everywhere, to repent, because he has fixed the day on which he will have the world judged, and justly judged, by a man of his choosing; of this he has given assurance to all by raising him from the dead.'

When they heard about the raising of the dead, some scoffed; and others said, 'We will hear you on this subject some other time.' And so Paul left the assembly. However, some men joined him and became believers, including Dionysius, a member of the Court of Areopagus; also a woman named Damaris, and others besides.

After this he left Athens and went to Corinth. There he fell in with a Jew named Aquila, a native of Pontus, and

<sup>s</sup> Or brought him to Mars' Hill.

<sup>t</sup> Or in the middle of Mars' Hill.

<sup>u</sup> Or fixed the ordered seasons . . .

<sup>v</sup> Some witnesses read some among you.

events are reported in 13.50; 14.19. 15–34: Paul in Athens. 16: Athens, although less important commercially and politically at this time than Corinth, remained the intellectual center of the western world, and an important city for ancient tourists. 17: The city square lay north of the Acropolis. 18: Many ancient deities had descriptive names, e.g. Fate, Victory, Wisdom; some of Paul's listeners apparently assumed that Resurrection also referred to a specific goddess. 19: The Areopagus, or Mars Hill, lies south of the market and west of the Acropolis. There is no hint of any formal legal trial, although the Court of Areopagus was the highest court in Athens. 22–34: Paul's witness in Athens. 23: No altar with this specific wording has been found. 24: Compare 7.48; this was a regular point made by Jewish preachers as well as Stoic philosophers. 25: That the gods need nothing was a commonplace belief among Greek philosophers and religious thinkers. 28: The quotation is from Aratus' (a fourth-century B.C. poet) Phaenomena 5. 31: That Jesus would come at the end as judge was a common early Christian theme; see 10.42; Mt.13.41; 16.27; 2 Cor.5.10. 18.1–17: Paul in Corinth. 1: Corinth, the capital of the province of Achaia and a major port for east-west trade, had a wide reputation for low morals. 2: On Aquila and Priscilla (or Prisca), see Rom.16.3; 1 Cor.16.19. Claudius' . . . edict is reported his wife Priscilla; he had recently arrived from Italy because Claudius had issued an edict that all Jews should leave Rome. Paul approached them and, because he was of the same trade, he made his home with them, and they carried on business together; they were tent-makers. He also held discussions in the synagogue Sabbath by Sabbath, trying to convince both Jews and Gentiles.

Then Silas and Timothy came down from Macedonia, and Paul devoted himself entirely to preaching, affirming before the Jews that the Messiah was Jesus. But when they opposed him and resorted to abuse, he shook out the skirts of his cloak and said to them, 'Your blood be on your own heads! My conscience is clear; now I shall go to the Gentiles.' With that he left, and went to the house of a worshipper of God named Titius Justus, who lived next door to the synagogue. Crispus, who held office in the synagogue, now became a believer in the Lord, with all his household; and a number of Corinthians listened and believed, and were baptized. One night in a vision the Lord said to Paul, 'Have no fear: go on with your preaching and do not be silenced, for I am with you and no one shall attempt to do you harm;<sup>w</sup> and there are many in this city who are my people.' So he settled down for eighteen months, teaching the word of God among them.

But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews set upon Paul in a body and brought him into court. 'This man', they said, 'is inducing people to worship God in ways that are against the law.' Paul was just about to speak when Gallio said to them, 'If it had been a question of crime or grave misdemeanour, I should, of course, have given you Jews a patient hearing, but if it is some bickering about words and names and your Jewish law, you may see to it yourselves; I have no mind to be a judge of these matters.' And he had them ejected from the court. Then there was a general attack on Sosthenes, who held office in the synagogue, and they gave him a beating in full view of the bench. But all this left Gallio quite unconcerned.

Paul stayed on for some time, and then took leave of the brotherhood and set sail for Syria, accompanied by Priscilla and Aquila. At Cenchræe he had his hair cut off, because he was under a vow. When they reached Ephesus he parted from them and went himself into the synagogue, where he held a discussion with the Jews. He was asked to stay longer, but declined and set out from Ephesus, saying, as he took leave of them, 'I shall come back to you if it is God's will.' On landing at Caesarea, he went up and paid his respects to the church, and then went down to Antioch. After spending some time there, he set out again and made a journey through the Galatian country and on through Phrygia, bringing new strength to all the converts.

NOW THERE ARRIVED AT EPHESUS A JEW named Apollos, an Alexandrian by birth, an eloquent man,<sup>x</sup> powerful in his use of the scriptures. He had been instructed in the way of the Lord and was full of spiritual fervour; and in his discourses he taught accurately the facts about Jesus,<sup>y</sup> though he knew only John's baptism. He now began to speak boldly in the synagogue, where Priscilla and Aquila heard him; they took him in hand and expounded the

<sup>w</sup> Or and you will not be harmed by anyone's attacks.

<sup>x</sup> Or a learned man.

<sup>y</sup> Some witnesses read about the Lord.

to have been issued about 49 A.D. 3: Paul regularly earned his own living; see 20.33-34; 1 Cor.4.12; 1 Th.2.9; compare 2 Cor.11.7-10. 6: See 13.46; 28.28. 9: Such a vision was not uncommon for Paul; see 2 Cor.12.1-5. For another such vision, see 22.17-21. 12: Gallio, the older brother of the philosopher Seneca, was proconsul (governor) of Achaia about 51-53 A.D. 18-22: Return to Antioch. 18: Cenchræe was the port on the east side of the Isthmus of Corinth. 19: Ephesus was the chief city of the province of Asia. 22: The Greek for went up (taken with the landing at Caesarea) implies Paul visited the church in Jerusalem, rather than going directly to Antioch, although there is no hint as to why such a visit should be made.

18.23-21.17: Paul's final missionary travels (third journey). 24-28: Apollos the Alexandrian. 24: Apollos: see 1 Cor.1.12; 3.4-6,22; 4.6; 16.12. 25: Apparently disciples of John the Baptist continued an active mission (compare 19.3); this is all we hear of it directly in the NT.

new way<sup>z</sup> to him in greater detail.
 27 Finding that he wished to go across to Achaia, the brotherhood gave him their support, and wrote to the congregation there to make him welcome. From the time of his arrival, he was very helpful to those who had by God's grace become believers; for he strenuously confuted the Jews, demonstrating publicly from the scriptures that the Messiah is Jesus.
 19 While Apollos was at Corinth, Paul travelled through the inland regions till he came to Ephesus. There he found a number of converts, to whom he said,
 2 'Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you became believers?' 'No,' they replied, 'we have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit.' He said, 'Then what baptism were you given?' 'John's baptism', they answered. Paul then said, 'The baptism that John gave was a baptism in token of repentance, and he told the people to put their trust in one who was to come after him, that is, in Jesus.' On hearing this they were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus; and when Paul had laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came upon them and they spoke in tongues of ecstasy and prophesied. Altogether they were about a dozen men.
 8 During the next three months he attended the synagogue and, using argument and persuasion, spoke boldly and freely about the kingdom of God.
 9 But when some proved obdurate and would not believe, speaking evil of the new way before the whole congregation, he left them, withdrew his converts, and continued to hold discussions daily in the lecture-hall of Tyrannus. This went on for two years, with the result that the whole population of the province of Asia, both Jews and Gentiles, heard the word of the Lord.
 11 And through Paul God worked singular miracles: when handkerchiefs and 12 scarves which had been in contact with his skin were carried to the sick, they were rid of their diseases and the evil spirits came out of them.

But some strolling Jewish exorcists 13 tried their hand at using the name of the Lord Jesus on those possessed by evil spirits; they would say, 'I adjure you by Jesus whom Paul proclaims.' There were seven sons of Sceva, a 14 Jewish chief priest, who were using this method, when the evil spirit answered 15 back and said, 'Jesus I acknowledge, and I know about Paul, but who are you?' And the man with the evil spirit 16 flew at them, overpowered them all, and handled them with such violence that they ran out of the house stripped and battered. This became known to 17 everybody in Ephesus, whether Jew or Gentile; they were all awestruck, and the name of the Lord Jesus gained in honour. Moreover many of those who 18 had become believers came and openly confessed that they had been using magical spells. And a good many of 19 those who formerly practised magic collected their books and burnt them publicly. The total value was reckoned up and it came to fifty thousand pieces of silver. In such ways the word of the 20 Lord showed its power, spreading more and more widely and effectively.

When things had reached this stage, 21 Paul made up his mind<sup>a</sup> to visit Macedonia and Achaia and then go on to Jerusalem; and he said, 'After I have been there, I must see Rome also.' So 22 he sent two of his assistants, Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia, while he himself stayed some time longer in the province of Asia.

Now about that time, the Christian 23 movement gave rise to a serious dis-

<sup>z</sup> Some witnesses read the way of God.

<sup>a</sup> Or Paul, led by the Spirit, resolved . . .

27: Writing letters of introduction was one way of guarding against false or unauthorized missionaries; Paul refers to this practice in 2 Cor.3.1. 19.1-41: Paul's mission in Ephesus. 2: This is a key question, since the presence of the Holy Spirit is the sign of true Christian faith; compare 11.15-18. 3: See 18.25 n. 4: Compare 13.24; Mk.1.4,7; Lk.3.3-16. 6: The presence of tongues and prophecy is a sign of the presence of the Spirit; compare 2.4-11; 10.46. 8: Kingdom of God: see 20.25; 28.23,31; the phrase also occurs in Paul's letters (e.g. 1 Cor.4.20; 6.9-10; Gal.5.21); it was central in Jesus' preaching (see Mk.1.15 n.). 9: Compare 13.46; 18.6. 14: There is no other record of a Sceva having been chief priest. 19: Books of magic from Ephesus enjoyed a worldwide reputation, and were eagerly sought and highly prized. 20: Luke refers on other occasions as well to the Christian faith overcoming the practice of magic: 8.9-13; 13.8-11.

24 turbance. There was a man named Demetrius, a silversmith who made silver shrines of Diana and provided a great deal of employment for the craftsmen. He called a meeting of these men and the workers in allied trades, and addressed them. 'Men,' he said, 'you know that our high standard of living depends on this industry. And you see and hear how this fellow Paul with his propaganda has perverted crowds of people, not only at Ephesus but also in practically the whole of the province of Asia. He is telling them that gods made by human hands are not gods at all. There is danger for us here; it is not only that our line of business will be discredited, but also that the sanctuary of the great goddess Diana will cease to command respect; and then it will not be long before she who is worshipped by all Asia and the civilized world is brought down from her divine pre-eminence.'

28 When they heard this they were roused to fury and shouted, 'Great is Diana of the Ephesians!' The whole city was in confusion; they seized Paul's travelling-companions, the Macedonians Gaius and Aristarchus, and made a concerted rush with them into the theatre. Paul wanted to appear before the assembly but the other Christians would not let him. Even some of the dignitaries of the province, who were friendly towards him, sent and urged him not to venture into the theatre. Meanwhile some were shouting one thing, some another; for the assembly was in confusion and most of them did not know what they had all come for. But some of the crowd explained the trouble to Alexander, whom the Jews had pushed to the front, and he, motioning for silence, attempted to make a defence before the assembly. But when they recognized that he was a Jew, a single cry arose from them all: for about two hours they kept on shouting, 'Great is Diana of the Ephesians!'

The town clerk, however, quieted the crowd. 'Men of Ephesus,' he said, 'all the world knows that our city of Ephesus is temple-warden of the great Diana and of that symbol of her which fell from heaven. Since these facts are beyond dispute, your proper course is to keep quiet and do nothing rash. These men whom you have brought here as culprits have committed no sacrilege and uttered no blasphemy against our goddess. If therefore Demetrius and his craftsmen have a case against anyone, assizes are held and there are such people as prosecutors; let the parties bring their charges and countercharges. If, on the other hand, you have some further question to raise, it will be dealt with in the statutory assembly. We certainly run the risk of being charged with riot for this day's work. There is no justification for it, and if the issue is raised we shall be unable to give any explanation of this uproar.' With that he dismissed the assembly.

WHEN THE DISTURBANCE HAD CEASED, Paul sent for the disciples and, after encouraging them, said good-bye and set out on his journey to Macedonia. He travelled through those parts of the country, often speaking words of encouragement to the Christians there, and so came into Greece. When he had spent three months there and was on the point of embarking for Syria, a plot was laid against him by the Jews, so he decided to return by way of Macedonia. He was accompanied by Sopater son of Pyrrhus, from Beroea, the Thessalonians Aristarchus and Secundus, Gaius the Doberian<sup>b</sup> and Timothy, and the Asians Tychicus and Trophimus. These went ahead and waited for us at Troas; we ourselves set sail from Philippi

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read the Derbaean.

24: Diana (Artemis) was a fertility goddess whose temple was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world and a major tourist attraction. 26: Demetrius seems to identify the images of Artemis with the goddess herself; compare 17.24-25. 29: The theatre, recovered through excavation, had places for about 29,000 people. 34: This is an indication of the anti-Semitism prevalent in many parts of the ancient world; compare 16.20-21. 20.1-6: Return to Greece. 2-4: This journey, with its change of plans, appears to be reflected in 1 Cor.16.5-9; 2 Cor.1.15-2.13; 7.5-7. 4: The many traveling companions imply Paul is bringing the collection to Jerusalem;

after the Passover season,<sup>c</sup> and in five days reached them at Troas, where we spent a week.

7 On the Saturday night, in our assembly for the breaking of bread, Paul, who was to leave next day, addressed them, and went on speaking until midnight. Now there were many lamps in the upper room where we were assembled; and a youth named Eutychus, who was sitting on the window-ledge, grew more and more sleepy as Paul went on talking. At last he was completely overcome by sleep, fell from the third storey to the ground, and was picked up for dead. Paul went down, threw himself upon him, seizing him in his arms, and said to them, 'Stop this commotion; there is still life in him.'

11 He then went upstairs, broke bread and ate, and after much conversation, which lasted until dawn, he departed.

12 And they took the boy away alive and were immensely comforted.

13 We went ahead to the ship and sailed for Assos, where we were to take Paul aboard. He had made this arrangement, as he was going to travel by road. When he met us at Assos, we took him aboard and went on to Mitylene. Next day we sailed from there and arrived opposite Chios, and on the second day we made Samos. On the following day<sup>d</sup> we reached Miletus. For Paul had decided to pass by Ephesus and so avoid having to spend time in the province of Asia; he was eager to be in Jerusalem, if he possibly could, on the day of Pentecost. He did, however, send from Miletus to Ephesus and summon the elders of the congregation; and when they joined him, he spoke as follows:

19 'You know how, from the day that I first set foot in the province of Asia, for the whole time that I was with you, I served the Lord in all humility amid the sorrows and trials that came upon me through the machinations of the Jews. You know that I kept back nothing that was for your good: I delivered the message to you; I taught you, in public and in your homes; with Jews and Gentiles alike I insisted on repentance before God and trust in our Lord Jesus. And now, as you see, I am on my way to Jerusalem, under the constraint of the Spirit.<sup>e</sup> Of what will befall me there I know nothing, except that in city after city the Holy Spirit assures me that imprisonment and hardships await me. For myself, I set no store by life; I only want to finish the race, and complete the task which the Lord Jesus assigned to me, of bearing my testimony to the gospel of God's grace.

'One word more: I have gone about among you proclaiming the Kingdom, but now I know that none of you will see my face again. That being so, I here and now declare that no man's fate can be laid at my door; for I have kept back nothing; I have disclosed to you the whole purpose of God. Keep watch over yourselves and over all the flock of which the Holy Spirit has given you charge, as shepherds of the church of the Lord,<sup>f</sup> which he won for himself by his own blood.<sup>g</sup> I know that when I am gone, savage wolves will come in among you and will not spare the flock. Even from your own body there will be men coming forward who will distort the truth to induce the disciples to break away and follow them. So be on the alert; remember how for three years, night and day, I never ceased to counsel each of you, and how I wept over you.

<sup>c</sup> Literally after the days of Unleavened Bread.

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses read . . . Samos, and, after stopping at Trogyllium, on the following day . . .

<sup>e</sup> Or under an inner compulsion.

<sup>f</sup> Some witnesses read of God.

<sup>g</sup> Or, according to some witnesses, by the blood of his Own.

compare 24.17. 7-12: Eutychus survives. 7: Saturday night may also be translated "Sunday," when Christian gatherings were usually held; see 1 Cor.16.2. The breaking of bread was a regular Christian act (see 2.42), and probably included the Eucharist. 10: The Greek implies Paul restored him to life; compare 1 Kgs.17.21-22. 13-16: On to Miletus. 14-15: Mitylene, Chios and Samos are located on offshore islands. 17-38: Paul's farewell to the Ephesian elders. 19: Paul's Corinthian correspondence refers to his sorrows (2 Cor.1.5-10) and trials (1 Cor.15.32) in Ephesus. 20: See 2 Cor.4.2. 23: See 9.16; for one form of such a warning, see 21.10-11. 25: Proclaiming the Kingdom: see 19.8 n. The latter part of this verse anticipates Paul's imprisonment and death. 27: That everything happens according to the purpose of God, compare 2.23 (and n.); 4.28; 13.48. 29: Similar trouble at Ephesus is described in Rev.2.1-7. Wolves:

- 32 'And now I commend you to God and to his gracious word, which has power to build you up and give you your heritage among all who are dedicated to him. I have not wanted anyone's money or clothes for myself; you all know that these hands of mine earned enough for the needs of myself and my companions. I showed you that it is our duty to help the weak in this way, by hard work, and that we should keep in mind the words of the Lord Jesus, who himself said, "Happiness lies more in giving than in receiving,"'
- 36 As he finished speaking, he knelt down with them all and prayed. Then there were loud cries of sorrow from them all, as they folded Paul in their arms and kissed him. What distressed them most was his saying that they would never see his face again. So they escorted him to his ship.
- 21 When we had parted from them and set sail, we made a straight run and came to Cos; next day to Rhodes, and thence to Patara.<sup>h</sup> There we found a ship bound for Phoenicia, so we went aboard and sailed in her. We came in sight of Cyprus, and leaving it to port, we continued our voyage to Syria, and put in at Tyre, for there the ship was to unload her cargo. We went and found the disciples and stayed there a week; and they, warned by the Spirit, urged Paul to abandon his visit to Jerusalem. But when our time ashore was ended, we left and continued our journey; and they and their wives and children all escorted us out of the city. We knelt down on the beach and prayed, then bade each other good-bye; we went aboard, and they returned home.
- 7 We made the passage from Tyre and reached Ptolemais, where we greeted the brotherhood and spent one day with them. Next day we left and came to Caesarea. We went to the home of Philip the evangelist, who was one of - the Seven, and stayed with him. He had four unmarried daughters, who possessed the gift of prophecy. When we had been there several days, a prophet named Agabus arrived from Judaea. He came to us, took Paul's belt, bound his own feet and hands with it, and said, 'These are the words of the Holy Spirit: Thus will the Jews in Jerusalem bind the man to whom this belt belongs, and hand him over to the Gentiles.' When we heard this, we and the local people begged and implored Paul to abandon his visit to Jerusalem. Then Paul gave his answer: 'Why all these tears? Why are you trying to weaken my resolution? For my part I am ready not merely to be bound but even to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.' So, as he would not be persuaded, we gave up and said, 'The Lord's will be done.'
- At the end of our stay we packed our baggage and took the road up to Jerusalem. Some of the disciples Caesarea came along with us, bringing a certain Mnason of Cyprus, a Christian from the early days, with whom we were to lodge. So we reached Jerusalem, where the brotherhood welcomed us gladly.
- Next day Paul paid a visit to James; we were with him, and all the elders attended. He greeted them, and then described in detail all that God had done among the Gentiles through his ministry. When they heard this, they gave praise to God. Then they said to Paul: 'You see, brother, how many thousands of converts we have among the Jews, all of them staunch upholders of the Law. Now they have been given certain information about you: it is said that you teach all the Jews in the gentile world to turn their backs on Moses, telling them to give up circumcising their children and following our way of life. What is the position, then?

<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses add and Myra.

see Mt.7.15 (and n.). 35: This saying of Jesus does not appear in any of the Gospels. 21.1-17: To Jerusalem via Caesarea. 8: Compare 8.40. Evangelist: compare Eph.4.11; 2 Tim.4.5 n. The Seven: see 6.5. 10: Agabus acts out his message as did the OT prophets; see Jer. chs.27-28; Ezek. ch. 4; Isa. ch. 20.

21.18-22.29: Paul arrested in Jerusalem. 18-26: Paul undergoes ritual purification. 20-25: These verses are written as though the events surrounding the Apostolic Council had not happened, and as if Paul had not known of the letter sent to the Gentile churches; see ch. 15. 21: As far as Paul's conduct in Acts is concerned, these charges are false, as v. 26 and 16.3 affirm.

They are sure to hear that you have 23 arrived. You must therefore do as we tell you. We have four men here who 24 are under a vow; take them with you and go through the ritual of purification with them, paying their expenses, after which they may shave their heads. Then everyone will know that there is nothing in the stories they were told about you,
 but that you are a practising Jew and 25 keep the Law yourself. As for the gentile converts, we sent them our decision that they must abstain from meat that has been offered to idols, from blood,
 from anything that has been strangled,<sup>i</sup> 26 and from fornication.' So Paul took the four men, and next day, after going through the ritual of purification with them, he went into the temple to give notice of the date when the period of purification would end and the offering be made for each one of them.

From Jerusalem to Rome

27 BUT JUST BEFORE THE SEVEN DAYS WERE
 up, the Jews from the province of Asia saw him in the temple. They stirred up the whole crowd, and seized him,
 28 shouting, 'Men of Israel, help, help!
 This is the fellow who spreads his doctrine all over the world, attacking
 our people, our law, and this sanctuary.
 On top of all this he has brought Gentiles into the temple and profaned this 29 holy place.' For they had previously seen Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the city, and assumed that Paul had brought him into the temple.

30 The whole city was in a turmoil, and people came running from all directions. They seized Paul and dragged him out of the temple; and at once the 31 doors were shut. While they were clamouring for his death, a report reached the officer commanding the cohort, that all Jerusalem was in an uproar. He immediately took a force of soldiers with their centurions and 32 came down on the rioters at the double.

 As soon as they saw the commandant
 and his troops, they stopped beating Paul. The commandant stepped for-33 ward, arrested him, and ordered him to be shackled with two chains: he then asked who the man was and what he had been doing. Some in the crowd 34 shouted one thing, some another. As he could not get at the truth because of the hubbub, he ordered him to be taken into barracks. When Paul reached 35 the steps, he had to be carried by the soldiers because of the violence of the mob. For the whole crowd were at their 36 heels yelling, 'Kill him!'

Just before Paul was taken into the 37 barracks he said to the commandant,
 'May I have a word with you?' The commandant said, 'So you speak Greek, do you? Then you are not the 38 Egyptian who started a revolt some time ago and led a force of four thousand terrorists out into the wilds?'
 Paul replied, 'I am a Jew, a Tarsian
 39 from Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city.
 I ask your permission to speak to the people.' When permission had been 40 given, Paul stood on the steps and with a gesture called for the attention of the people. As soon as quiet was restored, he addressed them in the Jewish language:

22 'Brothers and fathers, give me a hearing while I make my defence before you.' When they heard him speaking 2 to them in their own language, they listened the more quietly. 'I am a true-3 born Jew,' he said, 'a native of Tarsus in Cilicia. I was brought up in this city,

<sup>i</sup> Some witnesses omit from anything that has been strangled.

23: A vow: perhaps the Nazirite; see 18.18; Num.6.1-21. 26: Compare Num.6.13-21. 27-40: Paul arrested in the Temple. 28: Compare the charges against Stephen: 6.13-14. Into the temple: into the Court of the Israelites. Gentiles were permitted only in the outer court. 30: The doors separated the Court of the Israelites from the Court of the Gentiles, into which Paul was now dragged. 32: The Roman soldiers charged with keeping order in the Temple were stationed in the Tower of Antonia, a fortress adjoining the Temple at the northwest corner. 35: The steps led up into the Tower of Antonia; there were two flights. 38: The Jewish historian Josephus puts the original army of this Egyptian at thirty thousand, but his attempt to conquer Jerusalem was defeated by the procurator Felix (23.24), and only a portion of the revolutionaries escaped. 22.1-21: Paul's speech in Jerusalem. 3: Gamaliel (see 5.34) enjoyed some fame as a rabbi, but is not mentioned in any of Paul's letters nor by the contemporary Jewish writers, Philo and

and as a pupil of Gamaliel I was thoroughly trained in every point of our ancestral law. I have always been ardent in God's service, as you all are today. And so I began to persecute this movement to the death, arresting its followers, men and women alike, and putting them in chains. For this I have as witnesses the High Priest and the whole Council of Elders. I was given letters from them to our fellow-Jews at Damascus, and had started out to bring the Christians there to Jerusalem as prisoners for punishment; and this is what happened. I was on the road and nearing Damascus, when suddenly about midday a great light flashed from the sky all around me, and I fell to the ground. Then I heard a voice saying to me, "Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?" I answered, "Tell me, Lord, who you are." "I am Jesus of Nazareth," he said, "whom you are persecuting." My companions saw the light, but did not hear the voice that spoke to me. "What shall I do, Lord?" I said, and the Lord replied, "Get up and continue your journey to Damascus; there you will be told of all the tasks that are laid upon you." As I had been blinded by the brilliance of that light, my companions led me by the hand, and so I came to Damascus.

12 "There, a man called Ananias, a devout observer of the Law and well spoken of by all the Jews of that place, came and stood before me and said, "Saul, my brother, recover your sight." Instantly I recovered my sight and saw him. He went on: "The God of our fathers appointed you to know his will and to see the Righteous One and to hear his very voice, because you are to be his witness before the world, and testify to what you have seen and heard. And now why delay? Be baptized at once, with invocation of his name, and wash away your sins."

17 "After my return to Jerusalem, I was praying in the temple when I fell into a trance and saw him there, speaking to me. "Make haste", he said, "and leave Jerusalem without delay, for they will not accept your testimony about me." "Lord," I said, "they know that I imprisoned those who believe in thee, and flogged them in every synagogue; and when the blood of Stephen thy witness was shed I stood by, approving, and I looked after the clothes of those who killed him." But he said to me, "Go, for I am sending you far away to the Gentiles."

22 Up to this point they had given him a hearing; but now they began shouting, "Down with him! A scoundrel like that is better dead!" And as they were yelling and waving their cloaks and flinging dust in the air, the commandant ordered him to be brought into the barracks and gave instructions to examine him by flogging, and find out what reason there was for such an outcry against him. But when they tied him up for the lash,<sup>j</sup> Paul said to the centurion who was standing there, "Can you legally flog a man who is a Roman citizen, and moreover has not been found guilty?" When the centurion heard this, he went and reported it to the commandant. "What do you mean to do?" he said. "This man is a Roman citizen." The commandant came to Paul. "Tell me, are you a Roman citizen?" he asked. "Yes," said he. The commandant rejoined, "It cost me a large sum to acquire this citizenship." Paul said, "But it was mine by birth." Then those who were about to examine him with-

j Or tied him up with thongs.

Josephus. 5: The Council of Elders is the Sanhedrin; see Mt.26.59 n. 6-11: Compare 9.3-9; 26.13-16. 7: Persecute me: see 9.4 n. 12: Ananias: compare 9.10-16, although his attitude to the Law is not mentioned there. 14: Appointed you: Paul expressly denied he received his commission from any man (Gal.1.1). 18: Leave Jerusalem without delay, implying Paul did not preach in Jerusalem, agrees with Gal.1.16-20; but see 9.28-29. 19-20: In a situation like this, the testimony of a Jewish convert to the Christian faith could be expected to carry considerable weight. 21: The immediate occasion of Paul's arrest was temple profanation (21.28); here the point at issue seems to be Paul's association with Gentiles and the resulting dissolution of the Law. Later the charge will concern resurrection (23.6). 22-29: Reaction to Paul's speech. 24: It was Roman practice to obtain testimony from slaves and noncitizens by torture (flogging), on the assumption that lying in such circumstances was not likely. 27: The penalty for falsely claiming citizenship was death.

drew hastily, and the commandant himself was alarmed when he realized that Paul was a Roman citizen and that he had put him in irons.

30 THE FOLLOWING DAY, WISHING TO BE quite sure what charge the Jews were bringing against Paul, he released him and ordered the chief priests and the entire Council to assemble. He then took Paul down and stood him before them.

23 Paul fixed his eyes on the Council and said, 'My brothers, I have lived all my life, and still live today, with a perfectly clear conscience before God.' At this the High Priest Ananias ordered his attendants to strike him on the mouth. Paul retorted, 'God will strike you, you whitewashed wall! You sit there to judge me in accordance with the Law; and then in defiance of the Law you order me to be struck!' The attendants said, 'Would you insult God's High Priest?' 'My brothers,' said Paul, 'I had no idea that he was High Priest; Scripture, I know, says: "You must not abuse the ruler of your people."'

6 Now Paul was well aware that one section of them were Sadducees and the other Pharisees, so he called out in the Council, 'My brothers, I am a Pharisee, a Pharisee born and bred; and the true issue in this trial is our hope of the resurrection of the dead.' At these words the Pharisees and Sadducees fell out among themselves, and the assembly was divided. (The Sadducees deny that there is any resurrection, or angel, or spirit, but the Pharisees accept them.) So a great uproar broke out; and some of the doctors of the law belonging to the Pharisaic party openly took sides and declared, 'We can find no fault with this man; perhaps an angel or spirit has spoken to him.' The dissension was mounting, and the commandant was afraid that Paul would be torn to pieces, so he ordered the troops to go down, pull him out of the crowd, and bring him into the barracks.

The following night the Lord appeared to him and said, 'Keep up your courage; you have affirmed the truth about me in Jerusalem, and you must do the same in Rome.'

When day broke, the Jews banded together and took an oath not to eat or drink until they had killed Paul. There were more than forty in this conspiracy. They came to the chief priests and elders and said, 'We have bound ourselves by a solemn oath not to taste food until we have killed Paul. It is now for you, acting with the Council, to apply to the commandant to bring him down to you, on the pretext of a closer investigation of his case; and we have arranged to do away with him before he arrives.'

But the son of Paul's sister heard of the ambush; he went to the barracks, obtained entry, and reported it to Paul. Paul called one of the centurions and said, 'Take this young man to the commandant; he has something to report.' The centurion took him and brought him to the commandant. 'The prisoner Paul', he said, 'sent for me and asked me to bring this young man to you; he has something to tell you.' The commandant took him by the arm, drew him aside, and asked him, 'What is it you have to report?' He said, 'The Jews have made a plan among themselves and will request you to bring Paul down to the Council tomorrow, on the pretext of obtaining more precise information about him. Do not listen to them; for a party more than forty strong are lying in wait for him. They have sworn not to eat or drink until they have done away with him; they are now ready, and wait only for your consent.' So the commandant dismissed the young man, with orders not to let anyone know that he had given him this information.

22.30-24.27: Paul and Felix. 23.1-10: Paul before the Council. 1: The clear conscience mentioned here apparently is meant to include the events recited in 22:19-20; Paul refers to his persecution of Christians in his letters, but does not relate it to a clear conscience. 2: The High Priest Ananias entered that office about 48 A.D., was deposed during the rule of Felix, and was murdered in 66 A.D.; see 4.6 n. 5: Exod.22.28. This continues Acts' picture of Paul as a true follower of the Law; compare 16.3; 22.26; 24.14; Lk.24.44. For Luke, the Christian faith is the true fulfillment of Judaism. 6: See 22.21 n. 8: On Sadducees and resurrection, see 4.2; Mt.3.7 n.; Lk.20.27-38. 11: Key events in Paul's life were revealed to him by the Lord, or by the Holy Spirit; see 18.9-10; 20.23; 22.17-21. 12-22: A plot against Paul. 13: Such a conspiracy is repeated in 25.3 (compare 9.23); it was possible under Jewish law to be released from such an oath. 16: That Paul's nephew was able to obtain entry was not unusual; see Mt.11.2; 25.36.

23 Then he called a couple of his centurions and issued these orders: 'Get ready two hundred infantry to proceed to Caesarea, together with seventy cavalymen and two hundred light-armed troops;<sup>k</sup> parade three hours after sunset. Provide also mounts for Paul so that he may ride through under safe escort to Felix the Governor.' And he wrote a letter to this effect:

26 'Claudius Lysias to His Excellency the Governor Felix. Your Excellency: 27 This man was seized by the Jews and was on the point of being murdered when I intervened with the troops and removed him, because I discovered that he was a Roman citizen. As I wished to ascertain the charge on which they were accusing him, I took him down 28 to their Council. I found that the accusation had to do with controversial matters in their law, but there was no charge against him meriting death or imprisonment. However, I have now 29 been informed of an attempt to be made on the man's life, so I am sending him to you at once, and have also instructed his accusers to state their case against him before you.'<sup>l</sup>

31 Acting on their orders, the infantry took Paul and brought him by night 32 to Antipatris. Next day they returned to their barracks, leaving the cavalry to escort him the rest of the way. The cavalry entered Caesarea, delivered the letter to the Governor, and handed 34 Paul over to him. He read the letter, asked him what province he was from, and learned that he was from Cilicia. 35 'I will hear your case', he said, 'when your accusers arrive.' He then ordered him to be held in custody at his headquarters in Herod's palace.

FIVE DAYS LATE THE HIGH PRIEST 24 Ananias came down, accompanied by some of the elders and an advocate named Tertullus, and they laid an information against Paul before the Governor. When the prisoner was 2 called, Tertullus opened the case.

'Your Excellency,' he said, 'we owe it to you that we enjoy unbroken peace. It is due to your provident care that, in all kinds of ways and in all sorts of places, improvements are being made for the good of this province. We welcome this, sir, most gratefully. And 4 now, not to take up too much of your time, I crave your indulgence for a brief statement of our case. We have 5 found this man to be a perfect pest, a fomentor of discord among the Jews all over the world, a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes. He even made an 6 attempt to profane the temple; and then we arrested him.<sup>m</sup> If you will 8 examine him yourself you can ascertain from him the truth of all the charges we bring.' The Jews supported the 9 attack, alleging that the facts were as he stated.

Then the Governor motioned to 10 Paul to speak, and he began his reply: 'Knowing as I do that for many years you have administered justice in this province, I make my defence with confidence. You can ascertain the facts for yourself. It is not more than twelve 11 days since I went up to Jerusalem on a pilgrimage. They did not find me arguing with anyone, or collecting a crowd, either in the temple or in the synagogues or up and down the city; and 13 they cannot make good the charges

<sup>k</sup> Or two hundred spearmen (the meaning of the Greek word is uncertain).

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses read: '... before you. Farewell.'
<sup>m</sup> Some witnesses insert: 'It was our intention to try him under our law; (7) but Lysias the commandant intervened and took him by force out of our hands, (8) ordering his accusers to come before you.'

23-35: Paul is taken to Felix. 23: Caesarea: see 10.1 n. 24: Antonius Felix, probably a freed slave of the mother of Emperor Claudius, was procurator about 52-55 A.D.; his reputation as procurator was not a good one. 35: The exact location of Herod's palace is unknown. 24.1-9: Jewish charges against Paul. 1: Compare 23.30. Ananias: see 23.2 n. 2: Historically, Palestine at this time was wracked with murder and revolt. Such praise is, however, rhetorical convention. 4: This is a further example of Hellenistic rhetorical convention. 6: The attempt to profane the temple was a baseless charge; see 21.26,29. 10-21: Paul's defense. 10: For many years: Felix was procurator for about three years in this province, but, again, this is rhetorical con-

14 they bring against me. But this much I will admit: I am a follower of the new way (the "sect" they speak of), and it is in that manner that I worship the God of our fathers; for I believe all that is written in the Law and the prophets, and in reliance on God I hold the hope, which my accusers too accept, that there is to be a resurrection of good and wicked alike. Accordingly I, no less than they, train myself to keep at all times a clear conscience before God and man.

17 'After an absence of several years I came to bring charitable gifts to my nation and to offer sacrifices. They found me in the temple ritually purified and engaged in this service. I had no crowd with me, and there was no disturbance. But some Jews from the province of Asia were there, and if they had any charge against me it is they who ought to have been in court to state it. Failing that, it is for these persons here present to say what crime they discovered when I was brought before the Council, apart from this one open assertion which I made as I stood there: "The true issue in my trial before you today is the resurrection of the dead."'

22 Then Felix, who happened to be well informed about the Christian movement, adjourned the hearing. 'When Lysias the commanding officer comes down', he said, 'I will go into your case.' He gave orders to the centurion to keep Paul under open arrest and not to prevent any of his friends from making themselves useful to him.

24 Some days later Felix came with his wife Drusilla, who was a Jewess, and sending for Paul he let him talk to him about faith in Christ Jesus. But when the discourse turned to questions of morals, self-control, and the coming judgement, Felix became alarmed and exclaimed, 'That will do for the present; when I find it convenient I will send for you again.' At the same time he had hopes of a bribe from Paul; and for this reason he sent for him very often and talked with him. When two years had passed, Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus. Wishing to curry favour with the Jews, Felix left Paul in custody.

THREE DAYS AFTER TAKING UP HIS appointment Festus went up from Caesarea to Jerusalem, where the chief priests and the Jewish leaders brought before him the case against Paul. They asked Festus to favour them against him, and pressed for him to be brought up to Jerusalem, for they were planning an ambush to kill him on the way. Festus, however, replied, 'Paul is in safe custody at Caesarea, and I shall be leaving Jerusalem shortly myself; so let your leading men come down with me, and if there is anything wrong, let them prosecute him.'

After spending eight or ten days at most in Jerusalem, he went down to Caesarea, and next day he took his seat in court and ordered Paul to be brought up. When he appeared, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem stood round bringing many grave charges, which they were unable to prove. Paul's plea was: 'I have committed no offence, either against the Jewish law, or against the temple, or against the Emperor.' Festus, anxious to ingratiate himself with the Jews, turned to Paul and asked, 'Are you willing to go up to Jerusalem and stand trial on these charges before me there?' But Paul said, 'I am now stand-vention. 15: Only the Pharisees among his accusers accepted the resurrection: see 23.8. 17: Compare Rom.15.25-27. While this may be historically true, the bringing of charitable gifts was not given as the reason for this trip to Jerusalem in 19.21; see 11.29 n. 21: See 22.21 n. 22-27: Discussion between Paul and Felix. 24: Drusilla, the daughter of Herod Agrippa (see 12.1 (and n.)-23), was one of three noble ladies Felix married, this one having deserted her husband, King Azizus of Emesa, for him. 26: This accords with the way Felix is described by ancient historians. This also informs us why Paul, though innocent, was not released. There was no legal way he could compel a decision to be rendered.

---

25.1-26.32: Paul and Festus. 1-5: Festus goes to Jerusalem. 1: Little is known of Porcius Festus: he probably assumed office about 55 A.D. 3: Planning an ambush: see 23.12-15. 6-12: Paul appeals to Caesar. 6: This is Paul's second hearing in Caesarea; see 24.1-21. 9: Paul was a similar pawn to Felix (24.24-26); this verse again explains why Paul, though innocent, was

ing before the Emperor's tribunal, and that is where I must be tried. Against the Jews I have committed no offence, as you very well know. If I am guilty of any capital crime, I do not ask to escape the death penalty; but if there is no substance in the charges which these men bring against me, it is not open to anyone to hand me over as a sop to them. I appeal to Caesar!' Then Festus, after conferring with his advisers, replied, 'You have appealed to Caesar: to Caesar you shall go.'

After an interval of some days King Agrippa and Bernice arrived at Caesarea on a courtesy visit to Festus. They spent several days there, and during this time Festus laid Paul's case before the king. 'We have a man', he said, 'left in custody by Felix; and when I was in Jerusalem the chief priests and elders of the Jews laid an information against him, demanding his condemnation. I answered them, "It is not Roman practice to hand over any accused man before he is confronted with his accusers and given an opportunity of answering the charge." So when they had come here with me I lost no time; the very next day I took my seat in court and ordered the man to be brought up. But when his accusers rose to speak, they brought none of the charges I was expecting; they merely had certain points of disagreement with him about their peculiar religion, and about someone called Jesus, a dead man whom Paul alleged to be alive. Finding myself out of my depth in such discussions, I asked if he was willing to go to Jerusalem and stand his trial there on these issues. But Paul appealed to be remanded in custody for His Imperial Majesty's decision, and I ordered him to be detained until I could send him to the Emperor.' Agrippa said to Festus, 'I should rather like to hear the man myself.' 'Tomorrow', he answered, 'you shall hear him.'

So next day Agrippa and Bernice came in full state and entered the audience-chamber accompanied by high-ranking officers and prominent citizens; and on the orders of Festus Paul was brought up. Then Festus said, 'King Agrippa, and all you gentlemen here present with us, you see this man: the whole body of the Jews approached me both in Jerusalem and here, loudly insisting that he had no right to remain alive. But it was clear to me that he had committed no capital crime, and when he himself appealed to His Imperial Majesty, I decided to send him. But I have nothing definite about him to put in writing for our Sovereign. Accordingly I have brought him up before you all and particularly before you, King Agrippa, so that as a result of this preliminary inquiry I may have something to report. There is no sense, it seems to me, in sending on a prisoner without indicating the charges against him.'

Agrippa said to Paul, 'You have our permission to speak for yourself.' Then Paul stretched out his hand and began his defence:

'I consider myself fortunate, King Agrippa, that it is before you that I am to make my defence today upon all the charges brought against me by the Jews, particularly as you are expert in all Jewish matters, both our customs and our disputes. And therefore I beg you to give me a patient hearing.

'My life from my youth up, the life I led from the beginning among my people and in Jerusalem, is familiar to all Jews. Indeed they have known me long enough and could testify, if they not released. 11: In this way, the words of the Lord to Paul (23.11) began their fulfillment. Little is known, apart from this verse, about the circumstances surrounding an appeal to Caesar in the time of the Roman Empire. 13-22: Agrippa and Festus. 13: King Marcus Julius Agrippa II, king of some territories in northern Palestine, was the son of Herod Agrippa I (12.1-5, 20-23), and a brother of Drusilla (24.24). Bernice, a widow at this time, was another of Agrippa's sisters; their constant companionship was an ancient scandal. 16: Festus himself did not hold to this practice in Paul's case, nor did Felix; see 24.18-19. 23-27: Preliminary inquiry instituted. 25: The commandant in Jerusalem had come to the same decision (23.29); the Pharisees, too, had declared him innocent (23.9). 26.1-32: Paul makes his defence. This speech sums up Paul's career as portrayed in Acts. 1: When Paul spoke to King Agrippa, the prophecy of Jesus about Paul's career (9.15) was fulfilled; compare Lk.21.12. 2-3: Such an introduction was a Hellenistic rhetorical convention; see 24.2-3, 10. 4: See 22.3. 5: See 23.6; Phil.3.5. 7: Twelve tribes hope:

only would, that I belonged to the strictest group in our religion: I lived as a Pharisee. And it is for a hope kindled by God's promise to our forefathers that I stand in the dock today.

Our twelve tribes hope to see the fulfilment of that promise, worshipping with intense devotion day and night; and for this very hope I am impeached, and impeached by Jews, Your Majesty.

Why is it considered incredible among you that God should raise dead men to life?

I myself once thought it my duty to work actively against the name of Jesus of Nazareth; and I did so in Jerusalem. It was I who imprisoned many of God's people by authority obtained from the chief priests; and when they were condemned to death, my vote was cast against them. In all the synagogues I tried by repeated punishment to make them renounce their faith; indeed my fury rose to such a pitch that I extended my persecution to foreign cities.

'On one such occasion I was travelling to Damascus with authority and commission from the chief priests; and as I was on my way, Your Majesty, in the middle of the day I saw a light from the sky, more brilliant than the sun, shining all around me and my travelling-companions. We all fell to the ground, and then I heard a voice saying to me in the Jewish language, "Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me? It is hard for you, this kicking against the goad." I said, "Tell me, Lord, who you are"; and the Lord replied, "I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. But now, rise to your feet and stand upright. I have appeared to you for a purpose: to appoint you my servant and witness, to testify both to what you have seen and to what you shall yet see of me. I will rescue you from this people and from the Gentiles to whom I am sending you. I send you to open their eyes and turn them from darkness to light, from the dominion of Satan to God, so that, by trust in me, they may obtain forgiveness of sins and a place with those whom God has made his own."

'And so, King Agrippa, I did not disobey the heavenly vision. I turned first to the inhabitants of Damascus, and then to Jerusalem and all the country of Judaea, and to the Gentiles, and sounded the call to repent and turn to God, and to prove their repentance by deeds. That is why the Jews seized me in the temple and tried to do away with me. But I had God's help, and so to this very day I stand and testify to great and small alike. I assert nothing beyond what was foretold by the prophets and by Moses: that the Messiah must suffer, and that he, the first to rise from the dead, would announce the dawn to Israel and to the Gentiles.'

While Paul was thus making his defence, Festus shouted at the top of his voice, 'Paul, you are raving; too much study is driving you mad.' 'I am not mad, Your Excellency,' said Paul; 'what I am saying is sober truth. The king is well versed in these matters, and to him I can speak freely. I do not believe that he can be unaware of any of these facts, for this has been no hole-and-corner business. King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know you do.' Agrippa said to Paul, 'You think it will not take much to win me over and make a Christian of me.' 'Much or little,' said Paul, 'I wish to God that not only you, but all those also who are listening to me today, might become what I am, apart from these chains.'

With that the king rose, and with him the Governor, Bernice, and the rest of the company, and after they had withdrawn they talked it over. 'This man', they said, 'is doing nothing that deserves death or imprisonment.' Agrippa said to Festus, 'The fellow could have been discharged, if he had not appealed to the Emperor.'

see 24.14–15. 8: See 22.21 n. 9–11: See 8.3 n. 12–15: See 9.3–6; 22.4–10. 14: Kicking against the goad comes from a Greek proverb. 16–18: According to 22.14–15, Paul received his commission from Ananias (see 9.6); the present account conforms more closely to Paul's own account (Gal.1.1,15–17). 21: Do away with me: see 21.30–32. 22: The prophets and Moses: see 23.5 n. 23: See Mk.8.31 for parallels; Lk.24.44–47. First to rise: see 1 Cor.15.20–23. 28: Christian: see 11.26 n. 30–32: Paul's innocence recognized. 31: This is the third time Paul's innocence has been implied (see 23.9; 25.25; also 23.29; compare Lk.23.4 n.). 32: Not enough is known of

- 27 WHEN IT WAS DECIDED THAT WE SHOULD sail for Italy, Paul and some other prisoners were handed over to a centurion named Julius, of the Augustan Cohort. We embarked in a ship of Adramyttium, bound for ports in the province of Asia, and put out to sea. In our party was Aristarchus, a Macedonian from Thessalonica. Next day we landed at Sidon; and Julius very considerably allowed Paul to go to his friends to be cared for. Leaving Sidon we sailed under the lee of Cyprus because of the head-winds, then across the open sea off the coast of Cilicia and Pamphylia, and so reached Myra in Lycia.
- 6 There the centurion found an Alexandrian vessel bound for Italy and put us aboard. For a good many days we made little headway, and we were hard put to it to reach Cnidus. Then, as the wind continued against us, off Salmone we began to sail under the lee of Crete, and, hugging the coast, struggled on to a place called Fair Havens, not far from the town of Lasea.
- 9 By now much time had been lost, the Fast was already over, and it was risky to go on with the voyage. Paul therefore gave them this advice: 'I can see, gentlemen,' he said, 'that this voyage will be disastrous: it will mean grave loss, loss not only of ship and cargo but also of life.' But the centurion paid more attention to the captain and to the owner of the ship than to what Paul said; and as the harbour was unsuitable for wintering, the majority were in favour of putting out to sea, hoping, if they could get so far, to winter at Phoenix, a Cretan harbour exposed south-west and north-west. So when a southerly breeze sprang up, they thought that their purpose was as good as achieved, and, weighing anchor, they sailed along the coast of Crete hugging the land. But before very long a fierce wind, the 'North-easter' as they call it, tore down from the landward side. It caught the ship and, as it was impossible to keep head to wind, we had to give way and run before it. We ran under the lee of a small island called Cauda, and with a struggle managed to get the ship's boat under control. When they had hoisted it aboard, they made use of tackle and undergirded the ship. Then, because they were afraid of running on to the shallows of Syrtis, they lowered the mainsail and let her drive. Next day, as we were making very heavy weather, they began to lighten the ship; and on the third day they jettisoned the ship's gear with their own hands. For days on end there was no sign of either sun or stars, a great storm was raging, and our last hopes of coming through alive began to fade.
- When they had gone for a long time without food, Paul stood up among them and said, 'You should have taken my advice, gentlemen, not to sail from Crete; then you would have avoided this damage and loss. But now I urge you not to lose heart; not a single life will be lost, only the ship. For last night there stood by me an angel of the God whose I am and whom I worship. "Do not be afraid, Paul," he said; "it is ordained that you shall appear before the Emperor; and, be assured, God has granted you the lives of all who are sailing with you." So keep up your courage: I trust in God that it will turn out as I have been told; though we have to be cast ashore on some island.'
- The fourteenth night came and we were still drifting in the Sea of Adria. In the middle of the night the sailors felt that land was getting nearer. They sounded and found twenty fathoms. Sounding again after a short interval

Roman law to determine whether a prisoner who had appealed to the Emperor could be released by some other judicial officer. This verse implies he could not.

27.1-28.31: Paul taken to Rome. 5-6: Myra in Lycia was an important way station for grain ships that regularly brought wheat from Egypt to Rome. Alexandria was the chief city of Egypt. 8: The exact locations of Fair Havens and Lasea are unknown. 9: The Fast probably refers to the Jewish Day of Atonement, which comes in early fall, a risky time for sailing. By November, all sailing ceased due to winter storms. 15: Ancient ships had severely limited capabilities of beating into the wind. 17: The meaning of tackle is unsure. How such a ship was undergirded is also unclear. Lowered the mainsail may also mean raise a (storm) sail, or rig a sea-anchor. 23-24: See 23.11 n. 24: Divine rescue from danger at sea was attributed to 29 they found fifteen fathoms; and fearing that we might be cast ashore on a rugged coast they dropped four anchors from the stern and prayed for daylight to come. The sailors tried to abandon ship; they had already lowered the ship's boat, pretending they were going to lay out anchors from the bows, 30 when Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers, 'Unless these men stay on board you can none of you come off safely.' So the soldiers cut the ropes of the boat and let her drop away.

31 Shortly before daybreak Paul urged them all to take some food. 'For the last fourteen days', he said, 'you have lived in suspense and gone hungry; you have eaten nothing whatever. So I beg you to have something to eat; your lives depend on it. Remember, not a hair of your heads will be lost.' With these words, he took bread, gave thanks to God in front of them all, broke it, and began eating. Then they all plucked up courage, and took food themselves. 32 There were on board two hundred and seventy-six of us in all. When they had eaten as much as they wanted they lightened the ship by dumping the corn in the sea.

33 When day broke they could not recognize the land, but they noticed a bay with a sandy beach, on which they planned, if possible, to run the ship ashore. So they slipped the anchors and let them go; at the same time they loosened the lashings of the steering-paddles, set the foresail to the wind, and let her drive to the beach. But they found themselves caught between cross-currents and ran the ship aground, so that the bow stuck fast and remained immovable, while the stern was being pounded to pieces by the breakers. The soldiers thought they had better kill the prisoners for fear that any should swim away and escape; but the centurion wanted to bring Paul safely through and prevented them from carrying out their plan. He gave orders that those who could swim should jump overboard first and get to land; the rest were to follow, some on planks, some on parts of the ship. And thus it was that all came safely to land.

Once we had made our way to safety we identified the island as Malta. The rough islanders treated us with uncommon kindness: because it was cold and had started to rain, they lit a bonfire and made us all welcome. Paul had got together an armful of sticks and put them on the fire, when a viper, driven out by the heat, fastened on his hand. The islanders, seeing the snake hanging on to his hand, said to one another, 'The man must be a murderer; he may have escaped from the sea, but divine justice has not let him live.' Paul, however, shook off the snake into the fire and was none the worse. He still expected that any moment he would swell up or drop down dead, but after waiting a long time without seeing anything extraordinary happen to him, they changed their minds and now said, 'He is a god.'

In the neighbourhood of that place there were lands belonging to the chief magistrate of the island, whose name was Publius. He took us in and entertained us hospitably for three days. It so happened that this man's father was in bed suffering from recurrent bouts of fever and dysentery. Paul visited him and, after prayer, laid his hands upon him and healed him; whereupon the other sick people on the island came also and were cured. They honoured us with many marks of respect, and when we were leaving they put on board provision for our needs.

Three months had passed when we set sail in a ship which had wintered in the island; she was the Castor and Pollux of Alexandria. We put in at many Hellenistic deities. 37: The number is well within the capacity of such a ship. 39-44: Paul reports suffering three earlier shipwrecks and drifting once twenty-four hours at sea (2 Cor. 11.25), but Acts gives no report of these incidents.

28.1-10: Paul at Malta. 1: Sometime after leaving Cauda, the wind must have shifted to the east; a continuing northeast wind would have landed them on the coast of Africa (27.17), not Malta. 6: Much of what Paul did and said in 27.9-28.10 would make him appear to be a Hellenistic divine man, or even a god.

28.11-15: On to Rome. 11: Three months: probably between November and February.

Syracuse and spent three days there; then we sailed round and arrived at Rhegium. After one day a south wind sprang up and we reached Puteoli in two days. There we found fellow-Christians and were invited to stay a week with them. And so to Rome. The Christians there had had news of us and came out to meet us as far as Appii Forum and Tres Tabernae, and when Paul saw them, he gave thanks to God and took courage.

16 WHEN WE ENTERED ROME PAUL WAS allowed to lodge by himself with a soldier in charge of him. Three days later he called together the local Jewish leaders; and when they were assembled, he said to them: 'My brothers, I, who never did anything against our people or the customs of our forefathers, am here as a prisoner; I was handed over to the Romans at Jerusalem. They examined me and would have liked to release me because there was no capital charge against me; but the Jews objected, and I had no option but to appeal to the Emperor; not that I had any accusation to bring against my own people. That is why I have asked to see you and talk to you, because it is for the sake of the hope of Israel that I am in chains, as you see.' They replied, 'We have had no communication from Judaea, nor has any countryman of ours arrived with any report or gossip to your discredit. We should like to hear from you what your views are; all we know about this sect is that no one has a good word to say for it.'

So they fixed a day, and came in large numbers as his guests. He dealt at length with the whole matter; he spoke urgently of the kingdom of God and sought to convince them about Jesus by appealing to the Law of Moses and the prophets. This went on from dawn to dusk. Some were won over by his arguments; others remained sceptical. Without reaching any agreement among themselves they began to disperse, but not before Paul had said one thing more: 'How well the Holy Spirit spoke to your fathers through the prophet Isaiah when he said, "Go to this people and say: You may hear and hear, but you will never understand; you may look and look, but you will never see. For this people's mind has become gross; their ears are dulled, and their eyes are closed. Otherwise, their eyes might see, their ears hear, and their mind understand, and then they might turn again, and I would heal them." Therefore take notice that this salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles; the Gentiles will listen.'<sup>n</sup>

He stayed there two full years at his own expense, with a welcome for all who came to him, proclaiming the kingdom of God and teaching the facts about the Lord Jesus Christ quite openly and without hindrance.

<sup>n</sup> Some witnesses add (29) After he had spoken, the Jews went away, arguing vigorously among themselves.

Sailing resumed in late February or early March. 13: Grain ships from Egypt unloaded at Puteoli, the major Roman harbor for foreign trade. 14: When Paul reached Rome, the prophecy of 23.11 was fulfilled, as well as the program outlined in 1.8; see also Rom.15.22-24,28. 15: Though Paul had never been to Rome, he and the Christians there knew about each other; see Rom.1.8; 15.14-16. The NT tells us nothing about the origin of the Christian congregation in Rome.

28.16-31: Paul in Rome. 17: This was the original accusation by the Jews from Asia; see 21.28. 18: No capital charge; see 23.29; 25.25; 26.31. 23: Kingdom of God: see 19.8 n. 26: Isa.6.9-10 Sept.; compare Mk.4.12 and parallels. This is similar to Stephen's condemnation of the Jews (7.51-53). 28: As the whole narrative has shown, this is a major theme of Acts; see 13.46 n. 31: The story which began with Jesus in Galilee (the Gospel of Luke) has now moved through Jerusalem to Rome, and, in the author's view, will continue to the ends of the earth (1.8). Although we would like to know the outcome of Paul's imprisonment, that information is not essential for the author's purpose. He has had in mind a story that remains incomplete until the fulfillment of God's plan in the remote future. Meanwhile, men will be proclaiming the kingdom of God and teaching the facts about the Lord Jesus Christ.

LETTERS

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE ROMANS

The longest of Paul's letters (and first in the New Testament sequence) contains the fullest and most balanced statement of his theology. For a year or two Paul had been collecting relief money for the Christian poor in Jerusalem (15.16; 1 Cor.16.1; 2 Cor.8.4; 9.1). Now, perhaps because of Judaizers (see Introduction to Galatians), he has decided that he can no longer work in his old territory (from Syria to Illyricum; 15.19,23). He proposes to visit Rome, after he has delivered this collection (15.25), in order to open a new mission farther west ("Spain"; 15.24,28). To introduce himself to the Romans, a church he has never visited, he fills this impressive letter with insights derived from past crises in his eventful ministry. Perhaps he also intends to scotch any rumors that labeled him as antinomian (3.8,31; 7.12; chs. 13-14) or anti-Jewish (3.1-3; chs. 9-11).

As to the date: the collection project implies the chronological sequence—1 Corinthians, 2 Corinthians, chs. 1-9, Romans—over a period of perhaps two years. The Judaizing crisis suggests that Galatians immediately preceded Romans. Opinions about the year vary from 48 A.D. to 58 A.D.

The Gospel according to Paul

1 FROM PAUL, SERVANT OF CHRIST Jesus, apostle by God's call, set apart for the service of the Gospel.

2 This Gospel God announced beforehand in sacred scriptures through his
3 prophets. It is about his Son: on the human level he was born of David's
4 stock, but on the level of the spirit—the Holy Spirit—he was declared Son of God by a mighty act in that he rose from the dead:<sup>a</sup> it is about Jesus Christ
5 our Lord. Through him I received the privilege of a commission in his name to lead to faith and obedience men in 6 all nations, yourselves among them, you who have heard the call and belong to Jesus Christ.

7 I send greetings to all of you in Rome whom God loves and has called to be his dedicated people. Grace and peace to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

8 Let me begin by thanking my God, through Jesus Christ, for you all, because all over the world they are telling 9 the story of your faith. God is my witness, the God to whom I offer the humble service of my spirit by preaching the gospel of his Son: God knows how continually I make mention of you in my prayers, and am always asking 10 that by his will I may, somehow or other, succeed at long last in coming to visit you. For I long to see you; I 11 want to bring you some spiritual gift to make you strong; or rather, I want 12 to be among you to be myself encouraged by your faith as well as you by mine.

But I should like you to know,<sup>b</sup> my 13 brothers, that I have often planned to come, though so far without success, in the hope of achieving something among you, as I have in other parts of the world. I am under obligation to Greek 14 and non-Greek, to learned and simple; hence my eagerness to declare the 15 Gospel to you in Rome as well as to others. For I am not ashamed of the 16 Gospel. It is the saving power of God for everyone who has faith—the Jew

<sup>a</sup> Or declared Son of God with full powers from the time when he rose from the dead.

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read I believe you know.

1.1-7: Salutation. Greek letters began with the names of the sender and the recipient. 1: Apostle: see 1 Cor.9.1 n. 5: Paul here affirms his apostleship to the nations, i.e. Gentiles. 7: The word grace (i.e. God's favor) replaces the usual and similar-sounding Greek salutation; peace is the Jewish salutation (e.g. Mt.10.13).

1.8-15: Opening thanksgiving. Next in an ancient Greek letter there was usually a prayer for the recipient's health. Similarly, Paul begins all his letters, except the angry Gal. (and 2 Cor. chs. 10-13 if that is indeed a separate letter; see annotation there), by thanking God for the addressees, mentioning in the process the major themes of the letter.

1.16-17: The thesis of the letter is that God's way of righting wrong gives unmerited acceptance to (i.e. justifies) the believer on the basis of his faith (i.e. trust). 16: Jew first: see 2.9-10 n.

17 first, but the Greek also—because here is revealed God's way of righting wrong, a way that starts from faith and ends in faith;<sup>c</sup> as Scripture says, 'he shall gain life who is justified through faith'.

18 FOR WE SEE DIVINE RETRIBUTION revealed from heaven and falling upon all the godless wickedness of men. In their wickedness they are stifling the truth. For all that may be known of God by men lies plain before their eyes; indeed God himself has disclosed it to them. His invisible attributes, that is to say his everlasting power and deity, have been visible, ever since the world began, to the eye of reason, in the things he has made. There is therefore no possible defence for their conduct; knowing God, they have refused to honour him as God, or to render him thanks. Hence all their thinking has ended in futility, and their misguided minds are plunged in darkness. 22 They boast of their wisdom, but they 23 have made fools of themselves, exchanging the splendour of immortal God for an image shaped like mortal man, even for images like birds, beasts, and creeping things.

24 For this reason God has given them up to the vileness of their own desires, and the consequent degradation of their bodies, because they have bartered away the true God for a false one,<sup>d</sup> and have offered reverence and worship to created things instead of to the Creator, who is blessed for ever; amen.

26 In consequence, I say God has given them up to shameful passions. Their women have exchanged natural intercourse for unnatural, and their men in turn, giving up natural relations with women, burn with lust for one another; males behave indecently with males, and are paid in their own persons the fitting wage of such perversion.

28 Thus, because they have not seen fit to acknowledge God, he has given them up to their own depraved reason. This leads them to break all rules of conduct. They are filled with every kind of injustice, mischief, rapacity, and malice; they are one mass of envy, murder, rivalry, treachery, and malevolence; whisperers and scandal-mongers, 30 hateful to God, insolent, arrogant, and boastful; they invent new kinds of mischief, they show no loyalty to parents, no conscience, no fidelity to their 31 plighted word; they are without natural affection and without pity. They know 32 well enough the just decree of God, that those who behave like this deserve to die, and yet they do it; not only so, they actually applaud such practices.

You therefore have no defence—you 2 who sit in judgement, whoever you may be—for in judging your fellow-man you condemn yourself, since you, the judge, are equally guilty. It is admitted that God's judgement is rightly passed upon all who commit such crimes as these; and do you imagine— 3 you who pass judgement on the guilty while committing the same crimes yourself—do you imagine that you, any more than they, will escape the judgement of God? Or do you think lightly 4 of his wealth of kindness, of tolerance, and of patience, without recognizing that God's kindness is meant to lead you to a change of heart? In the rigid 5 obstinacy of your heart you are laying up for yourself a store of retribution for the day of retribution, when God's just judgement will be revealed, and he 6 will pay every man for what he has done. To those who pursue glory, 7 honour, and immortality by steady persistence in well-doing, he will give eternal life; but for those who are 8 governed by selfish ambition, who refuse obedience to the truth and take the wrong for their guide, there will be <sup>c</sup> Or . . . wrong. It is based on faith and addressed to <sup>faith</sup> Or the truth of God for the lie.

17: God's way . . . ends in faith: the book's theme; see 3.22. Scripture: Hab.2.4 (Gal.3.11).

1.18–32: The depravity of the Gentiles. "The heavens tell out the glory of God" (Ps.19.1), but men have refused to honour him (v. 21). 19: All that may be known, i.e. except God's special revelation to Jews and Christians. 23: For the Jewish scorn of idols see Isa.44.13–20; Wis. chs. 13–15. 24–28: Therefore God has given them up (vv. 24,26,28) to increasing wickedness that leads to death. 29–31: See Gal.5.19–21.

2.1–16: The Jews will be judged also, although they presume to sit in moral judgement over the Gentiles. 5: God's wrath, already evident (1.18), will culminate in the day of retribution

9 the fury of retribution. There will be trouble and distress for every human being who is an evil-doer, for the Jew
10 first and for the Greek also; and for every well-doer there will be glory, honour, and peace, for the Jew first and also for the Greek.

11, 12 For God has no favourites: those who have sinned outside the pale of the Law of Moses will perish outside its pale, and all who have sinned under 13 that law will be judged by the law. It is not by hearing the law, but by doing it, that men will be justified before God.

14 When Gentiles who do not possess the law carry out its precepts by the light of nature, then, although they have no
15 law, they are their own law, for they display the effect of the law inscribed on their hearts. Their conscience is called as witness, and their own thoughts argue the case on either side,
16 against them or even for them, on the day when God judges the secrets of human hearts through Christ Jesus. So my gospel declares.

17 But as for you—you may bear the name of Jew; you rely upon the law and are proud of your God; you know his will; instructed by the law, you know 18 right from wrong; you are confident that you are the one to guide the blind,
19 to enlighten the benighted, to train the stupid, and to teach the immature, because in the law you see the very shape
20 of knowledge and truth. You, then, who teach your fellow-man, do you fail to teach yourself? You proclaim, 'Do not steal'; but are you yourself a 21 thief? You say, 'Do not commit adultery'; but are you an adulterer? You abominate false gods; but do you rob 22 their shrines? While you take pride in the law, you dishonour God by breaking 23 it. For, as Scripture says, 'Because of you the name of God is dishonoured among the Gentiles.'

Circumcision has value, provided 25 you keep the law; but if you break the law, then your circumcision is as if it had never been. Equally, if an un-
26 circumcised man keeps the precepts of the law, will he not count as circumcised? He may be uncircumcised in his 27 natural state, but by fulfilling the law he will pass judgement on you who break it, for all your written code and your circumcision. The true Jew is not
28 he who is such in externals, neither is the true circumcision the external mark in the flesh. The true Jew is he who is 29 such inwardly, and the true circumcision is of the heart, directed not by written precepts but by the Spirit; such a man receives his commendation not from men but from God.

Then what advantage has the Jew? 3
What is the value of circumcision? Great, in every way. In the first place,
2 the Jews were entrusted with the oracles of God. What if some of them
3 were unfaithful? Will their faithlessness cancel the faithfulness of God? Certainly not! God must be true
4 though every man living were a liar; for we read in Scripture, 'When thou speakest thou shalt be vindicated, and win the verdict when thou art on trial.'

Another question: if our injustice
5 serves to bring out God's justice, what are we to say? Is it unjust of God (I speak of him in human terms) to bring retribution upon us? Certainly not!
6 If God were unjust, how could he judge the world?

Again, if the truth of God brings 7 him all the greater honour because of my falsehood, why should I any longer be condemned as a sinner? Why not
8 indeed 'do evil that good may come', as some libellously report me as saying? To condemn such men as these is surely no injustice.

(see 1 Cor.1.8 n.). 9–10: Since the Jew has special knowledge of God (3.2; 9.4–5), he is first. 11–16: But Jews and Gentiles equally are judged by their actions (v. 13; see Mt.7.20–21; Gal.3.21; Jas.1.22–25), the Jews under the Law of Moses (v. 12) as found in Scripture, the Gentiles by the same standard as inscribed on their hearts (v. 15; see v. 29; 2 Cor.3.2–3 n.). 16: Day: see v. 5 n.

2.17–29: The immorality of the adherents of the Law. 21–22: Exod.20.3–6, 14–15. 24: Isa.52.5; Ezek.36.20. 25: Circumcision is the symbol of God's covenant with Judaism (Gen.17.11). 26: See 1 Cor.7.19; Gal.5.6. 29: Circumcision . . . of the heart: see Deut.10.16; Jer.4.4.

3.1–8: Jews have the advantage of God's oracles, i.e. the Scriptures, and the unalterable promises they contain. 4: Ps.51.4. 8: Libellously: see 6.1 n.

9 What then? Are we Jews any better off?<sup>e</sup> No, not at all!<sup>f</sup> For we have already drawn up the accusation that Jews and Greeks alike are all under the 10 power of sin. This has scriptural warrant:

‘There is no just man, not one;
 11 no one who understands, no one who seeks God.
 12 All have swerved aside, all alike have become debased;
 there is no one to show kindness; no,
 not one.
 13 Their throat is an open grave,
 they use their tongues for treachery,
 adders’ venom is on their lips,
 14 and their mouth is full of bitter curses.
 15 Their feet hasten to shed blood,
 16 ruin and misery lie along their paths, 17 they are strangers to the high-road of
 peace,
 18 and reverence for God does not enter their thoughts.’

19 Now all the words of the law are addressed, as we know, to those who are within the pale of the law, so that no one may have anything to say in self-defence, but the whole world may be exposed to the judgement of God.
 20 For (again from Scripture) ‘no human being can be justified in the sight of God’ for having kept the law: law brings only the consciousness of sin.

21 BUT NOW, QUITE INDEPENDENTLY OF law, God’s justice has been brought to light. The Law and the prophets both 22 bear witness to it: it is God’s way of righting wrong, effective through faith in Christ for all who have such faith—

all, without distinction. For all alike 23 have sinned, and are deprived of the divine splendour, and all are justified 24
 by God’s free grace alone, through his act of liberation in the person of Christ Jesus. For God designed him to be the 25 means of expiating sin by his sacrificial death, effective through faith. God meant by this to demonstrate his justice, because in his forbearance he had overlooked the sins of the past—to demonstrate his justice now in the 26 present, showing that he is himself just and also justifies any man who puts his faith in Jesus.

What room then is left for human 27 pride? It is excluded. And on what principle? The keeping of the law would not exclude it, but faith does.
 For our argument is that a man is 28 justified by faith quite apart from success
 in keeping the law.

Do you suppose God is the God of 29
 the Jews alone? Is he not the God of Gentiles also? Certainly, of Gentiles also, if it be true that God is one. And 30
 he will therefore justify both the circumcised in virtue of their faith, and the uncircumcised through their faith.
 Does this mean that we are using faith 31 to undermine law? By no means: we are placing law itself on a firmer footing.

WHAT, THEN, ARE WE TO SAY ABOUT 4
 Abraham, our ancestor in the natural line? If Abraham was justified by any- 2 thing he had done, then he has a ground for pride. But he has no such ground before God; for what does 3 Scripture say? ‘Abraham put his faith in God, and that faith was counted to him as righteousness.’ Now if a man 4

<sup>e</sup> Or Are we Jews any worse off?
<sup>f</sup> Or Not in all respects.

3.9–20: But all are equally guilty, for the law itself condemns its followers (5.13; 7.7–11; Gal.3.10). 10–18: Pss.14.1–3; 5.9; 140.3; 10.7; Isa.59.7–8; Ps.36.1. 19: Words of the law: here Scripture as a whole (contrast v. 21). 20: Ps.143.2 (Gal.2.16); sin: see 7.7–13 n.

3.21–31: God’s gracious acceptance (i.e. justifying, vv. 24,26,28,30; see Gal.2.16 n.) of the believer is now revealed 21: Law and the prophets: Scripture, which later included a third part, Writings. 22: God’s way of dealing with sin (i.e. righting wrong) depends on the believer’s trust (i.e. faith) in Christ. All: both Jews and Gentiles (see vv. 29–30). 24: Act of liberation (from sin) applies the metaphor of freeing from slavery to God’s deed in Christ. 25–26: The past sins of the believer are not ignored, since God is just. Instead, now using the language of sacrifice, Christ’s death is God’s way of cleansing the believer’s sins (4.25; 5.9). 27–28: The keeping of the law could be an achievement leading to pride. However, salvation is a gift resting on faith: thus pride is excluded. 31: God’s basic intention in the law is accomplished by faith.

4.1–12: Abraham was justified by his faith and not by anything he had done. 3: Paul finds his does a piece of work, his wages are not 'counted' as a favour; they are paid as debt. But if without any work to his credit he simply puts his faith in him who acquits the guilty, then his faith is indeed 'counted as righteousness'. In the same sense David speaks of the happiness of the man whom God 'counts' as just, apart from any specific acts of justice: 'Happy are they', he says, 'whose lawless deeds are forgiven, whose sins are buried away; happy is the man whose sins the Lord does not count against him.' Is this happiness confined to the circumcised, or is it for the uncircumcised also? Consider: we say, 'Abraham's faith was counted as righteousness'; in what circumstances was it so counted? Was he circumcised at the time, or not? He was not yet circumcised, but uncircumcised; and he later received the symbolic rite of circumcision as the hall-mark of the righteousness which faith had given him when he was still uncircumcised. Consequently, he is the father of all who have faith when uncircumcised, so that righteousness is 'counted' to them; and at the same time he is the father of such of the circumcised as do not rely upon their circumcision alone, but also walk in the footprints of the faith which our father Abraham had while he was yet uncircumcised.

For it was not through law that Abraham, or his posterity, was given the promise that the world should be his inheritance, but through the righteousness that came from faith. For if those who hold by the law, and they alone, are heirs, then faith is empty and the promise goes for nothing, because law can bring only retribution; but where there is no law there can be no breach of law. The promise was made on the ground of faith, in order that it might be a matter of sheer grace, and that it might be valid for all Abraham's posterity, not only for those who hold by the law, but for those also who have the faith of Abraham. For he is the father of us all, as Scripture says: 'I have appointed you to be the father of many nations.' This promise, then, was valid before God, the God in whom he put his faith, the God who makes the dead live and summons things that are not yet in existence as if they already were. When hope seemed hopeless, his faith was such that he became 'father of many nations', in agreement with the words which had been spoken to him: 'Thus shall your descendants be.' Without any weakening of faith he contemplated his own body, as good as dead (for he was about a hundred years old), and the deadness of Sarah's womb, and never doubted God's promise in unbelief, but, strong in faith, gave honour to God, in the firm conviction of his power to do what he had promised. And that is why Abraham's faith was 'counted to him as righteousness'.

Those words were written, not for Abraham's sake alone, but for our sake too: it is to be 'counted' in the same way to us who have faith in the God who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead; for he was given up to death for our misdeeds, and raised to life to justify us.<sup>g</sup>

THEREFORE, NOW THAT WE HAVE BEEN justified through faith, let us continue at peace<sup>h</sup> with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have been allowed to enter the sphere of God's grace, where we now stand. Let us exult<sup>i</sup> in the hope of the divine splendour that is to be ours. More than this: let us even exult<sup>j</sup> in our present sufferings, because we know that

<sup>g</sup> Or raised to life because we were now justified.

<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses read we are at peace.

<sup>i</sup> Or We exult.

<sup>j</sup> Or we even exult.

understanding of faith confirmed by Gen.15.6 (Sept.; Gal.3.6). 6: David: the traditional author of the Psalter. 7-8: Ps.32.1-2. 10-11: He was not circumcised until Gen.17.11,24.

4.13-25: Faith and not law was the basis of God's promise to Abraham and to his posterity (compare Gal.3.16-18). 15: Retribution, breach of law: see 3.10-20; 5.13,20; 7.7-11. 17: Gen.17.5. Nations: see 1.5 n. 18: Gen.15.5. 19: Gen.17.17; 18.11. 22-23: See v. 3. 24: For our sake: see 15.4 n.; Gal.3.29. 25: See 3.25-26 n.; 5.9.

5.1-11: Peace and reconciliation. God accepts us on the basis of our faith (v. 1). His love (v. 5) expressed in Christ's death (vv. 6-10) and communicated by the Spirit (v. 5), gives assurance to our hope (vv. 2,4,5) of salvation (see 1 Cor.12.4-6 n. and 13.13 n.). 3: Sufferings:

4 suffering trains us to endure, and endurance brings proof that we have stood the test, and this proof is the ground of hope. Such a hope is no mockery, because God's love has flooded our inmost heart through the Holy Spirit he has given us.

6 For at the very time when we were still powerless, then Christ died for the wicked. Even for a just man one of us would hardly die, though perhaps for a good man one might actually brave death; but Christ died for us while we were yet sinners, and that is God's own proof of his love towards us. And so, since we have now been justified by Christ's sacrificial death, we shall all the more certainly be saved through him from final retribution. For if, when we were God's enemies, we were reconciled to him through the death of his Son, how much more, now that we are reconciled, shall we be saved by his life! But that is not all: we also exult in God through our Lord Jesus, through whom we have now been granted reconciliation.

12 Mark what follows. It was through one man that sin entered the world, and through sin death, and thus death pervaded the whole human race, inasmuch as all men have sinned. For sin was already in the world before there was law, though in the absence of law no reckoning is kept of sin. But death held sway from Adam to Moses, even over those who had not sinned as Adam did, by disobeying a direct command—and Adam foreshadows the Man who was to come.

15 But God's act of grace is out of all proportion to Adam's wrongdoing. For if the wrongdoing of that one man brought death upon so many, its effect is vastly exceeded by the grace of God and the gift that came to so many by the grace of the one man, Jesus Christ. And again, the gift of God is not to be compared in its effect with that one man's sin; for the judicial action, following upon the one offence, issued in a verdict of condemnation, but the act of grace, following upon so many misdeeds, issued in a verdict of acquittal. For if by the wrongdoing of that one man death established its reign, through a single sinner, much more shall those who receive in far greater measure God's grace, and his gift of righteousness, live and reign through the one man, Jesus Christ.

It follows, then, that as the issue of one misdeed was condemnation for all men, so the issue of one just act is acquittal and life for all men. For as through the disobedience of the one man the many were made sinners, so through the obedience of the one man the many will be made righteous.

Law intruded into this process to multiply law-breaking. But where sin was thus multiplied, grace immeasurably exceeded it, in order that, as sin established its reign by way of death, so God's grace might establish its reign in righteousness, and issue in eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

What are we to say, then? Shall we persist in sin, so that there may be all the more grace? No, no! We died to sin: how can we live in it any longer? Have you forgotten that when we were baptized into union with Christ Jesus we were baptized into his death? By baptism we were buried with him, and lay dead, in order that, as Christ was raised from the dead in the splendour of the Father, so also we might set our feet upon the new path of life.

For if we have become incorporate with him in a death like his, we shall also be one with him in a resurrection

see 2 Cor.4.8-11; 11.23-30; 12.10. 5: Spirit: see ch. 8; 2 Cor.5.5 n. 8-10: As sinners we were God's enemies (v. 10), but by his unique love (see Jn.15.13) we are now reconciled, and we shall surely be acquitted in the Last Judgment. 9: See 3.25-26 n.

5.12-21: Adam and Christ, disobedience (Gen.2.17; 3.6) and obedience (v. 19), sin and righteousness, condemnation (Gen.3.19) and acquittal, death for all men and life for all men—these are Paul's contrasts (compare 1 Cor.15.21-23,45-49). 13: See v. 20. 14: Adam, Man: see 1 Cor.15.45-49 n. 20: The law of Moses intruded (Gal.3.17-20) and, by specifying sin (v. 13; 3.20), made it more flagrant (see 7.7-13 n.).

6.1-14: Dying and rising with Christ. 1: Sin to obtain more grace (also v. 15; 3.8)? The idea is ludicrous and probably represents one of several ways Paul's gospel was twisted by his opponents (see Introduction). 3-4: Baptism means dying to sin and rising to life into union with

6 like his. We know that the man we once were has been crucified with Christ, for the destruction of the sinful self, so that we may no longer be the 7 slaves of sin, since a dead man is no
 8 longer answerable for his sin. But if we thus died with Christ, we believe that we shall also come to life with him.
 9 We know that Christ, once raised from the dead, is never to die again: he is no longer under the dominion of death.
 10 For in dying as he died, he died to sin,
 once for all, and in living as he lives, 11 he lives to God. In the same way you must regard yourselves as dead to sin and alive to God, in union with Christ Jesus.

12 So sin must no longer reign in your mortal body, exacting obedience to the 13 body's desires. You must no longer put its several parts at sin's disposal, as implements for doing wrong. No: put yourselves at the disposal of God, as dead men raised to life; yield your bodies to him as implements for doing 14 right; for sin shall no longer be your master, because you are no longer under law, but under the grace of God.

15 What then? Are we to sin, because we are not under law but under grace?
 16 Of course not. You know well enough that if you put yourselves at the disposal of a master, to obey him, you are slaves of the master whom you obey;
 and this is true whether you serve sin,
 with death as its result; or obedience, 17 with righteousness as its result. But God be thanked, you, who once were slaves of sin, have yielded whole-hearted obedience to the pattern of teaching to which you were made sub-18 ject,<sup>k</sup> and, emancipated from sin, have 19 become slaves of righteousness (to use words that suit your human weakness)
 —I mean, as you once yielded your bodies to the service of impurity and lawlessness, making for moral anarchy,

so now you must yield them to the service of righteousness, making for a holy life.

When you were slaves of sin, you 20
 were free from the control of righteousness; and what was the gain? Nothing 21 but what now makes you ashamed, for the end of that is death. But now, freed 22 from the commands of sin, and bound to the service of God, your gains are such as make for holiness, and the end is eternal life. For sin pays a wage, and 23
 the wage is death, but God gives freely,
 and his gift is eternal life, in union with Christ Jesus our Lord.

You cannot be unaware, my friends 7
 —I am speaking to those who have some knowledge of law—that a person is subject to the law so long as he is alive, and no longer. For example, a married 2 woman is by law bound to her husband
 while he lives; but if her husband dies,
 she is discharged from the obligations of the marriage-law. If, therefore, in 3 her husband's lifetime she consorts with another man, she will incur the charge of adultery; but if her husband dies she is free of the law, and she does not commit adultery by consorting with another man. So you, my friends, 4 have died to the law by becoming identified with the body of Christ, and accordingly you have found another husband in him who rose from the dead, so that we may bear fruit for God. While we lived on the level of our 5 lower nature, the sinful passions evoked by the law worked in our bodies, to bear fruit for death. But now, having 6 died to that which held us bound, we are discharged from the law, to serve God in a new way, the way of the spirit, in contrast to the old way, the way of a written code.

What follows? Is the law identical 7

<sup>k</sup> Or which was handed on to you.

Christ. 6: Crucified: see Gal.5.24; 6.14. 12–14: The basis of Paul's ethic is expressed here. That God has freed us from sin's power (v. 7) is the meaning of Christ's death; therefore we must live as if we are indeed free. Obedience to sin is unthinkable. See 8.5–13; Gal.5.16–25.

6.15–23: No slave can serve two masters, and by God's mercy the slaves of sin (v. 17) have become the slaves of righteousness (v. 18). Once again, obedience to sin is out of the question. 15: See v. 1 n. 22: Holiness: a consecrated life (as in v. 19).

7.1–6: The marriage law as an analogy. How is it that the Christian is not "under law, but under . . . grace" (6.14–15)? 4–6: In the same way we have died to the law and thus are free of the law. Fruit is a conventional metaphor for "the product of a manner of life."

7.7–13: The Law and Sin contrasted. Paul often speaks (especially in Gal.; see Gal.3.19–20 n.)

with sin? Of course not. But except through law I should never have become acquainted with sin. For example, I should never have known what it was to covet, if the law had not said, 'Thou shalt not covet.' Through that commandment sin found its opportunity, and produced in me all kinds of wrong desires. In the absence of law, sin is a dead thing. There was a time when, in the absence of law, I was fully alive; but when the commandment came, sin sprang to life and I died. The commandment which should have led to life proved in my experience to lead to death, because sin found its opportunity in the commandment, seduced me, and through the commandment killed me.

Therefore the law is in itself holy, and the commandment is holy and just and good. Are we to say then that this good thing was the death of me? By no means. It was sin that killed me, and thereby sin exposed its true character: it used a good thing to bring about my death, and so, through the commandment, sin became more sinful than ever.

We know that the law is spiritual; but I am not: I am unspiritual, the purchased slave of sin. I do not even acknowledge my own actions as mine, for what I do is not what I want to do, but what I detest. But if what I do is against my will, it means that I agree with the law and hold it to be admirable. But as things are, it is no longer I who perform the action, but sin that lodges in me. For I know that nothing good lodges in me—in my unspiritual nature, I mean—for though the will to do good is there, the deed is not. The good which I want to do, I fail to do; but what I do is the wrong which is against my will; and if what I do is against my will, clearly it is no longer I who am the agent, but sin that has its lodging in me.

I discover this principle, then: that when I want to do the right, only the wrong is within my reach. In my inmost self I delight in the law of God, but I perceive that there is in my bodily members a different law, fighting against the law that my reason approves and making me a prisoner under the law<sup>l</sup> that is in my members, the law of sin. Miserable creature that I am, who is there to rescue me out of this body doomed to death<sup>m</sup>? God alone, through Jesus Christ our Lord! Thanks be to God! In a word then, I myself, subject to God's law as a rational being, am yet,<sup>n</sup> in my unspiritual nature, a slave to the law of sin.

The conclusion of the matter is this: there is no condemnation for those who are united with Christ Jesus, because in Christ Jesus the life-giving law of the Spirit has set you free from the law of sin and death. What the law as if he thought of the law as identical with sin (compare "died to sin" in Rom.6.10 with "died to the law" in v. 4). Here, however, he makes his most positive assessment of the Law: it is holy and just and good, since it reflects God's intentions. But in practice the Law is powerless against sin and even encourages it (v. 8; compare 5.13,20; Gal.3.21–22). 7–8: "Thou shalt not cover" (Exod.20.17; Deut.5.21) is the only commandment in the Decalogue which restricts a man's thoughts; here sin finds its opportunity. 9–11: Paul speaks of leaving childhood and assuming responsibility under the Law in terms reminiscent of the Eden story (Gen.3.1–19; 2 Cor.11.3). 11: Seduced: tricked (Gen.3.13).

<sup>l</sup> Or by means of the law.

<sup>m</sup> Or out of the body doomed to this death.

<sup>n</sup> Or Thus, left to myself, while subject . . . rational being, I am yet . . .

7.14–25: The divided man. In his inmost self (v. 22) Paul knows that the Law is spiritual (v. 14), admirable (v. 16), and a delight (v. 22). But sin enslaves his body so that it acts against his will (vv.15–17,20). 14: Unspiritual: lit. "fleshly." Here and in ch. 8 Paul contrasts "flesh" and "spirit"; compare 8.4,5–8,9–10 nn.; Gal.5.16–17; 2 Cor.4.7–5.5; 1 Cor.15.39–53. 17,20: Paul thinks of sin as a power and occasionally personifies it: no longer I but sin acts. But as chs. 1–3 show, man is still responsible for his actions. 23,25: A different law, the law of sin: a foreign principle, sin's command. 24–25: Paul expresses both ultimate despair at being doomed to death and simultaneously his profoundest thanks for God's rescue (see 8.1–4).

8.1–4: God's act of rescue has turned the tables. Divided by sin we could only expect condemnation and death. But Christ, by sharing our sinful nature and dying as a sacrifice for sin (see 3.25–26 n.), has diverted the expected condemnation to sin itself and given us new life instead. 1: Paul's language is fluid. The believer is united with Christ (lit. "in Christ") because he has the Spirit "dwelling within" him (v. 9). Paul also speaks of Christ "dwelling within" the believer (v. 10 and Gal.2.20; Eph.3.17). 3: Sending his own son: see v. 32 and 5.8. The phrase, could never do, because our lower nature robbed it of all potency, God has done: by sending his own Son in a form like that of our own sinful nature, and as a sacrifice for sin,<sup>o</sup> he has passed judgement against sin within that very nature, so that the commandment of the law may find fulfilment in us, whose conduct, no longer under the control of our lower nature, is directed by the Spirit.

Those who live on the level of our lower nature have their outlook formed by it, and that spells death; but those who live on the level of the spirit have the spiritual outlook, and that is life and peace. For the outlook of the lower nature is enmity with God; it is not subject to the law of God; indeed it cannot be: those who live on such a level cannot possibly please God.

But that is not how you live. You are on the spiritual level, if only God's Spirit dwells within you; and if a man does not possess the Spirit of Christ, he is no Christian. But if Christ is dwelling within you, then although the body is a dead thing because you sinned, yet the spirit is life itself because you have been justified.<sup>p</sup> Moreover, if the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells within you, then the God who raised Christ Jesus from the dead will also give new life to your mortal bodies through his indwelling Spirit.

It follows, my friends, that our lower nature has no claim upon us; we are not obliged to live on that level. If you do so, you must die. But if by the Spirit you put to death all the base pursuits of the body, then you will live.

For all who are moved by the Spirit of God are sons of God. The Spirit you have received is not a spirit of slavery leading you back into a life of fear, but a Spirit that makes us sons, enabling us to cry 'Abba! Father!' In that cry the Spirit of God joins with our spirit in testifying that we are God's children; and if children, then heirs. We are God's heirs and Christ's fellow-heirs, if we share his sufferings now in order to share his splendour hereafter.

For I reckon that the sufferings we now endure bear no comparison with the splendour, as yet unrevealed, which is in store for us. For the created universe waits with eager expectation for God's sons to be revealed. It was made the victim of frustration, not by its own choice, but because of him who made it so;<sup>q</sup> yet always there was hope, because<sup>r</sup> the universe itself is to be freed from the shackles of mortality and enter upon the liberty and splendour of the children of God. Up to the present, we know, the whole created universe groans in all its parts as if in the pangs of childbirth. Not only so, but even we, to whom the Spirit is given as firstfruits of the harvest to come, are groaning inwardly while we wait for God to make us his sons and<sup>s</sup> set our whole body free. For we have been saved, though only in hope. Now to see

<sup>o</sup> Or and to deal with sin.

<sup>p</sup> Or so that you may live rightly.

<sup>q</sup> Or because God subjected it.

<sup>r</sup> Or with the hope that . . .

<sup>s</sup> Some witnesses omit make us his sons and.

a form like that of our own sinful nature (compare Phil.2.7), does not mean that Paul doubted Jesus' full humanity. On the contrary, his argument requires it. 4: Now directed by the Spirit, our conduct can fulfill the Law's basic requirement: love (see 13.8-10; Gal.5.14,22). Lower nature: lit. "flesh" (see 7.14 n.).

8.5-11: The old life and the new. 5-8: Those whose lives are directed by their lower nature (see Gal.5.19-21) live in enmity with God (see 5.10) and can only expect death. 9-10: But those who live on the spiritual level (see 7.14 n.) have life itself. Dwelling: see v. 1 n. The body is dead, i.e. mortal, because of sin (see 5.12). 11: The indwelling Spirit is our promise (see 2 Cor.1.22; 5.5) of a resurrection like Christ's.

8.12-17: God's adopted sons. Compare Gal.4.5-7. 12-13: See 6.12-14 n. 14-15: Paul's previous use of slavery motifs (3.24; 6.15-23; 7.14) makes his new language dramatic. Sin made us slaves; the Spirit makes us God's sons. Thus we can call God "Father" (notably in the Lord's Prayer) with the Aram. word that Jesus used, "Abba." 16: See vv. 26-27. 17: Christ is heir to all God's promises (Gal. 3.16), and we also, as we are found in him (Gal.3.29) and share his suffering (Phil.3.10-11). In v. 29 Paul even calls us Christ's brothers.

8.18-25: The liberation of the whole creation. Just as we share in Christ's sufferings (v. 17), so all of nature suffers with us (v. 22). And the whole universe, ourselves included, now waits eagerly to be freed from mortality and to enter upon the liberty and splendour (v. 21) which is our heritage (v. 17). 20: God made it so: see Gen.3.17. 23: Firstfruits: see 1 Cor.15.20 n. and 2 Cor.5.5. Groaning: see 2 Cor.5.2. 24-25: See 2 Cor.5.6-7.

is no longer to hope: why should a man endure and wait<sup>t</sup> for what he already sees? But if we hope for something we do not yet see, then, in waiting for it, we show our endurance.

26 In the same way the Spirit comes to the aid of our weakness. We do not even know how we ought to pray,<sup>u</sup> but through our inarticulate groans the Spirit himself is pleading for us, and God who searches our inmost being knows what the Spirit means, because he pleads for God's people in God's own way; and in everything, as we know, he co-operates for good with those who love God<sup>v</sup> and are called according to his purpose. For God knew his own before ever they were, and also ordained that they should be shaped to the likeness of his Son, that he might be the eldest among a large family of brothers; and it is these, so fore-ordained, whom he has also called. And those whom he called he has justified, and to those whom he justified he has also given his splendour.

31 With all this in mind, what are we to say? If God is on our side, who is against us? He did not spare his own Son, but gave him up for us all; and with this gift how can he fail to lavish upon us all he has to give? Who will be the accuser of God's chosen ones? It is God who pronounces acquittal; then who can condemn? It is Christ—Christ who died, and, more than that, was raised from the dead—who is at God's right hand, and indeed pleads our cause.<sup>w</sup> Then what can separate us from the love of Christ? Can affliction or hardship? Can persecution, hunger, nakedness, peril, or the sword? 'We are being done to death for thy sake all day long,' as Scripture says; 'we have been treated like sheep for slaughter'—and yet, in spite of all, overwhelming victory is ours through him who loved us. For I am convinced that there is nothing in death or life, in the realm of spirits or superhuman powers, in the world as it is or the world as it shall be, in the forces of the universe, in heights or depths—nothing in all creation that can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

The purpose of God in history

I AM SPEAKING THE TRUTH AS A Christian, and my own conscience, enlightened by the Holy Spirit, assures me it is no lie: in my heart there is great grief and unceasing sorrow. For I could even pray to be outcast from Christ myself for the sake of my brothers, my natural kinsfolk. They are Israelites: they were made God's sons; theirs is the splendour of the divine presence, theirs the covenants, the law, the temple worship, and the promises. Theirs are the patriarchs, and from them, in natural descent, sprang the Messiah.<sup>x</sup> May God, supreme above all, be blessed for ever!<sup>y</sup> Amen.

<sup>t</sup> Some witnesses read why should a man hope . . .

<sup>u</sup> Or what it is right to pray for.

<sup>v</sup> Or and, as we know, all things work together for good for those who love God; some witnesses read and we know God himself co-operates for good with those who love God.

<sup>w</sup> Or Who will be the accuser of God's chosen ones? Will it be God himself? No, he it is who pronounces acquittal. Who will be the judge to condemn? Will it be Christ—he who died, and, more than that, . . . right hand? No, he it is who pleads our cause.

<sup>x</sup> Greek Christ.

<sup>y</sup> Or sprang the Messiah, supreme above all, God blessed for ever; or sprang the Messiah, who is supreme above all. Blessed be God for ever!

8.26–30: God's loving care supports us in our weakness (i.e. suffering) by the Spirit's intercession (vv. 26–28) and by the revelation of his plans for us (vv. 29–30). 26: We do not . . . know how . . . to pray until the Spirit teaches us to say "Father" (v. 15; compare Lk.11.1–2) and gives us ecstatic speech (see 1 Cor. chs. 12–14). 28–29: The final goal of God's purpose for us is likeness to his Son (see 2 Cor.3.18; Eph.4.13). 30: For Paul's own experience see Gal.1.15–16.

8.31–39: Our ultimate trust in God's love. Terms like against us (v. 31) and accuser (v. 33) suggest the heavenly court at the Last Judgment. 31: Ps. 118.6. 35: Paul's hardships (2 Cor. 11.23–28) were, of course, not unique to him. 36: Ps.44.22. 38–39: Death is but one of the forces which attempt to separate us from God (see 1 Cor.2.6–8 n.).

9.1–5: Paul's anguish at Israel's unbelief. 3: Outcast: see 1 Cor.16.22 n.; Exod.32.32. 4: Israelites: descendants of Jacob, renamed Israel (Gen.32.28). The name emphasizes God's special choice. Sons: see, e.g. Exod.4.22; Jer.31.9. Splendour: see Exod.16.10; 24.16; 40.34. Covenants: see, e.g. Gen.6.18; 9.9; 17.7; Exod.19.5; 34.10. Law: notably Exod.20.1–17; Deut.5.1–21. Promises: see 4.13–21.

6 It is impossible that the word of God should have proved false. For not all descendants of Israel are truly Israel, nor, because they are Abraham's offspring, are they all his true children;<sup>z</sup> but, in the words of Scripture, 'Through the line of Isaac your descendants shall be traced.'<sup>a</sup> That is to say, it is not those born in the course of nature who are children of God; it is the children born through God's promise who are reckoned as Abraham's descendants. 9 For the promise runs: 'At the time fixed I will come, and Sarah shall have a son.'

10 But that is not all, for Rebekah's children had one and the same father, 11 our ancestor Isaac; and yet, in order that God's selective purpose might stand, based not upon men's deeds but upon the call of God, she was told, even before they were born, when they had as yet done nothing, good or ill, 'The elder shall be servant to the younger'; and that accords with the text of Scripture, 'Jacob I loved and Esau I hated.'

14 What shall we say to that? Is God to be charged with injustice? By no means. 15 For he says to Moses, 'Where I show mercy, I will show mercy, and where I pity, I will pity.' Thus it does not depend on man's will or effort, but on God's mercy. For Scripture says to Pharaoh, 'I have raised you up for this very purpose, to exhibit my power in my dealings with you, and to spread my fame over all the world.' Thus he not only shows mercy as he chooses, but also makes men stubborn as he chooses.

19 You will say, 'Then why does God blame a man? For who can resist his will?' Who are you, sir, to answer God back? Can the pot speak to the potter and say, 'Why did you make me like this?' Surely the potter can do what he likes with the clay. Is he not free to make out of the same lump two vessels, one to be treasured, the other for common use?

But what if God, desiring to exhibit<sup>b</sup> 22 his retribution at work and to make his power known, tolerated very patiently those vessels which were objects of retribution due for destruction, and did 23 so in order to make known the full wealth of his splendour upon vessels which were objects of mercy, and which from the first had been prepared for this splendour?

Such vessels are we, whom he has 24 called from among Gentiles as well as Jews, as it says in the Book of Hosea: 25 'Those who were not my people I will call My People, and the unloved nation I will call My Beloved. For in the very 26 place where they were told "you are no people of mine", they shall be called Sons of the living God.' But Isaiah 27 makes this proclamation about Israel: 'Though the Israelites be countless as the sands of the sea, only a remnant shall be saved; for the Lord's sentence 28 on the land will be summary and final'; as also he said previously, 'If the Lord 29 of Hosts had not left us the mere germ of a nation, we should have become like Sodom, and no better than Gomorrah.'

Then what are we to say? That 30 Gentiles, who made no effort after righteousness, nevertheless achieved it, a righteousness based on faith; whereas 31 Israel made great efforts after a law of righteousness, but never attained to it. Why was this? Because their efforts 32 were not based on faith, but (as they supposed) on deeds. They fell over the 'stone' mentioned in Scripture: 'Here 33 I lay in Zion a stone to trip over, a rock

<sup>z</sup> Or all children of God.

<sup>a</sup> Or God's call shall be for your descendants in the line of Isaac.

<sup>b</sup> Or although he had the will to exhibit . . .

9.6-29: God never intended that his promises should descend to more than a remnant (v. 27) of Abraham's offspring, for of Abraham's sons only Isaac was chosen (compare Gal.4.21-5.1) and of Isaac's sons, only Jacob. 7: Gen.21.12. 9: Gen.18.10. 12: Gen.25.23. 13: Mal.1.2-3. 14-23: Not injustice but mercy lies behind God's choices, for men have no claims against his supreme sovereignty. 15: Exod.33.19. 17: Exod.9.16. 20: Isa.29.16; 45.9. 21: Jer.18.6. 24-26: Now, as the church's mission shows, Gentiles are also called. Paul finds the promise in Hos.1.10; 2.23. 27-28: Isa.10.22-23. Remnant, germ (v. 29) prepare for 11.1-12. 29: Isa.1.9. Sodom and Gomorrah: Gen.19.24-25.

9.30-10.10: God's righteousness comes by faith. 30: See 3.22; 10.20; Gal.2.16; Phil.3.9. 33: Paul equates Christ with "the stone which the builders rejected" (Ps.118.22), which he relates to stumble against; but he who has faith in him will not be put to shame.'

10 BROTHERS, MY DEEPEST DESIRE AND MY prayer to God is for their salvation.

2 To their zeal for God I can testify; but 3 it is an ill-informed zeal. For they ignore God's way of righteousness, and try to set up their own, and therefore they have not submitted themselves to 4 God's righteousness. For Christ ends the law and brings righteousness for everyone who has faith.<sup>c</sup>

5 Of legal righteousness Moses writes, 'The man who does this shall gain life 6 by it.' But the righteousness that comes by faith says, 'Do not say to yourself, "Who can go up to heaven?"' (that is 7 to bring Christ down), 'or, "Who can go down to the abyss?"' (to bring 8 Christ up from the dead). But what does it say? 'The word is near you: it is upon your lips and in your heart.' This means the word of faith which we proclaim. If on your lips is the confession, 'Jesus is Lord', and in your heart the faith that God raised him from the dead, then you will find salvation. For the faith that leads to righteousness is in the heart, and the confession that leads to salvation is upon the lips.

11 Scripture says, 'Everyone who has faith in him will be saved from shame' 12 —everyone: there is no distinction between Jew and Greek, because the same Lord is Lord of all, and is rich enough for the need of all who invoke him. 13 For everyone, as it says again—'everyone who invokes the name of the Lord 14 will be saved'. How could they invoke one in whom they had no faith? And how could they have faith in one they had never heard of? And how hear without someone to spread the news? 15 And how could anyone spread the news without a commission to do so? And that is what Scripture affirms: 'How welcome are the feet of the messengers of good news!'

But not all have responded to the 16 good news. For Isaiah says, 'Lord, who has believed our message?' We 17 conclude that faith is awakened by the message, and the message that awakens it comes through the word of Christ.

But, I ask, can it be that they never 18 heard it? Of course they did: 'Their voice has sounded all over the earth, and their words to the bounds of the inhabited world.' But, I ask again, can 19 it be that Israel failed to recognize the message? In reply, I first cite Moses, who says, 'I will use a nation that is no nation to stir your envy, and a foolish nation to rouse your anger.' But Isaiah 20 is still more daring: 'I was found', he says, 'by those who were not looking for me; I was clearly shown to those who never asked about me'; while to 21 Israel he says, 'All day long I have stretched out my hands to an unruly and defiant people.'

I ASK THEN, HAS GOD REJECTED HIS 11 people? I cannot believe it! I am an Israelite myself, of the stock of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. No! 2 God has not rejected the people which he acknowledged of old as his own. You know (do you not?) what Scripture says in the story of Elijah—how Elijah pleads with God against Israel: 'Lord, they have killed thy prophets, 3 they have torn down thine altars, and I alone am left, and they are seeking my life.' But what does the divine voice 4 say to him? 'I have left myself seven thousand men who have not knelt to

<sup>c</sup> Or Christ is the end of the law as a way to righteousness for everyone who has faith.

to Isa.8.14-15; 28.16. Compare 1 Pet.2.4.(and n.)-8. 10.4: See 3.21-26; Gal.3.19,24. 5: Although the man who does the Law will indeed be saved (Lev.18.5; Gal.3.12), the task is beyond our strength (3.9-20; 7.7-25). 6-10: Deut.9.4 and 30.12-14 are interpreted to mean that the faith which leads to righteousness and the confession of Christ that leads to salvation (v. 10) are now available. 9: Compare Phil.2.11.

10.11-21: Israel has been deaf to the good news of Christ. 11: See 9.33; Isa.28.16. 12: See 3.29; Gal.3.28. 13: Joel 2.32 (Lord is taken to mean Christ). 15: Isa.52.7. 16: Isa.53.1. 17: Word of Christ: the preaching about Christ. 18: Ps.19.4. 19-21: The message is so simple that (foolish) Gentiles understand it; Israel, however, has failed to respond because they are an unruly and defiant people (v. 21). 19: Deut.32.21. Envy: see 11.11,14. 20-21: Isa.65.1-2.

11.1-12: Israel's rejection is not complete as long as a "remnant" (v. 5) exists, i.e. the church. 1: Israelite myself: see 9.4 n.; 2 Cor.11.22; Phil.3.5. 2-4: Elijah mistakenly believed that Israel's

- 5 Baal.' In just the same way at the present time a 'remnant' has come into being, selected by the grace of God.
 6 But if it is by grace, then it does not rest on deeds done, or grace would cease to be grace.
 7 What follows? What Israel sought, Israel has not achieved, but the selected few have achieved it. The rest were 8 made blind to the truth, exactly as it stands written: 'God brought upon them a numbness of spirit; he gave them blind eyes and deaf ears, and so 9 it is still.' Similarly David says:

'May their table be a snare and a trap,
 both stumbling-block and retribution!
 10 May their eyes become so dim that they lose their sight!
 Bow down their backs unceasingly!'

- 11 I now ask, did their failure mean complete downfall? Far from it! Because they offended, salvation has come to the Gentiles, to stir Israel to emulation.
 12 But if their offence means the enrichment of the world, and if their falling-off means the enrichment of the Gentiles, how much more their coming to full strength!
 13 But I have something to say to you Gentiles. I am a missionary to the Gentiles, and as such I give all honour
 14 to that ministry when I try to stir emulation in the men of my own race, 15 and so to save some of them. For if their rejection has meant the reconciliation of the world, what will their acceptance mean? Nothing less than 16 life from the dead! If the first portion of dough is consecrated, so is the whole lump. If the root is consecrated, so are 17 the branches. But if some of the branches have been lopped off, and you, a wild olive, have been grafted in among them, and have come to share the same root and sap as the olive, do 18 not make yourself superior to the branches. If you do so, remember that it is not you who sustain the root: the root sustains you.

You will say, 'Branches were lopped
 19 off so that I might be grafted in.' Very 20 well: they were lopped off for lack of faith, and by faith you hold your place. Put away your pride, and be on your guard; for if God did not spare the 21 native branches, no more will he spare you. Observe the kindness and the 22 severity of God—severity to those who fell away, divine kindness to you, if only you remain within its scope; otherwise you too will be cut off, whereas 23 they, if they do not continue faithless, will be grafted in; for it is in God's power to graft them in again. For if 24 you were cut from your native wild olive and against all nature grafted into the cultivated olive, how much more readily will they, the natural olive-branches, be grafted into their native stock!

For there is a deep truth here, my 25 brothers, of which I want you to take account, so that you may not be complacent about your own discernment: this partial blindness has come upon Israel only until the Gentiles have been admitted in full strength; when 26 that has happened, the whole of Israel will be saved, in agreement with the text of Scripture:

'From Zion shall come the Deliverer;
 he shall remove wickedness from Jacob.

And this is the covenant I will grant 27
 them,
 when I take away their sins.'

rebellion was complete (1 Kgs.19.10,14,18). 2: Ps.94.14. 6: See 4.4-5; Gal.3.18. 7-12: At present God gives Israel a numbness of spirit (vv. 7-10,25), but only to allow time to call the Gentiles, who will in turn stir Israel to emulation (v. 11; 10.19). 8: Isa.29.10; Deut.29.4 (compare Mk.4.10-12). 9-10: Ps.69.22-23. David: see 4.6 n.

11.13-24: Israel is God's olive tree (Jer.11.16; Hos.14.6). 13: See 1.5; 15.16; Gal.1.16; 2.9. 14: See 1 Cor.9.22. 15: Without Israel God has achieved the reconciliation of the world (5.10-11), but when Israel receives God's acceptance, what a glorious consummation! 16: First portion (Num.15.20-21) and root probably mean the patriarchs (v. 28; 9.5). 17: The branches . . . lopped off are the Jews, who lack faith (v. 20); the Gentiles are shoots from a wild olive grafted in "against all nature" (v. 24). 21-22: Compare 1 Cor.10.12. 24: The restoration of Israel will be swifter than the mission to the Gentiles.

11.25-36: The salvation of all mankind, both Gentiles and Jews, will be accomplished by God's mercy (v. 32). 25-27: Blindness: see vv. 8,10. Gentiles . . . in full strength and the whole

28 In the spreading of the Gospel they are treated as God's enemies for your sake; but God's choice stands, and they are his friends for the sake of the patriarchs. For the gracious gifts of God and his calling are irrevocable. Just as formerly you were disobedient to God, but now have received mercy in the time of their disobedience, so now, when you receive mercy, they have proved disobedient, but only in order that they too may receive mercy. For in making all mankind prisoners to disobedience, God's purpose was to show mercy to all mankind.

33 O depth of wealth, wisdom, and knowledge in God! How unsearchable his judgements, how untraceable his ways! Who knows the mind of the Lord? Who has been his counsellor? Who has ever made a gift to him, to receive a gift in return? Source, Guide, and Goal of all that is—to him be glory for ever! Amen.

Christian behaviour

12 THEREFORE, MY BROTHERS, I IMPLORE you by God's mercy to offer your very selves to him: a living sacrifice, dedicated and fit for his acceptance, the worship offered by mind and heart.<sup>d</sup>

2 Adapt yourselves no longer to the pattern of this present world, but let your minds be remade and your whole nature thus transformed. Then you will be able to discern the will of God, and to know what is good, acceptable, and perfect.

3 In virtue of the gift that God in his grace has given me I say to everyone among you: do not be conceited or think too highly of yourself; but think your way to a sober estimate based on the measure of faith that God has dealt to each of you. For just as in a single human body there are many limbs and organs, all with different functions, so all of us, united with Christ, form one body, serving individually as limbs and organs to one another.

The gifts we possess differ as they are allotted to us by God's grace, and must be exercised accordingly: the gift of inspired utterance, for example, in proportion to a man's faith; or the gift of administration, in administration. A teacher should employ his gift in teaching, and one who has the gift of stirring speech should use it to stir his hearers. If you give to charity, give with all your heart; if you are a leader, exert yourself to lead; if you are helping others in distress, do it cheerfully.

Love in all sincerity, loathing evil and clinging to the good. Let love for our brotherhood breed warmth of mutual affection. Give pride of place to one another in esteem.

With unflagging energy, in ardour of spirit, serve the Lord.<sup>e</sup>

Let hope keep you joyful; in trouble stand firm; persist in prayer.

Contribute to the needs of God's people, and practise hospitality.

Call down blessings on your persecutors—blessings, not curses.

With the joyful be joyful, and mourn with the mourners.

Care as much about each other as about yourselves. Do not be haughty, but go about with humble folk. Do not keep thinking how wise you are.

Never pay back evil for evil. Let your aims be such as all men count honourable. If possible, so far as it lies with you, live at peace with all men. My dear friends, do not seek revenge, but leave a place for divine retribution; for there is a text which reads, 'Justice is mine, says the Lord, I will repay.' But of Israel: corporately but not necessarily every individual. Scripture: Isa.59.20–21; 27.9. 34: Isa.40.13 (1 Cor.2.16). 35: Job 41.11. 36: See 1 Cor.8.6; Col.1.16.

<sup>d</sup> Or . . . acceptance, for such is the worship which you, as rational creatures, should offer.
<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses read meet the demands of the hour.

12.1–8: The dedicated life. 1: See 6.13,16,19. A living sacrifice: in contrast to the offering of a dead animal. 2: See 8.5–13. 3: Gift: Paul's apostleship (see 1.5). Measure of faith: the amount and nature of the spiritual gifts (v. 6) received by faith. 4–8: The passage is a reworking of 1 Cor.12.4–31. 6: In proportion to a man's faith: see v. 3 n.

12.9–21: The greatness of love (see 1 Cor. ch. 13). 13: Hospitality: see 16.2 n. 14: See Mt.5.44. 16: Prov.3.7. 17a: Prov.20.22; 1 Th.5.15. 17b: Prov.3.4 (Sept.); 2 Cor.8.21. 19: Men must not seek revenge (Lev.19.18; Mt.5.39). Leave a place for: leave it to. A text: Deut.32.35. 20: Prov.25.21–22 (Mt.5.44); coals of fire: deep shame and remorse.

there is another text: 'If your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him a drink; by doing this you will heap live coals on his head.' Do not let evil conquer you, but use good to defeat evil.

13 Every person must submit to the supreme authorities. There is no authority but by act of God, and the existing authorities are instituted by him; consequently anyone who rebels against authority is resisting a divine institution, and those who so resist have themselves to thank for the punishment they will receive. For government, a terror to crime, has no terrors for good behaviour. You wish to have no fear of the authorities? Then continue to do right and you will have their approval, for they are God's agents working for your good. But if you are doing wrong, then you will have cause to fear them; it is not for nothing that they hold the power of the sword, for they are God's agents of punishment, for retribution on the offender. That is why you are obliged to submit. It is an obligation imposed not merely by fear of retribution but by conscience. That is also why you pay taxes. The authorities are in God's service and to these duties they devote their energies.

7 Discharge your obligations to all men; pay tax and toll, reverence and respect, to those to whom they are due.

8 Leave no claim outstanding against you, except that of mutual love. He who loves his neighbour has satisfied every claim of the law. For the commandments, 'Thou shalt not commit adultery, thou shalt not kill, thou shalt not steal, thou shalt not covet', and any other commandment there may be, are all summed up in the one rule, 'Love your neighbour as yourself.' Love cannot wrong a neighbour; therefore the whole law is summed up in love.<sup>f</sup>

In all this, remember how critical the moment is. It is time for you to wake out of sleep, for deliverance is nearer to us now than it was when first we believed. It is far on in the night; day is near. Let us therefore throw off the deeds of darkness and put on our armour as soldiers of the light. Let us have with decency as befits the day: no revelling or drunkenness, no debauchery or vice, no quarrels or jealousies! Let Christ Jesus himself be the armour that you wear; give no more thought to satisfying the bodily appetites.

IF A MAN IS WEAK IN HIS FAITH YOU MUST accept him without attempting to settle doubtful points. For instance, one man will have faith enough to eat all kinds of food, while a weaker man eats only vegetables. The man who eats must not hold in contempt the man who does not, and he who does not eat must not pass judgement on the one who does; for God has accepted him. Who are you to pass judgement on someone else's servant? Whether he stands or falls is his own Master's business; and stand he will, because his Master has power to enable him to stand.

Again, this man regards one day more highly than another, while that man regards all days alike. On such a point everyone should have reached conviction in his own mind. He who respects the day has the Lord in mind in doing so, and he who eats meat has the Lord in mind when he eats, since he gives thanks to God; and he who abstains has the Lord in mind no less, since he too gives thanks to God.

<sup>f</sup> Or the whole law is fulfilled by love.

13.1-7: The Christian's duty to the state is to be an obedient subject (compare Wis.6.1-5; 1 Pet.2.13-17; 3.13). Paul had experienced both the benefits of the Roman government and its punishment (v. 2; see 2 Cor.11.25 n.), but since he believed that the government's authority came by act of God, he counseled obedience. 6-7: See Mk.12.17.

13.8-10: Love sums up the law. 9: The commandments: Exod.20.13-15,17; Deut.5.17-19,21 (see Rom.7.7). One rule: Lev.19.18 (compare Mk.12.31; Mt.19.18; Gal.5.14).

13.11-14: The end of the age approaches. 11: We must wake and put the obligation of love into action. The passage is a reworking of 1 Th.5.1-8. 12: Armour: see 1 Th.5.8; Eph.6.14-17. 14: See 6.12-14 n.; Gal.3.27 n.

14.1-23: Love respects the scruples of others. Those who remain in bondage to laws about meat (vv. 6,21), wine (v. 21), and Sabbath observance (vv. 5-6) are weak in faith. Paul regards these scruples as unnecessary (v. 14), but counsels tolerance based on love (v. 15). Paul here adapts 1 Cor.8.7-13 and 10.27-11.1 for the benefit of the Romans. 5: Compare Gal.4.10.

7 For no one of us lives, and equally 8 no one of us dies, for himself alone. If we live, we live for the Lord; and if we die, we die for the Lord. Whether therefore we live or die, we belong to 9 the Lord. This is why Christ died and came to life again, to establish his 10 lordship over dead and living. You, sir, why do you pass judgement on your brother? And you, sir, why do you hold your brother in contempt? We shall all stand before God's tribunal.
 11 For Scripture says, 'As I live, says the Lord, to me every knee shall bow and 12 every tongue acknowledge God.' So, you see, each of us will have to answer
 for himself.
 13 Let us therefore cease judging one another, but rather make this simple judgement: that no obstacle or stumbling-block be placed in a brother's way.
 14 I am absolutely convinced, as a Christian,<sup>g</sup> that nothing is impure in itself;
 only, if a man considers a particular thing impure, then to him it is impure.
 15 If your brother is outraged by what you eat, then your conduct is no longer guided by love. Do not by your eating bring disaster to a man for whom 16 Christ died! What for you is a good thing must not become an occasion for 17 slanderous talk; for the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but justice, peace, and joy, inspired by the 18 Holy Spirit. He who thus shows himself a servant of Christ is acceptable to God and approved by men.
 19 Let us then pursue the things that make for peace and build up the com-20 mon life. Do not ruin the work of God for the sake of food. Everything is pure in itself, but anything is bad for the man who by his eating causes another 21 to fall. It is a fine thing to abstain from eating meat or drinking wine, or doing anything which causes your brother's 22 downfall. If you have a clear conviction, apply it to yourself in the sight of God. Happy is the man who can make his decision with a clear conscience!<sup>h</sup>

 But a man who has doubts is guilty if <sup>23</sup>
 he eats, because his action does not arise from his conviction, and anything which does not arise from conviction is sin.<sup>i</sup> Those of us who have a robust <sup>15</sup> conscience must accept as our own burden the tender scruples of weaker men, and not consider ourselves. Each <sup>2</sup> of us must consider his neighbour and think what is for his good and will build up the common life. For Christ too did <sup>3</sup> not consider himself, but might have said, in the words of Scripture, 'The reproaches of those who reproached thee fell upon me.' For all the ancient <sup>4</sup> scriptures were written for our own instruction, in order that through the encouragement they give us we may maintain our hope with fortitude. And <sup>5</sup> may God, the source of all fortitude and all encouragement, grant that you may agree with one another after the manner of Christ Jesus, so that with <sup>6</sup>
 one mind and one voice you may praise
 the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

In a word, accept one another as <sup>7</sup>
 Christ accepted us, to the glory of God.
 I mean that Christ became a servant of <sup>8</sup>
 the Jewish people to maintain the truth of God by making good his promises to the patriarchs, and at the same time <sup>9</sup>
 to give the Gentiles cause to glorify God for his mercy. As Scripture says,
 'Therefore I will praise thee among the Gentiles and sing hymns to thy name';
 and again, 'Gentiles, make merry to- <sup>10</sup> gether with his own people'; and yet <sup>11</sup> again, 'All Gentiles, praise the Lord;
 let all peoples praise him.' Once again, <sup>12</sup> Isaiah says, 'There shall be the Scion of Jesse, the one raised up to govern
 the Gentiles; on him the Gentiles shall set their hope.' And may the God of <sup>13</sup> hope fill you with all joy and peace by

<sup>g</sup> Or on the authority of the Lord Jesus.

<sup>h</sup> Or who does not bring judgement upon himself by what he approves!

<sup>i</sup> See p. 200, note r.

7: See Gal.2.20; 2 Cor.5.15. 8: Live . . . die: see Phil.1.20. 10: Tribunal: final judgment (see 2.5,16; 2 Cor.5.10). 11: Isa.45.23 (Phil.2.10-11). 14: See Mk.7.18-19.

15:1-13: To put others first is to imitate Christ. 3: See Phil.2.5-8; 2 Cor.8.9. Scripture: Ps.69.9. 4: See 4.23-24; 1 Cor.9.10; 10.11. 8: Christ was born a Jew, obedient to the Law (Gal.4.4-5), so as to maintain the truth of God's promises to the patriarchs (see 4.13-21; 9.4-13). 9-12: As a result the Gentiles share in God's promises: Ps.18.49; Deut.32.43; Ps.117.1; Isa.11.10. 12: Scion of Jesse: Messiah; see Mt.1.1 n.

your faith in him, until, by the power of the Holy Spirit, you overflow with hope.

14 MY FRIENDS, I HAVE NO DOUBT IN MY own mind that you yourselves are quite full of goodness and equipped with knowledge of every kind, well able to give advice to one another; nevertheless I have written to refresh your memory, and written somewhat boldly at times, in virtue of the gift I have from God. His grace has made me a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles; my priestly service is the preaching of the gospel of God, and it falls to me to offer the Gentiles to him as<sup>l</sup> an acceptable sacrifice, consecrated by the Holy Spirit.

17 Thus in the fellowship of Christ Jesus I have ground for pride in the service of God. I will venture to speak of those things alone in which I have been Christ's instrument to bring the Gentiles into his allegiance, by word and deed, by the force of miraculous signs and by the power of the Holy Spirit. As a result I have completed the preaching of the gospel of Christ from Jerusalem as far round as Illyricum. It is my ambition to bring the Gospel to places where the very name of Christ has not been heard, for I do not want to build on another man's foundation; but, as Scripture says,

'They who had no news of him shall see,
and they who never heard of him shall understand.'

22 That is why I have been prevented all this time from coming to you. But now I have no further scope in these parts, and I have been longing for many years to visit you on my way to Spain; for I hope to see you as I travel through, and to be sent there with your support after having enjoyed your company for a while. But at the moment I am on my way to Jerusalem, on an errand to God's people there. For Macedonia and Achaia have resolved to raise a common fund for the benefit of the poor among God's people at Jerusalem. They have resolved to do so, and indeed they are under an obligation to them. For if the Jewish Christians shared their spiritual treasures with the Gentiles, the Gentiles have a clear duty to contribute to their material needs. So when I have finished this business and delivered the proceeds under my own seal, I shall set out for Spain by way of your city, and I am sure that when I arrive I shall come to you with a full measure of the blessing of Christ.

I implore you by our Lord Jesus Christ and by the love that the Spirit inspires, be my allies in the fight; pray to God for me that I may be saved from unbelievers in Judaea and that my errand to Jerusalem may find acceptance with God's people, so that by his will I may come to you in a happy frame of mind and enjoy a time of rest with you. The God of peace be with you all. Amen.<sup>k</sup>

I COMMEND TO YOU PHOEBE, A FELLOW-Christian who holds office in the congregation at Cenchreae. Give her, in the fellowship of the Lord, a welcome worthy of God's people, and stand by her in any business in which she may need your help, for she has herself been <sup>l</sup> Or . . . of God, so that the worship which the Gentiles offer may be . . .

<sup>k</sup> See page, 200 note r.

15.14-21: A polite postscript lest the Romans consider him presumptuous (see Introduction; 1.12). 14: One another: perhaps an indication that they have no apostolic leader. 19: Miraculous signs: see 2 Cor.12.12; Gal.3.5. Jerusalem . . . Illyricum: Paul has been moving round the Mediterranean Sea systematically. He hopes that this program will carry him to Rome and Spain (v. 24). 20: Paul makes it a principle not to work where other missionaries have preceded him (see 1 Cor.3.10-15; 2 Cor.10.15-16). 21: Isa.52.15.

15.22-33: Paul plans to visit Rome on his way to Spain. 22-23: See 1.10-13. No further scope: see Introduction and v. 19 n. 25: Paul's errand is the collection (see Introduction). 26: Galatia is not mentioned. Paul's angry letter to them may have resulted in their abandoning the project (contrast 2 Cor.8.1-9.15 n.; 8.10-11 n.). 30-32: Presumably Paul's fears were justified and this visit to Jerusalem resulted in his arrest (Acts 21.17-24.27).

16.1-23: The closing greetings are unusually numerous. Paul lists people known by the Romans who could vouch for him. Nothing is known about most of these persons. 2: Welcome:

a good friend to many, including myself.

- 3 Give my greetings to Prisca and 4 Aquila, my fellow-workers in Christ
5 Jesus. They risked their necks to save 6 my life, and not I alone but all the 7 gentile congregations are grateful to 8 them. Greet also the congregation at 9 their house.

Give my greetings to my dear friend
Epaenetus, the first convert to Christ in Asia, and to Mary, who toiled hard for you. Greet Andronicus and Junias<sup>l</sup> my fellow-countrymen and comrades in captivity. They are eminent among the apostles, and they were Christians before I was.

- 8 Greetings to Ampliatus, my dear
9 friend in the fellowship of the Lord,
10 to Urban my comrade in Christ, and to 11 my dear Stachys. My greetings to 12 Apelles, well proved in Christ's service, 13 to the household of Aristobulus, and 14 my countryman Herodion, and to 15 those of the household of Narcissus
16 who are in the Lord's fellowship. Greet 17 Tryphaena and Tryphosa, who toil in 18 the Lord's service, and dear Persis who 19 has toiled in his service so long. Give 20 my greetings to Rufus, an outstanding 21 follower of the Lord, and to his 22 mother, whom I call mother too. Greet 23 Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patro-24 bas, Hermas, and all friends in their 25 company. Greet Philologus and Julia,<sup>m</sup>
26 Nereus and his sister, and Olympas, 27 and all God's people associated with 28 them.

- 16 Greet one another with the kiss of 17 peace. All Christ's congregations send 18 you their greetings.

- 17 I implore you, my friends, keep your 18 eye on those who stir up quarrels and 19 lead others astray, contrary to the 20 teaching you received. Avoid them, for 21 such people are servants not of Christ

22 our Lord but of their own appetites,
23 and they seduce the minds of innocent
24 people with smooth and specious
25 words. The fame of your obedience has 26 spread everywhere. This makes me
27 happy about you; yet I should wish 28 you to be experts in goodness but 29 simpletons in evil; and the God of 30 peace will soon crush Satan beneath
31 your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus 32 be with you!<sup>n</sup>

Greetings to you from my colleague 21 Timothy, and from Lucius, Jason, and 22 Sosipater my fellow-countrymen. (I
23 Tertius, who took this letter down, add 24 my Christian greetings.) Greetings also 25 from Gaius, my host and host of the 26 whole congregation, and from Erastus,
27 treasurer of this city, and our brother
28 Quartus.<sup>o</sup>

TO HIM WHO HAS POWER TO MAKE YOU
25 standing sure, according to the Gospel
26 I brought you and the proclamation of 27 Jesus Christ, according to the revela-
28 tion of that divine secret kept in silence 29 for long ages but now disclosed, and 30 through prophetic scriptures by eternal 31 God's command made known to all 32 nations, to bring them to faith and 33 obedience—to God who alone is wise, 34 through Jesus Christ,<sup>p</sup> be glory for 35 endless ages! Amen.<sup>q r</sup>

<sup>l</sup> Or Junia; some witnesses read Julia, or Julias.

<sup>m</sup> Or Julias; some witnesses read Junia, or Junias.

<sup>n</sup> The words The grace . . . with you are omitted at this point in some witnesses; in some, these or similar words are given as verse 24, and in some others after verse 27 (see note on verse 23).

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses add (24) The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all! Amen.

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses insert to whom.

<sup>q</sup> Here some witnesses add The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you!

<sup>r</sup> Some witnesses place verses 25–27 at the end of chapter 14, one other places them at the end of chapter 15, and others omit them altogether.

Christian travelers depended on the hospitality of their fellows (see 12.13). 3–5: Prisca and Aquila were in Ephesus (1 Cor.16.19); now they are back (Acts 18.2) at Rome. House: see v. 23 n. 7: Apostles: see 1 Cor.9.1 n. 16: The Christian kiss of ceremonial greeting (1 Cor.16.20; 2 Cor.13.12; 1 Th.5.26; 1 Pet.5.14) became a part of the church's liturgy (see 1 Cor.16.22 n.). 17–18: See Gal.1.6–9; 6.12–13; 2 Cor.11.12–15; Phil.3.2–3,18–19. 19: Experts, simpletons: see 1 Cor.14.20; Mt.10.16; Jer.4.22. 20: Satan, the serpent, will be crushed (Gen.3.15); see 1 Cor.15.25. Grace . . . : see 2 Cor.13.14 n. 21: Timothy: see 1 Cor.16.10 n. 22: Paul dictated (compare 1 Cor.1.16 n.) this letter to the scribe Tertius. 23: Gaius: the Christian of 1 Cor.1.14? Host: early Christians worshiped in houses (v. 5), not yet in churches.

16.25–27: The Benediction echoes some of the major themes of the letter (compare 1.2–6). 25: Gospel: see 2.16; Gal.1.6–9. Secret: see 1 Cor.2.6–7; Col.1.26–27. 26: All nations: see 1.5 n.

THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS

This letter gives a uniquely comprehensive picture of an early Christian congregation and of its founder (3.6,10), Paul. It contains the earliest written tradition of Jesus' resurrection (15.3-8) and of the Lord's Supper (11.23-26), as well as the moving "hymn" on Christian love (ch. 13). This is apparently the second letter Paul wrote to the Corinthians. The previous letter, mentioned in 5.9, is lost (unless 2 Cor.6.14-7.1 is a surviving fragment), but the Corinthians' reply to that letter provides the subject matter for chs. 7-16 of the present letter: marriage (7.1-24), celibacy (7.25-40), food offered to idols (8.1-11.1), worship (11.2-34), spiritual gifts (especially glossolalia, the gift of tongues; chs. 12-14), bodily resurrection (ch. 15), the "collection" of money for the Jerusalem Christians (16.1-11), and Apollos (16.12). But first Paul reasserts his authority at Corinth by dealing with three disciplinary lapses which have occurred there: congregational factions (chs. 1-4), a case of immorality (ch. 5), and lawsuits among Christians (ch. 6).

The letter was written from Ephesus (16.8). Paul's directions about the "collection" date the letter a year or so before 2 Cor. chs. 1-9 (see 2 Cor.8.10; 9.2 and Introduction to Rom.).

Unity and order in the church

1 FROM PAUL, APOSTLE OF JESUS CHRIST at God's call and by God's will,
2 together with our colleague Sosthenes, to the congregation of God's people at Corinth, dedicated to him in Christ Jesus, claimed by him as his own,
3 along with all men everywhere who invoke the name of our Lord Jesus Christ—their Lord as well as ours.
4 Grace and peace to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.
5 I am always thanking God for you. I thank him for his grace given to you in Christ Jesus. I thank him for all the enrichment that has come to you in Christ. You possess full knowledge and 6 you can give full expression to it, because in you the evidence for the truth of Christ has found confirmation.
7 There is indeed no single gift you lack, while you wait expectantly for our 8 Lord Jesus Christ to reveal himself. He will keep you firm to the end, without reproach on the Day of our Lord Jesus. It is God himself who called you to 9 share in the life of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord; and God keeps faith.

10 I appeal to you, my brothers, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ: agree among yourselves, and avoid divisions; be firmly joined in unity of mind and thought. I have been told, my brothers, 11 by Chloe's people that there are quarrels among you. What I mean is this:
12 each of you is saying, 'I am Paul's man', or 'I am for Apollos'; 'I follow Cephas', or 'I am Christ's.' Surely 13 Christ has not been divided among you! Was it Paul who was crucified for you? Was it in the name of Paul that you were baptized? Thank God, I 14 never baptized one of you—except Crispus and Gaius. So no one can say 15 you were baptized in my name.—Yes,
16 I did baptize the household of Stephanas: I cannot think of anyone else.
17 Christ did not send me to baptize, but to proclaim the Gospel; and to do it

1.1-3: Salutation: see Rom.1.1-7 nn. 1: Sosthenes is unknown (but see Acts 18.17).

1.4-9: Opening thanksgiving: see Rom.1.8-15 n. 8: The Day refers to Christ's impending (7.29,31) return to end the present age (2 Th.1.7-2.12) and to establish his kingdom (15.23-26,50) in a time of severe testing (3.13-15; 4.5; 5.5).

1.10-4.21: Paul's apostolic authority. In the face of divided loyalties Paul asserts his authority as founder (3.5-15), teacher (2.6-7; 3.1-2), and father (4.14-15) of the congregation.

1.10-17: Factionousness in Corinth. 11: Chloe's people are slaves or employees of this unknown lady. 12: Apollos: the principal missionary at Corinth after Paul (3.4-6; 4.6; 16.12; see Acts 18.24-19.1). Cephas: the Aram. equivalent of "Peter" (meaning "rock"; see Mt.16.18).

14-17: Baptism was not unimportant to Paul (see 6.11; Rom.6.3-4), but the actual rite he usually left to his assistants. 14: Crispus: see Acts 18.8. Gaius: see Rom.16.23 n. 16: Paul dictated his letters (see 16.21-24 n. and Rom.16.22 n.). Here he corrects himself. Stephanas: see 16.15-17 n.

without relying on the language of worldly wisdom, so that the fact of Christ on his cross might have its full weight.

18 This doctrine of the cross is sheer folly to those on their way to ruin, but to us who are on the way to salvation it is the power of God. Scripture says, 'I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and bring to nothing the cleverness of the clever.' Where is your wise man now, your man of learning, or your subtle debater—limited, all of them, to this passing age? God has made the wisdom of this world look foolish. As 21 God in his wisdom ordained, the world failed to find him by its wisdom, and he chose to save those who have faith 22 by the folly of the Gospel. Jews call for miracles, Greeks look for wisdom; but 23 we proclaim Christ—yes, Christ nailed to the cross; and though this is a stumbling-block to Jews and folly to Greeks, 24 yet to those who have heard his call, Jews and Greeks alike, he is the power of God and the wisdom of God.

25 Divine folly is wiser than the wisdom of man, and divine weakness stronger 26 than man's strength. My brothers, think what sort of people you are, whom God has called. Few of you are men of wisdom, by any human standard; few are powerful or highly born. 27 Yet, to shame the wise, God has chosen what the world counts folly, and to shame what is strong, God has chosen 28 what the world counts weakness. He has chosen things low and contemptible, mere nothings, to overthrow the 29 existing order. And so there is no place for human pride in the presence of God. 30 You are in Christ Jesus by God's act, for God has made him our wisdom; he is our righteousness; in him we are 31 consecrated and set free. And so (in the words of Scripture), 'If a man must boast, let him boast of the Lord.'

2 As for me, brothers, when I came to you, I declared the attested truth of God<sup>a</sup> without display of fine words or wisdom. I resolved that while I was with 2 you I would think of nothing but Jesus Christ—Christ nailed to the cross. I 3 came before you weak, nervous, and shaking with fear. The word I spoke, 4 the gospel I proclaimed, did not sway you with subtle arguments; it carried conviction by spiritual power, so that 5 your faith might be built not upon human wisdom but upon the power of God.

And yet I do speak words of wisdom 6 to those who are ripe for it, not a wisdom belonging to this passing age, nor to any of its governing powers, which are declining to their end; I speak 7 God's hidden wisdom, his secret purpose framed from the very beginning 8 to bring us to our full glory. The powers that rule the world have never known it; if they had, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. But, 9 in the words of Scripture, 'Things beyond our seeing, things beyond our hearing, things beyond our imagining, all prepared by God for those who love him', these it is that God has revealed 10 to us through the Spirit.

For the Spirit explores everything, even the depths of God's own nature. Among men, who knows what a man is 11 but the man's own spirit within him? In the same way, only the Spirit of God knows what God is. This is the Spirit 12 that we have received from God, and not the spirit of the world, so that we may know all that God of his own grace has given us; and, because we are 13 interpreting spiritual truths to those who have the Spirit, we speak of these gifts of God in words found for us not by our human wisdom but by the Spirit. A man who is unspiritual refuses 14 what belongs to the Spirit of God; it is folly to him: he cannot grasp it, because it needs to be judged in the light of the Spirit. A man gifted with the 15

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses read I declared God's secret purpose . . .

1.18-2.5: The paradox of the cross: God saves through weakness and in spite of folly, revealing in Christ nailed to the cross his true power and wisdom. 19: Isa.29.14. 22: Miracles or "signs": see Mk.8.11-12; wisdom: see 2.4-8. 31: Jer.9.24 (2 Cor.10.17). 2.3-4: See 2 Cor.10.10.

2.6-16: The true wisdom of God is given by his Spirit. 6-8: This passing age (in contrast to the coming age or kingdom): see 1.8 n. The governing powers (or "elemental spirits" or "authorities") are demonic astral or planetary beings that rule the world (Gal.4.3,9; Rom.8.38-39; Col.1.16). By crucifying Christ they have brought their own coming destruction upon themselves (15.24; Col.2.14-15). 9: Perhaps Isa.64.4. 13: See chs. 12-14. 15: See 4.3-5. 16: Isa.40.13.

Spirit can judge the worth of everything, but is not himself subject to 16 judgement by his fellow-men. For (in the words of Scripture) 'who knows the mind of the Lord? Who can advise him?' We, however, possess the mind of Christ.

3 FOR MY PART, MY BROTHERS, I COULD not speak to you as I should speak to people who have the Spirit. I had to deal with you on the merely natural 2 plane, as infants in Christ. And so I gave you milk to drink, instead of solid food, for which you were not yet ready.
 Indeed, you are still not ready for it,
 3 for you are still on the merely natural plane. Can you not see that while there is jealousy and strife among you, you are living on the purely human level 4 of your lower nature? When one says,
 'I am Paul's man', and another, 'I am for Apollos', are you not all too human?

5 After all, what is Apollos? What is Paul? We are simply God's agents in bringing you to the faith. Each of us performed the task which the Lord 6 allotted to him: I planted the seed, and Apollos watered it; but God made it 7 grow. Thus it is not the gardeners with their planting and watering who count, 8 but God, who makes it grow. Whether they plant or water, they work as a team,<sup>b</sup> though each will get his own 9 pay for his own labour. We are God's fellow-workers;<sup>c</sup> and you are God's garden.

10 Or again, you are God's building. I am like a skilled master-builder who by God's grace laid the foundation, and someone else is putting up the building.
 11 Let each take care how he builds. There can be no other foundation beyond that which is already laid; I mean Jesus 12 Christ himself. If anyone builds on that foundation with gold, silver, and fine
 stone, or with wood, hay, and straw, 13 the work that each man does will at last
 be brought to light; the day of judgement will expose it. For that day dawns in fire, and the fire will test the worth of each man's work. If a man's build-14 ing stands, he will be rewarded; if it 15 burns, he will have to bear the loss;

 and yet he will escape with his life, as one might from a fire. Surely you know 16 that you are God's temple, where the Spirit of God dwells. Anyone who de-17 stroys God's temple will himself be destroyed<sup>d</sup> by God, because the temple of God is holy; and that temple you are.

Make no mistake about this: if there 18 is anyone among you who fancies himself wise—wise, I mean, by the standards of this passing age—he must become a fool to gain true wisdom. For the 19 wisdom of this world is folly in God's sight. Scripture says, 'He traps the wise in their own cunning', and again, 20 'The Lord knows that the arguments of the wise are futile.' So never make 21 mere men a cause for pride. For though everything belongs to you—Paul, 22 Apollos, and Cephas, the world, life,
 and death, the present and the future,
 all of them belong to you—yet you 23 belong to Christ, and Christ to God.

We must be regarded as Christ's 4 subordinates and as stewards of the secrets of God. Well then, stewards are 2 expected to show themselves trustworthy. For my part, if I am called to 3 account by you or by any human court of judgement, it does not matter to me in the least. Why, I do not even pass judgement on myself, for I have no 4 thing on my conscience; but that does not mean I stand acquitted. My judge is the Lord. So pass no premature 5 judgement; wait until the Lord comes.
 For he will bring to light what darkness hides, and disclose men's inward motives; then will be the time for each to receive from God such praise as he deserves.

Into this general picture, my friends, 6
 I have brought Apollos and myself on <sup>b</sup> Or Whether they plant or water, it is all the same.

<sup>c</sup> Or We are fellow-workers in God's service.

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses read is himself destroyed.

3.1-23: Teachers and pupils. 1-2: Infants: see 13.11; 14.20. 3-4: See 1.12. 8: Pay: see vv. 14-15 n. 10: See Rom. 15.20 n. 13: The day: see 1.8 n. 14-15: Good workmanship will be rewarded, but even a bad workman will escape, i.e. be saved. 16: Surely you know: Paul had instructed them (possibly in his previous letter; see Introduction and 2 Cor.6.16). 19: Job 5.13. 20: Ps.94.11. 22: See 1.12.

4.1-13: The humility of the apostles. 5: See 1.8 n.; 5.12-13 n.; Mt.13.24-30,36-43. 6: Builders your account, so that you may take our case as an example, and learn to 'keep within the rules', as they say, and may not be inflated with pride as you patronize one and flout the other. Who makes you, my friend, so important? What do you possess that was not given you? If then you really received it all as a gift, why take the credit to yourself?

8 All of you, no doubt, have everything you could desire. You have come into your fortune already. You have come into your kingdom—and left us out. How I wish you had indeed won your kingdom; then you might share it with us! For it seems to me God has made us apostles the most abject of mankind. We are like men condemned to death in the arena, a spectacle to the whole universe—angels as well as men.

10 We are fools for Christ's sake, while you are such sensible Christians. We are weak; you are so powerful. We are in disgrace; you are honoured. To this day we go hungry and thirsty and in rags; we are roughly handled; we wander from place to place; we wear ourselves out working with our own hands. They curse us, and we bless; they persecute us, and we submit to it; they slander us, and we humbly make our appeal. We are treated as the scum of the earth, the dregs of humanity, to this very day.

14 I am not writing thus to shame you, but to bring you to reason; for you are my dear children. You may have ten thousand tutors in Christ, but you have only one father. For in Christ Jesus you are my offspring, and mine alone, through the preaching of the Gospel.

I appeal to you therefore to follow my example. That is the very reason why I have sent Timothy, who is a dear son to me and a most trustworthy Christian; he will remind you of the way of life in Christ which I follow, and which I teach everywhere in all our congregations. There are certain persons who are filled with self-importance because they think I am not coming to Corinth. I shall come very soon, if the Lord will; and then I shall take the measure of these self-important people, not by what they say, but by what power is in them. The kingdom of God is not a matter of talk, but of power. Choose, then: am I to come to you with a rod in my hand, or in love and a gentle spirit?

I ACTUALLY HEAR REPORTS OF SEXUAL immorality among you, immorality such as even pagans do not tolerate: the union of a man with his father's wife. And you can still be proud of yourselves! You ought to have gone into mourning; a man who has done such a deed should have been rooted out of your company. For my part, though I am absent in body, I am present in spirit, and my judgement upon the man who did this thing is already given, as if I were indeed present: you all being assembled in the name of our Lord Jesus, and I with you in spirit, with the power of our Lord Jesus over us, this man is to be consigned to Satan for the destruction of the body, so that his spirit may be saved on the Day of the Lord.

Your self-satisfaction ill becomes

(see 5.10-11) besides Paul and Apollos should fear judgment. 8-13: With biting irony Paul contrasts his humiliating hardships with their complacency. 9: Arena: compare 15.32. Angels: see 6.2-3 n. 12: Working with our own hands (see Acts 18.3) is an especially bitter complaint (see 2 Cor.11.7-10 n.).

4.14-21: Paul's fatherly authority extends itself to the Corinthians by means of Timothy's mission and Paul's impending visit. 15: Tutors were normally slaves who supervised a boy's conduct outside of school; their temporary (Gal.3.24) authority derived from the boy's father. 17: Timothy: see 16.10 n. 18-19: Sternly Paul speaks of his visit as very soon; his actual plans are more elaborate (16.5-9). 20: Power, i.e. of the Spirit (2.4).

5.1-13: A case of sexual immorality. 1: Paul has received reports (possibly from Chloe's people; see 1.11) about a Christian who is living with his stepmother, who may have been widowed. Neither Roman nor Jewish law (Lev.18.8; 20.11) permitted such a union. 2: The Corinthians' pride (also v. 6) is worse than the sin itself. Perhaps the experiments in sexual asceticism discussed in ch. 7 (see 7.36-38 n.) have created the problem here. 3-5: Paul orders a formal assembly to expel the offender (see 2 Cor.2.5-11 n.). Excluded from the table-fellowship he becomes Satan's prey. His death (11.30 n.) will end his sin, but, like all Christians, he has been marked for salvation on the Day (1.8 n.). 6: Leaven, i.e. yeast, was both useful (Mt.13.33)

you. Have you never heard the saying, 'A little leaven leavens all the dough'?
 7 The old leaven of corruption is working among you. Purge it out, and then you will be bread of a new baking. As Christians you are unleavened Passover bread; for indeed our Passover has begun; the sacrifice is offered—Christ
 8 himself. So we who observe the festival must not use the old leaven, the leaven of corruption and wickedness, but only the unleavened bread which is sincerity and truth.
 9 In my letter I wrote that you must
 10 have nothing to do with loose livers. I was not, of course, referring to pagans who lead loose lives or are grabbers and swindlers or idolaters. To avoid them you would have to get out of the 11 world altogether. I now write that you must have nothing to do with any so-called Christian who leads a loose life, or is grasping, or idolatrous, a slanderer, a drunkard, or a swindler. You should not even eat with any such 12 person. What business of mine is it to judge outsiders? God is their judge.
 13 You are judges within the fellowship. Root out the evil-doer from your community.

6 IF ONE OF YOUR NUMBER HAS A DISPUTE with another, has he the face to take it to pagan law-courts instead of to the community of God's people? It is God's people who are to judge the world; surely you know that. And if the world is to come before you for judgement, are you incompetent to deal
 3 with these trifling cases? Are you not aware that we are to judge angels? How much more, mere matters of business! If therefore you have such 4 business disputes, how can you entrust jurisdiction to outsiders, men who count for nothing in our community? I write this to shame you. Can it be that 5 there is not a single wise man among you able to give a decision in a brother-Christian cause? Must brother

 6 go to law with brother—and before unbelievers? Indeed, you already fall
 7 below your standard in going to law with one another at all. Why not rather suffer injury? Why not rather let yourself be robbed? So far from this, you
 8 actually injure and rob—injure and rob your brothers! Surely you know
 9 that the unjust will never come into possession of the kingdom of God. Make no mistake: no fornicator or idolater, none who are guilty either of adultery or of homosexual perversion, 10 no thieves or grabbers or drunkards or slanderers or swindlers, will possess the kingdom of God. Such were some of 11 you. But you have been through the purifying waters; you have been dedicated to God and justified through the name of the Lord Jesus and the Spirit of our God.

'I am free to do anything', you say.
 12 Yes, but not everything is for my good. No doubt I am free to do anything, but I for one will not let anything make 13 free with me. 'Food is for the belly and the belly for food', you say. True; and one day God will put an end to both. But it is not true that the body is for 14 lust; it is for the Lord—and the Lord for the body. God not only raised our 15 Lord from the dead; he will also raise us by his power. Do you not know that your bodies are limbs and organs of and, like mold, corrupting. 7-8: Writing perhaps near Passover (16.8 n.), Paul compares the expulsion of the immoral man to the Jewish custom of discarding all household leaven before baking the unleavened Passover bread (Deut.16.1,3-4). This leads him to speak of Christ as the lamb sacrificed at Passover (v. 7; Deut.16.2; Exod.12.21; Jn.1.29). 9: Letter: see Introduction. 12-13: Church discipline applies only to church members. Judgment in these matters is an exception to Paul's rule that Christians should not judge others until they judge the world in the new age (4.5; 6.2). Root out: v. 2; Deut.22.21,24.

6.1-11: Lawsuits among Christians. It is shameful that quarrelling believers should seek justice from pagan law-courts. 2-3: In the age to come Christians will judge the world and judge angels. For Paul, angels, i.e. "messengers," are fearsome embodiments of supernatural power. They may be good (2 Cor.11.14) or from Satan (2 Cor.12.7). 9-11: The unjust of the world (this list of vices is stereotyped; see Gal.5.19-24) will have no part in the kingdom (1.8 n.), but believers have been washed (in baptism) and made holy.

6.12-20: Conclusion (to chs. 1-6) and preface (to chs. 7-15). 12: "I am free . . ." is a slogan of the Corinthians (10.23). 13: "Food is for the belly . . ." is another of their slogans (see chs. 8-10). Body not for lust: ch. 7. 14: See ch. 15. 15: Limbs and organs of Christ: see 12.12-13 n.

Christ? Shall I then take from Christ his bodily parts and make them over to a harlot? Never! You surely know that anyone who links himself with a harlot becomes physically one with her (for Scripture says, 'The pair shall become one flesh'); but he who links himself with Christ is one with him, spiritually. Shun fornication. Every other sin that a man can commit is outside the body; but the fornicator sins against his own body. Do you not know that your body is a shrine of the indwelling Holy Spirit, and the Spirit is God's gift to you? You do not belong to yourselves; you were bought at a price. Then honour God in your body.

The Christian in a pagan society

7 AND NOW FOR THE MATTERS YOU WROTE about.

It is a good thing for a man to have nothing to do with women;<sup>e</sup> but because there is so much immorality, let each man have his own wife and each woman her own husband. The husband must give the wife what is due to her, and the wife equally must give the husband his due. The wife cannot claim her body as her own; it is her husband's. Equally, the husband cannot claim his body as his own; it is his wife's. Do not deny yourselves to one another, except when you agree upon a temporary abstinence in order to devote yourselves to prayer; afterwards you may come together again; otherwise, for lack of self-control, you may be tempted by Satan.

6 All this I say by way of concession, 7 not command. I should like you all to be as I am myself; but everyone has the gift God has granted him, one this gift and another that.

To the unmarried and to widows I say this: it is a good thing if they stay as I am myself; but if they cannot control themselves, they should marry. Better be married than burn with vain desire.

To the married I give this ruling, which is not mine but the Lord's: a wife must not separate herself from her husband; if she does, she must either remain unmarried or be reconciled to her husband; and the husband must not divorce his wife.

To the rest I say this, as my own word, not as the Lord's: if a Christian has a heathen wife, and she is willing to live with him, he must not divorce her; and a woman who has a heathen husband willing to live with her must not divorce her husband. For the heathen husband now belongs to God through his Christian wife, and the heathen wife through her Christian husband. Otherwise your children would not belong to God, whereas in fact they do. If on the other hand the heathen partner wishes for a separation, let him have it. In such cases the Christian husband or wife is under no compulsion; but God's call is a call to live in peace. Think of it: as a wife you may be your husband's salvation; as a husband you may be your wife's salvation.

However that may be, each one must order his life according to the gift the Lord has granted him and his condition when God called him. That is what I teach in all our congregations. Was a man called with the marks of circumcision on him? Let him not remove them. Was he uncircumcised when he was called? Let him not be circumcised. Circumcision or uncircumcision is neither here nor there; what matters

<sup>e</sup> Or You say, 'It is a good thing . . . women'; . . .

16: Gen.2.24 (1 Cor. ch. 7; Mk.10.6-8; Eph.5.31). 19: The gift of the Spirit: see chs. 12-14. 20: Bought at a price: like slaves set free (see 7.23; Rom.3.24 n.).

7.1-16: "Should we not avoid sex and marriage?" Some such question probably stood in the Corinthians' letter to Paul (see Introduction). 1: It is a good thing . . .: probably a Corinthian slogan; see Tfn. e. 2-5: Paul urges full conjugal rights, permitting only temporary asceticism. 6-9: Paul is unmarried and because of the nearness of the Day (1.8 n.; 7.29,31), considers this preferable. But it is a gift, not a rule. The distractions of married life (7.32-34) are infinitely preferable to moral lapses. 10: The Lord's: Jesus' (see Mk.10.2-12); contrast vv. 12,25. 12-16: The divorce even of unbelieving partners is not encouraged.

7.17-24: Stay as you are. The end of this age is near (vv. 29,31). Therefore believers should not try to change their outward condition. 19: See Rom.2.25-29.

20 is to keep God's commands. Every man should remain in the condition in which he was called. Were you a slave when you were called? Do not let that trouble you; but if a chance of liberty should come, take it.<sup>f</sup> For the man who as a slave received the call to be a Christian is the Lord's freedman, and, equally, the free man who received the call is a slave in the service of Christ.

23 You were bought at a price; do not become slaves of men. Thus each one, my friends, is to remain before God in the condition in which he received his call.

25 On the question of celibacy, I have no instructions from the Lord, but I give my judgement as one who by God's mercy is fit to be trusted.

26 It is my opinion, then, that in a time of stress like the present this is the best way for a man to live—it is best for a man to be as he is. Are you bound in marriage? Do not seek a dissolution. Has your marriage been dissolved?

28 Do not seek a wife. If, however, you do marry, there is nothing wrong in it; and if a virgin marries, she has done no wrong. But those who marry will have pain and grief in this bodily life, and my aim is to spare you.

29 What I mean, my friends, is this. The time we live in will not last long. While it lasts, married men should be as if they had no wives; mourners should be as if they had nothing to grieve them, the joyful as if they did not rejoice; buyers must not count on keeping what they buy, nor those who use the world's wealth on using it to the full. For the whole frame of this world is passing away.

32 I want you to be free from anxious care. The unmarried man cares for the Lord's business; his aim is to please the Lord. But the married man cares for worldly things; his aim is to please his wife; and he has a divided mind.

The unmarried or celibate woman cares<sup>g</sup> for the Lord's business; her aim is to be dedicated to him in body as in spirit; but the married woman cares for worldly things; her aim is to please her husband.

In saying this I have no wish to keep you on a tight rein. I am thinking simply of your own good, of what is seemly, and of your freedom to wait upon the Lord without distraction.

But if a man has a partner in celibacy<sup>h</sup> and feels that he is not behaving properly towards her, if, that is, his instincts are too strong for him,<sup>i</sup> and something must be done, he may do as he pleases; there is nothing wrong in it; let them marry.<sup>j</sup> But if a man is steadfast in his purpose, being under no compulsion, and has complete control of his own choice; and if he has decided in his own mind to preserve his partner<sup>k</sup> in her virginity, he will do well. Thus, he who marries his partner<sup>l</sup> does well, and he who does not will do better.

A wife is bound to her husband as long as he lives. But if the husband die, she is free to marry whom she will, provided the marriage is within the Lord's fellowship. But she is better off as she is; that is my opinion, and I believe that I too have the Spirit of God.

NOW ABOUT FOOD CONSECRATED TO 8 heathen deities.

Of course we all 'have knowledge', as you say. This 'knowledge' breeds conceit; it is love that builds. If anyone fancies that he knows, he knows nothing yet, in the true sense of know-

<sup>f</sup> Or but even if a chance of liberty should come, choose rather to make good use of your servitude.

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses read . . . his wife. And there is a difference between the wife and the virgin. The unmarried woman cares . . .

<sup>h</sup> Or a virgin daughter (or ward).

<sup>i</sup> Or if she is ripe for marriage.

<sup>j</sup> Or let the girl and her lover marry.

<sup>k</sup> Or his daughter.

<sup>l</sup> Or gives his daughter in marriage.

7.25–38: "Should our celibate couples abandon their vows?" (See 7.1–16 n.). 25: Celibacy: lit. "virgins" (referring to both sexes); see vv. 36–38 n. 26–34: Paul reiterates the argument of vv. 17–24. 36–38: Apparently some Corinthians had chosen partners in celibacy by undertaking some sort of mutual vow, either like the marital ascetics of v. 5 or like engaged couples.

7.39–40: An afterthought to vv. 1–16.

8.1–11.1: "Surely there is no harm in eating meat consecrated to a heathen deity?" (See 7.1–16 n.). The extent of consecration varied from full temple sacrifice to the merest slaughterhouse gesture.

8.1–13: Love is superior to knowledge (also ch. 13). 1–4: The Corinthians' slogans (see also

3 ing. But if a man loves,<sup>m</sup> he is acknowledged by God.<sup>n</sup>

4 Well then, about eating this consecrated food: of course, as you say, 'a false god has no existence in the real world. There is no god but one.' For indeed, if there be so-called gods, whether in heaven or on earth—as indeed there are many 'gods' and many 'lords' 5 —yet for us there is one God, the Father, from whom all being comes, towards whom we move; and there is one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom all things came to be, and we through him.

7 But not everyone knows this. There are some who have been so accustomed to idolatry<sup>o</sup> that even now they eat this food with a sense of its heathen consecration, and their conscience, being 8 weak, is polluted by the eating. Certainly food will not bring us into God's presence: if we do not eat, we are none the worse, and if we eat, we are none 9 the better. But be careful that this liberty of yours does not become a pitfall for the weak. If a weak character 10 sees you sitting down to a meal in a heathen temple—you, who 'have knowledge'<sup>p</sup>—will not his conscience be emboldened to eat food consecrated to the 11 heathen deity? This 'knowledge' of yours is utter disaster to the weak, the 12 brother for whom Christ died. In thus sinning against your brothers and wounding their conscience,<sup>p</sup> you sin 13 against Christ. And therefore, if food be the downfall of my brother, I will never eat meat any more, for I will not be the cause of my brother's downfall.

9 AM I NOT A FREE MAN? AM I NOT AN apostle? Did I not see Jesus our Lord? Are not you my own handiwork, in the 2 Lord? If others do not accept me as an apostle, you at least are bound to do so, for you are yourselves the very seal of my apostolate, in the Lord.

To those who put me in the dock 3 this is my answer: Have I no right to 4 eat and drink? Have I no right to take 5 a Christian wife about with me, like the rest of the apostles and the Lord's 6 brothers, and Cephas? Or are Barnabas 6 and I alone bound to work for our living? Did you ever hear of a man 7 serving in the army at his own expense? or planting a vineyard without eating the fruit of it? or tending a flock without using its milk? Do not suppose I 8 rely on these human analogies, for the law says the same; in the Law of Moses 9 we read, 'You shall not muzzle a threshing ox.' Do you suppose God's concern is with oxen? Or is the reference clearly 10 to ourselves? Of course it refers to us, in the sense that the ploughman should plough and the thresher thresh in the hope of getting some of the produce. If 11 we have sown a spiritual crop for you, is it too much to expect from you a material harvest? If you allow others 12 these rights, have not we a stronger claim?

But I have availed myself of no such right. On the contrary, I put up with all that comes my way rather than offer any hindrance to the gospel of Christ. You know (do you not?) that those 13 who perform the temple service eat the temple offerings, and those who wait upon the altar claim their share of the sacrifice. In the same way the Lord gave 14 instructions that those who preach the Gospel should earn their living by the Gospel. But I have never taken 15 advantage of any such right, nor do I intend to claim it in this letter. I had rather die! No one shall make my boast

m Some witnesses read loves God.

n Or he is recognized.

o Some witnesses read in whom the consciousness of the false god is so persistent.

p Some witnesses insert weak as it is.

10.23) defend their freedom. 6: Mal.2.10; Eph.4.6; Col.1.16; Jn.1.3. 7-13: Out of loving concern for the weak the mature Christian should limit his own liberty. 10: Men often entertained their friends with a meal at some temple, using meat previously sacrificed. The affair was largely social; thus Christians might attend (see 10.27).

9.1-27: Paul's own self-restraint extends to other matters as well. 1: An apostle has both seen the resurrected Jesus (15.5-9) and received from him a missionary task (see Gal.1.16).

9.3-12a: Paul's right to financial support. 5: The Lord's brothers: see Mk.6.3; Gal.1.19. 6: Barnabas: see Acts 4.36; Gal.2.1. Work: tent-making (Acts 18.3). 9: Deut.25.4. 10: The promises of Scripture apply to the new Israel (see 10.11; Rom.15.4).

9.12b-18: The Gospel free of charge. 13: Deut.18.1-4 and in pagan cults. 14: Mt.10.10. 15-18: Boast, satisfaction: see 2 Th.3.7-9; 2 Cor.11.7-10 n.

16 an empty boast. Even if I preach the Gospel, I can claim no credit for it; I cannot help myself; it would be misery
 17 to me not to preach. If I did it of my own choice, I should be earning my pay; but since I do it apart from my own choice, I am simply discharging a 18 trust.<sup>q</sup> Then what is my pay? The satisfaction of preaching the Gospel without expense to anyone; in other words, of waiving the rights which my preaching gives me.

19 I am a free man and own no master; but I have made myself every man's servant, to win over as many as possible.
 20 To Jews I became like a Jew, to win Jews; as they are subject to the Law of Moses, I put myself under that law to win them, although I am not 21 myself subject to it. To win Gentiles, who are outside the Law, I made myself like one of them, although I am not in truth outside God's law, being 22 under the law of Christ. To the weak I became weak, to win the weak. Indeed, I have become everything in turn to men of every sort, so that in one way or 23 another I may save some. All this I do for the sake of the Gospel, to bear my part in proclaiming it.

24 You know (do you not?) that at the sports all the runners run the race, though only one wins the prize. Like 25 them, run to win! But every athlete goes into strict training. They do it to win a fading wreath; we, a wreath that never fades. For my part, I run with a 26 clear goal before me; I am like a boxer who does not beat the air; I bruise my own body and make it know its master, for fear that after preaching to others I 27 should find myself rejected.

10 You should understand, my brothers, that our ancestors were all under the pillar of cloud, and all of them
 2 passed through the Red Sea; and so they all received baptism into the fellowship of Moses in cloud and sea. They all ate the same supernatural

 3 food, and all drank the same supernatural drink; I mean, they all drank
 4 from the supernatural rock that accompanied their travels—and that rock was Christ. And yet, most of them
 5 were not accepted by God, for the desert was strewn with their corpses.

These events happened as symbols
 6 to warn us not to set our desires on evil things, as they did. Do not be 7 idolaters, like some of them; as Scripture has it, 'the people sat down to feast and rose up to revel'. Let us not
 8 commit fornication, as some of them did—and twenty-three thousand died in one day. Let us not put the power
 9 of the Lord<sup>r</sup> to the test, as some of them did—and were destroyed by serpents. Do not grumble against God, 10 as some of them did—and were destroyed by the Destroyer.

All these things that happened to 11 them were symbolic, and were recorded for our benefit as a warning. For upon us the fulfilment of the ages has come. If you feel sure that you are standing
 12 firm, beware! You may fall. So far you have faced no trial beyond what man 13 can bear. God keeps faith, and he will not allow you to be tested above your powers, but when the test comes he will at the same time provide a way out, by enabling you to sustain it.

SO THEN, DEAR FRIENDS, SHUN IDOLATRY. 14
 I speak to you as men of sense. Form 15 your own judgement on what I say. When we bless 'the cup of blessing', is 16 it not a means of sharing in the blood of Christ? When we break the bread, is it not a means of sharing in the body of <sup>q</sup> Or If I do it willingly I am earning my pay; if I did it unwillingly I should still have a trust laid upon me.

<sup>r</sup> Some witnesses read of Christ.

9.19–27: The highest goal requires self-sacrifice. 19–23: In his behavior Paul has a higher purpose than consistency: to win men for Christ. 27: The body is not an enemy; Paul is speaking figuratively of his disciplined life. Rejected: see 10.5–13.

10.1–13: It is possible to provoke God and perish; baptism and the Lord's Supper do not prevent sin or excuse from judgment. 1–2: Cloud: see Exod.13.21. Sea: see Exod.14.22. 3: Food: manna (Exod.16.4–35). 4: Drink: water from the rock (Exod.17.6; Num. 20.11). Legend had it that the rock followed the Israelites in their travels. Paul identifies the source of this life-giving water with Christ (compare Jn.4.14). 5: Num.14.29–30. 7: Exod.32.4,6. 8–10: Num.25.1–18; 21.5–6; 16.41,49. 11: Fulfillment: end; compare 1.8 n.

10.14–22: Danger from demons. Idols indeed are nothing (8.4), but demons use them as camouflage (Deut.32.17). Thus eating food consecrated to heathen gods is defiance of God

17 Christ? Because there is one loaf, we, many as we are, are one body;<sup>s</sup> for it is one loaf of which we all partake.

18 Look at the Jewish people. Are not those who partake in the sacrificial meal sharers in the altar? What do I imply by this? that an idol is anything but an idol? or food offered to it anything more than food? No; but the sacrifices the heathen offer are offered (in the words of Scripture) 'to demons and to that which is not God'; and I will not have you become partners with demons. You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You cannot partake of the Lord's table and the table of demons. Can we defy the Lord? Are we stronger than he?

23 'We are free to do anything', you say. Yes, but is everything good for us? 'We are free to do anything', but does everything help the building of the community? Each of you must regard, not his own interests, but the other man's.

25 You may eat anything sold in the meat-market without raising questions of conscience; for the earth is the Lord's and everything in it.

27 If an unbeliever invites you to a meal and you care to go, eat whatever is put before you, without raising questions of conscience. But if somebody says to you, 'This food has been offered in sacrifice', then, out of consideration for him, and for conscience' sake, do not eat it—not your conscience, I mean, but the other man's.

30 'What?' you say, 'is my freedom to be called in question by another man's conscience? If I partake with thankfulness, why am I blamed for eating food over which I have said grace?' Well, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you are doing, do all for the honour of God: give no offence to Jews, or Greeks, or to the church of God. For my part I always try to meet everyone half-way, regarding not my own good but the good of the many, so that they may be saved. Follow my example as I follow Christ's.

I COMMEND YOU FOR ALWAYS KEEPING 2 me in mind, and maintaining the tradition I handed on to you. But I wish 3 you to understand that, while every man has Christ for his Head, woman's head is man,<sup>t</sup> as Christ's Head is God. A man who keeps his head covered 4 when he prays or prophesies brings shame on his head; a woman, on the 5 contrary, brings shame on her head if she prays or prophesies bare-headed; it is as bad as if her head were shaved. If a woman is not to wear a veil she 6 might as well have her hair cut off; but if it is a disgrace for her to be 7 cropped and shaved, then she should wear a veil. A man has no need to cover 8 his head, because man is the image of God, and the mirror of his glory, whereas woman reflects the glory of man.<sup>u</sup> For man did not originally spring from 9 woman, but woman was made out of man; and man was not created for 10 woman's sake, but woman for the sake of man; and therefore it is woman's 11 duty to have a sign of authority<sup>v</sup> on her head, out of regard for the angels.<sup>w</sup> And yet, in Christ's fellowship woman 12 is as essential to man as man to woman. If woman was made out of man, it is 13 through woman that man now comes to be; and God is the source of all.

Judge for yourselves: is it fitting for 14 a woman to pray to God bare-headed? Does not Nature herself teach you that 15 while flowing locks disgrace a man, they are a woman's glory? For her 16 locks were given for covering.

However, if you insist on arguing, 17 let me tell you, there is no such custom

<sup>s</sup> Or For we, many as we are, are one loaf, one body.

<sup>t</sup> Or a woman's head is her husband.

<sup>u</sup> Or a woman reflects her husband's glory.

<sup>v</sup> Some witnesses read to have a veil.

<sup>w</sup> Or and therefore a woman should keep her dignity on her head, for fear of the angels.

(Deut.32.21). 16–17: See 11.23–26; Mk.14.22–25. 20: Deut.32.17. 21: See 2 Cor.6.15–16.

10.23–11.1: Paul closes the section on idol meat (8.1–11.1) with directions which allow freedom, if it is restrained by love. 23: Another Corinthian slogan (compare 8.1–4 n.). 26: Pss.24.1; 50.12. 27: See 8.10 n. 10.28–11.1: See 8.7–13.

11.2–16: "Is it necessary for women to worship with their heads covered?" (See 7.1–16 n.). Christian women enjoyed considerable freedom, including the right to preach (prophecy), but worship without veils may have reminded Paul of pagan cults. 7: Image: Gen.1.26. 8–12: See Gen.2.18,21–24. 10: Women must wear veils as a sign of authority or power. These angels (see 6.2–3 n.) are perhaps the lustful spirits of a legend based on Gen.6.1–4. 16: See 14.36–38 n.

among us, or in any of the congregations of God's people.

17 In giving you these injunctions I must mention a practice which I cannot commend: your meetings tend to do more harm than good. To begin with, I am told that when you meet as a congregation you fall into sharply divided groups; and I believe there is some truth in it (for dissensions are necessary if only to show which of your members are sound). The result is that when you meet as a congregation, it is impossible for you to eat the Lord's Supper, because each of you is in such a hurry to eat his own, and while one goes hungry another has too much to drink. Have you no homes of your own to eat and drink in? Or are you so contemptuous of the church of God that you shame its poorer members? What am I to say? Can I commend you? On this point, certainly not!

23 For the tradition which I handed on to you came to me from the Lord himself: that the Lord Jesus, on the night of his arrest, took bread and, after giving thanks to God, broke it and said: 'This is my body, which is for you; do this as a memorial of me.' In the same way, he took the cup after supper, and said: 'This cup is the new covenant sealed by my blood. Whenever you drink it, do this as a memorial of me.' For every time you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the death of the Lord, until he comes.

27 It follows that anyone who eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord unworthily will be guilty of desecrating the body and blood of the Lord. A man must test himself before eating his share of the bread and drinking from the cup. For he who eats and drinks eats and drinks judgement on himself if he does not discern the Body. That is why many of you are feeble and sick, and a number have died. But if we examined ourselves, we should not thus fall under judgement. When, however, we do fall under the Lord's judgement, he is disciplining us, to save us from being condemned with the rest of the world.

Therefore, my brothers, when you meet for a meal, wait for one another. If you are hungry, eat at home, so that in meeting together you may not fall under judgement. The other matters I will arrange when I come.

Spiritual gifts

ABOUT GIFTS OF THE SPIRIT, THERE ARE 12 some things of which I do not wish you to remain ignorant.

You know how, in the days when you were still pagan, you were swept off to those dumb heathen gods, however you happened to be led.<sup>x</sup> For this reason I must impress upon you that no one who says 'A curse on Jesus!' can be speaking under the influence of the Spirit of God. And no one can say 'Jesus is Lord!' except under the influence of the Holy Spirit.

There are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit. There are varieties of service, but the same Lord. There are many forms of work, but all of them, in all men, are the work of the same God. In each of us the Spirit is manifested in one particular way, for some useful purpose. One man, through the Spirit, has the gift of wise speech, while another, by the power of the same Spirit, can put the deepest knowledge into words. Another, by the same <sup>x</sup> Or . . . pagan, you would be seized by some power which drove you to those dumb heathen gods.

11.17-34: The Lord's Supper properly observed. Paul has more news (v. 18) of their dissensions (compare 1.11-12). The Lord's Supper was then a full meal; the Corinthians' greed shattered the "one body" (10.16-17) with dire consequences (v. 30). 17: Contrast v. 2. 23-25: This is the earliest written account of the Lord's Supper (compare Mk.14.22-25; Lk.22.14-20). 23: Handed on: see 15.3 n. 25: Covenant, blood: Exod.24.8. 30: They had expected to live until Christ's return (v. 26; 15.51); Paul explains why some had died (see 5.3-5 n.).

12.1-14.40: "Ecstatic utterance in worship is the gift of the Spirit, is it not?" (See 7.1-16 n.) Paul's long response occupies chs. 12-14.

12.1-31: Other and better gifts. Ecstatic utterance (v. 10) is indeed a gift, but it is not the only gift. Of all the Spirit's gifts it ranks last (vv. 10,28,30). 2-3: Not all ecstatic speech is from the Spirit; some is pagan. 4-6: Spirit . . . Lord . . . God: the triad foreshadows the later doctrine of the Trinity. 7: Useful: the test is utility (compare Mt.7.16-20). 9: Faith here (and in 13.2) is a Spirit, is granted faith; another, by the one Spirit, gifts of healing, and another miraculous powers; another has the gift of prophecy, and another ability to distinguish true spirits from false; yet another has the gift of ecstatic utterance of different kinds, and another the ability to interpret it. But all these gifts are the work of one and the same Spirit, distributing them separately to each individual at will.

For Christ is like a single body with its many limbs and organs, which, many as they are, together make up one body. For indeed we were all brought into one body by baptism, in the one Spirit, whether we are Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free men, and that one Holy Spirit was poured out for all of us to drink.

A body is not one single organ, but many. Suppose the foot should say, 'Because I am not a hand, I do not belong to the body', it does belong to the body none the less. Suppose the ear were to say, 'Because I am not an eye, I do not belong to the body', it does still belong to the body. If the body were all eye, how could it hear? If the body were all ear, how could it smell? But, in fact, God appointed each limb and organ to its own place in the body, as he chose. If the whole were one single organ, there would not be a body at all; in fact, however, there are many different organs, but one body. The eye cannot say to the hand, 'I do not need you'; nor the head to the feet, 'I do not need you.' Quite the contrary: those organs of the body which seem to be more frail than others are indispensable, and those parts of the body which we regard as less honourable are treated with special honour. To our unseemly parts is given a more than ordinary seemliness, whereas our seemly parts need no adorning. But God has combined the various parts of the body, giving special honour to the humbler parts, so that there might be no sense of division in the body, but that all its organs might feel the same concern for one another. If one organ suffers, they all suffer together. If one flourishes, they all rejoice together.

Now you are Christ's body, and each of you a limb or organ of it. Within our community God has appointed, in the first place apostles, in the second place prophets, thirdly teachers; then miracle-workers, then those who have gifts of healing, or ability to help others or power to guide them, or the gift of ecstatic utterance of various kinds. Are all apostles? all prophets? all teachers? Do all work miracles? Have all gifts of healing? Do all speak in tongues of ecstasy? Can all interpret them? The higher gifts are those you should aim at.

And now I will show you the best way of all.

I may speak in tongues of men or of angels, but if I am without love, I am a sounding gong or a clanging cymbal. I may have the gift of prophecy, and know every hidden truth; I may have faith strong enough to move mountains; but if I have no love, I am nothing. I may dole out all I possess, or even give my body to be burnt,<sup>y</sup> but if I have no love, I am none the better.

Love is patient; love is kind and envies no one. Love is never boastful, nor conceited, nor rude; never selfish, not quick to take offence. Love keeps no score of wrongs; does not gloat over other men's sins, but delights in the truth. There is nothing love cannot face; there is no limit to its faith, its hope, and its endurance.

Love will never come to an end. Are special gift, rather than the characteristic of every believer (as in 1.21; 2.5; 3.5). 10: Prophecy: preaching (14.1-5). Distinguish . . . spirits: see vv. 2-3. 12-13: Christians are "in Christ" (Rom. 8.1 n.), not separately but "corporately." Paul speaks of the church as the body of Christ (v. 27) and of Christians as its differing but mutually dependent "members." 14-26: Paul argues that a church whose members exhibit but one spiritual gift is like a body composed solely of an eye or an ear. 27: See Rom.12.4-5; Eph.1.22-23; Col.1.18-24. 28-30: Roughly parallel to vv. 8-10.

<sup>y</sup> Some witnesses read even seek glory by self-sacrifice.

13.1-13: Love, the best gift of all. This famous chapter is closely linked to chs. 12 and 14. 1: Tongues . . . of angels: ecstatic speech. Angels: see 6.2-3 n. Gong . . . cymbal: mere noise-makers used in pagan cults. 2: Prophecy: see 12.10 n. Faith: see 12.9 n.; Mk.11.22-23. 3: Burnt: perhaps as a martyr (Dan.3.19-23; 2 Macc.7.2-6). 4-6,11: Paul betrays his opinion of the

there prophets? their work will be over. Are there tongues of ecstasy? they will cease. Is there knowledge? it will vanish away; for our knowledge and our prophecy alike are partial, and the partial vanishes when wholeness comes.

11 When I was a child, my speech, my outlook, and my thoughts were all childish. When I grew up, I had finished with childish things. Now we see only puzzling reflections in a mirror, but then we shall see face to face. My knowledge now is partial; then it will be whole, like God's knowledge of me. In a word, there are three things that last for ever: faith, hope, and love; but the greatest of them all is love.

14 Put love first; but there are other gifts of the Spirit at which you should aim also, and above all prophecy.

2 When a man is using the language of ecstasy he is talking with God, not with men, for no man understands him; he is no doubt inspired, but he speaks mysteries. On the other hand, when a man prophesies, he is talking to men, and his words have power to build; they stimulate and they encourage. The language of ecstasy is good for the speaker himself, but it is prophecy that builds up a Christian community. I should be pleased for you all to use the tongues of ecstasy, but better pleased for you to prophesy. The prophet is worth more than the man of ecstatic speech—unless indeed he can explain its meaning, and so help to build up the community. Suppose, my friends, that when I come to you I use ecstatic language: what good shall I do you, unless what I say contains something by way of revelation, or enlightenment, or prophecy, or instruction?

7 Even with inanimate things that produce sounds—a flute, say, or a lyre—unless their notes mark definite intervals, how can you tell what tune is being played? Or again, if the trumpet-call is not clear, who will prepare for battle?

In the same way if your ecstatic utterance yields no precise meaning, how can anyone tell what you are saying? You will be talking into the air. How many different kinds of sound there are, or may be, in the world! Nothing is altogether soundless. Well then, if I do not know the meaning of the sound the speaker makes, his words will be gibberish to me, and mine to him. You are, I know, eager for gifts of the Spirit; then aspire above all to excel in those which build up the church.

I say, then, that the man who falls into ecstatic utterance should pray for the ability to interpret. If I use such language in my prayer, the Spirit in me prays, but my intellect lies fallow. What then? I will pray as I am inspired to pray, but I will also pray intelligently. I will sing hymns as I am inspired to sing, but I will sing intelligently too. Suppose you are praising God in the language of inspiration: how will the plain man who is present be able to say 'Amen' to your thanksgiving, when he does not know what you are saying? Your prayer of thanksgiving may be all that could be desired, but it is no help to the other man. Thank God, I am more gifted in ecstatic utterance than any of you,<sup>2</sup> but in the congregation I would rather speak five intelligible words, for the benefit of others as well as myself, than thousands of words in the language of ecstasy.

Do not be childish, my friends. Be as innocent of evil as babes, but at least be grown-up in your thinking. We read in the Law: 'I will speak to this nation through men of strange tongues, and by the lips of foreigners; and even so they will not heed me, says the Lord.' Clearly then these 'strange tongues' are not intended as a sign for believers, but for unbelievers, whereas prophecy is designed not for unbelievers but for <sup>2</sup> Or . . . man. I say the thanksgiving; I use ecstatic speech more than any of you.

Corinthians' pride in their special gifts. 12: Mirror: ancient metal mirrors gave distorted reflections. 13: Faith, hope, and love: a favorite triad for Paul (1 Th.1.3; 5.8; Rom.5.1-5; Col.1.4-5).

14.1-40: Rational preaching is of far more value than ecstatic utterance. 1: Love: for love's sake they ought to make themselves understood when they pray (vv. 13-17). 16: Christians adopted "Amen" (lit. "so be it"), the Jewish response to prayer (e.g. Neh.8.6; Ps.106.48). 18: Probably the Corinthians had learned ecstatic utterance from Paul (see also 2 Cor.12.1-4 n.). 20: See 2.6; 3.1-2; 13.11. 21: Isa.28.11-12 is cited as Law, rather than Prophet; see Rom.3.19 n.

23 those who hold the faith. So if the whole congregation is assembled and all are using the 'strange tongues' of ecstasy, and some uninstructed persons or unbelievers should enter, will they
24 not think you are mad? But if all are uttering prophecies, the visitor, when he enters, hears from everyone something that searches his conscience and 25 brings conviction, and the secrets of his heart are laid bare. So he will fall down and worship God, crying, 'God is certainly among you!'

26 To sum up, my friends: when you meet for worship, each of you contributes a hymn, some instruction, a revelation, an ecstatic utterance, or the interpretation of such an utterance. All of these must aim at one thing: to 27 build up the church. If it is a matter of ecstatic utterance, only two should speak, or at most three, one at a time, and someone must interpret. If there is 28 no interpreter, the speaker had better not address the meeting at all, but speak 29 to himself and to God. Of the prophets, two or three may speak, while the rest exercise their judgement upon what is 30 said. If someone else, sitting in his place, receives a revelation, let the first 31 speaker stop. You can all prophesy, one at a time, so that the whole congregation may receive instruction and 32 encouragement. It is for prophets to control prophetic inspiration, for the 33 God who inspires them is not a God of disorder but of peace.

34 As in all congregations of God's people, women<sup>a</sup> should not address the meeting. They have no licence to speak, but should keep their place as the law
35 directs. If there is something they want to know, they can ask their own husbands at home. It is a shocking thing that a woman should address the congregation.

Did the word of God originate with you? Or are you the only people to whom it came? If anyone claims to be inspired or a prophet, let him recognize that what I write has the Lord's authority. If he does not acknowledge this, God does not acknowledge him.<sup>b</sup>

In short, my friends, be eager to prophesy; do not forbid ecstatic utterance; but let all be done decently and in order.

Life after death

AND NOW, MY BROTHERS, I MUST REMIND you of the gospel that I preached to you; the gospel which you received, on which you have taken your stand, and which is now bringing you salvation.
Do you still hold fast the Gospel as I preached it to you? If not, your conversion was in vain.<sup>c</sup>

First and foremost, I handed on to you the facts which had been imparted to me: that Christ died for our sins, in accordance with the scriptures; that he was buried; that he was raised to life on the third day, according to the scriptures; and that he appeared to Cephas, and afterwards to the Twelve. Then he appeared to over five hundred of our brothers at once, most of whom are still alive, though some have died. Then he appeared to James, and afterwards to all the apostles.

In the end he appeared even to me.
It was like an abnormal birth; I had persecuted the church of God and am therefore inferior to all other apostles
—indeed not fit to be called an apostle.

<sup>a</sup> Or of peace, as in all communities of God's people. Women . . .

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read If he refuses to recognize this, let him refuse!

<sup>c</sup> Or Do you remember the terms in which I preached the Gospel to you?—for I assume you did not accept it thoughtlessly.

23–25: This form of worship was not closed to visitors, as the Lord's Supper (11.23–32) presumably was. 34–35: In view of 11.5 many consider these verses not by Paul, but a later insertion (compare 1 Tim.2.11–12). 36–38: For another abrupt closing of a difficult discussion see 11.16.

15.1–58: "Are Christians resurrected in bodily form?" (See 7.1–16 n.). 1–11: An early Christian creed (vv. 3–5) serves to remind them that Christ's resurrection is basic to the gospel message. 3: Handed on, imparted: Paul uses a traditional Jewish formula (also at 11.23) to emphasize that he is transmitting traditions which antedate his own ministry. Scriptures (here and in v. 4) probably means the OT in general. Later tradition cited Isa.52.13–53.12 for Jesus' death and Ps.16.10 (Acts 2.31) for his resurrection. 7: James: Jesus' brother (Gal.1.19; Mk.6.3). 8: Appeared . . . to me: see 9.1; Gal.1.16; Acts 9.3–6. Abnormal birth is obscure; Paul may have been ridiculed for his appearance (2 Cor.10.10; Gal.4.13–14). 9: Persecuted: see Gal.1.13–14.

10 However, by God's grace I am what I am, nor has his grace been given to me in vain; on the contrary, in my labours I have outdone them all—not I, indeed, but the grace of God working with me.
11 But what matter, I or they? This is what we all proclaim, and this is what you believed.

12 Now if this is what we proclaim, that Christ was raised from the dead, how can some of you say there is no resurrection of the dead? If there be no resurrection, then Christ was not raised; and if Christ was not raised, then our gospel is null and void, and so is your faith; and we turn out to be lying witnesses for God, because we bore witness that he raised Christ to life, whereas, if the dead are not raised, he did not raise him. For if the dead are not raised, it follows that Christ was not raised; and if Christ was not raised, your faith has nothing in it and you are still in your old state of sin. It follows also that those who have died within Christ's fellowship are utterly lost. If it is for this life only that Christ has given us hope,<sup>d</sup> we of all men are most to be pitied.

20 But the truth is, Christ was raised to life—the firstfruits of the harvest of the dead. For since it was a man who brought death into the world, a man also brought resurrection of the dead. As in Adam all men die, so in Christ all will be brought to life; but each in his own proper place: Christ the firstfruits, and afterwards, at his coming, those who belong to Christ. Then comes the end, when he delivers up the kingdom to God the Father, after abolishing every kind of domination, authority, and power. For he is destined to reign until God has put all enemies under his feet; and the last enemy to be abolished is death.<sup>e</sup> Scripture says, 'He has put all things in subjection under his feet.' But in saying 'all things', it clearly means to exclude God who subordinates them; and when all things are thus subject to him, then the Son himself will also be made subordinate to God who made all things subject to him, and thus God will be all in all.

Again, there are those who receive baptism on behalf of the dead. Why should they do this? If the dead are not raised to life at all, what do they mean by being baptized on their behalf?

And we ourselves—why do we face these dangers hour by hour? Every day I die: I swear it by my pride in you, my brothers—for in Christ Jesus our Lord I am proud of you. If, as the saying is, I 'fought wild beasts' at Ephesus, what have I gained by it?<sup>f</sup> If the dead are never raised to life, 'let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die'.

Make no mistake: 'Bad company is the ruin of a good character.' Come back to a sober and upright life and leave your sinful ways. There are some who know nothing of God; to your shame I say it.

But, you may ask, how are the dead raised? In what kind of body? How foolish! The seed you sow does not come to life unless it has first died; and what you sow is not the body that shall be, but a naked grain, perhaps of wheat, or of some other kind; and God clothes it with the body of his choice, each seed with its own particular body.

<sup>d</sup> Or If it is only an uncertain hope that our life in Christ has given us . . .

<sup>e</sup> Or Then at the end, when . . . power (for he . . . feet), the last enemy, death, will be abolished.

<sup>f</sup> Or If, as men do, I had fought wild beasts at Ephesus, what good would it be to me? or If I had been in no better case than one fighting beasts in the arena at Ephesus, what good would it be to me?

10: Grace: God's graciousness. 11: Paul asserts the unity of the proclamation, despite differences among proclaimers.

15.12–34: Believing the Gospel means believing in resurrection. Paul is discussing only those few (11.30) who have died since becoming Christians (vv. 18,23,51–53 n.; 1 Th.4.13–18). 20: As the firstfruits ritually symbolized the whole harvest (Lev.23.10), so Christ's resurrection pledges the resurrection of Christians. 21–22: See vv. 45–49 n.; Gen.2.17. 23: Coming: see 1.8 n.; 1 Th.2.19 n. 24–28: Paul summarizes briefly the events of Christ's kingdom. 24–25: Domination . . . enemies: see 2.6–8 n. 26: Perhaps at this point those from past ages held prisoner by death are released for judgment (see 6.2–3 n.). 27: Ps.8.6. 29: Apparently Christians were baptized vicariously for previously deceased loved ones to insure their resurrection. 31: Die: risk death. 32: Paul does not explain what or who the beasts were (compare 4.9). Let us eat: Isa.22.13. 33: Doubters are bad company, quoting the Greek poet Menander.

15.35–58: "How are the dead raised?" The immortality of the soul freed of its bodily prison

39 All flesh is not the same flesh: there is flesh of men, flesh of beasts, of birds, 40 and of fishes—all different. There are heavenly bodies and earthly bodies;
and the splendour of the heavenly bodies is one thing, the splendour of 41 the earthly, another. The sun has a splendour of its own, the moon another splendour, and the stars another, for 42 star differs from star in brightness. So it is with the resurrection of the dead.
What is sown in the earth as a perish-43 able thing is raised imperishable. Sown in humiliation, it is raised in glory;
sown in weakness, it is raised in power;
44 sown as an animal body, it is raised as a spiritual body.

If there is such a thing as an animal 45 body, there is also a spiritual body. It is in this sense that Scripture says, 'The first man, Adam, became an animate being', whereas the last Adam has 46 become a life-giving spirit. Observe, the spiritual does not come first; the animal body comes first, and then the 47 spiritual. The first man was made 'of the dust of the earth': the second man is from heaven. The man made of dust 48 is the pattern of all men of dust, and the heavenly man is the pattern of all 49 the heavenly. As we have worn the likeness of the man made of dust, so we shall wear the likeness of the heavenly man.

50 What I mean, my brothers, is this:
flesh and blood can never possess the kingdom of God, and the perishable 51 cannot possess immortality. Listen! I will unfold a mystery: we shall not all 52 die, but we shall all be changed in a flash, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet-call. For the trumpet will 53 sound, and the dead will rise immortal, and we shall be changed. This perishable being must be clothed with the imperishable, and what is mortal must be clothed with immortality. And 54 when<sup>g</sup> our mortality has been clothed with immortality, then the saying of Scripture will come true: 'Death is swallowed up; victory is won!' 'O 55

Death, where is your victory? O Death, where is your sting?' The sting of death 56 is sin, and sin gains its power from the law; but, God be praised, he gives us 57
the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Therefore, my beloved brothers, 58 stand firm and immovable, and work for the Lord always, work without limit, since you know that in the Lord your labour cannot be lost.

Christian giving

AND NOW ABOUT THE COLLECTION IN 16
aid of God's people: you should follow my directions to our congregations in Galatia. Every Sunday each of you is 2 to put aside and keep by him a sum in proportion to his gains, so that there may be no collecting when I come.
When I arrive, I will give letters of 3 introduction to persons approved by you, and send them to carry your gift to Jerusalem. If it should seem worth 4 while for me to go as well, they shall go with me.

I shall come to Corinth after passing 5
through Macedonia—for I am travelling by way of Macedonia—and I may 6 stay with you, perhaps even for the whole winter, and then you can help me on my way wherever I go next. I 7
do not want this to be a flying visit; I hope to spend some time with you, if the Lord permits. But I shall remain at 8

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses insert our perishable nature has been clothed with the imperishable, and . . .

was an idea natural to Greeks. The Corinthians seem to have balked at the idea of bodily resurrection. Paul agrees that the flesh has no part in the kingdom (v. 50), arguing that there are many kinds of bodies and that Christians will receive bodies made not of flesh, but of spirit. 45–49: Speculation based on Gen. chs. 1–2 featured an ideal Man (Heb., "Adam") who would initiate the Age to Come. Thus Paul contrasts Christ as the last Adam (v. 45) or second Man (v. 47) with the sinful and mortal first man (see vv. 21–22; Rom. 5.12–19; compare Phil. 2.6–11). Dust: Gen.2.7. 51–53: Most Christians (Paul included) will survive until Christ's return (see 1.8 n.), but all, whether living or dead, must receive spirit bodies. 52: See 1 Th.4.15–17. 54–55: Isa.25.8; Hos.13.14. 56: Law: see Rom.5.13; 7.7–8; Gal.3.21–22.

16.1–11: "How is the offering for Jerusalem to be collected?" (See 7.1–16 n.). 1: Collection: see Introduction to Rom. Galatia: see Rom.15.26 n. and Introduction to Gal. 2: No collecting: each Christian will have a sum ready. 3–4: Compare with the men in Acts 20.4. 5: Macedonia: see 2 Cor.1.8–2.13 n. 8: Whitsuntide: Pentecost (the "fiftieth" day after Passover); it fell in

- 9 Ephesus until Whitsuntide, for a great opportunity has opened for effective work, and there is much opposition.
- 10 If Timothy comes, see that you put him at his ease; for it is the Lord's work that he is engaged upon, as I am myself; so no one must slight him. Send him happily on his way to join me, since I am waiting for him with our friends. As for our friend Apollos, I urged him strongly to go to Corinth with the others, but he was quite determined not to go<sup>h</sup> at present; he will go when opportunity offers.
- 13 Be alert; stand firm in the faith; be 14 valiant and strong. Let all you do be done in love.
- 15 I have a request to make of you, my brothers. You know that the Stephanas family were the first converts in Achaia, and have laid themselves out 16 to serve God's people. I wish you to give their due position to such persons, and indeed to everyone who labours 17 hard at our common task. It is a great pleasure to me that Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus have arrived, because they have done what you had no chance to do; they have relieved my mind—and no doubt yours too. Such men deserve recognition.
- Greetings from the congregations in Asia. Many greetings in the Lord from Aquila and Prisca and the congregation at their house. Greetings from all the brothers. Greet one another with the kiss of peace.
- This greeting is in my own hand— PAUL.
- If anyone does not love the Lord, let him be outcast.
- Marana tha*—Come, O Lord!
- The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with you.
- My love to you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

<sup>h</sup> Or but it was by no means the will of God that he should go . . .

May–June. 10: Timothy: a trusted assistant of Paul's (4.17; 2 Th.1.1; 1 Th.1.1; 3.2,6; Phil.1.1; 2.19; 2 Cor.1.1,19; Rom.16.21; Col.1.1; Philem.1). 11: Our friends (the others, v. 12): Timothy is one of a group of traveling church workers.

16.12: "When can Apollos return to us?" This is the final item from the Corinthians' letter (see Introduction). Apollos: see 1.12 n.

16.13–24: Final directions. 15–17: Stephanas (1.16), with Fortunatus and Achaicus (otherwise unknown), probably brought the Corinthians' letter to Paul (see Introduction). 19: Aquila, Prisca: see Rom.16.3–5 n. 20: Kiss: see v. 22 n.; Rom.16.16 n. 21–24: Having finished dictating (see 1.16 n.), Paul "signs" the letter with a short paragraph (see 2 Th.3.17; Gal.6.11; Col.4.18). 22: Outcast: lit. anathema, i.e. cursed. Marana tha is Aram. for Come, O Lord. The kiss of peace (v. 20), the anathema, and this invocation (compare Rev.22.20) perhaps echo an early Lord's Supper liturgy.

THE SECOND LETTER OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS

In the interval between 1 and 2 Corinthians Paul experienced two crises: (a) A visit to Corinth to deal with a sudden disciplinary problem was a painful failure (2.1). Retreating to Ephesus he wrote the Corinthians a severe letter (2.3-4; 7.8), now lost (see 10.1-13.14 n.), and sent it by Titus, one of his assistants. (b) Then Paul apparently underwent a crisis that caused him to despair of his life (1.8-10). When he was again able to travel, he went to Troas (2.12) and then to Macedonia (2.13; 7.5-6) before meeting Titus again. Titus had good news: the Corinthians had had a change of heart (7.7-12). Gratefully Paul wrote 2 Cor. chs. 1-9, urging forgiveness for the one who had caused the first crisis (2.5-11) and painting a joyful picture of the Christian life enjoyed despite sufferings like his second crisis (2.14-7.4). His remarks on the "collection" (chs. 8-9) date chs. 1-9 between 1 Corinthians and Romans.

Chapters 10-13, which contain valuable autobiographical material, are so angry and "boastful" that many believe Paul wrote them on quite another occasion. In any case, these chapters respond to news of Jewish-Christian interlopers in Corinth, a topic not mentioned in chs. 1-9.

Personal religion and the ministry

1 FROM PAUL, APOSTLE OF CHRIST JESUS
by God's will, and our colleague Timothy, to the congregation of God's people at Corinth, together with all who are dedicated to him throughout the whole of Achaia.

2 Grace and peace to you from God
our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Praise be to the God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the all-merciful Father, the God whose consolation never fails us! He comforts us in all our troubles, so that we in turn may be able to comfort others in any trouble of theirs and to share with them
the consolation we ourselves receive

5 from God. As Christ's cup of suffering overflows, and we suffer with him, so also through Christ our consolation

6 overflows. If distress be our lot, it is the price we pay for your consolation, for your salvation; if our lot be consolation, it is to help us to bring you comfort, and strength to face with fortitude the same sufferings we now endure.

7 And our hope for you is firmly grounded;<sup>a</sup> for we know that if you have part in the suffering, you have part also in the divine consolation.

In saying this, we should like you to 8 know, dear friends, how serious was the trouble that came upon us in the province of Asia. The burden of it was far too heavy for us to bear, so heavy that we even despaired of life. Indeed, 9
we felt in our hearts that we had received a death-sentence. This was meant to teach us not to place reliance on ourselves, but on God who raises the dead. From such mortal peril God 10 delivered us; and he will deliver us again,<sup>b</sup> he on whom our hope is fixed.
Yes, he will continue to deliver us, if 11
you will co-operate by praying for us.
Then, with so many people praying for our deliverance, there will be many to give thanks on our behalf for the gracious favour God has shown towards us.

There is one thing we are proud of: 12
our conscience assures us that in our dealings with our fellow-men, and above all in our dealings with you, our conduct has been governed by a devout and godly sincerity,<sup>c</sup> by the grace of God and not by worldly wisdom.

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses give these clauses If distress . . . firmly grounded in different sequence.

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read and he still delivers us.

<sup>c</sup> Some witnesses read by sincere and godly singleness of mind.

1.1-7: Salutation and thanksgiving: see Rom.1.1-7 nn. and 1.8-15 n. Paul praises God for his escape from danger and for Titus' good news (see Introduction). 1: Timothy: see 1 Cor.16.10 n.

1.8-2.13: Explanation for a change in travel plans. Apparently in his "severe" letter (see Introduction) Paul had threatened an immediate return visit. He later decided to wait for Titus' firsthand report, which he finally obtained in Macedonia (2.13; 7.6). 8-10: Trouble: see

13 There is nothing in our letters to you but what you can read for yourselves, and understand too. Partial as your present knowledge of us is, you will I hope come to understand fully that you have as much reason to be proud of us, as we of you, on the Day of our Lord Jesus.

15 It was because I felt so confident about all this that I had intended to come first of all to you<sup>d</sup> and give you the benefit of a double visit: I meant to visit you on my way to Macedonia, and after leaving Macedonia, to return to you, and you would then send me on my way to Judaea. That was my intention; did I lightly change my mind?<sup>e</sup> Or do I, when I frame my plans, frame them as a worldly man might, so that it should rest with me to say 'yes' and 'yes', or 'no' and 'no'? As God is true, the language in which we address you is not an ambiguous blend of Yes and No. The Son of God, Christ Jesus, proclaimed among you by us (by Silvanus and Timothy, I mean, as well as myself), was never a blend of Yes and No. With him it was, and is, Yes. He is the Yes pronounced upon God's promises, every one of them. That is why, when we give glory to God, it is through Christ Jesus that we say 'Amen'. And if you and we belong to Christ, guaranteed as his and anointed, it is all God's doing; it is God also who has set his seal upon us, and as a pledge of what is to come has given the Spirit to dwell in our hearts.

23 I appeal to God to witness what I am going to say; I stake my life upon it: it was out of consideration for you that I did not after all come to Corinth. Do not think we are dictating the terms of your faith; your hold on the faith is secure enough. We are working with you for your own happiness. So I made up my mind that my next visit to you must not be another painful one. If I cause pain to you, who is left to cheer me up, except you, whom I have offended? This is precisely the point I made in my letter: I did not want, I said, to come and be made miserable by the very people who ought to have made me happy; and I had sufficient confidence in you all to know that for me to be happy is for all of you to be happy. That letter I sent you came out of great distress and anxiety; how many tears I shed as I wrote it! But I never meant to cause you pain; I wanted you rather to know the love, the more than ordinary love, that I have for you.

Any injury that has been done, has not been done to me; to some extent, not to labour the point, it has been done to you all. The penalty on which the general meeting has agreed has met the offence well enough. Something very different is called for now: you must forgive the offender and put heart into him; the man's sorrow must not be made so severe as to overwhelm him. I urge you therefore to assure him of your love for him by a formal act. I wrote, I may say, to see how you stood the test, whether you fully accepted my authority. But anyone who has your forgiveness has mine too; and when I speak of forgiving (so far as there is anything for me to forgive), I mean that as the representative of Christ I have forgiven him for your sake.<sup>f</sup> For Satan must not be allowed to get the better of us; we know his wiles all too well.

Then when I came to Troas, where I was to preach the gospel of Christ, and where an opening awaited me for the Lord's work, I still found no relief of mind, for my colleague Titus was not there to meet me; so I took leave of the people there and went off to Macedonia. But thanks be to God, who continually leads us about, captives in Christ's triumphal procession, and

<sup>d</sup> Or had originally intended to come to you . . .

<sup>e</sup> Or In forming this intention, did I act irresponsibly?

<sup>f</sup> Or that I have forgiven him for your sake, in the presence of Christ.

Introduction. Us, we, ourselves: see 10.11 n. 13; See 10.10; 2 Pet. 3.16. 14: Day: see 1 Cor. 1.8 n. 17-20: Amen (see 1 Cor. 14.16 n.) can mean yes or true. 19: Silvanus: an assistant of Paul's (see 1 Th. 1.1; 2 Th. 1.1; as "Silas," Acts 15.22-18.5). 21-22: Christ . . . God . . . Spirit: see 1 Cor. 12.4-6 n. 22: Pledge: see 5.5 n. 2.1-4: Visit, letter: see Introduction. 5-11: The offending Corinthian has been disciplined (for a possible comparison see 1 Cor. 5.1-5) and he is now in need of forgiveness. 12-13: The narrative of Paul's movements resumes in 7.5.

2.14-7.4: The apostle's ministry of suffering occupies the main section of the letter. 14: See everywhere uses us to reveal and spread abroad the fragrance of the knowledge of himself! We are indeed the incense offered by Christ to God, both for those who are on the way to salvation, and for those who are on the way to perdition: to the latter it is a deadly fume that kills, to the former a vital fragrance that brings life. Who is equal to such a calling? At least we do not go hawking the word of God about, as so many do; when we declare the word we do it in sincerity, as from God and in God's sight, as members of Christ.

3 ARE WE BEGINNING ALL OVER AGAIN TO produce our credentials? Do we, like some people, need letters of introduction to you, or from you? No, you are all the letter we need, a letter written on our heart; any man can see it for what it is and read it for himself. And as for you, it is plain that you are a letter that has come from Christ, given to us to deliver: a letter written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, written not on stone tablets but on the pages of the human heart.

4 It is in full reliance upon God, through Christ, that we make such claims. There is no question of our being qualified in ourselves: we cannot claim anything as our own. The qualification we have comes from God; it is he who has qualified us to dispense his new covenant—a covenant expressed not in a written document, but in a spiritual bond; for the written law condemns to death, but the Spirit gives life.

7 The law, then, engraved letter by letter upon stone, dispensed death, and yet it was inaugurated with divine splendour. That splendour, though it was soon to fade, made the face of Moses so bright that the Israelites could not gaze steadily at him. But if so, must not even greater splendour rest upon the divine dispensation of the Spirit? If splendour accompanied the dispensation under which we are condemned, how much richer in splendour must that one be under which we are acquitted! Indeed, the splendour that once was is now no splendour at all; it is outshone by a splendour greater still. For if that which was soon to fade had its moment of splendour, how much greater is the splendour of that which endures!

With such a hope as this we speak out boldly; it is not for us to do as Moses did: he put a veil over his face to keep the Israelites from gazing on that fading splendour until it was gone. But in any case their minds had been made insensitive, for that same veil is there to this very day when the lesson is read from the old covenant; and it is never lifted, because only in Christ is the old covenant abrogated.<sup>g</sup> But to this very day, every time the Law of Moses is read, a veil lies over the minds of the hearers. However, as Scripture says of Moses, 'whenever he turns to the Lord the veil is removed'.<sup>h</sup> Now the Lord of whom this passage speaks is the Spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. And because for us there is no veil over the face, we all reflect as in a mirror the splendour of the Lord; thus we are transfigured into his likeness, from splendour to splendour; such is the influence of the Lord who is Spirit.

SEEING THEN THAT WE HAVE BEEN entrusted with this commission, which we owe entirely to God's mercy, we never lose heart. We have renounced the deeds that men hide for very shame;

<sup>g</sup> Or in Christ is it abolished.
<sup>h</sup> Or as Scripture says, when one turns to the Lord the veil is removed.

1 Cor.4.9. 15: For Paul as a sacrifice compare Phil.2.17. 17: Hawking: peddling or huckstering.

3.1-18: The power of the new covenant; the impotence of the old. 1: All over again implies some previous self-defense and criticism of it. Paul has his rivals in mind (see 10.1-13.14 n.), who carry letters of accreditation. 2-3: The idea of the Corinthians as Paul's living credentials suggests Jer.31.33, the law written on men's hearts rather than on stone tablets (Exod.34.1,4). 6: The written law both condemns to death (Rom.3.9-20) and is powerless to give life (Gal.3.21-22). 7-18: See Exod.34.29-35. Moses' veil symbolically prevents Judaism from seeing that the Law's original splendour has gone. 16: Exod.34.34. 18: Are transfigured: are now at the present time being transfigured. From splendour to splendour: by increasing degrees.

4.1-15: The apostle's faithfulness shown by his sufferings. 3: Veiled: Paul's critics may have

we neither practise cunning nor distort the word of God; only by declaring the truth openly do we recommend ourselves, and then it is to the common conscience of our fellow-men and in the sight of God. And if indeed our gospel be found veiled, the only people who find it so are those on the way to perdition. Their unbelieving minds are so blinded by the god of this passing age, that the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the very image of God, cannot dawn upon them and bring them light. It is not ourselves that we proclaim; we proclaim Christ Jesus as Lord, and ourselves as your servants, for Jesus' sake. For the same God who said, 'Out of darkness let light shine', has caused his light to shine within us, to give the light of revelation—the revelation of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

We are no better than pots of earthenware to contain this treasure, and this proves that such transcendent power does not come from us, but is God's alone. Hard-pressed on every side, we are never hemmed in; bewildered, we are never at our wits' end; hunted, we are never abandoned to our fate; struck down, we are not left to die. Wherever we go we carry death with us in our body, the death that Jesus died, that in this body also life may reveal itself, the life that Jesus lives. For continually, while still alive, we are being surrendered into the hands of death, for Jesus' sake, so that the life of Jesus also may be revealed in this mortal body of ours. Thus death is at work in us, and life in you.

But Scripture says, 'I believed, and therefore I spoke out', and we too, in the same spirit of faith, believe and therefore speak out; for we know that he who raised the Lord Jesus to life will with Jesus raise us too, and bring us to his presence, and you with us. Indeed, it is for your sake that all things are ordered, so that, as the abounding grace of God is shared by more and more, the greater may be the chorus of thanksgiving that ascends to the glory of God.

No wonder we do not lose heart! Though our outward humanity is in decay, yet day by day we are inwardly renewed. Our troubles are slight and short-lived; and their outcome an eternal glory which outweighs them far. Meanwhile our eyes are fixed, not on the things that are seen, but on the things that are unseen: for what is seen passes away; what is unseen is eternal. For we know that if the earthly frame that houses us today should be demolished, we possess a building which God has provided—a house not made by human hands, eternal, and in heaven. In this present body we do indeed groan; we yearn to have our heavenly habitation put on over this one—in the hope that, being thus clothed, we shall not find ourselves naked. We groan indeed, we who are enclosed within this earthly frame; we are oppressed because we do not want to have the old body stripped off. Rather our desire is to have the new body put on over it, so that our mortal part may be absorbed into life immortal. God himself has shaped us for this very end; and as a pledge of it he has given us the Spirit.

Therefore we never cease to be confident. We know that so long as we are called him obscure. Perdition: see 2.15–16. 4: The god of this passing age, i.e. Satan (see 1 Cor.1.8 n.). Image of God recalls Adam (see Gen.1.27; 1 Cor.15.45–49 n.; Phil.2.6). 6: Gen.1.3. Paul associates light and glory (or "splendour," 3.18) with possession of the Spirit (5.5). 8–11: Daily hardships (see Mk.8.34) produce likeness to Christ (see Phil.3.10–11); Paul's mortal body is becoming like his Lord's (see 3.18). 12: Paul accepts more than his proper share of suffering so as to provide them with life (see 1.6). 13: Ps.116.10.

4.16–5.10: Our changing bodies. Day by day our suffering is eroding our outward humanity (i.e. our flesh bodies), but simultaneously we are inwardly renewed by spirit. (By contrast, in 1 Cor.15.42–57 this change of bodies is considered to occur instantly at Christ's return). 18: Things . . . seen: the external body; things . . . unseen: the interior possession of the Spirit. 5.1–4: Figuratively, the body is our home, or alternatively, our clothing. 1: Our spirit body is eternal and destined for life in heaven. 2–4: Paul yearns for the change to be completed and suffering ended (see Rom.8.23). Unbelievers, since they do not receive spirit bodies, are naked at death. 5: The pledge is the down payment which puts a contract in force and implies further payments (in this case, of the Spirit; so also 1.22). 6–8: Phil.1.21–24.

at home in the body we are exiles from 7 the Lord; faith is our guide, we do not
 8 see him.<sup>i</sup> We are confident, I repeat, 9 and would rather leave our home in the 9 body and go to live with the Lord. We therefore make it our ambition, wherever we are, here or there, to be accept-10 able to him. For we must all have our lives laid open before the tribunal of Christ, where each must receive what is due to him for his conduct in the body, good or bad.

11 WITH THIS FEAR OF THE LORD BEFORE
 our eyes we address our appeal to men.
 To God our lives lie open, as I hope they also lie open to you in your heart 12 of hearts. This is not another attempt to recommend ourselves to you: we are rather giving you a chance to show yourselves proud of us; then you will have something to say to those whose pride is all in outward show and not in 13 inward worth. It may be we are beside ourselves, but it is for God; if we are in 14 our right mind, it is for you. For the love of Christ leaves us no choice, when once we have reached the conclusion that one man died for all and therefore 15 all mankind has died. His purpose in dying for all was that men, while still in life, should cease to live for themselves, and should live for him who for their sake died and was raised to life.
 16 With us therefore worldly standards have ceased to count in our estimate of any man; even if once they counted in our understanding of Christ, they do so 17 now no longer. When anyone is united to Christ, there is a new world;<sup>j</sup> the old order has gone, and a new order has already begun.<sup>k</sup>

18 From first to last this has been the work of God. He has reconciled us men to himself through Christ, and he has enlisted us in this service of reconciliation. What I mean is, that God was in 19 Christ reconciling the world to himself,<sup>l</sup> no longer holding men's misdeeds against them, and that he has entrusted us with the message of reconciliation.

 We come therefore as Christ's am- 20
 bassadors. It is as if God were appealing to you through us: in Christ's name, we implore you, be reconciled to God!
 Christ was innocent of sin, and yet for 21
 our sake God made him one with the sinfulness of men,<sup>m</sup> so that in him we might be made one with the goodness of God himself. Sharing in God's work, 6 we urge this appeal upon you: you have received the grace of God; do not let it go for nothing. God's own words are: 2

'In the hour of my favour I gave heed to you;
 on the day of deliverance I came to your aid.'

The hour of favour has now come;
 now I say, has the day of deliverance
 dawned.

In order that our service may not be 3 brought into discredit, we avoid giving offence in anything. As God's servants, 4 we try to recommend ourselves in all circumstances by our steadfast endurance: in distress, hardships, and dire straits; flogged, imprisoned, mobbed; 5 overworked, sleepless, starving. We recommend ourselves by the inno- 6 cence of our behaviour, our grasp of truth, our patience and kindness; by gifts of the Holy Spirit, by sincere love, by declaring the truth, by the power of 7
 God. We wield the weapons of

<sup>i</sup> Or faith is our guide and not the things we see.

<sup>j</sup> Or a new act of creation.

<sup>k</sup> Or When anyone is united to Christ he is a new creature: his old life is over; a new life has already begun.

<sup>l</sup> Or God was reconciling the world to himself by Christ.

<sup>m</sup> Or and yet God made him a sin-offering for us.

5.11-6.10: The reconciling ministry of Christ and his apostles. 12: Another attempt: see 3.1 n. 13: Beside ourselves: in ecstasy (see 12.1-4 n.). 14: Love of Christ: Christ's love for us. One man: Christ, the second Adam (see 1 Cor.15.45-49 n.), represents all mankind. In principle the old humanity has ended. 15: See Mk.8.35. 16: Once, before his conversion, Paul thought of Jesus as a crucified criminal. 17: For Christians the new life has already begun (see 4.16-5.10 n.). 18-20: By extension the apostle shares Christ's reconciling ministry. 19-21: In Christ (v. 19): through Christ as his agent. Christ accepted mankind's sinfulness that men in Christ might no longer have their misdeeds held against them (v. 19; Rom.3.21-26). 6.2: Isa.49.8. Now: see 5.17 n. 3: Discredit: see 3.1 n. 4-5: See 11.23-29. In all circumstances: see 1 Cor.9.19-23. 6: Paul here emphasizes his patience and kindness by alluding to the abundance of personal sufferings he has undergone, all specified in v. 5. 7: Weapons: see Eph.6.14-17; 1 Th.5.8.

righteousness in right hand and left.
 8 Honour and dishonour, praise and blame, are alike our lot: we are the 9 impostors who speak the truth, the unknown men whom all men know; dying we still live on; disciplined by 10 suffering, we are not done to death; in our sorrows we have always cause for joy; poor ourselves, we bring wealth to many; penniless, we own the world.
 11 Men of Corinth, we have spoken very frankly to you; we have opened 12 our heart wide to you all. On our part there is no constraint; any constraint 13 there may be is in yourselves. In fair exchange then (may a father speak so to his children?) open wide your hearts to us.

Problems of church life and discipline

14 DO NOT UNITE YOURSELVES WITH UNBELIEVERS; they are no fit mates for you. What has righteousness to do with wickedness? Can light consort with darkness? Can Christ agree with Belial, or a believer join hands with an unbeliever? Can there be a compact between the temple of God and the idols of the heathen? And the temple of the living God is what we are. God's own words are: 'I will live and move about among them; I will be their God, and they shall be my people.' And therefore, 'come away and leave them, separate yourselves, says the Lord; touch nothing unclean. Then I will accept you, says the Lord, the Ruler of all being; I will be a father to you, and you shall be my sons and daughters.'
 7 Such are the promises that have been made to us, dear friends. Let us therefore cleanse ourselves from all that can defile flesh or spirit, and in the fear of God complete our consecration.

DO MAKE A PLACE FOR US IN YOUR hearts! We have wronged no one, ruined no one, taken advantage of no one. I do not want to blame you. Why, as I have told you before, the place you have in our heart is such that, come death, come life, we meet it together. I am perfectly frank with you. I have great pride in you. In all our many troubles my cup is full of consolation, and overflows with joy.

Even when we reached Macedonia there was still no relief for this poor body of ours; instead, there was trouble at every turn, quarrels all round us, forebodings in our heart. But God, who brings comfort to the downcast, has comforted us by the arrival of Titus, and not merely by his arrival, but by his being so greatly comforted about you. He has told us how you long for me, how sorry you are, and how eager to take my side; and that has made me happier still.

Even if I did wound you by the letter I sent, I do not now regret it. I may have been sorry for it when I saw that the letter had caused you pain, even if only for a time; but now I am happy, not that your feelings were wounded but that the wound led to a change of heart. You bore the smart as God would have you bear it, and so you are no losers by what we did. For the wound which is borne in God's way brings a change of heart too salutary to regret; but the hurt which is borne in the world's way brings death. You bore your hurt in God's way, and see what its results have been! It made you take the matter seriously and vindicate yourselves. How angered you were, how apprehensive! How your longing for me awoke, yes, and your devotion and your eagerness to see justice done! At every point you have cleared your-

8-10: The apostle's ministry (like Jesus') is full of paradoxes (see 4.8-12; 1 Cor.4.9-13).

6.11-13: Paul appeals with open heart to the Corinthians for complete reconciliation free of constraint. (For their past disagreements see Introduction.) Paul here reaches the climax of 2.14-7.4.

6.14-7.1: Avoid unbelievers. The section is very probably misplaced (see 7.2-4 n. and Introduction to 1 Cor.). 15: Belial: Satan. 16-18: Paul links together a chain of texts: Lev.26.12; Ezek.37.27; Isa.52.11; 2 Sam.7.14. 7.1: Complete our consecration, i.e. our dedication to holiness.

7.2-4: Paul continues his plea. These verses would follow on 6.13, if 6.14-7.1 are misplaced (see Introduction to 1 Cor.).

7.5-16: Paul's narrative resumes from 2.13. (For the sequence of events see Introduction).

8: Although Paul was sorry that he had sent the "severe" letter, the effect in the end was healthful.

12 selves of blame in this trouble. And so, although I did send you that letter, it was not the offender or his victim that most concerned me. My aim in writing was to help to make plain to you, in the sight of God, how truly you are devoted to us. That is why we have been so encouraged.

But besides being encouraged ourselves we have also been delighted beyond everything by seeing how happy Titus is: you have all helped to set his mind completely at rest. Anything I may have said to him to show my pride in you has been justified. Every word we ever addressed to you bore the mark of truth; and the same holds of the proud boast we made in the presence of Titus: that also has proved true. His heart warms all the more to you as he recalls how ready you all were to do what he asked, meeting him as you did in fear and trembling. How happy I am now to have complete confidence in you!

8 WE MUST TELL YOU, FRIENDS, ABOUT the grace of generosity which God has imparted to<sup>n</sup> our congregations in 2 Macedonia. The troubles they have been through have tried them hard, yet in all this they have been so exuberantly happy that from the depths of their poverty they have shown themselves 3 lavishly open-handed. Going to the limit of their resources, as I can testify, 4 and even beyond that limit, they begged us most insistently, and on their own initiative, to be allowed to share in this generous service to their fellow- 5 Christians. And their giving surpassed our expectations; for they gave their very selves, offering them in the first instance to the Lord, but also, under 6 God, to us. The upshot is that we have asked Titus, who began it all, to visit you and bring this work of generosity also to completion. You are so rich in 7 everything—in faith, speech, knowledge, and zeal of every kind, as well as in the loving regard you have for us<sup>o</sup>—surely you should show yourselves equally lavish in this generous service! This is not meant as an order; by telling 8 you how keen others are I am putting your love to the test. For you know 9 how generous our Lord Jesus Christ has been: he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor, so that through his poverty you might become rich.

Here is my considered opinion on 10 the matter. What I ask you to do is in your own interests. You made a good beginning last year both in the work you did and in your willingness to undertake it. Now I want you to go on 11 and finish it: be as eager to complete the scheme as you were to adopt it, and give according to your means. Pro- 12 vided there is an eager desire to give, God accepts what a man has; he does not ask for what he has not. There is 13 no question of relieving others at the cost of hardship to yourselves; it is a 14 question of equality. At the moment your surplus meets their need, but one day your need may be met from their surplus. The aim is equality; as 15 Scripture has it, 'The man who got much had no more than enough, and the man who got little did not go short.'

I thank God that he has made Titus 16 as keen on your behalf as we are! For Titus not only welcomed our request; he is so eager that by his own desire he is now leaving to come to you. With 18 him we are sending one of our company whose reputation is high among our congregations everywhere for his services to the Gospel. Moreover they 19 have duly appointed him to travel with us and help in this beneficent work, by

<sup>n</sup> Or how gracious God has been to . . .

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses read the love we have for you or the love which we have kindled in your hearts.

12: The offender: see 2.5–11 n. His victim: probably Paul. 14: What Paul wrote to the Corinthians was angry; what he said to Titus expressed pride. 15–16: Paul prepares for 8.6–8, 16–17.

8.1–9.15: The offering for the poor of the Jerusalem church (see Introduction to Rom.). Reconciliation assumed, Paul now turns to the collection. 1–5: Paul describes the generosity of the Macedonians (see Phil.4.15–18) to spur the Corinthians on (contrast 9.2). 6: See vv. 16–17 n. 7: See 1 Cor.12.8–10. 9: Became poor: see Phil.2.5–11. 10–11: Finish, complete suggests that the dispute between Paul and the Corinthians interrupted the collection project. 14: Surplus: contrast v. 2. 15: Exod.16.18. 16–17: Titus will precede Paul (see 9.4–5 n.). 18–24: One of our company: lit. "the brother." This unidentified missionary has been appointed (probably by Jerusalem) to help with the collection (this beneficent work). He and the other "brother" of which we do honour to the Lord himself and show our own eagerness to serve. We want to guard against any criticism of our handling of this generous gift; for our aims are entirely honourable, not only in the Lord's eyes, but also in the eyes of men.

With these men we are sending another of our company whose enthusiasm we have had many opportunities of testing, and who is now all the more earnest because of the great confidence he has in you. If there is any question about Titus, he is my partner and my associate in dealings with you; as for the others, they are delegates of our congregations, an honour to Christ.<sup>p</sup> Then give them clear expression of your love and justify our pride in you; justify it to them, and through them to the congregations.

About the provision of aid for God's people, it is superfluous for me to write to you. I know how eager you are to help; I speak of it with pride to the Macedonians: I tell them that Achaia had everything ready last year; and most of them have been fired by your zeal. My purpose in sending these friends is to ensure that what we have said about you in this matter should not prove to be an empty boast. By that I mean, I want you to be prepared, as I told them you were; for if I bring with me men from Macedonia and they find you are not prepared, what a disgrace it will be to us, let alone to you, after all the confidence we have shown! I have accordingly thought it necessary to ask these friends to go on ahead to Corinth, to see that your promised bounty is in order before I come; it will then be awaiting me as a bounty indeed, and not as an extortion.

Remember: sparse sowing, sparse

reaping; sow bountifully, and you will reap bountifully. Each person should give as he has decided for himself; there should be no reluctance, no sense of compulsion; God loves a cheerful giver. And it is in God's power to provide you richly with every good gift; thus you will have ample means in yourselves to meet each and every situation, with enough and to spare for every good cause. Scripture says of such a man: 'He has lavished his gifts on the needy, his benevolence stands fast for ever.' Now he who provides seed for sowing and bread for food will provide the seed for you to sow; he will multiply it and swell the harvest of your benevolence, and you will always be rich enough to be generous. Through our action such generosity will issue in thanksgiving to God, for as a piece of willing service this is not only a contribution towards the needs of God's people; more than that, it overflows in a flood of thanksgiving to God. For through the proof which this affords, many will give honour to God when they see how humbly you obey him and how faithfully you confess the gospel of Christ; and will thank him for your liberal contribution to their need and to the general good. And as they join in prayer on your behalf, their hearts will go out to you because of the richness of the grace which God has imparted to you. Thanks be to God for his gift beyond words!

Trials of a Christian missionary

BUT I, PAUL, APPEAL TO YOU BY THE gentleness and magnanimity of Christ—I, so feeble (you say) when I am face to p Or they are . . . congregations; they reflect Christ.

v. 22 are called "apostles" (delegates) in v. 23. 20: On the Corinthians' suspicions about Paul and money see 12.16-18; 11.7-10 n. 21: Prov.3.4 (Sept.). 9.2: See 8.1-5 n. 4-5: Paul will come with representatives from Macedonia. From Corinth they will sail to Jerusalem (1 Cor.16.3-4). 7: Prov.22.8 (Sept.). 9: Ps.112.9. 15: God's gift beyond words: his son (see Rom.8.32).

10.1-13.14: Paul's boast against false apostles. Because of the tone of chs. 10-13, some have taken them to be part of the "severe" letter which preceded 2 Cor. chs. 1-9 (see Introduction). However, the problem of traveling Jewish "apostles" in chs. 10-13 is more probably subsequent to chs. 1-9. On the lack of an opening thanksgiving see Rom.1.8-15 n. Note the accusations against Paul: unethical (v. 2), weak (v. 3), boastful (v. 8), brave from a distance but ineffectual in person (vv. 1,10-11), an amateur "apostle" (11.7-11), a man without pedigree (11.22-23), a nobody (12.11).

10.1-18: Paul's bold counterattack. 1: On Christ's humility see Phil.2.5-8, especially v. 8.

face with you, so brave when I am 2 away. Spare me, I beg you, the necessity of such bravery when I come, for I reckon I could put on as bold a face
 as you please against those who charge 3 us with moral weakness. Weak men we may be, but it is not as such that we 4 fight our battles. The weapons we wield are not merely human,<sup>q</sup> but divinely 5 potent to demolish strongholds; we demolish sophistries and all that rears its proud head against the knowledge of God; we compel every human thought to surrender in obedience to 6 Christ; and we are prepared to punish all rebellion when once you have put yourselves in our hands.

7 Look facts in the face.<sup>r</sup> Someone is convinced, is he, that he belongs to Christ? Let him think again, and reflect that we belong to Christ as much as he 8 does. Indeed, if I am somewhat over-boastful about our authority—an authority given by the Lord to build you up, not pull you down—I shall make 9 my boast good. So you must not think of me as one who scares you by the 10 letters he writes. 'His letters', so it is said, 'are weighty and powerful; but when he appears he has no presence, and as a speaker he is beneath con-11 tempt.' People who talk in that way should reckon with this: when I come,
 my actions will show the same man as my letters showed in my absence.

12 We should not dare to class ourselves or compare ourselves with any of those who put forward their own claims.
 What fools they are to measure themselves by themselves, to find in themselves their own standard of com-13 parison!<sup>s</sup> With us there will be no attempt to boast beyond our proper sphere; and our sphere is determined by the limit God laid down for us, which permitted us to come as far as 14 Corinth. We are not overstretching our commission, as we should be if it did not extend to you, for we were the first to reach Corinth in preaching the gospel of Christ. And we do not boast 15 of work done where others have laboured, work beyond our proper sphere. Our hope is rather that, as your faith grows, we may attain a position

 among you greater than ever before,
 but still within the limits of our sphere.
 Then we can carry the Gospel to lands 16 that lie beyond you, never priding ourselves on work already done in another man's sphere. If a man must boast, let 17 him boast of the Lord. Not the man 18 who recommends himself, but the man whom the Lord recommends—he and he alone is to be accepted.

I wish you would bear with me in a 11 little of my folly; please do bear with me. I am jealous for you, with a divine 2 jealousy; for I betrothed you to Christ, thinking to present you as a chaste
 virgin to her true and only husband.
 But as the serpent in his cunning 3 seduced Eve, I am afraid that your thoughts may be corrupted and you may lose your<sup>t</sup> single-hearted devotion to Christ. For if someone comes who 4 proclaims another Jesus, not the Jesus whom we proclaimed, or if you then receive a spirit different from the Spirit already given to you, or a gospel different from the gospel you have already accepted, you manage to put up with that well enough. Have I in any way 5 come short of those superlative apostles? I think not. I may be no 6 speaker, but knowledge I have; at all times we have made known to you the full truth.

Or was this my offence, that I made

<sup>q</sup> Or charge us with worldly standards. We live, no doubt, in the world; but it is not on that level that we fight our battles. The weapons we wield are not those of the world . . .

<sup>r</sup> Or You are looking only at what catches the eye.

<sup>s</sup> Some witnesses read On the contrary we measure ourselves by ourselves, by our own standard of comparison. <sup>t</sup> Some witnesses insert purity and . . .

2: Moral weakness: unethical action. 3-4: Paul adopts phrases by which his opponents have disparaged him: weak men, merely human. Weapons: see 6.7; Eph.6.14-17; 1 Th.5.8. 8: Words meaning boast or boastful appear nineteen times in 10.8-12.9. 9-10: See 2.3-4; 11.6 n. 11: I, my: lit. "we," "our." Here, as often, the plural stands primarily for Paul. 15-16: Our . . . sphere: see Rom.15.20 n. Lands that lie beyond you, i.e. to the west, perhaps Spain (Rom.15.23-28). 17: Jer.9.24 (1 Cor.1.31).

11.1-15: Satan's apostles. 1: Folly: see v. 16. 2: See Hos.2.19-20; Eph.5.26-27. 3: Paul compares his opponents to the serpent of Gen.3.4; see vv. 13-15 n. 5: The superlative apostles are paid (vv. 7-10) preachers (v. 6), Jewish-Christians (vv. 22-23) probably from Jerusalem. 6: See 10.10; 1 Cor.2.3. 7-10: Apparently Paul's practice was to accept money for himself but no charge for preaching the gospel of God, lowering myself to help in raising you? It is true that I took toll of other congregations, accepting<sup>u</sup> support from them to serve you. Then, while I was with you, if I ran short I sponged on no one; anything I needed was fully met by our friends who came from Macedonia; I made it a rule, as I always shall, never to be a burden to you. As surely as the truth of Christ is in me, I will preserve my pride in this matter throughout Achaia, and nothing shall stop me. Why? Is it that I do not love you? God knows I do.

And I shall go on doing as I am doing now, to cut the ground from under those who would seize any chance to put their vaunted apostleship on the same level as ours. Such men are sham-apostles, crooked in all their practices, masquerading as apostles of Christ. There is nothing surprising about that; Satan himself masquerades as an angel of light. It is therefore a simple thing for his agents to masquerade as agents of good. But they will meet the end their deeds deserve.

I repeat: let no one take me for a fool; but if you must, then give me the privilege of a fool, and let me have my little boast like others. I am not speaking here as a Christian, but like a fool, if it comes to bragging. So many people brag of their earthly distinctions that I shall do so too. How gladly you bear with fools, being yourselves so wise! If a man tyrannizes over you, exploits you, gets you in his clutches, puts on airs, and hits you in the face, you put up with it. And we, you say, have been weak! I admit the reproach.

But if there is to be bravado (and here I speak as a fool), I can indulge in it too. Are they Hebrews? So am I. Israelites? So am I. Abraham's descendants? So am I. Are they servants of Christ? I am mad to speak like this, but I can outdo them. More overworked than they, scourged more severely, more often imprisoned, many a time face to face with death. Five times the Jews have given me the thirty-nine strokes; three times I have been beaten with rods; once I was stoned; three times I have been shipwrecked, and for twenty-four hours I was adrift on the open sea. I have been constantly on the road; I have met dangers from rivers, dangers from robbers, dangers from my fellow-countrymen, dangers from foreigners, dangers in towns, dangers in the country, dangers at sea, dangers from false friends. I have toiled and drudged, I have often gone without sleep; hungry and thirsty, I have often gone fasting; and I have suffered from cold and exposure.

Apart from these external things,<sup>v</sup> there is the responsibility that weighs on me every day, my anxious concern for all our congregations. If anyone is weak, do I not share his weakness? If anyone is made to stumble, does my heart not blaze with indignation? If boasting there must be, I will boast of the things that show up my weakness. The God and Father of the Lord Jesus (blessed be his name for ever!) knows that what I say is true. When I was in Damascus, the commissioner of King Aretas kept the city under observation so as to have me arrested; and I was let down in a basket, through a window in the wall, and so escaped his clutches.

I AM OBLIGED TO BOAST. IT DOES NO good; but I shall go on to tell of visions and revelations granted by the Lord. I know a Christian man who fourteen years ago (whether in the body or out

<sup>u</sup> Or Did I take toll of other congregations by accepting . . . ?
<sup>v</sup> Or Apart from things which I omit.

never to ask for it (see 1 Cor.9.12b-18). The Corinthians, unlike the Macedonians (Phil.4.14-18), had not offered to support him. Ironically, he is now criticized for not receiving support as a "true" apostle should. 13-15: See also Gal.5.12, a passage only slightly more intemperate.

11.16-33: Paul's credentials are his hardships. 21-23: Hebrews: Aram. speaking. Israelites: Jews by birth (see Rom.9.4 n.). Compare Phil.3.4-6. So well did Paul adapt himself to his environment (1 Cor.9.19-23) that at times he had to assert his Jewish pedigree. 24: Thirty-nine strokes: see Acts 5.40 n. 25: Rods: a Roman punishment (see Acts 16.22). Stoned: see Acts 14.19. 32-33: See Acts 9.23-25. Aretas IV was king of Nabataea.

12.1-10: Paul's visions and "thorn in the flesh." 1-4: Paul was given to visions and revelations (see v. 7; 5.13); he could also speak in tongues (see 1 Cor.14.18). 2: Christian man: Paul (v.7).

of it, I do not know—God knows) was caught up as far as the third heaven. 3 And I know that this same man (whether in the body or out of it, I do 4 not know—God knows) was caught up into paradise, and heard words so secret that human lips may not repeat 5 them. About such a man as that I am ready to boast; but I will not boast on my own account, except of my weaknesses. 6 If I should choose to boast, it would not be the boast of a fool, for I should be speaking the truth. But I refrain, because I should not like anyone to form an estimate of me which goes beyond the evidence of his own eyes 7 and ears. And so, to keep me from being unduly elated by the magnificence of such revelations, I was given<sup>w</sup> a sharp physical pain<sup>x</sup> which came as Satan's messenger to bruise me; this was to save me from being unduly 8 elated. Three times I begged the Lord 9 to rid me of it, but his answer was: 'My grace is all you need; power comes to its full strength in weakness.' I shall therefore prefer to find my joy and pride in the very things that are my weakness; and then the power of Christ will come and rest upon me. 10 Hence I am well content, for Christ's sake, with weakness, contempt, persecution, hardship, and frustration; for when I am weak, then I am strong.

11 I AM BEING VERY FOOLISH, BUT IT WAS you who drove me to it; my credentials should have come from you. In no respect did I fall short of these superlative apostles, even if I am a nobody. 12 The marks of a true apostle were there, in the work I did among you, which called for such constant fortitude, and was attended by signs, marvels, and 13 miracles. Is there anything in which you were treated worse than the other congregations—except this, that I never sponged upon you? How unfair of me! I crave forgiveness.

Here am I preparing to pay you a 14 third visit; and I am not going to sponge upon you. It is you I want, not your money; parents should make provision for their children, not children for their parents. As for me, I will 15 gladly spend what I have for you—yes, and spend myself to the limit. If I love you overmuch, am I to be loved the less? But, granted that I did not prove 16 a burden to you, still I was unscrupulous enough, you say, to use a trick to catch you. Who, of the men I have sent 17 to you, was used by me to defraud you? I begged Titus to visit you, and I sent 18 our friend with him. Did Titus defraud you? Have we not both been guided by the same Spirit, and followed the same course?

Perhaps you think that all this time 19 we have been addressing our defence to you. No; we are speaking in God's sight, and as Christian men. Our whole aim, my own dear people, is to build you up. I fear that when I come I may 20 perhaps find you different from what I wish you to be, and that you may find me also different from what you wish. I fear I may find quarrelling and jealousy, angry tempers and personal rivalries, backbiting and gossip, arrogance and general disorder. I am afraid 21 that, when I come again, my God may humiliate me in your presence, that I may have tears to shed over many of those who have sinned in the past and have not repented of their unclean lives, their fornication and sensuality.

<sup>w</sup> Some witnesses read . . . ears, and because of the magnificence of the revelations themselves. Therefore to keep me from being unduly elated I was given . . .
<sup>x</sup> Or a painful wound to my pride (literally a stake, or thorn, for the flesh).

The third heaven may mean the highest; or else the third of seven, as the Jews viewed heaven. 4: Paradise: the heavenly Eden. 7: Sharp physical pain: traditionally, "thorn in the flesh." Some suggest a recurrent illness (compare Gal.4.13-14); others, a human adversary (Satan's messenger). 9: Just as the power of Christ was expressed in weakness, Paul understands that his own weakness is transformed into strength by means of grace. (Compare Phil.2.5-11; 3.7-11). 10: See 11.23-30; 4.7-12; 1 Cor.4.11-13; Rom.8.35.

12.11-21: Paul's fatherly concern for his congregation. 11: Superlative apostles: see 11.5 n. 12: Signs, marvels, and miracles: see Rom.15.19; Gal.3.5. 13-15: See 11.7-10 n. 14: Third visit: see 13.1-2 n. Parents, children: compare 1 Cor.4.14-15. 18: Begged Titus: see 8.6,16-17 n. Our friend: see 8.22; 18-24 n. 20-21: All the old difficulties spring to Paul's mind (see 1 Cor.1.11; 5.1; 6.12-20), but the lists are partly stereotyped (see 1 Cor.6.9-11 n.; Rom.1.29-31; Gal.5.19-21). Humiliate: perhaps an echo of 2.1.

- 13 This will be my third visit to you; and all facts must be established by the 2 evidence of two or three witnesses. To those who have sinned in the past, and to everyone else, I repeat the warning I gave before; I gave it in person on my second visit, and I give it now in 3 absence. It is that when I come this time, I will show no leniency. Then you will have the proof you seek of the Christ who speaks through me, the Christ who, far from being weak with you, makes his power felt among you.
 4 True, he died on the cross in weakness, but he lives by the power of God; and we who share his weakness shall by the power of God live with him in your service.
 5 Examine yourselves: are you living the life of faith? Put yourselves to the test. Surely you recognize that Jesus Christ is among you?—unless of course
 6 you prove unequal to the test. I hope you will come to see that we are not 7 unequal to it. Our prayer to God is that you may do no wrong; we are not concerned to be vindicated ourselves; we want you to do what is right, even if we should seem to be discredited. For we have no power to act against 8 the truth, but only for it. We are well
 9 content to be weak at any time if only you are strong. Indeed, my whole prayer is that all may be put right with you. My purpose in writing this letter 10 before I come, is to spare myself, when I come, any sharp exercise of authority—authority which the Lord gave me for building up and not for pulling down.
 And now, my friends, farewell. Mend
 11 your ways; take our appeal to heart; agree with one another; live in peace; and the God of love and peace will be 12 with you. Greet one another with the kiss of peace. All God's people send 13 you greetings.
 The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ,
 14 and the love of God, and fellowship in the Holy Spirit, be with you all.

---

13.1–14: Final warnings, greetings and blessing. 1–2: Paul's approaching visit (see 9.4–5 n.) will be his third. The first was the founding visit (see 10.14); his second visit was "painful" (see Introduction). The three witnesses (Deut.19.15) may be the three visits: the Corinthians have one chance left. 12: Kiss: see Rom.16.16 n. 14: This is the fullest form of Paul's usual benediction (see 1 Cor.12.4–6 n.).

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE GALATIANS

Freedom is the message of this extremely important letter. The immediate issue is whether Christians should observe Jewish law. Paul's churches in Galatia (perhaps at Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe; Acts ch. 14) had been visited by Christian Jews who preached at least a partial observance of Mosaic Law. Paul cites circumcision (5.2; 6.12) and the ritual calendar (4.10). Apparently they presented both themselves and Paul as subject to the authority of the Jerusalem Church. Paul asserts his divine commission and complete freedom from Jerusalem, giving us valuable autobiographical information (1.10-2.14). He attacks "legalism" as a denial in principle of the divine acceptance ("justification") which can depend only on utter trust ("faith") in Christ (2.15-3.29). The Mosaic Law is for "slaves," whereas Christians are God's adopted children (ch. 4); their brotherly love supersedes the law (5.13-6.10). Sarcastically, Paul accuses the Judaizers of seeking to give Christianity the appearance of a Jewish sect only to avoid persecution (6.12).

The date of the letter is a problem. Many of the same issues (and phrases) appear in Romans, suggesting that the interval between the two was not great. Because these issues are more urgent here in Galatians, this letter is the earlier.

Faith and freedom

1 FROM PAUL, AN APOSTLE, NOT BY human appointment or human commission, but by commission from Jesus Christ and from God the 2 Father who raised him from the dead. I and the group of friends now with me
send greetings to the Christian congregations of Galatia.
3 Grace and peace to you from God
the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ,<sup>a</sup> 4 who sacrificed himself for our sins, to rescue us out of this present age of wickedness, as our God and Father 5 willed; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.
6 I am astonished to find you turning so quickly away from him who called you by grace,<sup>b</sup> and following a different 7 gospel. Not that it is in fact another gospel; only there are persons who un-settle your minds by trying to distort 8 the gospel of Christ. But if anyone, if we ourselves or an angel from heaven, should preach a gospel at variance with the gospel we preached to you, he shall 9 be held outcast. I now repeat what I have said before: if anyone preaches a gospel at variance with the gospel

which you received, let him be outcast!

Does my language now sound as if I were canvassing for men's support?
Whose support do I want but God's alone? Do you think I am currying favour with men? If I still sought men's favour, I should be no servant of Christ.

I must make it clear to you, my 11 friends, that the gospel you heard me preach is no human invention. I did not 12 take it over from any man; no man taught it me; I received it through a revelation of Jesus Christ.

You have heard what my manner of 13 life was when I was still a practising Jew: how savagely I persecuted the church of God, and tried to destroy it;
and how in the practice of our national 14 religion I was outstripping many of my Jewish contemporaries in my boundless devotion to the traditions of my ancestors. But then in his good pleasure 15 God, who had set me apart from birth and called me through his grace, chose to reveal his Son to me and through 16

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses read God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read from Christ who called you by grace, or from him who called you by grace of Christ.

1.1-5: Salutation. See Rom.1.1-7 nn. 1: From the first line Paul emphasizes again and again that he is an apostle independent of human authority. 3-5: See Rom.1.7 n. and 1.8-15 n. 4: See 2.20; 1 Cor.15.3. Age: see 1 Cor.2.6-8n.

1.6-10: The Galatian apostasy from God. 8-9: Angel: see 2 Cor.11.14. Outcast: compare 1 Cor.16.22 n.; 5.2-5. 10: 1 Th.2.4; 1 Cor.9.19-23.

1.11-17: Paul's gospel is from God not man. 12: Compare 1 Cor.15.8 and 2 Cor.12.1-4 n. with 1 Cor.15.3 n. 13-14: See Phil.3.4-6 and compare Acts 8.3; 22.3-5; 26.4-11. 15-16: From me, in order that I might proclaim him among the Gentiles. When that happened, without consulting any human being, without going up to Jerusalem to see those who were apostles before me, I went off at once to Arabia, and afterwards returned to Damascus.

18 Three years later I did go up to Jerusalem to get to know Cephas. I stayed with him for a fortnight, without seeing any other of the apostles, except<sup>c</sup> James the Lord's brother. 20 What I write is plain truth; before God I am not lying.

21 Next I went to the regions of Syria and Cilicia, and remained unknown by sight<sup>d</sup> to Christ's congregations in Judaea. They only heard it said, 'Our former persecutor is preaching the good news of the faith which once he tried to destroy'; and they praised God for me.

2 Next, fourteen years later, I went again<sup>e</sup> to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking Titus with us. I went up because it had been revealed by God that I should do so. I laid before them—but at a private interview with the men of repute—the gospel which I am accustomed to preach to the Gentiles, to make sure that the race I had run, and was running, should not be run in vain. Yet even my companion Titus, Greek though he is, was not compelled to be circumcised. That course was urged only as a concession to certain<sup>f</sup> sham-Christians, interlopers who had stolen in to spy upon the liberty we enjoy in the fellowship of Christ Jesus. These men wanted to bring us into bondage, but not for one moment did I yield to their dictation; I was determined that the full truth of the Gospel should be maintained for you.<sup>g</sup>

6 But as for the men of high reputation (not that their importance matters to me: God does not recognize these personal distinctions)—these men of repute, I say, did not prolong the consultation,<sup>h</sup> but on the contrary acknowledged that I had been entrusted with the Gospel for Gentiles as surely as Peter had been entrusted with the Gospel for Jews. For God whose action made Peter an apostle to the Jews, also made me an apostle to the Gentiles.

Recognizing, then, the favour thus bestowed upon me, those reputed pillars of our society, James, Cephas, and John, accepted Barnabas and myself as partners, and shook hands upon it, agreeing that we should go to the Gentiles while they went to the Jews. All they asked was that we should keep their poor in mind, which was the very thing I made<sup>i</sup> it my business to do.

But when Cephas came to Antioch, I opposed him to his face, because he was clearly in the wrong. For until certain persons<sup>j</sup> came from James he was taking his meals with gentile Christians; but when they<sup>k</sup> came he drew back and began to hold aloof, because he was afraid of the advocates of circumcision. The other Jewish Christians showed the same lack of principle; even Barnabas was carried away and played false like the rest. But when I saw that their conduct did not square with<sup>l</sup> the truth of the Gospel, I said to Cephas, before the whole congregation, 'If you, a Jew

<sup>c</sup> Or but only. <sup>d</sup> Or unknown personally.

<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses omit again.

<sup>f</sup> Or The question was later raised because of certain . . .

<sup>g</sup> Or, following the reading of some witnesses, Yet even . . . is, was under no absolute compulsion to be circumcised, but for the sake of certain . . . of Christ Jesus, with the intention of bringing us into bondage, I yielded to their demand for the moment, to ensure that gospel truth should not be prevented from reaching you.

<sup>h</sup> Or gave me no further instructions.

<sup>i</sup> Or had made, or have made.

<sup>j</sup> Some witnesses read a certain person.

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses read he.

<sup>l</sup> Or I saw that they were not making progress towards . . .

birth: see Jer.1.5. To me and through me: lit. "in me" (see v. 12 n.). 17: Paul denies that he is a Jerusalem apostle.

1.18–24: Paul's first visit to Jerusalem. 18: Cephas: see 1 Cor.1.12 n. 19: James: see Mk.6.3; Acts 15.13.

2.1–10: Paul's second visit to Jerusalem confirms his apostolic freedom (compare Acts 15.2–29). 1: Barnabas: see Acts 4.36. Titus: see Introduction to 2 Cor. 2: Men of repute: see v. 9. 3–9: Conservative Jewish-Christians demanded that Titus be circumcised, but the Jerusalem apostles did not make circumcision a requirement for Gentiles. 9: John: see Mk.1.19. 10: This request probably inaugurated the "collection" for the poor (see Introduction to Rom.).

2.11–21: Paul argues with Peter over table-fellowship between Jewish and Gentile Christians, asserting that God's acceptance comes through trust (faith) and not by legal observances. 12: James: see 1.19 n. Circumcision: see vv. 3–5. 13: Other Jewish Christians: those at Antioch.

born and bred, live like a Gentile, and not like a Jew, how can you insist that Gentiles must live like Jews?

15 We ourselves are Jews by birth, not
16 Gentiles and sinners. But we know that no man is ever justified by doing what the law demands, but only through faith in Christ Jesus; so we too have put our faith in Jesus Christ, in order that we might be justified through this faith, and not through deeds dictated by law; for by such deeds, Scripture says, no mortal man shall be justified.

17 If now, in seeking to be justified in Christ, we ourselves no less than the Gentiles turn out to be sinners against the law,<sup>m</sup> does that mean that Christ is an abettor of sin? No, never! No, if I start building up again a system which I have pulled down, then it is that I show myself up as a transgressor of the law. For through the law I died to law
20—to live for God. I have been crucified with Christ: the life I now live is not my life, but the life which Christ lives in me; and my present bodily life is lived by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself up for me.
21 I will not nullify the grace of God; if righteousness comes by law, then Christ died for nothing.

3 YOU STUPID GALATIANS! YOU MUST HAVE been bewitched—you before whose eyes Jesus Christ was openly displayed upon
2 his cross! Answer me one question: did you receive the Spirit by keeping the law or by believing the gospel message<sup>n</sup>? Can it be that you are so stupid? You started with the spiritual; do you now look to the material to make you
4 perfect? Have all your great experiences been in vain—if vain indeed they should 5 be? I ask then: when God gives you the Spirit and works miracles among you, why is this? Is it because you keep the law, or is it because you have faith in the gospel message? Look at Abraham: he 6 put his faith in God, and that faith was counted to him as righteousness.

You may take it, then, that it is the 7 men of faith who are Abraham's sons. And Scripture, foreseeing that God
8 would justify the Gentiles through faith, declared the Gospel to Abraham beforehand: 'In you all nations shall find blessing.' Thus it is the men of faith 9 who share the blessing with faithful Abraham.

On the other hand those who rely on 10 obedience to the law are under a curse; for Scripture says, 'A curse is on all who do not persevere in doing everything that is written in the Book of the Law.' It is evident that no one is ever justified 11 before God in terms of law; because we read, 'he shall gain life who is justified through faith'. Now law is not at 12 all a matter of having faith: we read, 'he who does this shall gain life by what he does'.

Christ bought us freedom from the 13 curse of the law by becoming for our sake an accursed thing; for Scripture says, 'A curse is on everyone who is 14 hanged on a gibbet.' And the purpose of it all was that the blessing of Abraham should in Jesus Christ be extended to the Gentiles, so that we might receive the promised Spirit through faith.

My brothers, let me give you an 15 illustration. Even in ordinary life, when a man's will and testament has been duly executed, no one else can set it 16 aside or add a codicil. Now the promises were pronounced to Abraham and to his 'issue'. It does not say 'issues' in the plural, but in the singular, 'and to your 17 issue'; and the 'issue' intended is Christ. What I am saying is this: a testament, or covenant, had already been validated <sup>m</sup> Or no less than the Gentiles have accepted the position of sinners against the law.

<sup>n</sup> Or or by the message of faith, or or by hearing and believing.

15–21: This section summarizes Paul's basic argument (compare Rom.3.9–26). 16: See 3.6–14. Justified: accepted by God as righteous (see Rom.1.16–17 n.; 3.20). Scripture: Ps.143.2. 17–18: Paul and Cephas indeed break the law (e.g. by eating with Gentiles); the real transgressor, however, is the adherent of the Law (see 3.10). 20: Compare 6.14,17.

3.1–18: Abraham's faith foreshadows the Christian's trust in Christ (Rom. ch. 4.). 1: Openly displayed, i.e. in Paul's preaching (see 1 Cor.1.18–24). 2: Receive the Spirit: see 2 Cor.5.5 n. 3: The material: keeping the law. 5: Miracles: see 1 Cor.12.10; 2 Cor.12.12. 6: Gen.15.6. 8: Gen.12.3; 18.18. 10: See Rom.3.9–20. Scripture: Deut.27.26. 11: Hab.2.4 (Rom.1.17). 12: Lev.18.5 (Rom.10.5). 13: Deut.21.23 (compare 2 Cor.5.21). 16: Issue: see e.g. Gen.17.1–8. 17: Testament and covenant translate a single Gk. word, which in the Sept. (e.g. Gen.9.9; 17.7)

by God; it cannot be invalidated, and its promises rendered ineffective, by a law made four hundred and thirty years 18 later. If the inheritance is by legal right, then it is not by promise; but it was by promise that God bestowed it as a free gift on Abraham.

19 Then what of the law? It was added to make wrongdoing a legal offence.<sup>o</sup> It was a temporary measure pending the arrival of the 'issue' to whom the promise was made. It was promulgated through angels, and there was an intermediary; but an intermediary is not needed for one party acting alone, and God is one.

21 Does the law, then, contradict the promises? No, never! If a law had been given which had power to bestow life, then indeed righteousness would have come from keeping the law. But Scripture has declared the whole world to be prisoners in subjection to sin, so that faith in Jesus Christ may be the ground on which the promised blessing is given, and given to those who have such faith.

23 Before this faith came, we were close prisoners in the custody of law, pending the revelation of faith. Thus the law was a kind of tutor in charge of us until Christ should come,<sup>p</sup> when we should be justified through faith; and now that faith has come, the tutor's charge is at an end.

26 For through faith you are all sons of God in union with Christ Jesus. Baptized into union with him, you have all put on Christ as a garment. There is no such thing as Jew and Greek, slave and freeman, male and female; for you are 29 all one person in Christ Jesus. But if you thus belong to Christ, you are the 'issue' of Abraham, and so heirs by promise.

This is what I mean: so long as the 4 heir is a minor, he is no better off than a slave, even though the whole estate is his; he is under guardians and trustees
2 until the date fixed by his father. And 3 so it was with us. During our minority we were slaves to the elemental spirits of the universe,<sup>q</sup> but when the term was 4 completed, God sent his own Son, born of a woman, born under the law, to 5 purchase freedom for the subjects of the law, in order that we might attain the status of sons.

To prove that you are sons, God has 6 sent into our hearts the Spirit of his Son, crying 'Abba! Father!' You are 7 therefore no longer a slave but a son, and if a son, then also by God's own act an heir.

Formerly, when you did not acknowl-
8 edge God, you were the slaves of beings which in their nature are no gods.<sup>r</sup> But 9 now that you do acknowledge God—or rather, now that he has acknowledged you—how can you turn back to the mean and beggarly spirits of the elements?<sup>s</sup> Why do you propose to enter their service all over again? You
10 keep special days and months and seasons and years. You make me fear 11 that all the pains I spent on you may prove to be labour lost.

PUT YOURSELVES IN MY PLACE, MY
12 brothers, I beg you, for I have put myself in yours. It is not that you did me any wrong. As you know, it was bodily 13 illness that originally<sup>t</sup> led to my bringing you the Gospel, and you resisted
14

<sup>o</sup> Or added because of offences.

<sup>p</sup> Or a kind of tutor to conduct us to Christ.

<sup>q</sup> Or the elements of the natural world, or elementary ideas belong to this world.

<sup>r</sup> Or were slaves to 'gods' which in reality do not exist.

<sup>s</sup> See note on 4. 3.

<sup>t</sup> Or formerly, or on the first of my two visits.

frequently refers to God's irrevocable promises (vv. 16–18, 21) offered with certain conditions (v. 22), and in common Greek to a will by which heirs (v. 29) receive their inheritance (v. 18). Exod.12.40 (Sept.) gives four hundred and thirty years as the interval between Abraham and Moses.

3.19–4.7: The Law as temporary guardian of God's children. 19–20: See Rom.3.20; 5.13; 7.7–8. Here, by contrast with Rom.7.12,22, Paul suggests that God is not directly responsible for the law. Instead, the law came from the angels (Deut.33.2 Sept.; see 1 Cor.6.2–3 n.) with Moses as their intermediary. 22: Scripture: see v. 10 n. 24–25: Tutor: see 1 Cor.4.15 n. 27: Put on Christ: see Rom.13.14; Col.3.10–12. 28: See 1 Cor.7.18–22; Col.3.11. 29: Christ stands corporately for the new Israel, the church (see 6.16 n.). Promise: see vv. 17–18. 4.1–2: See 3.24–25 n. 3: Elemental spirits: see 1 Cor.2.6–8 n. 6–7: See Rom.8.14–17.

4.8–20: A reminder of the Galatians' conversion. 8–10: At the instigation of the Judaizers (see Introduction) they keep the Jewish ritual calendar, which Paul connects with astrology and the worship of demonic spirits (v. 3). 13: Paul appears to attribute his original visit in Galatia any temptation to show scorn or disgust at the state of my poor body;<sup>u</sup> you welcomed me as if I were an angel of God, as you might have welcomed 15 Christ Jesus himself. Have you forgotten how happy you thought yourselves in having me with you? I can say this for you: you would have torn out your very eyes, and given them to me, had 16 that been possible! And have I now made myself your enemy by being frank with you?

17 The persons I have referred to are envious of you, but not with an honest envy:<sup>v</sup> what they really want is to bar the door to you so that you may come 18 to envy<sup>w</sup> them. It is always a fine thing to deserve an honest envy<sup>x</sup>—always, and not only when I am present with 19 you, dear children. For my children you are, and I am in travail with you over again until you take the shape of 20 Christ. I wish I could be with you now; then I could modify my tone;<sup>y</sup> as it is, I am at my wits' end about you.

21 TELL ME NOW, YOU WHO ARE SO anxious to be under law, will you not 22 listen to what the Law says? It is written there that Abraham had two sons, one by his slave and the other by his free-born wife. The slave-woman's son was 23 born in the course of nature, the free woman's through God's promise. This is an allegory. The two women stand for two covenants. The one bearing children into slavery is the covenant that comes from Mount Sinai: that is 24 Hagar. Sinai is a mountain in Arabia and it represents the Jerusalem of today, for she and her children are in 25 slavery. But the heavenly Jerusalem is the free woman; she is our mother. For 26 Scripture says, 'Rejoice, O barren woman who never bore child; break into a shout of joy, you who never knew a mother's pangs; for the deserted wife shall have more children than she who lives with the husband.'

And you, my brothers, like Isaac, are 28 children of God's promise. But just as 29 in those days the natural-born son persecuted the spiritual son, so it is today. But what does Scripture say? 'Drive
 30 out the slave-woman and her son, for the son of the slave shall not share the inheritance with the free woman's son.' You see, then, my brothers, we are no 31 slave-woman's children; our mother is the free woman. Christ set us free, to be 5 free men.<sup>z</sup> Stand firm, then, and refuse to be tied to the yoke of slavery again.

Mark my words: I, Paul, say to you
 2 that if you receive circumcision Christ will do you no good at all. Once again,
 3 you can take it from me that every man who receives circumcision is under obligation to keep the entire law. When 4 you seek to be justified by way of law, your relation with Christ is completely severed: you have fallen out of the domain of God's grace. For to us, our
 5 hope of attaining that righteousness which we eagerly await is the work of the Spirit through faith. If we are in 6 union with Christ Jesus circumcision makes no difference at all, nor does the want of it; the only thing that counts is faith active in love.<sup>a</sup>

You were running well; who was it
 7 hindered you from following the truth? Whatever persuasion he used, it did not
 8 come from God who is calling you; 'a 9 little leaven', remember, 'leavens all the dough'. United with you in the Lord, 10 I am confident that you will not take the wrong view; but the man who is unsettling your minds, whoever he may be, must bear God's judgement. And 11

<sup>u</sup> Or you showed neither scorn nor disgust at the trial my poor body was enduring.

<sup>v</sup> Or paying court to you, but not with honest intentions.

<sup>w</sup> Or pay court to. <sup>x</sup> Or to be honourably wooed.

<sup>y</sup> Or now, and could exchange words with you.

<sup>z</sup> Or What Christ has done is to set us free.

<sup>a</sup> Or inspired by love.

to physical weakness rather than to design. Illness: see 2 Cor.12.7 n. 15: Possibly Paul had eye trouble (see 6.11, "these big letters"). 19: Travail: a metaphor depicting Paul as an expectant "mother" awaiting the rebirth of the Galatians.

4.21-5.1: The allegory of Sarah and Hagar (compare Rom.9.6-13). 22: Slave: Hagar, mother of Ishmael (Gen.16.15). Free-born: Sarah, mother of Isaac (Gen.21.2-3). 23: Promise: see Gen.17.15-21. 25-28: Paradoxically the Jews (who count Isaac as their ancestor) are called children of Hagar; the church is the promised heir like Isaac. 27: Isa.54.1. 29: Persecuted: see Gen.16.12; 21.9-10. Today: see 5.11; 1 Th.2.14-16. 30: Gen.21.10.

5.2-12: The Judaizers' message is slavery. 3: The Judaizers apparently preached circumcision but not the entire law (see 6.12-13). 9: Leaven: see 1 Cor.5.6 n. 11: Paul's own troubles

- I, my friends, if I am still advocating circumcision, why is it I am still persecuted? In that case my preaching of the cross is a stumbling-block no more.
- 12 As for these agitators, they had better go the whole way and make eunuchs of themselves!
- 13 YOU, MY FRIENDS, WERE CALLED TO BE free men, only do not turn your freedom into licence for your lower nature, but be servants to one another in love.
- 14 For the whole law can be summed up in a single commandment: 'Love your neighbour as yourself.' But if you go on fighting one another, tooth and nail, all you can expect is mutual destruction.
- 15 I mean this: if you are guided by the Spirit you will not fulfil the desires of your lower nature. That nature sets its desires against the Spirit, while the Spirit fights against it. They are in conflict with one another so that what you will to do you cannot do. But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under law.
- 16 Anyone can see the kind of behaviour that belongs to the lower nature: fornication, impurity, and indecency; idolatry and sorcery; quarrels, a contentious temper, envy, fits of rage, selfish ambitions, dissensions, party intrigues, and jealousies; drinking bouts, orgies, and the like. I warn you, as I warned you before, that those who behave in such ways will never inherit the kingdom of God.
- 17 But the harvest of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, fidelity, gentleness, and self-control. There is no law dealing with such things as these. And those who belong to Christ Jesus have crucified the lower nature with its passions and desires. If the Spirit is the source of our life, let the Spirit also direct our course.
- 18 We must not be conceited, challenging one another to rivalry, jealous of one another. If a man should do something wrong, my brothers, on a sudden impulse,<sup>b</sup> you who are endowed with the Spirit must set him right again very gently. Look to yourself, each one of you: you may be tempted too. Help one another to carry these heavy loads and in this way you will fulfil the law of Christ.

For if a man imagines himself to be somebody, when he is nothing, he is deluding himself. Each man should examine his own conduct for himself; then he can measure his achievement by comparing himself with himself and not with anyone else. For everyone has his own proper burden to bear.

When anyone is under instruction in the faith, he should give his teacher a share of all good things he has.

Make no mistake about this: God is not to be fooled; a man reaps what he sows. If he sows seed in the field of his lower nature, he will reap from it a harvest of corruption, but if he sows in the field of the Spirit, the Spirit will bring him a harvest of eternal life. So let us never tire of doing good, for if we do not slacken our efforts we shall in due time reap our harvest. Therefore, as opportunity offers, let us work for the good of all, especially members of the household of the faith.

YOU SEE THESE BIG LETTERS? I AM NOW writing to you in my own hand. It is all those who want to make a fair outward and bodily show who are trying to force circumcision upon you; their sole object is to escape persecution for the cross of Christ. For even those who do receive circumcision are not thoroughgoing observers of the law; they only want

<sup>b</sup> Or If a man is caught doing something wrong, my brothers, . . .

(see 4.29; 6.14,17 n.) refute the Judaizers' allegation that circumcision was actually part of his gospel also (see 6.12 n.). Cross: see 1 Cor.1.18-2.5.

5.13-25: The ethics of freedom is not licence but love. 13: Mk.10.43. 14: Lev.19.18 (see Rom.13.8-10; Mk.12.31). 16-17: Lower nature: lit. "flesh" (compare 1 Cor.15.35-53; Rom.7.14-25; 7.14 n.). 19-24: The lists are stereotyped (see Col.3.1-15; compare Col. 3.18-4.1 n.). 24: Crucified: see Rom.6.6.

5.26-6.10: Appeal for love and generosity. 6.2: The law of Christ is love (see 5.14 n.). 6: A teacher should be paid (see 1 Cor.9.4-14). 7-10: Sow and reap echo 2 Cor.9.6-10 on the collection project (see Rom.15.25-26 nn.).

6.11-18: Conclusion. 11: See 1 Cor.16.21-24 n. 12: Circumcision would prevent persecution by bringing Christians under the legal protection enjoyed by Judaism (see 5.11 n.). 13: See 5.3 n.

you to be circumcised in order to boast of your having submitted to that out-14 ward rite. But God forbid that I should boast of anything but the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through which<sup>c</sup> the world is crucified to me and I to the 15 world! Circumcision is nothing; uncircumcision is nothing; the only thing 16 that counts is new creation! Whoever they are who take this principle for their guide, peace and mercy be upon them, and upon the whole Israel of God!

 In future let no one make trouble for 17
 me, for I bear the marks of Jesus branded on my body.
 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ 18
 be with your spirit, my brothers. Amen.

c Or whom.

---

14: Cross: see 3.1; 5.24; Phil.3.10. 16: Israel of God: the church (see 4.25–28 n.). 17: Marks:
 scars received in Jesus' service (see 2 Cor.4.10–11; 11.23–28). 18: See 2 Cor.13.14 n.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE EPHESIANS

The main theme of the letter to the Ephesians is the church, the body of Christ, in which Jew and Gentile have been united and made "a single new humanity" (2.15). The letter presents itself as written by Paul during a time of imprisonment (3.1), and its close relationship to Colossians has led many to suppose a common situation for both: Paul's captivity in Rome (61–63 A.D.).

The best and earliest manuscripts lack the words "at Ephesus" in 1.1. Therefore, some scholars have offered the suggestion that it was originally intended for many churches, not just the one at Ephesus.

Moreover, there is some basis on which doubts have arisen that the letter was written by Paul himself. Thus, though there are points of contact in thought and wording with every Pauline letter (except perhaps 2 Thessalonians) and especially with Colossians, yet in many instances these points of contact also reflect differences. For example, Eph.2.8–10 is closely related to the thought of Romans, but does not mention justification, which is central to that epistle. Again, the "revealed secret" is conceived differently in Colossians and in Ephesians; in Colossians, it is the union of Christ and his people (Col.1.27); in the latter, it is the union of Jew and Gentile in the one church (Eph.3.6). Accordingly, many (perhaps most) modern scholars regard Ephesians as the work of a member of the Pauline "school" and date it around 100 A.D.

---

The glory of Christ in the church

1 FROM PAUL, APOSTLE OF CHRIST JESUS, commissioned by the will of God, to God's people at Ephesus,<sup>a</sup> believers incorporate in Christ Jesus.

2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Praise be to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has bestowed on us in Christ every spiritual blessing in the heavenly realms. In Christ he chose us before the world was founded, to be dedicated, to be without blemish in his sight, to be full of love; and he<sup>b</sup> destined us—such was his will and pleasure—to be accepted as his sons through Jesus Christ, in order that the glory of his gracious gift, so graciously bestowed on us in his Beloved, might redound to his praise. For in Christ our release is secured and our sins are forgiven through the shedding of his blood. Therein lies the richness of God's free grace lavished upon us, 8 imparting full wisdom and insight. He 9 has made known to us his hidden purpose—such was his will and pleasure determined beforehand in Christ—to 10 be put into effect when the time was ripe: namely, that the universe, all in heaven and on earth, might be brought into a unity in Christ.

In Christ indeed we have been given 11 our share in the heritage, as was decreed in his design whose purpose is everywhere at work. For it was his will that 12 we, who were the first to set our hope on Christ,<sup>c</sup> should cause his glory to be praised. And you too, when you had 13 heard the message of the truth, the good

---

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses omit at Ephesus.

<sup>b</sup> Or . . . sight. In his love he . . .

<sup>c</sup> Or who already enjoyed the hope of Christ, or whose expectation and hope are in Christ.

---

1.3–14: Praise of God. The greeting (vv. 1–2) is followed not by the usual thanksgiving, but by a long prayer of praise to God for what he has done in Christ. Such praise is frequent in the OT and in Jewish prayer; compare 2 Cor.1.3–4. 3: In the NT, the phrase in the heavenly realms (or a variation of it) occurs only in this letter (1.20; 2.6; 3.10; 6.12). Apocalyptic literature speaks of a series of heavens (frequently seven) extending above and beyond the earth, with the throne of God in the highest heaven. At times, the heavenly realms were thought of as accessible to men only in the future age to come, but at other times as immediately available to the dead. Here the faithful, through union with Christ (2.6), share his exaltation in the heavenly realms (see v. 14 n.). 4: God's choosing of his people (the church) is traced back beyond creation. Without blemish: see Col.1.22 n. 10: Although the main theme of the letter is the church, here the universe is viewed as intended for the unity destined to be achieved in Christ. 11–13: In the preceding verses "we" includes all Christians. This passage, however, suggests a contrast between we (v. 11) and you (v. 13), with we here meaning Jewish Christians (first . . . Christ) and you, later Gentile news of your salvation, and had believed it, became incorporate in Christ and received the seal of the promised 14 Holy Spirit; and that Spirit is the pledge that we shall enter upon our heritage, when God has redeemed what is his own, to his praise and glory.

15 Because of all this, now that I have heard of the faith you have in the Lord Jesus and of the love you bear towards 16 all God's people, I never cease to give thanks for you when I mention you in 17 my prayers. I pray that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the all-glorious Father, may give you the spiritual powers of wisdom and vision, by which 18 there comes the knowledge of him. I pray that your inward eyes may be illumined, so that you may know what is the hope to which he calls you, what the wealth and glory of the share he offers you among his people in their 19 heritage, and how vast the resources of his power open to us who trust in him. They are measured by his strength and the 20 might which he exerted in Christ when he raised him from the dead, when he enthroned him at his right hand in 21 the heavenly realms, far above all government and authority, all power and dominion, and any title of sovereignty that can be named, not only in 22 this age but in the age to come. He put everything in subjection beneath his feet, and appointed him as supreme 23 head to the church, which is his body and as such holds within it the fullness of him who himself receives the entire fullness of God.<sup>d</sup>

your sins and wickedness, when you
 2 followed the evil ways of this present age, when you obeyed the commander of the spiritual powers of the air, the spirit now at work among God's rebel subjects. We too were once of their
 3 number: we all lived our lives in sensuality, and obeyed the promptings of our own instincts and notions. In our natural condition we, like the rest, lay under the dreadful judgement of God. But God, rich in mercy, for the great
 4 love he bore us, brought us to life with Christ even when we were dead in our 5 sins; it is by his grace you are saved. And in union with Christ Jesus he 6 raised us up and enthroned us with him in the heavenly realms, so that he might
 7 display in the ages to come how immense are the resources of his grace, and how great his kindness to us in Christ Jesus. For it is by his grace you
 8 are saved, through trusting him; it is not your own doing. It is God's gift, not a reward for work done. There is 9 nothing for anyone to boast of. For we are God's handiwork, created in 10 Christ Jesus to devote ourselves to the good deeds for which God has designed us.

Remember then your former con-
 11 dition: you, Gentiles as you are outwardly,<sup>e</sup> you, 'the uncircumcised' so called by those who are called 'the circumcised' (but only with reference to an outward rite)—you were at that
 12 time separate from Christ, strangers

<sup>d</sup> Or as supreme head to the church, which is his body and as such holds within it the fullness of him who fills the universe in all its parts; or as supreme head to the church which is his body, and to be all that he himself is who fills the universe in all its parts.
<sup>e</sup> Or by birth.

2 TIME WAS WHEN YOU WERE DEAD IN

converts (became . . . Christ). Seal . . . Holy Spirit means baptism. 14: The pledge: see 2 Cor. 5.5 n. The present possession of the Spirit is the guarantee of the coming full possession of their heritage. Then the redemption of God's people will be complete.

1.15–23: Thanksgiving and prayer. 20: Enthroned at his right hand: see Ps.110.1; the NT frequently applies this OT verse to the ascended Christ (e.g. Acts 2.33–34). 21: Government . . . authority . . . title: see 1 Cor.2.6–8 n.; Col.1.16. 22–23: Head, body: see Col.1.18 n. The subjection of all to Christ is expressed by a paraphrase of Ps.8.6, one of the favorite proof texts of the early church; compare 1 Cor.15.27. On Christ as the fullness of God, see Col.1.19 n. Here the church is conceived of as the fullness of Christ.

2.1–10: The passage from "death" to "life." 2: Compare 1 Cor.2.12; 2 Cor.4.4; Gal.1.4. The commander is Satan. An extrabiblical book (see 2 Enoch 29.5) regarded the air as Satan's dwelling place. 8–10: The emphasis on grace is in conformity with Paul's teaching. But the view here (and in v. 5) that salvation is already accomplished diverges from normal Pauline thought in which salvation belongs to the future (Rom.5.10) or is at most only in process (see 1 Cor.1.18). Such differences may support the opinion that Ephesians is a late product of a Pauline "school" (see Introduction).

2.11–22: The unity of all mankind in Christ. 14–15: The Mosaic Law had been a dividing wall to the community of Israel, outside God's covenants and the promise that goes with them. Your world was a world 13 without hope and without God. But now in union with Christ Jesus you who once were far off have been brought near through the shedding of Christ's 14 blood. For he is himself our peace. Gentiles and Jews, he has made the two one, and in his own body of flesh and blood has broken down the enmity which stood like a dividing wall between them; for he annulled the law with its rules and regulations, so as to create out of the two a single new humanity in himself, thereby making

 16 peace. This was his purpose, to reconcile the two in a single body to God through the cross, on which he killed the enmity.<sup>f</sup>

17 So he came and proclaimed the good news: peace to you who were far off, and peace to those who were near by; for through him we both alike have access to the Father in the one Spirit.
 19 Thus you are no longer aliens in a foreign land, but fellow-citizens with God's people, members of God's household. You are built upon the foundation laid by the apostles and prophets, and Christ Jesus himself is the foundation-stone.<sup>g</sup> In him the whole building<sup>h</sup> is bonded together and grows into a holy temple in the Lord. In him you too are being built with all the rest into a spiritual dwelling for God.

3 WITH THIS IN MIND I MAKE MY PRAYER, I, Paul, who in the cause of you Gentiles am now the prisoner of Christ Jesus—
 2 for surely you have heard how God has assigned the gift of his grace to me
 3 for your benefit. It was by a revelation that his secret was made known to me.

I have already written a brief account of this, and by reading it you may perceive that I understand the secret of Christ. In former generations this was 5 not disclosed to the human race; but now it has been revealed by inspiration to his dedicated apostles and prophets, that through the Gospel the Gentiles
 6 are joint heirs with the Jews, part of the same body, sharers together in the promise made in Christ Jesus. Such is 7 the gospel of which I was made a minister, by God's gift, bestowed unmerited on me in the working of his power. To me, who am less than the 8 least of all God's people, he has granted of his grace the privilege of proclaiming to the Gentiles the good news of the unfathomable riches of Christ, and of 9 bringing to light how this hidden purpose was to be put into effect. It was hidden for long ages in God the creator of the universe, in order that now,
 10 through the church, the wisdom of God in all its varied forms might be made known to the rulers and authorities in the realms of heaven. This is in accord 11 with his age-long purpose, which he achieved in Christ Jesus our Lord. In 12 him we have access to God with freedom, in the confidence born of trust in him. I beg you, then, not to lose heart 13 over my sufferings for you; indeed, they are your glory.

With this in mind, then, I kneel in 14 prayer to the Father, from whom every family<sup>i</sup> in heaven and on earth takes its name, that out of the treasures of his 16 glory he may grant you strength and power through his Spirit in your inner <sup>f</sup> Or . . . cross. Thus in his own person he put the enmity to death.

<sup>g</sup> Or built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, and Christ Jesus himself is the keystone.

<sup>h</sup> Or every structure.
<sup>i</sup> Or his whole family.

between Jew and Gentile. A single new humanity: lit. one new man. 17: See Isa.57.19. 20: The symbolism changes abruptly from that of a body (v. 16; 1.22-23) to that of a building (vv. 20-22). Foundation-stone: see Isa.28.16; Ps.118.22; compare Mt.21.42 and parallels.

3.1-13: Paul's apostolate. 1: Prisoner: see Introduction. 3: Revelation: see Gal.1.15-16. The brief account probably refers not to an earlier letter, but to 2.11-22. 5-6: Revealed . . . apostles: some take this passage as an indication that Paul did not write the letter (see Introduction), because in Gal.2.8-9 he distinguishes between his commission to preach to the Gentiles and that of the Jerusalem apostles to preach to the Jews (compare Rom.11.13). Prophets: see 1 Cor.12.28; Rom.12.6. The secret, now . . . revealed, is that the Gentiles are one with the Jews in the body of Christ, the church. 10: The secret is not only to be made known on earth but also among the angelic powers (see Col.1.16 n.); this is to be done by the church, which has a heavenly dimension. See 6.12.

3.14-21: Prayer and doxology. 14-15: A play on the Gk. words for father (pater) and family (patria) stresses the relationship of God to all his creation. The families in heaven are the angels.

17 being, that through faith Christ may dwell in your hearts in love. With deep 18 roots and firm foundations, may you be strong to grasp, with all God's 19 people, what is the breadth and length and height and depth of the love of Christ, and to know it, though it is beyond knowledge. So may you attain to fullness of being, the fullness of God himself.<sup>j</sup>

20 Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we can ask or conceive, by the power which is at 21 work among us, to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus from generation to generation evermore!
 Amen.

4 I ENTREAT YOU, THEN—I, A PRISONER
 for the Lord's sake: as God has called 2 you, live up to your calling. Be humble always and gentle, and patient too.
 Be forbearing with one another and 3 charitable. Spare no effort to make fast with bonds of peace the unity which 4 the Spirit gives. There is one body and one Spirit, as there is also one hope held 5 out in God's call to you; one Lord, one 6 faith, one baptism; one God and Father of all, who is over all and through all and in all.

7 But each of us has been given his gift,
 his due portion of Christ's bounty.
 8 Therefore Scripture says:

'He ascended into the heights
 with captives in his train;
 he gave gifts to men.'

9 Now, the word 'ascended' implies that he also descended to the lowest 10 level, down to the very earth.<sup>k</sup> He who descended is no other than he who ascended far above all heavens, so that 11 he might fill the universe. And these were his gifts: some to be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, some pastors and teachers, to equip God's 12 people for work in his service, to the building up of the body of Christ. So 13 shall we all at last attain to the unity inherent in our faith and our knowledge of the Son of God—to mature manhood, measured by nothing less than the full stature of Christ. We are 14 no longer to be children, tossed by the waves and whirled about by every fresh gust of teaching, dupes of crafty rogues and their deceitful schemes. No, let us 15 speak the truth in love; so shall we fully grow up into Christ. He is the head, and on him the whole body depends.

 16 Bonded and knit together by every constituent joint, the whole frame grows through the due activity of each part, and builds itself up in love.

This then is my word to you, and I
 17 urge it upon you in the Lord's name.
 Give up living like pagans with their good-for-nothing notions. Their wits 18 are beclouded, they are strangers to the life that is in God, because ignorance prevails among them and their minds have grown hard as stone. Dead to all 19 feeling, they have abandoned themselves to vice, and stop at nothing to satisfy their foul desires. But that is not 20 how you learned Christ. For were you not told of him, were you not as Chris-21 tians taught the truth as it is in Jesus?
 —that, leaving your former way of life, 22 you must lay aside that old human nature which, deluded by its lusts, is sinking towards death. You must be 23 made new in mind and spirit, and put on the new nature of God's creating, 24 which shows itself in the just and devout life called for by the truth.

Then throw off falsehood; speak the 25 truth to each other, for all of us are the parts of one body.

If you are angry, do not let anger 26

<sup>j</sup> Or the fullness which God requires.

<sup>k</sup> Or descended to the regions beneath the earth.

21: This juxtaposition of the church and Christ Jesus is unique in the NT; yet, it flows naturally from the image of the church as the body of Christ.

4.1–16: Christian unity. 1: Prisoner: see Introduction. 7: The rich variety of individual gifts contributes to the unity of the church. 8–9: Captives in his train: the author means the angelic powers; see Col.2.15. In the manner of rabbinic exegesis, the wording of Ps.68.18 is altered to accommodate it to its new interpretation; the "ascent" is applied to Christ and is understood as implying a prior "descent" in the incarnation. Less probably, even the translation of Tfn. k might be adopted, in which case a "descent into hell" would be involved; compare I Pet. 3.19–20 n. 11–13: His gifts are the ministries of the church. Evangelists: missionary preachers.

4.17–5.20: Exhortation to the Christian life. 21: The truth may refer to the inherited teachings lead you into sin; do not let sunset find 27 you still nursing it; leave no loop-hole for the devil.

28 The thief must give up stealing, and instead work hard and honestly with his own hands, so that he may have something to share with the needy.

29 No bad language must pass your lips, but only what is good and helpful to the occasion, so that it brings a blessing to 30 those who hear it. And do not grieve
the Holy Spirit of God, for that Spirit is the seal with which you were marked 31 for the day of our final liberation. Have done with spite and passion, all angry shouting and cursing, and bad feeling of every kind.

32 Be generous to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another as God
in Christ forgave you.

5 In a word, as God's dear children,
2 try to be like him, and live in love as Christ loved you, and gave himself up on your behalf as an offering and sacrifice whose fragrance is pleasing to God.

3 Fornication and indecency of any kind, or ruthless greed, must not be so much as mentioned among you, as befits 4 the people of God. No coarse, stupid, or flippant talk; these things are out of place; you should rather be thanking 5 God. For be very sure of this: no one given to fornication or indecency, or the greed which makes an idol of gain, has any share in the kingdom of Christ and of God.

6 Let no one deceive you with shallow arguments; it is for all these things that God's dreadful judgement is coming 7 upon his rebel subjects. Have no part or lot with them. For though you were 8 once all darkness, now as Christians you are light. Live like men who are at 9 home in daylight, for where light is,
there all goodness springs up, all justice 10 and truth. Try to find out what would 11 please the Lord; take no part in the barren deeds of darkness, but show them up for what they are. The things 12

they do in secret it would be shameful even to mention. But everything, when 13
once the light has shown it up, is illuminated, and everything thus illumined is all light. And so the hymn says: 14

'Awake, sleeper,
rise from the dead,
and Christ will shine upon you.'

Be most careful then how you con- 15
duct yourselves: like sensible men, not like simpletons. Use the present op- 16
portunity to the full, for these are evil days. So do not be fools, but try to 17 understand what the will of the Lord is.
Do not give way to drunkenness and 18
the dissipation that goes with it, but let the Holy Spirit fill you: speak to 19
one another in psalms, hymns, and<sup>l</sup> songs; sing and make music in your hearts to the Lord; and in the name 20
of our Lord Jesus Christ give thanks
every day for everything to our God and Father.

Be subject to one another out of 21
reverence for Christ.

Wives, be subject to your husbands 22
as to the Lord; for the man is the head 23
as to the Lord; just as Christ also is the head of the church. Christ is, indeed, the 24 Saviour of the body; but just as the church is subject to Christ, so must wo- 25 men be to their husbands in everything.

Husbands, love your wives, as Christ 26
also loved the church and gave himself up for it, to consecrate it, cleansing it 27
by water and word, so that he might present the church to himself all glorious, with no stain or wrinkle or anything of the sort, but holy and with- 28 out blemish. In the same way men also are bound to love their wives, as they love their own bodies. In loving his wife a man loves himself. For no one 29 ever hated his own body: on the contrary, he provides and cares for it; and

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses insert spiritual, as in Colossians 3. 16.

of the historical Jesus. 5.1-2: Like him: lit. imitators of God. Fragrance . . . pleasing to God: see Lev.2.9. 8: Darkness . . . light: see 1 Th.5.4-7 n. 14: These lines (compare Isa.60.1) may have been drawn from an early Christian baptismal hymn; see v. 19.

5.21-6.9: Christian domestic life. The Christianizing of the lists of household virtues (see Col.3.18-4.1 n.) is especially clear here in the treatment of marriage. 26: Baptism is seen as the nuptial bath preparing the bride for her husband. The word may refer to the liturgical formula, including the invocation of the name of Jesus, pronounced over the candidate at baptism;

that is how Christ treats the church, because it is his body, of which we are living parts. Thus it is that (in the words of Scripture) 'a man shall leave his father and mother and shall be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh'. It is a great truth that is hidden here. I for my part refer it to Christ and to the church, but it applies also individually: each of you must love his wife as his very self; and the woman must see to it that she pays her husband all respect.

Children, obey your parents, for it is right that you should. 'Honour your father and mother' is the first commandment with a promise attached, in the words: 'that it may be well with you and that you may live long in the land'.

You fathers, again, must not goad your children to resentment, but give them the instruction, and the correction, which belong to a Christian upbringing.

Slaves, obey your earthly masters with fear and trembling, single-mindedly, as serving Christ. Do not offer merely the outward show of service, to curry favour with men, but, as slaves of Christ, do whole-heartedly the will of God. Give the cheerful service of those who serve the Lord, not men. For you know that whatever good each man may do, slave or free, will be repaid him by the Lord.

You masters, also, must do the same by them. Give up using threats; remember you both have the same Master in heaven, and he has no favourites.

Finally then, find your strength in the Lord, in his mighty power. Put on all the armour which God provides, so that you may be able to stand firm against the devices of the devil. For our fight is not against human foes, but against cosmic powers, against the authorities and potentates of this dark world, against the superhuman forces of evil in the heavens. Therefore, take up God's armour; then you will be able to stand your ground when things are at their worst, to complete every task and still to stand. Stand firm, I say. Fasten on the belt of truth; for coat of mail put on integrity; let the shoes on your feet be the gospel of peace, to give you firm footing; and, with all these, take up the great shield of faith, with which you will be able to quench all the flaming arrows of the evil one. Take salvation for helmet; for sword, take which the Spirit gives you—the words that come from God. Give yourselves wholly to prayer and entreaty; pray on every occasion in the power of the Spirit. To this end keep watch and persevere, always interceding for all God's people; and pray for me, that I may be granted the right words when I open my mouth, and may boldly and freely make known his hidden purpose, for which I am an ambassador—in chains. Pray that I may speak of it boldly, as it is my duty to speak.

You will want to know about my affairs, and how I am; Tychicus will give you all the news. He is our dear brother and trustworthy helper in the Lord's work. I am sending him to you on purpose to let you know all about us, and to put fresh heart into you.

Peace to the brotherhood and love, with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. God's grace be with all who love our Lord Jesus Christ, grace and immortality.<sup>m</sup>

m Or who love . . . Christ with love imperishable.

see 1 Cor.6.11. 31: See Gen.2.24. 32–33: The great truth . . . hidden is that Gen.2.24 can be taken to allude to the union of Christ and the church in one body; but the verse applies also individually, that is, it also speaks directly to the duty of a husband to love his wife as himself.

6.10–20: The Christian battle. 11,13–17: Armour: see 1 Th.5.8 n. 12: Cosmic powers: see 1 Cor.2.6–8 n.; Col.1.6 n. 20: In chains: a prisoner; see Introduction.

6.21–24: Final greetings and blessing. 21: Tychicus: a companion of Paul; see Col.4.7–8.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE PHILIPPIANS

The church of Philippi was the first Paul founded on the continent of Europe (Acts 16.11-40; 1 Th.2.2). His cordial relations with it can be seen from the unusual warmth of this letter and from the fact that it was the only one of his churches from which he accepted support (Phil.4.15-16).

The letter was written from prison (1.7,13,17) and together with Colossians, Ephesians, and Philemon makes up the group known as the Captivity Letters. Two major imprisonments of Paul are recorded in Acts, one at Caesarea (23.33-26.32), the other at Rome (28.16-31), and Rome has traditionally been identified as the place from which Philippians was written.

However, the differences in thought between Colossians (also usually assigned to the Roman imprisonment) and Philippians make it difficult to ascribe both of these letters to the same period. Moreover, Philippians speaks of four journeys made by friends between the place of Paul's imprisonment and Philippi and of a fifth which is about to take place (2.25-26)—an unlikely number considering the great distance between Rome and Philippi. On the other hand, if one of Paul's many imprisonments (2 Cor.11.23) occurred during his three-year stay at Ephesus (Acts 20.31), so many trips are easier to understand; Ephesus and Philippi were only about ten days apart. Inscriptions discovered at Ephesus show that members of the Praetorian Guard and of the imperial establishment were stationed in the Roman province of Asia; consequently, the references in 1.13 and 4.22 are as consistent with an origin in Ephesus as in Rome.

If composition at Ephesus is accepted, Philippians belongs to the period of Paul's "third missionary journey," and may be dated around 56 A.D.

It is not certain that the present document was always a unit; it may have been assembled from as many as three originally distinct letters: a note of thanks for the gift sent through Epaphroditus (4.10-20); a letter motivated by Paul's concern for the church in the face of potentially disruptive persons whose position is not clearly defined (1.1-3.1a; 4.2-9, 21-23); and a letter warning against false teachers about whose doctrines the apostle has become better informed (3.1b-4.1).

The apostle and his friends

1 FROM PAUL AND TIMOTHY, SERVANTS of Christ Jesus, to all those of God's people, incorporate in Christ Jesus, who live at Philippi, including their bishops and deacons.

2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I thank my God whenever I think of you; and when I pray for you all, my prayers are always joyful, because of the part you have taken in the work of the Gospel from the first day until now.

6 Of one thing I am certain: the One who started the good work in you will bring it to completion by the Day of Christ

7 Jesus. It is indeed only right that I should feel like this about you all, because you hold me in such affection, and because, when I lie in prison or appear in the dock to vouch for the truth of the Gospel, you all share in the privilege that is mine.<sup>a</sup> God knows how I long for you all, with the deep yearning of Christ Jesus himself. And this is my prayer, that your love may grow ever richer and richer in knowledge and insight of every kind, and may thus bring you the gift of true discrimination.<sup>b</sup> Then on the Day of Christ you will be flawless and without blame, reaping the full harvest of righteousness

<sup>a</sup> Or I am justified in taking this view about you all, because I hold you in closest union, as those who, when I lie . . . of the Gospel, all share in the privilege that is mine.

<sup>b</sup> Or may teach you by experience what things are most worth while.

1.1-2: Greeting. 1: Bishops and deacons are mentioned only here in the certainly authentic letters of Paul. (The Pastoral Epistles are sometimes regarded as not by Paul; see Introduction to 1 Tim.). Later ecclesiastical developments should not be read into the terms here. Bishops (lit. "overseers") are those who exercise supervision; deacons are probably their assistants.

1.3-11: Thanksgiving and prayer. 3: The part you have taken: their support of Paul; see 2.25; 4.15-16. 6: The Day of Christ Jesus: the Parousia; see 1 Th.2.19 n. 7: Prison: see Introduction. 11: The harvest does not consist in righteousness but is produced by it, and Jesus is its source.

that comes through Jesus Christ, to the glory and praise of God.

12 Friends, I want you to understand that the work of the Gospel has been helped on, rather than hindered, by this 13 business of mine. My imprisonment in Christ's cause has become common knowledge to all at headquarters<sup>c</sup> here, and indeed among the public at large;
14 and it has given confidence to most of our fellow-Christians to speak the word of God fearlessly and with extraordinary courage.

15 Some, indeed, proclaim Christ in a jealous and quarrelsome spirit; others
16 proclaim him in true goodwill, and these are moved by love for me; they know that it is to defend the Gospel
17 that I am where I am. But the others, moved by personal rivalry, present Christ from mixed motives, meaning 18 to stir up fresh trouble for me as I lie in prison.<sup>d</sup> What does it matter? One way or another, in pretence or sincerity, Christ is set forth, and for that I rejoice.

19 Yes, and rejoice I will, knowing well that the issue of it all will be my deliverance, because you are praying for me and the Spirit of Jesus Christ is given 20 me for support.<sup>e</sup> For, as I passionately hope, I shall have no cause to be ashamed, but shall speak so boldly that now as always the greatness of Christ will shine out clearly in my person, whether through my life or through my 21 death. For to me life is Christ, and death gain; but what if my living on in the 22 body may serve some good purpose? Which then am I to choose? I cannot 23 tell. I am torn two ways: what I should like is to depart and be with 24 Christ; that is better by far; but for your sake there is greater need for me to stay on in the body. This indeed I know for 25 certain: I shall stay, and stand by you all to help you forward and to add joy

26 to your faith, so that when I am with you again, your pride in me may be unbounded in Christ Jesus.

Only, let your conduct be worthy of 27 the gospel of Christ, so that whether I come and see you for myself or hear about you from a distance, I may know that you are standing firm, one in spirit, one in mind, contending as one man for the gospel faith, meeting your opponents
28 without so much as a tremor. This is a sure sign to them that their doom is sealed, but a sign of your salvation, and one afforded by God himself; for you have been granted the 29 privilege not only of believing in Christ but also of suffering for him. You and 30 I are engaged in the same contest; you saw me in it once, and, as you hear, I am in it still.

IF THEN OUR COMMON LIFE IN CHRIST
2 yields anything to stir the heart, any loving consolation, any sharing of the Spirit, any warmth of affection or compassion, fill up my cup of happiness by
2 thinking and feeling alike, with the same love for one another, the same turn of mind, and a common care for unity. There must be no room for rivalry and
3 personal vanity among you, but you must humbly reckon others better than yourselves. Look to each other's 4 interest and not merely to your own.

Let your bearing towards one another
5 arise out of your life in Christ

<sup>c</sup> Or to all the imperial guard, or to all at the Residency (Greek Praetorium).

<sup>d</sup> Or meaning to make use of my imprisonment to stir up fresh trouble.

<sup>e</sup> Or supplies me with all I need.

1.12-30: Paul's situation and prospects. 13: Headquarters may mean the residence of the provincial governor (see Acts 23.25) or the headquarters of the Praetorian Guard in Rome; see Tfn. c. 15-18: In contrast to the situation in Corinth, where doctrinal differences occasioned factionalism, here the rivalry of those who proclaim Christ in a jealous . . . spirit seems to be personal. 19: Whether deliverance here means ultimate salvation or only release from prison is uncertain; as vv. 20,25-26 show, Paul views both freedom and execution as possible outcomes of his situation. 21: See Gal.2.20. 22: Death is gain for it will make Paul's union with Christ even closer (v. 23). Here Paul views the state of the Christian between his death and the Parousia as superior to life in the world. This view does not contradict, but rather complements the futuristic resurrection hope expressed in 3.21. 28: Opponents: in 3.1-11 they are "Judaizers," that is, Christians who advocated the observance of Jewish Law by Christians; here they are outsiders, pagans who denied the religious hopes and contentions of Christians, or scorned Christians for their way of life.

2.1-11: Call to unity and humility. Except for what appears to be a minor disagreement mentioned in 4.2, the church of Philippi seems to have been an unusually harmonious con-

6 Jesus.<sup>f</sup> For the divine nature was his 7 from the first; yet he did not think to 8 snatch at equality with God,<sup>g</sup> but made 9 himself nothing, assuming the nature
 10 of a slave. Bearing the human likeness,
 11 revealed in human shape, he humbled
 12 himself, and in obedience accepted
 13 even death—death on a cross. There-14 fore God raised him to the heights and 15 bestowed on him the name above all 16 names, that at the name of Jesus every 17 knee should bow—in heaven, on earth,
 18 and in the depths—and every tongue 19 confess, 'Jesus Christ is Lord', to the 20 glory of God the Father.
 21 So you too, my friends, must be 22 obedient, as always; even more, now
 23 that I am away, than when I was with 24 you. You must work out your own 25 salvation in fear and trembling; for it is 26 God who works in you, inspiring both
 27 the will and the deed, for his own 28 chosen purpose.
 29 Do all you have to do without com-
 30 plaint or wrangling. Show yourselves
 31 guileless and above reproach, faultless 32 children of God in a warped and 33 crooked generation, in which you 34 shine<sup>h</sup> like stars in a dark world<sup>i</sup> and 35 proffer the world of life.<sup>j</sup> Thus you will 36 be my pride on the Day of Christ, proof 37 that I did not run my race in vain, or 38 work in vain. But if my life-blood is to 39 crown that sacrifice which is the offer-
 40 ing up of your faith, I am glad of it,
 41 and I share my gladness with you all.

Rejoice, you no less than I, and let us share our joy. 18

I HOPE (UNDER THE LORD JESUS) TO SEND 19
 Timothy to you soon; it will cheer me to hear news of you. There is no one else 20 here who sees things as I do, and takes<sup>k</sup>
 a genuine interest in your concerns;
 they are all bent on their own ends, not 21
 on the cause of Christ Jesus. But 22 Timothy's record is known to you: you know that he has been at my side in the service of the Gospel like a son working under his father. Timothy, then, 23
 I hope to send as soon as ever I can see how things are going with me; and I 24 am confident, under the Lord, that I shall myself be coming before long.

I feel also I must send our brother 25 Epaphroditus, my fellow-worker and comrade, whom you commissioned to minister to my needs. He has been miss- 26 ing all of you sadly, and has been distressed that you heard he was ill.
 (He was indeed dangerously ill, but 27
 God was merciful to him, and merciful
 no less to me, to spare me sorrow upon sorrow.) For this reason I am all the 28 more eager to send him, to give you the happiness of seeing him again, and to relieve my sorrow. Welcome him then 29

<sup>f</sup> Or Have that bearing towards one another which was also found in Christ Jesus.

<sup>g</sup> Or yet he did not prize his equality with God.

<sup>h</sup> Or ... generation. Shine out among them ...

<sup>i</sup> Or in the firmament.

<sup>j</sup> Or as the very principle of its life.

<sup>k</sup> Or no one else here like him, who takes ...

gregation. The tone here suggests not the presence of factions, but the apostle's encouragement of a healthy community spirit. 6-11: In the view of most scholars, Paul has here incorporated into his letter an ancient Christian hymn. The hymn exalts the saving work of Christ. But because it speaks of a Christ who made himself nothing (v. 7) and humbled himself (v. 8), Paul quotes it to set forth Christ as the primary example of the humility which he here urges upon the Philippians. The hymn consists of two strophes, vv. 6-8 and 9-11; the words death on a cross (v. 8) were probably added by Paul. The first strophe presents a downward movement, from heavenly preexistence to human life; the second describes the exaltation of the obedient Jesus. 6: The alternative translation, yet he did not prize his equality with God (see Tfn. g), fits the first part of the verse best. 7: Made himself nothing (lit. emptied himself): instead of clinging to a divine state of existence he assumed that of a slave in the incarnation. 8: The phrases bearing the human likeness and revealed in human shape are probably intended to suggest that, while truly a man, he was something more, i.e. the preexistent being who possessed "the divine nature ... from the first" (v. 6). 9: Raised him to the heights: a contrast to the "he humbled himself" of v. 8. The name above all names: the title "Lord." 10-11: Heaven, earth, the depths probably reflect a view of a three-tiered universe ruled by angelic spirits who join in confessing Jesus' lordship.

2.12-18: The work of salvation. 12-13: Fear and trembling: a reverential attitude, since the work of salvation with which they must cooperate is actually the work of God. 17: Paul again speaks of the possibility of his execution. In relation to the Philippians' faith, which is spoken of as a sacrificial gift (see Rom.12.1), his own blood, shed in execution, would be like the drink-offering poured out to crown that sacrifice, as in Exod.29.40; Num.28.7. Through it all Paul hopes he will live to see the Day of Christ, i.e. the Second Coming (v. 16).

2.19-3.1a: Timothy and Epaphroditus. 19: Timothy: see 1 Cor.16.10 n. 29: See 1 Cor.16.18.

in the fellowship of the Lord with wholehearted delight. You should honour men like him; in Christ's cause he came near to death, risking his life to render me the service you could not give.

3 And now, friends, farewell; I wish you joy in the Lord.

TO REPEAT WHAT I HAVE WRITTEN TO you before is no trouble to me, and it is a safeguard for you. Beware of those dogs and their malpractices. Beware of those who insist on mutilation—'circumcision' I will not call it; we are the circumcised, we whose worship is spiritual,<sup>l</sup> whose pride is in Christ Jesus, and who put no confidence in anything external. Not that I am without grounds myself even for confidence of that kind. If anyone thinks to base his claims on externals, I could make a stronger case for myself: circumcised on my eighth day, Israelite by race, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew born and bred;<sup>m</sup> in my attitude to the law, a Pharisee; in pious zeal, a persecutor of the church; in legal rectitude, faultless. But all such assets I have written off because of Christ. I would say more: I count everything sheer loss, because all is far outweighed by the gain of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord, for whose sake I did in fact lose everything. I count it so much garbage,<sup>n</sup> for the sake of gaining Christ and finding myself incorporate in him, with no righteousness of my own, no legal rectitude, but the righteousness which comes<sup>o</sup> from faith in Christ, given by God in response to faith. All I care for is to know Christ, to experience the power of his resurrection, and to share his sufferings, in growing conformity with his death, if only I may finally arrive at the resurrection from the dead.

It is not to be thought that I have already achieved all this. I have not yet reached perfection, but I press on, hoping to take hold of that for which Christ once took hold of me. My friends, I do not reckon myself to have got hold of it yet. All I can say is this: forgetting what is behind me, and reaching out for that which lies ahead, I press towards the goal to win the prize which is God's call to the life above, in Christ Jesus.

Let us then keep to this way of thinking, those of us who are mature. If there is any point on which you think differently, this also God will make plain to you. Only let our conduct be consistent with the level we have already reached.

Agree together, my friends, to follow my example. You have us for a model; watch those whose way of life conforms to it. For, as I have often told you, and now tell you with tears in my eyes, there

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses read who worship God in the spirit; others read who worship by the Spirit of God.

<sup>m</sup> Or a Hebrew-speaking Jew of a Hebrew-speaking family.

<sup>n</sup> Or dung.

<sup>o</sup> Or and in him finding that, though I have no righteousness of my own, no legal rectitude, I have the righteousness which comes . . .

30: Epaphroditus' risking his life may refer to the illness which he contracted while on his mission to Paul. 3.1a: The farewell here, taken with the quite different tone of the ensuing section, suggests that one letter breaks off here and the following is a fragment of another letter.

3.1b-4.1: Warning against false teachers. See note on 3.1a. Here Paul's tone is sharp, as he speaks of opponents who threaten the faith of the Philippians. 2: Dogs was a Jewish term of contempt for pagans, applied here to those who disturb the peace of the church. These may be Jewish Christian missionaries, as their insistence on circumcision suggests. Paul contends that physical circumcision is only mutilation. 3: See Jer.4.4; Rom.2.28-29. 4-8: Paul could cite grounds . . . for confidence similar to his opponents', but he regards it all as worthless. 5: Pharisee: see Mt.3.7 n. 6: Persecutor: see Acts 8.3; 9.1; Gal.1.13; 2.23. 9: If in legal rectitude he could claim to have been faultless (v. 6), Paul's conversion did not arise merely from despair at fulfilling the law as is sometimes supposed. But he now believes that righteousness, far from being earned, can only be the gift which God gives to all who believe in Christ. 10: To know Christ is to have not merely intellectual knowledge but to experience his power and to be united with him by sharing his sufferings. 12-13: Paul's statement that he has not already achieved all this or yet reached perfection may indicate that the false teachers he is opposing have claimed such achievement for themselves. If so, their errors may have included not only Judaizing practices but Gnostic views such as that expressed in 2 Tim.2.18. "Judaizing" alludes to a tendency on the part of Christians to imitate a legalistic Judaism. Gnostics believed themselves to be in possession of a supernatural revelation by which they escaped the bondage of evil, material existence. 15-16: Probably these verses are ironic, directed against those who thought they had already achieved perfection. 17: My example: see 1 Cor.11.1. 18-19: Enemies of the cross: Paul's

- are many whose way of life makes them
 19 enemies of the cross of Christ. They are heading for destruction, appetite is their god, and they glory in their shame. Their minds are set on earthly things.
 20 We, by contrast, are citizens of heaven, and from heaven we expect our deliverer to come, the Lord Jesus Christ.
 21 He will transfigure the body belonging to our humble state, and give it a form like that of his own resplendent body, by the very power which enables him to make all things subject to himself.
 4 Therefore, my friends, beloved friends whom I long for, my joy, my crown, stand thus firm in the Lord, my beloved!
 2 I beg Euodia, and I beg Syntyche, to agree together in the Lord's fellowship.
 3 Yes, and you too, my loyal comrade, I ask you to help these women, who shared my struggles in the cause of the Gospel, with Clement and my other fellow-workers, whose<sup>p</sup> names are in the roll of the living.
 4 Farewell; I wish you all joy in the Lord. I will say it again: all joy be yours.
 5 Let your magnanimity be manifest to all.
 6 The Lord is near; have no anxiety, but in everything make your requests known to God in prayer and petition
 7 with thanksgiving. Then the peace of God, which is beyond our utmost understanding,<sup>q</sup> will keep guard over your hearts and your thoughts, in Christ Jesus.
 8 And now, my friends, all that is true, all that is noble, all that is just and pure, all that is lovable and gracious,<sup>r</sup> whatever is excellent and admirable—fill all your thoughts with these things.

The lessons I taught you, the tradi- 9
 tion I have passed on, all that you heard me say or saw me do, put into practice; and the God of peace will be with you.

IT IS A GREAT JOY TO ME, IN THE LORD, 10
 that after so long your care for me has now blossomed afresh. You did care about me before for that matter; it was opportunity that you lacked. Not that 11
 I am alluding to want, for I have learned to find resources in myself whatever my circumstances. I know what it is to be 12 brought low, and I know what it is to have plenty. I have been very thoroughly initiated into the human lot with all its ups and downs—fullness and hunger, plenty and want. I have 13 strength for anything through him who gives me power. But it was kind of you 14 to share the burden of my troubles.

As you know yourselves, Philippians, 15
 in the early days of my mission, when I set out from Macedonia, you alone of all our congregations were my partners in payments and receipts; for even at 16 Thessalonica you contributed to my needs, not once but twice over. Do not 17 think I set my heart upon the gift; all I care for is the profit accruing to you. However, here I give you my receipt 18 for everything—for more than every-thing; I am paid in full, now that I have received from Epaphroditus what you sent. It is a fragrant offering, an accept- 19 able sacrifice, pleasing to God. And my God will supply all your wants out of the magnificence of his riches in invective is too general (appetite . . . shame) for one to deduce what practices are being attacked. 4.2-9: Final exhortations. 3: Comrade: this translates the Gk. word syzygos, which can serve as, and may here be, a proper name. The OT concept of a roll of the living from which names were struck out at the time of death (see Exod.32.32; Ps.69.28) is transformed; the roll becomes a list of those who are destined to everlasting life (see Rev.3.5; 13.8). 6: The Lord is near: an allusion to the Parousia; see 1 Th.2.19 n.

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses read my fellow-workers, and the others whose . . .

<sup>q</sup> Or of far more worth than human reasoning.

<sup>r</sup> Or of good repute.

4.10-20: Thanks for the Philippians' gift; see Introduction. 10-14: The main reason for Paul's joy about the gift is its evidence of the Philippians' devotion to him. Without being ungracious, he states that he is indifferent to material wants. 11-13: To find resources in myself: lit. to be self-sufficient. This ideal of Greek philosophy is realized by Paul, not by his own efforts, but through God who gives him power (v. 13). 15: Through commercial terms, Paul tells the Philippians that their support of him is payment for the spiritual goods they received through his ministry. You alone: only from the Philippians did he accept financial aid. 18: By receipt for everything, Paul acknowledges that he has been paid in full—possibly a delicate indication that he does not expect to receive anything more from them. The gift, now described in terms of OT sacrifice, is a fragrant offering (see Lev.1.9), an acceptable sacrifice (see Lev.1.3).

- 20 Christ Jesus. To our God and Father do all God's people here, particularly be glory for endless ages! Amen. those who belong to the imperial 21 Give my greetings, in the fellowship establishment.
 of Christ Jesus, to each one of God's The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ 23 people. The brothers who are now with be with your spirit.
 22 me send their greetings to you, and so

---

4.21–23: Final greetings. 22: The imperial establishment: lit. Caesar's household; see Introduction.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE COLOSSIANS

Colossae was a city of the Roman province of Asia, east of Ephesus and near Laodicea and Hierapolis. It had been evangelized by Epaphras (see 1.7). The unity, stability, and survival of the church were threatened by doctrinal diversity, especially by a faction which had blended together with the Christian gospel some pagan and marginal Jewish elements. This amalgam detracted from the uniqueness and supremacy of Christ through the worship of heavenly beings. The principal aim of Colossians is to assert the preeminence of Christ.

Paul's authorship of Colossians is sometimes questioned because of the differences in style, vocabulary, and doctrine between it and his undisputed letters. Those who uphold its authenticity explain these differences as due to the new situation to which he addresses himself and to the maturing of his thought. If authentic, Colossians probably dates from the Roman imprisonment of Paul (61–63 A.D.). The certainly genuine Letter to Philemon has several points of contact with Colossians (see Introduction to Philemon).

---

The centre of Christian belief

1 FROM PAUL, APOSTLE OF CHRIST JESUS
2 commissioned by the will of God,
3 and our colleague Timothy, to 4 God's people at Colossae, brothers in 5 the faith, incorporate in Christ.

Grace to you and peace from God
our Father.

3 In all our prayers to God, the Father
4 of our Lord Jesus Christ, we thank him
5 for you, because we have heard of the 6 faith you hold in Christ Jesus, and the 7 love you bear towards all God's people.
8 Both spring from the hope stored up 9 for you in heaven—that hope of which 10 you learned when the message of the 11 true Gospel first came to you. In the 12 same way it is coming to men the whole
13 world over; everywhere it is growing
14 and bearing fruit as it does among you, 15 and has done since the day when you 16 heard of the graciousness of God and 17 recognized it for what in truth it is. You 18 were taught this by Epaphras, our dear 19 fellow-servant, a trusted worker for 20 Christ on our<sup>a</sup> behalf, and it is he who has brought us the news of your God-given love.<sup>b</sup>

9 For this reason, ever since the day
10 we heard of it, we have not ceased to 11 pray for you. We ask God that you 12 may receive from him all wisdom and 13 spiritual understanding for full insight
14 into his will, so that your manner of life
15 may be worthy of the Lord and entirely 16 pleasing to him. We pray that you may 17 bear fruit in active goodness of every 18 kind, and grow in the knowledge of 19 God. May he strengthen you, in his 20 glorious might, with ample power to meet whatever comes with fortitude, patience, and joy; and to give thanks<sup>c</sup>
to the Father who has made you fit to share the heritage of God's people in the realm of light,

He rescued us from the domain of darkness and brought us away into the kingdom of his dear Son, in whom our release is secured and our sins forgiven.
He is the image of the invisible God;

<sup>a</sup> Some witnesses read your.

<sup>b</sup> Or your love within the fellowship of the Spirit.

<sup>c</sup> Or with fortitude and patience, and to give joyful thanks . . .

---

1.3–14: Thanksgiving and prayer. 9–10: True wisdom and understanding produce a worthy manner of life. Probably there is an implied contrast with the false wisdom which involved the worship of spiritual powers (see 1.16 n.). 12–14: In the OT the heritage of God's people was Palestine. Here the heritage is in the realm of light, i.e. a share in Christ's kingdom. As Israel was delivered in the Exodus from Egypt, so too the Christians have been rescued. The words release (lit. redemption), heritage, and rescued draw upon the Exodus tradition to interpret Christian experience as release from the domain of darkness, i.e. of evil and evil powers.

1.15–20: A hymn to Christ. Most scholars agree that these verses are taken over and modified by Paul from an earlier hymn. Hence, many currents of thought, even pagan, are suggested as lying behind the hymn. The dominant source of its themes, however, is probably the OT and noncanonical Jewish Wisdom literature. Israel's developed portrait of divine Wisdom (see Prov.8.22–31; Ecclus.24.1–22) is the forerunner of the portrayal of Christ as creator and redeemer. 15: The image of the invisible God: see Wis.7.26. His is the primacy over all created his is the primacy over<sup>d</sup> all created 16 things. In him everything in heaven and on earth was created, not only things visible but also the invisible orders of thrones, sovereignties, authorities, and powers: the whole universe has been 17 created through him and for him. And he exists before everything, and all 18 things are held together in him. He is, moreover, the head of the body, the church. He is its origin, the first to return from the dead, to be in all things 19 alone supreme. For in him the complete being of God, by God's own 20 choice, came to dwell. Through him

 God chose to reconcile the whole universe to himself, making peace through the shedding of his blood upon the cross—to reconcile all things, whether on earth or in heaven, through him alone.

21 Formerly you were yourselves estranged from God; you were his enemies in heart and mind, and your 22 deeds were evil. But now by Christ's death in his body of flesh and blood
 God has reconciled you to himself, so that he may present you before himself 23 innocent in his sight. Only you must continue in your faith, firm on your foundations, never to be dislodged
 from the hope offered in the gospel which you heard. This is the gospel which has been proclaimed in the whole creation under heaven; and I, Paul,

 have become its minister.

It is now my happiness to suffer for 24
 you. This is my way of helping to complete, in my poor human flesh, the full tale of Christ's afflictions still to be endured, for the sake of his body which is the church. I became its servant by 25 virtue of the task assigned to me by God for your benefit: to deliver his message in full; to announce the secret hid- 26
 den for long ages and through many generations, but now disclosed to God's people, to whom it was his will to make 27
 it known—to make known how rich
 and glorious it is among all nations.
 The secret is this: Christ in<sup>e</sup> you, the hope of a glory to come.

He it is whom we proclaim. We ad- 28
 monish everyone without distinction,
 we instruct everyone in all the ways of wisdom, so as to present each one of you as a mature member of Christ's body. To this end I am toiling stren- 29
 uously with all the energy and power of Christ at work in me. For I want you 2
 to know how strenuous are my exertions for you and the Laodiceans and all who have never set eyes on me. I 2 want them to continue in good heart and in the unity of love, and to come to the full wealth of conviction which understanding brings, and grasp God's

<sup>d</sup> Or image of the invisible God, born before . . .
<sup>e</sup> Or among.

things: see Prov.8.22. 16: Since all else was created through him (see Wis.7.22) and for him, he is superior to all, as the source and end of their being. Invisible orders: in the religious currents of the time, it was believed that many divine beings (thrones, sovereignties, authorities, and powers) existed; in some thought, these were represented as angelic beings (compare 1 Cor. 2.6-8 n.). The passage subordinates such spiritual beings to Christ, for they too are created things (v. 15). 18: In the earlier Pauline letters Christ and Christians form one body (see 1 Cor.12.12); in Col. and Eph. a distinction is made between the body (the church) and its head (Christ). Also distinctive is the fact that here church means the entire Christian community, not simply a local church as in the earlier Pauline usage. The first to return from the dead: lit. the firstborn from the dead. 19: The complete being of God: lit. the entire fullness. This has been interpreted by some scholars as a rebuttal of the notion that God's attributes were distributed among many angelic beings who mediate between God and man. Others doubt that that concept was current so early as to have called forth a rebuttal from Paul. 20: The whole universe is understood as having been estranged from God, and rebellious; this estrangement has been overcome by the reconciliation effected by the death of Christ (the shedding of his blood upon the cross).

1.21-23: The reconciled community. The universal reconciliation (1.20) is here applied to the local church. 22: Without blemish: the phrase draws on OT sacrificial requirements (Exod.12.5; Lev.9.3; and often).

1.24-2.5: The apostle's suffering and dedication. 24: The expression Christ's afflictions still to be endured does not imply a lack in sufferings of the historical Jesus; rather, these afflictions are to be borne by the apostle and are "Christ's" because they will be endured for the sake of his body, i.e. the church. The passage also reflects the apocalyptic notion that God's victory over evil would be preceded by a period of trial and suffering; see Rev.6.11; 1 Th.3.3 n. 2.1: Laodiceans: neighbors of the Colossians. 3: The notion that these treasures lie hidden in Christ is possibly derived from Prov.2.3-5, which likens wisdom to buried treasure; see also Isa.45.3.

3 secret. That secret is Christ himself; in 4 him lie hidden all God's treasures of 5 wisdom and knowledge. I tell you this 6 to save you from being talked<sup>f</sup> into error
 7 by specious arguments. For though ab-
 8 sent in body, I am with you in spirit,
 9 and rejoice to see your orderly array 10 and the firm front which your faith in 11 Christ presents.

12 THEREFORE, SINCE JESUS WAS DELIVERED
 13 to you as Christ and Lord, live your 14 lives in union with him. Be rooted in 15 him; be built in him; be consolidated 16 in the faith you were taught;<sup>g</sup> let your 17 hearts overflow with thankfulness. Be 18 on your guard; do not let your minds
 19 be captured by hollow and delusive
 20 speculations, based on traditions of 21 man-made teaching and centred on the 22 elemental spirits of the universe<sup>h</sup> and 23 not on Christ.

24 For it is in Christ that the complete
 25 being of the Godhead dwells embodied,<sup>i</sup> 26 and in him you have been brought to 27 completion. Every power and authority 28 in the universe is subject to him as 29 Head. In him also you were circum-
 30 cised, not in a physical sense, but by 31 being divested of the lower nature;
 32 this is Christ's way of circumcision.

33 For in baptism<sup>j</sup> you were buried with 34 him, in baptism also you were raised to 35 life with him through your faith in the 36 active power of God who raised him
 37 from the dead. And although you were 38 dead because of your sins and because 39 you were morally uncircumcised, he 40 has made you alive with Christ. For 41 he has forgiven us all our sins; he has 42 cancelled the bond which pledged us
 43 to the decrees of the law. It stood 44 against us, but he has set it aside, nail-45 ing it to the cross. On that cross he 46 discarded the cosmic powers and 47 authorities like a garment; he made a 48 public spectacle of them and led them<sup>k</sup>
 49 as captives in his triumphal procession.

16 ALLOW NO ONE THEREFORE TO TAKE YOU
 17 to task about what you eat or drink, or 18 over the observance of festival, new 19 moon, or sabbath. These are no more 20 than a shadow of what was to come;
 21 the solid reality is Christ's. You are not 22 to be disqualified by the decision of 23 people who go in for self-mortification 24 and angel-worship, and try to enter into 25 some vision of their own. Such people, 26 bursting with the futile conceit of 27 worldly minds, lose hold upon the 28 Head; yet it is from the Head that the 29 whole body, with all its joints and liga-30 ments, receives its supplies, and thus 31 knit together grows according to God's 32 design.

33 Did you not die with Christ and pass 34 beyond reach of the elemental spirits of 35 the universe<sup>l</sup>? Then why behave as 36 though you were still living the life of 37 the world? Why let people dictate to 38 you: 'Do not handle this, do not taste 39 that, do not touch the other'<sup>m</sup>—all of 40 them things that must perish as soon
 41 as they are used? That is to follow
 42 merely human injunctions and teaching.
 43 True, it has an air of wisdom, with its 44 forced piety, its self-mortification, and 45 its severity to the body; but it is of no
 46 use at all in combating sensuality.

47 Were you not raised to life with 48 Christ? Then aspire to the realm above,
 49 where Christ is, seated at the right hand
 50 of God, and let your thoughts dwell on 51 that higher realm, not on this earthly 52 life. I repeat, you died; and now your 53 life lies hidden with Christ in God.

<sup>f</sup> Or What I mean is this: no one must talk you . . .

<sup>g</sup> Or by your faith, as you were taught.

<sup>h</sup> Or the elements of the natural world, or elementary ideas belonging to this world.

<sup>i</sup> Or corporately.

<sup>j</sup> Or . . . nature, in the very circumcision of Christ himself; for in baptism . . .

<sup>k</sup> Or he stripped himself of his physical body, and thereby boldly made a spectacle of the cosmic powers and authorities, and led them . . .; or he despoiled the cosmic powers and authorities, and boldly made a spectacle of them, leading them . . .

<sup>l</sup> Or the elements of the natural world, or elementary ideas belonging to this world.

2.6-23: Warning against false teaching. 8: The elemental spirits of the universe: see v. 20; 1 Cor. 2.6-8 n.; Gal. 4.3,9. 11-12: Beyond the partial stripping off of flesh in circumcision, baptism causes one to be totally divested of the lower nature (lit. the body of flesh). 15: Since the angelic powers were thought to be the guardians of the Law (compare Gal. 3.19), its nullification means the end of their dominion. Captives were paraded in a public victory celebration; compare Eph. 4.8. 16-18: The false teaching specified in these verses includes both Jewish and pagan religious practices. To enter into some vision probably refers to the experience claimed in some pagan mystery cults.

3.1-17: The demands of life in Christ. 3: Died: abandoned your former life; compare

4 When Christ, who is our life, is manifested, then you too will be manifested with him in glory.
 5 Then put to death those parts of you which belong to the earth—fornication, indecency, lust, foul cravings, and the ruthless greed which is nothing less than idolatry. Because of these, God's dreadful judgement is impending; and in the life you once lived these are the ways you yourselves followed. But now you must yourselves lay aside all anger, passion, malice, cursing, filthy talk—
 9 have done with them! Stop lying to one another, now that you have discarded the old nature with its deeds and have put on the new nature, which is being constantly renewed in the image of its Creator and brought to know God.
 11 There is no question here of Greek and Jew, circumcised and uncircumcised, barbarian, Scythian, slave and freeman; but Christ is all, and is in all.

12 Then put on the garments that suit God's chosen people, his own, his beloved: compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness, patience. Be forbearing with one another, and forgiving, where any of you has cause for complaint: you must forgive as the Lord forgave you.
 14 To crown all, there must be love, to bind all together and complete the whole. Let Christ's peace be arbiter in your hearts; to this peace you were called as members of a single body.
 16 And be filled with gratitude. Let the message of Christ dwell among you in all its richness. Instruct and admonish each other with the utmost wisdom. Sing thankfully in your hearts to God,<sup>m</sup> with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs. Whatever you are doing, whether you speak or act, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him.

18 WIVES, BE SUBJECT TO YOUR HUSBANDS;

that is your Christian duty. Husbands, 19 love your wives and do not be harsh with them. Children, obey your parents 20 in everything, for that is pleasing to God and is the Christian way. Fathers, do 21 not exasperate your children, for fear they grow disheartened. Slaves, give 22 entire obedience to your earthly masters, not merely with an outward show of service, to curry favour with men, but with single-mindedness, out of reverence for the Lord. Whatever 23 you are doing, put your whole heart into it, as if you were doing it for the Lord and not for men, knowing that 24 there is a Master who will give you your heritage as a reward for your service. Christ is the Master whose slaves you must be. Dishonesty will 25 be requited, and he has no favourites. Masters, be just and fair to your slaves, 4 knowing that you too have a Master in heaven.

Persevere in prayer, with mind awake 2 and thankful heart; and include a 3 prayer for us, that God may give us an opening for preaching, to tell the secret of Christ; that indeed is why I am now in prison. Pray that I may make the 4 secret plain, as it is my duty to do.

Behave wisely towards those outside 5 your own number; use the present opportunity to the full. Let your conversation be always gracious, and never insipid; study how best to talk with each person you meet.

YOU WILL HEAR ALL ABOUT MY AFFAIRS 7 from Tychicus, our dear brother and trustworthy helper and fellow-servant in the Lord's work. I am sending him 8 to you on purpose to let you know all about us and to put fresh heart into you. With him comes Onesimus, our trust- 9 worthy and dear brother, who is one of

m Some witnesses read the Lord.

Rom.6.1–11. 4: Although Paul emphasizes the present sharing in Christ's risen life, he nevertheless continues to look forward to the Parousia (see 1 Th.2.19 n.). 5: Paradoxically, those who are in Christ have died (v. 3) but they must put to death (give up completely) what is earthly in them. 10: In the image: see Gen.1.26–27. 11: Barbarian: non-Greek and hence—like a Scythian—uncivilized.

3.18–4.1: Christian domestic ethics. These counsels are paralleled by the lists of household virtues found in both pagan and Jewish literature. Paul gives them a Christian tone by his additions, such as out of reverence for the Lord (v. 22).

4.2–18: Final admonition, greetings, and blessing. Among those greeted, note especially Tychicus (v. 7), Onesimus (v. 9), and Archippus (v. 17); see Philem.1 and Introduction to Philem.

yourselves. They will tell you all the news here.
 10 Aristarchus, Christ's captive like myself, sends his greetings; so does Mark, the cousin of Barnabas (you have had instructions about him; if he comes, 11 make him welcome), and Jesus Justus.
 Of the Jewish Christians, these are the only ones who work with me for the kingdom of God, and they have been 12 a great comfort to me. Greetings from Epaphras, servant of Christ, who is one of yourselves. He prays hard for you all the time, that you may stand fast, ripe
 in conviction<sup>n</sup> and wholly devoted to 13 doing God's will. For I can vouch for him, that he works tirelessly for you and the people at Laodicea and Hiera-polis. Greetings to you from our dear 14 friend Luke, the doctor, and from Demas. Give our greetings to the 15 brothers at Laodicea, and Nympha and the congregation at her house.<sup>o</sup> And 16

 when this letter is read among you, see that it is also read to the congregation
 at Laodicea, and that you in return read the one from Laodicea. This 17 special word to Archippus: 'Attend to the duty entrusted to you in the Lord's service, and discharge it to the full.'

This greeting is in my own hand— 18
 PAUL. Remember I am in prison. God's grace be with you.

n Or stand fast, mature and complete . . .

o Some witnesses read Nymphas and the congregation at his house.

THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS

According to Acts 17.1–18.5, Paul came to Thessalonica (modern Salonica) with Silas and Timothy during his second missionary journey, after leaving Philippi. His stay of three weeks was spent in preaching the messiahship of Jesus in the local synagogue. Some Jews and many “God-fearing” Gentiles were converted. Jews precipitated a riot, and charged the missionaries with acting against the laws of the emperor. Consequently, the Christians sent Paul and Silas by night to the neighboring town of Berea. Success in preaching there prompted the Jews of Thessalonica to come and create a disturbance similar to that made in their own city, and for safety’s sake Paul was constrained to leave alone for Athens. He next went to Corinth where he was joined by Silas and Timothy.

This picture does not correspond with the one found in the letter itself. The letter presupposes a much longer stay at Thessalonica (2.7–9; see Phil.4.16) and a church predominantly composed of converts from paganism (1.9); the letter does not speak of any persecution suffered by Paul in the city; it states that it was from Athens that Paul sent Timothy back to Thessalonica (3.1). The letter was probably written from Corinth just after Timothy’s completion of his mission (3.6). While at Corinth (Acts 18.12) Paul was brought before the tribunal of the Roman Gallio, whose term as proconsul was around 51–52 A.D.; if that information is reliable 1 Thessalonians, written around 51 A.D., is the first of the Pauline epistles.

The letter deals primarily with questions concerning the Parousia (the future coming of Christ): its time (e.g. 5.1–2), the suffering of Christians in relation to it (e.g. 3.3), and the destiny of those who die in advance of its arrival (e.g. 4.13–14).

Hope and discipline

1 FROM PAUL, SILVANUS, AND TIMOTHY to the congregation of Thessalonians who belong to God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Grace to you and peace.

2 We always thank God for you all, and mention you in our prayers continually. We call to mind, before our God and Father, how your faith has shown itself in action, your love in labour, and your hope of our Lord Jesus Christ in fortitude. We are certain, brothers beloved by God, that he has chosen you and that<sup>a</sup> when we brought you the Gospel, we brought it not in mere words but in the power of the Holy Spirit, and with strong conviction, as you know well. That is the kind of men we were at Thessalonica, and it was for your sake.

And you, in your turn, followed the 6 example set by us and by the Lord; the welcome you gave the message meant grave suffering for you, yet you rejoiced 7 in the Holy Spirit; thus you have become a model for all believers in Macedonia and in Achaia. From Thes- 8 salonica the word of the Lord rang out; and not in Macedonia and Achaia alone, but everywhere your faith in God has reached men’s ears. No words of ours are needed, for they themselves 9 spread the news of our visit to you and its effect: how you turned from idols, to be servants of the living and true God, and to wait expectantly for the 10 appearance from heaven of his Son Jesus, whom he raised from the dead, Jesus our deliverer from the terrors of judgement to come.

<sup>a</sup> Or . . . chosen you, because . . .

1.1: Greeting. Silvanus is the Latinized form of the name “Silas” used in Acts, for example, Acts 15.39. Timothy: see 1 Cor.16.10 n., Acts 16.1–3. Of all his coworkers Timothy is the one most frequently mentioned by Paul. The letter is written in the name of all three, yet Paul is clearly the principal writer; see 3.5; 5.27. Grace . . . peace: see Rom.1.7 n.

1.2–10: Thanksgiving for a fruitful ministry. 5: The power of the Holy Spirit may refer not only to the force inherent in the apostolic preaching, but also to certain miracles accompanying it; see Rom.15.19. 6: Paul comforts the Thessalonians in their grave suffering by the example set by Paul and Jesus. 7: Macedonia: the Roman province in northern Greece of which Thessalonica was the capital. Achaia: the province in southern Greece from which Paul writes. 10: The expectation of the early return of the resurrected Jesus is a dominant motif in the letter. Jesus’ resurrection gives assurance of his appearance from heaven.

2 You know for yourselves, brothers, that our visit to you was not fruitless.
 2 Far from it; after all the injury and outrage which to your knowledge we had suffered at Philippi, we declared the gospel of God to you frankly and fearlessly, by the help of our God. A hard
 3 struggle it was. Indeed, the appeal we make never springs from error or base motive; there is no attempt to deceive;
 4 but God has approved us as fit to be entrusted with the Gospel, and on those terms we speak. We do not curry favour with men; we seek only the favour of God, who is continually testing our 5 hearts. Our words have never been flattering words, as you have cause to know; nor, as God is our witness, have 6 they ever been a cloak for greed. We have never sought honour from men, from you or from anyone else, although
 7 as Christ's own envoys we might have made our weight felt; but we were as gentle with you as a nurse caring fondly
 8 for her children. With such yearning love we chose to impart to you not only the gospel of God but our very selves,
 9 so dear had you become to us. Remember, brothers, how we toiled and drudged. We worked for a living night and day, rather than be a burden to anyone, while we proclaimed before you
 10 the good news of God. We call you to witness, yes and God himself, how devout and just and blameless was our behaviour towards 11 you who are believers. As you well know, we dealt with you one by one, as a father deals with his children, appealing to you by encouragement, as well as by solemn injunctions, to live 12 lives worthy of the God who calls you into his kingdom and glory.

This is why we thank God continually, because when we handed on God's message, you received it, not as the word of men, but as what it truly is, the very word of God at<sup>b</sup> work in you who hold the faith. You have fared 14 like the congregations in Judaea, God's people in Christ Jesus. You have been treated by your countrymen as they are treated by the Jews, who killed the Lord
 15 Jesus and the prophets<sup>c</sup> and drove us out, the Jews who are heedless of God's will and enemies of their fellow-men, hindering us from speaking to the 16 Gentiles to lead them to salvation. All this time they have been making up the full measure of their guilt, and now retribution has overtaken them for good and all.<sup>d</sup>

MY FRIENDS, WHEN FOR A SHORT SPELL 17 you were lost to us—lost to sight, not to our hearts—we were exceedingly anxious to see you again. So we did 18 propose to come to Thessalonica—I, Paul, more than once—but Satan thwarted us. For after all, what hope 19 or joy or crown of pride is there for us, what indeed but you, when we stand before our Lord Jesus at his coming?
 20 It is you who are indeed our glory and our joy.

So when we could bear it no longer, 3

<sup>b</sup> Or word of God who is at . . .

<sup>c</sup> Some witnesses read their own prophets.

<sup>d</sup> Or now at last retribution has overtaken them.

2.1–12: Defense of the missionaries' conduct. 2: We suffered at Philippi: see Acts 16.19–24. 3–6: Paul and his companions were not like the itinerant pagan preachers; the latter were frequently mercenary charlatans who traded on flattery and deceit. 9: Unlike the charlatans (vv. 3–6 n.), it was Paul's practice not to accept support from the churches which he founded (see 1 Cor.9.3–18). Philippi was the exception (see Phil.4.15–16); Paul accepted their freely offered gifts, abstaining from any demand of support.

2.13–16: Consequences of accepting the Gospel. The persecution of the Thessalonian church is compared to that of the churches of Judaea by the Jews. 14–16: Some scholars regard these verses as an addition from a much later time, containing a reference to the Roman destruction of the Temple in 70 A.D. 16: Full measure of their guilt: the concept is that divine punishment is deferred until the sins which call it forth have reached their climax. Swift chastisement was a sign of mercy; see 2 Macc.6.14–15. The retribution which has overtaken the Jews is probably their obduracy in unbelief. For a similar view of moral evil as the punishment for previous sin, see Rom.1.18,24,26,28.

2.17–3.13: Paul's concern for the church. 17–18: Paul's mention of his repeated desire to return to Thessalonica is probably a response to a charge that he had not done so because he feared being caught in the persecution there (2.13–16). Satan: see Mt.4.1 n. The precise circumstances (illness, opposition?) in which Paul sees Satan's activity are not known. 19: His coming: Gk., parousia, ordinarily used of the "coming" of a king on a visit. This is the earliest instance in the NT of the use of parousia for the coming of the resurrected Jesus in glory. Frequent in

we decided to remain alone at Athens,
 2 and sent Timothy, our brother and God's fellow-worker<sup>e</sup> in the service of the gospel of Christ, to encourage you 3 to stand firm for the faith and, under all these hardships, not to be shaken;<sup>f</sup>
 for you know that this is our appointed 4 lot. When we were with you we warned you that we were bound to suffer hardship; and so it has turned out, as you 5 know. And thus it was that when I could bear it no longer, I sent to find out about your faith, fearing that the tempter might have tempted you and my labour might be lost.

6 But now Timothy has just arrived from Thessalonica, bringing good news of your faith and love. He tells us that you always think kindly of us, and are as anxious to see us as we are to see you.
 7 And so in all our difficulties and hardships your faith reassures us about you.
 8 It is the breath of life to us that you stand firm in the Lord. What thanks 9 can we return to God for you? What thanks for all the joy you have brought us, making us rejoice before our God 10 while we pray most earnestly night and day to be allowed to see you again and to mend your faith where it falls short?

11 May our God and Father himself, and our Lord Jesus, bring us direct to 12 you; and may the Lord make your love mount and overflow towards one another and towards all, as our love does 13 towards you. May he make your hearts firm, so that you may stand before our God and Father holy and faultless when our Lord Jesus comes with all those who are his own.

4 AND NOW, MY FRIENDS, WE HAVE ONE thing to beg and pray of you, by our fellowship with the Lord Jesus. We passed on to you the tradition of the way we must live to please God; you are indeed already following it, but we beg you to do so yet more thoroughly.

For you know what orders we gave<sup>2</sup>
 you, in the name of the Lord Jesus.
 This is the will of God, that you should<sup>3</sup>
 be holy: you must abstain from fornication; 4 each one of you must learn to gain mastery over his body, to hallow and honour it, not giving way to lust<sup>5</sup> like the pagans who are ignorant of God; and no man must do his brother<sup>6</sup> wrong in this matter,<sup>g</sup> or invade his rights, because, as we told you before with all emphasis, the Lord punishes all such offences. For God called us to<sup>7</sup> holiness, not to impurity. Anyone<sup>8</sup> therefore who flouts these rules is flouting, not man, but God who bestows
 upon you his Holy Spirit.

About love for our brotherhood you<sup>9</sup> need no words of mine, for you are yourselves taught by God to love one another, and you are in fact practising<sup>10</sup>
 this rule of love towards all your fellow-Christians throughout Macedonia. Yet we appeal to you, brothers, to do better still. Let it be your ambition to keep<sup>11</sup> calm and look after your own business, and to work with your hands, as we ordered you, so that you may command<sup>12</sup>
 the respect of those outside your own number, and at the same time may never be in want.

WE WISH YOU NOT TO REMAIN IN<sup>13</sup> ignorance, brothers, about those who sleep in death; you should not grieve
 like the rest of men, who have no hope.
 We believe that Jesus died and rose<sup>14</sup> again; and so it will be for those who died as Christians; God will bring them to life with Jesus.<sup>h</sup>

<sup>e</sup> Or and fellow-worker for God; one witness has simply and fellow-worker.

<sup>f</sup> Or beguiled away.

<sup>g</sup> Or must overreach his brother in his business (or in lawsuits).

<sup>h</sup> Or will bring them in company with Jesus.

later NT literature, Paul's use of it in the sense here intended is confined to 1 and 2 Th. and 1 Cor. 15.23. 3.3: The hardships are not only necessary to Christian life, but are the inevitable accompaniments of the near approach of the end of time and, thus, constitute our appointed lot. A similar view of pre-Messianic tribulations is found in the Judaism of the time. 5: Tempter: Satan; compare 2.18. 13: All those who are his own: lit. all his holy ones, probably meaning the "angels"; see also Zech.14.5.

4.1-12: An exhortation to Christian living. 4: Body: the Gk. word can also mean "wife." 9: Taught by God: see Jer.31.33-34. 11-12: These injunctions were probably motivated by irresponsibility similar to that described in 2 Th.3.6-11.

4.13-18: The destiny of the Christian dead. 13-14: Possibly Timothy had brought a report about a concern over the fate of those who had died before the Parousia (see 2.19 n.); this

15 For this we tell you as the Lord's word: we who are left alive until the Lord comes shall not forestall those 16 who have died; because at the word of command, at the sound of the archangel's voice and God's trumpet-call, the Lord himself will descend from heaven; first the Christian dead will 17 rise, then we who are left alive shall join them, caught up in clouds to meet the Lord in the air. Thus we shall always 18 be with the Lord. Console one another, then, with these words.

5 About dates and times, my friends, we need not write to you, for you know perfectly well that the Day of the Lord comes like a thief in the night. While they are talking of peace and security, all at once calamity is upon them, sudden as the pangs that come upon a woman with child; and there will be no escape. But you, my friends, are not in the dark, that the day should overtake you like a thief.<sup>i</sup> You are all children of light, children of day. We do not belong to night or darkness, and we must not sleep like the rest, but keep awake and sober. Sleepers sleep at night, and drunkards are drunk at night, but we, who belong to daylight, must keep sober, armed with faith and love for coat of mail, and the hope of salvation for helmet. For God has not destined us to the terrors of judgement, but to the full attainment of salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ. He died for us so that we, awake or asleep, might live in company with him. Therefore hearten one another, fortify one another—as indeed you do.

WE BEG YOU, BROTHERS, TO ACKNOWLEDGE those who are working so hard among you, and in the Lord's fellowship are your leaders and counsellors. Hold them in the highest possible esteem and affection for the work they do.

You must live at peace among yourselves. And we would urge you, brothers, to admonish the careless, encourage the faint-hearted, support the weak, and to be very patient with them all.

See to it that no one pays back wrong for wrong, but always aim at doing the best you can for each other and for all men.

Be always joyful; pray continually; give thanks whatever happens; for this is what God in Christ wills for you.

Do not stifle inspiration, and do not despise prophetic utterances, but bring them all to the test and then keep what is good in them and avoid the bad of whatever kind.<sup>j</sup>

May God himself, the God of peace, make you holy in every part, and keep you sound in spirit, soul, and body, without fault when our Lord Jesus Christ comes. He who calls you is to be trusted; he will do it.

Brothers, pray for us also.

Greet all our brothers with the kiss of peace.

I adjure you by the Lord to have this letter read to the whole brotherhood.

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you!

<sup>i</sup> Some witnesses read thieves.

<sup>j</sup> Or . . . utterances. Put everything to the test; keep hold of what is good and avoid every kind of evil.

passage answers that concern. 15: The Lord's word probably means that Paul believes he speaks here with the authority of the Lord; compare 1 Cor.14.37. 16: An archangel is a chief angel. God's trumpet-call: see Exod.19.16,19. That a trumpet call would usher in the final salvation is derived from Isa.27.13; see also Mt.24.31; 1 Cor.15.52. At the Parousia of the monarch (see 2.19 n.), the townsmen went out of the city to receive him. Since the Lord will descend from heaven, the Christians will meet him in the air.

5.1-11: Uncertainty about the time of the Parousia: 1-2: The precise time of the final saving intervention of God was a characteristic concern of apocalyptic thought; see Dan.9.24-27. Paul considers such preoccupation useless. In the OT, the Day of the Lord is God's future judgment day (see Amos 5.18; Joel 2.14-15 n.). Here, since the judgment comes with the Parousia, the Lord is Jesus. Like a thief in the night: the point of the comparison is its unexpectedness; compare Mt.24.43-44; Lk.12.39-40. 3: Pangs . . . a woman with child: compare Isa.13.8; Jer.6.24. 4-7: A similar contrast between men of light and those of darkness, appears in the Dead Sea Scrolls. 8: Aspects of God's judgment are described as pieces of divine armor (Isa.59.17; Wis.5.17-20). Here and in Eph.6.13-17 the Christians' preparedness for salvation is similarly described. 10: Awake or asleep: alive or dead.

5.12-28: Final admonitions and blessing. 12: Leaders and counsellors: see Rom.12.6-8. 23: Spirit, soul, and body: the complete man, not three separate aspects of him.

THE SECOND LETTER OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS

Paul's authorship of 2 Thessalonians has been disputed on several grounds. First, the literary similarities with 1 Thessalonians have suggested to some that an anonymous author, writing in Paul's name, copied from the authentic letter. If, however, one supposes that Paul wrote the second letter very shortly after the first, that hypothesis loses much of its force.

A second and more substantial argument is that in 1 Thessalonians Paul, while emphasizing that the Parousia (see 1 Th.2.19 n.) will come unexpectedly, speaks as if it were near; 2 Thessalonians, on the other hand, indicates that there will be a considerable delay between his letter and the Parousia, and he gives detailed signs which must occur first. However, these signs are not incompatible with the view that the Parousia will take place within the lifetime of those to whom the apostle writes, or that it will occur unexpectedly even though preceded by such signs.

Third, the strongest argument for inauthenticity is that this letter speaks against the teaching that "the Day of the Lord is already here" (2.2). It is difficult to suppose that this latter view, which treats the Parousia as a present spiritual experience, would flourish in Thessalonica at the same time as the opposite, the fervent expectation of the Lord's coming as a future event, found in 1 Thessalonians. Nevertheless, it is possible that Paul responded to a new problem which arose after the writing of the earlier letter.

Hope and discipline

1 FROM PAUL, SILVANUS, AND TIMOTHY to the congregation of Thessalonians who belong to God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

2 Grace to you and peace from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Our thanks are always due to God for you, brothers. It is right that we should thank him, because your faith increases mightily, and the love you have, each for all and all for each, grows ever greater. Indeed we boast about you ourselves among the congregations of God's people, because your faith remains so steadfast under all your persecutions, and all the troubles you endure. See how this brings out the justice of God's judgment. It will prove you worthy of the kingdom of God, for which indeed you are suffering.

6 It is surely just that God should balance the account by sending trouble to those who trouble you, and relief to you who are troubled, and to us as well, when our Lord Jesus Christ is revealed

from heaven with his mighty angels 8
blazing fire. Then he will do justice upon those who refuse to acknowledge God and upon those who will not obey<sup>a</sup> the gospel of our Lord Jesus. They will suffer the punishment of eternal ruin, cut off from the presence of the Lord and the splendour of his might, when on that great Day he comes to be glorified among his own and adored among all believers; for you did indeed believe the testimony we brought you.

9
10
11 With this in mind we pray for you always, that our God may count you worthy of his calling, and mightily bring to fulfilment every good purpose and every act inspired by faith, so that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

AND NOW, BROTHERS, ABOUT THE 2
coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and his gathering of us to himself: I beg

<sup>a</sup> Or justice upon those who refuse . . . and will not obey . . .

1.3-12: Thanksgiving and encouragement. 4: Persecutions: see 1 Th.2.13-16. 7: The imagery of blazing fire in connection with Jesus being revealed from heaven is related to OT statements about God coming in judgment; see Ps.97.3; Isa.66.15. The association of the angels with the fire may be derived from a Jewish tradition arising from Deut.33.2-3 (Sept.). See also the extra-biblical 2 Enoch 29.3.

2.1-12: The delay of the Parousia. The portrayal of the events to precede the Parousia has points of contact with Mk. ch. 13 and parallels, and with some OT descriptions of the evils

2 you, do not suddenly lose your heads or alarm yourselves, whether at some oracular utterance, or pronouncement, or some letter purporting to come from us, alleging that the Day of the Lord
3 is already here. Let no one deceive you in any way whatever. That day cannot come before the final rebellion against God, when wickedness will be revealed in human form, the man doomed to 4 perdition. He is the Enemy. He rises in his pride against every god, so called, every object of men's worship, and even takes his seat in the temple of God claiming to be a god himself.
5 You cannot but remember that I told
6 you this while I was still with you; you must now be aware of the restraining hand which ensures that he shall be
7 revealed only at the proper time. For already the secret power of wickedness is at work, secret only for the present until the Restraint disappears from 8 the scene. And then he will be revealed, that wicked man whom the Lord Jesus will destroy with the breath of his mouth, and annihilate by the radiance
9 of his coming. But the coming of that wicked man is the work of Satan. It will be attended by all the powerful signs 10 and miracles of the Lie, and all the deception that sinfulness can impose on those doomed to destruction. Destroyed they shall be, because they did not open their minds to love of the 11 truth, so as to find salvation. Therefore God puts them under a delusion, which 12 works upon them to believe the lie, so that they may all be brought to judgment, all who do not believe the truth

but make sinfulness their deliberate choice.

BUT WE ARE BOUND TO THANK GOD 13 always for you, brothers beloved by the Lord, because from the beginning of time God chose you<sup>b</sup> to find salvation in the Spirit that consecrates you, and in the truth that you believe. It was for 14 this that he called you through the gospel we brought, so that you might possess for your own the splendour of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Stand firm, then, brothers, and hold 15 fast to the traditions which you have learned from us by word or by letter. And may our Lord Jesus Christ himself 16 and God our Father, who has shown us such love, and in his grace has given us such unflinching encouragement and such bright hopes, still encourage and fortify 17 you in every good deed and word!

And now, brothers, pray for us, that 3 the word of the Lord may have everywhere the swift and glorious course that it has had among you, and that 2 we may be rescued from wrong-headed and wicked men; for it is not all who have faith. But the Lord is to be trusted, 3 and he will fortify you and guard you from the evil one. We feel perfect confidence about you, in the Lord, that you are doing and will continue to do what we order. May the Lord direct your 5 hearts towards God's love and the steadfastness of Christ!

These are our orders to you, brothers, 6 in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ:

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read because God chose you as his firstfruits . . .

which will come before the arrival of God's kingdom. 2: Oracular utterance (lit. a spirit): the word of one who claims to be speaking under the influence of the Spirit; see 1 Th.5.19–21. Purporting to come from us: possibly a forged letter. The Day . . . is already here: see Introduction and 2 Tim.2.18 n. 3: The final rebellion against God (lit. the apostasy): a falling away from the faith; see Mt.24.10. Similarly, during the persecution by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 B.C.) many Jews abandoned the God of Israel; see 1 Macc.2.15. The figure of Antiochus has influenced Paul's description of the man doomed to perdition; this "man" is an evil imitation of Jesus, and his coming is described in terms similar to that of Jesus; see v. 9 and 1.7. 4: See the descriptions of Antiochus in Dan.11.36–37 and of the prince of Tyre in Ezek.28.2. The search for "the" historical person or institution fitting Paul's prediction has been fruitless. 6–7: Some force, specified only as the restraining hand or the Restraint is holding back the revelation of the wicked person. 8: With the breath of his mouth is a figure for the destroying word of judgment; see Isa.11.4. 9–10: The author's dismay at the wicked one's likeness to Jesus continues. On signs and miracles at the coming, see Mk.13.22. 11–12: The delusion under which the sinners fall is seen as God's punishment for their refusal to accept the truth.

2.13–3.5: Exhortation to steadfastness. 15: Although the Thessalonian letters were written early in Christian experience (see Introduction to 1 Th.), the church already had a body of material which could be referred to as traditions.

3.6–18: Treatment of the idlers. 6: Some in the community are refusing to work and becoming hold aloof from every Christian brother who falls into idle habits, and does not follow the tradition you received from us. You know yourselves how you ought to copy our example: we were no idlers among you; we did not accept board and lodging from anyone without paying for it; we toiled and drudged, we worked for a living night and day, rather than be a burden to any of you—not because we have not the right to maintenance, but to set an example for you to imitate. For even during our stay with you we laid down the rule: the man who will not work shall not eat. We mention this because we hear that some of your number are idling their time away, minding everybody's business but their own. To all such we give these orders, and we appeal to them in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ to work quietly for their living.

But you, my friends, must never tire of doing right. If anyone disobeys our instructions given by letter, mark him well, and have no dealings with him until he is ashamed of himself. I do not mean treat him as an enemy, but give him friendly advice, as one of the family. May the Lord of peace himself give you peace at all times and in all ways.<sup>c</sup> The Lord be with you all.

The greeting is in my own hand, signed with my name, PAUL; this authenticates all my letters; this is how I write. The grace<sup>d</sup> of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all.

<sup>c</sup> Some witnesses read at all times, wherever you may be.
<sup>d</sup> Or . . . letters. My message is this: the grace . . .

---

public charges, regarding themselves as released from ordinary obligations since this age is to endure only briefly. 17: My own hand: see 1 Cor.16.21–24 n.

THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL TO TIMOTHY

The letters to Timothy and Titus, commonly called the "Pastoral Epistles" because they contain much material related to the pastoral oversight of churches, form a distinct grouping within the collection of Pauline correspondence. Closely similar to one another in content, diction, and theology, they differ enough from the other Pauline letters to raise a question about their true authorship. Lacking many of the typical Pauline theological motifs, such as justification by faith and redemption through the death of Christ on the cross, they use other terms in a way foreign to Paul. Faith, for example, does not define a relationship to Christ, but signifies a body of doctrine which must be kept free of perversion. Problems of church order also emerge, and are discussed in a detail absent from Paul's other letters. The travels presumed in the Pastoral Epistles cannot be fitted into the framework of Paul's journeys as detailed in Acts, but that is also true of some genuine letters (e.g. Rom.15.19), and is not a telling argument for non-Pauline authorship. Most persuasive against Paul's authorship, however, are the language and style of these three letters. Bearing clear marks of typical Hellenistic diction, they do not contain stylistic traits displayed by the epistles to the Romans, Galatians, or Corinthians (traits such as the frequent use of rhetorical questions and complex sentence structure). Similar differences are to be noted in the vocabulary of Paul and the Pastorals. Containing a plea to believers to live quiet lives of moral and doctrinal purity, the Pastorals are probably best understood as compositions of a group who looked to Paul for leadership in religious matters, and who, after his death, sought to meet new problems in a way Paul, as they thought, would have met them.

Timothy, to whom the first of the Pastorals is addressed, was the child of a Jewish mother and a Gentile father (Acts 16.1), and a trusted friend of Paul; see 1 Cor.16.10 n. He shared in the task of Christian proclamation (2 Cor.1.19) and, on at least one occasion, was sent by Paul to clear up some problems within a Christian congregation (1 Cor.4.17). This letter also contains the earliest evidence we have of the emergence of formal leadership within the church, concentrated in the offices of bishop and elder.

---

Church order

1 FROM PAUL, APOSTLE OF CHRIST JESUS
2 by command of God our Saviour and Christ Jesus our hope, to Timothy his true-born son in the faith.
3 Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.
4 When I was starting for Macedonia,
I urged you to stay on at Ephesus. You were to command certain persons to give up teaching erroneous doctrines and studying those interminable myths and genealogies, which issue in mere speculation and cannot make known

God's plan for us, which works through faith.<sup>a</sup>

The aim and object of this command is the love which springs from a clean heart, from a good conscience, and from faith that is genuine. Through falling short of these, some people have gone astray into a wilderness of words.
They set out to be teachers of the moral law, without understanding either the words they use or the subjects about which they are so dogmatic.

We all know that the law is an excellent thing, provided we treat it as <sup>a</sup> Or cannot promote the faithful discharge of God's stewardship.

---

1.1-2: Salutation. 1: On Timothy, see the Introduction. God our Saviour is typical of the Pastorals (e.g. 1 Tim.2.3; Ti.1.3; 3.4), and reflects OT usage more than Paul's, for whom Christ is savior (Phil.3.20).

1.3-20: The struggle for faith. 3: Starting for Macedonia: such a journey cannot be fitted into what we know of Paul's journeys from Acts. On Ephesus, see Acts 18.19 n.; 19.23-41. 4: The presence of teachers of erroneous doctrines is a major concern of the author. The nature of the false teaching cannot be simply stated, but included: myths and genealogies (as here), asceticism (e.g. 4.2-3), and a dangerous mysticism (2 Tim.2.18). Myths: see 2 Tim.4.4; Ti.1.14. Genealogies may refer to Gnostic or Jewish speculations; the meaning is not sure. God's plan: see Eph.1.10; 3.9. 5: Good conscience, along with clear conscience, is a characteristic virtue in

9 law, recognizing that it is not aimed at good citizens, but at the lawless and unruly, the impious and sinful, the irreligious and worldly; at parricides and matricides, murderers and fornicators, perverts, kidnappers, liars, perjurers—in fact all whose behaviour flouts the wholesome teaching which conforms with the gospel entrusted to me, the gospel which tells of the glory of God in his eternal felicity.

12 I thank him who has made me equal to the task, Christ Jesus our Lord; I thank him for judging me worthy of this trust and appointing me to his service—although in the past I had met him with abuse and persecution and outrage. But because I acted ignorantly in unbelief I was dealt with mercifully; the grace of our Lord was lavished upon me, with the faith and love which are ours in Christ Jesus.

15 Here are words you may trust, words that merit full acceptance: 'Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners'; and among them I stand first. But I was mercifully dealt with for this very purpose, that Jesus Christ might find in me the first occasion for displaying all his patience, and that I might be typical of all who were in future to have faith in him and gain eternal life. Now to the King of all worlds, immortal, invisible, the only God, be honour and glory for ever and ever! Amen.

18 This charge, son Timothy, I lay upon you, following that prophetic utterance which first pointed you out to me. So fight gallantly, armed with faith and a good conscience. It was through spurning conscience that certain persons made shipwreck of their faith, among them Hymenaeus and Alexander, whom I consigned to Satan, in the hope that through this discipline they might learn not to be blasphemous.

FIRST OF ALL, THEN, I URGE THAT petitions, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be offered for all men; for sovereigns and all in high office, that we may lead a tranquil and quiet life in full observance of religion and high standards of morality. Such prayer is right, and approved by God our Saviour, whose will it is that all men should find salvation and come to know the truth. For there is one God, also one mediator between God and men, Christ Jesus, himself man, who sacrificed himself to win freedom for all mankind, so providing, at the fitting time, proof of the divine purpose; of this I was appointed herald and apostle (this is no lie, but the truth), to instruct the nations in the true faith.

It is my desire, therefore, that everywhere prayers be said by the men of the congregation, who shall lift up their hands with a pure intention, excluding angry or quarrelsome thoughts. Women again must dress in becoming manner, modestly and soberly, not with elaborate hair-styles, not decked out with gold or pearls, or expensive clothes, but with good deeds, as befits women who claim to be religious. A woman must be a learner, listening quietly and with due submission. I do not permit a woman to be a teacher, nor must woman domineer over man; she should be quiet. For Adam was the Pastorals. 10: Such lists of vices were common in the Hellenistic world; for other NT examples see 6.4-5; 2 Tim.3.2-5; Ti.3.3; Rom.1.29-31; Gal.5.19-21. Wholesome teaching, a characteristic phrase in the Pastorals, occurs nowhere else in the NT, but frequently in other contemporary authors. 13: I had met him: Christ and his Church are identified in similar language in Acts 9.4-5. Persecution: see Acts 26.11; 1 Cor.15.9; Gal.1.13. 15: Words you may trust is a formula that probably introduces traditional material. I stand first: see 1 Cor.15.9. 17: Of all worlds, or, of the ages; this language is typical of Hellenistic descriptions of god(s), as well as Jewish ascriptions of praise. 20: I consigned to Satan: the meaning is unclear; see 1 Cor.5.5; compare Job 2.6-8.

2.1-15: Advice on prayer. 1: This is not an exhaustive list of kinds of prayer; see Phil.4.6. 4: Come to know the truth: see 2 Tim.3.7 n. All men points to the universality of the Christian community grounded in God's saving will; see vv. 1,6; 4.10. 5: One God: see Deut.6.4-9, a passage repeated daily by pious Jews. One mediator intends to validate Jesus among the many mediators proclaimed in the Hellenistic world. 8: Everywhere may refer to regular liturgical services. 9: This verse (and v. 8) probably refers to dress and conduct in worship; compare 1 Pet.3.3-5. 11-15: These verses, dealing with liturgical services, reflect the position of women in some areas of the Hellenistic religious world; they are hardly to be taken as legislative. 13: See 1 Cor.11.3-16. 14: See Gen.3.6; also 2 Cor.11.3. That for Paul himself Adam also sinned

14 created first, and Eve afterwards; and it was not Adam who was deceived; it was the woman who, yielding to deception, fell into sin. Yet she will be saved through motherhood<sup>b</sup>—if only women continue in faith,<sup>c</sup> love, and holiness, with a sober mind.

3 There is a popular saying:<sup>d</sup> 'To aspire to leadership is an honourable ambition.' Our leader, therefore, or bishop, must be above reproach, faithful to his one wife,<sup>e</sup> sober, temperate, courteous, hospitable, and a good teacher; he must not be given to drink, or a brawler, but of a forbearing disposition, avoiding quarrels, and no lover of money. He must be one who manages his own household well and wins obedience from his children, and a man of the highest principles. If a man does not know how to control his own family, how can he look after a congregation of God's people? He must not be a convert newly baptized, for fear the sin of conceit should bring upon him a judgement contrived by the devil.<sup>f</sup> He must moreover have a good reputation with the non-Christian public, so that he may not be exposed to scandal and get caught in the devil's snare.

8 Deacons, likewise, must be men of high principle, not indulging in double talk, given neither to excessive drinking nor to money-grubbing. They must be men who combine a clear conscience with a firm hold on the deep truths of our faith. No less than bishops, they must first undergo a scrutiny, and if there is no mark against them, they may serve. Their wives,<sup>g</sup> equally, must be women of high principle, who will not talk scandal, sober and trustworthy in every way. A deacon must be faithful 12 to his one wife,<sup>e</sup> and good at managing his children and his own household. For deacons with a good record of service may claim a high standing and the right to speak openly on matters of the Christian faith.

I am hoping to come to you before 14 long, but I write this in case I am delayed, to let you know how men ought to conduct themselves in God's household, that is, the church of the living God, the pillar and bulwark of the truth. And great beyond all question is 16 the mystery of our religion:

'He who was manifested in the body, vindicated in the spirit,
seen by angels;
who was proclaimed among the
nations,
believed in throughout the world,
glorified in high heaven.'

THE SPIRIT SAYS EXPRESSLY THAT IN 4 after times some will desert from the faith and give their minds to subversive doctrines inspired by devils, through the specious falsehoods of men whose own conscience is branded with the devil's sign. They forbid marriage and inculcate abstinence from certain foods, though God created them to be enjoyed with thanksgiving by believers who have inward knowledge of the truth. For everything that God created is 4

b Or saved through the Birth of the Child, or brought safely through childbirth.

c Or if only husband and wife continue in mutual fidelity . . .

d Some witnesses read Here are words you may trust, which some interpreters attach to the end of the preceding paragraph.

e Or married to one wife, or married only once.

f Or the judgement once passed on the devil.

g Or . . . serve. Deaconesses . . .

is clear from Rom.5.12-14. 15: The meaning of the first half of this verse is unclear (see Tfn. b).

3.1-16: Leadership in the church. 2: Bishop is not used in a technical sense; see Ti.1.5-9, where bishop and elder are identified. The virtues are common ideals in the Hellenistic world. 8: We cannot tell from the NT what different duties were given to bishops, elders, and deacons. Paul could describe his apostleship as a diaconate ("commission" in 2 Cor.4.1) and thus deacons may have had responsibility for preaching; see also v. 9; 4.6; Acts 6.4 ("ministry"); also Acts 6.2 ("to wait"), 6 n. 9: Deep truths refer to the content of the Christian faith as revealing God's plan for mankind; see v. 16, where the content is Christ, as in Col.1.27. 16: This verse is probably an early Christian hymn, or confession of faith. The rhythm of the Greek points to three couplets, rather than two stanzas.

4.1-16: True service to Christ. 1: See 2 Tim.3.1-9; 4.3-4; the point is made throughout the NT. 2: In the Hellenistic world, slaves were sometimes branded to indicate ownership. 3: God created them to be enjoyed: see Acts 10.15. Some contemporary sects thought that anything material was evil; only the spiritual was good. Jewish ritual purity may also be involved; compare Ti.1.14; 4: Everything that God created is good: see Rom.14.14; 1 Cor.10.25-26.

good, and nothing is to be rejected when it is taken with thanksgiving, since it is hallowed by God's own word and by prayer.

By offering such advice as this to the brotherhood you will prove a good servant of Christ Jesus, bred in the precepts of our faith and of the sound instruction which you have followed. Have nothing to do with those godless myths, fit only for old women. Keep yourself in training for the practice of religion. The training of the body does bring limited benefit, but the benefits of religion are without limit, since it holds promise not only for this life but for the life to come. Here are words you may trust, words that merit full acceptance: 'With this before us we labour and struggle,<sup>h</sup> because<sup>i</sup> we have set our hope on the living God, who is the Saviour of all men'—the Saviour, above all, of believers.

Pass on these orders and these teachings. Let no one slight you because you are young, but make yourself an example to believers in speech and behaviour, in love, fidelity, and purity. Until I arrive devote your attention to the public reading of the scriptures, to exhortation, and to teaching. Do not neglect the spiritual endowment you possess, which was given you, under the guidance of prophecy, through the laying on of the hands of the elders as a body.<sup>j</sup>

Make these matters your business and your absorbing interest, so that your progress may be plain to all. Persevere in them, keeping close watch on yourself and your teaching; by doing so you will further the salvation of yourself and your hearers.

Never be harsh with an elder; appeal to him as if he were your father. Treat the younger men as brothers, the older women as mothers, and the younger as your sisters, in all purity.

The status of widow is to be granted only to widows who are such in the full sense. But if a widow has children or grandchildren, then they should learn as their first duty to show loyalty to the family and to repay what they owe to their parents and grandparents; for this God approves. A widow, however, in the full sense, one who is alone in the world, has all her hope set on God, and regularly attends the meetings for prayer and worship night and day. But a widow given over to self-indulgence is as good as dead. Add these orders to the rest, so that the widows may be above reproach. But if anyone does not make provision for his relations, and especially for members of his own household, he has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.

A widow should not be put on the roll under sixty years of age. She must have been faithful in marriage to one man, and must produce evidence of good deeds performed, showing whether she has had the care of children, or given hospitality, or washed the feet of God's people, or supported those in distress—in short, whether she has taken every opportunity of doing good.

Younger widows may not be placed on the roll. For when their passions draw them away from Christ, they hanker after marriage and stand condemned for breaking their troth with him. Moreover, in going round from house to house they learn to be idle, and worse than idle, gossips and busy-bodies, speaking of things better left unspoken. It is my wish, therefore, that young widows shall marry again, have

<sup>h</sup> Some witnesses read suffer reproach.

<sup>i</sup> Or since 'It holds promise . . . to come.' These are words . . . acceptance. For this is the aim of all our labour and struggle, since . . .

<sup>j</sup> Or through your ordination as an elder.

6: Sound instruction: see 1.10 n. 7: Godless myths: see 1.4. 9: Here are words you may trust may refer to v. 8. 10: Of all men: see 2.4 n. 12: You are young could, in that time, be applied to anyone under forty. 14: Laying on of the hands conferred a task; see e.g. Acts 6.6; 13.3.

5.1–16: General admonitions. 1–2: On personal relations. This kind of advice was popular in the Hellenistic world. 3–16: On widows. 3: There were no governmental provisions for the care of the destitute in the Hellenistic world, though care of widows was an obligation for Jews (Exod.22.22; Deut.24.17–22). The church early assumed this responsibility (Acts 6.1). 9: This is our earliest evidence of an ecclesiastical order of widows, an order well known by the third century; see Acts 9.39. 12: Breaking their troth may imply a promise by a widow not to remarry. 13: Going round from house to house was apparently one of a widow's duties, perhaps as a Christian visitor.

children, and preside over a home; then they will give no opponent 15 occasion for slander. For there have in fact been some who have taken the wrong turning and gone to the devil.

16 If a Christian man or woman has widows in the family, he must support them himself;<sup>k</sup> the congregation must be relieved of the burden, so that it may be free to support those who are widows in the full sense of the term.

17 Elders who do well as leaders should be reckoned worthy of a double stipend, in particular those who labour at 18 preaching and teaching. For Scripture says, 'You shall not muzzle a threshing ox'; and besides, 'the worker earns his pay.'

19 Do not entertain a charge against an elder unless it is supported by two or 20 three witnesses. Those who commit sins you must expose publicly, to put 21 fear into the others. Before God and Christ Jesus and the angels who are his chosen, I solemnly charge you, maintain these rules, and never pre-judge the issue, but act with strict impartiality.

22 Do not be over-hasty in laying on hands in ordination,<sup>l</sup> or you may find yourself responsible for other people's misdeeds; keep your own hands clean.

23 Stop drinking nothing but water; take a little wine for your digestion, for your frequent ailments.

24 While there are people whose offences are so obvious that they run before them into court, there are others whose offences have not yet overtaken them.
 25 Similarly, good deeds are obvious, or even if they are not, they cannot be concealed for ever.

6 All who wear the yoke of slavery must count their own masters worthy of all respect, so that the name of God and the Christian teaching are not
 2 brought into disrepute. If the masters are believers, the slaves must not respect them any less for being their Christian brothers. Quite the contrary; they must be all the better servants because those who receive the benefit of their service are one with them in faith and love.

THIS IS WHAT YOU ARE TO TEACH AND preach. If anyone is teaching otherwise, 3 and will not give his mind to wholesome precepts—I mean those of our Lord Jesus Christ—and to good religious teaching, I call him a pompous ignoramus. He is morbidly keen on mere 4 verbal questions and quibbles, which give rise to jealousy, quarrelling, slander, base suspicions, and endless wrangles: all typical of men who have let 5 their reasoning powers become atrophied and have lost grip of the truth. They think religion should yield dividends; and of course religion does 6 yield high dividends, but only to the man whose resources are within him. We brought nothing into the world; 7 for that matter we cannot take anything with us when we leave, but if we 8 have food and covering we may rest content. Those who want to be rich fall 9 into temptations and snares and many foolish harmful desires which plunge men into ruin and perdition. The love 10 of money is the root of all evil things, and there are some who in reaching for it have wandered from the faith and spiked themselves on many thorny griefs.

But you, man of God, must shun all 11 this, and pursue justice, piety, fidelity, love, fortitude, and gentleness. Run the 12 great race of faith and take hold of eternal life. For to this you were called; and you confessed your faith nobly before many witnesses. Now in the 13 presence of God, who gives life to all things, and of Jesus Christ, who himself made the same noble confession

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses read If a Christian woman has widows in her family, she must support them herself.

<sup>l</sup> Or in restoring an offender by the laying on of hands.

5.17–6.21: Advice on proper conduct. 17: Elders shared teaching duties with bishops; see 3.2 (and n.); Ti.1.5,7 nn. 18: Deut.25.4; see 1 Cor.9.9; Lk.10.7. 19: Two or three witnesses: see Deut.19.15; Mt.18.16; 2 Cor.13.1. 23: Timothy may have drunk nothing but water as an ascetic practice; the validity of such a practice is here denied; compare 4.3. 6.1: For mention of slavery in the NT, see Ti.2.9–10; 1 Cor.7.21–22; Eph.6.5–8; Col. 3.22–25; Philem.15–16; 1 Pet.2.18–25. 4: See 1.10 n. 5: The following teachings reflect Hellenistic moral maxims and teachings. 7: See Job 1.21; Eccles.5.15. 8: To rest content with little was a popular Stoic ideal. 10: This proverb about love of money was widely known and popular in the Hellenistic world; but it is not to be construed that money in itself is evil; see vv. 17–19 n. 13: See Jn.18.36–37.

- and gave his testimony to it before 14 Pontius Pilate, I charge you to obey your orders irreproachably and without 15 fault until our Lord Jesus Christ appears. That appearance God will bring to pass in his own good time—God who in eternal felicity alone holds 16 sway. He is King of kings and Lord of lords; he alone possesses immortality, dwelling in unapproachable light. No man has ever seen or ever can see him.
 To him be honour and might for ever!
 Amen.
 17 Instruct those who are rich in this world's goods not to be proud, and not to fix their hopes on so uncertain a thing as money, but upon God, who endows us richly with all things to enjoy. Tell them to do good and to 18 grow rich in noble actions, to be ready to give away and to share, and so 19 acquire a treasure which will form a good foundation for the future. Thus they will grasp the life which is life indeed.
 Timothy, keep safe that which has 20 been entrusted to you. Turn a deaf ear to empty and worldly chatter, and the contradictions of so-called 'knowledge', for many who lay claim to it have shot 21 far wide of the faith.
 Grace be with you all!

---

15–16: This may be a fragment of an early Christian hymn. King of kings and Lord of lords: see Deut.10.17. 17–19: As in v. 10, it is not wealth, but attachment to it, that is condemned. Compare Mt.6.19–21 (and 22 n.). 20: That which has been entrusted to you refers to sound Christian doctrine in its totality. Contradictions (lit. antitheses) were a favorite construction of Hellenistic philosophers, occasionally used to test another's skill in thinking.

THE SECOND LETTER OF PAUL TO TIMOTHY

Of the three Pastorals, this one is the closest to Pauline style and thought, and has the best claim to authenticity. It is sometimes suggested that the letter has incorporated fragments of genuine Pauline correspondence. However, attempts to isolate such fragments have not proved generally convincing. For more detailed information on this letter, see the Introduction to 1 Timothy.

Character of a Christian minister

1 FROM PAUL, APOSTLE OF JESUS CHRIST by the will of God, whose promise of life is fulfilled in Christ Jesus, 2 to Timothy his dear son.

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I thank God—whom I, like my forefathers, worship with a pure intention—when I mention you in my prayers; 4 this I do constantly night and day. And when I remember the tears you shed, I long to see you again to make my 5 happiness complete. I am reminded of the sincerity of your faith, a faith which was alive in Lois your grandmother and Eunice your mother before you, and which, I am confident, lives in you also.

6 That is why I now remind you to stir into flame the gift of God which is within you through the laying on of my 7 hands. For the spirit that God gave us is no craven spirit, but one to inspire 8 strength, love, and self-discipline. So never be ashamed of your testimony to our Lord, nor of me his prisoner, but take your share of suffering for the sake of the Gospel, in the strength that 9 comes from God. It is he who brought us salvation and called us to a dedicated life, not for any merit of ours but of his own purpose and his own grace, which was granted to us in Christ Jesus from all eternity, but has now at length been brought fully into view by the appearance on earth of our Saviour Jesus Christ. For he has broken the power of death and brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel.

Of this Gospel I, by his appointment, 11 am herald, apostle, and teacher. That is the reason for my present plight; but I am not ashamed of it, because I know who it is in whom<sup>a</sup> I have trusted, and am confident of his power to keep safe what he has put into my charge,<sup>b</sup> until the great Day. Keep 13 before you an outline of the sound teaching which<sup>c</sup> you heard from me, living by the faith and love which are ours in Christ Jesus. Guard the treasure 14 put into our charge, with the help of the Holy Spirit dwelling within us.

As you know, everyone in the province of Asia deserted me, including Phygelus and Hermogenes. But may the Lord's mercy rest on the house of Onesiphorus! He has often relieved me in my troubles. He was not ashamed to visit a prisoner, but took pains to search me out when he came to Rome, and found me. I pray that the Lord may grant him to find mercy from the Lord on the great Day. The many services he rendered at Ephesus you know better than I could tell you.

<sup>a</sup> Or I know the one whom . . .

<sup>b</sup> Or what I have put into his charge.

<sup>c</sup> Or Keep before you as a model of sound teaching that which . . .

1.1-2: Salutation. On Timothy, see Introduction to 1 Tim. Compare 1 Tim.1.1 n.

1.3-18: Timothy's gifts and responsibilities. 3-5: It was Hellenistic custom to include an opening prayer in a private letter, a custom followed in all Pauline and sub-Pauline letters except Gal., 1 Tim., and Ti. 5: On Timothy's mother, see Acts 16.1. 6: See 1 Tim.4.14 (n.). 10: Saviour, a title widely applied to deities and rulers in the Hellenistic world, is used both for Christ (Ti.2.13; 3.6) and for God (see 1 Tim.1.1 n.) in the Pastorals. 12: What he has put in my charge: see 1 Tim.6.20 n. 13: Sound (or wholesome) teaching: see 1 Tim.1.10 n. 15: Asia was the Roman province of which Ephesus was the chief city. 18: That the Lord, i.e. Jesus; from the Lord, i.e. the Father; see Mt.25.34,36.

2 Now therefore, my son, take strength from the grace of God which is ours in 2 Christ Jesus. You heard my teaching in the presence of many witnesses; put that teaching into the charge of men you can trust, such men as will be competent to teach others.

3 Take your share of hardship, like a
4 good soldier of Christ Jesus. A soldier on active service will not let himself be involved in civilian affairs; he must be wholly at his commanding officer's
5 disposal. Again, no athlete can win a 6 prize unless he has kept the rules. The farmer who gives his labour has first
7 claim on the crop. Reflect on what I say, for the Lord will help you to full understanding.

8 Remember Jesus Christ, risen from the dead, born of David's line. This is the theme of my gospel, in whose service I am exposed to hardship, even to the point of being shut up like a common criminal; but the word of 10 God is not shut up. And I endure it all for the sake of God's chosen ones, with this end in view, that they too may attain the glorious and eternal salvation which is in Christ Jesus.

11 Here are the words you may trust:

'If we died with him, we shall live with him;

12 if we endure, we shall reign with him. If we deny him, he will deny us.

13 If we are faithless, he keeps faith, for he cannot deny himself.'

14 GO ON REMINDING PEOPLE OF THIS, AND charge them solemnly before God to stop disputing about mere words; it does no good, and is the ruin of those 15 who listen. Try hard to show yourself worthy of God's approval, as a labourer who need not be ashamed; be straightforward in your proclamation of the 16 truth. Avoid empty and worldly chatter; those who indulge in it will stray further and further into godless courses, and the infection of their teaching will 17 spread like a gangrene. Such are Hymenaeus and Philetus; they have 18 shot wide of the truth in saying that our resurrection has already taken place, and are upsetting people's faith. But God has laid a foundation, and it

19 stands firm, with this inscription: 'The Lord knows his own', and, 'Everyone who takes the Lord's name upon his lips must forsake wickedness.' Now in 20 any great house there are not only utensils of gold and silver, but also others of wood or earthenware; the former are valued, the latter held cheap. To be among those which are valued 21 and dedicated, a thing of use to the Master of the house, a man must cleanse himself from all those evil things;<sup>d</sup> then he will be fit for any honourable purpose.

Turn from the wayward impulses of 22 youth, and pursue justice, integrity, love, and peace with all who invoke the Lord in singleness of mind. Have 23 nothing to do with foolish and ignorant speculations. You know they breed quarrels, and the servant of the Lord 24 must not be quarrelsome, but kindly towards all. He should be a good teacher, tolerant, and gentle when 25 discipline is needed for the refractory. The Lord may grant them a change of heart and show them the truth, and 26 thus they may come to their senses and escape from the devil's snare, in which they have been caught and held at his will.<sup>e</sup>

You must face the fact: the final age
3 of this world is to be a time of troubles. Men will love nothing but money and 2 self; they will be arrogant, boastful, and abusive; with no respect for parents, no

<sup>d</sup> Or must separate himself from these persons.

<sup>e</sup> Or escape from the devil's snare, caught now by God and made subject to his will.

2.1-26: The way to wholehearted Christian service. 2: Apostolic tradition was transmitted in the manner described in this verse; see 1.14. 11-13: These verses appear to be a fragment of an early Christian hymn. 11: Words you may trust: see 1 Tim.1.15 n. If we died with him: see Rom.6.8. 12: If we deny him: see Mt.10.33. 13: He keeps faith: see Rom.3.3-4. 18: Some apparently thought that the resurrection has already taken place in some spiritual or mystical experience, perhaps at baptism; contrast 1 Cor.15.50-55. 19: The first quotation reflects Num.16.5 Sept.; the second a variety of OT verses, e.g. Isa.26.13; Ps.6.8-9. 22: Impulses of youth: see 1 Tim.4.12 n. 23: See 1 Tim.1.4; Ti.3.9. 25: The truth: see 3.7 n.

3.1-17: Admonitions to stand fast amid error and persecution. 1: Christians believed the final age had already begun; compare Acts 2.16-21. 2-4: See 1 Tim.1.10 n. 7: The truth here

3 gratitude, no piety, no natural affection; they will be implacable in their hatreds, scandal-mongers, intemperate and fierce, strangers to all goodness, 4 traitors, adventurers, swollen with self-importance. They will be men who put 5 pleasure in the place of God, men who preserve the outward form of religion, but are a standing denial of its reality. 6 Keep clear of men like these. They are the sort that insinuate themselves into private houses and there get miserable women into their clutches, women burdened with a sinful past, and led on 7 by all kinds of desires, who are always wanting to be taught, but are incapable of reaching a knowledge of the truth. 8 As Jannes and Jambres defied Moses, so these men defy the truth; they have lost the power to reason, and they 9 cannot pass the tests of faith. But their successes will be short-lived, for, like those opponents of Moses, they will come to be recognized by everyone for the fools they are. 10 But you, my son, have followed, step by step, my teaching and my manner of life, my resolution, my faith, patience, and spirit of love, and my 11 fortitude under persecutions and sufferings—all that I went through at Antioch, at Iconium, at Lystra, all the persecutions I endured; and the Lord 12 rescued me out of them all. Yes, persecution will come to all who want to 13 live a godly life as Christians, whereas wicked men and charlatans will make progress from bad to worse, deceiving 14 and deceived. But for your part, stand by the truths you have learned and are assured of. Remember from whom you 15 learned them; remember that from early childhood you have been familiar with the sacred writings which have power to make you wise and lead you to salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. Every inspired scripture has its 16 use for teaching the truth and refuting error, or for reformation of manners and discipline in right living, so that the 17 man who belongs to God may be efficient and equipped for good work of every kind.

Before God, and before Christ Jesus 4 who is to judge men living and dead, I charge you solemnly by his coming appearance and his reign, proclaim the 2 message, press it home on all occasions,<sup>f</sup> convenient or inconvenient, use argument, reproof, and appeal, with all the patience that the work of teaching requires. For the time will come when 3 they will not stand wholesome teaching, but will follow their own fancy and gather a crowd of teachers to tickle their ears. They will stop their ears to 4 the truth and turn to mythology. But 5 you yourself must keep calm and sane at all times; face hardship, work to spread the Gospel, and do all the duties of your calling.

AS FOR ME, ALREADY MY LIFE IS BEING 6 poured out on the altar, and the hour for my departure is upon me. I have run 7 the great race, I have finished the course, I have kept faith. And now 8 the prize awaits me, the garland of righteousness which the Lord, the all-just Judge, will award me on that great Day; and it is not for me alone, but for all who have set their hearts on his coming appearance.

Do your best to join me soon; for 9,10 Demas has deserted me because his heart was set on this world; he has gone to Thessalonica, Crescens to Galatia,<sup>g</sup> Titus to Dalmatia; I have no one with 11

<sup>f</sup> Or be on duty at all times.
<sup>g</sup> Or Gaul; some witnesses read Gallia.

means the Christian gospel, as in 2.25; 1 Tim.2.4; Ti.1.1. 8: Jannes and Jambres are the names ancient Jewish tradition gave to the Egyptian magicians of Pharaoh's court who opposed Moses; see Exod.7.11; 9.11. 10: On Paul as a model for faith, see also Acts 20.18–21. 11: All that I went through: see 2 Cor.11.23–27. At Antioch: see Acts 13.50–51. At Iconium: see Acts 14.2–7. At Lystra: see Acts 14.19–20. 13: The Gk. word translated charlatans can also mean magicians; see v. 8 n. 15: Sacred writings: see v. 16 n. 16: Scripture refers to the OT; the NT had not yet been assembled.

4.1–5: Charge to Timothy. 1: Jesus who is to judge: see Acts 10.42. 3: Wholesome teaching: see 1 Tim.1.10 n. 4: Mythology: see 1 Tim.1.4; 4.7; Ti.1.14. 5: Work to spread the Gospel (or, Do the work of an evangelist); see Acts 21.8; Eph.4.11, where such an office is mentioned.

4.6–22: Concluding personal remarks. 7: Compare Phil.2.16–17. 8: The garland was the prize given the winner of a race or other Greek athletic contest. 10: On Titus, see the Introduction me but Luke. Pick up Mark and bring him with you, for I find him a useful assistant. Tychicus I have sent to Ephesus. When you come, bring the cloak I left with Carpus at Troas, and the books, above all my notebooks.

Alexander the copper-smith did me a great deal of harm. Retribution will fall upon him from the Lord. You had better be on your guard against him too, for he violently opposed everything I said. At the first hearing of my case no one came into court to support me; they all left me in the lurch; I pray that it may not be held against them. But the Lord stood by me and lent me strength, so that I might be his instrument in making the full proclamation of the Gospel for the whole pagan world to hear; and thus I was rescued out of the lion's jaws. And the Lord will rescue me from every attempt to do me harm, and keep me safe until his heavenly reign begins.<sup>h</sup> Glory to him for ever and ever! Amen.

Greetings to Prisca and Aquila, and the household of Onesiphorus.

Erastus stayed behind at Corinth, and I left Trophimus ill at Miletus. Do try to get here before winter.

Greetings from Eubulus, Pudens, Linus, and Claudia, and from all the brotherhood here.

The Lord be with your spirit. Grace be with you all!

<sup>h</sup> Or from all that evil can do, and bring me safely into his heavenly kingdom.

---

to 1 Ti. 13: On Troas, see Acts 16.8; 20.6; 2 Cor.2.12. 14: Retribution (lit. payment): see Ps.28.4; Rom.2.6. 17: Rescued out of the lion's jaws may be used figuratively here, as it is in Ps.22.21. 19: Prisca and Aquila: see Acts 18.2 n. 21: During the winter, travel by sea was hazardous; see Acts 27.9(and n.)-44; 28.11 n.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO TITUS

Titus, like Timothy, was a trusted friend and companion of Paul. Born of Gentile parents (Gal.2.3), he accompanied Paul to the Apostolic Council in Jerusalem (Gal.2.1; see also Acts 15), and played a significant role in collecting money from the Corinthians (2 Cor.8.6, 16-23) for the poor in Jerusalem (see Gal.2.10). This document is the earliest evidence we have for the presence of the Christian faith on the island of Crete. For more information on this letter, see the Introduction to 1 Timothy.

Training for the Christian life

1 FROM PAUL, SERVANT OF GOD AND apostle of Jesus Christ, marked as such by faith and knowledge and hope—the faith of God’s chosen people, knowledge of the truth as our 2 religion has it, and the hope of eternal life.<sup>a</sup> Yes, it is eternal life that God, 3 and now in his own good time he has openly declared himself in the proclamation which was entrusted to me
by ordinance of God our Saviour.
4 To Titus, my true-born son in the faith which we share, grace and peace from God our Father and Christ Jesus
our Saviour.
5 My intention in leaving you behind in Crete was that you should set in order what was left over, and in particular should institute elders in each town. In doing so, observe the tests I 6 prescribed: is he a man of unimpeach-
able character, faithful to his one wife,<sup>b</sup>
the father of children who are believers,
who are under no imputation of loose 7 living, and are not out of control? For as God’s steward a bishop must be a man of unimpeachable character. He must not be overbearing or short-tempered; he must be no drinker, no 8 brawler, no money-grubber, but hospitable, right-minded, temperate, just, devout, and self-controlled. He must 9 adhere to the true doctrine, so that he may be well able both to move his hearers with wholesome teaching and to confute objectors.

There are all too many, especially 10
among Jewish converts, who are out of all control; they talk wildly and lead men’s minds astray. Such men must be 11 curbed, because they are ruining whole families by teaching things they should not, and all for sordid gain. It was a 12 Cretan prophet, one of their own countrymen, who said, ‘Cretans were always liars, vicious brutes, lazy glut- 13 tons’—and he told the truth! All the more reason why you should pull them up sharply, so that they may come to a sane belief, instead of lending their ears 14 to Jewish myths and commandments of merely human origin, the work of men who turn their backs upon the truth.

To the pure all things are pure; but 15
nothing is pure to the tainted minds of disbelievers, tainted alike in reason and conscience. They profess to acknowl- 16 edge God, but deny him by their actions. Their detestable obstinacy disqualifies them for any good work.

a Or apostle of Jesus Christ, to bring God’s chosen people to faith and to a knowledge of the truth as our religion has it, with its hope for eternal life.
b See note on 1 Timothy 3. 2.

1.1-4: Salutation. 1: Knowledge of the truth: see 2 Tim.3.7 n. 3: His own good time (or, at the appropriate time): the early Christians saw in the history of Israel and the coming of Jesus the unfolding of God’s plan for the salvation of mankind. In accordance with this plan, God had sent Jesus at the time he (God) found appropriate; see Rom.5.6; Gal.4.4; Eph.1.10. 4: On Titus, see Introduction to 1 Tim.

1.5-16: The need for Christian discipline. 5: Elders: in 1 Tim.3.1-7, a similar list describes the qualifications of a bishop; see 1 Tim.3.2 n. 7: Bishop seems identical here to “elder” in v. 5. 9: Wholesome teaching: see 1 Tim.1.10 n. 10-11: The problems here are similar to those discussed in 1 Tim.1.3-4; 6.4-5; 2 Tim.2.14,16; 3.6-7. 12: Cretan prophet: probably Epimenides (sixth century B.C.). 14: Jewish myths and commandments: see 1 Tim.4.3 n. 15: To the pure: probably meant here in the sense that a man’s inner quality determines whether what he perceives and expresses will be good or evil; see Mt.7:16-18. Compare Rom.14.14, where it refers to dietary practices.

2 For your own part, what you say must be in keeping with wholesome doctrine. Let the older men know that they should be sober, high-principled, and temperate, sound in faith, in love, and in endurance. The older women, similarly, should be reverent in their bearing, not scandal-mongers or slaves to strong drink; they must set a high standard, and school the younger women to be loving wives and mothers, temperate, chaste, and kind, busy at home, respecting the authority of their own husbands. Thus the Gospel will not be brought into disrepute.

6 Urge the younger men, similarly, to be temperate in all things, and set them a good example yourself. In your teaching, you must show integrity and high principle, and use wholesome speech to which none can take exception. This will shame any opponent, when he finds not a word to say to our discredit.

9 Tell slaves to respect their masters' authority in everything, and to comply with their demands without answering back; not to pilfer, but to show themselves strictly honest and trustworthy; for in all such ways they will add lustre to the doctrine of God our Saviour.

11 For the grace of God has dawned upon the world with healing for all mankind; and by it we are disciplined to renounce godless ways and worldly desires, and to live a life of temperance, honesty, and godliness in the present age, looking forward to the happy fulfilment of our hope when the splendour of our great God and Saviour<sup>c</sup> Christ Jesus will appear. He it is who sacrificed himself for us, to set us free from all wickedness and to make us a pure people marked out for his own, eager to do good.

These, then, are your themes; urge 15 them and argue them. And speak with authority: let no one slight you.

Remind them to be submissive to the 3 government and the authorities, to obey them, and to be ready for any honourable form of work;<sup>d</sup> to slander 2 no one, not to pick quarrels, to show forbearance and a consistently gentle disposition towards all men.

For at one time we ourselves in our 3 folly and obstinacy were all astray. We were slaves to passions and pleasures of every kind. Our days were passed in malice and envy; we were odious ourselves and we hated one another. But 4 when the kindness and generosity of God our Saviour dawned upon the world, then, not for any good deeds of 5 our own, but because he was merciful, he saved us through the water of rebirth and the renewing power of<sup>e</sup> the Holy Spirit. For he sent down the 6 Spirit upon us plentifully through Jesus Christ our Saviour, so that, justified by 7 his grace, we might in hope become heirs to eternal life. These are words 8 you may trust.

Such are the points I should wish you to insist on. Those who have come to believe in God should see that they engage in honourable occupations, which are not only honourable in themselves, but also useful to their fellowmen.<sup>f</sup> But steer clear of foolish 9 speculations, genealogies, quarrels, and controversies over the Law; they are unprofitable and pointless.

A heretic should be warned once, 10 and once again; after that, have done

<sup>c</sup> Or of the great God and our Saviour . . .

<sup>d</sup> Or ready always to do good.

<sup>e</sup> Or the water of rebirth and of renewal by . . .

<sup>f</sup> Or should make it their business to practise virtue. These precepts are good in themselves and useful to society.

2.1-3.2: All Christians must lead disciplined lives. 1: Wholesome doctrine: see 1 Tim.1.10 n. 5: Respecting the authority of their own husbands: see 1 Tim.2.11-14. 9: Slaves: see 1 Tim.6.1 n. 10: God our Saviour: see 1 Tim.1.1 n. 11: For all mankind: see 1 Tim.2.4 n. 12: These ideals also characterized the doctrine of much Hellenistic philosophy, although it did not speak of doing them by God's grace. 13: God and Saviour were titles regularly applied in the Hellenistic world to gods and emperors. 14: A pure people marked out for his own: see Exod.19.5; Deut.7.6; 14.2. 3.1: See Rom.13.1-7; 1 Tim.2.2. Cretans had a reputation as a turbulent people.

3.3-8a: God is generous in mercy. 4: God our Saviour: see 1 Tim.1.1 n. Hellenistic rulers frequently claimed generosity as a characteristic of their acts. 5: Water of rebirth means baptism; see Eph.5.26; 1 Pet.1.3. 8: Words . . . trust: see 1 Tim.1.15 n. The phrase refers here to vv. 4-7.

3.8b-15: Concluding exhortations. 8b-11: These verses serve as a summary of the author's counsel; we do not possess sufficient information to specify exactly what he meant by his references to foolish speculations, genealogies, quarrels, and controversies over the Law (see 1 Tim.1.4 n.). 10: See Mt.18.15-17; 2 Th.3.14-15. The word heretic appears only here in the

- 11 with him, recognizing that a man of that sort has a distorted mind and stands self-condemned in his sin. And our own people must be taught to 14 engage in honest employment to produce the necessities of life; they must not be unproductive.
- 12 When I send Artemas to you, or Tychicus, make haste to join me at Nicopolis, for that is where I have determined to spend the winter. Do your utmost to help Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their travels, and see that they are not short of anything. All who are with me send you 15 greetings. My greetings to those who are our friends in truth.<sup>g</sup> Grace be with you all!
- 13
- g Or our friends in the faith.*

---

NT; it is probably not meant in the formal sense it later acquired, but simply designates one whose views the author finds unacceptable. 12: It is uncertain to which of several cities named Nicopolis this refers. 13: Apollos: see Acts 18.24-19.1; he is also mentioned frequently in 1 Cor. chs. 1-4.

THE LETTER OF PAUL TO PHILEMON

This most personal of all the Pauline letters—his plea for a runaway slave—was written during an imprisonment of the apostle, probably his house arrest at Rome (61–63 A.D.). Philemon was a leading member of his community, at whose house the Christians met for worship. That he was a resident of Colossae is indicated by Col.4.7–9. It tells that Paul’s companion Tychicus would carry his letter to the Colossians, and “with him comes Onesimus,” the slave mentioned in Philem.11–16.

Onesimus has run away; the penalty for this on recapture was severe. Paul is sending him back and appeals to Philemon to receive Onesimus without punishment. He does not speak against the institution of slavery, but reminds Philemon that since Onesimus has become a Christian their relations have changed—they are now brothers in Christ.

A runaway slave

1 FROM PAUL, A PRISONER OF CHRIST
Jesus, and our colleague Timothy, 2 to Philemon our dear friend and fellow-worker, and Apphia our sister,
and Archippus our comrade-in-arms,
and the congregation at your house.

3 Grace to you and peace from God
our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I thank my God always when I
5 mention you in my prayers, for I hear of your love and faith towards the Lord Jesus and towards all God’s people.

6 My prayer is that your fellowship with us in our common faith may deepen the understanding of all the blessings that our union with Christ brings us.<sup>a</sup> For I am delighted and encouraged by your love; through you, my brother, God’s people have been much refreshed.

8 Accordingly, although in Christ I might make bold to point out your 9 duty, yet, because of that same love, I would rather appeal to you. Yes, I,
Paul, ambassador as I am of Christ
10 Jesus—and now his prisoner—appeal to you about my child, whose father I have become in this prison.

11 I mean Onesimus, once so little use to you, but now useful indeed, both to you and to me. I am sending him back to you, and in doing so I am sending a 12 part of myself. I should have liked to 13 keep him with me, to look after me as you would wish, here in prison for the Gospel. But I would rather do nothing 14 without your consent, so that your kindness may be a matter not of compulsion, but of your own free will. For 15 perhaps this is why you lost him for a time, that you might have him back for good, no longer as a slave, but as 16 more than a slave—as a dear brother, very dear indeed to me and how much dearer to you, both as man and as Christian.

If, then, you count me partner in the 17 faith, welcome him as you would welcome me. And if he has done you any 18 wrong or is in your debt, put that down to my account. Here is my signature, 19 PAUL; I undertake to repay—not to mention that you owe your very self to me as well. Now brother, as a Christian, 20 be generous with me, and relieve my anxiety; we are both in Christ!

I write to you confident that you will 21 meet my wishes; I know that you will in fact do better than I ask. And one 22 thing more: have a room ready for me,

<sup>a</sup> Or that bring us to Christ.

1–3: Salutation. The form is usual in ancient letters. 2: Congregation at your house: as yet no church edifices existed.

4–7: Prayer of thanksgiving. Such prayers are usual in Paul’s letters; see Rom.1.8–15, where he begins with “thanking my God.”

8–21: The plea for Onesimus. 10: Child . . . father: see 1 Cor.4.15. 11: Little use . . . useful indeed: the name Onesimus means “the useful one”; the verse puns on the name. 13–14: Perhaps Paul is here hinting that Philemon should send the slave back to continue his service to the apostle. 15–16: Paul acknowledges Philemon’s right to have Onesimus back for good, although the apostle’s own hope is expressed in v. 14. In any case, Philemon will henceforth know Onesimus as a brother, rather than merely as a slave. 19: The signature is this verse and for I hope that, in answer to your prayers, God will grant me to you.

23 Epaphras, Christ's captive like myself, sends you greetings. So do Mark, 24 Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke, my fellow-workers.
The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit!

---

perhaps the following ones: see 1 Cor.16.21-24 n. Owe . . . to me: an allusion to Paul's conversion of Philemon. 23-24: These companions of Paul are mentioned also in Col.4.10,11,14.

A LETTER TO HEBREWS

While the final paragraphs (see 13.18–25 n.) imply that Hebrews is a letter, in style and content it is a sermonic tract, an “exhortation” (13.22). The readers have endured great suffering because of their faith (10.32–34) and are now admonished to continue firm in their hope of salvation (e.g. 7.19), although apathy or even apostasy may seem the easier way. For backsliders into sin there is no second chance for salvation (6.4–8; 10.26–31).

The basis and content of hope is God’s gift of his Son (ch. 1), and the first chs. (1.1–10.18) expound the significance of Christ’s faithfulness (e.g. 2.18; 5.8–10) and death. The thesis is that Christ is the great high priest (8.1–2), the mediator of a new covenant (e.g. 8.6–13) who offers the one truly effective sacrifice (e.g. 9.11–14, 25–28). The last chs. (10.19–13.17) urge Christians to follow in “the new, living way” provided by Christ (10.20), as God’s pilgrim people, “seekers after the city which is to come” (13.14).

There have been many attempts to name the author of this tract (some early Christians even assigned it to Paul), but he remains anonymous. In spite of the traditional title the addressees were probably Gentile Christians. Earliest evidence of its use comes from Rome at the end of the first century, one possible clue as to its date and origin.

Christ divine and human

but of the Son,

8

1 WHEN IN FORMER TIMES GOD spoke to our forefathers, he spoke in fragmentary and varied fashion through the prophets.
2 But in this the final age he has spoken to us in the Son whom he has made heir to the whole universe, and through whom he created all orders of existence:
3 the Son who is the effulgence of God’s splendour and the stamp of God’s very being, and sustains<sup>a</sup> the universe by his word of power. When he had brought about the purgation of sins, he took his seat at the right hand of 4 Majesty on high, raised as far above the angels, as the title he has inherited is superior to theirs.
5 For God never said to any angel, ‘Thou art my Son; today I have begotten thee’, or again, ‘I will be father
6 to him, and he shall be my son.’ Again, when he presents the first-born to the world, he says, ‘Let all the angels of 7 God pay him homage.’ Of the angels he says,

‘Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever,
and the sceptre<sup>b</sup> of justice is the sceptre of his kingdom.
Thou hast loved right and hated wrong;
therefore, O God, thy God<sup>c</sup> has set thee above thy fellows, by anointing with the oil of exultation.’

9

And again,

10

‘By thee, Lord, were earth’s foundations laid of old,
and the heavens are the work of thy hands.
They shall pass away, but thou endurest;
like clothes they shall all grow old; thou shalt fold them up like a cloak; yes, they shall be changed like any garment.
But thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end.’

11

12

‘He who makes his angels winds,
and his ministers a fiery flame’;

a Or bears along.
b Or God is thy throne for ever and ever, and thy sceptre . . .
c Or therefore God who is thy God . . .

1.1–3.6a: The supremacy of Christ and the significance of his suffering.
1.1–14: Christ’s supremacy over the angels. 2–3a: See Jn.1.1–3; Wis.7.25. 3: The idea of Christ’s exaltation to a position of supreme authority (right hand) in the heavenly “court” is derived from Ps.110.1 which is quoted in v. 13; 5.6; 7.21 where it is applied to Christ. 4: Jesus’ title is “Son”; see vv. 2–3.5. 5: Ps.2.7 (see Mt.3.17); 2 Sam.7.14. 6: Deut.32.43 Sept. (see Ps.97.7). 7: Ps.104.4. 8–9: Ps.45.6–7. 10–12: Ps.102.25–27. 13: Ps.110.1.

13 To which of the angels has he ever said, 'Sit at my right hand until I make thy enemies thy footstool'? What are they all but ministrant spirits, sent out to serve, for the sake of those who are to inherit salvation?

2 Thus we are bound to pay all the more heed to what we have been told, for fear of drifting from our course.

2 For if the word spoken through angels had such force that any transgression or disobedience met with due retribution, what escape can there be for us if we ignore a deliverance so great? For this deliverance was first announced through the lips of the Lord himself; those who heard him confirmed it to us, and God added his testimony by signs, by miracles, by manifold works of power, and by distributing the gifts of the Holy Spirit at his own will.

5 For it is not to angels that he has subjected the world to come, which is our theme. But there is somewhere a solemn assurance which runs:

'What is man, that thou rememberest him,
or the son of man, that thou hast regard to him?

7 Thou didst make him for a short while lower than the angels; thou didst crown him with glory and honour;
8 thou didst put all things in subjection beneath his feet.'

For in subjecting all things to him, he left nothing that is not subject. But in fact we do not yet see all things in subjection to man. In Jesus, however, we do see one who<sup>d</sup> for a short while was made lower than the angels, crowned now with glory and honour because he suffered death, so that, by God's gracious will, in tasting death he should stand<sup>e</sup> for us all.

It was clearly fitting that God for 10 whom and through whom all things exist should, in bringing many sons to glory, make the leader who delivers them perfect through sufferings. For a 11 consecrating priest and those whom he consecrates are all of one stock; and that is why the Son does not shrink from calling men his brothers, when he 12 says, 'I will proclaim thy name to my brothers; in full assembly I will sing thy praise'; and again, 'I will keep my trust 13 fixed on him'; and again, 'Here am I, and the children whom God has given me.' The children of a family share the 14 same flesh and blood; and so he too shared ours, so that through death he might break the power of him who had death at his command, that is, the 15 devil; and might liberate those who, through fear of death, had all their lifetime been in servitude. It is not 16 angels, mark you, that he takes to himself, but the sons of Abraham. And therefore he had to be made like 17 these brothers of his in every way, so that he might be merciful and faithful as their high priest before God, to expiate the sins of the people. For since 18 he himself has passed through the test of suffering, he is able to help those who are meeting their test now.

Therefore, brothers in the family of 3 God, who share a heavenly calling, think of the Apostle and High Priest of the religion we profess,<sup>f</sup> who was 2 faithful to God who appointed him. Moses also was faithful in God's household; and Jesus, of whom I speak, 3 has been deemed worthy of greater honour than Moses, as the founder of a house enjoys more honour than his household. For every house has its 4 founder; and the founder of all is God.

<sup>d</sup> Or in subjection to him. But we see Jesus, who . . .

<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses read so that apart from God he should taste death . . .

<sup>f</sup> Or of him whom we confess as God's Envoy and High Priest.

2.1-18: The significance of Christ's suffering. 2: See, e.g. Acts 7.53. 3-4: There is a triple witness to salvation: Christ, the apostles, and God himself, whose power is manifest in many wondrous deeds and in diverse spiritual gifts. 6-8: Ps.8.4-6 Sept. 10: See 5.8-10. 11: Christ, the priest, and those whom he consecrates are all sons of God. 12: Ps.22.22. 13: Isa.8.17-18. 17: See 4.14-5.10. 18: Christ's sacrifice is effective for salvation because he, through the trials of temptation and persecution, is able to identify fully with human suffering. See 4.15.

3.1-6a: Christ's supremacy over Moses. 1: Christ is God's Apostle to men, and as High Priest he is the mediator between God and men. 2-6: The author supports Christ's supremacy by arguing that, while Moses was a servant in God's . . . household (Num.12.7), Jesus is the master's son.

5 Moses, then, was faithful as a servitor in God's whole household; his task was to bear witness to the words that God 6 would speak; but Christ is faithful as a son, set over his household. And we are that household of his, if only we are fearless and keep our hope high.

7 'TODAY', THEREFORE, AS THE HOLY Spirit says—

'Today if you hear his voice, 8 do not grow stubborn as in those days of rebellion,
at that time of testing in the desert, 9 where your forefathers tried me and tested me,
and saw<sup>g</sup> the things I did for forty years.
10 And so, I was indignant with that generation
and I said, Their hearts are for ever astray;
they would not discern my ways;
11 as I vowed in my anger, they shall never enter my rest.'

12 See to it, brothers, that no one among you has the wicked, faithless heart of a deserter from the living God;
13 but day by day, while that word
'Today' still sounds in your ears, encourage one another, so that no one of you is made stubborn by the wiles 14 of sin. For we have become Christ's partners<sup>h</sup> if only we keep our original confidence firm to the end.

15 When Scripture says, 'Today if you hear his voice, do not grow stubborn as 16 in those days of rebellion', who, I ask,
were those who heard and rebelled?
All those, surely, whom Moses had led 17 out of Egypt. And with whom was God indignant for forty years? With those, surely, who had sinned, whose bodies lay where they fell in the desert.

And to whom did he vow that they 18 should not enter his rest, if not to those who had refused to believe? We per- 19
ceive that it was unbelief which prevented their entering.

Therefore we must have before us the 4 fear that while the promise of entering his rest remains open, one or another among you should be found to have missed his chance. For indeed we have 2 heard the good news, as they did. But in them the message they heard did no good, because it met with no faith in those who heard it. It is we, we who 3 have become believers, who enter the rest referred to in the words, 'As I vowed in my anger, they shall never enter my rest.' Yet God's work has been finished ever since the world was created; for does not Scripture some- 4
where speak thus of the seventh day:
'God rested from all his work on the seventh day'?—and once again in the 5 passage above we read, 'They shall never enter my rest.' The fact remains 6 that someone must enter it, and since those who first heard the good news failed to enter through unbelief, God 7 fixes another day. Speaking through the lips of David after many long years,
he uses the words already quoted:
'Today if you hear his voice, do not grow stubborn.' If Joshua had given 8 them rest, God would not thus have spoken of another day after that.
Therefore, a sabbath rest still awaits 9
the people of God; for anyone who 10 enters God's rest, rests from his own work as God did from his. Let us then 11 make every effort to enter that rest, so that no one may fall by following this evil example of unbelief.

For the word of God is alive and 12 active. It cuts more keenly than any <sup>g</sup> Or though they saw . . .

<sup>h</sup> Or have been given a share in Christ.

3.6b-4.13: The danger of unbelief. Characteristically, this author turns from theological exposition (1.1-3.6a) to ethical exhortation. He begins with a lengthy exposition of Scripture (3.7-11) which is applied to the readers' present needs. 6b: God's people must keep their hope high lest they fall into unbelief (see vv.14,18-19; 4.11). 7-11: Ps.95.7-11. 12-13: Israel's misadventures in the wilderness should serve as warning to Christians who may be faced with the temptation to apathy or apostasy. 14: Christians are Christ's partners if they remain loyal sons in God's household; see v. 1; 2.11-17. 15: See vv. 7-8. 17: Num.14.29. 18: The rest which awaited those who were obedient (v. 11; Num.14.22-23) was the promised land of Canaan. 4.1-2: God's rest (3.18) is interpreted as the final promised salvation which Christians, like Israel, can attain only by faithfulness. 3: Ps.95.11. 4: Gen.2.2. 5: See v. 3. 6: Israel disobeyed, but the promise was renewed. 7: Ps.95.7-8 (see 3.7-11). 8: Joshua's settlement of Canaan

two-edged sword, piercing as far as the place where life and spirit, joints and marrow, divide. It sifts the purposes and thoughts of the heart. There is nothing in creation that can hide from him; everything lies naked and exposed to the eyes of the One with whom we have to reckon.

14 Since therefore we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast to the religion we profess.

15 For ours is not a high priest unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but one who, because of his likeness to us, has been tested every way,<sup>i</sup> only without sin. Let us therefore boldly approach the throne of our gracious God, where we may receive mercy and in his grace find timely help.

The shadow and the real

5 FOR EVERY HIGH PRIEST IS TAKEN FROM among men and appointed their representative before God, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. He is able to bear patiently with the ignorant and erring, since he too is beset by weakness; and because of this he is bound to make sin-offerings for himself no less than for the people. And nobody arrogates the honour to himself: he is called by God, as indeed Aaron was.

5 So it is with Christ: he did not confer upon himself the glory of becoming high priest; it was granted by God, who said to him, 'Thou art my Son; today I have begotten thee'; as also in another place he says, 'Thou art a priest for ever, in the succession of Mel-chizedek.' In the days of his earthly life he offered up prayers and petitions, with loud cries and tears, to God who was able to deliver him from the grave. Because of his humble submission his prayer was heard: son though he was, he learned obedience in the school of suffering, and, once perfected, became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him, named by God high priest in the succession of Melchizedek.

About Melchizedek we have much to say, much that is difficult to explain, now that you have grown so dull of hearing. For indeed, though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you the ABC of God's oracles over again; it has come to this, that you need milk instead of solid food. Anyone who lives on milk, being an infant, does not know<sup>j</sup> what is right. But grown men can take solid food; their perceptions are trained by long use to discriminate between good and evil.

Let us then stop discussing the rudiments of Christianity. We ought not to be laying over again the foundations of faith in God and of repentance from the deadness of our former ways, by instruction<sup>k</sup> about cleansing rites and the laying-on-of-hands, about the resurrection of the dead and eternal judgement. Instead, let us advance towards maturity; and so we shall, if God permits.

For when men have once been enlightened, when they have had a taste of the heavenly gift and a share in the

i Or who has been tested every way, as we are.
j Or is incompetent to speak of . . .
k Or, according to some witnesses, laying the foundations over again: repentance from the deadness of our former ways and faith in God, instruction . . .

(Deut.31.7; Josh. ch. 22) did not fulfill the promise, for it had to be issued again "through . . . David" (v. 7); see Ps.95.7-8. 12-13: The word of God probes and judges all creation.

4.14-5.10: Christ, the great high priest. This is the author's most important way of interpreting the meaning of Christ's redemptive work. The development of the idea is interrupted temporarily by exhortations (5.11-6.12; see 3.6b-4.13 n.), but then resumed at 6.13. 14-16: God's mercy and grace are sure because Christ himself withstood the trials of our weaknesses . . . without sin, and thereby serves as the effective mediator between men and God. See 2.17-18. 5.1-4: See Ex.28.1; Lev.9.7; 16.6. 5: See 1.5 n. 6: Ps.110.4. See 7.1-10 n. 7-8: See the stories of Jesus' passion, e.g. Mt.26.36-46. 9-10: See 9.24-28.

5.11-6.12: Warning against backsliding. 11-14: The explanation of Melchizedek's priesthood is deferred (see ch. 7). First, the readers need to be nurtured by the milk of some basic instruction about discerning good and evil. 6.1-3: Certain rudiments of Christianity, like faith, repentance, resurrection and judgement, ought to be self-evident. (It is not clear what cleansing rites and the laying-on-of-hands refer to.) Once the basic Christian doctrines have been understood, it is essential that one advance towards maturity, i.e. give himself over to that perfect consecration to God's service which Christ's sacrifice has made possible (10.12-14). 4-8: For sins committed after 5 Holy Spirit, when they have experienced the goodness of God's word and the spiritual energies of the age to come, and after all this have fallen away, it is impossible to bring them again to repentance; for with their own hands they are crucifying<sup>l</sup> the Son of God and making mock of his death.

7 When the earth drinks in the rain that falls upon it from time to time, and yields a useful crop to those for whom it is cultivated, it is receiving its share of blessing from God; but if it bears thorns and thistles, it is worthless and God's curse hangs over it; the end of that is burning. But although we speak as we do, we are convinced that you, my friends, are in the better case, and this makes for your salvation. For God would not be so unjust as to forget all that you did for love of his name, when you rendered service to his people, as you still do. But we long for every one of you to show the same eager concern, until your hope is finally realized. We want you not to become lazy, but to imitate those who, through faith and patience, are inheriting the promises.

13 When God made his promise to Abraham, he swore by himself, because he had no one greater to swear by: 'I vow that I will bless you abundantly and multiply your descendants.' Thus it was that Abraham, after patient waiting, attained the promise. Men swear by a greater than themselves, and the oath provides a confirmation to end all dispute; and so God, desiring to show even more clearly to the heirs of his promise how unchanging was his purpose, guaranteed it by oath. Here, then, are two irrevocable acts in which

God could not possibly play us false, to give powerful encouragement to us, who have claimed his protection by grasping<sup>m</sup> the hope set before us. That hope we hold. It is like an anchor for our lives, an anchor safe and sure. It enters in through the veil, where Jesus<sup>20</sup> has entered on our behalf as forerunner, having become a high priest for ever in the succession of Melchizedek.

THIS MELCHIZEDEK, KING OF SALEM, 7 priest of God Most High, met Abraham returning from the rout of the kings and blessed him; and Abraham gave 2 him a tithe of everything as his portion. His name, in the first place, means 'king of righteousness'; next he is king of Salem, that is, 'king of peace'. He 3 has no father, no mother, no lineage; his years have no beginning, his life no end. He is like the Son of God: he remains a priest for all time.

Consider now how great he must be 4 for Abraham the patriarch to give him a tithe of the finest of the spoil. The 5 descendants of Levi who take the priestly office are commanded by the Law to tithe the people, that is, their kinsmen, although they too are descendants of Abraham. But Melchizedek, 6 though he does not trace his descent from them, has tithed Abraham himself, and given his blessing to the man who received the promises; and beyond 7 all dispute the lesser is always blessed by the greater. Again, in the one 8 instance tithes are received by men who must die; but in the other, by one whom Scripture affirms to be alive. It 9 baptism no amount of repentance will suffice; backsliders have no second chance (see 10.26-31; 2 Pet.2.20-22). They remain under a curse like Adam (vv. 7-8; see Gen.1.11-12; 3.17-18). 9-12: Here the writer addresses those who, however, still show faith, hope and love and for whom salvation is still in prospect if they remain true to their baptismal vows.

<sup>l</sup> Or crucifying again.

<sup>m</sup> Or to give to us, who have claimed his protection, a powerful incentive to grasp . . .

6.13-10.18: The new covenant. The writer now returns (see 4.14-5.10) to his theological discussion. His aim in what follows is to demonstrate that Christ mediates, and by his death effectively seals, a new covenant for forgiveness of sins (10.16-18). This point is made by contrasting the redemptive character of Jesus' life, death, and exaltation with the inferior rites of the Jewish sacrificial system.

6.13-8.13: Christ is a new high priest. 13-18: Two irrevocable acts show God's faithfulness to Abraham, his promise and his oath; see Gen.22.16-17. 19-20: The veil of the Temple in Jerusalem guarded its innermost sanctuary which was entered only once a year and only by the high priest; see 9.1-5. This priestly function of opening an approach to God for the people is now served by Jesus; see 4.14-5.10. 7.1-10: Melchizedek (see Gen.14.17-20) is called a priest for all time (v. 3) because Scripture happens to say nothing about either his birth or his death. He is thus the prototype of Christ, the eternal high priest (see vv. 23-25). 8: The Levitical priests might even be said that Levi, who receives tithes, has himself been tithed through Abraham; for he was still in his ancestor's loins when Melchizedek met him.

11 Now if perfection had been attainable through the Levitical priesthood (for it is on this basis that the people were given the Law), what further need would there have been to speak of another priest arising, in the succession of Melchizedek, instead of the succession of Aaron? For a change of priesthood must mean a change of law. And the one here spoken of belongs to a different tribe, no member of which has ever had anything to do with the altar. For it is very evident that our Lord is sprung from Judah, a tribe to which Moses made no reference in speaking of priests.

15 The argument becomes still clearer, if the new priest who arises is one like Melchizedek, owing his priesthood not to a system of earth-bound rules but to the power of a life that cannot be destroyed. For here is the testimony: 'Thou art a priest for ever, in the succession of Melchizedek.' The earlier rules are cancelled as impotent and useless, since the Law brought nothing to perfection; and a better hope is introduced, through which we draw near to God.

20 How great a difference it makes that an oath was sworn! There was no oath sworn when those others were made priests; but for this priest an oath was sworn, as Scripture says of him: 'The Lord has sworn and will not go back on his word, "Thou art a priest for ever."' How far superior must the covenant also be of which Jesus is the guarantor! Those other priests are appointed in numerous succession, because they are prevented by death from continuing in office; but the priesthood which Jesus holds is perpetual, because he remains for ever. That is why he is also able to save absolutely those who approach God through him; he is always living to plead on their behalf.

Such a high priest does indeed fit our condition—devout, guileless, undefiled, separated from sinners, raised high above the heavens. He has no need to offer sacrifices daily, as the high priests do, first for his own sins and then for those of the people; for this he did once and for all when he offered up himself. The high priests made by the Law are men in all their frailty; but the priest appointed by the words of the oath which supersedes the Law is the Son, made perfect now for ever.

NOW THIS IS MY MAIN POINT: JUST SUCH a high priest we have, and he has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of Majesty in the heavens, a ministrant in the real sanctuary, the tent pitched by the Lord and not by man. Every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; hence, this one too must have<sup>n</sup> something to offer. Now if he had been on earth, he could not even have been a priest, since there are already priests who offer the gifts which the Law prescribes, though they minister in a sanctuary which is only a copy and shadow of the heavenly. This is implied when Moses, about to erect the tent, is instructed by God: 'See to it that you make everything according to the pattern shown you on the mountain.' But in fact the ministry which has fallen to Jesus is as far superior to theirs as are the covenant he mediates and the promises upon which it is legally secured.

<sup>n</sup> Or must have had.

are mortal, Melchizedek is not. 11-14: The inferiority of the old priesthood required the institution of a new order of priests which, in turn, involved a change of law. Under the old law priests were chosen only from the tribe of Levi (see Num.18.21-24), but Jesus was from the tribe of Judah. 15-19: Christ's priesthood depends on no legal statute of the Pentateuch, but rather on the uniqueness of his own person as God's eternal Son (see 1.1-4; 13.8). Therefore he secures for the people a better hope (v. 19). 17: Ps.110.4. 20-25: The author resumes his argument that Jesus' priestly office was conferred by a divine oath (Ps.110.4; see 6.13-18). Because death does not terminate his service he is able to save absolutely. 26-28: The preceding argument is summarized: Christ's priestly mediation is alone redemptive because he is God's Son, himself without sin, appointed to his office by . . . the oath, not the Law, and because he offers the once and for all sacrifice of his own life and subsequently is raised high above the heavens to be with God. See 9.11-12.

8.1-13: Christ exercises his priesthood in the Lord's sanctuary, not in man's. This intensifies

7 Had that first covenant been faultless, there would have been no need to look
8 for a second in its place. But God, finding fault with them, says, 'The days are coming, says the Lord, when I will conclude a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah.
9 It will not be like the covenant I made with their forefathers when I took them by the hand to lead them out of Egypt; because they did not abide by the terms of that covenant, and I abandoned
10 them, says the Lord. For the covenant I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord, is this: I will set my laws in their understanding and write them on their hearts; and I will be their God, and they shall be 11 my people. And they shall not teach one another, saying to brother and fellow-citizen,<sup>o</sup> "Know the Lord!" For all of them, high and low, shall know
12 me; I will be merciful to their wicked deeds, and I will remember their sins
13 no more.' By speaking of a new covenant, he has pronounced the first one old; and anything that is growing old and ageing will shortly disappear.

9 THE FIRST COVENANT INDEED HAD ITS ordinances of divine service and its sanctuary, but a material sanctuary.
2 For a tent was prepared—the first tent—in which was the lamp-stand, and the table with the bread of the Presence; this is called the Holy Place.
3 Beyond the second curtain was the tent called the Most Holy Place. Here was a golden altar of incense, and the ark of the covenant plated all over with gold, in which were a golden jar containing the manna, and Aaron's staff which once budded, and the tablets of the covenant; and above it the cherubim of God's glory, overshadowing the place of expiation. On these we cannot now enlarge.

Under this arrangement, the priests 6 are always entering the first tent in the discharge of their duties; but the 7 second is entered only once a year, and by the high priest alone, and even then he must take with him the blood which he offers on his own behalf and for the people's sins of ignorance. By this the 8 Holy Spirit signifies that so long as the earlier tent still stands, the way into the sanctuary remains unrevealed. All 9 this is symbolic, pointing to the present time. The offerings and sacrifices there prescribed cannot give the worshipper inward perfection. It is only a matter 10 of food and drink and various rites of cleansing—outward ordinances in force until the time of reformation.

But now Christ has come, high priest 11 of good things already in being.<sup>p</sup> The tent of his priesthood is a greater and more perfect one, not made by men's hands, that is, not belonging to this created world; the blood of his sacrifice 12 is his own blood, not the blood of goats and calves; and thus he has entered the sanctuary once and for all and secured an eternal deliverance. For if the blood 13 of goats and bulls and the sprinkled ashes of a heifer have power to hallow those who have been defiled and restore their external purity, how much greater 14 is the power of the blood of Christ; he offered himself without blemish to God, a spiritual and eternal sacrifice; and his blood will cleanse our conscience from the deadness of our former ways and fit us for the service of the living God.

And therefore he is the mediator of 15 a new covenant, or testament, under which, now that there has been a death to bring deliverance from sins committed under the former covenant, those whom God has called may the author's view that there is a new covenant by which the old cultus has been rendered obsolete, a theme developed in several ways in the tract. 8–12: Jer. 31. 31–34.

<sup>o</sup> Some witnesses read brother and neighbour.

<sup>p</sup> Some witnesses read good things which were (or are) to be.

9.1–10.18: A new and better sacrifice is offered by Christ. 1–10: These verses provide an idealized picture of the earthly place of sacrifice. 1–5: See Ex. chs. 25–26. 6–9: Under the old system only the high priest is permitted into the inmost sanctuary (beyond the second curtain), and he must first atone for his own and his family's sins (v. 7; Lev. ch. 16). 10–12: The new covenant brings a time of reformation (v. 10), for with Christ as high priest (v. 11) the annual rites are replaced by one perfect sacrifice effective for eternal deliverance (v. 12). 13–14: This priest's sacrificial offering is without blemish (see 4.15; 5.9) and it therefore achieves an inward cleansing for God's people. 15–22: God's new covenant with his people is compared to a human testament which is receive the promise of the eternal inheritance. For where there is a testator it is necessary for the death of the testator to be established. A testament is operative only after a death: it cannot possibly have force while the testator is alive. Thus we find that the former covenant itself was not inaugurated without blood. For when, as the Law directed, Moses had recited all the commandments to the people, he took the blood of the calves, with water, scarlet wool, and marjoram, and sprinkled the law-book itself and all the people, saying, 'This is the blood of the covenant which God has enjoined upon you.' In the same way he also sprinkled the tent and all the vessels of divine service with blood. Indeed, according to the Law, it might almost be said, everything is cleansed by blood and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness.

If, then, these sacrifices cleanse the copies of heavenly things, those heavenly things themselves require better sacrifices to cleanse them. For Christ has entered, not that sanctuary made by men's hands which is only a symbol of the reality, but heaven itself, to appear now before God on our behalf. Nor is he there to offer himself again and again, as the high priest enters the sanctuary year by year with blood not his own. If that were so, he would have had to suffer many times since the world was made. But as it is, he has appeared once and for all at the climax of history to abolish sin by the sacrifice of himself. And as it is the lot of men to die once, and after death comes judgment, so Christ was offered once to bear the burden of men's sins,<sup>q</sup> and will appear a second time, sin done away, to bring salvation to those who are watching for him.

10 FOR THE LAW CONTAINS BUT A SHADOW, and no true image,<sup>r</sup> of the good things which were to come; it provides for the same sacrifices year after year, and with these it can never bring the worshippers to perfection for all time.<sup>s</sup> If it could, these sacrifices would surely have ceased to be offered, because the worshippers, cleansed once for all, would no longer have any sense of sin. But instead, in these sacrifices year after year sins are brought to mind, because sins can never be removed by the blood of bulls and goats.

That is why, at his coming into the world, he says:

'Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire,
but thou hast prepared a body for me.
Whole-offerings and sin-offerings thou didst not delight in.
Then I said, "Here am I: as it is written of me in the scroll,
I have come, O God, to do thy will."'

First he says, 'Sacrifices and offerings, whole-offerings and sin-offerings, thou didst not desire nor delight in'—although the Law prescribes them—and then he says, 'I have come to do thy will.' He thus annuls the former to establish the latter. And it is by the will of God that we have been consecrated, through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once and for all.

Every priest stands performing his service daily and offering time after time the same sacrifices, which can never remove sins. But Christ offered for all time one sacrifice for sins, and took his seat at the right hand of God, where he waits henceforth until his enemies are made his footstool. For by one offering he has perfected for all time those who are thus consecrated. Here we have also the testimony of the Holy Spirit: he first says, 'This is the operative only after the testator's death. Similarly, the new covenant is inaugurated by Christ's death. 18–22: Ex.24.3–8. 23–28: The main points of the discussion are again summarized (see vv. 26–28), and attention is directed to the salvation which awaits believers (v. 28). 10.1–18: The Law does not lead to salvation. It betrays its own inferiority in dealing with sin by providing for repeated sacrifices. In contrast, Christ's sacrifice is once and for all (v. 10), therefore, self-validating. 5–7: Ps.40.6–8 Sept., cited as Jesus' own words. 8–10: In Christ's sacrifice the old system is annulled and God's people are now consecrated for true obedience. 12–13: Ps.110.1. 16–17: Jer.31.33–34. 18: See vv. 11–12.

<sup>q</sup> Or to remove men's sins.

<sup>r</sup> One witness reads a shadow and likeness . . .

<sup>s</sup> Or bring to perfection the worshippers who come continually.

covenant which I will make with them after those days, says the Lord: I will set my laws in their hearts and write them on their understanding'; then he adds, 'and their sins and wicked deeds I will remember no more at all.' And where these have been forgiven, there are offerings for sin no longer.

19 SO NOW, MY FRIENDS, THE BLOOD OF Jesus makes us free to enter boldly into the sanctuary by the new, living way which he has opened for us through the curtain, the way of his flesh.<sup>1</sup> We have, moreover, a great priest set over the household of God; so let us make our approach in sincerity of heart and full assurance of faith, our guilty hearts sprinkled clean, our bodies washed with pure water. Let us be firm and unswerving in the confession of our hope, for the Giver of the promise may be trusted. We ought to see how each of us may best arouse others to love and active goodness, not staying away from our meetings, as some do, but rather encouraging one another, all the more because you see the Day drawing near.

26 For if we wilfully persist in sin after receiving the knowledge of the truth, no sacrifice for sins remains: only a terrifying expectation of judgement and a fierce fire which will consume God's enemies. If a man disregards the Law of Moses, he is put to death without pity on the evidence of two or three witnesses. Think how much more severe a penalty that man will deserve who has trampled under foot the Son of God, profaned the blood of the covenant by which he was consecrated, and affronted God's gracious Spirit! For we know who it is that has said, 'Justice is mine: I will repay'; and again, 'The Lord will judge his people.' It is a terrible thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

Remember the days gone by, when, newly enlightened, you met the challenge of great sufferings and held firm. Some of you were abused and tormented to make a public show, while others stood loyally by those who were so treated. For indeed you shared the sufferings of the prisoners, and you cheerfully accepted the seizure of your possessions, knowing that you possessed something better and more lasting. Do not then throw away your confidence, for it carries a great reward. You need endurance, if you are to do God's will and win what he has promised. For 'soon, very soon' (in the words of Scripture), 'he who is to come will come; he will not delay; and by faith my righteous servant shall find life; but if a man shrinks back, I take no pleasure in him.' But we are not among those who shrink back and are lost; we have the faith to make life our own.

A call to faith

AND WHAT IS FAITH? FAITH GIVES substance<sup>2</sup> to our hopes, and makes us certain of realities we do not see.

It is for their faith that the men of old stand on record.

By faith we perceive that the universe was fashioned by the word of God, so that the visible came forth from the invisible.

By faith, Abel offered a sacrifice greater than Cain's, and through faith his goodness was attested, for his offerings had God's approval; and through faith he continued to speak after his death.

By faith Enoch was carried away to another life without passing through

<sup>1</sup> Or through the curtain of his flesh.
<sup>2</sup> Or assurance.

10.19-13.17: Exhortations to live as God's pilgrim people. The theological discussion now gives way entirely to practical appeals. The hope enshrined in the new covenant and sealed by Christ's sacrifice should sustain and shape the life of God's people in this world. 19-39: The author renews his plea that Christians remain firm and unswerving in the face of their difficulties. The exalted Christ is their new, living way to God (compare Jn.14.6). 26-31: See 6.4-8 n. 28: See, e.g. Deut.17.6. 30: Deut.32.35-36; Ps.135.14. 31: See 12.29. 32-39: Earlier post-conversion zeal should not be abandoned. 37-38: Hab.2.3-4.

11.1-40: Examples of faith from Scripture are rehearsed to support the preceding exhortations. 1: Faith, in this writer's view, means primarily holding fast to hope. See, e.g. vv.22-23; 6.11-12,19; 7.18-19. 3: Gen. ch. 1. 4: Gen.4.3-10. 5: Gen.5.21-24. 7: Gen.6.13-22. 8-9: Gen.12.1-8.

death; he was not to be found, because God had taken him. For it is the testimony of Scripture that before he was taken he had pleased God, and without faith it is impossible to please him; for anyone who comes to God must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who search for him.

By faith Noah, divinely warned about the unseen future, took good heed and built an ark to save his household. Through his faith he put the whole world in the wrong, and made good his own claim to the righteousness which comes of faith.

By faith Abraham obeyed the call to go out to a land destined for himself and his heirs, and left home without knowing where he was to go. By faith he settled as an alien in the land promised him, living in tents, as did Isaac and Jacob, who were heirs to the same promise. For he was looking forward to the city with firm foundations, whose architect and builder is God.

By faith even Sarah herself received strength to conceive, though she was past the age, because she judged that he who had promised would keep faith; and therefore from one man, and one as good as dead, there sprang descendants numerous as the stars or as the countless grains of sand on the sea-shore.

All these persons died in faith. They were not yet in possession of the things promised, but had seen them far ahead and hailed them, and confessed themselves no more than strangers or passing travellers on earth. Those who use such language show plainly that they are looking for a country of their own. If their hearts had been in the country they had left, they could have found opportunity to return. Instead, we find them longing for a better country—I mean, the heavenly one. That is why God is not ashamed to be called their God; for he has a city ready for them.

By faith Abraham, when the test

came, offered up Isaac: he had received the promises, and yet he was on the point of offering his only son, of whom he had been told, "Through the line of Isaac your descendants shall be traced."<sup>v</sup> For he reckoned that God had power even to raise from the dead—and from the dead, he did, in a sense, receive him back.

By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau and spoke of things to come. By faith Jacob, as he was dying, blessed each of Joseph's sons, and worshipped God, leaning on the top of his staff. By faith Joseph, at the end of his life, spoke of the departure of Israel from Egypt, and instructed them what to do with his bones.

By faith, when Moses was born, his parents hid him for three months, because they saw what a fine child he was; they were not afraid of the king's edict. By faith Moses, when he grew up, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, preferring to suffer hardship with the people of God rather than enjoy the transient pleasures of sin. He considered the stigma that rests on God's Anointed greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt, for his eyes were fixed upon the coming day of recompense. By faith he left Egypt, and not because he feared the king's anger; for he was resolute, as one who saw the invisible God.

By faith he celebrated the Passover and sprinkled the blood, so that the destroying angel might not touch the first-born of Israel. By faith they crossed the Red Sea as though it were dry land, whereas the Egyptians, when they attempted the crossing, were drowned.

By faith the walls of Jericho fell down after they had been encircled on seven successive days. By faith the prostitute Rahab escaped the doom of the un-

<sup>v</sup> Or: God's call shall be for your descendants in the line of Isaac.

10: The city is the new, spiritual Jerusalem; see, e.g. Rev. ch. 21. 11: Gen.18.9-15; 21.2. 12: Gen.15.5; 22.17-18. 13-16: Faith is hopeful pilgrimage toward the city of God, i.e. into God's presence; see 13.14. 17: Gen. ch. 22. 18: Gen.21.12. 19: Isaac was offered but did not die (Gen.22.13). 20: Gen.27.27-29,39-40. 21: Gen. ch. 48; 47.31 Sept. 22: Gen.50.24-25. 23: Ex.2.2; 1.22. 24-26: Moses' suffering is regarded as obedience to the example of Jesus, God's Anointed, who also shared the lot of the people of God (see Rom.15.3; Ex.2.10-15). 27: Ex.12.40-51. 28: Ex.12.21-30. 29: Ex.14.5-31. 30: Josh. ch. 6. 31: The basis is Josh.2.1-21; 6.22-25.

believers, because she had given the spies a kindly welcome.

32 Need I say more? Time is too short for me to tell the stories of Gideon, Barak, Samson, and Jephthah, of David and Samuel and the prophets. 33 Through faith they overthrew kingdoms, established justice, saw God's promises fulfilled. They muzzled ravenging lions, quenched the fury of fire, escaped death by the sword. Their weakness was turned to strength, they grew powerful in war, they put foreign armies to rout. Women received back their dead raised to life. Others were tortured to death, disdaining release, 34 to win a better resurrection. Others, again, had to face jeers and flogging, even fetters and prison bars. They were stoned,<sup>w</sup> they were sawn in two, they were put to the sword, they went about dressed in skins of sheep or goats, in 38 poverty, distress, and misery. They were too good for a world like this. They were refugees in deserts and on the hills, hiding in caves and holes in the ground. These also, one and all, are commemorated for their faith; and yet they did not enter upon the promised 40 inheritance, because, with us in mind, God had made a better plan, that only in company with us should they reach their perfection.

12 AND WHAT OF OURSELVES? WITH ALL these witnesses to faith around us like a cloud, we must throw off every encumbrance, every sin to which we cling,<sup>x</sup> and run with resolution the race 2 for which we are entered, our eyes fixed on Jesus, on whom faith depends from start to finish: Jesus who, for the sake of the joy that lay ahead of him,<sup>y</sup> endured the cross, making light of its disgrace, and has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of God.

Think of him who submitted to such 3 opposition from sinners: that will help you not to lose heart and grow faint. In your struggle against sin, you have 4 not yet resisted to the point of shedding your blood. You have forgotten the 5 the text of Scripture which addresses you as sons and appeals to you in these words:

'My son, do not think lightly of the Lord's discipline, nor lose heart when he corrects you; for the Lord disciplines those whom 6 he loves; he lays the rod on every son whom he acknowledges.'

You must endure it as discipline: God 7 is treating you as sons. Can anyone be a son, who is not disciplined by his father? If you escape the discipline in 8 which all sons share, you must be bastards and no true sons. Again, we 9 paid due respect to the earthly fathers who disciplined us; should we not submit even more readily to our spiritual Father, and so attain life? They disciplined us for this short life 10 according to their lights; but he does so for our true welfare, so that we may share his holiness. Discipline, no doubt, 11 is never pleasant; at the time it seems painful, but in the end it yields for those who have been trained by it the peaceful harvest of an honest life. Come, 12 then, stiffen your drooping arms and shaking knees, and keep your steps 13 from wavering. Then the disabled limb will not be put out of joint, but regain its former powers.

Aim at peace with all men, and a 14 holy life. for without that no one will

<sup>w</sup> Some witnesses insert they were put to the question.
<sup>x</sup> Or every clinging sin: one witness reads the sin which all too readily distracts us.
<sup>y</sup> Or who, in place of the joy that was open to him, . . .

32: Gideon: Judg. chs. 6-8. Barak: Judg. chs. 4-5. Samson: Judg. chs. 13-16. Jephthah: Judg. chs. 11-12. David: 1 Sam. chs. 16-30; 2 Sam. chs. 1-24; 1 Kgs.1.1-2.12. Samuel: 1 Sam. chs. 1-12; 15.1-16.13. 33-34: Lions . . . fire: see Dan. chs. 6; 3. 35: 1 Kgs.17.17-24; 2 Kgs.4.25-37; 2 Macc.6.18-7.42. 36: Jer.20.2; 37.15; 38.6-13. 37: 2 Chr.24.20-21; 1 Kgs.19.10; Jer.26.23; 2 Macc.5.27. 38: 2 Macc.6.11; 10.6. 39-40: The better plan was for a new covenant mediated by Christ (9.15-28).

12.1-17: The discipline of faith. 1: The readers, like the witnesses to faith just recalled (ch. 11), should run . . . the race for salvation with disciplined resolution; see 10.39. 2: Jesus' joy was to be seated at God's right hand. See 1.3 n. 5-6: Prov. 3.11-12. 11-13: After dealing with discipline in a familial context (vv. 7-10), the author returns to the analogy of the athletic contest (see vv. 1-2). 12: Isa.35.3. 15: Deut.29.18 Sept. 16-17: Gen.25.29-34; 27.30-40.

15 see the Lord. Look to it that there is no one among you who forfeits the grace of God, no bitter, noxious weed 16 growing up to poison the whole, no immoral person, no one worldly-minded like Esau. He sold his birthright for 17 a single meal, and you know that although he wanted afterwards to claim the blessing, he was rejected; though he begged for it to the point of tears, he found no way open for second thoughts.

18 REMEMBER WHERE YOU STAND: NOT before the palpable, blazing fire of Sinai, with the darkness, gloom, and 19 whirlwind, the trumpet-blast and the oracular voice, which they heard, and 20 begged to hear no more; for they could not bear the command, 'If even an animal touches the mountain, it must 21 be stoned.' So appalling was the sight, that Moses said, 'I shudder with fear.'
 22 No, you stand before Mount Zion and the city of the living God, heavenly
 23 Jerusalem, before myriads of angels, the full concourse and assembly of the first-born citizens of heaven, and God the judge of all, and the spirits of good men
 24 made perfect, and Jesus the mediator of a new covenant, whose sprinkled blood has better things to tell than the 25 blood of Abel. See that you do not refuse to hear the voice that speaks. Those who refused to hear the oracle speaking on earth found no escape; still less shall we escape if we refuse to hear the One who speaks from heaven.
 26 Then indeed his voice shook the earth, but now he has promised, 'Yet once again I will shake not earth alone, but 27 the heavens also.' The words 'once again'—and only once—imply that the shaking of these created things means their removal, and then what is not shaken will remain. The kingdom we 28 are given is unshakable; let us therefore give thanks to God, and so worship him as he would be worshipped, with reverence and awe; for our God is a de- 29 vouring fire.

NEVER CEASE TO LOVE YOUR FELLOW- 13 Christians.

Remember to show hospitality. There 2 are some who, by so doing, have entertained angels without knowing it.

Remember those in prison as if you 3 were there with them; and those who are being maltreated, for you like them are still in the world.

Marriage is honourable; let us all keep 4 it so, and the marriage-bond inviolate; for God's judgement will fall on fornicators and adulterers.

Do not live for money; be content 5 with what you have; for God himself has said, 'I will never leave you or desert you'; and so we can take courage 6 and say, 'The Lord is my helper, I will not fear; what can man do to me?'

Remember your leaders, those who 7 first spoke God's message to you; and reflecting upon the outcome of their life and work, follow the example of their faith.

Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, 8 today, and for ever. So do not be swept 9 off your course by all sorts of outlandish teachings; it is good that our souls should gain their strength from the grace of God, and not from scruples about what we eat, which have never done any good to those who were governed by them.

Our altar is one from which<sup>z</sup> the 10 priests of the sacred tent have no right to eat. As you know, those animals 11 whose blood is brought as a sin-offering <sup>z</sup> Or one like that from which . . .

12.18-29: The true worship of God is enabled by the new covenant, not by the old. 18-21: The old covenant produces fear; see Ex.19.12-22; 20.18-20. 22-29: Glorious as the new covenant is (vv. 22-24,28), there is all the more reason for the disobedient to fear. 22: See 11.10 n. 24: Christ's blood means forgiveness, not revenge; see Gen.4.10. 26: Hag.2.6. 29: Deut.4.24.

13.1-17: Concluding admonitions. 1: See 10.24. 2: Itinerant Christian teachers should be accommodated; see 3 Jn.5-8. The mention of angels recalls Gen. chs. 18-19. 3: See Mt.25.31-46. The Christians' pilgrimage toward heaven (see, e.g. v. 14) does not exempt them from being actively concerned about the welfare of those in distress, for during the time of their pilgrimage they are still in the world. 5: Josh.1.5. 6: Ps.118.6. 7: The leaders mentioned here are probably not the heroes and heroines of faith cataloged in ch. 11, but Christian preachers and teachers, perhaps including both the original apostles (2.3) and those who now exercise leadership in the church (v. 17). 8: See 1.12. 9: See Col.2.16-23. 11: Sin-offering . . . outside: see Lev.16.27.

by the high priest into the sanctuary, have their bodies burnt outside the camp, and therefore Jesus also suffered outside the gate, to consecrate the people by his own blood. Let us then go to him outside the camp, bearing the stigma that he bore. For here we have no permanent home, but we are seekers after the city which is to come. Through Jesus, then, let us continually offer up to God the sacrifice of praise, that is, the tribute of lips which acknowledge his name, and never forget to show kindness and to share what you have with others; for such are the sacrifices which God approves.

Obey your leaders and defer to them; for they are tireless in their concern for you, as men who must render an account. Let it be a happy task for them, and not pain and grief, for that would bring you no advantage.

Pray for us; for we are convinced that our conscience is clear; our one desire is always to do what is right. All the more earnestly I ask for your prayers, that I may be restored to you the sooner.

May the God of peace, who brought up from the dead our Lord Jesus, the great Shepherd of the sheep, by the blood of the eternal covenant, make you perfect in all goodness so that you may do his will; and may he make of us what he would have us be through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory for ever and ever! Amen.

I beg you, brothers, bear with this exhortation; for it is after all a short letter. I have news for you: our friend Timothy has been released; and if he comes in time he will be with me when I see you.

Greet all your leaders and all God's people. Greetings to you from our Italian friends.

God's grace be with you all!

---

12-14: Christians are a pilgrim people consecrated by Christ, seekers after the new Jerusalem (see 11.10). 15-16: The true sacrifice of praise (see Lev.7.12) is offered by Christians and is manifest in their conduct. See Jas.1.27.

13.18-25: Epistolary conclusion. Some or all of these last paragraphs may have been added by a later editor, for the writing overall has more characteristics of a homily than of a letter. 23: Timothy: see Acts 16.1 n.

A LETTER OF JAMES

This writer is concerned to rescue sinners from their "crooked ways" (5.20) by providing a manual for Christian conduct. Many topics are handled in fairly miscellaneous fashion, although four points receive more sustained attention: the evil of showing partiality (2.1-12), the need for works along with faith (2.14-26), the danger of loose talk (3.1-12), and the sins of the rich (4.13-5.6). This manual has been sent out to the church as a whole, and its purpose is completely practical. Doctrinal matters are not taken up, and the content of the moral advice does not reveal much about the author's own theological point of view. Most of his teaching is common to other Hellenistic Wisdom literature of his day.

If the writing is indeed from James, the Lord's brother (see 1.1 n.), a date no later than about 60 A.D. is required. However, because the ritual and cultic concerns attributed to James elsewhere (see Gal.2.12) are absent and because the overall cast is so Hellenistic, many scholars question the traditional view of authorship. Some have held that the tract is of Jewish origin, subsequently lightly Christianized. More often, it is ascribed to a Christian writer of the late first or early second century. There is no consensus as to the place of writing.

Practical religion

1 FROM JAMES, A SERVANT OF GOD AND the Lord Jesus Christ.

Greetings to the Twelve Tribes dispersed throughout the world.

2 My brothers, whenever you have to face trials of many kinds, count yourselves supremely happy, in the knowl-3 edge that such testing of your faith breeds fortitude, and if you give 4 fortitude full play you will go on to complete a balanced character that 5 will fall short in nothing. If any of you falls short in wisdom, he should ask God for it and it will be given him, for God is a generous giver who neither 6 refuses nor reproaches anyone. But he must ask in faith, without a doubt in 7 his mind; for the doubter is like a heaving sea ruffled by the wind. A man of that kind must not expect the Lord to 8 give him anything; he is double-minded,
and never can keep<sup>a</sup> a steady course.

9 The brother in humble circumstances may well be proud that God 10 lifts him up; and the wealthy brother must find his pride in being brought
low. For the rich man will disappear

like the flower of the field; once the sun 11
is up with its scorching heat the flower wITHERS, its petals fall, and what was lovely to look at is lost for ever. So shall the rich man wither away as he goes about his business.

Happy the man who remains stead- 12
fast under trial, for having passed that test he will receive for his prize the gift of life promised to those who love God.
No one under trial or temptation should 13 say, 'I am being tempted by God'; for God is untouched by evil,<sup>b</sup> and does not himself tempt anyone. Temptation 14 arises when a man is enticed and lured away by his own lust; then lust con- 15
ceives, and gives birth to sin; and sin
full-grown breeds death.

Make no mistake, my friends. All 16,17
good giving, every perfect gift, comes<sup>c</sup> from above, from the Father of the lights of heaven. With him there is no variation, no play of passing shadows.<sup>d</sup>
Of his set purpose, by declaring the 18 truth, he gave us birth to be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures.

<sup>a</sup> Or anything; a double-minded man never keeps ...

<sup>b</sup> Or God cannot be tempted by evil.

<sup>c</sup> Or All giving is good, and every perfect gift comes ...

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses read no variation, or shadow caused by change.

1.1: Salutation. James: probably the brother of Jesus (Mt.13.55; see Jude 1), although this is not specified. The church is in the world like the Twelve Tribes of Israel.

1.2-27: Miscellaneous topics: fortitude (vv. 2-4), wisdom (vv. 5-8), wealth (vv. 9-11), trial (v. 12), temptation (vv. 13-15), God's beneficence (vv. 16-18), anger (vv. 19-21), true religion (vv. 22-27). 2-4: Fortitude: see 5.7-11; Prov.3.11-12. 5-8: Wisdom is understood by James as moral purity; see 3.13-17. Faith is belief in God; see 2.19. 9-11: The theme of the wealthy and the humble is important in this tract; see 2.1-7; 4.13-5.6. 10-11: Isa.40.6-7. 12: Outward trials; see Dan.12.12 Sept.; Rev.2.10; 1 Pet.5.4. 18: As firstfruits Christians are heralds of a new age;

19 Of that you may be certain, my friends. But each of you must be quick to listen, slow to speak, and slow to be angry. For a man's anger cannot promote the justice of God. Away then with all that is sordid, and the malice that hurries to excess, and quietly accept the message planted in your hearts, which can bring you salvation.

22 Only be sure that you act on the message and do not merely listen; for that would be to mislead yourselves. A man who listens to the message but never acts upon it is like one who looks in a mirror at the face nature gave him. He glances at himself and goes away, and at once forgets what he looked like. 24 But the man who looks closely into the perfect law, the law that makes us free, and who lives in its company, does not forget what he hears, but acts upon it; and that is the man who by acting will find happiness.

26 A man may think he is religious, but if he has no control over his tongue, he is deceiving himself; that man's religion is futile. The kind of religion which is without stain or fault in the sight of God our Father is this: to go to the help of orphans and widows in their distress and keep oneself untarnished by the world.

2 MY BROTHERS, BELIEVING AS YOU DO IN our Lord Jesus Christ, who reigns in glory, you must never show snobbery. 2 For instance, two visitors may enter your place of worship, one a well-dressed man with gold rings, and the other a poor man in shabby clothes. 3 Suppose you pay special attention to the well-dressed man and say to him, 'Please take this seat', while to the poor man you say, 'You can stand; or you may sit here<sup>e</sup> on the floor by my foot-stool', do you not see that you are inconsistent and judge by false standards?

Listen, my friends. Has not God chosen those who are poor in the eyes of the world to be rich in faith and to inherit the kingdom he has promised to those who love him? And yet you have insulted the poor man. Moreover, are not the rich your oppressors? Is it not they who drag you into court and pour contempt on the honoured name by which God has claimed you?

If, however, you are observing the sovereign law laid down in Scripture, 'Love your neighbour as yourself', that is excellent. But if you show snobbery, you are committing a sin and you stand convicted by that law as transgressors. For if a man keeps the whole law apart from one single point, he is guilty of breaking all of it. For the One who said, 'Thou shalt not commit adultery', said also, 'Thou shalt not commit murder.' You may not be an adulterer, but if you commit murder you are a law-breaker all the same. Always speak and act as men who are to be judged under a law of freedom. In that judgement there will be no mercy for the man who has shown no mercy. Mercy triumphs over judgement.

MY BROTHERS, WHAT USE IS IT FOR A MAN to say he has faith when he does nothing to show it? Can that faith save him? Suppose a brother or a sister is in rags with not enough food for the day, and one of you says, 'Good luck to you, keep yourselves warm, and have plenty to eat', but does nothing to supply their bodily needs, what is the good of that? So with faith; if it does not lead to action, it is in itself a lifeless thing.

But someone may object: 'Here is one who claims to have faith and an-

<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses read Stand where you are or sit here . . . ; others read Stand where you are or sit . . .

see Rom.8.23; 11.16. 19-21: On anger, see 3.1-12. 21: The message is the gospel. 22-25: On moral action, see 2.14-26. 25: The gospel is the perfect law . . . that makes us free, and demands studied attention and obedience. 26: On false speech, see 3.1-12. 27: True religion is defined here, not as doctrine or knowledge or ritual, but as moral action. World: see 2.5; 3.6; 4.4.

2.1-13: On partiality and privilege. No favors should be accorded the rich. 5: See 1 Cor. 1.26-31. 6-7: Christians are reminded of the social and economic exploitation for which rich nonbelievers are responsible; see 5.4-6. The honoured name is "Christ." 8: The sovereign law: either Scripture as a whole or the love commandment in particular (Lev.19.18). 11: Ex.20.13-14. 12: Freedom: see 1.25 n. 13: See, e.g. Mt.5.7.

2.14-26: On faith and works. 14-17: If faith only means belief in God (see v. 19) it is as meaningless as if one were to wish the needy well without lending a hand. 18: Someone: a other who points to his deeds.' To which I reply: 'Prove to me that this faith you speak of is real though not accompanied by deeds, and by my deeds I will prove to you my faith.' You have faith enough to believe that there is one God. Excellent! The devils have faith like that, and it makes them tremble. 20 But can you not see, you quibbler, that faith divorced from deeds is barren? 21 Was it not by his action, in offering his son Isaac upon the altar, that our father 22 Abraham was justified? Surely you can see that faith was at work in his actions, and that by these actions the integrity 23 of his faith was fully proved. Here was fulfilment of the words of Scripture: 'Abraham put his faith in God, and that faith was counted to him as righteousness'; and elsewhere he is 24 called 'God's friend'. You see then that a man is justified by deeds and not by 25 faith in itself. The same is true of the prostitute Rahab also. Was not she justified by her action in welcoming the messengers into her house and sending 26 them away by a different route? As the body is dead when there is no breath left in it, so faith divorced from deeds is lifeless as a corpse.

3 MY BROTHERS, NOT MANY OF YOU should become teachers, for you may be certain that we who teach shall ourselves be judged with greater strictness. 2 All of us often go wrong; the man who never says a wrong thing is a perfect character, able to bridle his whole being. 3 If we put bits into horses' mouths to make them obey our will, we can direct 4 their whole body. Or think of ships: large they may be, yet even when driven by strong gales they can be directed by a tiny rudder on whatever course the 5 helmsman chooses. So with the tongue.

It is a small member but it can make huge claims.<sup>f</sup>

What an immense stack of timber<sup>g</sup> can be set ablaze by the tiniest spark! And the tongue is in effect a fire. It represents among our members the world with all its wickedness; it pollutes our whole being; it keeps the wheel of our existence red-hot, and its flames are fed by hell. Beasts and birds of every kind, 7 creatures that crawl on the ground or swim in the sea, can be subdued and have been subdued by mankind; but no 8 man can subdue the tongue. It is an intractable evil, charged with deadly venom. We use it to sing the praises of 9 our Lord and Father, and we use it to invoke curses upon our fellow-men who are made in God's likeness. Out 10 of the same mouth come praises and curses. My brothers, this should not be so. Does a fountain gush with both 11 fresh and brackish water from the same opening? Can a fig-tree, my brothers, 12 yield olives, or a vine figs? No more does salt water yield fresh.

WHO AMONG YOU IS WISE OR CLEVER? 13 Let his right conduct give practical proof of it, with the modesty that comes of wisdom. But if you are harbouring 14 bitter jealousy and selfish ambition in your hearts, consider whether your claims are not false, and a defiance of the truth. This is not the wisdom that 15 comes from above; it is earth-bound, sensual, demonic. For with jealousy 16 and ambition come disorder and evil of every kind. But the wisdom from 17 above is in the first place pure; and then peace-loving, considerate, and open to reason; it is straightforward and sincere, rich in mercy and in the kindly deeds that are its fruit. True 18

<sup>f</sup> Or it is a great boaster. <sup>g</sup> Or What a huge forest . . .

hypothetical inquirer who misunderstands the point that the same person must give evidence of both faith and action (v. 17). 21: See Gen.22.9-19; Heb.11.17-19. 23: Jewish teaching (see 1 Macc.2.52) associated Gen. ch. 22 with the commendation of Abraham's righteousness in Gen.15.6. Whereas Paul interpreted counted (Gen.15.6) to mean God's free gift of acquittal (Rom.4.3-5), here it is interpreted as God's acceptance of Abraham's works. Friend: a common description of Abraham; see 2 Chr.20.7; Isa.41.8. 25: Rahab: see Josh. ch. 2; 6.17; Heb.11.31.

3.1-12: On the evils of the tongue. 6: See 1.27. Wheel of our existence: a phrase borrowed from the Hellenistic mystery religions, used here to describe the orderly design of man's life. 7: See Gen.9.2-3. Elsewhere it is presumed one's tongue can be controlled (vv. 2-4; 1.26). 9: In God's likeness: see Gen. 1.26-27.

3.13-5.20: Miscellaneous topics.

3.13-18: On true wisdom. The essence of wisdom is moral uprightness. 17: See Paul's description of love, 1 Cor. ch. 13. 18: See Prov.11.30; 13.2; Phil.1.11.

justice is the harvest reaped by peacemakers from seeds sown in a spirit of peace.

4 What causes conflicts and quarrels among you? Do they not spring from the aggressiveness of your bodily desires? You want something which you cannot have, and so you are bent on murder; you are envious, and cannot attain your ambition, and so you quarrel and fight. You do not get what you want, because you do not pray for it. Or, if you do, your requests are not granted because you pray from wrong motives, to spend what you get on your pleasures. You false, unfaithful creatures! Have you never learned that love of the world is enmity to God? Whoever chooses to be the world's friend makes himself God's enemy. Or do you suppose that Scripture has no meaning when it says that the spirit which God implanted in man turns towards envious desires? And yet the grace he gives is stronger. Thus Scripture says, 'God opposes the arrogant and gives grace to the humble.' Be submissive then to God. Stand up to the devil and he will turn and run. Come close to God, and he will come close to you. Sinners, make your hands clean; you who are double-minded, see that your motives are pure. Be sorrowful, mourn and weep. Turn your laughter into mourning and your gaiety into gloom. Humble yourselves before God and he will lift you high.

11 Brothers, you must never disparage one another. He who disparages a brother or passes judgement on his brother disparages the law and judges the law. But if you judge the law, you are not keeping it but sitting in judgement upon it. There is only one law-giver and judge, the One who is able to save life and destroy it. So who are you to judge your neighbour?

A WORD WITH YOU, YOU WHO SAY, 13 'Today or tomorrow we will go off to such and such a town and spend a year there trading and making money.' Yet 14 you have no idea what tomorrow will bring. Your life, what is it? You are no more than a mist, seen for a little while and then dispersing. What you ought 15 to say is: 'If it be the Lord's will, we shall live to do this or that.' But instead, 16 you boast and brag, and all such boasting is wrong. Well then, the man who 17 knows the good he ought to do and does not do it is a sinner.

Next a word to you who have great 5 possessions. Weep and wail over the miserable fate descending on you. Your 2 riches have rotted; your fine clothes are moth-eaten; your silver and gold have 3 rusted away, and their very rust will be evidence against you and consume your flesh like fire. You have piled up wealth in an age that is near its close. The 4 wages you never paid to the men who mowed your fields are loud against you, and the outcry of the reapers has reached the ears of the Lord of Hosts. You have lived on earth in wanton 5 luxury, fattening yourselves like cattle—and the day for slaughter has come. You have condemned the innocent and 6 murdered him; he offers no resistance.

Be patient, my brothers, until the 7 Lord comes. The farmer looking for the precious crop his land may yield can only wait in patience, until the autumn and spring rains have fallen. You too must be patient and stout- 8 hearted, for the coming of the Lord is near. My brothers, do not blame your 9 troubles on one another, or you will fall under judgement; and there stands the Judge, at the door. If you want a 10 pattern of patience under ill-treatment, take the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord; remember: 'We 11 count those happy who stood firm.'

4.1-5: On friendship with the world. 3: See Mt.17.20. 4: See 1.27; 2.23. 5: It is unclear what Scripture reference is meant.

4.6-10: On drawing near to God. 6: Prov.3.34; see 1 Pet.5.5. 7-8: See 1 Pet.5.8-9; Heb.10.22. 9-10: The penitent sinner receives God's forgiveness.

4.11-12: On judging a neighbor. The law demands love, not judgment (Lev.19.18; see 2.9-13).

4.13-5.6: On the sins of the rich. 13-17: Traveling merchants are criticized for their worldliness. 5.1-6: Wealthy landholders are criticized for their greed and indifference to social justice. Compare Eccles.29.10-13. 6: See Wis.2.10-20.

5.7-11: On patience. 7: The Lord: perhaps a reference to God (v. 4; 3.9), but probably a reference to Christ's return. 9: See 4.1-12. 10: See Heb.11.32-38. 11: See Job ch. 1; 42.10-16.

You have all heard how Job stood firm, and you have seen how the Lord treated him in the end. For the Lord is full of pity and compassion.

- 12 ABOVE ALL THINGS, MY BROTHERS, DO not use oaths, whether 'by heaven' or 'by earth' or by anything else. When you say yes or no, let it be plain 'Yes' or 'No', for fear that you expose yourselves to judgement.
- 13 Is anyone among you in trouble? He should turn to prayer. Is anyone in good heart? He should sing praises. Is one of you ill? He should send for the elders of the congregation to pray over him and anoint him with oil in the name of the Lord. The prayer offered in faith will save the sick man, the Lord will raise him from his bed, and any sins he may have committed will be forgiven. Therefore confess your sins to one another, and pray for one another, and then you will be healed. A good man's prayer is powerful and effective. Elijah was a man with human frailties like our own; and when he prayed earnestly that there should be no rain, not a drop fell on the land for three years and a half; then he prayed again, and down came the rain and the land bore crops once more.

My brothers, if one of your number should stray from the truth and another succeed in bringing him back, be sure of this: any man who brings a sinner back from his crooked ways will be rescuing his soul from death and cancelling innumerable sins.

---

5.12: On oaths. See Mt.5.34-37.

5.13-18: On prayer. 14: See Mk.6.13. 15: See 1 Cor.13.2. 17-18: 1 Kgs. chs. 17-18 says nothing about Elijah's prayers; the reference is to noncanonical Jewish traditions.

5.19-20: On restoring sinners. 19: The truth: the gospel; see 1.18. 20: See 1 Pet.4.8 n.

THE FIRST LETTER OF PETER

This letter is directed to congregations of predominantly Gentile Christians scattered throughout several Roman provinces in Asia Minor. It is an appeal to Christians to “stand fast” in the gospel (5.12) and to rejoice in whatever sufferings they are called upon to endure for their faith (4.12–16).

Following the salutation (1.1–2) a prefatory section focuses on the reality and responsibilities of the new life in Christ (1.3–2.10). Subsequently, a number of specific exhortations are issued which deal with the Christian’s conduct in his daily affairs (2.11–4.6) and with his relationship to others in the church itself (4.7–11). Finally, the writer summarizes the meaning of suffering as a Christian (4.12–19) and concludes with some specific matters (5.1–14).

If Peter himself wrote this letter, or caused it to be written by Silvanus (5.12), it perhaps reflects Nero’s persecution of Christians about 64 A.D. Some scholars, however, believe the good Greek style and the theological point of view preclude Petrine authorship or sponsorship. In this case the author would be an anonymous Christian concerned for the church’s tribulations during the reign either of Domitian (81–96 A.D.) or of Trajan (98–117 A.D.), and would perhaps be using some traditional liturgical and catechetical materials (1.3–4.11).

The calling of a Christian

1 FROM PETER, APOSTLE OF JESUS Christ, to those of God’s scattered people who lodge for a while in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, 2 and Bithynia—chosen of old in the purpose of God the Father, hallowed to his service by the Spirit, and consecrated with the sprinkled blood of Jesus Christ.

Grace and peace to you in fullest measure.

3 Praise be to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who in his great mercy gave us new birth into a living hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ 4 from the dead! The inheritance to which we are born is one that nothing can destroy or spoil or wither. It is kept 5 for you in heaven, and you, because you put your faith in God, are under the protection of his power until salvation comes—the salvation which is even now in readiness and will be revealed at the end of time.

6 This is cause for great joy, even though now you smart for a little while,
if need be, under trials of many kinds.

7 Even gold passes through the assayer’s fire, and more precious than perishable gold is faith which has stood the test.

These trials come so that your faith
may prove itself worthy of all praise, glory, and honour when Jesus Christ is revealed.

You have not seen him, yet you love 8 him; and trusting in him now without seeing him, you are transported with a joy too great for words, while you reap 9
the harvest of your faith, that is, salvation for your souls. This salvation was 10
the theme which the prophets pondered
and explored, those who prophesied
about the grace of God awaiting you.
They tried to find out what was the 11 time,<sup>a</sup> and what the circumstances, to which the spirit of Christ in them pointed, foretelling the sufferings in store for Christ and the splendours to follow; and it was disclosed to them 12
that the matter they treated of was not for their time but for yours. And now it has been openly announced to you through preachers who brought you the Gospel in the power of the Holy Spirit sent from heaven. These are things that angels long to see into.

<sup>a</sup> Or who was the person . . .

1.1–2: Salutation. Christians are temporary residents of this world, for they belong to God; see 2.9–10. Sprinkled blood refers to baptism into Christ’s death; see Heb.9.13–14.

1.3–9: The new birth. 4: Our inheritance is God’s continuing love, accepted through baptism. 5: Salvation is sure, but comes fully only in the future. 6: The trials faced by Christians could include even persecution; see Introduction.

1.10–12: The testimony of the prophets. Salvation has always been God’s purpose; even the prophets preached the gospel; see 1.23–25.

13 You must therefore be mentally stripped for action, perfectly self-controlled. Fix your hopes on the gift of grace which is to be yours when Jesus
 14 Christ is revealed. As obedient children, do not let your characters be shaped any longer by the desires you cherished 15 in your days of ignorance. The One who called you is holy; like him, be 16 holy in all your behaviour, because Scripture says, 'You shall be holy, for I am holy.'
 17 If you say 'our Father' to the One who judges every man impartially on the record of his deeds, you must stand 18 in awe of him while you live out your time on earth. Well you know that it was no perishable stuff, like gold or 19 silver, that bought your freedom from the empty folly of your traditional 20 ways. The price was paid in precious blood, as it were of a lamb without mark or blemish—the blood of Christ.
 21 Predestined before the foundation of the world, he was made manifest in this last period of time for your sake.
 22 Through him you have come to trust in God who raised him from the dead and gave him glory, and so your faith and hope are fixed on God.
 23 Now that by obedience to the truth you have purified your souls until you feel sincere affection towards your brother Christians, love one another whole-heartedly with all your strength.
 24 You have been born anew, not of mortal parentage but of immortal, through the living and enduring word of God.<sup>b</sup> For (as Scripture says)

'All mortals are like grass;
 all their splendour like the flower of the field;
 the grass withers, the flower falls;
 but the word of the Lord endures for evermore.'

And this 'word' is the word of the Gospel preached to you.

Then away with all malice and deceit, 2 away with all pretence and jealousy and recrimination of every kind! Like the 2 new-born infants you are, you must crave for pure milk (spiritual milk, I mean), so that you may thrive upon it to your souls' health. Surely you have 3 tasted that the Lord is good.

So come to him, our living Stone— 4 the stone rejected by men but choice and precious in the sight of God. Come, 5 and let yourselves be built, as living stones, into a spiritual temple; become a holy priesthood,<sup>c</sup> to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. For it stands written: 6

'I lay in Zion a choice corner-stone of great worth.
 The man who has faith in it will not be put to shame.'

The great worth of which it speaks is 7 for you who have faith. For those who have no faith, the stone which the builders rejected has become not only the corner-stone,<sup>d</sup> but also 'a stone to 8 trip over, a rock to stumble against'. They fall when they disbelieve the Word. Such was their appointed lot!

But you are a chosen race, a royal 9 priesthood, a dedicated nation, and a people claimed by God for his own, to proclaim the triumphs of him who has called you out of darkness into his marvellous light. You are now the 10 people of God, who once were not his people; outside his mercy once, you have now received his mercy.

DEAR FRIENDS, I BEG YOU, AS ALIENS IN 11 a foreign land, to abstain from the lusts

<sup>b</sup> Or through the word of the living and enduring God.

<sup>c</sup> Or a spiritual temple for the holy work of priesthood.

<sup>d</sup> Or the apex of the building.

1.13–2.10: The responsibilities of obedient children. 13–16: Hope should conform one's life to the holiness of God himself; see Lev.11.44–45; Eph.2.1–3. 17: Our Father: the Lord's Prayer. 20: See 1.10–12 n. 21: See 1.2–3. 22: Now . . . purified: in baptism; see vv. 1–2 n., 4 n. 25: The Gospel is that God remains active for salvation (Isa.40.6–9); see 1.10–12. 2.2: Pure milk: the Lord's goodness (2.3); see Ps.34.8. 4: Our living Stone: the risen Christ; see Ps.118.22; Isa. 8.14; 28.16, passages frequently applied to Christ in the early church. 5: Since Christ is a new temple, replacing the one in Jerusalem (see Jn.2.19–22), Christians are its living stones, and are a new priesthood, replacing the Jerusalem priests. Spiritual sacrifices: Christian obedience (see Rom.12.1). 6: Isa.28.16. 7: Ps.118.22. 8: Unbelievers will be judged; see Isa.8.14–15. 9–10: See the images in Isa.43.20–21; Ex.19.6; Hos. chs. 1–2. God's people are not passive. 2.11–4.6: Christian conduct in the world. 11–12: As aliens: see 1.1–2 n.; Rom.12.2.

of the flesh which are at war with the 12 soul. Let all your behaviour be such as even pagans can recognize as good, and then, whereas they malign you as criminals now, they will come to see for themselves that you live good lives,
and will give glory to God on the day
when he comes to hold assize.

13 Submit yourselves to every human institution for the sake of the Lord,
whether to the sovereign as supreme, 14 or to the governor as his deputy for the punishment of criminals and the com-15 mendation of those who do right. For it is the will of God that by your good conduct you should put ignorance and stupidity to silence.

16 Live as free men; not however as though your freedom were there to provide a screen for wrongdoing, but as 17 slaves in God's service. Give due honour to everyone: love to the brotherhood, reverence to God, honour to the sovereign.

18 Servants, accept the authority of your masters with all due submission,
not only when they are kind and considerate, but even when they are 19 perverse. For it is a fine<sup>e</sup> thing if a man endure the pain of undeserved suffering 20 because God is in his thoughts. What credit is there in fortitude when you have done wrong and are beaten for it?
But when you have behaved well and suffer for it, your fortitude is a fine 21 thing<sup>f</sup> in the sight of God. To that you were called, because Christ suffered<sup>g</sup> on your behalf, and thereby left you an example; it is for you to follow in his 22 steps. He committed no sin, he was 23 convicted of no falsehood; when he was abused he did not retort with abuse, when he suffered he uttered no threats, but committed his cause to the 24 One who judges justly. In his own person he carried our sins to<sup>h</sup> the gibbet,
so that we might cease to live for sin and begin to live for righteousness. By 25 his wounds you have been healed. You were straying like sheep, but now you have turned towards the Shepherd and Guardian of your souls.

In the same way you women must 3
accept the authority of your husbands,
so that if there are any of them who disbelieve the Gospel they may be won over, without a word being said, by 2 observing the chaste and reverent behaviour of their wives. Your beauty 3 should reside, not in outward adornment—the braiding of the hair, or jewellery, or dress—but in the inmost 4 centre of your being, with its imperishable ornament, a gentle, quiet spirit, which is of high value in the sight of God. Thus it was among God's people 5 in days of old: the women who fixed their hopes on him adorned themselves by submission to their husbands. Such 6 was Sarah, who obeyed Abraham and called him 'my master'. Her children you have now become, if you do good and show no fear.

In the same way, you husbands must 7 conduct your married life with understanding: pay honour to the woman's body, not only because it is weaker,
but also because you share together in the grace of God which gives you life.
Then your prayers will not be hindered.

To sum up: be one in thought and 8
feeling, all of you; be full of brotherly affection, kindly and humble-minded.
Do not repay wrong with wrong, 9
abuse with abuse; on the contrary, retaliate with blessing, for a blessing is the inheritance to which you yourselves have been called.

'Whoever loves life and would see 10
good days
must restrain his tongue from evil
and his lips from deceit;
must turn from wrong and do good, 11
seek peace and pursue it.
For the Lord's eyes are turned 12
towards the righteous,

<sup>e</sup> Or creditable.

<sup>f</sup> Or is creditable.

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses read died.

<sup>h</sup> Or on.

13–15: Human institution: the political order, which deserves support when it functions for the public good. See also Rom.13.1–7. 16–17: See Rom.6.15–23. 18–25: The death of Christ, identified here with that of the "suffering servant" of Isa.53.5–12, is first advanced as an example of trust (see Eph.6.5–8; Col.3.22–25). 24–25: Christ's death is also redemptive (see 3.18; Rom.5.6–11; Col.2.14). 3.1–7: See Eph.5.21–33; Col.3.18–19. 6: Gen.18.12. 8–12: Brotherly affection is the sign of the new birth; see 1.22. 9: Lk.6.27–28; Rom.12.17. 10: Ps.34.12–16.

his ears are open to their prayers;
but the Lord's face is set against wrong-doers.'

13 WHO IS GOING TO DO YOU WRONG IF 14 you are devoted to what is good? And yet if you should suffer for your virtues, you may count yourselves happy. Have no fear of them:<sup>i</sup> do not be perturbed, 15 but hold the Lord Christ in reverence in your hearts.<sup>j</sup> Be always ready with your defence whenever you are called to account for the hope that is in you,
but make that defence with modesty 16 and respect. Keep your conscience clear, so that when you are abused,
those who malign your Christian con-17 duct may be put to shame. It is better to suffer for well-doing, if such should be the will of God, than for doing 18 wrong. For Christ also died<sup>k</sup> for our sins<sup>l</sup> once and for all. He, the just, suffered for the unjust, to bring us to God.

In the body he was put to death; in 19 the spirit he was brought to life. And in the spirit he went and made his proclamation to the imprisoned spirits.
20 They had refused obedience long ago,
while God waited patiently in the days of Noah and the building of the ark, and in the ark a few persons, eight in all, were brought to safety through the 21 water. This water prefigured the water of baptism through which you are now brought to safety. Baptism is not the washing away of bodily pollution, but the appeal made to God by a good conscience; and it brings salvation through the resurrection of Jesus 22 Christ, who entered heaven after receiving the submission of angelic authorities and powers, and is now at the right hand of God.

4 Remembering that Christ endured bodily suffering, you must arm yourselves with a temper of mind like his.

When a man has thus endured bodily suffering he has finished with sin, and 2 for the rest of his days on earth he may live, not for the things that men desire,
but for what God wills. You had time 3 enough in the past to do all the things that men want to do in the pagan world.
Then you lived in licence and debauchery, drunkenness, revelry, and tippling, and the forbidden worship of idols. Now, when you no longer 4 plunge with them into all this reckless dissipation, they cannot understand it,
and they vilify you accordingly; but 5 they shall answer for it to him who stands ready to pass judgement on the living and the dead. Why was the 6 Gospel preached to those who are dead? In order that, although in the body they received the sentence common to men, they might in the spirit
be alive with the life of God.

The end of all things is upon us, so 7 you must lead an ordered and sober life, given to prayer. Above all, keep your 8 love for one another at full strength,
because love cancels innumerable sins.
Be hospitable to one another without 9 complaining. Whatever gift each of you may have received, use it in service to one another, like good stewards dispensing the grace of God in its varied forms. Are you a speaker? Speak as if 11 you uttered oracles of God. Do you give service? Give it as in the strength which God supplies. In all things so act that the glory may be God's through Jesus Christ; to him belong glory and power for ever and ever. Amen.

MY DEAR FRIENDS, DO NOT BE BEWIL- 12
dered by the fiery ordeal that is upon you, as though it were something

<sup>i</sup> Or Do not fear what they fear.

<sup>j</sup> Or hold Christ in reverence in your hearts, as Lord.

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses read suffered.

<sup>l</sup> Some witnesses read for sins; others read for sins on our behalf.

13-17: See 2.11-12. 18: See 2.24-25 n. 19-20: Imprisoned spirits: either Noah's disobedient contemporaries (Gen. chs. 6-9), or specifically the disobedient Nephilim (see Gen.6.1-4 n.); perhaps both. The idea is that the gospel is withheld from no one; but the exact meaning remains problematic. 21-22: As water was decisive in Noah's career, so it is in saving the Christian, the latter through baptism. 4.3: The past: before conversion to Christ. 5: For Christ as judge, see Acts 10.42; 2 Tim. 4.1. 6: See 3.19-20 n.

4.7-11: Christian conduct in the church. 7: The end: the day of judgment and salvation; see 1.5,7,13. 8: Where love is active sin subsides. See Prov. 10.12; Eccles. 3.30; Jas. 5.19-20. 9: Be hospitable: to Christian travelers; see Heb. 13.2 n.

4.12-19: The meaning of suffering as a Christian. 12: Ordeal: persecution; fiery implies "bitter."

13 extraordinary. It gives you a share in Christ's sufferings, and that is cause for joy; and when his glory is revealed, 14 your joy will be triumphant. If Christ's name is flung in your teeth as an insult, count yourselves happy, because then that glorious Spirit which is the Spirit 15 of God is resting upon you. If you suffer, it must not be for murder, theft, or sorcery,<sup>m</sup> nor for infringing the 16 rights of others. But if anyone suffers as a Christian, he should feel it no disgrace, but confess that name to the honour of God.

17 The time has come for the judgement to begin; it is beginning with God's own household. And if it is starting with you, how will it end for those who 18 refuse to obey the gospel of God? It is hard enough for the righteous to be saved; what then will become of the 19 impious and sinful? So even those who suffer, if it be according to God's will, should commit their souls to him—by doing good; their Maker will not fail them.

5 And now I appeal to the elders of your community, as a fellow-elder and a witness of Christ's sufferings, and also a partaker in the splendour that is to be 2 revealed. Tend that flock of God whose shepherds you are, and do it, not under 3 compulsion, but of your own free will, as God would have it; not for gain but 4 out of sheer devotion; not tyrannizing over those who are allotted to your care, but setting an example to the flock. And then, when the Head Shepherd appears, you will receive for your own the unfading garland of glory.

In the same way you younger men 5 must be subordinate to your elders. Indeed, all of you should wrap yourselves in the garment of humility towards each other, because God sets his face against the arrogant but favours the humble. Humble yourselves then 6 under God's mighty hand, and he will lift you up in due time. Cast all your 7 cares on him, for you are his charge.

Awake! be on the alert! Your enemy 8 the devil, like a roaring lion, prowls round looking for someone to devour. Stand up to him, firm in faith, and 9 remember that your brother Christians are going through the same kinds of suffering while they are in the world. And the God of all grace, who called 10 you into his eternal glory in Christ, will himself, after your brief suffering, restore, establish, and strengthen you on a firm foundation. He holds do- 11 minion for ever and ever. Amen.

I write you this brief appeal through 12 Silvanus, our trusty brother as I hold him, adding my testimony that this is the true grace of God. In this stand fast.

Greetings from her who dwells in 13 Babylon, chosen by God like you, and from my son Mark. Greet one another 14 with the kiss of love.

Peace to you all who belong to Christ!

<sup>m</sup> Or other crime.

13–19: Joyful acceptance of undeserved suffering demonstrates trust in God's ultimate faithfulness; see 2.18–25 n. 14: Isa.11.2. 16: Christian: see Acts 11.26 n. 18: Prov.11.31.

5.1–14: Concluding matters. 1–7: Harmony should prevail as the church awaits in hope the coming of Christ, the Head Shepherd (see also 2.25). 5: Prov.3.34. 7: Ps.55.22. 8–11: The church under persecution must stand united against unbelief (the devil; see Job.1.7). 12: Silvanus, the stenographer, is probably "Silas" (Acts 15.22). 13: From her . . . in Babylon: the church in Rome; see Rev.17.1–5,15. In early Christian tradition Mark was regarded as Peter's spiritual heir; see Acts 12.12. 14: Kiss of love: a liturgical gesture, the "holy kiss" (e.g. Rom.16.16).

THE SECOND LETTER OF PETER

In form, this writing is Peter's "last will and testament," a passionate attempt to support orthodox Christian doctrines, especially beliefs in the glorious return of Christ. The purpose, style, and point of view sharply distinguish this testament from 1 Peter, and most scholars have concluded that it was written in Peter's name by a later churchman interested in representing its teaching as well-established apostolic tradition. The salutation (1.1-2) is followed by a preface which stresses the writer's authority (1.3-15). In 1.16-3.10 (here are various arguments assembled to show that the hope of the Lord's coming is sure, and the readers are admonished in conclusion to be ready for that day (3.11-18).

Virtually all the arguments in 2 Peter duplicate those in Jude 3-18. The majority of interpreters believe that the author of 2 Peter has drawn on Jude in formulating his own appeal. That 2 Peter used Jude (not Jude, 2 Peter) is suggested by the absence from 2 Peter of a passage in Jude 9 which alludes to a legend about Moses' body; that 2 Peter omitted this seems to scholars more likely than that Jude added it. Dependence on Jude and the association of Paul's letters with Scripture (3.16) suggest a date for 2 Peter well into the second century, perhaps about 150 A.D.

---

The remedy for doubt

1 FROM SIMEON PETER, SERVANT AND apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who through the justice of our God and Saviour Jesus Christ share our faith and enjoy equal privilege with ourselves.

2 Grace and peace be yours in fullest measure, through the knowledge of God and Jesus our Lord.

3 His divine power has bestowed on us everything that makes for life and true religion, enabling us to know the One who called us by his own splendour 4 and might. Through this might and splendour he has given us his promises, great beyond all price, and through them you may escape the corruption with which lust has infected the world, and come to share in the very being
of God.

5 With all this in view, you should try your hardest to supplement your faith
with virtue, virtue with knowledge, 6 knowledge with self-control, self-control with fortitude, fortitude with 7 piety, piety with brotherly kindness,
and brotherly kindness with love.

8 These are gifts which, if you possess and foster them, will keep you from being either useless or barren in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The man who lacks them is short-sighted and blind; he has forgotten 9
how he was cleansed from his former sins. All the more then, my friends, 10 exert yourselves to clinch God's choice and calling of you. If you behave so, you will never come to grief. Thus you 11 will be afforded full and free admission into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

And so I will not hesitate to remind 12
you of this again and again, although you know it and are well grounded in the truth that has already reached you.
Yet I think it right to keep refreshing 13 your memory so long as I still lodge in this body. I know that very soon I must leave it; indeed our Lord Jesus Christ 14 has told me so.<sup>a</sup> But I will see to it that 15
after I am gone you will have means of remembering these things at all times.

It was not on tales artfully spun that 16
we relied when we told you of the power of our Lord Jesus Christ and his coming; we saw him with our own eyes in majesty, when at the hands of God 17
the Father he was invested with honour and glory, and there came to a Or I must leave it, as our Lord Jesus Christ told me.

---

1.1-2: Salutation.

1.3-15: The writer's purpose and authority. 5: See Jude 3. 9: Sins are cleansed at baptism. 12: The truth: Christian doctrine; see Jude 5. 13-14: Perhaps a reference to the prediction of Jn. 21.18-19. 15: The view that Mark's Gospel is derived from Peter may be reflected here.

1.16-3.10: The hope of the Lord's coming is no myth. 16-18: Peter was one of those present him from the sublime Presence a voice which said: 'This is my Son, my Beloved,<sup>b</sup> on whom my favour rests.'

18 This voice from heaven we ourselves heard; when it came, we were with him on the sacred mountain.

19 All this only confirms for us the message of the prophets,<sup>c</sup> to which you will do well to attend, because it is like a lamp shining in a murky place, until the day breaks and the morning star rises to illuminate your minds.

20 BUT FIRST NOTE THIS: NO ONE CAN interpret any prophecy of Scripture by 21 himself. For it was not through any human whim that men prophesied of old; men they were, but, impelled by the Holy Spirit, they spoke the words of God.

2 But Israel had false prophets as well as true; and you likewise will have false teachers among you. They will import disastrous heresies, disowning the very Master who bought them, and bringing
2 swift disaster on their own heads. They will gain many adherents to their dissolute practices, through whom the true way will be brought into disrepute.
3 In their greed for money they will trade on your credulity with sheer fabrications.

But the judgement long decreed for them has not been idle; perdition waits
4 for them with unsleeping eyes. God did not spare the angels who sinned, but consigned them to the dark pits of hell,<sup>d</sup> where they are reserved for judgement.
5 He did not spare the world of old (except for Noah, preacher of righteousness, whom he preserved with seven others), but brought the deluge upon
6 that world of godless men. The cities of Sodom and Gomorrah God burned to ashes, and condemned them to total destruction, making them an object-lesson for godless men in future
7 days. But he rescued Lot, who was a good man, shocked by the dissolute 8 habits of the lawless society in which he lived; day after day every sight, every sound, of their evil courses tortured that good man's heart. Thus the Lord 9 is well able to rescue the godly out of trials, and to reserve the wicked under punishment until the day of judgement.

Above all he will punish those who 10 follow their abominable lusts. They flout authority; reckless and headstrong, they are not afraid to insult celestial beings, whereas angels, for all 11 their superior strength and might, employ no insults in seeking judgement against them before the Lord.

These men are like brute beasts,
12 born in the course of nature to be caught and killed. They pour abuse upon things they do not understand; like the beasts they will perish, suffering 13 hurt for the hurt they have inflicted. To carouse in broad daylight is their idea of pleasure; while they sit with you at table they are an ugly blot on your company, because they revel in their own deceptions.<sup>e</sup>

They have eyes for nothing but 14 women, eyes never at rest from sin. They lure the unstable to their ruin; past masters in mercenary greed, God's curse is on them! They have abandoned 15 the straight road and lost their way. They have followed in the steps of Balaam son of Beor, who consented to take pay for doing wrong, but had 16 his offence brought home to him when the dumb beast spoke with a human voice and put a stop to the prophet's madness.

These men are springs that give no
17 water, mists driven by a storm; the place reserved for them is blackest darkness. They utter big, empty words, 18 and make of sensual lusts and debauchery a bait to catch those who have barely begun to escape from their heathen environment. They promise
19 them freedom, but are themselves

<sup>b</sup> Or This is my only Son.

<sup>c</sup> Or And in the message of the prophets we have something still more certain.

<sup>d</sup> Some witnesses read consigned them to darkness and chains in hell.

<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses read in their love-feasts.

at the transfiguration, Mt.17.1-8. 19: Christ will dawn as the morning star on the day of his return. 20-21: See 3.16 n.

2.1-22: False teachers will be punished. See Jude 4,5-16 nn. 7-8: See Gen.19.4-29. 11: In Jude 9 the angel Michael is named, but here the reference is more general (see Introduction). 18-22: New converts are especially vulnerable to false teaching. Backsliders are worse off than slaves of corruption; for a man is the slave of whatever has mastered him. 20 They had once escaped the world's defilements through the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; yet if they have entangled themselves in these all over again, and are mastered by them, their plight in the end is 21 worse than before. How much better never to have known the right way, than, having known it, to turn back and abandon the sacred commandments delivered to them! For them the 22 proverb has proved true: 'The dog returns to its own vomit', and, 'The sow after a wash rolls in the mud again.'

3 THIS IS NOW MY SECOND LETTER TO YOU, my friends. In both of them I have been recalling to you what you already know, to rouse you to honest thought. 2 Remember the predictions made by God's own prophets, and the commands given by the Lord and Saviour through your apostles.

3 Note this first: in the last days there will come men who scoff at religion 4 and live self-indulgent lives, and they will say: 'Where now is the promise of his coming? Our fathers have been laid to their rest, but still everything continues exactly as it has always been since the world began.'

5 In taking this view they lose sight of the fact<sup>f</sup> that there were heavens and earth long ago, created by God's word 6 out of water and with water; and by water that first world was destroyed, 7 the water of the deluge. And the present heavens and earth, again by God's word, have been kept in store for burning; they are being reserved until the day of judgement when the godless will be destroyed.

8 And here is one point, my friends, which you must not lose sight of: with the Lord one day is like a thousand years and a thousand years like one day. It is not that the Lord is slow in 9 fulfilling his promise, as some suppose, but that he is very patient with you, because it is not his will for any to be lost, but for all to come to repentance.

But the Day of the Lord will come; 10 it will come, unexpected as a thief. On that day the heavens will disappear with a great rushing sound, the elements will disintegrate in flames, and the earth with all that is in it will be laid bare.<sup>g</sup>

Since the whole universe is to break 11 up in this way, think what sort of people you ought to be, what devout and dedicated lives you should live! Look eagerly for the coming of the 12 Day of God and work to hasten it on; that day will set the heavens ablaze until they fall apart, and will melt the elements in flames. But we have his 13 promise, and look forward to new heavens and a new earth, the home of justice.

With this to look forward to, do your 14 utmost to be found at peace with him, unblemished and above reproach in his sight. Bear in mind that our Lord's 15 patience with us is our salvation, as Paul, our friend and brother, said when he wrote to you with his inspired wisdom. And so he does in all his other 16 letters, wherever he speaks of this subject, though they contain some obscure passages, which the ignorant and unstable misinterpret to their own ruin, as they do the other scriptures.<sup>h</sup>

But you, my friends, are forewarned. 17 Take care, then, not to let these unprincipled men seduce you with their errors; do not lose your own safe foothold. But grow in the grace and in the 18 knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.<sup>i</sup> To him be glory now and for all eternity!

<sup>f</sup> Or They choose to overlook the fact . . .

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses read will be burnt up.

<sup>h</sup> Or his other writings.

<sup>i</sup> Or But grow up, by the grace of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and by knowing him.

are the unconverted. See also Heb.6.4-6; 10.26-31. 22: Dog returns to its own vomit: see Prov.26.11.

3.1-10: Predicted events have occurred. See Acts 20.29-30. 1: Second letter: the first is presumed to be 1 Pet. 3-4: See 2.1-3. 5-7: See Gen.1.1-10; chs. 7-8. 8: Ps.90.4. 10: Compare, e.g. Mt.24.43-44; Zeph.1.18; 3.8.

3.11-18: Exhortations to prepare for the end. 12: See Isa.34.4. 13: See, e.g. Isa.65.17; Rev.21.1ff. 14: See Jude 24. 15: See v. 9. Perhaps Paul's letters to the Thessalonians are in mind, or passages like 1 Cor.1.7-9. 16: Heretics are false interpreters of the scriptures (see 1.19-21), within which Paul's letters are included (see Introduction).

THE FIRST LETTER OF JOHN

Unlike 2 and 3 John, this book is not a letter but a tract, occasioned by the denial of the reality of the incarnation (2.22; 4.2–3,15) by some heretical Christians (2.19). These claim to be superior in knowing God (2.3–4), in love for God (4.20), and in communion with God (1.6).

The treatise may well be from the same hand that wrote 2 and 3 John. Its style and themes also recall those of the Fourth Gospel: centrality of the incarnation, the mission of the only Son, the Word (1.1). Still, no mention is made of the Holy Spirit as personal (Jesus is the “Advocate” in 2.1), or of “glory,” or of “judging,” all important in the Gospel. This may indicate that the tract had an earlier origin than the Gospel, or that it was written by a different author from the same school of thought. Tradition has associated the tract with Asia Minor and the name of John.

The main body of the book is enclosed between a prologue (1.1–4) and an epilogue (5.13–21). Three aspects of God are developed in concentric circles: God is “Light” (1.5–2.27), the “Holy One” (2.28–4.6), “Love” (4.7–5.12).

---

Recall to fundamentals

1 IT WAS THERE FROM THE BEGINNING; we have heard it; we have seen it with our own eyes; we looked upon it, and felt it with our own hands; and it is of this we tell. Our theme is the
2 word of life. This life was made visible; we have seen it and bear our testimony; we here declare to you the eternal life which dwelt with the Father and was
3 made visible to us. What we have seen and heard we declare to you, so that you and we together may share in a common life, that life which we share with the Father and his Son Jesus
4 Christ. And we write this in order that the joy of us all may be complete.
5 Here is the message we heard from him and pass on to you: that God is light, and in him there is no darkness
6 at all. If we claim to be sharing in his life while we walk in the dark, our 7 words and our lives are a lie; but if we walk in the light as he himself is in the light, then we share together a common life, and we are being cleansed from every sin by the blood of Jesus his Son.

If we claim to be sinless, we are self-<sup>8</sup> deceived and strangers to the truth. If<sup>9</sup> we confess our sins, he is just, and may be trusted to forgive our sins and cleanse us from every kind of wrong; but if we say we have committed no sin,<sup>10</sup> we make him out to be a liar, and then his word has no place in us.

My children, in writing thus to you<sup>2</sup> my purpose is that you should not commit sin. But should anyone commit a sin, we have one to plead our cause<sup>a</sup> with the Father, Jesus Christ, and he is just. He is himself the remedy for the<sup>2</sup> defilement of our sins, not our sins only but the sins of all the world.

Here is the test by which we can<sup>3</sup> make sure that we know him: do we keep his commands? The man who<sup>4</sup> says, ‘I know him’, while he disobeys his commands, is a liar and a stranger

a Literally we have an advocate . . .

---

1.1–4: The prologue. 1: The impersonal it refers to the word of life, which may denote the gospel, since word is not as clearly a title for Jesus Christ as in Jn. (see Jn.1.1, 14 nn.). However, from the beginning (the creation) suggests the preexistence of Christ (see 2.13–14). As in Jn.1.14, the pronoun we indicates the apostolic witnesses, who attest their personal experience of Jesus’ earthly life. The theme is that announced in Jn.1.1–18. 2: This life, described as eternal, which dwelt with the Father (see Jn.1.1–2), has become visible through the incarnation (see Jn.1.14). 3: The key Gk. term behind the phrase, share in a common life, is found only here and in vv. 6–7 in Johannine literature, but is characteristic of Paul (e.g. 1 Cor.1.9). However, the idea of life which we share with the Father and his Son is very Johannine (see Jn.5.26; 14.6). 4: The joy communicated by Christ is mentioned in Jn.15.11; 16.22; 17.13.

1.5–2.27: God is Light. 5: Light and darkness, a frequent antithesis in Jn., signify truth and error and reflect a moral dualism (see Jn.1.5; 3.19). 7: The common life is not created by man’s goodwill, but by Christ’s redemptive act (see Rev.1.5). 9: Jas.5.16 also urges the confession of sins. 2.1: The Gospel of Jn. (e.g. 14.16) calls the Holy Spirit the Advocate (see Tfn. a). 2: Only here and at 4.10 in Johannine literature is Jesus called the remedy for the defilement of our sins.

5 to the truth; but in the man who is obedient to his word, the divine love has indeed come to its perfection.

6 Here is the test by which we can make sure that we are in him: whoever claims to be dwelling in him, binds himself to live as Christ himself lived.
7 Dear friends, I give you no new command. It is the old command which you always had before you; the old command is the message which you
8 heard at the beginning. And yet again it is a new command that I am giving you—new in the sense that the darkness is passing and the real light already shines. Christ has made this true, and it is true in your own experience.

9 A man may say, 'I am in the light'; but if he hates his brother, he is still in the dark. Only the man who loves his 10 brother dwells in light: there is nothing to make him stumble. But one who 11 hates his brother is in darkness; he walks in the dark and has no idea where he is going, because the darkness has made him blind.

12 I write to you, my children, because your sins have been forgiven for his sake.<sup>b</sup>

13 I write to you, fathers, because you know him who is and has been from the beginning.<sup>c</sup>

I write to you, young men, because you have mastered the evil one.

To you, children, I have written because you know the Father.

14 To you, fathers, I have written because you know him who is and has been from the beginning.<sup>c</sup>

To you, young men, I have written because you are strong; God's word remains in you, and you have mastered the evil one.

15 Do not set your hearts on the godless world or anything in it. Anyone who loves the world is a stranger to the Father's love. Everything the world 16 affords, all that panders to the appetites or entices the eyes, all the glamour of its life, springs not from the Father but from the godless world. And that world

17 is passing away with all its allurements, but he who does God's will stands for evermore.

MY CHILDREN, THIS IS THE LAST HOUR! 18
You were told that Antichrist was to come, and now many antichrists have appeared; which proves to us that this 19 is indeed the last hour. They went out from our company, but never really belonged to us; if they had, they would have stayed with us. They went out, so that it might be clear that not all in our company truly belong to it.<sup>d</sup>

You, no less than they, are among 20 the initiated;<sup>e</sup> this is the gift of the Holy One, and by it you all have knowledge.<sup>f</sup> It is not because you are ignorant of 21 the truth that I have written to you, but because you know it, and because lies, one and all, are alien to the truth.

Who is the liar? Who but he that 22 denies that Jesus is the Christ? He is Antichrist, for he denies both the 23 Father and the Son: to deny the Son is to be without the Father; to acknowledge the Son is to have the Father too.
24 You therefore must keep in your hearts that which you heard at the beginning; if what you heard then still dwells in 25 you, you will yourselves dwell in the Son and also in the Father. And this is the promise that he himself gave us, the promise of eternal life.

So much for those who would mis-26 lead you. But as for you, the initiation<sup>g</sup> 27 which you received from him stays with

<sup>b</sup> Or forgiven, since you bear his name.

<sup>c</sup> Or him whom we have known from the beginning.

<sup>d</sup> Or that none of them truly belong to us.

<sup>e</sup> Literally have an anointing (Greek chrism).

<sup>f</sup> Some witnesses read you have all knowledge.

<sup>g</sup> Literally the anointing.

The meaning is that by Jesus' death (see 1.7) God has revealed his gracious, loving forgiveness of man. The atoning power of Christ's death is limitless. 5: Jn.14.15 and 15.10 assert that Christian love implies obedience. 7-8: The old yet new command: see Jn.13.34. 16: The world here is opposed to God (see Jn.3.16 n.) and is exemplified by three common evil tendencies in man: lust, avarice, arrogant self-sufficiency. 18: Antichrist, found only in 1 and 2 Jn., is a personification of "enmity to Christ." 20-21: The presence of the Spirit in the Christian brings knowledge of divine truth (see Jn.14.26; 16.13-15). 22-23: The denial of the incarnation is the basic heresy attacked by the author. 27: Jer.31.33-34 promises a new covenant when men will be divinely taught and need no other teacher.

you; you need no other teacher, but learn all you need to know from his initiation, which is real and no illusion. As he taught you, then, dwell in him.

28 Even now, my children, dwell in him, so that when he appears we may be confident and unashamed before him at his coming. If you know that he is righteous, you must recognize that every man who does right is his child.

3 How great is the love that the Father has shown to us! We were called God's children, and such we are;<sup>h</sup> and the reason why the godless world does not recognize us is that it has not known him. Here and now, dear friends, we are God's children; what we shall be has not yet been disclosed, but we know that when it is disclosed<sup>i</sup> we shall be like him,<sup>j</sup> because we shall see him as he is. Everyone who has this hope before him purifies himself, as Christ is pure.

4 To commit sin is to break God's law: sin, in fact, is lawlessness. Christ appeared, as you know, to do away with sins, and there is no sin in him. No man therefore who dwells in him is a sinner; the sinner has not seen him and does not know him.

7 My children, do not be misled: it is the man who does right who is righteous, as God is righteous; the man who sins is a child of the devil, for the devil has been a sinner from the first; and the Son of God appeared for the very purpose of undoing the devil's work.

9 A child of God does not commit sin, because the divine seed remains in him; he cannot be a sinner, because he is God's child. That is the distinction between the children of God and the children of the devil: no one who does not do right is God's child, nor is anyone who does not love his brother.

11 For the message you have heard from the beginning is this: that we should love one another; unlike Cain, who was a child of the evil one and murdered his brother. And why did he murder him? Because his own actions were wrong, and his brother's were right.

My brothers, do not be surprised if the world hates you. We for our part have crossed over from death to life; this we know, because we love our brothers. The man who does not love is still in the realm of death, for everyone who hates his brother is a murderer, and no murderer, as you know, has eternal life dwelling within him. It is by this that we know what love is: that Christ laid down his life for us. And we in our turn are bound to lay down our lives for our brothers. But if a man has enough to live on, and yet when he sees his brother in need shuts up his heart against him, how can it be said that the divine love<sup>k</sup> dwells in him?

My children, love must not be a matter of words or talk; it must be genuine, and show itself in action. This is how we may know that we belong to the realm of truth, and convince ourselves in his sight that even if our conscience condemns us, God is greater than our conscience<sup>l</sup> and knows all.

Dear friends, if our conscience does not condemn us, then we can approach God with confidence, and obtain from him whatever we ask, because we are keeping his commands and doing what he approves. This is his command: to give our allegiance to his Son Jesus Christ and love one another as he commanded. When we keep his commands we dwell in him and he dwells in us. And this is how we can make sure that he dwells within us: we know it from the Spirit he has given us.

h Or We are called children of God! Not only called, we really are his children.

i Or when he appears.

j Or we are God's children, though he has not yet appeared; what we shall be we know, for when he does appear we shall be like him.

k Or that love for God . . .

l Or and reassure ourselves in his sight in matters where our conscience condemns us, because God is greater than our conscience . . . ; or and yet we shall do well to convince ourselves that if even our own conscience condemns us, still more will God who is greater than conscience . . .

2.28-4.6: God is the Holy One. 28: This is the only place in the Johannine writings which speaks unambiguously of Christ's (future) coming; but see Jn.16.16 n. 3.1-3: The love that the Father has shown by Jesus' redemptive mission has made the Christian one of God's children; yet this sonship remains a mystery and a hope until Christ appears. 9: The divine seed is probably the Spirit of v. 24 and 4.13. The Christian cannot be a sinner in the fundamental sense that he must remain united to God (v. 6); that, in fact, he commits sin is affirmed in 1.8-10. 12: Cain: Gen.4.3-8. 19-20: A life spent in loving service for others proves our union with God, whose

4 BUT DO NOT TRUST ANY AND EVERY spirit, my friends; test the spirits, to see whether they are from God, for among those who have gone out into the world there are many prophets
 2 falsely inspired. This is how we may recognize the Spirit of God: every spirit which acknowledges that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from 3 God, and every spirit which does not thus acknowledge Jesus is not from God. This is what is meant by 'Anti-christ';<sup>m</sup> you have been told that he was to come, and here he is, in the world already!

4 But you, my children, are of God's family, and you have the mastery over these false prophets, because he who
 5 inspires you is greater than he who inspires the godless world. They are of that world, and so therefore is their teaching; that is why the world listens
 6 to them. But we belong to God, and a man who knows God listens to us, while he who does not belong to God refuses us a hearing. That is how we distinguish the spirit of truth from the spirit of error.

7 Dear friends, let us love one another, because love is from God. Everyone who loves is a child of God and knows
 8 God, but the unloving know nothing
 9 of God. For God is love; and his love was disclosed to us in this, that he sent his only Son into the world to bring us 10 life. The love I speak of is not our love for God, but the love he showed to us in sending his Son as the remedy for 11 the defilement of our sins. If God thus loved us, dear friends, we in turn are 12 bound to love one another. Though God has never been seen by any man, God himself dwells in us if we love one another; his love is brought to perfection within us.

Here is the proof that we dwell in 13 him and he dwells in us: he has imparted his Spirit to us. Moreover, we 14 have seen for ourselves, and we attest, that the Father sent the Son to be the saviour of the world, and if a man 15 acknowledges that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwells in him and he dwells in God. Thus we have come to know 16 and believe the love which God has for us.

God is love; he who dwells in love is dwelling in God, and God in him. This 17 is for us the perfection of love, to have confidence on the day of judgement, and this we can have, because even in this world we are as he is. There is no 18 room for fear in love; perfect love banishes fear. For fear brings with it the pains of judgement, and anyone who is afraid has not attained to love in its perfection. We love because he 19 loved us first. But if a man says, 'I love God', while hating his brother, he is a liar. If he does not love the brother whom he has seen, it cannot be that he loves God whom he has not seen. And 21 indeed this command comes to us from Christ himself: that he who loves God must also love his brother.

Everyone who believes that Jesus is 5 the Christ is a child of God, and to love the parent means to love his child; it 2 follows that when we love God and obey his commands we love his children too. For to love God is to keep 3 his commands; and they are not burdensome, because every child of God is 4 victor over the godless world. The victory that defeats the world is our faith, for who is victor over the world 5 but he who believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

m Or This is the spirit of Antichrist.

---

love and mercy keeps us from despair, even if our conscience condemns us. 4.1-6: The author's admonition to test the spirits is an example of the church's distinction between types of "spiritual phenomena" (see 1 Cor.12.3; 1 Th.5.19-22).

4.7-5.21: God is Love. While 1 Jn. in many respects displays a less sophisticated theology than the Fourth Gospel, this cannot be said of its understanding of Christian love. 9-10: The statement that God is love is not a definition of God, but a description of his redemptive action in Christ. 11-12: The way to "see" the invisible God (compare Jn.1.14,18) in this life is to love one another. 14-16: The authenticity of our love is derived from our grasp of the reality of the incarnation and our redemption by Christian faith. The theme of the mutual indwelling of God and the believer is characteristically Johannine (see 3.24; Jn.15.5). 5.1: Faith in the incarnate Son as the Christ enables us to recognize others as God's children and leads to true Christian love. 4: The acknowledgment by our faith of Jesus' true character (v. 5) is what

- 6 This is he who came with water and blood: Jesus Christ. He came, not by water alone, but by water and blood; and there is the Spirit to bear witness, 7,8 because the Spirit is truth. For there are three witnesses, the Spirit, the water, and the blood, and these three are in agreement. We accept human testimony, but surely divine testimony is stronger, and this threefold testimony is indeed that of God himself, the 9 witness he has borne to his Son. He who believes in the Son of God has this testimony in his own heart, but he who disbelieves God, makes him out to be a liar, by refusing to accept God's 11 own witness to his Son. The witness is this: that God has given us eternal life, and that this life is found in his 12 Son. He who possesses the Son has life indeed; he who does not possess the Son of God has not that life.
- 13 THIS LETTER IS TO ASSURE YOU THAT YOU have eternal life. It is addressed to those who give their allegiance to the Son of God.
- 14 We can approach God with confidence for this reason: if we make requests which accord with his will he listens to us; and if we know that our requests are heard, we know also that the things we ask for are ours. 15
- If a man sees his brother committing a sin which is not a deadly sin, he should pray to God for him, and he will grant him life—that is, when men are not guilty of deadly sin. There is such a thing as deadly sin, and I do not suggest that he should pray about that; but although all wrongdoing is sin, not all sin is deadly sin. 16
- We know that no child of God is a sinner; it is the Son of God who keeps him safe, and the evil one cannot touch him. 17
- We know that we are of God's family, while the whole godless world lies in the power of the evil one. 18
- We know that the Son of God has come and given us understanding to know him who is real; indeed we are in him who is real, since we are in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God, this is eternal life. My children, be on the watch against false gods. 19 20 21

---

defeats the world, which opposes God. 6: Jesus was proclaimed the Son of God after his baptism with water (Mt.3.17); but Jn.19.34–35 attests that by water and blood Jesus was revealed as Savior of men. 7–8: An ancient trinitarian formula (which identifies “Father, Word, and Spirit” as “heavenly witnesses”) was a gloss inserted into this passage in some Latin versions. 13: This statement of purpose recalls Jn.20.31. 14–15: Christian confidence in being heard is an important element of petitionary prayer. 16: The deadly sin, not specified by the author, is of such a nature as to defy forgiveness, possibly that cited in 2.18–29. 20: By him who is real, the author means God.

THE SECOND LETTER OF JOHN

This is a real letter, written to a specific Christian community by "the Elder." A man of authority in his own church, the author feels a certain responsibility for the faith of another community. It is all but impossible to discover the date, place of origin, or destination of this note. Its purpose is to alert the church addressed to the dangers of the heretical denial of the incarnation. To counter these dangers, it urges fidelity to the traditional commandment of fraternal love, which involves obedience to apostolic authority. Stylistic similarities suggest that this writer also composed 3 John; he may be the author of 1 John also.

---

Truth and love

1 THE ELDER TO THE LADY CHOSEN BY God, and her children, whom I love in truth—and not I alone 2 but all who know the truth—for the sake of the truth that dwells among us
and will be with us for ever.

3 Grace, mercy, and peace shall be with us from God the Father and from Jesus Christ the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

4 I was delighted to find that some of your children are living by the truth, as we were commanded by the Father.

5 And now I have a request to make of
you. Do not think I am giving a new command; I am recalling the one we have had before us from the beginning:
6 let us love one another. And love means following the commands of God. This is the command which was given you from the beginning, to be your rule of life.

7 Many deceivers have gone out into the world, who do not acknowledge Jesus Christ as coming in the flesh.

These are the persons described as the Antichrist, the arch-deceiver. Beware 8 of them, so that you may not lose all that we worked for, but receive your reward
in full.

Anyone who runs ahead too far, and 9 does not stand by the doctrine of the Christ, is without God; he who stands by that doctrine possesses both the Father and the Son. If anyone comes 10 to you who does not bring this doctrine,
do not welcome him into your house or give him a greeting; for anyone 11
who gives him a greeting is an accomplice
in his wicked deeds.

I have much to write to you, but I 12
do not care to put it down in black and white. But I hope to visit you and talk with you face to face, so that our joy
may be complete. The children of your 13 Sister, chosen by God, send their greetings.

---

1-3: Address and wish. 1: Elder: a term used elsewhere to designate the leader(s) of a local church (see Acts 14.23; 20.17; 1 Tim.5.17; Ti.1.5). The community addressed is called the Lady, which in Gk. is the feminine equivalent of "Lord." The title may be related to the familiar imagery of the church as the "bride of Christ" (see 2 Cor.11.2; Eph.5.26-27; Rev.19.7). The phrase chosen by God (used here of the church) indicates Jesus in Jn.1.34. 2: The truth is the divine presence; its possession is assured by fidelity to the doctrine of the Christ (v. 9).

4-12: The body of the letter. 4: Since only some are living by the truth, the heresy has made serious inroads into the community. 5: The writer's remedy is faithfulness to the command of fraternal love (see 1 Jn.2.7-10; Jn.13.34). 6: This association of love with the commands of God is characteristic of Johannine thought (see Jn.14.23). 7: See 1 Jn.2.22. Antichrist: see 1 Jn.2.18 n. 9: The heretic runs ahead too far by minimizing the reality of the incarnation.

13: Final greeting. The children of your Sister: the members of the Elder's church.

THE THIRD LETTER OF JOHN

This genuine letter is addressed to an individual member of a Christian church, whose leader, Diotrephes, has refused to receive the emissaries of the Elder led by Demetrius. Gaius, the addressee, a man of probity, is asked to provide hospitality for Demetrius and his companions. The author is the same Elder who wrote 2 John, as the vocabulary and style indicate; also, the two letters are of equal length.

---

Trouble in the church

1 THE ELDER TO DEAR GAIUS, WHOM
I love in truth.
2 My dear Gaius, I pray that you may enjoy good health, and that 3 it goes well with your soul. I was delighted when friends came and told 4 you are true in your whole life. Nothing gives me greater joy than to hear that my children are living by the truth.
5 My dear friend, you show a fine loyalty in everything that you do for 6 these our fellow-Christians, strangers though they are to you. They have spoken of your kindness before the 7 congregation here. Please help them on their journey in a manner worthy of the God we serve. It was on Christ's 8 work that they went out; and they would accept nothing from pagans.
We are bound to support such men,
and so play our part in spreading the truth.

I sent a letter to the congregation, 9
but Diotrephes, their would-be leader,<sup>a</sup> 10 will have nothing to do with us. If I come, I will bring up the things he is doing. He lays baseless and spiteful charges against us; not satisfied with that, he refuses to receive our friends, and he interferes with those who would do so, and tries to expel them from the congregation.

My dear friend, do not imitate bad 11
examples, but good ones. The well-doer is a child of God; the evil-doer has never seen God.

Demetrius gets a good testimonial 12
from everybody—yes, and from the truth itself. I add my testimony, and you know that my testimony is true.

I have much to write to you, but I 13
do not care to set it down with pen and ink. I hope to see you very soon, and 14
we will talk face to face. Peace be with you. Our friends send their greetings.
Greet our friends one by one.

a Or who enjoys being their leader.

---

1-2: Address and prayer. 1: Gaius, an exemplary Christian, has already aided itinerant preachers (v. 6). To love in truth is to love as a Christian.

3-14: The body of the letter. 4: In 2 Jn.4 the phrase living by the truth means obedience to the Father. 5: The writer recommends Demetrius (v. 12) and his associates to Gaius' care as our fellow-Christians. 9: Diotrephes is not heretical but he is a foe of the Elder, overambitious, unjust, and uncharitable. 11: The Christian well-doer is called a child of God in 1 Jn.3.9. 13-14: See 2 Jn.12-13. The note ends with a wish of peace, the sum total of all Christ's blessings.

A LETTER OF JUDE

Most New Testament letters are addressed to one or more specific congregations. This author, however, writes to all Christians. Following the salutation (vv. 1–2) he gives his reasons for writing: to urge Christians everywhere to defend the faith against false teaching (v. 3) and to oppose “the enemies of religion” (v. 4). In vv. 5–16 the effectiveness of God’s judgment of evil is stressed, while in vv. 17–23 the readers are urged to take action to prevent themselves and others from falling into error. An impressive doxology (vv. 24–25) gives assurance of God’s aid in holding fast to the faith.

Although this author is concerned to safeguard right doctrine, he offers no systematic refutation of false teaching, but rather condemns the immorality of those who espouse it. A similar tactic and some of the same points are present in 2 Peter (see Introduction there). The author calls himself “Jude” the “brother of James,” and probably means for the readers to infer that he is therefore one of the brothers of Jesus himself (see Mt.13.55; Mk.6.3). Most scholars, however, believe that the style, content, and probable date of this tract (late first or early second century) require the conclusion that Jude’s name has been used by a later writer to lend authority to his urgent appeal.

The danger of false belief

- 1 FROM JUDE, SERVANT OF JESUS CHRIST and brother of James, to those whom God has called, who live in the love of God the Father and in the safe keeping of Jesus Christ.
- 2 Mercy, peace, and love be yours in fullest measure.
- 3 My friends, I was fully engaged in writing to you about our salvation—which is yours no less than ours—when it became urgently necessary to write at once and appeal to you to join the struggle in defence of the faith, the faith which God entrusted to his people
- 4 once and for all. It is in danger from certain persons who have wormed their way in, the very men whom Scripture long ago marked down for the doom they have incurred. They are the enemies of religion; they pervert the free favour of our God into licentiousness, disowning Jesus Christ, our only Master and Lord.<sup>a</sup>
- 5 You already know it all, but let me remind you how the Lord,<sup>b</sup> having once delivered the people of Israel out of Egypt, next time destroyed those who were guilty of unbelief. Remember too the angels, how some of them were not content to keep the dominion given to them but abandoned their proper home; and God has reserved them for judgement on the great Day, bound beneath the darkness in everlasting chains. Remember Sodom and Gomorrah and the neighbouring towns; like the angels, they committed fornication and followed unnatural lusts; and they paid the penalty in eternal fire, an example for all to see.

So too with these men today. Their dreams lead them to defile the body, to flout authority, and to insult celestial beings. In contrast, when the archangel Michael was in debate with the devil, disputing the possession of Moses’s body, he did not presume to condemn him in insulting words,<sup>c</sup> but said, ‘May the Lord rebuke you!’

But these men pour abuse upon 10 things they do not understand; the things they do understand, by instinct like brute beasts, prove their undoing.

<sup>a</sup> Or disowning our one and only Master, and Jesus Christ our Lord.

<sup>b</sup> Some witnesses read Jesus (which might be understood as Joshua).

<sup>c</sup> Or to charge him with blasphemy.

1–2: Salutation. See Introduction.

3–4: Preface. 3: The faith is the Christian doctrinal tradition entrusted to God’s people (perhaps a specific reference to the apostles). 4. A warning against certain false teachers who, in particular, deny that Jesus is Master and Lord: see 2 Jn.7. Scripture: see vv. 14–15 n., 17–18 n.

5–16: The judgment of God. 5: See Num.14.11–35. 6: See Gen.6.1–4; Deut.32.8; 1 Enoch (an ancient noncanonical book) chs. 6–10; 18.14–16; 21.2. 7: See Gen.19.23–25; Deut.29.23; Wis.10.6. 8: Angelic powers, in this writer’s view, deserve respect; contrast Eph.1.21–22; Col.2.15–19. 9: The literary source of the legend referred to is now lost, but perhaps stood in

- 11 Alas for them! They have gone the way of Cain; they have plunged into Balaam's error for pay; they have rebelled like Korah, and they share his doom.
- 12 These men are a blot on your love-feasts, where they eat and drink without reverence. They are shepherds who take care only of themselves. They are clouds carried away by the wind without giving rain, trees that in season bear no fruit, dead twice over and pulled up by the roots. They are fierce waves of the sea, foaming shameful deeds; they are stars that have wandered from their course, and the place for ever reserved for them is blackest darkness.
- 14 It was to them that Enoch, the seventh in descent from Adam, directed his prophecy when he said: 'I saw the Lord come with his myriads of angels, to bring all men to judgement and to convict all the godless of all the godless deeds they had committed, and of all the defiant words which godless sinners had spoken against him.'
- 16 They are a set of grumblers and malcontents. They follow their lusts. Big words come rolling from their lips, and they court favour to gain their ends.
- 17 But you, my friends, should remember the predictions made by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ. This was the warning they gave you: 'In the final age there will be men who pour scorn on religion, and follow their own godless lusts.'

These men draw a line between spiritual and unspiritual persons, although they are themselves<sup>d</sup> wholly unspiritual. But you, my friends, must fortify yourselves in your most sacred faith. Continue to pray in the power of the Holy Spirit. Keep yourselves in the love of God, and look forward to the day when our Lord Jesus Christ in his mercy will give eternal life.

There are some doubting souls who need your pity;<sup>e</sup> snatch them from the flames and save them.<sup>f</sup> There are others for whom your pity must be mixed with fear; hate the very clothing that is contaminated with sensuality.

Now to the One who can keep you from falling and set you in the presence of his glory, jubilant and above reproach, to the only God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, might and authority, through Jesus Christ our Lord, before all time, now, and for evermore. Amen.

<sup>d</sup> Or These men create divisions; they are . . .

<sup>e</sup> Some witnesses read There are some who raise disputes; these you should refute.

<sup>f</sup> So one witness; the rest read some you should snatch from the flames and save.

the incompletely preserved writing, "Assumption of Moses." 11: Cain symbolizes lust and self-indulgence (e.g. Wis.10.3). Balaam's error was covetousness (Num. chs. 22-24); Korah led a rebellion against Moses and Aaron (Num. ch. 16). 12-13: Love-feasts were church meals probably separate from the "Lord's Supper." Dead twice over: see Rev.20.14; 21.8. For other images used here, see Prov.25.14; Isa.14.12-15; 57.20; the nonbiblical book 1 Enoch 18.12-16; 21.3ff. 14-15: See the nonbiblical book 1 Enoch 1.1-9; 5.4; 27.2; 60.8; 93.2.

17-23: The need for right doctrine. 17-18: See, e.g. Paul in Acts 20.29-30. 20. Sacred faith: see v. 3 n. 21-22: The day of Christ's return will bring both mercy and judgment. 23: Fleshly lusts should be despised; see Zech.3.2-7.

24-25: Doxology. See Rom.16.25-27.

THE REVELATION OF JOHN

1941

THE REVELATION OF JOHN

The Revelation of John encourages Christians to keep faith in the face of trial and persecution. The author is a Christian prophet, John, who is persecuted himself and writes from exile on the island of Patmos in the Aegean Sea to churches in what is now western Turkey. He often employs the visionary and symbolic language characteristic of apocalyptic ("unveiling," revelatory) literature to give his readers confidence that God, not Satan or the Roman emperor, is the Lord of history. Though there are symbolic images that seem to refer to Nero (54–68 A.D.) and parts may have been written before the fall of Jerusalem in 70 A.D., the book in its present form probably was written during the reign of Domitian (81–96 A.D.), a period when emperor worship was geographically extensive and coercive.

Among New Testament writings, Revelation is unique as a thoroughly apocalyptic document; it has forerunners in parts of such Old Testament books as Daniel, Isaiah, and Zechariah. Its very structure and language seem strongly influenced by Ezekiel. Like other apocalyptic writings composed in times of crisis and danger and portraying a struggle between God and his adversaries, Revelation veils its message to hide it from pagan foes. Yet, the purpose of the symbols is to unveil or reveal to believers God's ultimate victory and to encourage their loyalty to him. Steeped in Old Testament references, many of the seemingly cryptic statements are clarified when the reader consults these Scriptures.

The structure of Revelation is dominated by series of sevens, the biblical number of fullness or completeness. In powerful imagery and sometimes moving liturgical language, history is portrayed as unfolding toward that ultimate fullness of God's triumph in his new heaven and new earth. God and the Lamb (Jesus Christ) are "the first and the last." To them belong "praise and honor, glory and might forever." Such a message, though rooted in the first century, has been spiritually uplifting to poets, musicians, artists, and ordinary Christians through the ages.

1 THIS IS THE REVELATION GIVEN BY God to Jesus Christ. It was given to him so that he might show his servants what must shortly happen. He made it known by sending his angel
2 to his servant John, who, in telling all that he saw, has borne witness to the word of God and to the testimony of Jesus Christ.<sup>a</sup>
3 Happy is the man who reads, and happy those who listen to the words of this prophecy and heed what is written in it. For the hour of fulfillment is near.

A message from Christ to the churches

JOHN TO THE SEVEN CHURCHES IN THE 4 province of Asia.

Grace be to you and peace, from him who is and who was and who is to come, from the seven spirits before his throne, and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the first-born from the dead and ruler of the kings of the earth. 5

To him who loves us and freed us from our sins with his life's blood, who 6

a Or has borne his testimony to the word of God and to Jesus Christ.

1.1–3: The foreword. The opening declares the ultimate source of the revelation, its purpose (to show . . . what must shortly happen), and the manner of its mediation to John (see 22.6,16). 1: Servants (lit. slaves) is a recurrent way of speaking of God's agents (compare Amos 3.7). The delivery of the revelation by an angel reflects the motif in postexilic prophecy that God's distant majesty required mediating messengers (see Zech.1.19). 2: Here the word of God means God's message; in 19.13 (see Jn.1.1) Jesus is the Word of God. 3: Happy (or, blessed) introduces one of seven blessings in Rev.; here (as in 22.7) it blesses those who read and hear the revelation in public worship.

1.4–8: Greeting, confession, and doxology. The traditional greeting of grace and peace (see Rom.1.7 n.) is expanded into a confession of God's past, present, and future reign, as well as of the lordship of Jesus Christ; they, not Satan or Caesar, are the true rulers of history. 5: The seven spirits (see 3.1; 4.5; 5.6) point to the fullness of God's reigning power (throne). Faithful witness (or, martyr) implies Jesus' faithfulness unto death. First-born from the dead: see Rom. 8.29; Col.1.15,18; compare Ps.89.27. Ruler of the kings: see 11.15–18; 19.16. 6: Royal house and priests apply OT political and cultic designations of Israel to Christians; see Exod.19.6;

made of us a royal house, to serve as the priests of his God and Father—to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever! Amen.

7 Behold, he is coming with the clouds! Every eye shall see him, and among them those who pierced him; and all the peoples of the world shall lament in remorse. So it shall be. Amen.

8 'I am the Alpha and the Omega', says the Lord God, who is and who was and who is to come, the sovereign Lord of all.

9 I, John, your brother, who share with you in the suffering and the sovereignty and the endurance which is ours in Jesus—I was on the island called Patmos because I had preached God's word and borne my testimony to Jesus.

10 It was on the Lord's day, and I was caught up by the Spirit; and behind me I heard a loud voice, like the sound

11 of a trumpet, which said to me, 'Write down what you see on a scroll and send it to the seven churches: to Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, 12 Philadelphia, and Laodicea.' I turned to see whose voice it was that spoke to me; and when I turned I saw seven standing 13 lamps of gold, and among the lamps one like a son of man, robed down to his feet, with a golden girdle round his 14 breast. The hair of his head was white as snow-white wool, and his eyes flamed 15 like fire; his feet gleamed like burnished brass refined in a furnace, and his voice was like the sound of rushing waters. In his right hand he held seven stars, 16 and out of his mouth came a sharp two-edged sword; and his face shone like the sun in full strength.

When I saw him, I fell at his feet as 17 though dead. But he laid his right hand upon me and said, 'Do not be afraid. I am the first and the last, and I am the 18 living one; for I was dead and now I am alive for evermore, and I hold the keys of Death and Death's domain. Write down therefore what you have 19 seen, what is now, and what will be hereafter.

'Here is the secret meaning of the 20 seven stars which you saw in my right hand, and of the seven lamps of gold: the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lamps are the seven churches.

TO THE ANGEL OF THE CHURCH AT 2 Ephesus write:

“These are the words of the One who holds the seven stars in his right hand and walks among the seven lamps of gold: I know all your ways, your toil 2 and your fortitude. I know you cannot endure evil men; you have put to the proof those who claim to be apostles but are not, and have found them false. Fortitude you have; you have borne 3 up in my cause and never flagged. But I have this against you: you 4 have lost your early love. Think from 5

Isa.61.6; compare Rev.5.10; 1 Pet.2.9. 7: Coming with the clouds: see Dan.7.13; Mt.24.30. Pierced, lament: Zech.12.10; compare Jn.19.37. So it shall be translates the Heb. Amen. 8: Alpha and Omega (applied again to God in 21.6 and to Jesus in 22.13) are the first and last letters of the Gk. alphabet; compare “first” and “last” in 1.17; Isa.44.6; 48.12.

1.9–20: John's vision and commission. 10: The Lord's day: Sunday. Caught up by the Spirit reflects ecstatic experience; see Ezek.3.12. 11: Trumpet: compare Exod.19.16,19; as related to the end-time see Mt.24.37; 1 Cor.15.52; 1 Th.4.16. Write down: compare Isa.30.8. 12: Seven . . . lamps (see Exod.25.37; Zech.4.2) are identified in v. 20 as the seven churches. These churches, named in v. 11, stood on a great road that circumscribed the west-central region of the province of Asia. 13–15: Son of man (see 14.14), a figure in Dan.7.13, here and especially in the Gospels is applied to Jesus; the description of him (see Dan.7.9–10,12–13; 10.5–6; Ezek.1.24–8; 43.2) expresses priesthood, kingship, eternity, omniscience, strength. 16: Right hand is a symbol of power; Christ, not Caesar, holds the seven stars (identified in v. 20 as the angels, perhaps guardian angels, of the churches); the stars are perhaps contrasted with the seven stars which appear on Roman coins as a symbol of imperial power. Sword suggests the power of his word; see Isa.11.4; 49.2; Eph.6.17; Heb.4.12. Shining face: compare Dan.10.6; Mt.13.43; 17.2. 17: Fell at his feet: compare Dan.10.9; Ezek.1.28; Mt.17.6; Lk.5.8. 18: The affirmation that Christ is first and last (see v. 8 n.) here includes his victory over death.

2.1–3.22: The seven letters. Each contains initial descriptions of Christ, followed by encouragement, admonition, and promise.

2.1–7: Ephesus: Roman Asia's chief city. 1: Angel: see 1.20. One: the risen Christ; see 1.17–18. Stars: see 1.16 n., 1.20. Lamps: see 1.12 n., 1.20. 2: Apostles: missionaries; on false apostles, compare 2 Cor.11.12–15. 4: Early love: initial, waning enthusiasm; see Jer.2.2; Hos.2.14–16.

what a height you have fallen; repent, and do as you once did. Otherwise, if you do not repent, I shall come to you and remove your lamp from its place.

6 Yet you have this in your favour: you hate the practices of the Nicolaitans, as

7 I do. Hear, you who have ears to hear, what the Spirit says to the churches! To him who is victorious I will give the right to eat from the tree of life that stands in the Garden of God.”

8 “To the angel of the church at Smyrna write:

“These are the words of the First and the Last, who was dead and came

9 to life again: I know how hard pressed you are, and poor—and yet you are rich; I know how you are slandered by those who claim to be Jews but are

10 not—they are Satan’s synagogue. Do not be afraid of the suffering to come. The Devil will throw some of you into prison, to put you to the test; and for ten days you will suffer cruelly. Only be faithful till death, and I will give you

11 the crown of life. Hear, you who have ears to hear, what the Spirit says to the churches! He who is victorious cannot be harmed by the second death.”

12 “To the angel of the church at Pergamum write:

“These are the words of the One who has the sharp two-edged sword:

13 I know where you live; it is the place where Satan has his throne. And yet you are holding fast to my cause. You did not deny your faith in me even at the time when Antipas, my faithful witness, was killed in your city, the home

14 of Satan. But I have a few matters to bring against you: you have in Pergamum some that hold to the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak to put temptation in the way of the Israelites. He encouraged them to eat food sacrificed to idols and to commit fornication, and in the same way you also 15 have some who hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitans. So repent! If you do not, 16 I shall come to you soon and make war upon them with the sword that comes out of my mouth. Hear, you who have

17 ears to hear, what the Spirit says to the churches! To him who is victorious I will give some of the hidden manna; I will give him also a white stone, and on the stone will be written a new name, known to none but him that receives it.”

“To the angel of the church at Thyatira write:

“These are the words of the Son of God, whose eyes flame like fire and whose feet gleam like burnished brass: I know all your ways, your love and

19 faithfulness, your good service and your fortitude; and of late you have done even better than at first. Yet I

20 have this against you: you tolerate that Jezebel, the woman who claims to be a prophetess, who by her teaching lures my servants into fornication and into eating food sacrificed to idols. I have

21 given her time to repent, but she refuses to repent of her fornication. So I will throw her on to a bed of pain,<sup>b</sup> and plunge her lovers into terrible suffering, unless they forswear what she is doing;

22

<sup>b</sup> One witness reads into a furnace.

6: The Nicolaitans apparently taught that Christians were free to eat meat offered to idols and to practice immorality; see vv. 14–15. 7: The tree of life (Gen.2.9; 3.22) suggests paradise restored; see 22.14.

2.8–11: Smyrna. Modern Izmir. 8: The First . . . Last: see 1.8,18 nn. Poor—and yet you are rich: see the opposite in 3.17. 9: Satan’s synagogue refers to false Jews who spurred the authorities to persecute those who refused to worship at Smyrna’s emperor cult shrine. 10: Ten days: a short period; see Dan.1.12. 11: Second death: final condemnation; see 20.14; 21.8. Crown of life: an athletic symbol of ultimate victory; see 3.11; Jas.1.12 (translated “gift of life”).

2.12–17: Pergamum. That it was the first center of emperor worship in Asia Minor may explain where Satan has his throne (v. 12). 12: The two-edged sword: see 1.16 n. 14–15: Balaam (see Num. chs. 22–24; 31.16), here related to the Nicolaitans (vv. 6 n., 15), was regarded in NT times as the forerunner of all corrupt teachers. 17: Manna: bread from heaven (see Exod. ch. 16). Jews believed that the gift of manna would be repeated in the messianic age; see 2 Baruch 29.8 (noncanonical); compare Jn.6.47–51. White (like “light” and “brightness”) is a frequent symbol for good in Rev.; see 1.14; 3.5; 7.9; 19.14; 20.11. The white stone may be related to the lot-casting Urim and Thummim; see Exod.28.15 n. Is it here for those who “cast their lot” with God? A new name: compare Isa.62.2; see 3.12 n.

2.18–29: Thyatira. A city renowned for its trade guilds and idolatrous feasts (see Acts 16.14). 18: Fire . . . bronze: see Dan.10.6. 20: Jezebel: name of Ahab’s wicked, idolatrous queen

23 and her children I will strike dead. This will teach all the churches that I am the searcher of men's hearts and thoughts, and that I will reward each one of you according to his deeds. And now I speak to you others in Thyatira, who do not accept this teaching and have had no experience of what they like to call the deep secrets of Satan; on you I will impose no further burden. 25 Only hold fast to what you have, until I come. To him who is victorious, to him who perseveres in doing my will to the end, I will give authority over the nations—that same authority which I received from my Father—and he shall rule them with an iron rod, smashing them to bits like earthenware; and I will give him also the star of dawn. 29 Hear, you who have ears to hear, what the Spirit says to the churches!"

3 "To the angel of the church at Sardis write:

"These are the words of the One who holds the seven spirits of God, the seven stars: I know all your ways; that though you have a name for being alive, 2 you are dead. Wake up, and put some strength into what is left, which must otherwise die! For I have not found any work of yours completed in the eyes of my God. So remember the teaching you received; observe it, and repent. If you do not wake up, I shall come upon you like a thief, and you will not know the moment of my coming. 4 Yet you have a few persons in Sardis who have not polluted their clothing. They shall walk with me in white, for 5 so they deserve. He who is victorious shall thus be robed all in white; his name I will never strike off the roll of the living, for in the presence of my Father and his angels I will acknowledge him as mine. Hear, you who have 6 ears to hear, what the Spirit says to the churches!"

"To the angel of the church at 7 Philadelphia write:

"These are the words of the holy one, the true one, who holds the key of David; when he opens none may shut, when he shuts none may open: I know 8 all your ways; and look, I have set before you an open door, which no one can shut. Your strength, I know, is small, yet you have observed my commands and have not disowned my name. So 9 this is what I will do: I will make those of Satan's synagogue, who claim to be Jews but are lying frauds, come and fall down at your feet; and they shall know that you are my beloved people. Because you have kept my command 10 and stood fast, I will also keep you from the ordeal that is to fall upon the whole world and test its inhabitants. I am coming soon; hold fast what you 11 have, and let no one rob you of your crown. He who is victorious—I will 12 make him a pillar in the temple of my God; he shall never leave it. And I will write the name of my God upon him, and the name of the city of my God, that new Jerusalem which is coming down out of heaven from my God, and my own new name. Hear, you who have 13 ears to hear, what the Spirit says to the churches!"

"To the angel of the church at 14 Laodicea write:

"These are the words of the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the prime source of all God's creation: I know 15 all your ways; you are neither hot nor cold. How I wish you were either hot

(1 Kgs.16.31; 18.1-5; 19.1-3; 21.5-24). 23: Her children: those who follow her teaching. Searcher . . . deeds: compare Jer.17.10. 24: Deep secrets of Satan: heretical teachings (see v. 20). 27: See Ps.2.9. 28: Star of dawn: Christ himself (see 22.16).

3.1-6: Sardis. A city known as carefree, wealthy, immoral. 1: Alive . . . dead: nominal, not true, Christians. 3: Like a thief: 1 Th.5.1-2 n.; Mt.24.42-44. 4: Polluted their clothing is an image of unfaithfulness; the faithful are in white (see 2.17 n.). 5: The roll of the living: a register of the faithful (see 13.8; 17.8; 20.12,15; compare Exod.32.32; Ps.69.28; Dan.12.1; Mal.3.16; Lk.10.20); see Phil.4.3 n. Acknowledge him: compare Mt.10.32.

3.7-13: Philadelphia. A small city (compare v. 8). 7: Key of David: symbol of authority; see Isa.22.22. 9: Satan's synagogue: see 2.9 n. Fall down at your feet: compare Isa.49.23; 60.14. 10: Ordeal: see 7.14; Dan.12.1; Mk.13.19-20. It refers to the three and a half years of the beast's rule; see 13.5-10. 12: New Jerusalem: see 21.2. New name: see 2.17; 19.12; 22.4 n.; compare Ezek.48.35.

3.14-22: Laodicea. A proud and wealthy city near Colossae (Col.4.13-16). 14: Here, as in 2 Cor.1.20, Jesus is the Amen, God's "Yes" to man's hope (see Isa.65.16; compare 1.7 n.).

16 or cold! But because you are lukewarm, neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of my mouth. You say, 'How rich I am! And how well I have done! I have everything I want.' In fact, though you do not know it, you are the most pitiful wretch, poor, blind, and naked. So I advise you to buy from me gold refined in the fire, to make you truly rich, and white clothes to put on to hide the shame of your nakedness, and ointment for your eyes so that you may see. All whom I love I reprove and discipline. Be on your mettle therefore and repent. 20 Here I stand knocking at the door; if anyone hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in and sit down to supper with him and he with me. To him who is victorious I will grant a place on my throne, as I myself was victorious and sat down with my Father 22 on his throne. Hear, you who have ears to hear, what the Spirit says to the churches!"

The opening of the sealed book

4 AFTER THIS I LOOKED, AND THERE BEFORE my eyes was a door opened in heaven; and the voice that I had first heard speaking to me like a trumpet said, 'Come up here, and I will show you 2 what must happen hereafter.' At once I was caught up by the Spirit. There in heaven stood a throne, and on the 3 throne sat one whose appearance was like the gleam of jasper and cornelian; and round the throne was a rainbow, 4 bright as an emerald. In a circle about this throne were twenty-four other thrones, and on them sat twenty-four elders, robed in white and wearing crowns of gold. From the throne went out flashes of lightning and peals of thunder. Burning before the throne were seven flaming torches, the seven spirits of God, and in front of it stretched what seemed a sea of glass, like a sheet of ice.

In the centre, round the throne itself, were four living creatures, covered with eyes, in front and behind. The first creature was like a lion, the second like an ox, the third had a human face, the fourth was like an eagle in flight. The four living creatures, each of them with six wings, had eyes all over, inside and out; and by day and by night without a pause they sang:

'Holy, holy, holy is God the sovereign Lord of all, who was, and is, and is to come!'

As often as the living creatures give glory and honour and thanks to the One who sits on the throne, who lives for ever and ever, the twenty-four elders fall down before the One who sits on the throne and worship him who lives for ever and ever; and as they lay their crowns before the throne they cry:

'Thou art worthy, O Lord our God, to receive glory and honour and power, because thou didst create all things; by thy will they were created, and have their being!'

The prime source: compare Jn.1.3; Col.1.15-18; Heb.1.2. 17: Rich . . . poor: contrast with 2.9; compare Hos.12.8. 18: Famous for its wealth, wool, and medical school, Laodicea is now to receive true gold . . . white clothes . . . ointment from Christ. 19: Reprove: see Prov.3.11-12; Heb.12.5-6. 20: The supper can refer both to the Lord's Supper (see Mt.26.26-29) and to the future messianic banquet. 21: The faithful will share Christ's throne and power; compare 2.26-27; Lk.22.30.

4.1-5.14: A vision of the heavenly worship (see Isa.6.1-3).

4.1-11: The praise of God the Creator. 1: Voice: compare 1.10. Trumpet: see 1.11 n. Come up here: the writer is transplanted to heaven, a conventional motif in ancient apocalyptic literature. 2: Throne: a symbol of sovereignty occurring more than forty times in Rev.; compare Ezek.1.26-28; Jer.17.12. 4: Twenty-four elders may refer to the twelve tribes and twelve apostles, symbolizing the unity of old and new covenant peoples: see 21.13-14. 5: Lightning . . . thunder: compare Exod.19.16. Seven spirits: see 1.5 n. 6: Sea of glass: probably conceived as before the "throne" in the heavenly temple; see 1 Kgs.7.23-26. Four living creatures (see Ezek.1.5) symbolize the created world. Covered with eyes (see Ezek.1.18) symbolizes all-seeing watchfulness. 7: Lion . . . ox . . . face of a man . . . eagle (see Ezek.1.10): in later Christian tradition, related respectively to Mk., Lk., Mt., and Jn. 8: Holy, holy, holy: see Isa.6.3. 10: The One: see vv. 2.9. Throne: see v. 2 n.

5 Then I saw in the right hand of the One who sat on the throne a scroll, with writing inside and out, and it was sealed up with seven seals. And I saw a mighty angel proclaiming in a loud voice, 'Who is worthy to open the scroll and to break its seals?' There was no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth able to open the scroll or to look inside it. I was in tears because no one was found who was worthy to open the scroll or to look inside it. But one of the elders said to me: 'Do not weep; for the Lion from the tribe of Judah, the Scion of David, has won the right to open the scroll and break its seven seals.'

6 Then I saw standing in the very middle of the throne, inside the circle of living creatures and the circle of elders,<sup>c</sup> a Lamb with the marks of slaughter upon him. He had seven horns and seven eyes, the eyes which are the seven spirits of God sent out over all the world. And the Lamb went up and took the scroll from the right hand of the One who sat on the throne. When he took it, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb. Each of the elders had a harp, and they held golden bowls full of incense, the prayers of God's people, and they were singing a new song:

10 'Thou art worthy to take the scroll and to break its seals, for thou wast slain and by thy blood didst purchase for God men of every tribe and language, people and nation; thou hast made of them a royal house, to serve our God as priests; and they shall reign upon earth.'

11 Then as I looked I heard the voices of countless angels. These were all round the throne and the living creatures and the elders. Myriads upon myriads there were, thousands upon thousands, and they cried aloud: 12

'Worthy is the Lamb, the Lamb that was slain, to receive all power and wealth, wisdom and might, honour and glory and praise!'

Then I heard every created thing in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea, all that is in them, crying:

'Praise and honour, glory and might, to him who sits on the throne and to the Lamb for ever and ever!'

And the four living creatures said, 14 'Amen', and the elders fell down and worshipped.

THEN I WATCHED AS THE LAMB BROKE 6 the first of the seven seals; and I heard one of the four living creatures say in a voice like thunder, 'Come!' And there 2 before my eyes was a white horse, and its rider held a bow. He was given a crown, and he rode forth, conquering and to conquer.

When the Lamb broke the second 3 seal, I heard the second creature say, 'Come!' And out came another horse, 4 all red. To its rider was given power to take peace from the earth and make men slaughter one another; and he was given a great sword.

When he broke the third seal, I heard 5 the third creature say, 'Come!' And there, as I looked, was a black horse;

<sup>c</sup> Or standing between the throne, with the four living creatures, and the elders . . .

5.1-14: The praise of the Lamb the Redeemer. 1: A scroll . . . sealed: see Isa.29.11; Ezek.2.9-10. The seven seals are to be opened to reveal the secrets of the future. 5: Lion from the tribe of Judah (see Gen.49.9), the Scion (descendant) of David (see Isa.11.1) are messianic titles. 6: Lamb with the marks of slaughter refers to Jesus' death, though now he is at the throne; see 3.21. The title Lamb appears nearly thirty times in Rev.; compare Isa.53.7; Jn.1.29,36 (though a different Gk. word is used). Seven horns and seven eyes portray authority and omniscience; see Zech.4.10; Dan.7.7-8,20. 8: Incense . . . and prayers: see Ps.141.2. 9: By thy blood didst purchase: redemption was won at the cost of Christ's life; see 1.5; 12.11; 1 Cor.6.19-20. 10: A royal house . . . as priests: see 1.6 n. 12: Worthy is the Lamb: the Redeemer is offered the same kind of worship as the Creator. The Lamb, not the beast (emperor), shares the divine sovereignty.

6.1-17: The opening of the first six seals. As the first four seals are opened, horsemen (compare Zech.1.7-17; 6.1-8) appear, portraying coming disasters; all six correspond to the scheme of Mk.13.7-8, 24-25 (compare Lev.26.21-39). 2: A white horse, and its rider (in 19.11 the rider is Jesus) symbolize victory. 4: Another horse, all red promotes war. 5-6: A black horse brings a

and its rider held in his hand a pair of 6 scales. And I heard what sounded like a voice from the midst of the living creatures, which said, 'A whole day's wage for a quart of flour, a whole day's wage for three quarts of barley-meal!
 But spare the olive and the vine.'
 7 When he broke the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth creature 8 say, 'Come!' And there, as I looked, was another horse, sickly pale; and its rider's name was Death, and Hades came close behind. To him was given power over a quarter of the earth, with the right to kill by sword and by famine, by pestilence and wild beasts.
 9 When he broke the fifth seal, I saw underneath<sup>d</sup> the altar the souls of those who had been slaughtered for God's word and for the testimony they bore.
 10 They gave a great cry: 'How long, sovereign Lord, holy and true, must it be before thou wilt vindicate us and avenge our blood on the inhabitants 11 of the earth?' Each of them was given a white robe; and they were told to rest a little while longer, until the tally should be complete of all their brothers in Christ's service who were to be killed
 as they had been.
 12 Then I watched as he broke the sixth seal. And there was a violent earthquake; the sun turned black as a funeral pall and the moon all red as blood;
 13 the stars in the sky fell to the earth, like 14 figs shaken down by a gale; the sky vanished, as a scroll is rolled up, and every mountain and island was moved 15 from its place. Then the kings of the earth, magnates and marshals, the rich and the powerful, and all men, slave or free, hid themselves in caves and 16 mountain crags; and they called out to the mountains and the crags, 'Fall on us and hide us from the face of the One who sits on the throne and from the vengeance of the Lamb.' For the great 17 day of their vengeance has come, and who will be able to stand?

After this I saw four angels stationed 7 at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds so that no wind should blow on sea or land or on any tree. Then I saw another angel rising 2 out of the east, carrying the seal of the living God; and he called aloud to the four angels who had been given the power to ravage land and sea: 'Do no 3 damage to sea or land or trees until we have set the seal of our God upon the foreheads of his servants.' And I heard 4 the number of those who had received the seal. From all the tribes of Israel there were a hundred and forty-four thousand: twelve thousand from the 5 tribe of Judah, twelve thousand from the tribe of Reuben, twelve thousand from the tribe of Gad, twelve thousand 6 from the tribe of Asher, twelve thousand from the tribe of Naphtali, twelve thousand from the tribe of Manasseh, twelve thousand from the tribe of 7 Simeon, twelve thousand from the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand from the tribe of Issachar, twelve thousand from the 8 tribe of Zebulun, twelve thousand from the tribe of Joseph, and twelve thousand from the tribe of Benjamin.

After this I looked and saw a vast 9 throng, which no one could count,
 from every nation, of all tribes, peoples,
 and languages, standing in front of the throne and before the Lamb. They were robed in white and had palms in their hands, and they shouted together: 10

'Victory to our God who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb!'

<sup>d</sup> Or at the foot of . . .

famine of grain. 7-8: Another horse, sickly pale bears Death, and Hades (in 1.18 Hades is translated as "Death's domain"; compare Ezek.5.12). 9-11: Breaking the fifth seal discloses the souls of the martyred dead crying out for vengeance; see Ps.79.5-10; contrast Lk.23.34; Acts 7.60. Underneath the altar may reflect a Jewish saying: "The souls of the righteous are kept safely under the throne of glory." Until the tally should be complete: compare 2 Esd.4.35-37. 12-17: Breaking the sixth seal brings cosmic catastrophe. 12: See Joel 2.31; Acts 2.20. 14: Isa.34.4. 15: Isa.2.10. 16: Hos.10.8. 17: Joel 2.11; Mal.3.2.

7.1-17: The marking of God's servants falls between the sixth and seventh seals, securing the faithful from destruction. 1: The four winds: see Zech.6.5. 3: Set the seal . . . upon the foreheads: see Ezek.9.4. 4: A hundred and forty-four thousand is a "perfect" number (12 × 12 × 1000); it may symbolize Israel's future full participation in Christ (compare Rom.9.25-27) or the return of the ten "lost" tribes; see 2 Esd.13.40-48). 9: With throng, every nation the seer points

11 And all the angels stood round the throne and the elders and the four living creatures, and they fell on their faces before the throne and worshipped 12 God, crying:

‘Amen! Praise and glory and wisdom, thanksgiving and honour, power and might, be to our God for ever and ever! Amen.’

13 Then one of the elders turned to me and said, ‘These men that are robed in white—who are they and from where do they come?’ But I answered, ‘My lord, you know, not I.’ Then he said to me, ‘These are the men who have passed through the great ordeal; they have washed their robes and made them
 15 white in the blood of the Lamb. That is why they stand before the throne of God and minister to him day and night in his temple; and he who sits on the throne will dwell with them. They shall 16 never again feel hunger or thirst, the sun shall not beat on them nor any scorching heat, because the Lamb who is at the heart of the throne will be their shepherd and will guide them to the springs of the water of life; and God will wipe all tears from their eyes.’

8 Now when the Lamb broke the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for what seemed half an hour.
 2 Then I looked, and the seven angels that stand in the presence of God were given seven trumpets.

3 Then another angel came and stood at the altar, holding a golden censer; and he was given a great quantity of incense to offer with the prayers of all God’s people upon the golden altar in 4 front of the throne. And from the angel’s hand the smoke of the incense went up before God with the prayers of his people. Then the angel took the 5 censer, filled it from the altar fire, and threw it down upon the earth; and there were peals of thunder, lightning, and an earthquake.

The powers of darkness conquered

THEN THE SEVEN ANGELS THAT HELD THE 6 seven trumpets prepared to blow them.

The first blew his trumpet; and there
 7 came hail and fire mingled with blood, and this was hurled upon the earth. A third of the earth was burnt, a third of the trees were burnt, all the green grass was burnt.

The second angel blew his trumpet; 8 and what looked like a great blazing mountain was hurled into the sea. A third of the sea was turned to blood, a 9 third of the living creatures in it died, and a third of the ships on it foundered.

The third angel blew his trumpet; 10 and a great star shot from the sky, flaming like a torch; and it fell on a third of the rivers and springs. The 11 name of the star was Wormwood; and a third of the water turned to wormwood, and men in great numbers died of the water because it had been poisoned.

The fourth angel blew his trumpet; 12 and a third part of the sun was struck, a third of the moon, and a third of the stars, so that the third part went dark and a third of the light of the day failed, and of the night.

Then I looked, and I heard an eagle 13 calling with a loud cry as it flew in mid-heaven: ‘Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth when the trumpets sound which the three last angels must now blow!’

below Israel (vv. 4–8) to the Gentile world (see Dan.7.14). 12: Note the seven-fold ascription; compare 5.12. 14: The great ordeal: see 3.10 n. The blood of the Lamb: see 5.9 n.; 1 Jn.1.7. 15: Compare 21.3. 16: 21.4; Ps.121.6; Isa.25.8; 49.10. 17: Shepherd: see Ps.23.1–2; Ezek.34.23. Springs of the water of life: see 21.6; 22.1,17; compare Jn.4.10; 7.37–38.

8.1–5: The opening of the seventh seal introduces the seven trumpets (v. 2). 1: Silence in heaven: the calm before the storm. 2: Seven angels: probably the seven archangels; compare Tob.12.15. 3: Incense: see Ps.141.2. Golden altar: see Exod.30.1–3. 5: Took the censer . . . and threw it: compare Ezek.10.2.

8.6–9.21: The first six trumpets proclaim catastrophes in nature as judgment on the wicked. 6–13: Compare the plagues in Egypt, as in Exod.7.17–21; 9.23,25; 10.21–23. 6–7: In connection with several trumpet blasts, a third of creation is affected. 8–9: The volcanic island of Thera, visible from Patmos, may have suggested a blazing mountain . . . hurled into the sea. 10: Great star: shooting star or meteor. 11: Wormwood: a bitter drug; see Jer.9.15; 23.15. 13: The three

9 Then the fifth angel blew his trumpet; and I saw a star that had fallen from heaven to earth, and the star was given the key of the shaft of the abyss.
 2 With this he opened the shaft of the abyss; and from the shaft smoke rose like smoke from a great furnace, and the sun and the air were darkened by
 3 the smoke from the shaft. Then over the earth, out of the smoke, came locusts, and they were given the powers that
 4 earthly scorpions have. They were told to do no injury to the grass or to any plant or tree, but only to those men who had not received the seal of God
 5 on their foreheads. These they were allowed to torment for five months, with torment like a scorpion's sting;
 6 but they were not to kill them. During that time these men will seek death, but they will not find it; they will long to die, but death will elude them.
 7 In appearance the locusts were like horses equipped for battle. On their heads were what looked like golden crowns; their faces were like human 8 faces and their hair like women's hair; they had teeth like lions' teeth, and wore breastplates like iron; the sound of their wings was like the noise of horses and chariots rushing to battle;
 10 they had tails like scorpions, with stings in them, and in their tails lay their power to plague mankind for five 11 months. They had for their king the angel of the abyss, whose name, in Hebrew, is Abaddon, and in Greek, Apollyon, or the Destroyer.
 12 The first woe has now passed. But there are still two more to come.
 13 The sixth angel then blew his trumpet; and I heard a voice coming from between the horns of the golden altar that stood in the presence of God.
 14 It said to the sixth angel, who held the trumpet: 'Release the four angels held bound at the great river Euphrates!' So the four angels were let loose, to kill 15 a third of mankind. They had been held ready for this moment, for this very year and month, day and hour. And 16 their squadrons of cavalry, whose count I heard, numbered two hundred million.

This was how I saw the horses and their riders in my vision: They wore breastplates, fiery red, blue, and sulphur-yellow; the horses had heads like lions' heads, and out of their mouths came fire, smoke, and sulphur. By 18 these three plagues, that is, by the fire, the smoke, and the sulphur that came from their mouths, a third of mankind was killed. The power of the horses lay 19 in their mouths, and in their tails also; for their tails were like snakes, with heads, and with them too they dealt injuries.

The rest of mankind who survived 20 these plagues still did not abjure the gods their hands had fashioned, nor cease their worship of devils and of idols made from gold, silver, bronze, stone, and wood, which cannot see or hear or walk. Nor did they repent of 21 their murders, their sorcery, their fornication, or their robberies.

THEN I SAW ANOTHER MIGHTY ANGEL 10 coming down from heaven. He was wrapped in cloud, with the rainbow round his head; his face shone like the sun and his legs were like pillars of fire. In his hand he held a little scroll un- 2 rolled. His right foot he planted on the sea, and his left on the land. Then he 3 gave a great shout, like the roar of a lion; and when he shouted, the seven thunders spoke. I was about to write 4 down what the seven thunders had said; but I heard a voice from heaven saying, 'Seal up what the seven thunders have 5 said; do not write it down.' Then the woes correspond to the last three trumpet blasts. 9.1: Since stars were identified as angels (1.20), a star that had fallen may refer to Satan as a fallen angel; see v. 11; Isa.14.12-16; Lk.10.18. 2-5: Locusts: compare Exod.10.12-15; Joel 1.4; 2.10. 4: The seal . . . on their foreheads: see 7.3 n. 7: Like horses: see Joel 2.4. 8: Teeth like lions': Joel 1.6. 9: Chariots: Joel 2.5. 11: Abaddon (or, Destruction) in the OT is equivalent to Sheol or Hades; see Job 26.6; 28.22; Prov.15.11. 13: Golden altar: see Exod.30.1-3. 14: The four angels (not those in 7.2) are here at the Euphrates, whence Rome feared a Parthian invasion; compare "the kings from the east" in 16.12. 20: Compare the view of idolatry here with Ps.115.4-7; 135.15-17; Dan.5.23. As frequently in the Bible, idolatry leads (v. 21) to further sin.

10.1-11.14: The little scroll and the two witnesses. This section falls between the sixth and seventh trumpets. 4: Seal up . . . do not write: see Dan.12.4,9. 5-6: The angel . . . swore: Dan.12.7.

- angel that I saw standing on the sea and the land raised his right hand to heaven and swore by him who lives for ever and ever, who created heaven and earth and the sea and everything in them: 'There shall be no more delay; but when the time comes for the seventh angel to sound his trumpet, the hidden purpose of God will have been fulfilled, as he promised to his servants the prophets.'
- Then the voice which I heard from heaven was speaking to me again, and it said, 'Go and take the open scroll in the hand of the angel that stands on the sea and the land.' So I went to the angel and asked him to give me the little scroll. He said to me, 'Take it, and eat it. It will turn your stomach sour, although in your mouth it will taste sweet as honey.' So I took the little scroll from the angel's hand and ate it, and in my mouth it did taste sweet as honey; but when I swallowed it my stomach turned sour.
- Then they said to me, 'Once again you must utter prophecies over peoples and nations and languages and many kings.'
- I was given a long cane, a kind of measuring-rod, and told: 'Now go and measure the temple of God, the altar, and the number of the worshippers. But have nothing to do with the outer court of the temple; do not measure that; for it has been given over to the Gentiles, and they will trample the Holy City underfoot for forty-two months. And I have two witnesses, whom I will appoint to prophesy, dressed in sackcloth, all through those twelve hundred and sixty days.' These are the two olive-trees and the two lamps that stand in the presence of the Lord of the earth. If anyone seeks to do them harm, fire pours from their mouths and consumes their enemies; and thus shall the man die who seeks to do them harm. These two have the power to shut up the sky, so that no rain may fall during the time of their prophesying; and they have the power to turn water to blood and to strike the earth at will with every kind of plague. But when they have completed their testimony, the beast that comes up from the abyss will wage war upon them and will defeat and kill them. Their corpses will lie in the street of the great city, whose name in allegory is Sodom, or Egypt, where also their Lord was crucified. For three days and a half men from every people and tribe, of every language and nation, gaze upon their corpses and refuse them burial. All men on earth gloat over them, make merry, and exchange presents; for these two prophets were a torment to the whole earth. But at the end of the three days and a half the breath of life from God came into them; and they stood up on their feet to the terror of all who saw it. Then a loud voice was heard speaking to them from heaven, which said, 'Come up here!' And they went up to heaven in a cloud, in full view of their enemies. At that same moment there was a violent earthquake, and a tenth of the city fell. Seven thousand people were killed in the earthquake; the rest in terror did homage to the God of heaven.

The second woe has now passed. But the third is soon to come.

8-10: On the eating of the scroll compare Ezek.2.8-3.3. 11: The writer's sweet-sour (vv. 8-10; sweet for the faithful, sour for the faithless) prophecies (see Jer.1.10) unfolds in chs. 12-22. 11.1-14: The scene seems to reflect material from the time of the Jewish War (66-70 A.D.) prior to the destruction of the Jerusalem Temple in 70 A.D. 1: Measure the temple: see Ezek.40.3-42.20; Zech.2.1-5. 2: Forty-two months is equivalent to 1,260 days, or three and a half years, or "a time and times and half a time"; see Dan.7.25 n.; 9.27 n.; 12.7. Dan. divides seven years in half, with three and a half years of acute persecution prior to 168 B.C. (when Antiochus IV set up an image of Zeus in the Temple), and three and a half years of deliverance after. These events came to be regarded as foreshadowing the time of the Antichrist. 3-6: Two witnesses: probably Elijah (see 1 Kgs.17.1; Mal.4.5-6) and Moses (see Exod.7.17-21; Deut. 18.15-18); compare Mk.9.11-13. It was a Jewish expectation that Elijah and Moses would return before the end of the age. In v. 4 Elijah and Moses are the olive trees and lamps (though in Zech. ch. 4 these symbols represent Zerubbabel and Joshua). 7: The beast . . . from the abyss: see 17.7-8 n. 8: The great city . . . Sodom, or Egypt, is here Jerusalem; see Isa.1.9-10; Ezek.23.27. 11: The breath of life . . . came upon them: see Ezek.37.5,10. 12: See 2 Kgs.2.11. 14: Second woe: see 8.13 for the prediction of three woes, associated with the last trumpet blasts.

- 15 Then the seventh angel blew his trumpet; and voices were heard in heaven shouting:
- ‘The sovereignty of the world has passed to our Lord and his Christ, and he shall reign for ever and ever!’
- 16 And the twenty-four elders, seated on their thrones before God, fell on their faces and worshipped God, saying:
- ‘We give thee thanks, O Lord God, sovereign over all, who art and who wast, because thou hast taken thy great power into thy hands and entered upon thy reign. The nations raged, but thy day of retribution has come. Now is the time for the dead to be judged; now is the time for recompense to thy servants the prophets, to thy dedicated people, and all who honour thy name, both great and small, the time to destroy those who destroy the earth.’
- 19 Then God’s temple in heaven was laid open, and within the temple was seen the ark of his covenant. There came flashes of lightning and peals of thunder, an earthquake, and a storm of hail.
- 12 NEXT APPEARED A GREAT PORTENT IN heaven, a woman robed with the sun, beneath her feet the moon, and on her head a crown of twelve stars. She was pregnant, and in the anguish of her labour she cried out to be delivered.
- 3 Then a second portent appeared in heaven: a great red dragon with seven heads and ten horns; on his heads were seven diadems, and with his tail he swept
- down a third of the stars in the sky and flung them to the earth. The dragon stood in front of the woman who was about to give birth, so that when her child was born he might devour it. She gave birth to a male child, who is destined to rule all nations with an iron rod. But her child was snatched up to God and his throne; and the woman herself fled into the wilds, where she had a place prepared for her by God, there to be sustained for twelve hundred and sixty days.
- Then war broke out in heaven. Michael and his angels waged war upon the dragon. The dragon and his angels fought, but they had not the strength to win, and no foothold was left them in heaven. So the great dragon was thrown down, that serpent of old that led the whole world astray, whose name is Satan, or the Devil—thrown down to the earth, and his angels with him.
- Then I heard a voice in heaven proclaiming aloud: ‘This is the hour of victory for our God, the hour of his sovereignty and power, when his Christ comes to his rightful rule! For the accuser of our brothers is overthrown, who day and night accused them before our God. By the sacrifice of the Lamb they have conquered him, and by the testimony which they uttered; for they did not hold their lives too dear to lay them down. Rejoice then, you heavens and you that dwell in them! But woe to you, earth and sea, for the Devil has come down to you in great fury, knowing that his time is short!’
- When the dragon found that he had been thrown down to the earth, he went

c Or the word of God to which they bore witness.

11.15–19: The seventh trumpet brings the heavenly proclamation of God’s sovereignty, indirectly introducing the final woe of chs. 12–19. 15: Our Lord and his Christ: note v. 18, and compare Ps.2.1–2. 19: Ark of his covenant: see 1 Kgs.8.1–6.

12.1–17: The woman, child, and dragon. The struggle between Satan and God’s people is described in imagery possibly drawn from a widespread ancient myth. 1: Here, the woman represents Israel from whom Jesus sprang (v. 5). Twelve stars: the twelve tribes. 2: The anguish of her labour: see Isa.66.7; Mic.4.9–10. 3: A great red dragon: Satan (see v. 9; compare descriptions of the beast in 13.1). Ten horns: see Dan.7.7. 5: A male child: Jesus, destined to rule all nations (see 2.27; 19.15; Ps.2.9); reference is made only to his birth and ascension! 6: The woman, now probably seen as Jewish Christians, is to be safe during the three and a half years of Satan’s persecution (see v. 14; 11.2 n.; compare Mk.13.14–20). 7–17: The dragon’s defeat is portrayed (see Lk.10.18; Jn.12.31), though he still is active for a short time (vv. 12,14). 7: The archangel Michael is Israel’s champion (see Dan.10.13,21; 12.1). 9: That serpent of old: an allusion to Gen.3.1,14–15. 10: The accuser: Satan; see Job 1.6–12; Zech.3.1. 11: Sacrifice of the lamb: lit. blood; see 5.9 n. 12: Rejoice then, you heavens: compare Isa.44.23; 49.13.

14 in pursuit of the woman who had given birth to the male child. But the woman was given two great eagle's wings, to fly to the place in the wilds where for three years and a half she was to be sustained, out of reach of the serpent.
 15 From his mouth the serpent spewed a flood of water after the woman to sweep her away with its spate. But the earth came to her rescue and opened its mouth and swallowed the river which the dragon spewed from his mouth.
 17 At this the dragon grew furious with the woman, and went off to wage war on the rest of her offspring, that is, on those who keep God's commandments and maintain their testimony to Jesus.
 13 He took his stand on the sea-shore.

Then<sup>f</sup> out of the sea I saw a beast rising. It had ten horns and seven heads. On its horns were ten diadems, and on each head a blasphemous name. The beast I saw was like a leopard, but its feet were like a bear's and its mouth like a lion's mouth. The dragon conferred upon it his power and rule, and great authority. One of its heads appeared to have received a death-blow; but the mortal wound was healed. The whole world went after the beast in wondering admiration. Men worshipped the dragon because he had conferred his authority upon the beast; they worshipped the beast also, and chanted, 'Who is like the Beast? Who can fight against it?'
 5 The beast was allowed to mouth bombast and blasphemy, and was given the right to reign for forty-two months.
 6 It opened its mouth in blasphemy against God, reviling his name and his heavenly dwelling.<sup>g</sup> It was also allowed to wage war on God's people and to defeat them, and was granted<sup>h</sup> authority over every tribe and people, language and nation. All on earth will worship it, except those whose names the Lamb that was slain keeps in his roll of the living, written there since the world was made.

Hear, you who have ears to hear! 9 Whoever is to be made prisoner, a 10 prisoner he shall be. Whoever takes the sword to kill, by the sword he is bound to be killed. This is where the fortitude and faithfulness of God's people have their place.

Then I saw another beast, which 11 came up out of the earth; it had two horns like a lamb's, but spoke like a dragon. It wielded all the authority of 12 the first beast in its presence, and made the earth and its inhabitants worship this first beast, whose mortal wound had been healed. It worked great 13 miracles, even making fire come down from heaven to earth before men's eyes. By the miracles it was allowed to 14 perform in the presence of the beast it deluded the inhabitants of the earth, and made them erect an image in honour of the beast that had been wounded by the sword and yet lived. It was allowed to give breath to the 15 image of the beast, so that it could speak, and could cause all who would not worship the image to be put to death. Moreover, it caused everyone, 16 great and small, rich and poor, slave and free, to be branded with a mark on <sup>f</sup> Some witnesses read . . . testimony to Jesus. Then I stood by the sea-shore and . . .

<sup>g</sup> Some witnesses read reviling his name and his dwelling-place, that is, those that live in heaven.

<sup>h</sup> Some witness read It was granted . . . (omitting the words was also . . . them, and).

14: Eagle's wings: see Exod.19.4. 17: The rest of her offspring (probably Gentile Christians): Jewish Christians are "sealed" but others must bear "the great ordeal" (compare ch. 7).

13.1-18: The two beasts. Chs. 4-5 portrayed God and the Lamb; chs. 12-13 portray their evil counterparts, the dragon and the beast (Satan and Rome). 1: The beast is Rome. The empire is identified with the emperor Nero whose return was popularly expected; his persecution of Christians made him a dreaded figure (see ch. 17; compare Dan.7.1-6). Ten horns: (Parthian) kings who conspire with Nero; compare 17.12; Dan.7.7. Seven heads: seven hills of Rome or seven kings (see 17.9-10). A blasphemous name: the divine title claimed by the emperor. 2: On the animals, see Dan.7.4-6. The dragon . . . conferred his power: i.e. Satan works through the beast. 3: Death-blow . . . wound was healed (see vv. 12,14) points to Nero's rumored survival of suicide and return (see 17.8; compare with Jesus in 1.18; 5.6). 5: Bombast: boastful words (see Dan.7.8). Forty-two months: see 11.2 n. 7: Compare 5.9; Dan.7.21. 8: Roll of the living: see 3.5 n. 9-10: This may indicate that Christians are not to strike a blow in their own defense; compare Mt.26.52; Jer.15.2. 11-18: The second beast (called "the false prophet" in 19.20) may refer to the priesthood that supported emperor worship (see v. 12); compare Dan.3.1-7; 2 Th.2.9-10. 16: Branded with a mark: compare the marking of the faithful (see 7.3; 14.1).

17 his right hand or forehead, and no one was allowed to buy or sell unless he bore this beast's mark, either name or number. (Here is the key; and anyone who has intelligence may work out the number of the beast. The number represents a man's name, and the numerical value of its letters is six hundred and sixty-six.)

Visions of the end

14 THEN I LOOKED, AND ON MOUNT ZION stood the Lamb, and with him were a hundred and forty-four thousand who had his name and the name of his Father written on their foreheads. I heard a sound from heaven like the noise of rushing water and the deep roar of thunder; it was the sound of harpers playing on their harps. There before the throne, and the four living creatures and the elders, they were singing a new song. That song no one could learn except the hundred and forty-four thousand, who alone from the whole world had been ransomed. 4 These are men who did not defile themselves with women, for they have kept themselves chaste, and they follow the Lamb wherever he goes. They have been ransomed as the firstfruits of humanity for God and the Lamb. No lie was found in their lips; they are faultless. 6 Then I saw an angel flying in mid-heaven, with an eternal gospel to proclaim to those on earth, to every nation and tribe, language and people. He cried in a loud voice, 'Fear God and pay him homage; for the hour of his judgement has come! Worship him who made heaven and earth, the sea and the water-springs!'

8 Then another angel, a second, followed, and he cried, 'Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, she who has made all nations drink the fierce wine of her fornication!'

9 Yet a third angel followed, crying out loud, 'Whoever worships the beast and its image and receives its mark on his forehead or hand, he shall drink the wine of God's wrath, poured undiluted into the cup of his vengeance. He shall be tormented in sulphurous flames before the holy angels and before the Lamb. The smoke of their torment will rise for ever and ever, and there will be no respite day or night for those who worship the beast and its image or receive the mark of its name.' This is where the fortitude of God's people has its place—in keeping God's commands and remaining loyal to Jesus.

13 Moreover, I heard a voice from heaven, saying, 'Write this: "Happy are the dead who die in the faith of Christ! Henceforth",<sup>j</sup> says the Spirit,<sup>k</sup> "they may rest from their labours; for they take with them the record of their deeds."'

14 Then as I looked there appeared a white cloud, and on the cloud sat one like a son of man. He had on his head a crown of gold and in his hand a sharp sickle. Another angel came out of the temple and called in a loud voice to him who sat on the cloud: 'Stretch out your sickle and reap; for harvest-time has come, and earth's crop is over-ripe.' So he who sat on the cloud put his sickle to the earth and its harvest was reaped.

17 Then another angel came out of the heavenly temple, and he also had a

<sup>i</sup> Or drink the wine of God's wrath upon . . .

<sup>j</sup> Or Assuredly.

<sup>k</sup> Some witnesses read "... the dead who henceforth die in the faith of Christ!" "Yes," says the Spirit . . .

18: In Heb., the letters of the name "Nero Caesar" have numerical values which total six hundred and sixty-six.

14.1-20: Three visions of reassurance, admonition, and the harvest. 1-5: The ransomed. 1: Mount Zion: the heavenly Jerusalem; see Heb.12.22. A hundred and forty-four thousand: here, not Israel (as in 7.4-8), but those who alone from the whole world had been ransomed (v. 3). 3: A new song: see 5.8-10. 4: Chaste: lit. virgins. It may mean celibacy, either literally or symbolically (see 2.20-22; compare 2 Cor.11.2; Mt.19.12); it could refer to abstinence from such pollutions as are prohibited in Deut.27.20-30. Firstfruits: see Exod.23.19; Jas.1.18. They are here the first part of the ransomed, with the whole to come later. 6-13: Judgment and warning. 8: Babylon the great (see Isa.21.9): here, Rome is meant (see ch.18). 10: Wine of God's wrath: see Jer.25.15-16. Sulphurous flames: see 19.20; 20.10. Smoke of their torment: compare Isa.34.10. 14-20: The harvest: a familiar symbol of judgment (see Joel 3.13; Mt.13.30). 14: One like a son of man: see 1.13-15 n. 17-20: Grape-harvest: see 19.15; Isa.63.1-6.

18 sharp sickle. Then from the altar came yet another, the angel who has authority over fire, and he shouted to the one with the sharp sickle: 'Stretch out your sickle, and gather in earth's grape-harvest, for its clusters are ripe.' So the angel put his sickle to the earth and gathered in its grapes, and threw them into the great winepress of God's wrath. The winepress was trodden outside the city, and for two hundred miles around blood flowed from the press to the height of the horses' bridles.

15 Then I saw another great and astonishing portent in heaven: seven angels with seven plagues, the last plagues of all, for with them the wrath of God is consummated.

2 I saw what seemed a sea of glass shot with fire, and beside the sea of glass, holding the harps which God had given them, were those who had won the victory over the beast and its image and the number of its name.

3 They were singing the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, as they chanted:

4 'Great and marvellous are thy deeds, O Lord God, sovereign over all; just and true are thy ways, thou king of the ages.<sup>1</sup> Who shall not revere thee, Lord, and do homage to thy name? For thou alone art holy. All nations shall come and worship in thy presence, for thy just dealings stand revealed.'

5 After this, as I looked, the sanctuary of the heavenly Tent of Testimony was thrown open, and out of it came the seven angels with the seven plagues. They were robed in fine linen, clean and shining, and had golden girdles round their breasts. Then one of the four living creatures gave the seven angels seven golden bowls full of the wrath of God who lives for ever and ever; and the sanctuary was filled with smoke from the glory of God and his power, so that no one could enter it until the seven plagues of the seven angels were completed.

Then from the sanctuary I heard a loud voice, and it said to the seven angels, 'Go and pour out the seven bowls of God's wrath on the earth.'

So the first angel went and poured his bowl on the earth; and foul malignant sores appeared on those men that wore the mark of the beast and worshipped its image.

The second angel poured his bowl on the sea, and it turned to blood like the blood from a corpse; and every living thing in the sea died.

The third angel poured his bowl on the rivers and springs, and they turned to blood.

Then I heard the angel of the waters say, 'Just art thou in these thy judgements, thou Holy One who art and wast; for they shed the blood of thy people and of thy prophets, and thou hast given them blood to drink. They have their deserts!' And I heard the altar cry, 'Yes, Lord God, sovereign over all, true and just are thy judgements!'

The fourth angel poured his bowl on the sun; and it was allowed to burn men with its flames. They were fearfully burned; but they only cursed the name of God who had the power to inflict such plagues, and they refused to repent or do him homage.

The fifth angel poured his bowl on the throne of the beast; and its kingdom was plunged in darkness. Men gnawed their tongues in agony, but they only

<sup>1</sup> Some witnesses read king of the nations.

15.1-8: Introduction to the seven plagues of the seven bowls. 2: The sea of glass: see 4.6 n. Those who (like Jesus) had won the victory: the martyred faithful (compare Jn.16.31-33). 3: Song of Moses . . . song of the Lamb combines the first deliverer, Moses (see Exod.15.1-18; Ps.145.17), with the second, Jesus (the new exodus, a central NT theme): Moses' victory over Pharaoh foreshadows victory over the beast; compare Ps.145.17. 4: Compare Ps.86.9-10; Jer.10.7. 5: Tent of Testimony: forerunner of the Temple (see Exod.40.34). 8: Filled with smoke: see Isa.6.4.

16.1-21: The seven bowls of God's wrath (similar to the ten plagues of Exod. chs. 7-11). 1: From the sanctuary . . . loud voice . . . pour: compare Isa.66.6; Ps.69.24. 2: Sores: see Exod. 9.10-11; Deut.28.27. 3-4: Sea . . . springs . . . turned to blood: see Exod.7.17-21. 5: Just art thou: see Ps.119.137. 7: I heard the altar cry: see 6.9-10. 8-12: While the plagues here are not fully parallel to those in Exod., on the fifth (v. 10, darkness), compare Exod.10.21-23. 10: The throne

- cursed the God of heaven for their sores and pains, and would not repent of what they had done.
- 12 The sixth angel poured his bowl on the great river Euphrates; and its water was dried up, to prepare the way for the kings from the east.
- 13 Then I saw coming from the mouth of the dragon, the mouth of the beast, and the mouth of the false prophet, 14 three foul spirits like frogs. These spirits were devils, with power to work miracles. They were sent out to muster all the kings of the world for the great day of battle of God the sovereign 15 Lord. ('That is the day when I come like a thief! Happy the man who stays awake and keeps on his clothes, so that he will not have to go naked and 16 ashamed for all to see!') So they assembled the kings at the place called in Hebrew Armageddon.
- 17 Then the seventh angel poured his bowl on the air; and out of the sanctuary came a loud voice from the 18 throne, which said, 'It is over!' And there followed flashes of lightning and peals of thunder, and a violent earthquake, like none before it in human 19 history, so violent it was. The great city was split in three; the cities of the world fell in ruin; and God did not forget Babylon the great, but made her drink the cup which was filled with the 20 fierce wine of his vengeance. Every island vanished; there was not a 21 mountain to be seen. Huge hailstones, weighing perhaps a hundredweight, fell on men from the sky; and they cursed God for the plague of hail, because that plague was so severe.
- THEN ONE OF THE SEVEN ANGELS THAT 17 held the seven bowls came and spoke to me and said, 'Come, and I will show you the judgement on the great whore, enthroned above the ocean. The kings 2 of the earth have committed fornication with her, and on the wine of her fornication men all over the world have made themselves drunk.' In the 3 Spirit he carried me away into the wilds, and there I saw a woman mounted on a scarlet beast which was covered with blasphemous names and had seven heads and ten horns. The 4 woman was clothed in purple and scarlet and bedizened with gold and jewels and pearls. In her hand she held a gold cup, full of obscenities and the foulness of her fornication; and written on her forehead was a name 5 with a secret meaning: 'Babylon the great, the mother of whores and of every obscenity on earth.' The woman, 6 I saw, was drunk with the blood of God's people and with the blood of those who had borne their testimony to Jesus.
- As I looked at her I was greatly astonished. But the angel said to me, 7 'Why are you so astonished? I will tell you the secret of the woman and of the beast she rides, with the seven heads and the ten horns. The beast you have 8 seen is he who once was alive, and is alive no longer, but has yet to ascend out of the abyss before going to perdition. Those on earth whose names have not been inscribed in the roll of the living ever since the world was made will all be astonished to see the 9 beast; for he once was alive, and is of the beast: Rome. 12: Dried up: compare Exod.14.21; Isa.11.15-16. Perhaps the drying up of the Euphrates alludes to opening the way for the expected return of Nero with the kings from the east. See 13.1,3 nn.; 17.15-18. 13: Dragon . . . beast . . . false prophet: a trinity of evil over against God, the Lamb and the Spirit (the inspirer of true prophets). 14: All the kings of the world (not the kings from the east; compare 17.15-18; 19.19-21): see Ps.2; Joel 3.2; Zech.14.1-3. 15: Like a thief: 1 Th.5.1-2 n. 16: Armageddon ("Hill of Megiddo," a strategic military post in antiquity; see Judg.5.19; 2 Kgs.23.29-30; 2 Chr.35.22); in apocalyptic literature, the scene of the final battle between good and evil (compare 19.17-21). 17-21: The seventh bowl pours out judgments similar to the seven trumpets (chs. 8-11). 19: Babylon: Rome. Fierce wine: 14.10 n. 21: Hail: Exod.9.23.

17.1-18: The future fall of Babylon/Rome. 1: The description of a great, sinful city as a whore goes back to the prophets (compare Isa.23.16; Ezek.16.15; Nah.3.4); here, the city is Rome, destroyed by the beast (Nero) in v. 16; contrast the bride (New Jerusalem) in 19.7; 21.2,9. Enthroned above the ocean echoes Jer.51.13. 2: Fornication: here, emperor worship, not just idolatry in general. 3: A woman . . . on a scarlet beast: the city, Rome, and its imperial power. Blasphemous names: see 13.1 n. Seven heads . . . ten horns: defined in vv. 9-12. 4: A gold cup: see Jer.51.7. 6: Drunk with the blood may once have referred to the Jewish War (see 11.1-14 n.); here it is applied to later persecution. 7-18: The beast destroys the whore. 7-8: This perhaps

- alive no longer, and has still to appear.
- 9 'But here is the clue for those who can interpret it. The seven heads are seven hills on which the woman sits.
- 10 They represent also seven kings,<sup>m</sup> of whom five have already fallen, one is now reigning, and the other has yet to come; and when he does come he is
- 11 only to last for a little while. As for the beast that once was alive and is alive no longer, he is an eighth—and yet he is one of the seven, and he is going to
- 12 perdition. The ten horns you saw are ten kings who have not yet begun to reign, but who for one hour are to share with the beast the exercise of royal
- 13 authority; for they have but a single purpose among them and will confer their power and authority upon the
- 14 beast. They will wage war upon the Lamb, but the Lamb will defeat them, for he is Lord of lords and King of kings, and his victory will be shared by his followers, called and chosen and faithful.<sup>n</sup>
- 15 Then he said to me, 'The ocean you saw, where the great whore sat, is an ocean of peoples and populations,
- 16 nations and languages. As for the ten horns you saw, they together with the beast will come to hate the whore; they will strip her naked and leave her desolate, they will batten on her flesh
- 17 and burn her to ashes. For God has put it into their heads to carry out his purpose, by making common cause and conferring their sovereignty upon the beast until all that God has spoken is
- 18 fulfilled. The woman you saw is the great city that holds sway over the kings of the earth.'
- 18 After this I saw another angel coming down from heaven; he came with great authority and the earth was lit up with
- 2 his splendour. Then in a mighty voice

he proclaimed, 'Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! She has become a dwelling for demons, a haunt for every unclean spirit, for every vile and loathsome bird. For all nations have drunk <sup>3</sup> deep of<sup>o</sup> the fierce wine of her fornication; the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and merchants the world over have grown rich on her bloated wealth.'

Then I heard another voice from <sup>4</sup> heaven that said: 'Come out of her, my people, lest you take part in her sins and share in her plagues. For her sins are <sup>5</sup> piled high as heaven, and God has not forgotten her crimes. Pay her back in <sup>6</sup> her own coin, repay her twice over for her deeds! Double for her the strength of the potion she mixed! Mete out <sup>7</sup> grief and torment to match her voluptuous pomp! She says in her heart, "I am a queen on my throne! No mourning for me, no widow's weeds!" Because <sup>8</sup> of this her plagues shall strike her in a single day—pestilence, bereavement, famine, and burning—for mighty is the Lord God who has pronounced her doom!'

The kings of the earth who com- <sup>9</sup> mitted fornication with her and wallowed in her luxury will weep and wail over her, as they see the smoke of her conflagration. They will stand at a <sup>10</sup> distance, for horror at her torment, and will say, 'Alas, alas for the great city, the mighty city of Babylon! In a single hour your doom has struck!'

The merchants of the earth also will <sup>11</sup> weep and mourn for her, because no one any longer buys their cargoes, cargoes of gold and silver, jewels and <sup>12</sup> pearls, cloths of purple and scarlet, identifies Domitian as the "returned Nero"; see 13.1,3 nn. 9: Rome was built on seven hills. 10: Seven kings: This is difficult to decipher; probably Domitian (81–96 A.D.) is seen as the one ... now reigning. 11: An eighth—and yet he is one of the seven: Nero. 12: The ten kings are Nero's companions from the east; see 16.12 n. 14: Will wage war on the Lamb: i.e. in the future (see 19.19–21), but before that they will destroy Rome (vv. 16–18). Lord of lords: Deut.10.17; Dan.2.47. 16: Batten: feed gluttonously. Burn her to ashes: see 18.16; Nero was suspected of starting the destructive fire in Rome in 64 A.D.

<sup>m</sup> Or emperors.

<sup>n</sup> Or ... kings, and his followers are faithful men, called and selected for service.

<sup>o</sup> Other witnesses read have been ruined by ...

18.1–24: The fall of and lament over Babylon (compare the dirge over Tyre in Ezek. chs. 26–27). Elements of several OT prophecies against Babylon are woven into a condemnation of Rome. 2: Fallen, fallen: see Isa.13.19–22; 21.9. 4: Come out of her: compare Jer.50.8; 51.45. 7–8: Compare the boast with Isa.47.7–9. 9–10: See Ezek.26.16–18. 11: Ezek.27.31. 12–16: Ezek.27.15–16. Rome's power as a world trade center is vividly depicted in the list of rich goods.

silks and fine linens; all kinds of scented woods, ivories, and every sort of thing made of costly woods, bronze, iron, or marble; cinnamon and spice, incense, perfumes and frankincense; wine, oil, flour and wheat, sheep and cattle, horses, chariots, slaves, and the lives of men. 'The fruit you longed for', they will say, 'is gone from you; all the glitter and the glamour are lost, never to be yours again!' The traders in all these wares, who gained their wealth from her, will stand at a distance for horror at her torment, weeping and mourning and saying, 'Alas, alas for the great city, that was clothed in fine linen and purple and scarlet, bedizened with gold and jewels and pearls! Alas that in one hour so much wealth should be laid waste!'

Then all the sea-captains and voyagers, the sailors and those who traded by sea, stood at a distance and cried out as they saw the smoke of her conflagration: 'Was there ever a city like the great city?' They threw dust on their heads, weeping and mourning and saying, 'Alas, alas for the great city, where all who had ships at sea grew rich on her wealth! Alas that in a single hour she should be laid waste!'

But let heaven exult over her; exult, apostles and prophets and people of God; for in the judgement against her he has vindicated your cause!

Then a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone and hurled it into the sea and said, 'Thus shall Babylon, the great city, be sent hurtling down, never to be seen again! No more shall the sound of harpers and minstrels, of flute-players and trumpeters, be heard in you; no more shall craftsmen of any trade be found in you; no more shall the sound of the mill be heard in you; no more shall the light of the lamp be seen in you; no more shall the voice of the bride and bridegroom be heard in you! Your traders were once the merchant princes of the world, and with your sorcery you deceived all the nations.'

For the blood of the prophets and of God's people was found in her, the blood of all who had been done to death on earth.

After this I heard what sounded like the roar of a vast throng in heaven; and they were shouting:

'Alleluia! Victory and glory and power belong to our God, for true and just are his judgements! He has condemned the great whore who corrupted the earth with her fornication, and has avenged upon her the blood of his servants.'

Then once more they shouted:

'Alleluia! The smoke goes up from her for ever and ever!'

And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshipped God as he sat on the throne, and they too cried:

'Amen! Alleluia!'

Then a voice came from the throne which said: 'Praise our God, all you his servants, you that fear him, both great and small!'

Again I heard what sounded like a vast crowd, like the noise of rushing water and deep roars of thunder, and they cried:

'Alleluia! The Lord our God, sovereign over all, has entered on his reign! Exult and shout for joy and do him homage, for the wedding-day of the Lamb has come! His bride has made herself ready, and for her dress she has been given fine linen, clean and shining.'

(Now the fine linen signifies the righteous deeds of God's people.)

17-20: Contrast vv. 17-19 with v. 20. 18: Was there ever a city: see Ezek.27.32. 19: Dust on their heads: see Ezek.27.30. 21: A great millstone: compare Jer.51.63-64. 22-24: See Jer.25.10.

19.1-5: Rejoicing over Rome's destruction. 2: Alleluia: the Gk. transliteration of Heb. hallelujah, "Praise God," found only in this ch. in the NT.

19.6-10: The marriage of the Lamb. 7-8: The OT sometimes sees Israel as God's bride (e.g. Jer.2.2); here the bride of the Lamb is the church (compare 2 Cor.11.2; Eph.5.25-33).

9 Then the angel said to me, 'Write this: "Happy are those who are invited to the wedding-supper of the Lamb!"' And he added, 'These are the very words of God.' At this I fell at his feet to worship him. But he said to me, 'No, not that! I am but a fellow-servant with you and your brothers who bear their testimony to Jesus. It is God you must worship. Those who bear testimony to Jesus are inspired like the prophets.'<sup>p</sup>

11 THEN I SAW HEAVEN WIDE OPEN, AND there before me was a white horse; and its rider's name was Faithful and True, for he is just in judgement and just in war. His eyes flamed like fire, and on his head were many diadems. Written upon him was a name known to none but himself, and he was robed in a garment drenched in blood.<sup>q</sup> He was called the Word of God, and the armies of heaven followed him on white horses, clothed in fine linen, clean and shining. From his mouth there went a sharp sword with which to smite the nations; for he it is who shall rule them with an iron rod, and tread the winepress of the wrath and retribution of God the sovereign Lord. And on his robe and on his thigh there was written the name: 'King of kings and Lord of lords.'

17 Then I saw an angel standing in the sun, and he cried aloud to all the birds flying in mid-heaven: 'Come and gather for God's great supper, to eat the flesh of kings and commanders and fighting men, the flesh of horses and their riders, the flesh of all men, slave and free, great and small!' Then I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies mustered to do battle with the Rider and his army. The beast was taken prisoner, and so was the false prophet who had worked miracles in its presence and deluded those that had received the mark of the beast and worshipped its image. The two of them were thrown alive into the lake of fire with its sulphurous flames. The rest <sup>21</sup> were killed by the sword which went out of the Rider's mouth; and all the birds gorged themselves on their flesh.

Then I saw an angel coming down <sup>20</sup> from heaven with the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hands. He <sup>2</sup> seized the dragon, that serpent of old, the Devil or Satan, and chained him up for a thousand years; he threw him <sup>3</sup> into the abyss, shutting and sealing it over him, so that he might seduce the nations no more till the thousand years were over. After that he must be let loose for a short while.

Then I saw thrones, and upon them <sup>4</sup> sat those to whom judgement was committed. I could see the souls of those who had been beheaded for the sake of God's word and their testimony to Jesus, those who had not worshipped the beast and its image or received its mark on forehead or hand. These came to life again and reigned with Christ for a thousand years, though the rest <sup>5</sup> of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were over. This is the first resurrection. Happy indeed, and <sup>6</sup> one of God's own people, is the man who shares in this first resurrection! Upon such the second death has no claim; but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him for the thousand years.

When the thousand years are over, <sup>7</sup> Satan will be let loose from his dungeon; and he will come out to seduce <sup>8</sup> the nations in the four quarters of the

<sup>p</sup> Or . . . worship. For testimony to Jesus is the spirit that inspires prophets.

<sup>q</sup> Some witnesses read spattered with blood.

10: God you must worship: there is to be no worship of angelic beings; see 22.8-9; Col.2.18. 19.11-21: Christ's victory over the beast. 11: A white horse: see 6.2. 12: Eyes . . . like fire: see 2.18. 13: A garment drenched in blood: see Isa.63.1-6. The Word of God: see 1.2 n. 15: A sharp sword: see 1.16 n.; 2.12. An iron rod: Ps.2.9. Winepress: see 14.10 n., 17-20. 16: Lord of lords: Deut.10.17; Dan.2.47. 17-21: Compare Ezek.39.17-20. 19: The final battle anticipated in 16.14-16. 20: The lake of fire: see 14.10; 20.10.

20.1-15: The events of the last Judgment. 2-4: With Satan bound (v. 2), the martyred dead (others later; see v. 5) are to rise and reign with Christ (following a Jewish messianic expectation). 2: Thousand years: the millennium (from Latin mille, thousand, and annus, year). 4: Thrones . . . judgement: see Dan.7.9,22,27; Mt.19.28; Lk.22.30. 6: The second death: defined in v. 14; see 2.11. 7: The short release of Satan (see v. 3) may follow the Babylonian legend of Tiamat, the sea monster of chaos who is to be released at the end of history to be defeated again by Marduk, the god of light. 8: The hosts of Gog and Magog (see Ezek. chs. 38-39) are identified earth and to muster them for battle, yes, the hosts of Gog and Magog, countless as the sands of the sea. So they marched over the breadth of the land and laid siege to the camp of God's people and the city that he loves. But fire came down on them from heaven and consumed them; and the Devil, their seducer, was flung into the lake of fire and sulphur, where the beast and the false prophet had been flung, there to be tormented day and night for ever.

11 Then I saw a great white throne, and the One who sat upon it; from his presence earth and heaven vanished away, and no place was left for them.

12 I could see the dead, great and small, standing before the throne; and books were opened. Then another book was opened, the roll of the living. From what was written in these books the dead were judged upon the record of their deeds. The sea gave up its dead, and Death and Hades gave up the dead in their keeping; they were judged each man on the record of his deeds. Then Death and Hades were flung into the lake of fire. This lake of fire is the second death; and into it were flung any whose names were not to be found in the roll of the living.

21 THEN I SAW A NEW HEAVEN AND A NEW earth, for the first heaven and the first earth had vanished, and there was no longer any sea. I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready like a bride adorned for her husband. I heard a loud voice proclaiming from the throne: 'Now at last God has his dwelling among men! He will dwell among them and they shall be his people, and God himself will be with them.<sup>r</sup> He will wipe every tear from their eyes; there shall be an end to death, and to mourning and crying and pain; for the old order has passed away!'

Then he who sat on the throne said, 'Behold! I am making all things new!' (And he said to me, 'Write this down; for these words are trustworthy and true. Indeed they are already fulfilled.') 'I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. A draught from the water-springs of life will be my free gift to the thirsty. All this is the victor's heritage; and I will be his God and he shall be my son. But as for the cowardly, the faithless, and the vile, murderers, fornicators, sorcerers, idolaters, and liars of every kind, their lot will be the second death, in the lake that burns with sulphurous flames.'

Then one of the seven angels that held the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues came and spoke to me and said, 'Come, and I will show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb.' So in the Spirit he carried me away to a great high mountain, and showed me the holy city of Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God. It shone with the glory of God; it had the radiance of some priceless jewel, like a jasper, clear as crystal. It had a great high wall, with twelve gates, at which were twelve angels; and on the gates were inscribed the names of the twelve tribes of Israel. There were three gates to the east, three to the north, three to the south, and three to the west. The city wall had with the nations who gather for the final battle against God's people; this also provides an opportunity to depict a final siege of the city, i.e. Jerusalem (v. 9); see Zech. ch. 14. 9: Fire came down: compare 2 Kgs. 1.10-12. 10: The Devil, beast, and false prophet are defeated forever. 11-15: Here is the last judgment by the books (see 3.5 n.; compare Dan. 7.9-10; Mt. 16.27; 25.31-46; Rom. 2.6) in connection with the "second resurrection" (see v. 5); and Death and Hades (Death's domain; see 1.18) are vanquished (see 21.4).

<sup>r</sup> Some witnesses read God-with-them shall himself be their God (see Isaiah 7. 14: 8. 8).

21.1-21: The new heaven and earth and the new Jerusalem. 1: The future holds promise of a transformation so complete that there will be a new heaven and . . . earth; see Isa. 65.17; 66.22; Rom. 8.19-21. No longer any sea: perhaps, as in Babylonian legend, the sea is regarded as hostile. 2: The new Jerusalem is not in heaven but comes down from it (see v. 10; 3.12). Bride: see 19.7-8 n. 3: God has his dwelling among men: compare Ezek. 37.27. 4: Wipe away every tear: see 7.17; Isa. 25.8; 35.10. 5: Only here and in 1.8 does God himself speak. All things new: Isa. 43.19. 6: Alpha and Omega: see 1.8 n. To the thirsty . . . water: see 7.17 n.; 22.1; Isa. 55.1. 7: His God . . . my son: Pss. 2.7; 89.27-28. 10: Showed me the holy city: compare Ezek. 40.2. 12-14: The juxtaposition of twelve tribes (v. 12) and twelve apostles (v. 14) points to old and twelve foundation-stones, and on them were the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

- 15 The angel who spoke with me carried a gold measuring-rod, to measure the 16 the city, its wall, and its gates. The city was built as a square, and was as wide as it was long. It measured by his rod twelve thousand furlongs, its length and 17 breadth and height being equal. Its wall was one hundred and forty-four cubits high, that is, by human measurements, 18 which the angel was using. The wall was built of jasper. while the city itself was of pure gold, bright as clear glass.
19 The foundations of the city wall were adorned with jewels of every kind, the first of the foundation-stones being jasper, the second lapis lazuli, the third chalcadony, the fourth emerald, the fifth sardonyx, the sixth cornelian, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh turquoise, and the twelfth
21 amethyst. The twelve gates were twelve pearls, each gate being made from a single pearl. The streets of the city were of pure gold, like translucent glass.
22 I saw no temple in the city; for its temple was the sovereign Lord God and the Lamb. And the city had no need of sun or moon to shine upon it; for the glory of God gave it light, and 24 its lamp was the Lamb. By its light shall the nations walk, and the kings of the earth shall bring into it all their splendour. The gates of the city shall never be shut by day—and there will 26 be no night. The wealth and splendour of the nations shall be brought into it; but nothing unclean shall enter, nor 27 anyone whose ways are false or foul,

but only those who are inscribed in the Lamb's roll of the living.

Then he showed me the river of the water of life, sparkling like crystal, flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb down the middle of the city's street. On either side of the river stood a tree of life, which yields twelve crops of fruit, one for each month of the year; the leaves of the trees serve for the healing of the nations. Every accursed thing shall disappear. The throne of God and of the Lamb will be there, and his servants shall worship him; they shall see him face to face, and bear his name on their foreheads. There shall be no more night, nor will they need the light of lamp or sun, for the Lord God will give them light; and they shall reign for evermore.

THEN HE SAID TO ME, 'THESE WORDS ARE trustworthy and true. The Lord God who inspires the prophets has sent his angel to show his servants what must shortly happen. And, remember, I am coming soon!'

Happy is the man who heeds the words of prophecy contained in this book! It is I, John, who heard and saw these things. And when I had heard and seen them, I fell in worship at the feet of the angel who had shown them to me. But he said to me, 'No, not that! I am but a fellow-servant with you and your brothers the prophets and those who heed the words of this book. It is God you must worship.' Then he told me, 'Do not seal up the words of prophecy in this book, for the hour of fulfilment is near. Meanwhile, let the evil-doer go on doing evil and the filthy-

new covenant peoples; see 4.4 n. 15: A gold measuring rod: see Ezek.40.5. 16: The dimensions correspond to the Temple's Holy of Holies, but there is no longer to be a temple (see 21.22) and all (as priests; see 1.6 n.; Isa.61.6), not only the high priest, have access to God. 18-20: Exod.28.15-21; Isa.54.11-12.

21.22-22.5: A city of light and life. 23: No need of sun: see Isa.60.19. 24: Isa.60.3,5. 25: Isa.60.11. 26: Isa.60.3-9. 27: Nothing unclean: see Isa.52.1. 22.1: The river of the water of life: compare Ezek.47.1-12, where it flows from the Temple; here it flows from the throne (see Zech.14.7-8). 2: A tree of life: see 2.7 n.; Ezek.47.7. Healing of the nations: compare Ezek.47.12, Sept.; also Isa.49.6. 3: Every accursed thing shall disappear: in Gen.3.17-18 it is man who is accursed; now he is redeemed in a new paradise with access to the tree of life. 4: They shall see him face to face: Ps.17.15; 1 Cor.13.12. Bear his name . . . : see 3.12 n.; in Exod.28.36-38 the high priest has "Holy to the Lord" on his forehead, but now all are priests and bear his name.

22.6-21: Final admonitions and promises. 6: Sent his angel: see 1.1; 22.16. 7: I am coming soon: see 16.15. 8: I, John: see Introduction; 1.1,4,9. 9: No, not that: see 19.10 n. 10: Do not seal up . . . the hour . . . is near: the command to conceal in Dan.8.26; 12.4,9 is reversed because of the anticipation of the imminent end. 11: There is no time for change; compare Dan.12.10.

12 minded wallow in his filth, but let the good man persevere in his goodness and the dedicated man be true to his dedication.'

12 'Yes, I am coming soon, and bringing my recompense with me, to requite everyone according to his deeds! I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end.'

14 Happy are those who wash their robes clean! They will have the right to the tree of life and will enter by the gates of the city. Outside are dogs, sorcerers and fornicators, murderers and idolaters, and all who love and practise deceit.

16 'I, Jesus, have sent my angel to you with this testimony for the churches. I am the scion and offspring of David, the bright star of dawn.'

17 'Come!' say the Spirit and the bride.

'Come!' let each hearer reply.

Come forward, you who are thirsty; accept the water of life, a free gift to all who desire it.

For my part, I give this warning to 18 everyone who is listening to the words of prophecy in this book: should anyone add to them, God will add to him the plagues described in this book; should anyone take away from the 19 words in this book of prophecy, God will take away from him his share in the tree of life and the Holy City, described in this book.

He who gives this testimony speaks: 20 'Yes, I am coming soon!'

Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!

The grace of the Lord Jesus be with 21 you all.<sup>s</sup>

<sup>s</sup> Some witnesses read with all; others read with all God's people; others read with God's people; some add Amen.

12: Requite everyone: see 20.11–15 n.; compare Isa.40.10; Jer.17.10. 14: Who wash their robes: see 7.14. 15: Outside: compare Mt.8.12. Dogs: impure persons; compare Phil.3.2. Sorcerers: lit. poisoners; see 21.8. 16: I, Jesus: see 1.1–2. Scion and offspring of David: see 5.5 n. Morning star: see 2.28; compare Num.24.17. 17: The bride: see 19.7–8 n. 18–19: Should anyone add . . . should anyone take away: compare Deut.4.2; 12.32. 20: Come, Lord Jesus: compare 1 Cor.16.22 n.

SPECIAL ARTICLES

READING THE BIBLE

The passing of centuries has both hallowed the words of the Bible and created gaps of time and space between Scripture and the modern reader. Only as these gaps narrow, and hopefully close, can the fullness of the meaning and feeling of this repository of exalted literature permeate his being. Surely the heart of man has not changed from ancient times; man's ability to think, despite countless historic shifts in the modes and manner of thought, remains constant. But can today's reader overcome hundreds, indeed thousands of years, and the distance of thousands of miles, and make the words, the sentences, the books of so long ago his very own? Not without tools.

He needs tools of different kinds, some perhaps ready at hand and as tangible as a carpenter's ruler, others available only in whatever native gifts a person chances to possess, perhaps the chief of which is imagination—a fertile mind figuratively to cross over space and time.

The Bible emerged from the hearts and minds of living human beings. An Isaiah spoke to people gathered at the Temple; a Jesus preached to people assembled on a mount; the Psalmist was a man who burst into rapture as he saw the beauties of nature; and in Proverbs a concerned father wished to convey to his son the ripeness of the wisdom distilled from human experience. A harassed Jeremiah wrote a letter of sound counsel to his fellow Jews spiritually adrift in alien Babylon, and a Paul ended an epistle to a church divided by factions with personal regards to specific friends and acquaintances. Imagination is the ability to recognize that the recorded words come from flesh and blood people and to transport one's self to that time and place when the ancient words were first spoken or written. Imagination, in this sense, is a gift purely within the reader, and much as he can benefit from help that may come from outside him, only his own creative mind will cultivate and foster his readings.

It is important to apply imagination to all literature and especially so to Scripture. Unlike some other worthy writings of the ancient past, Scripture remains constant in our learning and in our everyday way of living and speaking. Even more profoundly, Scripture touches on, or deals penetratingly with, man's experiences. There are first his natural, personal experiences—when he is born, as he grows in strength, when he passes his prime, and when he becomes aware that his span of life is limited. Then Scripture is concerned with the community, the corporate body, called the Israel of God (Gal.6.16). That Scripture deals so centrally with God's people—individually and collectively—gives the Bible its eminence over all other literatures.

It is natural for Scripture to be spoken of as “inspired,” a word often used in two related but different senses. In the first sense, inspiration signifies some super-human, even divine, quality. Many religious communities regard Scripture as inspired in this specific sense. From this standpoint, however, much as these sacred writings may be regarded as the product of men, it was God acting behind these men, or through them, that gives Scripture its special quality and special authority.

A second sense of “inspired” is somewhat different. If a painting is flat, dull, unable to reach out to us or move us, we would not call it “inspired.” We use the word, rather, in awe of genius. That a Beethoven could have written a Ninth Symphony, or that a da Vinci could have painted a Last Supper, or that man could have conquered space, is awesome. So we restrict the word “inspired” in this sense to just such extraordinary creations and feats because we marvel at such rare and unexpected peaks of attainment. It is no exaggeration to say that much, indeed very much, of Scripture represents an artistry and power in its architectonic quality that richly merits the accolade “inspired.” Yet only as we cultivate our imagination can we attune to the aesthetic beauty of Scripture.

Just as the carpenter’s ruler is a most useful tool in building, so also is some basic knowledge useful in reading Scripture. To begin with, a reader must know that Scripture is not simply one book, but that it is an assembly of books, indeed, an assembly of assemblies, a veritable library. The Bible can be read without this information, but how easily it can also be misread! The books of Scripture were written over a span of at least a thousand years. They not only reflect the very moments of the times when they were written; they also speak to men in all ages. We can, therefore, share in the misery and despair which moved the author of Lamentations to record his sense of calamity at the destruction of Jerusalem in the year 587 B.C., but his poetry awakens within us too a misery and despair transcending the tragedy itself. It is possible to read Lamentations without knowing anything about the history of Israel, but to know about the event that prompted the dirge increases its power and beauty.

Similarly, to know why one speaks of “up from Jericho into the hill-country” (Josh.16.1) alerts us to a very ancient city in the Jordan valley, below the hills of Judah, in which Jerusalem nestled. It helps to know that the coast of Palestine was flat, bounded on the east by low-lying hills; that the southern area of the Holy Land was better suited for raising sheep than for farming, but that in the north, where the fertile great Plain of Esdraelon was located, agriculture flourished. A minimum of knowledge about the history and geography of the Bible, and about when the individual books were written and why, is an inescapable necessity. But the richer our store of knowledge, the richer our appreciation. The annotations in this edition, although restricted in scope because of space limitations, provide a good measure of such knowledge and enrichment.

The information contained in the annotations, useful as it is, is a matter of the relevant externals. The internal matter is the content of Scripture. However exalted sacred writing is as writing, it is the idea behind the writing that is the crux. The biblical mode of thought differs from the Greek and Latin modes so influential on us, in that the biblical manner is concrete rather than abstract; biblical authors expressed their thoughts through stories and poems, through striking incidents and memorable characters, and not through philosophical ideas. These writers viewed definitions as unnecessary, and differentiation through precise formulation as needed only in matters of law. Books as diverse as Genesis, Samuel, the Gospel According to Matthew, and Acts of the Apostles all convey their content by narration. Their stories, however, were always more than merely stories, and their poems far more than wondrous lyrical outbursts. Their subjects were God and man, and sin and righteousness, and the purpose and mystery of living.

The Bible puts forth no philosophical inquiry about God. His existence is presumed without any effort to prove it. He is not directly defined, but in repudiating idolatry and polytheism, the Bible does define him. Affirmatively, Scripture speaks of what it regards as his actions in history, of his control of history, of its conviction that the march of history has revealed him. Its objective was not to define revelation, but rather to assert that in specific given events, God partly, or fully, revealed to men his power, or his uniqueness, or his very essence. Where the Greeks sought for ultimates through analyzing the physical nature of a static world, or a world revolving in great circles of time, the biblical authors sought such quintessence in the events of history, in the one-way flow of time toward a purpose and goal. God was at work—in the biblical view in the call of Abraham, in the Exodus, in Sinai, in the entry into Canaan, in the rise and fall of monarchy, in Jesus, and in Paul (and, for the ancient Jewish sages, in the oral revelation which inspired the rabbis). In the Bible, history is never only a record of an event in itself; it also is the meaning of that human event in relationship to God. And so we find that biblical modes of thought are no less profound than those found in the formalities of Greek or Latin philosophy.

So long a span of time is represented in the Bible that a phenomenon needs to be observed: Chronicles was written on the basis, and made use, of Samuel and Kings. Conversely, Samuel–Kings influenced Chronicles. Similarly, Genesis–Exodus influenced some psalms. More significantly, the Old Testament influenced the Apocrypha and the New Testament. In a sense, the New Testament is a commentary on, and an extension of, the Old Testament.

This matter of influence, at points extending to derivation, has two meanings. First, the phenomenon lends some sense of unity to books of disparate ages and content. Second, the later books, in exhibiting the influence on them of earlier books, provide a continuity with them.

The ancient mode of commentary-explanation was not that of bare factual definition. Rather, in early Christian times, both Jews and Christians appear to have addressed themselves to the question, What does this Old Testament passage signify (predict)? rather than, What does this passage mean (at present)? Jews and Christians readily understood that Abraham left Ur; but they wanted to know what his departure from the land signified. Both Jews and Christians of two thousand years ago saw in Abraham's departure the decisive step by means of which the patriarch abandoned idolatry for the worship of the true God; both traditions viewed Abraham as the father of all true believers. Much of the thought in the Gospels and in the Epistles acquires specific substance from the Old Testament literature from which it is directly derived, and without which the later writings would be unintelligible. With the Old Testament, we know that when John the Baptist declares that God can raise true sons of Abraham from stones (Lk.3.7–8), or that when Paul speaks of Christ as the Passover sacrifice (1 Cor.5.7), or that when rabbis in the Mishnah (a legal commentary on Scripture) specify what activities are inadmissible on the Sabbath, they are extending the thoughts they inherited, and merging them with their own perceptions.

For today's student, not only the glory, but also the "problem" in Scripture is, on the one hand, its antiquity, which would seem to allocate it to the past; and is on the other hand its unending relevance for all generations, including his own. Translation became a necessity more than twenty centuries ago, when Jews moved to Greek-speaking lands where they continued to cherish Scripture, yet had forgotten the ancestral Hebrew tongue. Translation is a vehicle for understanding, and understanding is the first step toward applying the insights of the ancient writings to a later age and milieu.

Many Bibles have been translated into English, some so long ago that even though they are in our own tongue, we have trouble understanding these old renderings. Hence, the continual need for new translations expedient to new times. There is an essential difference between the New English Bible and other modern versions. In their determination to avoid the pitfall of simply converting a Hebrew or Greek word into an English equivalent, the translating panels boldly chose to translate the ideas behind the words. As a result, they have achieved a remarkably high approximation of the tone and feeling and thought of the Hebrew and Greek originals.

One reads to be entertained, or to learn, or to be lifted to some high level of aspiration and dedication. The Bible, like no other literature, offers just such an extensive range of rewards; and in it the reader may hear the echo of, or indeed, the very voice of God himself.

LITERARY FORMS OF THE BIBLE

The Bible can be read from many perspectives. From a historical view, one can read it to learn about the past; from the standpoint of religion, one can read it to clarify or strengthen faith; from a literary angle, one can appreciate its poetry, its narrative style, and its use of imagery. Another kind of concern is developed here—an attempt to acquaint the reader with the many literary forms which the Bible represents.

Awareness of literary form is fundamental to understanding. In reading poetry we do not look for the same thing that we look for in reading novels; legal contracts use language different from that which is used in short stories. Moreover, because in a typical biblical book various kinds of material stand side by side, the reader must know what the natural unit is. Furthermore, later use frequently obscured the original shape of the material; but awareness of the form can help the student distinguish earlier from later layers. The Bible is such a rich and diverse book that only a general sketch, with a few examples, can be undertaken here, with the hope that the reader will be encouraged to pursue the study of literary form on his own.

In terms of literary form, the Bible as a whole ought not to be taken for granted. We shall therefore begin by noting its structure and history. From there we shall look at the kinds of books in the Bible, then to the kinds of literary forms within the individual books. Finally, we shall reflect on the value of pursuing this kind of analysis.

THE BIBLE AS A WHOLE

WHAT IS THE BIBLE? From a literary point of view the Bible is an anthology, or a collection of literature, containing narratives, poetry, prophetic books, letters, and apocalypses. It is not organized according to types of literature; rather, different kinds of literature (called “books”) stand side by side. Furthermore, many individual books themselves juxtapose narratives, poetry, and legal codes. Understanding the Bible from a literary point of view requires us to see the character of the anthology as a whole, and how it came to be what it now is.

In the first place, the contents of the collection depend on whose Bible we are talking about. What Jews call “the Bible,” Christians call “the Old Testament”; moreover, because of the Apocrypha, Christians have not always agreed among themselves, nor with the Jews, on what constitutes the Old Testament. Roman Catholics have always included the Apocrypha in the Old Testament, but Protestants sometimes printed the books between the Old and New Testaments, or omitted them entirely. (They are now part of The New English Bible, placed between the two Testaments.) The reasons for this are complex, but the facts are simple enough: the Protestant Old Testament is the Bible of the Palestinian synagogue as determined by the rabbis after the fall of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. The Apocrypha, on the other hand, was part of the Bible of the Greek synagogues. This Bible in turn became the Scripture of the Greek-speaking church; later it was translated into Latin. However, in the sixteenth century, Reformation Protestants reverted to the Palestinian canon for their Old Testament, and relegated the Apocrypha to the status of books "good and useful to read," while denying them full authority as Scripture, but at the Council of Trent Catholics denied to continue to include them in the Old Testament.

Nor did Christians always agree about the content of the New Testament. The earliest list of books which agrees with our present New Testament comes from 367 A.D., yet it was not until many centuries later that all Christians—Protestant, Catholic, and Orthodox—agreed on what constituted the New Testament. From this rudimentary sketch, it is clear that what the word "Bible" refers to depends on the particular religious community one has in view, and on the history of these communities with their Scriptures.

In the second place, the way in which the anthology called the Bible is organized also depends on whether one has in mind the Jewish or the Christian Bible. The Hebrew Bible, quite apart from the placement of the Apocrypha, is structured differently from the Christian Old Testament. It has three divisions: the Torah ("the Law"), the Prophets (subdivided into "the former prophets" and "the latter prophets"), and the Writings. When Christians adopted the Greek Bible, they also accepted a different order, which today is preserved in Catholic editions. For example, in the Christian Old Testament, the literary prophets (called "latter prophets" in the Hebrew Bible) come at the very end.

In the third place, the present order of books in the New Testament results from historical factors, especially the rejection of Marcion, a second-century heretic. Marcion demanded that Christians discard the Synagogue Bible altogether and rely solely on a Christian Bible consisting of the Gospel of Luke and the Letters of Paul (from both of which he had deleted passages favorable to Judaism and the God of the Old Testament). In rejecting Marcion, the church retained the Old Testament; it also insisted that the New Testament should have four gospels and the letters of more than one apostle. Eventually the Book of Revelation was included as well. These factors, succinctly stated here, explain why "the Bible" refers to several anthologies, and why the tables of contents vary as they do.

It is difficult to classify a piece of literature precisely if it was edited subsequently, or if it is itself a compilation of several writings. But this is exactly what we have in most books of the Bible. On the one hand, some works came to be divided into several books. For example, what we now know as 1 and 2 Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah were originally a single work. The long work became divided and the divided parts acquired individual names. On the other hand, books which are essentially compilations are common. In the Hebrew Bible the twelve (minor) prophets are a single "book" which compiled the individual works into one scroll. 2 Corinthians combines parts of at least five letters, none of which is preserved entirely.

Broadly speaking, nonetheless, we may classify the books of the Bible into five kinds of literature: 1. Narrative books (e.g. Genesis, Samuel, Kings, Maccabees, the Gospels, the Acts of the Apostles); 2. Poetry (e.g. Psalms, Song of Songs, Proverbs); 3. Prophetic books; 4. Epistles (e.g. the Letters of Paul); 5. Apocalypses (Daniel, Revelation, 2 Esdras [4 Ezra]). Each of these will be discussed below. First, however, several considerations merit attention.

To begin with, the distribution is of interest. Narrative and apocalypse are found throughout the Old and New Testaments, and the Apocrypha. On the other hand, except for the Letter of Jeremiah in some manuscripts, epistles as separate writings are found only in the New Testament, while only the Old Testament has books of poetry and collections of proverbs. Second, many types of literature do not appear in the Bible at all: drama, satire, autobiography, myth (an extended narrative about the gods), commentaries. Third, none of the literary types found in the Bible is peculiarly biblical. Therefore, the study of types or genres of literature in general, and especially those of antiquity, illumines the particular biblical literature. Fourth, most of the books contain several literary forms. For example, Exodus contains narrative, laws, and poetry; Jeremiah contains narrative, poetry, and letters; some of the epistles, such as 1 Corinthians ch. 13, contain poetic passages.

There are various reasons for the existence of multiple literary forms within a given book. The book may be a compilation (e.g. Daniel begins with narratives about pious Jews in Babylon, and then adds reports of visions). Or, the book may use diverse kinds of materials, including earlier documents. For example, the Deuteronomic history (Deuteronomy, Joshua, Judges, 1 and 2 Samuel, 1 and 2 Kings) used earlier documents, such as annals and previous histories.

AUTHORSHIP. Finally, the above observations affect the questions of "authorship." In belles-lettres, an author chooses the form in which he wants to express himself, moving from various poetic to prose forms as content requires, or as he wishes to experiment. There is no reason to consider the biblical writers in this light, for they were not self-conscious literary figures writing for a public, nor were they writing to express their personal views. They were either writing for religious communities which they sought to address as effectively as possible, or else they were recording fixed traditions. They were not professional authors who earned their livelihood by writing. Indeed, to what extent the writers were self-conscious "authors" is highly uncertain. We know few of their names. The vast majority of the books are anonymous; "authors" were assigned to them at a later date by the communities as acts of piety. Thus, the Pentateuch was attributed to Moses, the Psalms to David, Proverbs to Solomon, the Gospels to apostles or their associates. Furthermore, some of the literature was actually written in the name of well-known figures. All apocalypses, except the Revelation of John, claim to be written by persons long dead. Certain letters of Paul (Ephesians, Timothy, Titus), and probably the letters of James, Jude, Peter, and John were written in the name of these apostles. More important, the identity of none of the compilers is known, nor are the names of the writers whose works have been incorporated in books which we now have. In many instances it is not at all clear whether the compilation was done by an individual or by a group. For example, it is customary to speak of "the Yahwist" or "the Priestly writer" of certain strata of the Pentateuch, or of the "author" of the Fourth Gospel. But no one knows whether these works represent the efforts of a single mind or of a group. Similarly, the Gospels are end products of a process of development to which several persons or groups made their contribution. For example, Matthew appropriated most of Mark, some of which he rewrote, and supplemented it with a collection (itself restructured) of Jesus' teachings and with other material. Most of the individuals who wrote the literature of the Bible drew on materials already known. The creativity of the writer usually lay in how he used his material. Thus, biblical literature is much less the product of creative writing than the product of creative editing done within the context of communities of faith.

TYPES OF BOOKS

NARRATIVE WORKS. Many of the books are essentially narratives. As such, they include at least the rudiments of a plot, an indication of where the events transpired, and some greater or lesser portrayal of the characters. Ordinarily the larger narratives have a chronological order. The various narrative genres may be distinguished from one another on the basis of plot, setting, and characterization, and on the basis of specific purposes. Was a work composed in order to entertain, to edify, or to transmit factual information?

A great many different narrative genres appear in the Bible. A number of the books and literary works may be classified as histories, though not in the modern scholarly sense. A history is a written narrative of past events which is governed by facts, as far as the writer could ascertain and interpret them, and not by thematic or aesthetic organization. It will, then, in most cases be chronological in sequence. Most of the biblical histories are popular histories; that is, the writer's determination of the facts was not based on critically assessed and reliable sources (such as eye-witness testimony or accurate records), but on traditional material (such as stories and legends). Much of the popular history of the Bible could also be called salvation history, since it aims at showing how the sequence of events was directed by God. A major example of history in these senses is the Deuteronomic sequence (see above), which includes many diverse literary types, but viewed as a whole comprises a single interpretative account of the history of Israel from the Exodus to the Exile. The Tetrateuch ("four books": Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers) likewise is such a history, though its sequence is not so neatly ordered because of its history of composition; furthermore, it includes within its historical framework a considerable amount of legal material. Critical analysis of the Tetrateuch has shown that it is composed of two or more originally separate but complete histories of salvation, the works of the Yahwist and Priestly writer. Other major examples of salvation histories are the Chronicler's work (1 and 2 Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah), 1 and 2 Maccabees, 1 Esdras, and Acts.

Some narrative books are essentially stories, that is, their structure is determined primarily by plot. Stories create interest by arousing tension (suspense) and releasing it. In addition to stories, such as the Joseph narrative, employed in larger works, a number of separate books belong to this category. Many of these owe their content or shape to popular tradition, and thus may be called tales. The Book of Ruth is a short story which probably rests on a folktale; Jonah is a didactic (teaching) story developed from legend. In terms of content, the Book of Esther could be called a historical novel, or in terms of purpose, a festival legend, since it seems to have been written to explain the meaning and significance of the Feast of Purim. In the Apocrypha the books of Tobit; Judith; Daniel and Susanna; and Daniel, Bel, and the Snake are imaginative didactic stories—works of fiction, novelistic in character, and written in order to convey lessons.

Generally speaking, gospels are narratives about Jesus. Their literary form is basically similar to ancient biographies of popular teachers. The title “gospel” was attached to a rather diverse body of narratives about Jesus, only four of which were included in the New Testament. The canonical Gospels generally narrate the public ministry of Jesus; each of them has its own structure, though they all culminate in the story of Jesus’ death and resurrection. The apocryphal gospels (those never included in the canon), on the other hand, vary considerably in content. Some, such as the infancy Gospel of Thomas or the Gospel of Peter, fill in “gaps,” that is, give information not provided by the canonical Gospels. Others claim to furnish secret traditions; one newly-found gospel, that of Thomas, is a collection of sayings but without any real narrative at all.

The canonical Gospels are the results of the transmission and use of traditions about Jesus, including his teachings. The so-called “Synoptics” (the first three Gospels) are interdependent, since Matthew and Luke used Mark; John apparently did not use the Synoptics but did have access to some materials found also in the others. Essentially, however, John’s traditions were independent of the Synoptics, and were developed in distinctive ways. The canonical Gospels were written forty to seventy years after the events which they report. All of the Gospels were probably developed for various uses in the Christian congregations, whose problems are reflected both in the selection of the individual traditions and in the emphases of the individual Gospels.

POETIC BOOKS. Many books of the Bible are poetic works, but this category is not adequate as a generic classification because there are several very distinct types. Moreover, though the prophetic books contain a considerable amount of poetry, they are sufficiently distinctive to merit a separate classification. Divided broadly, there are two kinds of poetic books: cultic poetry and Wisdom literature. The primary example of the former is the Book of Psalms, which is not simply a collection of poems but is the hymn and prayer book of the Temple in late Old Testament times. For the most part the psalms and cultic poems are lyrical, that is, meant to be sung (see below). The only other book of cultic poetry in the Old Testament is Lamentations, a collection of dirges and mourning liturgies concerning national disaster. In the Apocrypha, books of liturgical poetry are represented by the Prayer of Manasseh, a short devotional piece, and the Prayer of Azariah in the Song of the Three, added to the Book of Daniel on its translation into Greek.

The other poetic books are more difficult to classify. They generally are considered Wisdom literature, itself a wide range of types. The Song of Songs, for example, is lyrical poetry. Though sometimes interpreted as the liturgy of a sacred marriage ceremony, it is in reality a collection of secular love poetry, perhaps assembled for use at weddings. Other Wisdom poetry ranges from the collection of sayings and poems in the Book of Proverbs (see below) through the lengthy instructions in the apocryphal Book of Ecclesiasticus, to the carefully constructed poem of Job. Still other examples of this literature are Ecclesiastes and the apocryphal Wisdom of Solomon. All of these works have in common a certain literary self-consciousness seldom found in other biblical literature. Behind these works often stand poets in the sense of creative individuals.

In The New English Bible, as in most modern translations, poetry can be recognized by its verse (metrical) form. This procedure enables the reader to see that the basic principle of Hebrew poetry is the parallelism of members, or the "thought rhyme" of two (or sometimes three) successive lines. For example, in Ps.29.8 we have

The voice of the LORD makes the wilderness writhe in travail;
the LORD makes the wilderness of Kadesh writhe.

The second line introduces no new thought, but parallels the first. Scholars have recognized different types of parallelism. In the example cited, the two lines are synonymous. Others are antithetical, that is, the second line verbalizes the opposite of the first, or states negatively what the first had presented positively. Still others have been called synthetic or formal parallelism, for the second line may develop the thought of the first. Other poetic features more familiar to us, such as meter, rhyme, alliteration, assonance, and the like appear, but they are not as basic as parallelism. There is usually some regularity of meter in the sense of balanced numbers of accented syllables, but this feature seems to be derived from the balancing of parallel lines.

PROPHETIC BOOKS. While prophets were found elsewhere in antiquity, no other culture, before or since, has developed prophetic literature as did ancient Israel. Prophets were known in ancient Mesopotamia, but not prophetic books. Books called prophecies were written in Egypt, but they are quite different from the Old Testament prophetic books. Neither are there prophetic books in the Apocrypha nor in the New Testament, though the Book of Revelation has some affinities with prophetic literature.

The prophetic books receive their distinctive stamp from the prophets' self-understanding as spokesmen for God. The prophets were men who, on the basis of a particular call and special revelations, announced God's word concerning his people, and other nations as well. They were preoccupied with declaring God's actions in the immediate future.

We must distinguish the prophetic words themselves from the prophetic books. Study of the prophets in recent generations has emphasized that they were not authors who wrote books, but speakers. It was usually their followers or other listeners who committed their words to writing. Occasionally we catch a glimpse of the way the spoken words were written down, eventually to form books or parts of books, as in Jeremiah ch. 36. Isaiah, when he was not heeded, gave instructions to "Fasten up the message, seal the oracle with my teaching"

(Isa.8.16). It seems clear from such texts and other indications that something new and significant had occurred when the words were written down. At least two factors were involved. First, writing the speeches preserved the revelation and kept it from being stifled when the prophet was either prevented from speaking, or ignored. Second, there arose a concern that future generations should know that what they were experiencing had already been set into motion by God's word once spoken through his prophets.

The first prophetic "books" doubtless were collections of the sayings of individual prophets. As we shall see, those sayings were of many different types, but for the most part they were short, poetic units. But the prophetic books contain other classes of literature as well, such as narratives. Most of these are reports of prophetic activities, either in autobiographical or biographical style. They range from short accounts, setting the occasions for particular speeches, to lengthy tales; from reports of the prophet's call to accounts of symbolic actions performed as messages. The third genre found in the prophetic books is prayer, such as the so-called complaints of Jeremiah in the Book of Jeremiah, or the hymnic fragments in the Book of Amos.

From the jotting down of the first prophetic utterance to the books we read today was a long journey. The details of that journey elude us, but some of the landmarks can be reconstructed from the evidence in the books themselves. In most cases, the first stage was the recording of individual speeches and small collections of sayings. Often we can recognize some of these earlier collections within the present books; Isa.2.1, for instance, appears to be the heading for such a unit. Then other materials were added, sometimes organized loosely on the basis of similar content or type, or on the basis of chronology. Most of these emerging books continued to be expanded by later additions which claimed the authority of the original man of God. As a result, most of the books now reflect the experience and the thought of several generations. At least two centuries after the death of Isaiah, for example, prophetic writings still were being added to the book which bears his name.

The prophetic books were read and expounded in the Israelite communities which developed and preserved them long before they were canonized as sacred Scriptures. When the Babylonian exiles in the sixth pre-Christian century heard the voice of Amos of the eighth century announcing punishment, they understood their experience as arising from God's activity, and they could turn to the future which they believed lay in his hands. Again, Jeremiah's pronouncements against Judah were used as texts for sermons exhorting obedience. And Deutero-Isaiah (Isaiah chs. 40-55) argued that Israel's Lord was the only God of history and human affairs, for he had announced beforehand through his prophets what was to come.

LETTERS. The New Testament is dominated by letters. Of the twenty-seven books, twenty-one are called epistles (the Greek word for letters), most of which are linked to Paul. The letter form became the most important genre in early Christianity. This development is best appreciated when it is seen in light of the Hellenistic letter-writing conventions. Hebrew or Aramaic letters do not appear to have been as influential as the Greek.

Even before the emergence of Christianity, the Greek letter had already become a remarkably stable literary form, despite the diverse kinds of letters which were written. It is useful to distinguish private letters (correspondence between friends or business letters) from public letters. A considerable quantity of private correspondence, mostly on papyrus, has been preserved; much of it has been published since the late nineteenth century. The public letter could be an official correspondence between a public official and a city council, or a series of discussions of moral or political topics cast in letter form, a letter-essay, or a body of magical information made available as a letter. Almost any kind of material could be presented in the form of a public letter, for it was intended for publication and sale.

Both the private and the public letters followed established conventions, with considerable flexibility in detail. The Hellenistic letter had three main parts: the introduction, the body, and the conclusion. The introduction normally named the writer and the recipient, stated a greeting, and may have included the writer's thanksgiving for deliverance from illness and/or a wish for the reader's health. The body could be short and to the point in private correspondence, or lengthy in essays cast as letters. The conclusion expressed greetings and wishes for the persons known to both the writer and the reader, a final greeting, and sometimes the date. Christian letters followed these conventions and modified them at the same time.

A rigid distinction between public and private letters will not work for Paul's correspondence because of the nature of his writing. Paul responded to particular issues by means of letters only because he could not deal with the issues face to face. His letters stand somewhere between private correspondence and public letters; they were not designed to be published and sold in the book stalls, but rather to be read to his congregations and then exchanged (in some cases at least) with other congregations.

Paul follows the convention of naming the writer and the readers (X to Y); but he modifies this by frequently naming his associates, by characterizing the receiving congregation, and by changing the greeting from "Greetings" (Greek charein) to "Grace" (charis) and by adding "peace" (from the Hebrew shalom). In Romans, possibly the last letter genuinely from Paul, the opening becomes more complex, for in it Paul summarized the Gospel in six verses before proceeding to write "to all of you in Rome whom God loves and has called to be his dedicated people." Generally, Paul also modified the thanksgiving; instead of expressing thanks for his own safety and health, he wrote his thanks for the life of the congregation, and did so in a way as to subtly indicate the theme of the body of the letter which followed. The body of the letter was developed according to the needs of the occasion, but regularly included exhortations and a section in which he spoke of his travel plans, expressing a desire to visit the congregation personally. The closing not only amplified the greeting pattern, but frequently included a personal word in his own hand (e.g. 1 Cor.16.21 ff.; Gal.6.11 ff.; Philem.19 ff.) in accord with the practice of official letters in Hellenistic times.

The post-Pauline generation not only imitated Paul's letter writing but developed the catholic (general) epistle to the church at large (e.g. 1 John) or to the churches of a region (1 Peter). The post-Pauline letters tended to become letter-treatises, from which the personal touches are generally absent (e.g. Ephesians, Hebrews, 1 John, 2 Peter); 2 John and 3 John are exceptions. In the second century, the letter-writing tradition continued to flourish but did not enter the canon.

In the New Testament, the epistles stand in a clear order: first, those associated with Paul, with Hebrews standing at the end because it was once thought to be from Paul, and then the Catholic Epistles. Of the Pauline Epistles, those addressed to churches stand first, then come four letters addressed to individuals. The Catholic Epistles begin with James, traditionally thought to be Jesus' brother and head of the Jerusalem church, followed by letters attributed to Peter, John, and Jude. Thus the sequence of letters in the epistle section of the New Testament disregards chronological order.

APOCALYPSES. That there is a type of literature called "apocalypse" is inferred from the fact that there is a body of literature, mostly noncanonical, which is generally similar to one book in the Bible which calls itself an apocalypse—the Revelation of John (the word apocalypse means revelation). Although the word apocalyptic is used also to characterize certain theological ideas, we shall restrict ourselves here to a sketch of the chief features of that literature called apocalypses.

There are few pure examples of the genre. Even the apocalypse of John begins with seven letters to seven churches in Asia Minor; the oldest apocalypse, Daniel (165 B.C.), begins with stories about Daniel and his friends; the truly apocalyptic material begins at chapter six. Fourth Ezra is an apocalypse only in chapters three to fourteen. Moreover, modern scholars often list with apocalyptic literature books which contain only sections regarded as apocalyptic because of their content (e.g. the Testament of the XII Patriarchs, Jubilees, the life of Adam and Eve [also called the Apocalypse of Moses]). Indeed, if the presence of a block of apocalyptic material justifies classifying whole books among apocalyptic literature, the list could include Isaiah, Ezekiel, Zechariah, the Synoptic Gospels, 1 and 2 Thessalonians, and 2 Peter. From the observation of this diversity three conclusions can be drawn: 1. There is no clear definition of what constitutes an apocalypse. 2. The diversity results largely from the fact that these texts are either compilations or the result of drawing on diverse sources (oral and/or written). 3. Classifying a text as "apocalyptic" often reflects the theological content and tenor of a writing as much as the literary form.

Given this intriguing diversity, all attempts to draw up a list of features which make a book (or a section of a book) apocalyptic have only a rough preliminary value. Though it is easy to name exceptions, a general characterization will include the following items: 1. Apocalyptic literature is generally pseudonymous—it claims to be written by an ancient figure, such as Enoch, Moses, Ezra, Daniel, Baruch (Jeremiah's associate); however, the New Testament apocalypse openly identifies the author as John, a contemporary of the readers (and hence is known as the Revelation of John). The "War of the Sons of Light and the Sons of Darkness," one of the Dead Sea Scrolls, is anonymous. The hidden identity of the author reflects the view that contemporary events were disclosed long ago, thereby attesting to the belief that everything is happening according to the plan of God. 2. Apocalyptic literature contains visions which portray the history of God's people, especially their experiences of suffering; these visions usually culminate in the overturning of the malign present and the impending vindication of faithfulness by the intervention of God. 3. Using an abundance of symbols, apocalypses generally express the view that "this age" is to be contrasted with the glorious "age to come." The language of apocalyptic literature expresses this contrast and discontinuity in dramatic and violent images: the return of primeval chaos (e.g. the stars will fall and the moon will turn to blood); unprecedented war, especially against the saints (e.g. Armageddon in the Revelation of John, or the war of the sons of light in the Dead Sea book), or the "birth pangs" of the messianic age. 4. What lies either at the end of history or even beyond the end, is sometimes portrayed in terms of the divine promise to Israel (the time of the Messiah), or sometimes in terms of a rejuvenated earth, or, as in Revelation, both "a new heaven and new earth." The obverse is the punishment of the wicked, sometimes portrayed in lurid images, as is the case in noncanonical writings, the Apocalypse of Peter and the Book of Enoch.

The core conviction, however, which spurred this florid imagery, is that the sovereign God is faithful despite his people's experiences of suffering and persecution. Apocalyptic literature flourished in times of suppression and insurrection. The theological tradition had asserted earlier that calamity was God's punishment for infidelity; now, it appeared that fidelity brought calamity. To interpret this, apocalyptists saw the historical experience of the faithful as part of a cosmic struggle of good and evil, traced either to Adam (as in 4 Ezra) or to the "fallen angels" (as in the Book of Enoch). Thus, the whole of mankind's history was involved; that is to say, a radical view of history brought with it a radical view about God and his ancient revelation of history's character and destiny. Thus, the literary form and its magnificent and dramatic imagery express a radical and daring theology, with form and content compatible throughout.

GENRES WITHIN BOOKS

We have already noted that a given book may contain diverse types of materials either because it is a compilation or because the author used and reproduced diverse sources (documents); moreover, the utilized sources themselves contain various forms. Our task now is to suggest the range of diverse materials, and to account, in a sketchy way, for their inclusion in the biblical documents.

The diversity of genres is so rich and the problem of distinguishing one from the other sometimes so complex, that only a general sampling can be undertaken here. Nonetheless, it may show both the disparity in the Bible's forms, and the importance of paying attention to them for understanding the text itself. One fundamental factor must be borne in mind—that much of the content of the Bible was handed down by word of mouth (technically called 'oral tradition') before it was written.

NARRATIVES. It is important to recognize that there are different narrative genres within the biblical books, for they arose in different social settings and served different purposes. Histories, because they attempt to reconstruct the past on the basis of the best information available, are more reliable documents for the modern historian than, for example, fables. And impersonal records or reports are more reliable still.

The Old Testament document which most closely approximates history in the modern sense is not the longer popular or salvation histories mentioned above, but the court history of David (2 Sam. chs. 9–20; 1 Kgs. chs. 1–2). Its writer had access to excellent sources, he reconstructed a segment of the past into a meaningful account, and he interpreted the events in terms of cause and effect. The sense of divine providence and activity is here implicit rather than explicit, as it is in the Book of Judges.

A great many of the individual narratives in the Bible are stories; as noted earlier, they generate interest by arousing tension and releasing it. Most stories in the Old Testament—such as those of the patriarchs in Genesis—are folktales; that is, they use motifs, patterns, and techniques supplied by the oral tradition. Stories serve many different purposes: to amuse, to teach, to enlighten, or to present the most profound theological affirmations. If a story is primarily concerned with the wonderful and aimed at edification, it is a legend (though a legend need not take the form of a story; it may be a simple report). Legends ordinarily deal with holy men, holy places, or religious ceremonies. They speak of the miraculous and the awesome. But the legends of Elisha, for example, do not mean to boast of the prophet's power as such, but to bear witness to the power of Israel's God made visible through him. Very often legends or other stories of sacred places or religious ceremonies are etiological, that is, they explain the sacredness of the place or the importance of the ritual by an account of its origin. For example, the story of Jacob's dream at Bethel (Gen.28.10 ff.) is told—in part—to explain how the place was known to be holy, and how it got its name.

In the New Testament, and especially in the Gospels, many different traditional narrative genres are employed. Often the shape and content of these types are clues to their use in the oral tradition handed down by the earliest Christian communities. One genre is the pronouncement story or paradigm, a short, concise narrative which focuses upon a memorable saying of Jesus. The story provides the framework, the occasion, for the saying. Thus the story of the disciples eating grain on the Sabbath (Mk.2.23–28) is the framework for the saying, "The Sabbath was made for the sake of man, and not man for the Sabbath." Another kind is the miracle story, which concentrates either on Jesus himself (instead of on his sayings) or else on the other characters. Most of these stories tersely report the malady, the healing, and the onlookers' response of wonder. The Christian miracle stories are similar to those in Hellenistic culture generally, but unlike the latter, they seldom report the techniques of the miracle worker. The New Testament also contains narratives which are classed as legends because they express the church's esteem for the hero, such as the story of Peter's release from prison (Acts ch. 12) or the accounts of Jesus' temptations.

PROPHETIC GENRES. In understanding prophetic literature, the reader's first step, as noted above, must be an effort to distinguish the individual units from one another. The meaning of individual lines depends in large measure on the context to which they belong, including the limits of the unit of which they are a part. (The chapter and verse divisions are misleading as often as they are helpful; anyway they date from medieval times.) In distinguishing one unit from another, the reader should be aware of the formulas and genres of prophetic literature, their typical structures, and intentions. Certain formulas, for example, indicate quite clearly the beginning of speeches. Among these are the call to attention, "Listen to these words . . .," and the expression, "The word of the Lord came to me . . ."

We have noted that generally speaking the prophetic books contain speeches, narratives, and a few prayers, but in order to recognize the units and interpret them we must be more specific. The range of types of speech found in prophetic utterance is wide; the prophets employed virtually every possible form of verbal communication known in their culture. While the freedom with which they borrowed and adapted from all spheres of life has led some to doubt that there is a distinctively prophetic form of speech, it is preferable to recognize that there are some genres which are particularly and intimately related to the prophetic role. The frequent recurrence of the messenger formula, "thus says the LORD," and the fact that the prophets speak for the LORD, often quoting him directly, have led many scholars in recent years to characterize prophetic address as messenger speech. Whether "messenger speech" or simply "prophecy" is the most apt description of the prophetic addresses, it is clear that these men regarded themselves as the LORD's spokesmen, both revealing and setting into motion his future activities.

One of the genres most frequently encountered in the preexilic prophets is the prophecy of punishment (or prophetic "judgment speech"). This type has two main elements, a statement of reasons for punishment (or accusation) and the announcement of punishment (or judgment), bound together by a transition which emphasizes that the latter is the result of the former. Such speeches were addressed to individuals, to groups, or to the nation as a whole. On the other hand, in later prophets such as Deutero-Isaiah and in the additions to the pre-exilic books, prophecies of salvation predominate. In these addresses the prophets announce the LORD's intervention on behalf of Israel, usually without giving reasons.

Other genres closely related to the prophetic office itself are reports of visions, reports of God's call of the prophet, and reports of symbolic actions. Vision reports range from the brief accounts in Amos to the lengthy and detailed descriptions in Ezekiel which often approach the imagery of apocalyptic literature, but they ordinarily include an account of what was seen and an interpretation of its meaning. The "call reports" are not presented in order to give autobiographical information, but rather to authenticate the prophet and his message. So, too, the symbolic action stories are not biographical or autobiographical, but means of communicating the prophetic word.

The prophet's freedom to employ forms of speech from all spheres of Israelite life seems unlimited, but when such genres were used they usually were modified. When Amos sings a dirge, for example, it has become an announcement of punishment: "She has fallen to rise no more, the virgin Israel, prostrate on her own soil, with no one to lift her up" (Amos 5.2). Proverbs, parables, and other forms of speech associated with Wisdom literature are employed freely. And though the prophets should not be viewed primarily as preachers of repentance, but as proclaimers of God's future, they often instruct, admonish, exhort, and warn their hearers. Further, the image of the prophets as consistent opponents of the cult is tempered when we recognize their frequent use of cultic genres. Second Isaiah (chs. 40–55), for example, often speaks in the words of the "salvation oracle," a genre similar to the Old Testament priestly absolutions. Often, of course, the prophets employ cultic expressions to criticize the cult, as when Amos (4.4) uses a call to worship ironically. And frequently we recognize that the prophets are speaking in juridical terms, either in allusions to Israel's laws or in using expressions and motifs from the legal procedure.

LEGAL GENRES. Since the time of the Apostle Paul, Christians often have thought of the Old Testament, in whole or in part, as "the law." This impression stems in large measure from the Greek title of the first part of the Jewish canon, the Torah, which Greek Jews translated "law." But to characterize the Torah (the Pentateuch) as "law" obscures as much as it reveals. We have already observed that the first five books of the Bible are narratives, not law books. But a considerable body of legal material is presented within that narrative framework, either as the report of what was revealed at Sinai or—in Deuteronomy—as part of the report of the last will and testament of Moses.

In fact, none of the books of the Bible can be accurately described as a law book. What we do find, however, are legal codes of different kinds. It seems clear that most of these codes had been organized and handed down in the context of juridical and cultic activity long before they were placed in their present literary contexts. Some of these codes are quite short; they are the collections of ten or twelve laws found in Exodus chs. 20 and 34, and Deuteronomy ch. 5. Other codes are "the book of the covenant" (Exodus chs. 21–23), containing laws mainly concerned with what we would call civil and criminal matters; the Holiness Code (Leviticus chs. 17–26), which is not so much a code as sermons on law. (In view of its expansive literary character it is doubtful that we should call the large body of instructions in the Priestly document—Exodus ch. 25–Numbers ch. 10—a law code.) The old Testament law codes are similar in many ways to their Ancient Near Eastern predecessors: all are collections which tend to organize laws loosely on the basis of content and form; all are the results of many centuries of growth; and there are some distinct similarities of form and content.

In recent scholarship the individual laws in the Old Testament have been classified into two categories. The first is casuistic or case law. These laws closely parallel those in the Ancient Near Eastern codes both in form and content. Each has two main parts, a conditional clause describing a case and a conclusion specifying the penalty: "When [or if] a man steals an ox or a sheep and slaughters or sells it, he shall repay five beasts for the ox and four sheep for the sheep" (Exod.22.1). Such laws must have been related to the everyday practice of law. The second genre has been called apodictic, absolute commands or prohibitions which require no accompanying argumentation since they are taken to be expressions of the will of God. As the Ten Commandments reveal, their content is not limited to specifically religious or cultic affairs, but include social relationships. Whatever the origin of these different genres may have been, eventually all of Israel's laws were associated with Moses and the covenant at Sinai.

In addition to laws, the Old Testament contains a considerable body of material from the judicial process itself. This material is in the form of reports of legal proceedings, allusions to the practice of law in court and cult, and judicial genres and formulas employed in different contexts, such as prophetic speeches. Viewing this data as a whole gives us a picture of the formalities of the trial, of the way contracts were formalized, of the way priests instructed the laity concerning the interpretation or application of cultic laws, and of how law was related to the life of Israel.

WISDOM AND INSTRUCTION. The proverb is one of the most widely known forms of expression and its original oral character is beyond dispute. Proverbs are found in many parts of the Bible apart from the book bearing the name. Proverbs are folk wisdom distilled into pithy, memorable sayings. In isolation, a proverb expresses a general insight (e.g. "haste makes waste"); inevitably one can think of exceptions or of other proverbs which express an apparently conflicting insight. Thus, proverbs must not be treated as first principles but rather as practical wisdom gained from experience. In contrast with divine oracles and apocalyptic visions, proverbs themselves do not claim to be revealed knowledge but distilled human insight. Their specific meaning depends almost entirely on the context in which they are used.

Biblical proverbs or wisdom sayings have many forms. Some are simple declarative statements, such as, "Where the corpse is, there the vultures will gather" (Lk.17.37). More common is the doublet in which the second half contrasts with the first, as in, "A simple man believes every word he hears; a clever man understands the need for proof" (Prov.14.15). Others are structured according to the principle of synonymous parallelism, as in, "Experience uses few words; discernment keeps a cool head" (Prov.17.27). Sometimes a proverb is put in the form of a comparison, as, "Better sit humbly with those in need than divide the spoil with the proud" (Prov.16.19).

Because proverbs express wisdom, it is natural that in the Book of Proverbs wisdom itself is extolled, and even spoken of as if she (the word "wisdom" is feminine) were a person. Furthermore, the proverbs are then regarded as the counsel of wisdom: "My son, keep my words, store up my commands in your mind" (Prov.7.1). Wisdom can also tell a story (in poetic form), as occurs in Proverbs ch. 7 and especially in Ecclesiasticus. In the Wisdom of Solomon wisdom guides the history of Israel. Wisdom materials were originally secular; however, there developed the view that human wisdom is derived from divine Wisdom. Indeed, divine Wisdom—especially when personified—came to be regarded as the self-manifestation of God; inevitably, the sages came to regard both the Wisdom tradition and the Torah as revealed.

Wisdom materials are found in various biblical literature, especially in the Synoptic Gospels. Often proverbs have been expanded to make the meaning explicit, as in the case of "No servant can be the slave of two masters," to which has been added, "for either he will hate the first and love the second, or he will be devoted to the first and think nothing of the second. You cannot serve God and Money” (Mt.6.24). On the other hand, proverbs have also been added to teachings to provide a broader application. Thus, some form of “By gaining his life a man will lose it; by losing his life for my sake, he will gain it” (Mt.10.39), is added to various sayings of Jesus (Mt.16.25; Lk.17.33). Wisdom materials need to be read on two levels: the inherent meaning of the original material (usually discerned by noting the balanced structure of the phrases and ideas), and the specific meaning which the material receives from its present context.

The most famous genre associated with Jesus is the parable. He did not invent the parable form, of course, but developed it from the parabolic tradition of Judaism in the Old Testament. What we normally call a parable is distinguished from a metaphor and a simile in that it has a rudimentary plot. “You vipers’ brood” is a metaphor; “becoming like a child” is a simile. The parable, on the other hand, is a brief narrative whose plot implies an analogy between the story and another situation or dimension of reality. Because the point is not on the surface, so to speak, the parable demands insight and appropriation, and its point can be missed. What the New Testament calls “parable” translates a Hebrew term (mashal) which can refer to a variety of forms, such as the riddle and epigram. Thus Jesus’ saying, “Nothing that goes into a man from outside can defile him; no, it is the things that come out of him that defile a man” (Mk.7.15), is called a “parable” because like the word mashal, it means “epigram.”

It is customary to distinguish parables from allegories, though a mashal can also be an allegory. In an allegory, each item in the story stands for something else, so that one can “decode” the story into its true religious or theological meaning. For example, in the noncanonical Book of Enoch, the story of Israel is told as the history of sheep who endure all sorts of bad experiences from wolves, bears, etc. The reader quickly translates the story by equating Israel with the sheep and the series of enemies with the marauding animals. It is generally believed that Jesus himself used parables but not allegories, but that the parables were later allegorized by the church. Thus, the parable of the abundant harvest (Mk.4.3–8) was allegorized into the story of various kinds of soils (Mk.4.14–20). This is a clear case where sensitivity to literary forms enables the reader to distinguish layers of tradition.

There are sermons in the Bible, but we must not confuse the New Testament “sermon” with what comes to mind when we use the term today. Rather, the biblical sermon generally was an extended religious discourse. Also, largely because the preaching of both Jesus and the earliest church was anchored in synagogue preaching, which was as much instruction as it was proclamation, it is difficult to distinguish New Testament preaching from teaching. That synagogue preaching in turn doubtless was rooted in Old Testament instructional preaching, is best represented by the addresses exhorting obedience in Deuteronomy and the prose speeches in the Book of Jeremiah. In any case, even though Christianity spread by preaching, and even though Jesus is reported to have preached in the synagogue, the New Testament contains no transcripts of any sermon. It does, however, include a number of discourses which have been called “sermons.” On the one hand, the sermons of Jesus, including the Sermon on the Mount, are not real discourses but collections of sayings, clustered around certain themes. On the other hand, the speeches in Acts are not real sermons either but discourses composed by the author and placed at key points in the narrative in accord with the Hellenistic practice of having key figures say what the writer believed was important to have said at that point. This does not rule out the likelihood that the author used old traditions in composing these speeches. Interestingly, the New Testament possibly contains parts of sermons elsewhere; for example, it has sometimes been suggested that 1 Peter is basically a baptismal sermon, or a part of one, which has been given the appearance of a letter.

PRAYERS, HYMNS, AND RITUALS. Many biblical passages are prayers—words addressed to God. However, it is sometimes difficult to distinguish a prayer from a hymn because frequently both appear as poetry and are addressed to God. Hymns were presumably sung or chanted, probably by choirs, whereas prayers were spoken. While the Old Testament Psalms enshrine the hymns of the Temple at various stages of its life, there is no comparable Christian collection in the New Testament.

The rich cultic life of ancient Israel gave rise to a great many different types of song and prayer, preserved for the most part in the Book of Psalms (see above, “Poetic books”). These types usually reflect use in various liturgies, though the festival occasions themselves are not named. Approximately one third of the psalms are songs of individual complaints (frequently called “Laments”), in which the sufferer petitions God for relief and deliverance. On the basis of the structure of such songs—in particular, changes in speaker—and allusions to worship, it has been suggested recently that the individual complaints were used in prayer services for persons in distress. Similar are songs of communal complaint (see Introduction to the Psalms). Closely related to these types are the songs of individual and communal thanksgiving, which were employed in celebrations of deliverance from particular difficulties. We also recognize a great many hymns of praise, which were associated primarily with the regularly scheduled services of worship. The hymns characteristically call to praise, expound the reasons for praising God in terms of his acts or his nature, and conclude with the renewed summons to praise (see Psalm 113). The so-called “Enthronement Psalms” (e.g. Psalms 29–47, 93, 95–99) may have been developed for a New Year’s festival when God’s kingship was celebrated; these songs are characterized by the acclamation, “The LORD reigns!” There are also “Royal Psalms” which celebrate the king as the regent of God (e.g. Psalms 2, 20, 21, 45).

The variety of hymns and prayerlike poetry collected in the psalter is found in many other places in the Old Testament as well. For example, in Exodus ch. 15 we have two celebrations of the deliverance at the sea, a very old couplet in v. 21 (the Song of Miriam), and a more elaborate younger one in vv. 1–18. 2 Samuel 1.19–27 is the lament of David over the death of Saul and Jonathan, while 2 Samuel ch. 22 (virtually identical with Psalm 18) contains a victory song.

In the New Testament, hymnic materials are of three kinds: the messianic hymns, the christological hymns, and hymns of the eschatological victory. In Luke chs. 1 and 2 the evangelist used messianic hymns inherited from certain Jewish circles to express the hope for the coming redemption. There are three passages which appear to be christological hymns. Embedded in the prologue of John (1.1–18) is an earlier hymn to the Word, the Creator; Phil.2.5–11 celebrates the humiliation of the preexistent Christ and his subsequent exaltation; Col.1.15–20 celebrates the relation of the preexistent Christ to the cosmos. Fragments of hymns (or possibly confessional pieces) appear also in Eph.5.14 and 1 Tim.3.16. At key points in the Book of Revelation, the reader is apprised of hymns of deliverance being sung in heaven; these are usually considered to reflect the hymnody of the churches of Asia Minor.

In addition to poetic pieces used in ritual and liturgy, the Bible also contains narratives which were used in worship before they were included in the biblical text. By means of these narrative materials, the community recited fundamental events of its history and thereby celebrated its relation to God. Many scholars have seen in Joshua ch. 24 and other Old Testament texts the outlines of a covenant renewal ceremony by which the Israelite tribes recalled the Exodus and pledged their common fealty to God. These texts are for the most part narratives, but they mention either directly or indirectly the liturgical acts involved. Many of the steps in the liturgy of covenant renewal closely paralleled the points in Ancient Near Eastern treaties.

In the New Testament, the accounts of the Lord's Supper (Mt.26.17–29; Mk.14.12–24; Lk.22.7–38; 1 Cor.11.23–25) differ from one another because they reflect the actual usages of the churches; but they all center in the words of Jesus concerning the bread and the wine. None of these accounts is as liturgically complete as the account of the first Passover in Exodus ch. 12. Although the Book of Esther is traditionally associated with the Festival of Purim, the story itself does not refer explicitly to the festival. The books of Maccabees report the events that led up to the rededication of the Temple, celebrated as Hanukkah, but there are no clear Hanukkah observance materials in the Bible, just as there are no observances linked with Pentecost. Centuries later, Christians associated both the stories of Jesus' wine miracle at Cana and the coming of the Magi with January 6 (Epiphany), but, of course, this belongs to the history of the interpretation of the Bible. These stories did not originate in connection with Epiphany.

This introduction to the literary types of the Bible has, of necessity, been more illustrative than exhaustive. Many important forms of literary and oral expression have not been mentioned. But this basically literary approach, in addition to providing a description of some of the types of biblical literature, serves the serious reader of the Bible in several ways. In the first place, it opens up the historical depth of the biblical material. The Bible is a historical book not merely because it is preoccupied with history, but because its contents also have a history. This literary history of the materials has been recovered in large part because scholars have analyzed the individual literary genres and related these to the life of the communities in which they were used. In many cases we are able to reconstruct the history of the transmission of sayings and stories up to the way the text now reads. What emerges from such careful exploratory work is a keen appreciation of the fact that the Bible is the literary deposit of living tradition which reflects the beliefs and practices of real Israelite, Jewish, and Christian communities. So instead of reading the text in a "flat" way, simply for plot or for bare content, we can now recognize the texture of the matter, perceive its layers, and know how the material functioned in various stages. Second, the concern with genres of literary and oral expression enables the reader to relate the stages of a text to the life of the communities which originated, used, and preserved it. Often particular genres can be located within certain social contexts, such as the worship in the Temple, the practice of law, or the missionary activity of the early church. In the process we see that behind each text stand not primarily creative writers—though there were such—but communities of faith, for which certain genres and particular texts served very important purposes. Finally, this kind of study can facilitate fruitful dialogues with the texts themselves. Posing these literary questions—What kind of text is it? Where did it come from? How was it used?—enables the texts to speak to us, and not simply to reflect our own expectations of them. By looking at the Bible in this way our appreciation and understanding of it should be both broadened and deepened.

A SKETCH OF THE HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHY OF THE LANDS OF THE BIBLE

In the centuries before and after Abraham, the mountains and hills and the valleys and plains of the Ancient Near East have remained relatively constant, as have the climate and the weather patterns. A few modifications have taken place: the soil of Sumer has become saline; modern Israel has planted palm trees in the Negeb around Beersheba; and Israeli engineers have dried up the swamps of Lake Huleh. Nevertheless, through all the convulsions of the last five thousand years in the countries of the Ancient East, the lands of the Bible have stood firm.

The Near Eastern centers of civilization in the period before Abraham were Egypt and Mesopotamia; the cities of Memphis and Babylon were the London and New York of the Ancient Near East. The backbone of these two lands was their rivers, along which cities grew up and nations were engendered. The river Nile made Egypt; the Tigris and Euphrates rivers produced Sumer, Babylonia, and Assyria. Without the rivers, and the flat plains sheathing them, these nations could not have been born. Long before Israel had been even conceived, civilizations of enduring accomplishments had flourished and fallen. To these cultural centers of Egypt and Mesopotamia we owe the invention of writing and the beginnings of many of the literary, political, military, engineering, and astronomical arts we take for granted today.

In the third millennium B.C.E. (before the common era) while the Nile land and the land between the Tigris and Euphrates were prospering, Canaan was hardly more than a "place in the road" between the big cities. It was a narrow strip of land along the eastern end of the Mediterranean Sea which joined Egypt with the land of Mitanni, later Syria. Prior to the second millennium this land, dotted with settlements called city-states, was not yet called Canaan; it was not unified, and it was not under the rule of any one country, although Egypt considered it in her sphere of influence.

The southern part of Canaan, later called Palestine, also had a river, the Jordan, for its spine. However, the very deep riverbed of the Jordan, with lofty plateaus to the east and high mountains to the west, made it of little use for agricultural purposes. The Jordan did not annually inundate broad alluvial plains as did the Nile, but large annual rainfall in Canaan, west of the mountains and north of Jerusalem, did make it a land flowing with milk and honey, especially for its neighbors who dwelt in the southern deserts of Negeb and Sinai and in the deserts east of Edom, Moab, and Ammon. Since Canaan was the connecting link between Mesopotamia and Egypt, it became a well-traveled country. A fertile land of hills and valleys, Canaan was destined to be coveted by the homeless, the hungry, and the ambitious conqueror.

ABRAHAM AND THE PATRIARCHS

In the latter part of the E.B. (Early Bronze Age) and through the M.B. (Middle Bronze Age, migrations of people were not uncommon in the Near East. At the end of the E.B. period a group of "westerners," the Amorites, took over the city-states of Mesopotamia as well as the city-states of Canaan. These Bedouin-type peoples may have come originally from the Syrian desert. Archaeological excavations and literary sources indicate that their penetration into the Canaanite cities was not always peaceful. Others besides the Amorites were probably moving into Canaan at this time also. It is easy to understand how Abraham could have migrated to Palestine from Mesopotamia, for history establishes such migrations as the order of the day in the late E.B. and throughout the M.B. periods.

The Bible connects Abraham with Ur and Charran (or Haran), two cultural and economic centers of Mesopotamia in the M.B. Both cities were under the patronage of the moon god, Sin. It has been shown repeatedly that Abraham's story and the other patriarchal narratives in Genesis reflect well the life and times of the M.B. in Palestine. The journey of Abraham from Ur to Palestine has been interpreted as the case of a man following a dream—the dream of a cult and culture free of capricious gods and stifling materialism (e.g. Speiser in AB Genesis). The biblical author with his simple faith says, "So Abram set out as the LORD had bidden him" (Gen.12.4). The wanderings of Abram led him down the length of Palestine from Shechem to the Negeb, into Egypt and back to Hebron where he settled at Mamre. The other patriarchal narratives are played out on a stage similar but wider. The stories of Isaac and Jacob require the addition of Transjordan to the stage.

In the last half of the M.B. (1900–1550 B.C.) new waves of people poured into Palestine. From the North came groups of diverse background—Hurrian, Semitic, Indo-Aryan—who flooded into many of the cities of Palestine, moved on, and left behind destroyed towns. Known to the Egyptians as "rulers of foreign countries" (called the Hyksos), this heterogeneous crowd poured into Egypt after their destruction of Canaanite cities. Part of the Hyksos success was due to their use of a new strategic weapon, the lightweight horse-drawn chariot. This weapon, of only limited value in mountainous country, was on the flat lands of Canaan and Egypt, a most formidable military tool in the first half of the second millennium. Between 1750–1550 B.C. the Hyksos played a dominant role in Egyptian affairs. They succeeded in setting up the ruling Fifteenth Dynasty and established as their capital, Avaris (which is possibly Zoan–Tanis). The entrance of Joseph and his brothers into Egypt is frequently associated with this south-westerly sweep of Semites, Hurrians, and Indo-Aryans who composed the Hyksos multitude. In Egypt the ancestors of the Israelites increased and multiplied and filled the land of Goshen until Pharaoh was frightened by the population explosion of the Hebrews. Accordingly, the Pharaohs made slaves of these fertile Semites. With their labor, building projects were undertaken and cities constructed. Some of the Semite slaves undoubtedly belonged to a class of people called Hap/biru, which name has recurrently been considered to be related etymologically to the word "Hebrew."

THE EXODUS

From slavery in Egypt the Hebrews were liberated, probably in the reign of Ramesses II (1290–1224 B.C.). The Bible gives the belief of ancient Israel that this liberation was accomplished by the power of God who used Moses and Aaron as his spokesmen, and nature as his instrument. To tell what actually happened at the Exodus through the Reed Sea (not Red Sea as is found in the Greek text), is impossible for the historian, just as it is impossible for the geographer to locate with certainty the Reed Sea. The usual localizations of the sea are at the southern tip of Lake Menzaleh or in the vicinity of the Bitter Lakes. The data in the Old Testament on the route of the Exodus presents difficulties and irreconcilable conflicts. This much is certain, that by 1220 B.C. there was a people called "Israel" that had either escaped or had been expelled from Egypt. Lending credence to this conviction are these words on the Merneptah Stele (line 55): "Israel is laid waste; his seed is not."

These fugitives from Egypt, ancestors of the Israelites, had certain experiences in the desert of Sinai which determined all later history of Israel. At Mount Sinai (the exact location is uncertain) God revealed himself to this group and made known his will for them through Moses. Historians cannot determine what events were acts of God; they can, however, determine what a people believed about certain events. Israel believed, and her historians asserted, that God had made a "treaty" with them at Mount Sinai and that, like all treaties, it bound Israel to definite obligations toward God and neighbor. This treaty (in biblical language, covenant) was associated with Sinai in Israelite tradition. Whether the "treaty format" can be found in Exodus chs. 19–24; or whether the conceptualization of God's relationship to Israel as a covenant partner in the twelfth century B.C. is reliable or anachronistic; or, just when the notion of covenant became widespread in Israel, are matters of warm scholarly debate. Regardless of the answers to these questions, however, this can be said: some of the oldest records of Israel (e.g. Judges ch. 5 and Exodus ch. 15) do speak of one God, the LORD, Yahweh, as active in the nation's history.

After a generation of roaming in the desert the Israelite rebels entered the land of Canaan. The biblical narrative speaks of the entrance into Canaan as coming from Transjordan because Moses and his followers had been unsuccessful in their attempted entry from the South. Detoured from this southern penetration at Arad the Israelites traveled either the highlands of Edom and Moab, or else the deserts east of Edom and Moab, to arrive at the plains of Moab, just east of Jericho. According to biblical tradition Moses died at Mount Nebo at this time, and was succeeded by Joshua who led the children of Israel into the land of promise.

OCCUPATION OF THE LAND

The Book of Joshua gives the clear impression that the Israelites captured Canaan by quick military conquest. Careful historical study suggests, rather, that the sons of Israel first moved, more or less peacefully, into the mountainous regions in central Palestine and then gradually spread throughout the land. The slow infiltration led to a gradual assimilation of Canaanite culture, and a consequent transformation of the religious and political practices of the Canaanites to conform with their own faith. Rather than a war of conquest, there were limited battles, local engagements, incidental to the slow settlement of the Israelites in the land.

Moreover, insights gained from archaeological excavations (especially at Jericho, Gibeon, and Shechem) have helped us understand the biblical narrative of the conquest as a kind of epic. Some of the pre-Israelite inhabitants of Canaan may have been ethnically related to the incoming Hebrews. It is possible that a flight from slavery in Egypt to freedom in Canaan had been made by many Semite serfs even before the time of Moses. Perhaps the Hebrews who entered Canaan under Joshua received a welcome on reunion with relatives already in the land; the peaceful occupation of Shechem by the forces of Joshua seems to hint that such was the case (compare Josh.8.30–35).

Particular sections within Canaan resisted Hebrew capture; these were the five principal Philistine cities: Gaza, Gath, Ashkelon, Ashdod, Ekron. At the beginning of the Iron Age (1200 B.C.) the Philistines had settled on the Canaanite coast around Gaza. This people is part of a larger group referred to as “the Sea Peoples” whose place of origin is unknown, though Crete is often suggested. The introduction of iron into the Canaanite economy was due to these Philistines and because of their greater technology in weaponry and toolmaking they were a perennial threat to the Israelites until their power was broken by David. They gave their name to the land, Philistia–Palestine.

From the death of Joshua to the time of the first king, Saul, was a period of about 200 years (1200–1020 B.C.). During this time of Israelite consolidation in Canaan the tribes of Israel were ruled by “judges.” Such judges were charismatic leaders, designated to command the people in time of military need. The political organization of Israel in this period was based on a religious unity expressed both by the maintenance of a commonly recognized shrine (e.g. Shiloh), and by a sociological unity expressed by acknowledged membership in a tribe. The historical antecedents of the twelve tribes are clouded in uncertainty, but whatever be their origins, they formed the federation of Israel and the tribal organization persisted until replaced by a new form of government, monarchy. The land claims of the twelve tribes of Israel are extremely complex; modern interpretations of both their historical and geographic values are disparate.

RISE OF THE MONARCHY

The Book of Judges closes with the complaint, “In those days there was no king in Israel and every man did what was right in his own eyes.” Hebrews, like the author of this verse, wanted a monarchy; others passionately resisted kingship in Israel. Nevertheless, with the designation of Saul as king by the popular Samuel, as commanded by God (see 1 Sam.9.15–16), a monarchy came to Israel.

Kingship is an old institution in the Near East where it originated at the beginning of the third millennium from the need for a war leader. To the Hebrews of the eleventh century the charismatic “judges” did not seem adequate for maintaining security; a permanent leader was needed. In the face of hostile pressure from the Philistines and a need for law and order, Israel adopted a monarchical form of government. Even after the adoption of a monarchy, however, the king, in Israel, needed divine approval mediated by a prophet.

The greatest of the kings in Israelite history and tradition was David. Widespread tales depicted his rise from shepherd to warrior and giant-killer, from musician and poet to king. Included in David's biography are his attempted assassination by Saul, his leadership of guerrillas in the Judean desert, his recognition first by two southern tribes as king, and then by the northern tribes, thus becoming king of all Israel.

David extended the boundaries of Israel farther than did Saul or subsequent kings. Longitudinally the boundaries were thought of as from Dan in the North to Beersheba in the South, 150 miles as the crow flies; David's territory exceeded this. Also, by subjugating all of Transjordan from Aram to Edom he more than doubled the width of his kingdom. (From the Sea of Galilee to the coast is 30 miles, from the northern tip of the Dead Sea to the coast is 50.)

Acceptance as king by both the North and the South required David to exhibit fairness to both. As a sign of belonging to both, yet owned by neither, David chose as his capital a non-Israelite town, Jerusalem, on the common border. It then became the chief political city of Judah, David's city, and after the Temple was built by David's son, Solomon, it became also the religious center of the united kingdom of all Israel.

Solomon reorganized the nation so that the remnants of the tribal federation were repressed. Through his successful political machinations and economic adventures peace and prosperity prevailed under him. Yet his was a despotic rule. High taxation and the limitation of individual liberty through forced labor were so characteristic of Solomon's reign that the division of the nation into two kingdoms after his death came readily. Despite the influence of the new Temple in Jerusalem, it could not counterbalance the revulsion away from the tyrannical ways of foreign kings.

THE DIVIDED KINGDOM

Solomon was succeeded by Rehoboam, against whom the northern tribes rebelled, with the leader, Jeroboam, becoming their king. The border tribe Benjamin joined Judah in loyalty to Rehoboam, while the other tribes and the Transjordan lands were loyal to the North. Judah was, accordingly, much smaller and more homogeneous than the Northern Kingdom; perhaps that is why throughout the history of Judah only one dynasty, David's, ruled, while in Israel to the North no dynasty survived longer than three generations. Assassination ended the lives of numerous kings of the North, for coups d'état were sporadic.

As the Arameans (Syrians), led especially by Damascus, became strong, Israel had to concern herself with defense against attacks from her northern neighbors. This particular threat to Israel was removed by the rising power of the neo-Assyrian Empire which became the master of satellite states in the neighborhood of Palestine after the battle of Qarqar in 853 B.C.

The most prestigious royal line in Israel was that of Omri. For this reason the nation Israel in contemporary extrabiblical documents is called "the house of Omri." This dynasty (878–858 B.C.) selected Samaria as its capital. Religious centers were erected, at Dan in the northern edge, and Bethel in the southern extreme. The leaders of the North hoped that these two shrines would satisfy the religious needs of the Israelites, and obviate pilgrimage to Jerusalem, the capital of the South, and a reminder of the earlier national unity.

A number of charismatic individuals, known as prophets, appeared in Palestine. At times ecstatic, frequently antimonarchical, sometimes living in communities but more often loners, occasionally employed at a temple but most often anticlitic, the prophets spoke the word of Yahweh to their contemporaries, often in judgment and condemnation.

From the early ninth century, Assyrian domination spread in the Near East. At the battle of Qarqar the Assyrians defeated a coalition of Syrian and Palestinian armies. Thereafter, Assyria was a constant bridle on the independence of Israel, Judah, and the Arameans. For the next century city-states of the region attempted to free themselves from the Mesopotamian net. When, about 734 B.C., Damascus and Israel failed to persuade Judah to unite with them in a revolt against Assyrian rule, the two allied states resorted to pressure on the South for its participation. King Ahaz of Judah, frightened by these forceful neighbors, called for help to Tiglath-pileser III of Assyria. This monarch, named Pul in the Bible, marched westward in response, and this campaign was the beginning of the end for Israel (732 B.C.). Pul divided Syria into five provinces, each subject to an Assyrian governor, while the upper part of Israel became the Assyrian provinces of Dor, Megiddo, and Gilead. After the disasters of 732 B.C., Israel suicidally continued to seek liberation by political as well as by military means. Such machinations, however, so provoked Assyria that Shalmaneser V besieged Samaria in 724 B.C. Two years later Shalmaneser's general and successor, Sargon II, devastated stubborn Samaria. Thousands of Israel's citizens were deported to the east, and Israel ceased to exist as an independent state. After 722 B.C. biblical history is the story of Judah.

From Qarqar (853 B.C.) to the battle of Carchemish (605 B.C.), Assyria dominated the Near East. In the year 612, the Babylonians and the Medes leveled Nineveh, the Assyrian capital.

From Samaria's collapse in 722 B.C. to the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 B.C., 135 years later, religious infidelity was, according to the Hebrew prophets, a constant phenomenon. The cultural assimilation of Yahwism to Canaanite fertility cults, the bending of Hebrew values to Mesopotamian and Canaanite ways of life, and the imitation of Egyptian and Assyrian methods of power politics were the grounds for the prophetic indictment of the nation. Occasional religious reformations, such as those under Hezekiah (about 705 B.C.) and Josiah (621 B.C.), did not last long, and the just punishment of God, said the prophets, must certainly come. When Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylonia, subjected Judah to his rule, and his general Nebuzaradan burned Jerusalem and dismantled her walls in 587 B.C., the oracles of doom spoken by the prophets were considered fulfilled. For many Judahites the razing of the Holy City occasioned the end of hope in their kings, their nation, and their God. The Babylonian victors exiled 4,600 Jews to the area around Nippur, with many in Jerusalem believing that finis had been written on the history of Israel.

EXILE AND RESTORATION

In war-torn Judah, sparsely populated and neglected, the rule by David's line ceased when the royal family was exiled to Babylon with the other deportees. Dwelling along the Chebar Canal in Babylonia, the transplanted Jews adapted to their new situation. A religion without Temple worship was developed; a rethinking of sacred and localized traditions, occasioned by enforced separation from Jerusalem, fostered a new understanding of old laws and produced insightful understanding of remembered prophetic sayings. Secretaries began to record old laws and new interpretations, oracles of deceased prophets, and sermons of living preachers. Out of the successively collected records of Israel's past and the writings of the scribes, the book we now know as the Bible began to take shape.

The Exile ended in 538 B.C. by decree of Cyrus the Great, king of the Persians, conqueror of Babylonia, and liberator of the Jews. Among the returnees to Judah (after 538 B.C.) were the prophets Haggai and Zechariah and the prince Sheshbazzar. They urged the Jewish community to rebuild the Temple, contending that renewed prosperity in the land depended on it. Yet the completion of the Temple in 515 B.C. did not fully satisfy, for the rebuilt structure seemed puny in comparison to Solomon's original.

Governor Nehemiah and Ezra, priest-scribe, came to Jerusalem from Babylon about the middle of the fifth century (but see Introduction to Ezra). In the religious chaos of that period both labored heroically to keep Jews faithful to God. Such efforts included a ban on mixed marriages. Nehemiah rebuilt the walls of Jerusalem, in spite of strong opposition from neighboring peoples like the Samaritans. The repatriated lived in the villages and cities located near Jerusalem. The settlement farthest from Jerusalem was less than thirty miles away. This clustering around Jerusalem reflects the insecurity of the Jews who had returned from Exile.

Palestinian sources from the time of Ezra–Nehemiah (450–390 B.C.) until the time of the Maccabees (168 B.C.) are so scarce that the fourth century in Judah is a dark age to us. From Greek sources much is known about the battles of Persians against Greeks at this time, and about the subsequent ascension to power of Alexander the Great, who subjected the entire Near East; many Hellenistic cities were developed in Palestine after Alexander crushed Gaza and Samaria in 332 B.C.

The motto of Alexander was "harmony"; hence, religious toleration and a modicum of political liberty were allowed in the conquered satrapies. When Alexander died at Babylon in 323 B.C., however, his generals began immediately to divide the empire which Alexander had formed. After the bickering and quibbling, one general, Seleucus, received Syria and Mesopotamia, while Egypt went to another, Ptolemy, son of Lagos. Palestine, in between the two, was disputed territory.

Though after the battle of Ipsus (301 B.C.) the Seleucidians were awarded Palestine, the Ptolemies of Egypt actually controlled the land until 198 B.C. when Antiochus III, after a victory at the battle of Paneas, drove the Egyptians from Palestine. Under the Ptolemies the Jews had enjoyed religious autonomy. Given the right to emigrate, a colony had settled in Alexandria and prospered there. To this Greek-speaking Jewish community we owe the Septuagint, the Greek Old Testament, the first part of which translation is often dated in 250 B.C.

In Judea, however, conditions under the Seleucids were disquieting. The monarchs had a chronic need for money, because of large indemnities due to lost wars. The extortion of money from subjects marked the reigns of Seleucus IV (187–175 B.C.) and Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–163 B.C.). Much of this income the Seleucids paid to Rome, which had newly become a force in the Near East. Rome, unhurriedly but firmly, annexed Seleucid possessions from the time of her first victory over the Greeks in Asia (Magnesia) in 190 B.C.; in 64 B.C. Pompey occupied Damascus and established the Roman province of Syria.

THE MACCABEES

From the Judean standpoint, the worst of the Seleucids was Antiochus IV Epiphanes. Not only a robber of temples, he was also a tyrant who encouraged religious persecution and fostered cultural domination by Hellenism. Proclaiming himself a manifestation of Zeus, he erected an altar to his patron deity in the Jerusalem Temple. Revolt erupted, led by the zealous Mattathias and his five sons. The Maccabees attracted the zealous faithful to their guerrilla army. Three years of resistance under the leadership of Judas, the son of Mattathias, climaxed when the Maccabees liberated Jerusalem. The Temple was then repaired and purified (in December 164 B.C.) and its reopening thereafter observed as the Feast of Hanukkah (rededication). The Maccabeans had founded a dynasty.

The struggle for freedom, first under Judas, next under his brother Jonathan, then under another brother, Simon, occupied the following three decades for the Jews. Accounts of alliances, intrigues, raids, and negotiations are recorded in 1 and 2 Maccabees. Not all Judeans agreed with the Maccabees' viewpoint. Some, for example, hospitable to Hellenistic culture, actively pursued it. At the other extreme the Hasidim (pious) neither wanted nor tolerated contact with Hellenism. The strict observance of the Law marked the Pharisees, a separatist group growing at this time, while the aristocratic and priestly Sadducees were receptive to the worldliness of the Greeks. On the fringes of Judean society, the Zealots wanted independence at any price; the Essenes chose to withdraw from normal living to the Qumran area of the wilderness. The multiplicity and diversity of socioeconomic, political, and religious viewpoints found in post-Maccabean Judaism urge that one be wary of facile, and hence false, simplifications of Judaism in the age of Jesus.

Rome, though present in the Near East after 198 B.C., did not frequently interject herself into Palestinian affairs during the reigns of the Maccabean monarchs. Busy with more dangerous enemies, and striving for richer spoils, Rome was not to be distracted by hinterland squabbles.

But irreconcilable conflicts among Jerusalem Jews occasioned the loss of Judean independence to the Romans. In 69 B.C., when the Jewish queen-mother, Salome Alexandra, died, her two sons vied for the throne. Civil war resulted. One son, Hyrcanus II, accepted the support of, or machinations by, the Herodian family; the other had the backing of the Sadducees and of "nationalists." Pompey, wanting the civil strife in Jerusalem stopped, dispatched a peace mission to Jerusalem. When it failed, Pompey himself came to the Holy City, stopped the fighting by force, installed Hyrcanus as high priest of the Temple, and annexed Palestine to the province of Syria. The Roman legate at Syria became the (official) ruler of Judea.

Upheavals in Rome such as those during the Catiline conspiracies, the assassination of Julius Caesar in 44 B.C., the rise of Augustus Caesar, and the love affair of Marc Antony with Cleopatra of Egypt all impinged on the Judean throne. Yet through all these tumultuous events, the family of Herod managed to retain the favor of those in power in Rome. This family, of Idumean extraction, was one of the most devious political families of antiquity. Accordingly, Herod the Great was named king of Judea by Augustus Caesar in 40 B.C., but actually began to reign three years later, and reigned until 4 B.C. A vassal of Rome, Herod was subject directly to the Emperor, rather than indirectly through the provincial governor of Syria. Herod used his direct access to Caesar with cunning, for Roman power and favor were the pillars of his kingdom. After his death, Caesar divided the territories, by now vastly increased, among Herod's three sons.

CHRISTIAN BEGINNINGS

Christianity began within Judaism. And, although a significant part of the Christian movement was oriented to the Gentile world by the mid-first century, its history is intricately related to the experience of Judaism for most of the first century. Jesus of Nazareth was, of course, a Palestinian Jew. Born shortly before the demise of Herod the Great in 4 B.C., Jesus died during the period when Pontius Pilate was the Roman governor of Judea (26-36 A.D.). Our knowledge of Jesus' career is almost wholly dependent on the canonical Gospels. From a modern perspective, the traditions about Jesus preserved in the Gospels are both too meager and insufficiently circumstantial to permit the writing of a biography; nothing is known of his childhood that contributes to the understanding of his "development"; a sequence which would allow us to trace the unfolding of his career cannot be wrested from the sources. The Gospels were composed completely from the viewpoint of faith and reflect that faith in every line. Nevertheless, behind the figure to whom faith testifies, there is a recognizable human subject: Jesus' career was that of an itinerant teacher; the center of his message was the dawning of the Kingdom of God; his career was marked by fraternal association with sinners, whom many righteous people considered beyond the pale but to whom he proclaimed God's forgiveness; he performed mighty works; he was apparently somewhat lax about Sabbath observance; his death by crucifixion can only mean that he was condemned as an enemy of the state by Roman authorities.

Shortly after his death some of his disciples had experiences which convinced them that Jesus had been raised from the dead and began to proclaim him as the Christ (Messiah). At first the movement remained within Judaism, distinguished by the belief that he was the Messiah, and by rites which included initiation by baptism and the sharing of a sacred meal. The impulse to share what these early disciples called the “good news” soon led to a mission beyond Palestine among non-Jews which resulted in the dramatic establishment of predominantly Gentile churches. By the middle of the first century the Gentile question (whether non-Jews could become Christian without submitting to circumcision and Jewish laws of purity) required a “Council” in Jerusalem, at which time Paul (himself a former Pharisee) was recognized as leader of the Gentile mission. The decision to admit Gentiles without requiring full compliance with Jewish legal requirements was adopted as a compromise but was in effect a victory of the Gentile mission. Nevertheless, the church continued to maintain its (doubtless strained) ties with Judaism, whose Scriptures (the Old Testament) it has shared over the centuries.

Through most of the first century, the story of the land of Palestine was one of restive Jewish submission to Roman domination. Living in a land covenanted to them by a God who intended their freedom, Palestinian Jews found foreign domination unnatural and eventually intolerable. In 66 A.D. the province revolted. The rebellion was suppressed in 70 A.D., when Jerusalem was taken by the Roman general Titus and the Temple was destroyed. A handful of Jews held on at the desert fortress, Masada, until it also fell in 73 A.D. During the conflict there was an exodus of Jews and Jewish Christians from Jerusalem.

The destruction of the Temple is a critical date for both Judaism and Christianity. After 70 A.D. the synagogue became the sole center of Jewish culture, as pharisaism-rabbinism attained full ascendancy in Jewish affairs. Before the end of the century, a normative list of sacred books (the Old Testament) was developed. Oral materials used in synagogue teaching began to be collected and recorded, eventuating in rabbinic literature.

In Christianity also, the period following 70 A.D. was a time of new development. The tension between synagogue and church increased and finally became a gap which separated the two, as the church became predominantly Gentile. There was a fresh outbreak of Christian literary activity—including the writing of the Gospels according to Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. Paul’s letters (originally written around 50 A.D.) were collected, copied, and circulated. Out of the literary activity of the last quarter of the first century, the New Testament began to emerge.

The tragedy of Judea was still not at an end. In 132 A.D. the Emperor Hadrian’s order that a new city, Aelia Capitolina, be built on the ruins of Jerusalem brought on the so-called second revolt. The leader of the Jewish insurgents was popularly known as Bar-Cochba (Son of a Star), a nickname which apparently was related to the expectation that he might be the Messiah and deliverer of Israel. After three bloody years, the Roman legions again subdued the land and Jerusalem was rebuilt as a monument to Hadrian. Jews were no longer allowed in the city.

But beyond the city and the land, both Jews and Christians lived out their chosen lives and planted in the Mediterranean world a seed that was integral to the flowering of subsequent Western civilization.

RECKONING TIME

CHRONOLOGY

The ancient world produced no universal system of chronology. Rather, the method by which the time of an event's occurrence was recorded varied from culture to culture. In Babylon and Assyria, for example, each year was named after a different public official, and the events of the year were identified with the eponym (i.e. the name of the person associated with that year). Lists of the sequence of such eponyms were preserved and used as a basis for reckoning the length of time between events in those countries.

Frequently, events were dated by reference to the reigning monarch's accession to the throne; for example, "In the fourth year of Solomon's reign" (1 Kgs.6.37); "in the fifteenth year of the Emperor Tiberius" (Lk.3.1). This was true in Babylon, Egypt, Assyria, and Palestine.

Only relatively late did the "era" come into use. In an era, time is reckoned from an important event or a given point. Thus, for a while the Exodus served as the point from which time was calculated by the Israelites (Exod.16.1; Num.9.1; 1 Kgs.6.1).

A non-Jewish era used for reckoning time in Jewish history was the so-called Seleucid, which began in 312 B.C. (1 Macc.1.10; 2 Macc.1.7; 11.21). It was named for Seleucus Nicator who founded the Seleucid Kingdom in Syria after the death of Alexander the Great and the division of his empire, the major part of which was acquired by Seleucus.

It was usual for Roman historians to date events ab urbe condita ("from the founding of the city" of Rome), this indicated by the letters A.U.C. That date is generally fixed in terms of the Christian era at 753 B.C. The Greeks reckoned time by Olympiads, which were the four-year periods between Olympic contests in athletics, poetry, and music; the first Olympiad began in 776 B.C.

The Christian era is now generally used to construct a universal chronology. It is measured from the birth of Christ and indicated by the letters B.C. (before Christ) and A.D. (anno Domini—in the year of our Lord—after Christ). Its use dates back to the sixth century A.D. when "Dennis the Short," a Roman monk, computed the birth of Christ to have occurred in 754 of the Roman era (A.U.C.). Dennis' computations, however, have been proved partly in error, so that the birth of Jesus is given by modern scholars about 6 B.C.

Today we can usually establish the dates of the reigns of kings of the Ancient Near East rather accurately in terms of the Christian era (that is, B.C. and A.D.) by correlating data concerning regnal years left by Babylon and Egypt, and by translating the results in terms of the chronology of Greece and Rome.

After the fifteenth century A.D., the Jewish community has normally used an older, sporadic chronology based on an era beginning with (the supposed date of) creation, which in Christian chronology would have been 3,761–3,760 B.C. This number was arrived at by computing such elements as the ages of the patriarchs and the length of the reigns of kings as given in the Bible. In both Jewish and some non-Jewish usage, B.C.E. (before the common era) supplants B.C. and A.C.E. (after the common era) supplants A.D.

Certain Hebrew dates differ among scholars; for example, the destruction of the Temple by the Babylonians is sometimes 587 B.C. and sometimes 586 B.C. The explanation for the disagreement is as follows: A year, e.g. 1925, in terms of the Western calendar, runs from January through December. Since the Hebrew calendar runs from fall to fall, the Hebrew equivalent of 1925 would in part be 5265 and in part 5266. Because of the lack of direct equivalence, some scholars have treated a Hebrew date so as to yield the year 586, while others have arrived at 587 for the same occasion. Either of these would be "correct," for there does not exist a uniform opinion among scholars. Indeed, some have sought to get around the lack of equivalence by a double date, e.g. 722/21 or 587/86.

THE HEBREW YEAR

The basic Hebrew year had twelve months, each determined by the moon. Since a moon's cycle consists of approximately twenty-nine and a half days, a Hebrew year would contain approximately three hundred and fifty-four days. A solar year, i.e. one determined by the annual revolution of the sun, consists of approximately three hundred and sixty-five and one quarter days. Since it is the solar year which determines the seasons with their agricultural activities (with which the Hebrew festivals of firstfruits and harvest were inseparably bound), periodically another month had to be added to take care of the difference between three hundred and fifty-four and three hundred and sixty-five days. At first the addition of this extra "leap year" month was done for practical reasons, i.e. when it was determined that in a given year the barley would not be ripe for harvest if Nisan, the first month, directly followed the previous twelfth month, Adar. The insertion of the additional month created a leap year of three hundred and eighty-three days. Later a more fixed calendar resulted in a cycle of nineteen years respecting leap years, with every third, sixth, eighth, fourteenth, seventeenth, and nineteenth being leap years.

There is evidence of varying Hebrew calendars; in general, however, the Hebrew religious year began in the spring with the month of Nisan, also called Abib (March–April; Exod.12.2, 18), while the civil year began with the seventh month, Tishri (September–October; Exod.23.16; 34.22; Lev.25.4).

THE MONTH

The Hebrew month began with the appearance of the new moon as determined by visual observation rather than by astronomical calculation. As mentioned above, the period of the moon's revolution requires twenty-nine and a half days; hence the length of the Hebrew lunar months could be either twenty-nine or thirty days.

The months could be indicated either by number or by name. Ancient Canaanite names for four months occur in the Bible: Abib, the first month (Exod.13.4; 23.15; 34.18; Deut.16.1); Ziv, the second (1 Kgs.6.1, 37); Ethanim,

Reckoning Time

the seventh (1 Kgs.8.2); Bul, the eighth (1 Kgs.6.38). After the Exile, Babylonian names as well as numbers were given to the lunar months; seven of the twelve names occur in the Bible: Nisan (alternate of Abib), the first month (Neh.2.1; Esther 3.7); Sivan, the third (Esther 8.9); Elul, the sixth (Neh.6.15); Kislev, the ninth (Neh.1.1; Zech.7.1); Tebeth, the tenth (Esther 2.16); Shebat, the eleventh (Zech.1.7); Adar, the twelfth (Ezra 6.15; Esther 3.7, 13; 8.12; 9.1, 15, 17, 19, 21).

Since the new moon marked the beginning of a natural division of time, it was observed as a holy day with joy and feasting (1 Sam.20.5); trumpets were blown (Ps.81.3); ordinary work was prohibited (Amos 8.5); additional sacrifices were offered (Num.28.11–14).

THE WEEK

The Hebrew week consisted of seven days, the only one called by a name being the Sabbath (Mt.28.1); the others were indicated by numbers, e.g. first day. Nothing similar to the institution of the Sabbath existed in Babylon or Egypt. The Sabbath was probably observed even before Sinai (Exod.16.23). Thereafter its observance came to be considered a sign of God's covenant with Israel (Exod.31.12–13).

THE DAY

Presumably because of the lunar orientation of the calendar, the Hebrews reckoned a day as beginning at sunset and lasting until the following sunset (Gen.1.5; Exod.12.18). Originally the night was divided into three watches (Judg.7.19: "middle watch") and the daylight into three equal parts: morning, noon, and evening (Ps.55.17; Dan.6.10), these sometimes indicated by such terms as "sunrise," "heat of the day" (2 Sam.4.5) or "sunset." Later, the Roman division of the day and night into four parts was used (Mt.14.25 mentions a fourth watch), as was also the division of daylight into twelve hours (Mt.20.1–6; Jn.11.9).

SELECT INDEX TO PEOPLE, PLACES, AND THEMES IN THE BIBLE

This index is designed to enable the reader to locate persons, places, and ideas in the Bible. Biblical books (such as Job, Micah, Isaiah) do not appear, but references are listed to passages of primary significance concerning the men: Job in Ezekiel and James; Micah in Jeremiah; and Isaiah in Kings, Chronicles, and in some of the books of the Apocrypha and the New Testament. Passing mention of principal characters such as even Abraham in Gen.50.24, for example, is not included. Therefore, since the index is necessarily selective, it is suggested that a complete concordance to the Bible be consulted.

- Aaron: Exod.4.14-16, 27-30; 5.1-5; 6.13, 20-27; chs. 28-29; 32; 40.12-15; Lev. chs. 8-10; Num.3.1-4; ch. 12; 16.1-18.20; 20.23-29; Deut.9.20; 10.6; Ps.105.26; Eccles.45.6-22; Lk.1.5; Heb.5.4
- Abaddon: Job 26.6; 28.22; Prov.15.11; Rev.9.11
- Abarim: Num.21.11; 27.12; 33.44-48; Deut.32.49
- Abba: Mk.14.36; Rom.8.15; Gal.4.6
- Abdon: Judg.12.13-15
- Abed-nego: Dan.1.7; 2.49; 3.23; see also Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego
- Abel: Gen.4.2-8
- Abiathar: 1 Sam.22.20-23; 23.6,9; 30.7; 2 Sam.8.17; 15.24-36; 19.11; 20.25; 1 Kgs.1.7; 2.26-27, 35; Mk.2.26
- Abihu: Exod.6.23; 24.1-9; Lev.10.1-5
- Abijah/Abijam: 1 Kgs.14.31-15.8
- Abimelech (of Gerar): Gen.20.2-21.32; 26.1-33
- Abimelech (Gideon's son): Judg.8.31-10.1
- Abinadab: 1 Sam.7.1; 2 Sam.6.3
- Abishag: 1 Kgs.1.3,15; 2.21-22
- Abishai: 1 Sam.26.6; 2 Sam.2.18,24; 10.10,14; 18.2-12; 21.17; 23.18
- Abner: 1 Sam.14.51; 17.55; 17.55; 26.7,14; 2 Sam.2.12-30; 3.6-4.1
- Abomination of Desolation: Dan.9.27; 11.31; 12.11; 1 Macc.1.54; 6.7; 2 Macc.6.2; Mt.24.15
- Abraham/Abram: Gen.11.26-25.19; 26.5; Exod.3.6.15-16; 32.13; Isa.24.22; 51.2; 63.16; Ezek.33.24; 2 Esd.7.36[106]; Eccles.44.19-23; S. of Three 12; Mt.3.9; Jn.8.56; Rom.4.1-25; Gal.3.6-29; Heb.7.1-10; 11.8,17; Jas.2.21,23
- Absalom: 2 Sam.13.1-19-25
- Abyss: Gen.7.11; Ps.33.7; Lk.8.31; Rom.10.7; Rev.9.11; 20.3
- Achaia: Acts 18.12,27; Rom.15.26; 1 Cor.16.15; 2 Cor.9.2; 11.10; 1 Th.1.7-8
- Achan: Josh.7.1-25
- Achior: Jdt.5.5-21
- Achish: 1 Sam.21.10-15; 27.5-6; 29.2,9; 1 Kgs.2.39-40
- Adam: Gen.1.27-5.5; 2 Esd.3.4-10,20-22; Tob.8.6; Rom.5.12-21; 1 Cor.15.22,45-49; 1 Tim.2.13-14
- Adonijah: 2 Sam.3.4; 1 Kgs.1.5-2.25
- Adoni-zedek: Josh.10.1-3
- Adullam: 1 Sam.22.1; 2 Sam.23.13; Mic.1.15
- Adultery: Exod.20.14; Lev.20.10; Num.5.11-31; Deut.5.18; 22.22-27; Hos.2.2-17; 3.1-5; Mt.5.27-32
- Advocate: Jn.14.16; 15.26; 16.7; 1 Jn.2.1
- Agag: Num.24.7; 1 Sam.15.8-32
- Agrippa: Acts.25.13-26.32
- Agur: Prov.30.1
- Ahab: 1 Kgs.16.28-22.40; 20.1-43; 2 Chr. ch. 18
- Ahasuerus: Ezra 4.6; Esther 1.1-2.4; 3.1,7,12; 6.1-10; 7.1-8.10; Tob.14.15
- Ahaz: 2 Kgs.16.1-20; 2 Chr.28.1-27; Isa.1.1; 7.1-25
- Ahaziah (of Israel): 1 Kgs.22.49-53
- Ahaziah (of Judah): 2 Kgs.8.25-29; 9.21-28; 2 Chr.22.1-9
- Ahijah: 1 Kgs.11.29-39; 12.15; 14.2-18; 2 Chr.9.29
- Ahikar: Tob.1.121; 11.18; 14.10
- Ahithophel: 2 Sam.15.12; 16.20-22; 17.1-23
- Ai: Gen.13.3; Josh.7.2-8.29
- Ajalon: Josh.10.12-13
- Akeldama/Blood Acre: Mt.27.8; Acts 1.19
- Alcimus: 1 Macc.7.5-25
- Alexander the Great: 1 Macc.1.1-8
- Aliens: Gen.23.4; Exod.2.22; 12.48-49; 18.3; 20.10; Lev.17.15; 19.33; Num.15.14-15; 19.10; Deut.7.3; 14.21; 10.19; 27.19; 1 Kgs.9.15-23; Ezra 10.2; Pss.94.6; 119.19; Ezek.47.22-23; Mal.3.5; Eph.2.12,19
- Alms: Tob.4.7-11; Eccles.3.30; 7.10; 12.1-7; 18.15-18; Mt.6.2-4; 19.21; see also Charity
- Alpha and Omega: Rev.1.8; 21.6; 22.13
- Altar: Exod.20.24-26; 24.6-8; 27.1-8; 30.1-10; 37.25-38.7; Num.7.10-89; Deut.27.5-8; Josh.8.30-31; 22.10-34; 1 Kgs.6.20-22; 1 Chr.21.18-22.1; Ezra 3.2-3; Ezek.43.13-27
- Amalek: Gen.36.12; Exod.17.8-16; Deut.25.17; 1 Sam.15.1-33
- Amaziah: 2 Kgs.14.1-22
- Ammon/Ammonites: Gen.19.38; Deut.23.3-4; Judg.10.9-11.33; 2 Sam.10.1-11.1; 12.26-31; 1 Kgs.11.1-7; Neh.13.23; Jer.49.1-6
- Amnon: 2 Sam.3.2; 13.1-33
- Amon: 2 Kgs.21.18-26
- Amorites: Gen.10.16; 15.16; Deut.20.17; Josh.3.10
- Anak: Num.13.33; Deut.9.2; Josh.15.14; Judg.1.20
- Anakim: See Nephilim
- Ananias (High Priest): Acts 23.2-24.1
- Ananias (and Paul): Acts 9.12-17
- Ananias (and Sapphira): Acts 5.1-11
- Anathoth: Josh.21.18; 1 Kgs.2.26; Jer.1.1; 11.23; 32.6-12
- Ancient in Years: Dan.7.21
- Andrew: Mt.4.18-20; Mk.1.16-18; Jn.1.40-44; 6.8; 12.22

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Angels: Gen.16.7; 18.1–19.26; 21.17; Exod.3.2; Num.22.22–35; Judg.13.3–23; Zech.1.12–21; 3.1–10; 4.1–3,11–14; 4.6,10; 5.1–11; 2 Esd.6.41; Tob.12.12–15; Pr.M.15b; 2 Macc.11.6; Mt.1.20; Lk.1.11,26,28; 2.8–12; 1 Cor.6.3; Col.2.18; Rev.19.10; 22.9
- Anna (the prophetess): Lk.2.36–38
- Annunciation: Lk.1.26–38
- Anoint: Gen.28.18; Exod.30.22–32; 40.9–15; Lev. 6.20–22; 8.10–12; 10.7; 1 Sam.9.16; 10.1; 16.12–13; 1 Kgs.1.39; 19.15–16; 2 Kgs.9.6; 11.12; Pss.2.2; 45.7; 105.15; Isa.45.1; Dan.9.24; Mk.14.3; Lk.4.18; 7.37–38; Jn.12.3
- Antichrist: 2 Th.2.3; 1 Jn.2.18,22; 4.3; 2 Jn.7; Rev. 11.7; 13.1–18; 17.7–14; 19.19–21
- Antioch: Acts 11.19–30; 13.1–2; 15.22–35; Gal. 2.11–14
- Antiochus IV Epiphanes: Dan.7.8; 8.9–14,23–25; 11.21–45; 1 Macc.1.10–64; 2 Macc.4.7–10.9
- Apehek: 1 Sam.4.1–11; 29.1; 1 Kgs.20.29–30; 2 Kgs. 13.17
- Apollos: Acts 18.24–28; 1 Cor.1.12; 3.4–6,22; 4.6; 16.12; Tit.3.13
- Apollyon: Rev.9.11
- Apostles: Mt.10.2–16; Lk.6.13–16; Jn.1.40–42; Acts 1.15–26; 15.2–29; Rom.1.1; 16.7; 1 Cor.9.1–12; 12.28–29; 13.28; Gal.1.1,17,19; 2 Pet.3.2; see also Disciples
- Aquila: Acts 18.2,26; Rom.16.3; 1 Cor.16.19; 2 Tim.4.19
- Aram/Aramaeans: Gen.10.22; 24.10; Deut.3.14; 26.5; Josh.12.5; 13.11; 1 Sam.14.47; 2 Sam. 8.3,10; 10.6; 1 Chr.18.3,5,7,9; 19.6
- Areopagus: Acts 17.19–23
- Ark of the Tokens (Covenant): Exod.25.10–25; 37.1–9; 40.19–21; Num.10.33–36; 14.44–45; Deut.10.1–6,8; Josh.3.14–15; 4.11; Judg.6.11; 1 Sam.3.3–7.2; 2 Sam.6.1–17; 1 Kgs.8.1–9; Ps.132.6–10; Jer.3.16–17; 2 Macc.2.4–8
- Ark, Noah's: Gen.6.14–8.19
- Armageddon: Rev.16.16
- Arnun: Num.21.13–14; 22.36; Deut.2.24; Judg.11.26; Isa.16.2; Jer.48.20
- Aroer: Num.32.34; 1 Sam.30.28; 2 Sam.24.5; Jer. 48.19
- Arpad: 2 Kgs.18.34; 19.13; Isa.10.9; 36.19; 37.13; Jer.49.23
- Artaxerxes: Ezra 7.1–26; 1 Esd.2.16–30
- Asa: 1 Kgs.15.11–24
- Asaph: 1 Chr.25.1–8; 2 Chr.29.30; 35.15; Neh.12.46
- Ascension of Jesus: See Jesus, Ascension of
- Ashdod: 1 Sam.5.1–8; 2 Chr.26.6; Neh.13.23–24; Isa.20.1; Jer.25.20; Amos.1.8; 3.9; Zeph.2.4; Zech.9.6
- Asher: Gen.30.13; 49.20; Num.1.41; 2.27; 13.13; Deut.27.13; 33.24; Josh.19.24–31; 21.6; Judg. 5.17; 6.35; 7.23; 1 Kgs.4.16; 1 Chr.12.36
- Asherah: Judg.3.7; 6.25–32; 1 Kgs.18.19
- Ashkelon: Judg.1.18; 14.19; 1 Sam.6.17; 2 Sam.1.20; Jer.25.20; 47.5; Amos.1.8; Zeph.2.4; Zech.9.5
- Asnapper: Ezra 4.10
- Asshur/Assyria: Gen.2.14; 10.22; 25.18; Num.24.24; 2 Kgs.16.7–9; 17.3; 19.36; Isa.8.1–9.1; 10.5–19; 14.24–26; Mic.5.6; Zeph.2.13
- Astrologers: Isa.47.13–15; Dan.2.2; 4.7; 5.7
- Athaliah: 2 Kgs.8.26; 11.1–16
- Atonement: See Expiation; Purification
- Atonement, Day of: Lev.16.1–34; 23.26–32; 25.9; Num.29.7–11
- Authority: Mt.7.29; 8.9; 21.23; Mk.1.22; 10.42; 11.27–28; Lk.4.36; 7.8; 9.1; 22.25; Jn.5.27; Acts 8.27; 9.14; 26.10–12; 1 Cor.15.24; 2 Cor. 10.8; 1 Tim.2.2,12; Ti.2.15; 1 Pet.3.22; Rev.13.2
- Azariah/Uzziah: 2 Kgs.14.21–22; 15.1–17
- Azazel: See Precipice
- Azotus: Acts 8.40; see also Ashdod
- Baal: Num. 22.41; 25.3–18; Deut.4.3; Judg.2.11–13; 6.25–32; 1 Kgs.16.31–33; 17.1; 18.17–26; 2 Kgs.1.2–6; Jer.9.13–16; Hos.2.1–17
- Baal of Peor/Baal-peor: Num.25.3–5; Deut.4.3; Ps.106.28–30; Hos.9.10
- Baalzebub (Beelzebub): 2 Kgs.1.2–6; Mt.10.25; 12.24; Mk.3.22; Lk.11.15
- Babel: See Babylon
- Babel, Tower of: Gen.11.1–9
- Babylon: Gen.10.10; 11.9; 2 Kgs.17.30; 20.12–18; chs. 24; 25; Ezra 1.1–2.1; Isa.13.1–14.23; chs. 39; 47; 48.20–22; Jer.25.1–14; 39.1–14; chs. 50–52; Dan.4.30; 5.30; 1 Esd.1.56; 4.61; 5.7; 2 Esd.3.1,28–31; 14.44; 15.1; Bar.1.2,5; Let. Jer.6.1; Dan. & Su.1; Dan. & Bel.3,23,35–36
- Babylon (Rome): 1 Pet.5.13; Rev.14.8; 16.19; 17.5; 18.2–3
- Balaam: Num.22.5–24.25; 31.8,16; Deut.23.4–5; Mic.6.5; 2 Pet.2.15; Jude 11; Rev.2.14
- Balak: Num.22.1–8,37–41; 23.1–30; 24.25
- Balm (of Gilead): Gen.37.25; 43.11; Jer.8.22; 46.11
- Ban: Num.31.1–18; Deut.13.12–18; Josh.6.17–21; 1 Sam.15.1–26
- Baptism: Mt.3.1–6,11,13–17; 28.19; Mk.1.4–8; Lk. 3.2–22; Acts 2.38–41; 19.1–5; Rom.6.3–4; 1 Cor.10.2; 12.13; Eph.4.5; Col.2.12; Ti.3.5; 1 Pet.3.21
- Barabbas: Mt.27.16–21,26; Mk.15.7–15; Lk.23.18; Jn.18.40
- Barak: Judg.4.4–16; ch. 5
- Barnabas: Acts 4.36; 11.22–30; 12.25–15.4,22–39; 1 Cor.9.6; Gal.2.13
- Barrenness: Gen.11.30; 25.21; 29.31; Exod.23.26; Judg.13.2–3; 1 Sam.1.2–20; Ps.113.9; Isa.54.1; 2 Esd.9.39–10.24; Lk.1.7,34–36
- Barsabbas: Acts 1.23
- Bartholomew: Mt.10.3; Mk.3.18; Lk.6.14; Acts 1.13
- Bartimaeus: Mk.10.46
- Baruch: Jer.32.13; 36.4–27; 43.6; 45.1–5
- Barzillai: 2 Sam.17.27; 19.31; 1 Kgs.2.7
- Bashan: Num.21.33; Deut.3.1; Ps.68.15,22
- Bathsheba: 2 Sam.11.2–5; 12.24; 1 Kgs.1.1–2.25
- Beatitudes: Mt.5.3–12; Lk.6.20–23
- Beelzebub: Mt.9.24; 10.25; 12.24; Mk.3.22; Lk.11.15; see also Baalzebub
- Beersheba: Gen.21.14; 22.19; 26.23–33; 28.10; 46.1; Josh.19.2; 1 Kgs.19.3; Amos 5.5; 8.14
- Bel: Isa.46.1; Jer.50.2
- Belial: Deut.13.13; Judg.19.22; 20.13; 1 Sam.1.6; 2.12; 10.27; 25.17,25; 30.22; 2 Sam.16.7; 20.1; 23.6; 1 Kgs.2.10,13; 2 Chr.13.7; 2 Cor.6.15
- Belshazzar: Dan.5.1–30; 7.1–28; 8.1–27; Bar.1.11
- Belteshazzar: Dan.2.26; 4.8,18; 5.12; 10.1; see also Daniel
- Benaiah: 2 Sam.23.22; 1 Kgs.1.32–38,43–44; 2.28–35; 4.4
- Benediction, Apostolic: 2 Cor.13.14
- Benediction, Priestly: Num.6.22–26
- Ben-hadad: 1 Kgs.15.18–20; 20.20–34
- Ben-hinnom, Valley of: Josh.15.8; 18.16; 2 Kgs. 23.10; 2 Chr.28.3; 33.6; Jer.7.31–32; 19.1–6; see also Hades; Hell; Sheol

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Benjamin: Gen.35.16–24; 43.14–45.22; 49.27; Deut. 33.12; Judg.19.16–21.24; 1 Sam.9.1
- Beroea: Acts 17.10–13
- Bethany: Mt.21.17; 26.6; Mk.11.1; Lk.19.29; Jn.11.18–44; 12.1
- Bethel: Gen.28.11–19; 35.1; Judg.1.22; 1 Kgs. 12.25–13.10; 2 Kgs.23.15–18; Amos 3.14; 7.10–17
- Bethlehem: Gen.35.16–20; Ruth 1.1–22; 4.11; 1 Sam.16.1–13; Mic.5.2; Mt.2.1–6; Lk.2.4–7; Jn.7.42
- Bethphage; Mt.21.1
- Bethsaida: Mt.11.21; Mk.6.45; 8.22; Lk.9.10–17; Jn.1.44; 12.21
- Beth-shemesh: 1 Sam.6.10–20; 2 Kgs.14.11
- Bethulia: Jdt.4.6
- Bilhah: Gen.29.29; 35.22; 37.2
- Birthright: Gen.25.31; Deut.21.15–17; see also Firstborn
- Bishop: 1 Tim.3.1–7; Ti.1.6–9
- Blasphemy: Exod.20.7; Lev.24.11–16; 1 Kgs.21.13; Mt.12.31–32; Mk.3.28–29; Lk.12.10; Jn. 10.33–36; see also Curse/Reville
- Blessing: Gen.12.3; 22.17; 27.29; 32.26; 48.3–15; Num.6.24; Deut.15.10; 33.1–29; 1 Cor.10.16; Eph.1.3
- Blood: Gen.9.4–6; Exod.23.18; 24.3–8; Lev.3.17; 7.26; 17.10; 19.26; Deut.12.16; 21.1–9; Mt. 26.28; Lk.22.20; Rom.3.25; 5.9; 1 Cor.11.25–27; Eph.2.13; Col.1.14; Heb.9.12–13.12; 1 Jn.1.7; Rev.7.14; 12.11
- Blood Acre: See Akeldama
- Boaz: Ruth 2.1–4.17; Mt.1.5; Lk.3.32
- Bones: Gen.2.23; Prov.25.15; Ezek.37.7; Mt.23.27; Lk.24.39; Jn.19.36
- Bondage: See Slavery
- Booths: See Feasts/Festivals; Tabernacles, Feast of
- Bozrah: Gen.36.33; Isa.34.6; 63.1; Jer.48.24; 49.12–22; Amos.1.12; Mic.2.12
- Bread: Lev. 7.12–15; Eccles.11.1; Jn.6.30–58; 1 Cor.10.16–17; 11.23–30 of the Presence (showbread): Exod.25.30; 35.13; Lev.24.5–9; 1 Sam.21.6; Mt.12.3–4; Mk.2.25–26; Lk.6.3–4
- Unleavened: Gen.19.3; Exod.12.8; 13.7; Lev.2.4; 7.12; 8.26; 1 Sam.28.24; 2 Kgs.23.9; see also Passover
- Breast-piece (breastplate): Exod.28.15; 39.8; Eph. 6.14; 1 Th.5.8
- Breath: Gen.2.7; 6.17; 7.15; Job 4.9; 12.10; 33.4; Ps.33.6; 104.29; 146.4; 150.6; Isa.2.22; Ezek. 37.7–9; Acts 17.25
- Bribery: Exod.23.2; Deut.16.19; 1 Sam.8.3; Job 15.34; Prov.17.23; 29.4; Mt.26.14–15; 28.12
- Bridegroom: Ps.19.5; Isa.62.5; Mt.9.15; 25.1–13; Mk.2.19–20; Lk.5.34–35; Rev.18.23
- Burning Bush: Exod.3.1–6; Deut.33.16
- Byword: See Proverbs
- Caesarea: Acts 8.40; ch. 10; 21.8; 23.23
- Caesarea Philippi: Mt.16.13; Mk.8.27
- Caiaphas: Mt.26.3,57–58; Mk.14.63; Jn.11.49
- Cain: Gen.4.1–26; Wis.10.3–4; Heb.11.4; 1 Jn.3.12
- Cainan/Kenan: Gen.5.9; Lk.3.36
- Caleb: Num.13.6; 13.30–33; 14.6–10; 14.24,30,38; 26.65; 32.12; Deut.1.34–36; Josh.14.6–14; 15.13–18; Judg.1.12–20
- Calendar of Feasts: Exod.23.10–19; 34.18–26; Lev.23.1–44; Deut.16.1–17; see also Feasts/Festivals
- Calf, Golden: Exod.32.1–35; 1 Kgs.12.25–33; Ps. 106.19–23; Hos.8.5–6; Acts 7.41
- Calvary: See Golgotha
- Cana: Jn.2.1–11; 4.46
- Canaan/Canaanites: Gen.9.18–27; 10.19; 13.7,12; 19.5; 24.3,37; 36.2; 37.1; Exod.6.4; 15.15; Lev.18.3,6–30; Num.27.12; Deut.3.23–27; 32.48; Josh.5.12; ch.14
- Capernaum: Mt.4.13; 8.5; 11.23; 17.24; Mk.1.21; 2.1; Jn.4.46; 6.16,24,59
- Carchemish: 2 Chr.35.20; Jer.46.2
- Carmel: 1 Kgs.18.19–24; 2 Kgs.4.25; Isa.33.9; Amos 1.2; 9.3
- Census: Num. chs. 1; 26; 2 Sam. ch. 24; Lk.2.1–5
- Cephas: See Peter
- Chaldeans: 2 Kgs.24.2; 25.4; Job 1.17; Isa.23.13; 43.14; 47.1; 48.14; Jer.50.10; Ezek.23.14–16; Hab.1.6; see also Babylon
- Charity: Lev.19.18–20; 25.25–47; Deut.10.19; 15.7; Ps.41.1; Prov.19.17; see also Alms
- Chemosh: See Kemosh
- Cherub/Cherubim: Gen.3.24; Exod.25.18–20; 1 Sam. 4.4; 1 Kgs.6.23–28; 8.6–7; Ps.18.10; Ezek. 1.5–28; 10.3–22; 28.14–16; 41.18–19
- Chileab: 2 Sam.3.3
- Chinnereth: See Galilee, Sea of
- Christ: See Messiah
- Christ, Sacrifice of: Heb.9.11–10.18
- Christian (the name): Acts 11.26
- Church: Mt.16.18; Acts 8.1; 9.31; 12.5; Eph.1.22; 5.24–29; Col.1.18,26
- Churl: See Folly/Fool
- Cilicia: Acts 15.23,41; 21.39; 22.3; Gal.1.21
- Circumcision: Gen.17.9–27; Exod.4.24–26; 12.44, 48–49; Lev.12.3; Deut.10.16; 30.6; Josh. 5.2–9; Jer.4.3–4; 9.25–26; Lk.1.59; Acts 15.1–29; Rom.2.25–29; 1 Cor.7.18–19; Gal.5.2–6; 6.15; Col.2.11
- Cleanliness: Exod.22.31; Lev. ch. 11; 12.1–8; chs. 13–15; 18.22–30; 21.1–4,11; 22.3–8; Num. 19.6–22; Deut.14.3–21; Isa.1.16; Ezek.36.25; Hag.2.11–14; Mt.15.1–20; Mk.7.1–23; see also Defilement; Uncleaness
- Cloud: Exod.13.21; 14.20; 19.9; 24.15–18; 33.9–10; 40.34–38; Lev.16.2; Num.9.15–23; 10.11–12, 33–36; 14.14; Deut.4.11–12; 31.15; 1 Kgs. 8.10–11; Ps.105.39; Mt.17.5; Mk.9.7; Lk. 9.34–35; Acts 1.9; 1 Cor.10.1–2
- Comforter: See Advocate
- Commandments, Ten: See Ten Commandments
- Commission, The Great: Mt.28.18–20
- Compassion: See Pity
- Corban: Mk.7.11–13
- Corinth: Acts 18.1; 19.1; 1 Cor.1.2; 2 Tim.4.20
- Cornelius: Acts 10.1–48
- Council: See Sanhedrin
- Council, Apostolic: Acts 15.4–29
- Covenant: Exod.6.2–8; ch.19; 20.22–23.33; 24.1–12; 34.10–28; Deut.5.2–3; chs. 29–30; 31.9–13; Josh.24.1–28; 2 Kgs.11.17–18; 23.1–3; Nch. chs. 9–10; Isa.55.3–5; Jer.11.1–8; Ezek.16.8–14, 59–63; 34.17–31; Hos.2.18–23; 8.1; Bar.2.35; for specific covenants, see below
- Covenant:
with Aaron: Num 18.1–19
with Abraham: Gen.15.6–21; ch. 17 with David: 2 Sam.7.5–16; 23.5; Pss.89.3–4,20–37; 132.11–12; Jer.33.19–23
with Levi: Jer.33.18; Mal.2.4–8
New: Jer.31.31–34; Mt.26.20–29; Mk.14.22–25;

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- 1 Cor.11.23-25; 2 Cor.3.4-18; Gal.4.21-28; Heb.8.7-13; 9.15
 with Noah: Gen.6.18; 9.8-17
 with Phinehas: Num.25.10-13; Eccus.45.23-24
 Creation: Gen.1.1-2.25; Job 38.3-11; Pss.74.12-17; 89.5-14; Prov.3.19-20; 8.22-31; Isa.45.9-25; 51.9-16; 65.17-18; 66.22; 2 Esd.6.1-6,38-54; 7.7[5]; Wis.11.17; Eccus.39.12-35; 42.15-43.33; 2 Macc.7.28; Rom.4.17; 8.22; 2 Cor.5.17; Gal.6.15; Col.1.16; Heb.11.3; Rev.4.11; 21.1-4
 Cross/Crucifixion: Deut.21.22-23; Mt.27.15-54; Mk.15.6-38; Lk.23.16-46; Jn.18.29-30; 1 Cor.1.18-24; 2.1-2; Gal.6.14; Eph.2.16; Col.2.13-15; Heb.6.6; 12.2
 Curse/Revile: Gen.3.14-19; 4.11-12; 9.24-27; Exod.21.17; Deut.11.26-29; 27.14-26; 28.15-46; Job 3.1-10; Ps.109.8-19; Jer.20.14-18; see also Blasphemy
 Cush: See Ethiopia
 Cyprus: Acts 4.36-37; 11.19-20; 13.4-12; 15.39; 27.4
 Cyrene: Mt.27.32; Mk.15.21; Lk.23.26; Acts 2.10; 6.9; 11.20; 13.1
 Cyrus the Great: 2 Chr.36.22-23; Ezra 1.1-11; 5.13-15; 6.3-5; Isa.44.28; 45.1-7; 1 Esd.2.1-15; Dan. & Bel. 1
 Dagon: Judg.16.23; 1 Sam.5.2-7; 1 Chr.10.10; 1 Macc.10.83; 11.4
 Dalmanutha: Mk.8.10
 Damascus: Gen.14.14-15; 15.2; 2 Sam.8.5-6; 1 Kgs.11.23-24; 19.15; 2 Kgs.8.7-9; 16.9-13; Isa.7.8; 8.4; 17.1-3; Jer.49.23-27; Ezek.27.18; Amos 1.3-5
 Dan/Danites: Gen.14.14; 30.6; Num.1.38; 26.42; 34.22; Deut.33.22; Josh.19.40-48; Judg.18.1-31; 20.1; 1 Kgs.12.29; Jer.4.15; 8.16
 Daniel/Daniel: Ezek.14.14,20; 28.3; see also Belshazzar
 Darius I (the king): Ezra 4.5-6.15; Hag.1.1; 2.1,10; Zech.1.1,7; 7.1; 1 Esd.2.16-30; 3.1-5.6; (4.43-60)
 Darnel: Mt.13.25-52
 Dathan: Num.16.1-16; Deut.11.6; Ps.106.17
 David: Ruth 4.17,22; 1 Sam.16.1-1 Kgs.2.12; 1 Chr. chs. 11-29; Pss.89.3-4,20-37; 132.1-18; Isa.9.7; 55.3; Jer.33.17-26; Amos 9.11; Zech.12.7-13.1; 2 Esd.38[108]; Eccus.47.1-11; Mt.1.1,20; 12.3-4; 21.9; 22.41-46; Mk.2.25-26; 11.9-10; 12.35-37; Lk.1.27; 6.3-4; 20.41-44; Jn.7.40-44
 Day of the Lord: Isa.13.6-16; 22.5-25; Jer.30.1-9; 46.10; Ezek.7.5-14; 30.1-5; Joel 1.15; 2.28-3.21; Amos 5.19-20; 8.9-10; Obad.15-18; Zeph.1.7-18; 2.2-3; Zech. chs. 12-14; Rom.2.15,16; 1 Cor.1.8; 1 Th.5.2-4; 2 Th.2.1-12; 2 Pet.3.10
 Deacons: Acts 6.2-6; Phil.1.1; 1 Tim.3.8-13
 Deborah: Judg. chs. 4-5
 Death: Gen.3.19; 9.5-6; Deut.30.15-20; Ps.13.3; 23.4; 89.48; 116.3,8,15; Eccus.2.14-16; 6.3; 7.1; Isa.25.7-8; 2 Esd.16.22-23; Wis.1.14-15; 4.7-8; 18.20-25; Eccus.10.11-12; 26.5; Jn.11.1-16; Rom.5.12-17; 6.9; 1 Cor.15.21-25; 1 Th.4.13-18; 2 Tim.1.10; Rev.2.11; 20.6,14
 Decalogue: See Ten Commandments
 Decapolis: See Ten Towns
 Dedan/Rhodes: Gen.10.7; Isa.21.13; Ezek.27.15
 Dedication: See Feasts/Festivals
 Deep, The: See Abyss
 Defilement: Gen.34.2-27; 49.4; Exod.31.14; Lev.5.2-3; 11.29-43; 13.45-46; 15.1-31; 21.1,3; Num.19.20; 35.30-34; Deut.21.22-23; Jer.2.7; 3.1-5; 16.18; Ezek.5.7-12; 22.1-16; 23.1-21; Dan.1.8; Mt.15.10-11; Mk.7.1-15; Jn.18.28; see also Cleanliness; Uncleaness
 Delilah: Judg.16.4,18
 Derbe: Acts 14.6,20; 16.1; 20.4
 Desert: See Wilderness Devil: See Satan
 Diana: Acts 19.24-25
 Dibon: Num.21.30; Neh.11.25
 Didymus: See Thomas
 Dinah: Gen. ch. 34
 Dionysius: Acts ch. 17
 Diotrefes: 3 Jn.9
 Disciples: Mt.10.1; 26.56; Mk.2.18; 4.34; 16.7; Lk.6.13; Jn.2.11; Acts 2.41; 4.4; see also Apostles
 Divination: Gen.44.5-15; Lev.19.26; Num.23.23; 24.1; Deut.18.9-13; 1 Sam.28.7; Isa.44.25; Jer.14.14; 27.9-10; Ezek.13.1-9; 21.21-22; Mic.3.5-12; Zech.10.2; Acts 16.16-19
 Divorce: Deut.24.1-4; Ezra 10.3,44; Jer.3.1,8; Hos.2.2; Eccus.7.26; 25.26; Mt.1.19; 5.31-32; Mk.10.11-12; Lk.16.18; 19.3-9; 1 Cor.7.10-16
 Doeg: 1 Sam.21.7; 22.18-22
 Dorcas: Acts 9.36-39
 Dothan: Gen.37.17; 2 Kgs.6.13
 Dove/Pigeon: Gen.8.8-11; 15.9; Lev.12.6; 14.22; S. of S.1.15; 2.12-14; 4.1; 5.2; 6.9; Pss.55.6; 66.13; 74.19; Isa.38.14; Jer.48.28; Mt.3.16-18; 21.11-13; Mk.1.10-11; 11.15; Lk.3.22
 Dragon: See Leviathan
 Dream: Gen.15.12; 28.11-17; 37.5-11; Num.12.6-8; Deut.13.1-5; 1 Sam.3.3-14; Job 33.15-16; Jer.23.25-32; Dan.2.1-45; Wis.18.17-19; Eccus.34.1-8; 2 Macc.15.11-16; Mt.1.20-21; Acts 16.9; 2 Cor.12.1-5 Drought: See Famine
 Drusilla: Acts 24.24
 Dust: Gen.2.7; 3.19; 18.27; Job 2.12; 34.15; Pss.30.9; 103.14; Isa.40.12; Dan.12.2; Mt.10.14; Mk.6.11; Lk.9.5; Acts 13.51; Rev.18.19
 Earth: Gen.1.10-11; 3.17; 6.12; Exod.9.29; Deut.10.14; 1 Sam.2.8; Job 19.25; 38.4; Pss.72.19; 99.1; Prov.8.23; Eccus.1.4; 12.7; Isa.40.12; 51.16; 66.1; Mt.5.5; Lk.2.14; 1 Cor.15.47; Eph.3.15; 2 Pet.3.7,13; Rev.20.9; 21.1
 East/East Wind: Gen. 3.24; 41.6-27; Exod.10.13; 14.21; Job 1.3; Ezek.8.16; 43.1-3; 44.1-3; Hos.12.1; 13.15; Mt.2.2; 8.11; Lk.13.29
 Ebal, Mount: Deut.11.29; 27.4,13; Josh.8.30,33
 Ebed-melech: Jer.38.7; 39.16
 Eben-ezer: 1 Sam.4.1-5.1; 7.12
 Eber: Gen.10.21-24
 Eden: Gen.2.8-15; 3.23-24; Isa.51.3; Ezek.28.13-16; 31.9,16-18; 36.35; Joel 2.3; see also Paradise
 Edom/Edomites: Gen.25.30; 27.40; 36.1-43; Num.20.14-21; Deut.2.4-8; 23.7; 2 Sam.8.14; 1 Kgs.11.14-25; Pss.60.5-9; 108.6-9; 137.7-9; Isa.34.5-15; 63.1-6; Jer.49.7-22; Lam.4.21-22; Ezek.25.12-14; 35.1-15; 36.5; Amos 1.11-12; Obad.1-14; 1 Esd.4.49-50; 1 Macc.5.3; see also Esau
 Edrei: Num.21.33
 Eglon: Judg.3.12-30
 Egypt/Egyptians: Gen.12.10-20; 15.13-14; 16.1; 37.36; 39-40-Exod.15.21; 2 Kgs.14.15; 23.29; Isa. ch. 19; 30.1-11; Jer.37.5; chs. 43-44; Ezek. chs. 29-30; 32; Hos.11.1-5; 1 Esd.1.25-33; 2 Esd.3.17; 16.1; Mt.2.13; Acts 21.38

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Ehud: Judg. 3.12-30
 Ekron: Josh. 13.3; Judg. 1.18; 1 Sam. 5.10-12; 6.17; 17.52-53; Amos 1.8; Zeph. 2.4
 Elah (king): 1 Kgs. 16.8-10
 Elah (valley): 1 Sam. 17.1-54; 21.9
 Elam: Gen. 10.22; 14.1; Jer. 49.34-39; Dan. 8.2
 Elath: Deut. 2.8; 2 Kgs. 14.22; 16.6
 Eldad and Medad: Num. 11.26-27
 Elders: Exod. 3.16-18; 24.9-14; Lev. 4.15; Num. 11.16-17; 22.4; Deut. 5.22-31; 27.1; 31.9; Ruth 4.2-11; 2 Sam. 5.3; Ezra 5.5; 6.14; Ps. 107.32; Prov. 31.23; Jer. 29.1; Ezek. 14.1-3; Mt. 21.23; Mk. 11.27; 15.1; Acts 4.23; 6.12; 11.30; 14.23; 15.4-23; 16.4; 1 Tim. 5.17-20; Ti. 1.5; Jas. 5.14; Rev. 4.4,10
 Eleazar (son of Aaron): Exod. 6.23; 28.1; Lev. 10.16; Num. 16.36-40; 20.25-29; 27.18-23; 31.21-54; 34.16-17; Deut. 10.6; Josh. 17.4; 24.33
 Eli: 1 Sam. 1.17-4.18
 Eliakim: See Jehoiakim
 Eliashib: Neh. 3.1; 13.4
 Elihu: Job chs. 32-37
 Elijah: 1 Kgs. chs. 17-19; 21; 2 Kgs. 1.1-2.14; 2 Chr. 21.12-15; Mal. 4.5-6; 2 Esd. 7.39[109]; Ecclus. 48.1-12; Mt. 16.14; 17.3-4,10-13; Mk. 8.28; 9.11-13; Lk. 1.17; 4.25-26; 9.19; Jn. 1.21; Rom. 11.2; Jas. 5.17
 Elim: Exod. 15.27; 16.1; Num. 33.9-10
 Elimelech: Ruth 1.2; 4.3
 Elisha: 1 Kgs. 19.16-17,19-21; 2 Kgs. 2.1-9.3; 13.14-21; Ecclus. 48.12-16; Lk. 4.27
 Elizabeth: Lk. 1.5-7,39-45
 Elkanah: 1 Sam. ch. 1
 Elymas: Acts 13.6-8
 Emmaus: Lk. 24.13
 En-dor: Josh. 17.11; 1 Sam. 28.7-14
 En-Gedi: 1 Sam. 23.29-24.15; S. of S. 1.14; Ezek. 47.10; Ecclus. 24.14
 Enoch: Gen. 5.17-24; 1 Chr. 1.3; Wis. 4.10-13; Ecclus. 44.16; 49.14; Jude 14
 Enosh (Enos): Gen. 4.26; 5.6-11; Lk. 3.38
 Ephraim: Col. 1.7; 4.12; Philem. 23
 Epaphroditus: Phil. 2.25-30; 4.18
 Ephesus: Acts 18.19-20.17; 1 Cor. 15.32; 16.8; 2 Tim. 1.18; Rev. 1.11; 2.1
 Ephod: Exod. 28.6-31; 39.2-7; Judg. 8.24-28; 17.5; 18.14-20; 1 Sam. 2.18; 22.18; 2 Sam. 6.14; Hos. 3.4
 Ephraim and Manasseh: Gen. 41.50-53; ch. 48; Deut. 33.17; Josh. 17.14-18; Ps. 78.9,67
 Ephraim/Ephraim: Gen. 35.16; 48.7; Ruth 1.2; 4.11; 1 Sam. 17.2
 Erastus: Acts 19.22; Rom. 16.23; 2 Tim. 4.20
 Erech: Gen. 10.10; Ezra 4.9-10
 Esarhaddon: 2 Kgs. 19.37; Ezra 4.2; Isa. 37.38; 1 Esd. 5.69; Tob. 1.21-22
 Esau: Gen. 25.22-34; 27.1-45; 33.1-16; ch. 36; Mal. 1.2-4; Rom. 9.11-13; see also Edom/Edomites
 Esdraelon: See Jezreel
 Eshcol: Gen. 14.13; Num. 13.23-24
 Eternal Life: Gen. 1.9; Mt. 19.16-30; 25.46; Mk. 10.17-30; Lk. 18.18-24; Jn. 3.15-16; 6.40-58; Acts 13.48; Rom. 6.23; 1 Tim. 6.12,19; Ti. 1.2; 3.7; 1 Jn. 1.2; 2.25; 5.11-12; see also Resurrection
 Ethiopian Eunuch: Acts 8.27
 Ethiopia/Cush: Gen. 2.13; 10.6-8; 2 Kgs. 19.9; 1 Chr. 1.8-9; Esther 1.1; Job 28.19; Pss. 68.31; 87.4; Isa. 11.11; 18.1; ch. 20; 37.9; Jer. 46.9; Amos 9.7
 Eucharist: See Lord's Supper
 Eunuch: Isa. 56.3-8; Mt. 19.10-12
 Euphrates: Gen. 2.14; 15.18; Deut. 1.7; 11.24; Josh. 1.4; 2 Sam. 8.3; 2 Kgs. 23.29; 24.7; Jer. 46.2-6; 51.60-63; Rev. 9.14; 16.12
 Eutychus: Acts 20.9-12
 Eve: Gen. 3.20; 4.1; 2 Cor. 11.3; 1 Tim. 2.1-3
 Exile: Deut. 4.26-28; 30.3-4; 2 Kgs. 17.1-16; 24.12-16; 25.8-21,27-30; Ps. 137.1-6; Jer. ch. 29; 52.12-34; Ezek. 12.1-20; 1 Esd. 2.1-15; Bar. 5.1-9
 Exodus, The: Exod. 12.29-15.21; Deut. 11.1-5; 26.7-8; Josh. 24.5-7; 1 Sam. 12.8; Pss. 78; 105.23-39; 106.8-12; 135.8-9; 136.10-15; Isa. 43.16-17; 51.10; 63.11-14; Jer. 2.6; Ezek. 20.5-8; Hos. 11.1; Mic. 6.4; 2 Esd. 1.12-14; Jdt. 5.12-14
 Expiation: Exod. 29.36-37; 30.10; Lev. 1.4; 4.1-6.7; 7.1-17; ch. 16; 17.11; Num. 15.22-28; 35.33; Deut. 21.1-19; Rom. 3.21-26; Gal. 1.4-5; Heb. 2.17; 9.11-10.18; 1 Pet. 1.17-21; 2.24; 3.18; 1 Jn. 2.2; 4.10; see also Ransom/Ransomer; Reconciliation; Redeem/Redemption
 Extirpation: See Ban
 Ezra: Neh. 8.1-9.37; 1 Esd. chs. 8-9; 2 Esd. chs. 1-2
Faith: Gen. 12.4; 22.1-19; Isa. 26.3-6; Hab. 2.4; Mt. 9.12; 17.20; Jn. 1.12; 3.16; Rom. 1.16-17; 3.28; ch. 4; Gal. 3.2-23; Heb. 11.1-12.2; Jas. 2.14-26
Famine: Gen. 12.10; 26.1; 41.1-49; 43.1; 47.13-22; Deut. 28.21-22; 2 Sam. 21.1; 24.10-16; 2 Kgs. 7.4; 8.1; 25.3; Job 5.20; Ps. 33.19; Jer. 5.12; 14.15-18; 24.10; 27.8; 29.17-18; Ezek. 5.12-17; 7.15; Amos 8.11; 2 Esd. 15.19; 16.46-47; Mt. 24.7; Mk. 13.8; Lk. 15.14; 21.11; Rev. 18.8
Favour: See God, Grace of Feasts/Festivals:
 of Dedication: 1 Macc. 4.25-59; 2 Macc. 10.5-8; Jn. 10.22
 of Passover: Exod. 12.1-27,43-49; 13.1-16; Lev. 23.5-6; Num. 9.2-14; 28.16; Deut. 16.1-8; Josh. 5.10-11; 2 Chr. 30.1-20; 35.1-19; Ezra 6.19-20; Ezek. 45.21; 1 Esd. 1.1-22; 7.5-15; Mt. 26.2, 17-19; Mk. 14.1,12-16; Lk. 22.7-13; Jn. 18.28,39; 19.1-4; Acts 12.3; 1 Cor. 5.7; Heb. 11.28
 of Purim: Esther 9.20-32 of Tabernacles: Exod. 23.16; 34.22; Lev. 23.33-36, 39-43; Num. 29.12-38; Deut. 16.13-15; 31.10-11; 1 Kgs. 8.2,65; Ezra 3.4; Neh. 8.13-18; Zech. 14.16,18-19; 2 Macc. 1.18; 10.6; Jn. 7.2
 of Unleavened Bread: See Bread, Unleavened; Passover of Weeks: Exod. 23.16; 34.22; Lev. 23.15-21; Num. 28.26-31; Deut. 16.9-12; 2 Macc. 12.31; see also Calendar of Feasts; Pilgrim Festivals
Felix: Acts 23.24-24.27
Fire: Exod. 3.2; 13.21; 19.18; 24.17; Lev. 6.9-13; 9.24; 10.1-7; Num. 11.1-3; 16.35; Deut. 4.11-15, 24; 5.22-26; 1 Kgs. 18.23-38; 19.12; Ps. 97.3; Dan. 3.22-27; 2 Esd. 16.68,73; S. of Three; 2 Macc. 10.3; Mt. 3.11; Lk. 3.16; 12.49; see also Pillar of Cloud
First-born: Gen. 22.1-19; 25.23; Exod. 4.22; 11.4-7; 13.1-2,11-13; 22.29-30; 34.19-20; Num. 3.12; 8.16; 11.1-3; Deut. 15.19-23; 21.16-17; Pss. 78.51; 89.27; Jer. 4.31; 31.9; Ezek. 20.26; Mic. 6.7; Zech. 12.10; 2 Esd. 6.58; Lk. 2.7; Rom. 8.29; Col. 1.15,18; Heb. 1.6; 11.28; Rev. 1.5; see also Birthright
Firstfruits: Exod. 22.29; 23.16-19; 34.22-26; Lev. 2.12-14; 23.10-21; Num. 28.26; Deut. 18.4;

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- 26.10; 2 Kgs.4.42; Neh.10.35-37; 12.44; 13.31; Prov.3.9; Jer.2.3; Ezek.20.40; 44.30; 48.14; Mic.7.1; Rom.8.23, 11.16; 1 Cor.15.20-23; Jas.1.18; Rev.14.4
- Fish: Mt.14.17; Jn.6.9
- Flesh (body of man): Gen.2.21-24; 6.3; 9.4-5; Lev.13.1-46; ch. 15; Num.12.9-15; 19.11-22; Job 2.5; 10.4,11; Prov.4.22; Isa.31.3; Ezek. 11.2-12; Jn.6.51-58; Rom.7.21-25; 8.1-8; 1 Cor.5.5; Gal.4.14; Col.1.24
- Flesh (man): Pss.78.39; 103.12-16; Ezek.11.19-20; 36.26-27; Jer.17.5; Mt.16.17; 1 Cor.15.50; Gal.1.16; Heb.2.14
- Flesh (mankind, men, lives): Gen.6.13; Num.16.22; Judg.9.2; 2 Sam.5.1; 19.12; Job 10.11; 34.15; Pss.136.25; 145.21; Isa.40.5; 49.26; Jer.25.31; 32.26-27; 45.5; Ezek.20.48; Joel 2.28; Ecclus. 14.18; 17.31; Lk.3.6; Jn.17.2; Heb.2.14
- Flesh (meat of animals): Gen.9.3; Exod. ch. 29; Lev.6.24-26; 7.19-21; 8.31-35; Num.11.4-23,31; 18.18; Ps.78.20,27; Ezek.4.14
- Fleshpot: Exod.16.3; Prov.23.20
- Flog: Josh.23.13; Isa.10.26; Mt.10.17; 20.19; 23.34; Jn.2.15; Acts 22.24
- Flood: Gen.6.5-8.22; Isa.54.9; Wis.10.4; Ecclus. 44.17-18
- Folly/Fool: Deut.32.6; 1 Sam.25.25; Job 2.10; Pss. 14.1; 39.8; 53.1; 92.6; Prov.5.23; 12.15; 13.16; 14.8,24,29; 15.2,5; 17.12,21,28; 26.4-5,11; Isa. 19.11-13; 35.8; 44.25; Jer.4.22; 5.21-22; Wis. 12.23-24; chs. 13-19; Ecclus.19.23-24; 20.15-17, 20; 21.16,25-26; 27.13; Mt.7.26; 23.17; 25.1-13; Mk.7.22; Lk.11.40; Rom.1.21-22; 1 Cor. 1.18-21,23-25; 2.4,14; 3.18-20; 2 Cor.11.1, 16-21; 12.6,11; Gal.3.1-3
- Foreigners: See Aliens
- Forgiveness: Gen.50.17; Exod.10.17; 34.7; Josh. 24.19; Pss.25.18; 32.1; 85.2; 86.5; 99.8; 130.4; Isa.2.9; 33.24; Jer.31.34; 36.3; Dan.9.9,19; Amos 7.2; Mt.6.12-15; 18.21-35; Mk.11.25; Lk.17.3; 23.34; Eph.4.32; Col.3.13; Jas.5.15; 1 Jn.1.9; 2.12
- Forty: Gen.7.4; 18.29; 50.3; Exod.16.35; 24.18; 26.19-25; 34.28; Num.13.25; 14.33-34; Deut. 2.7; 8.2-4; 9.25; Josh.14.7; Judg.3.11; 5.31; 13.1; 1 Sam.4.18; 2 Sam.5.4; Ps.95.10; Ezek. 29.11-13; 41.2; 46.22; Amos 2.10; 5.25; Jonah 3.4; Mt.4.2; Mk.1.13; Lk.4.2; Acts 1.3; 4.22; 7.23-36; 13.8,21; 23.13,21; Heb.3.9,17
- Freewill Offering: Lev.22.18,21-23; Num.15.3; Deut. 12.6,17; 16.10; 23.23; Ezra 1.4; 3.5; 7.16; 8.28
- Frontlets: See Phylacteries
- Gabbatha: Jn.19.13
- Gabriel: Dan.8.16; 9.21; Lk.1.11-20,26-38
- Gad (prophet): 1 Sam.22.5; 2 Sam.24.11-19; 1 Chr. 21.9,18; 29.29
- Gad (tribe): Gen.30.11; 35.26; 49.19; Num.32.1-36; Deut.27.13; Josh.4.12; 22.9; Jer.49.1; Ezek. 48.27
- Gadarenes: Mt.8.28; Mk.5.1; Lk.8.26,37
- Galatia: Acts 16.6; 18.23
- Galilee/Galileans: Josh.20.7; 21.32; 1 Kgs.9.11; 2 Kgs.15.29; Isa.9.1; Mt.2.22-23; 3.13; 4.12-23; 13.54-58; 26.32; 27.55; Mk.1.9,14-28; 6.1-6; 14.28; 15.41; Lk.13.1-3; Jn.4.3; 7.41-52; 12.21; Acts 1.11; 9.31; 10.37; 13.31
- Galilee, Sea of: 1 Macc.11.67; Mt.4.18; 14.22-34; 15.29; Mk.1.16; Lk.5.1; Jn.6.1
- Gall: Deut.29.18-19; Job 16.13; 20.25; Ps.69.21; Jer.8.14; 9.15; 23.15; Lam.3.19; Amos 6.12; Mt.27.34
- Gallio: Acts 18.12-17
- Gamaliel: Acts 5.34-39; 22.3
- Gath: 1 Sam.5.8; 6.17; 27.4; 2 Sam.1.20; 21.22; 1 Kgs.2.39-40; 2 Kgs.12.17; Amos 6.2; Mic.1.10
- Gaza: Deut.2.23; Josh.10.41; Judg.16.1-3,21-30; Jer.47.1-7; Amos 1.6-7; Zeph.2.4; Zech.9.5; Acts 8.26
- Gedaliah/Okidelus: 2 Kgs.25.22-26; Jer.40.6-41.18; 1 Esd.9.22
- Gehazi: 2 Kgs.4.8-37; 5.20; 8.1-6
- Gehenna: See Ben-hinnom, Valley of; Hades; Hell; Sheol
- Genealogy (of Jesus): Mt.1.1-16; Lk.3.23-38
- Genesareth: See Galilee, Sea of
- Genile (nations): See Nations
- Gentiles (non-Jews, heathens): Mt.6.32; 10.5,18; 20.19; Mk.10.33; Lk.18.32; Acts 4.27; 10.45; 11.1-18; 14.1-2,5,27; 15.3-21; 18.6; 21.20-25; 28.28; Rom.2.14-16,24; 3.29-31; 11.11-13,25; 15.7-19; 1 Cor.12.2,13; Gal.2.2-14; Eph. 2.11-16; 3.1-9; 1 Th.2.16
- Gerasenes: See Gadarenes
- Gerizim, Mount: Deut.11.29; 27.12; Josh.8.33; Judg.9.7; Jn.4.20-21
- Gerar: Gen.10.19; 20.1; 26.20
- Gershom: Exod.2.22; 18.3
- Geshurite: See Aram
- Gethsemane: Mt.26.36; Jn.18.1
- Giants: See Nephilim
- Gibeah: Josh.15.57; Judg.19.12-20.39; 1 Sam. 10.26; 11.4-7; 14.2,16; 15.34; 2 Sam.23.29; Isa.10.29; Hos.9.9; 10.9
- Gibeon: Josh.10.1-15; 2 Sam.2.12-16; 20.8; 1 Kgs. 3.4-15; 9.2; 1 Chr.8.29; 21.29; Isa.28.21; Jer. 28.1; 41.12
- Gideon: Judg.6.11-8.35; Heb.11.32
- Gihon: 1 Kgs. 1.33,38,45; 2 Chr.32.40
- Gilboa, Mount: 1 Sam.28.4; 31.8; 2 Sam.1.6-8; 21.12
- Gilead: Num.26.29-30; 27.1; 32.1,40; 36.1; Deut. 34.1; Judg.5.17; 10.17-18; 11.1-2; 2 Sam.2.9; 17.26; 1 Kgs.17.1; Pss.60.7; 108.8; S. of S.4.1; 6.5; Jer.50.19; Hos.6.8; 12.11; Amos 1.3,13; Mic.7.14; Zech.10.10; see also Balm of Gilead
- Gilgal: Josh.4.19-20; 5.9-10; 9.6; 10.6-9,15,43; 1 Sam.13.4,8,12-15; 2 Sam.19.15,40; Hos.4.15; 9.15; 12.11; Amos 4.4; 5.5; Mic.6.5
- Girgashites: Gen.10.16; 15.21; Deut.7.1; Josh.3.10; 24.11; 1 Chr.1.14; Neh.9.8
- Glean: Lev.19.9-10; Deut.24.21; Judg.8.2; Ruth 2.2-17; Isa.17.6; Jer.49.9; Mic.7.1
- God:
- Fatherhood of: Hos.11.1-6; Mal.2.10; Mt.6.26; 18.35
- Glory of: Exod.14.4,17-18; 16.6-7,10; 24.16-18; 33.18-23; 40.34-35; Lev.9.5-7,22-24; Num. 14.10-22; 1 Sam.4.21-22; 1 Kgs.8.10-13; Pss.8.1-9; 19.1-6; 24.7-10; 29.2-3,9; Isa.6.1-3; 48.11; 66.18-19; Ezek.3.12,23; 10.3-4,18; 39.21; 43.1-5; 44.4; Ecclus.49.8; Bar.5.9; Mt.16.27; 24.30; Mk.8.38; 10.37; 13.26; Lk.2.9,14; 9.31; 21.27; Jn.1.14; 2.11; 11.40; 17.5,24; Acts 7.2; 22.11; Rom.8.18; 9.4; 1 Cor.2.7-8; Eph.1.17-18; Phil.4.20; Rev.15.8; 21.11,23
- Grace of: Gen.6.8; Exod.33.12-17; Num.11.4-15; Job 10.8-12; Pss.5.12; 30.5; 44.3; 89.17; 103.6-14; Lk.1.28-30; 2.40,52; Jn.1.14-17; Acts 14.3;

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- 15.11; 20.32; Rom.1.7; 3.21–24; 4.1–5; 5.1–2,13–17,20–21; 6.1,12–15; 11.5–6; 12.3,6; 1 Cor.1.3; 15.10; 2 Cor.1.2,12–13; 6.1–2; 12.8–9; Gal.1.3, 6–9,15–17; 2.9; 5.2–4; Eph.1.4–7; 2.4–7; 3.8; 6.24; 2 Tim.1.9; Ti.2.11; 3.7; Heb.4.16; 10.29; Jas.4.5–7; 1 Pet.1.8–10
- Holiness of: Lev.11.44–45; 19.2; 20.26; 21.8; 22.2; Josh.24.19; Pss.23.3; 99.3,5,9; Isa.5.16; 6.1–3; 40.25,26; 57.15; Ezek.36.20–23; Hos.11.9; Mt.6.9
- Image of: Gen.1.26–27; 5.1–3; 9.3–6; Wis.2.23–24; Eccus.17.3; 1 Cor.11.7; Jas.3.9
- Names for: Gen.2.5; 4.26; 14.18; 16.13; 17.1; 21.33; 22.14; 31.42; Exod.3.6,12–15; 6.3; Deut.32.30; 1 Sam.1.3; 2.10; Dan.2.20; 4.34; 6.26; 7.7,13,22
- Gog and Magog: Ezek. chs.38–39; Rev.20.8
- Golden Rule, The: Lev.19.19; Eccus.31.15; Tob.4.15; Mt.7.12; Lk.6.31
- Golgotha (Calvary): Mt.27.33; Mk.15.22; Lk.23.33; Jn.19.17–18
- Goliath: 1 Sam.17.4–54; 2 Sam.21.19; 1 Chr.20.5
- Gomer: Hos.1.3–11
- Gomorrhah: See Sodom and Gomorrhah
- Goshen: Gen.45.10; 46.28–47.27
- Grasshopper: See Locust
- Greatest Commandment: Lev.19.17–18; Deut.6.4–5; Mt.22.34–40
- Greece/Greek (Gentile): Dan.8.21; 10.20–11.2; Joel 3.6; 1 Macc.1.1–10,16–31,41–50; 3.10–41; 4.1–34; 6.1–17,28–31,48–63; 7.1–4,8–11,19–20, 26–50; 9.1–4,11–15,43–53,57,63–64; 10.1–6,15–20,22–58,67–77,88–89; 11.1–19,28–53,54–59,60–66; 12.39–43,49; 13.12–24,31–32,34–42; 14.1–3; ch.15; 16.11–22; 2 Macc.2.19–23; 4.7–22; 5.1–27; 6.1–6; 8.8–9,29; 10.10–13; 11.1–38; 12.32–36; 13.1–2,9,18–26; 14.1–26,37–46; 15.1–36; Mk.7.26; Jn.7.35; 12.20–22; Acts 6.1; 9.29; 13.44–14.7; 16.1–2; 18.4; 19.10–11; 20.2,20–21; 21.28; Rom.1.14–16; 10.11–12; 1 Cor.1.22–24; Gal. 2.1–3; 3.28; Col.3.11; see also Hellenists; Javan
- Guilt-offering: Lev.5.14–6.7; 7.1–7; 14.12–13; 19.21; Ezra 10.19
- Hadadezer: See Aram
- Hadassah: Esther 2.7
- Hades: Lk.16.23; Rev.20.13–15; see also Ben-hinnom, Valley of; Hell; Sheol
- Hagar: Gen.16.1–16; 21.8–21; Gal.4.21–31
- Hail: Exod.9.18–23; 10.5; Josh.10.11; Job 38.22; Pss.18.12–13; 78.47–48; 105.32; 148.8; Isa.28.2, 17; 30.30; Ezek.13.11–13; Hag.2.17; Rev.8.7; 11.19; 16.21
- Ham: Gen.5.32; 7.13; 8.18–22; 10.1,6–20; Pss.78.50–51; 105.23–27; 106.22; see also Shem, Ham, and Japheth
- Haman: Esther 3.1–15; 5.4–14; 6.6,12–13; 7.6–10; 8.1; 9.10; Rest of Est.11.2–12
- Hamath/Lebo-hamath: Num.13.21; 34.8; 2 Sam.9.8; 2 Kgs.14.28; 17.24–30; 18.34; 19.13; Isa.10.9; 11.11; Jer.39.5; 49.23; Ezek.47.16–17,20; Zech. 9.2
- Hamor: Gen.33.19; 34.2–26; Judg.9.28
- Hannah: 1 Sam.1.2–2.21
- Harran: Gen.11.31–32; 12.4–5; 27.43; 28.10; 29.4; 2 Kgs.19.12
- Hazel: 1 Kgs.19.15–17; 2 Kgs.8.8–9,13–15; 28–29; 10.32–33; 12.17–18; 13.1–3,7,22–24; Amos 1.4
- Heathens: See Nations
- Heaven: Gen.1.1,8,14–15,20; 7.11; 8.2; 14.19; 22.11; 28.17; Exod.24.10; Deut.4.26,32,36; 10.14; 1 Kgs.8.27; Job 11.8; 20.27; 22.14; 26.11; Pss.19.6; 69.34; Isa.40.12; 66.1; Ezek.8.3; Dan.7.13; 2 Esd.8.52; Mt.3.2,17; 5.3,12,19,45; 6.9–10; 8.11; 13.24; 18.23; 21.25; 23.22; 24.30–35; Mk.1.10; 11.30; 13.27,31; 14.62; Lk.3.21; 10.18; 11.2; 20.4; 21.26,33; Jn.1.32,51; 3.13,31; 6.38; Acts 1.11; 2.25; 9.3; 11.5,9; Rom.1.18; 1 Cor.15.47; Gal.1.8; 1 Th.4.16; 2 Th.1.7; Rev.3.12; 4.1–2; 5.3; 6.14; 8.1,10,13; 9.1; 10.4,6; 11.6,19; 12.7–10; 13.13; 16.17,21; 20.9,11; 21.1,10
- Hebrew (the name): Gen.14.13; 39.14,17; 40.15; 41.12; Exod.1.15–19; 2.6–7,11–13; 3.18; 5.3; 9.1,13; Deut.15.12; 1 Sam.4.6,9; 13.3,19; 14.11, 21; 29.3; Jer.34.9,14; Jonah 1.9; Acts 6.1; 2 Cor. 11.22; Phil.3.5
- Hebron/Kiriath-arba: Gen.23.2–17; 37.14; Num. 13.22; Josh.10.39; 14.15; 20.7; Judg.1.10; 2 Sam. 2.1,11,32; 3.2,32; 5.3,13; 15.7,10
- Hell: 2 Esd.7.[36],[70]; Mt.5.22,29–30; 10.28; 18.9; 23.15,33; Mk.9.43–48; Lk.9.12,25; Jas.3.6; 2 Pet.2.4; Rev.1.18; see also Ben-hinnom, Valley of; Hades; Sheol
- Hellenists: Acts 6.1; see also Greece/Greek; Javan
- Hephi-bah: Isa.62.4
- Hermon: Deut.4.48; Josh.13.11; Pss.89.12; 133.3; S. of S.4.8
- Herod Antipas: Mt.14.1–6; Mk.6.14–22; Lk.3.1,19; 9.7,9; 23.7–15; Acts 4.27
- Herod the Great: Mt.2.1–16; Lk.1.5
- Hezekiah: 2 Kgs.18.1–20.21; 2 Chr. chs. 29–32; Prov.25.1; Isa. chs. 36–39; Jer.26.18–19; Eccus.48.17–25; 2 Esd.7.40[110]
- Hill-shrines/High Places: Lev.26.30; Num.21.28; 22.41; 33.52; Deut.33.29; 1 Sam.9.12–14,19–25; 1 Kgs.3.1–4; 11.7; 12.31–32; 13.2,32–33; 14.23; 15.14; 22.43; 2 Kgs.18.4; 21.3; 23.4–14; Ps.78.58; Isa.36.7; Ezek.6.1–14; 16.16; Hos.10.8
- Hiram/Huram: 2 Sam.5.11; 1 Kgs.5.1,10–12; 7.13,40; 9.12,27; 10.11,22; 1 Chr.14.1
- Hittites: Gen.25.9; 26.34; 36.2; Josh.9.1; 11.3; 1 Sam.26.6; 2 Sam.11.6,21; 12.9–10; Ezek.16.3
- Hivites: Exod.3.8,17; 13.5; 23.23,28; Deut.7.1; 20.17; Josh.3.10; 9.1; Judg.3.5
- Hobab: See Jethro
- Holophernes: Jdt.2.4–14.13
- Holy of Holies/Most Holy Place: Exod.26.33; 1 Kgs.6.16; 7.50; 8.6; Ezek.41.4; 43.12; 45.3; Dan.9.24
- Holy Spirit: Num.11.24–29; 2 Kgs.2.9; Pss.51.11; 139.7; 143.10; Isa.11.2; 48.16; 63.10–14; Joel 2.28–29; Zech.4.6; Mt.1.18,20; 3.16; 12.32; 28.19; Mk.1.8,10; 3.29; 13.11; Lk.1.15,35,41,67; 3.22; 4.14–15,18; 11.13; Jn.1.33; 4.24; 14.26; 20.22; Rom.5.5; Eph.1.13; Heb.2.4
- Hope: Ezra 10.2; Job 4.6; 5.16; 11.18; 14.19; Pss.71.5,14; 119.116; 146.5; Prov.10.28; 13.12; Eccus.9.4; Hos.2.15; Zech.9.12; Acts 2.26; 23.6; 26.6–7; 28.20; Rom. 4.18; 5.1–5; 8.20–25; 15.4,13; 1 Cor.9.10; 13.7,13; 15.19; 2 Cor.3.12; 10.15; Eph.2.12; Col.1.5,27; Ti.1.2; 2.13; Heb.11.1; 1 Pet.1.3,21
- Hor, Mount: Num.20.22; 21.4; 33.37; Deut.32.50
- Horeb: Exod.3.1; 17.6; 33.6; Deut.1.2,6,19; 4.10,15; 5.2; 9.8; 18.16; 29.1; 2 Chr.5.10; Ps.106.19; Mal.4.4; see also Sinai
- Horites: Gen.14.6; 36.2; Deut.2.12,22
- Hormah: Num.14.45; 21.3; Deut.1.44; Josh.15.30; 19.4

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Hosanna: Ps.118.25; Mt.21.9; Mk.11.9–10; Jn.12.13
 Hoshea: 2 Kgs.15.30; 17.1–4
 Hosts, Lord of: 1 Sam.1.11; Isa.1.9; Rom.9.29; Jas.5.4
 Huldah: 2 Kgs.22.14
 Humility: Exod.10.3; Prov.15.33; Phil.2.3
 Hypocrisy: Ecclus.27.22–24; Mt.6.2; Mk.7.6; Lk.12.1
- Ibzan: Judg.12.8–10
 Ichabod: 1 Sam.4.21; 14.3
 Iconium: Acts 13.51–14.7
 Idolatry: Gen.31.19,30–35; 35.2–4; Exod.20.4–6; 32.1–35; 34.11–17; Lev.19.4; Num.25.1–18 Deut.4.12–31; 13.6–18; 1 Sam.7.3–4; 1 Kgs.12.28–32; Ps.115.3–8; Isa.2.8,18; 40.18–26; 44.9–20; Jer.1.16; 10.1–16; Ezek.8.10–12; 14.1–11; Hos. 13.1–3; Mic.1.7; Zeph.1.2–6; Rest of Est.14.6–11; Wis.13.10–19; Let. Jer.6.4–73; 1 Cor.10.14–22; Rev.2.14,20
 Immanuel/Emmanuel: Isa.7.10–17; 8.8; Mt.1.23
 Immortality: Wis.1.15; 3.4; 6.17–20; 1 Cor.15.53
 Incense, Altar of: Exod.30.1,7–9; 31.8; 35.15; 37.25–29; Lev.16.12–13; 1 Chr.6.49; 28.18; Mal.1.11; Lk.1.10–11
 Interest: Exod.22.25; Lev.25.36; Deut.23.19–20; Ps.15.5; Ezek.18.8,13,17; Mt.25.27; Lk.19.23
 Isaac: Gen.17.19–21; 21.1–22.14; ch. 24; 25.19–28.5; 35.27–29; Amos 7.9,16; Ecclus.44.22; Rom.9.6–13; Gal.4.28; Heb.11.9,17–20
 Isaiah: 2 Kgs.19.1–20.19; 1 Chr.26.22; 32.20,32; 2 Esd.2.18; Ecclus.48.17–25; Lk.4.14–21; Jn. 12.39–41; Acts 8.28; Rom.9.27–29
 Ishbosheth: 2 Sam.2.8; 3.7,14; 4.8,12
 Ishmael: Gen.16.1–16; 21.8–21; Gal.4.21–31
 Israel:
     Children of and collective: Gen.46.8; Exod.1.1,7; 4.22–23; 12.37–42,50–51; 14.5–31; Num.11.4–30; Deut.4.1–40; 5.1–5; 6.4–9; 33.10,26–29; Josh. 5.2–12; 7.1–26; 24.31; Judg.3.1–30; 4.1–24; 5.1–11; 11.12–27; 1 Sam.4.1–10; 7.2–8.22; 10.1,17–24; 13.1–2; 2 Sam.7.22–26; Pss.14.7; 81.11–13; 114.2; 121.4; 135.4; Isa.1.3; 40.27–31; 43.1–15; 44.5,21–23; 45.4,17,25; 48.1–22; 49.1–7
     Elected by God: Deut.7.6–7; Ps.135.4; Isa.14.1; 41.8–10; 43.10–13; 44.1–5; 45.4; Ezek.20.5; Amos 3.2; 9.7–10; Mal.1.2–3; 2 Esd.7.[49]–[61]; Acts 13.17; Rom.11.1–18; Col.3.12; 1 Th.1.4; 2 Tim.2.10; Ti.1.1; 1 Pet.2.9; 2 Jn.1
     Holiness of: Exod.19.6; Lev.19.2; 20.8,22–26; Deut.7.6; Jer.2.3; Rom.11.16; Col.3.12; 1 Pet. 1.15; 2.5,9; Rev.4.6–10
     The name given Jacob: Gen.32.28; 35.10; 46.1–7; 47.29–31; Exod.32.13; Hos.12.12; see also Jacob
     Northern territory of: 2 Sam.11.11; 19.41–20.2; 4.20–21; 1 Kgs.11.26–31,37; 12.1–17; 14.19–20; 15.16–22,25–34; ch. 16; 20.13–18; 22–43; 22.1–40; 2 Kgs.9.14–27,30–37; 10.1–36; 13.1–13,22–25; 14.23–29,15.8–31; 16.5–9; 17.1–23; Hos.4.15–16; 5.1–9; 7.1–10; 10.1–8; Amos 2.6–8
     Issachar: Gen.30.18; 49.14; Num.1.8; Deut.27.12; 33.18; Josh.17.10–11; Judg.5.15; 10.1; 1 Kgs. 4.17; Ezek.48.25–26,33
     Ithamar: Exod.6.23; 38.21; Num.4.28
- Jabbok: Gen.32.22; Deut.2.37
 Jabesh-gilead: Judg.21.6–14; 1 Sam.11.1; 31.11; 2 Sam.2.4; 21.12
 Jabin: Josh.11.1; Judg.4.2–24; Ps.83.9
- Jachin and Boaz: 1 Kgs.7.21; 2 Chr.3.17
 Jacob: Gen.25.19–34; chs. 27–35; 37.1–50.11; Josh. 24.4,32; Mal.1.2; Ecclus.44.23–45.5; Jn.4.5–12
 Jacob's Well: Jn.4.6
 Jael: Judg.4.17–24; 5.24–27
 Jair: Judg.10.3–5
 Jairus: Mk.5.21–24,35–43; Lk.8.40–42,49–56
 James the Brother of Jesus: Mt.13.55; Mk.6.3; Acts 12.17; 15.13–21; 21.16; 1 Cor.15.7; Gal. 1.19; 2.9,12
 James the Son of Alphaeus: Mt.10.3; Mk.3.18; Lk.6.14; Acts 1.13
 James the Son of Zebedee: Mt.4.21; 10.2; 17.1; Mk.1.19,29; 3.17; 5.37; 9.2; 10.35,41; 13.3; 14.33; Lk.5.10; 6.14; 8.51; 9.28,54; Acts 1.13; 12.2
 Japheth: Gen.5.32; 6.10; 7.13; 9.18,20–27; 10.2–5; see also Ham; Shem, Ham, and Japheth
 Jashar, Book of: Josh.10.12–13; 2 Sam.1.17–27
 Javan: Gen.10.2,4; 1 Chr.1.5,7; Isa.66.19; Ezek.27.13; Dan.8.21; 10.20; Joel 3.6; Zech.9.13; see also Greece/Greek; Hellenists
 Jebus/Jebusites: Gen.10.16; Exod.33.2; 34.11; Num. 13.29; Josh.18.16,28; Judg.1.21; 19.10–11; 2 Sam.24.16–18; 1 Chr.11.4–5; see also Jerusalem/Salem
 Jeconiah: See Jehoiachin
 Jehoahaz of Israel: 2 Kgs.10.35; 13.1–9
 Jehoahaz (Shallum) of Judah: 2 Kgs.23.31–35; 2 Chr.36.2; Jer.22.10–12
 Jehoiachin/Jeconiah: 2 Kgs.24.8–16; 25.27–30; Jer. 24.1; 28.4; 52.31–34; 1 Esd.1.34; Bar.1.3
 Jehoiakim (Eliakim): 2 Kgs.23.34–24.7; 1 Esd.1.43
 Jehonadab: See Jonadab
 Jehovah: See God, Names for; Yahweh
 Jehoram: See Joram
 Jehoshaphat: 1 Kgs.15.24; 22.1–10,29–33,41–50; 2 Kgs.3.1,7–15; 2 Chr.17.1–21.1
 Jehoshaphat, Valley of: Joel 3.2
 Jehu (king): 2 Kgs. chs. 9–10
 Jehu (prophet): 1 Kgs. 16.1–7; 2 Chr.19.2; 20.34
 Jephthah: Judg.11.1–12.7; 1 Sam.12.11–16,18–19; 17.58; 20.30–31; 22.7–9; 2 Sam.20.1; 1 Kgs.12.16; Isa.11.1,10; Mt.1.5–6; Acts 13.22; Rom.15.12
 Jeremiah: 2 Chr.35.25; 36.12,21–22; Dan.9.2; 1 Esd. 1.45–48; 2 Esd.2.18; Ecclus.49.5–7; 2 Macc.2.1–3; Mt.16.14
 Jericho: Josh.2.1–3; 6.1–26; 24.11; 2 Sam.10.5; 1 Kgs.16.34; 2 Kgs.25.5; Mt.20.29; Mk.10.46; Lk.10.30; 18.35; 19.1; Heb.11.30
 Jeroboam the Son of Nebat: 1 Kgs.11.26–12.20; 12.25–14.20; 15.34; 2 Chr.10.2–5,12–16; 13.1–20
 Jerusalem/Salem: Gen. ch. 14; Josh.15.63; 18.28; Judg.1.8; 19.10–12; 2 Sam.5.6–10; 15.7–16.4; 1 Kgs.3.1; 11.13; 2 Kgs.21.10–13; ch. 25; Neh. chs. 1–3; Pss.122.2–6; 137.5–7; 147.2,12; Isa. 3.16–4.6; 31.4–9; 51.17–52.2; ch. 60; Jer. ch. 6; 51.1–27; Lam. ch. 1; Ezek. chs. 11; 24; 33.21–22; Zeph.3.1–7; Zech.1.8–17; chs. 12–14; 1 Esd.4.43–60; 2 Esd.10.25–28; Tob.13.8–9,16–18; Bar.4.30–5.9; Mt.21.10–17; 23.37–39; Mk.11.11; Lk.2.22–50; 13.34–35; Acts 1.4–8.3; 15.1–35; 20.16–23.30; Gal.1.18–2.10; 4.26; Heb.12.22; Rev.3.12; 21.1–21; see also Jebus/Jebusites
 Jeshua: See Joshua
 Jeshurun: Deut.32.15; 33.5,26; Isa.44.2
 Jesse: Ruth 4.17,22; 1 Sam.16.1–13
 Jesus:
     Ascension of: Lk.24.50–51; Jn.6.62–63; 20.17; Acts 1.9–11; Eph.4.10; 1 Pet.3.22

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Baptism of: Mt.3.13-17; Mk.1.9-11; Lk.3.21-22
 Birth of: Mt. 2.1-12; Lk.1.26-35
 Crucifixion of: See Cross/Crucifixion
 Death of: Mt.27.45-54; Mk.15.33-39; Lk.23.44-47; Jn.19.28-30 Resurrection appearances of: Mt.28.1-10; Lk.24.1-11; Jn.20.1-23; see also Risen Christ, The Temptation of: Mt.4.1-11; Mk.1.12-13; Lk.4.1-13; Heb.2.18; 4.15
 Trial of: Mt.26.57-75; Mk.14.53-72; Lk.22.54-71; Jn.18.12-19.16
 Jethro/Reuel: Exod.2.16-22; 3.1; 4.18; 18.1-12; Num.10.29
 Jews: 2 Kgs.25.25; Ezek.4.12; Esther 3.6; Mt.2.2; Mk.7.3; Jn.1.19; 2.13; Acts 2.10
 Jezebel: 1 Kgs.16.31; 18.4.13,19; 19.1-2; 21.5-25; 2 Kgs.9.7-37; Rev.2.20
 Jezreel (Esdraelon): Josh.17.16; Judg.6.33-7.23; 2 Sam.2.9; 4.4; Hos.1.5
 Joab: 2 Sam.2.18-24; 3.22-34; 8.16; 11.1-25; ch. 14; 24.4-9; 1 Kgs.1.7; 2.28-34; 11.15-16; 1 Chr. 20.1-3; 21.1-6
 Joash (king of Israel): 2 Kgs.13.10-19; 14.8-16
 Joash (king of Judah): 2 Kgs.11.2; ch. 12
 Job: Ezek.14.14,20; Jas.5.11
 John the Baptist: Mt.3.1-15; 9.14; 11.2-19; 14.1-2; 17.12-13; 21.31-32; Mk.1.4-11; 2.18-22; 6.14-29; 8.28; 9.12-13; 11.30-33; Lk.1.57-80; 3.1-22; 7.18-35; 9.7-9; 11.1; 20.1-8; Jn.1.15,19-39; 3.22-30; 5.33-36; 10.40-41; Acts 11.16; 18.25; 19.1-7
 Jonadab (Jehonadab) son of Rechab: 2 Kgs.10.15,23; Jer.35.6-19
 Jonah: 2 Kgs.14.25; Mt.12.39-41; 16.4; Lk.11.29-30
 Jonathan. David and: 1 Sam.18.1-4; 19.1-7; ch. 20; 23.16-18; 2 Sam.9.1,7 Joram (Jehoram) of Israel: 2 Kgs.3.1-3; 8.16-29
 Joram (Jehoram) of Judah: 2 Kgs.1.17; 8.16-24; 2 Chr.21.2-20
 Jordan River: Gen.32.10; Num.32.1-32; 35.1,9-15; Deut.1.1; 3.23-28; 9.1; Josh. chs. 3-4; Judg. 7.23-25; 12.5-6; 2 Sam.17.15-18.8; 2 Kgs.5.1-14; Pss.42.6; 114.3,5; Isa.9.1; Mt.3.5-6; 4.15; Mk.1.5,9; Jn.1.28; 3.26
 Joseph: Gen.30.24; 37.2-50.26; Exod.1.8; 13.19; Deut.33.13-17; Ezek.37.16,19; 47.13; 48.32; Amos 5.15; 6.6; Jn.4.5; Acts 7.9-14; Heb.11.21-22; Rev.7.8
 Joseph of Arimathaea: Mt.27.57-59; Mk.15.43-45; Lk.23.50; Jn.19.38
 Joseph husband of Mary: Mt.1.16-24; 2.13-22; Lk.1.27; 2.4-18; 3.23; 4.22; Jn.1.45; 6.42
 Joses (Joseph) brother of Jesus: Mt.13.55; 27.56; Mk.6.3; 15.40-47
 Joshua: Exod.17.8-16; 33.11; Num.13.8,16; 14.30; 27.18-23; Deut.31.3-23; 2 Esd.7.37[107]; Ecclus. 46.1-10; 1 Macc.2.55; Heb.4.8
 Joshua (priest): Ezra 3.2; Hag.1.1; Zech.3.1,3,8; 6.9-12
 Josiah: 1 Kgs.13.2; 2 Kgs.21.24-23.30; 2 Chr.34.1-35.17; Jer.22.15-16; 1 Esd.1.1-33; Ecclus.49.1-3
 Jotham (king): 2 Kgs.15.5-7.32-38; 2 Chr.26.21-27.9
 Jotham (son of Gideon): Judg.9.5-21,57
 Jubal: Gen.4.21
 Jubilee Year: See Sabbatical and Jubilee Years
 Judah (the kingdom): 2 Sam.5.5; 1 Kgs.12.17,20-24; 2 Kgs.25.21; Neh.2.5-7; 12.44; Pss.60.7; 114.2; Isa.3.1,8; 7.17; 11.12; Jer.3.18; 33.7; 42.15; 51.5; Hos.5.5; 6.4; Joel 3.20; Amos 2.4; Zech. 2.12; 12.7; Mal.2.11; 3.4
 Judah (the man): Gen.29.35; 37.26; 38.1-26; 44.16-18; 49.8-9
 Judah (the tribe): Num.2.3-9; 33.7; Josh.15.20-63; Judg.1.2-19; Heb.7.14
 Judas the Galilean: Acts 5.37
 Judas Iscariot: Mt.26.14-16,47-50; 27.3-5; Mk. 14.10-11,43-52; Lk.22.3-6,47-49; Jn.13.21-30; 18.5; Acts 1.15-18
 Judas Maccabaeus: 1 Macc.2.4; 3.1-9.22; 2 Macc. 2.19-15.39
 Judgement, The Last; The Great: Isa.2.9-19; 10.24-27; 27.1; Jer.25.15-38; Ezek. chs. 25-32; Hos. 4.1-2; Joel 3.1-16; Amos 5.18-20; Zeph.1.7-2.3; Dan.7.9-14; 2 Esd.7.[102]-[105]-36[106]-45[115]; Mt.19.16-30; 24.4-36; 25.31-46; Mk.10.17-31; 13.5-37; Lk.17.23,24,37; 18.18-30; 21.8-33; Jn.5.27-29; 1 Th.5.2; 2 Th.2.2; Rev.16.14; ch. 20
 Judges (trial): Exod.18.13-27; Lev.19.15; Deut. 1.16-18; 16.18-20; 17.8-13; 1 Sam.8.5; 2 Chr. 19.5-7; Pss.7.8; 82.1; Ecclus.46.11-12
 Justification (acquittal): Job 9.11-21; 13.15-18; 25.4; 32.2; 33.32; Pss.51.4; 143.2; Isa.43.9,26; 50.7-9; Acts 13.39-40; Rom.1.16-17; 3.21-31; 5.1-11; Gal.2.16; 3.24; Jas.2.21-25
 Justice: Gen.18.19; Deut.10.18; 16.19-20; 32.4; 2 Sam.8.15; 15.4; 23.3; 1 Kgs.10.9; 1 Chr.18.14; 2 Chr.9.8; Neh.9.33; Job 8.3; 34.12,17; 37.23; Pss.10.18; 37.28; 101.1; 119.121; Prov.1.3; 8.15; 19.28; 21.3; Eccles.5.8; Isa.1.17; 9.7; 30.18; 56.1; 58.2; 59.4,9,14; 61.8; Jer.22.3,15; 23.5; Ezek.45.9; Amos 5.24; Mic.6.8; Wis. 9.1-18; Ecclus.35.12-20; Bar.2.18; Mt.23.23; Rom.3.5
 Kadesh/Kadesh-barnea: Gen.14.7; Num.13.26; 20.16; 27.14; 32.8; 33.36; Deut.1.46; 9.23; 32.51; Josh. 10.41; 14.6-7; Ps.29.8; Ezek.47.19; 48.28
 Kedar: Gen.25.13; Ps.120.5; S. of S.1.5; Isa.21.16-17; 42.11; 60.7; Jer.2.10; 49.28; Ezek.27.21
 Kemosh: Num.21.29; Judg.11.24; Jer.48.7,13,46
 Kenan: See Cainan
 Kenaz: See Kenizzites
 Kenites: Gen.4.17-18; 15.19; Num.24.21-22; Judg. 1.16; 4.11-17; 1 Sam.15.6; 27.10; 30.29
 Kenizzites: Gen.15.19; Num.32.12; Josh.14.6,14
 Keturah: Gen.25.1-6; 1 Chr.1.32-33
 Kidron/Kedron: 2 Sam.15.23; 1 Kgs.15.13; 2 Kgs. 23.6,12; 2 Chr.15.16; 30.14; Jer.31.40; Jn.18.1
 King: Deut.17.14-20; Judg.8.22-23; 9.6,8-21; 1 Sam. 2.10; 8.1-23; 9.15-16; 10.17-27; chs. 11-12; 24.4-7; 2 Sam.5.1-3; 7.5-29; 1 Kgs.11.12,29-39; 12.1; Hos.6.7; 13.10-11; Zeph.3.15; Zech.14.9, 16-17; Jdt.9.12; Jn.6.15
 Kingdom of God/Heaven: Ps.145.11-13; Dan.2.44; 4.3; 7.14-27; Wis.6.20; Mt.5.20; 6.10,33; 7.21; 9.35; 11.11-12; 12.28; 13.31-32; 16.28; 18.1-14; Mk.1.14-15; 4.26-32; 9.1; Lk.11.2; 12.31; 13.18-19; 17.20-21; 22.29-30; 1 Cor.6.9-10; 15.50; Gal.5.21; Jas.2.5; Rev.11.17-18
 Kiriath-arba: See Hebron
 Kishon: Judg.4.7,13; 1 Kgs.18.40; Ps.83.9
 Knowledge, Tree of: Gen.2.9,17
 Korah: Num.16.1-40,49; 26.9-11; 27.3; Jude 11
 Laban: Gen.24.29-30; 27.43; 27.46-28.5; 29.5-31.55; 32.4
 Lachish: Josh.10.32; 12.11; 15.39; 2 Kgs.14.19; 18.14-17; 2 Chr.11.9; Isa.36.2; Jer.34.7; Mic. 1.13

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Laish (Dan): Judg.18.7-29; Isa.10.30
Lamech: Gen.4.19-24; 5.25-31
Lamp-stand (menorah): Exod.25.31-40; 37.17-24; 40.4-24; Num.8.1-4; Zech.4.2-3,11; 1 Macc. 4.48-51; Heb.9.2; Rev.1.12-2.5
Laodicea: Col.4.15; Rev.3.14-22
Last Supper: Mt.26.17-29; Mk.14.12-25; Lk.22.7-22; Jn.13.1-30; 1 Cor.11.17-34
Law:
James and the: Jas.2.14-26
Jesus and the: Mt.5.17-48; 22.36,40; Lk.2.22-39; 16.16-17; Jn.7.19-51
Mosaic: Exod. chs. 21-31; 34.1-36.1; Lev.1.1-9.7; 11.1-27.33; Num. chs. 5-6; chs. 8-9; 10.1-10; 15.1-40; 18.25-19.22; chs. 28-30; 31.21-30; ch. 35; Deut. chs. 12-19; Ecclus.3.1-16
Noahic: Gen.9.1-4
Paul and the: Rom.2.12-3.21; 2 Cor.3.4-15; Gal. 2.11-21
Lazarus: Jn.11.1-44; 12.9-11
Lazarus and the Rich Man: Lk.16.19-25
Leah: Gen.29.16-32; 30.16; 31.4; 33.2; 49.31; Ruth 4.11
Leaven: Exod.12.15-39; 13.3,7; 34.25; Lev.2.11; 6.16-17; Deut.16.3-4; Hos.7.4-6; Amos 4.5; Mt.13.33; 16.6,11-12; Mk.8.14-15; Lk.12.1; 13.20-21; 1 Cor.5.6-9; Gal.5.9
Lebanon: Deut.3.25; Judg.3.3; 1 Kgs.5.6-14; 7.2; 10.17,21; 2 Kgs.14.9; 19.23; Pss.29.6; 72.16; 92.12; S. of S.3.9; 4.8,11,15; 5.15; 7.4; Isa.10.34; 29.17; 33.9; 35.2; 40.16; 60.13; Jer.18.14; 22.6; 20; Ezek.17.3; 31.15; Hos.14.5-6; Nahum 1.4; Hab.2.17; Zech.10.10; 11.1
Lebbaeus: See Thaddaeus
Lemuel: Prov.31.1,4
Leprosy: Lev. ch. 13; 14.1-32; Num.12.9-15; Deut. 24.8-9; Kgs. ch. 5; 7.3-5; 15.5; 2 Chr.26.16-23; Mt.8.1-4; 10.8; 11.5; 26.6; Mk.1.40-45; 14.3; Lk.4.27; 5.12-16; 7.22; 17.11-19
Leviathan (sea-serpent, rahab): Job 3.8; 7.12; 9.13; 26.13; Pss.74.14; 104.26; Isa.27.1; 2 Esd.6.49-52; see also Rahab (dragon)
Levirate Marriage: Gen. ch. 38; Deut.25.5-10; Ruth 2.20; 3.9,12-13; 4.1-12; see also Marriage
Levites: Gen.49.5-7; Exod.32.26-29; Lev.25.32-33; Num.1.47-53; 3.5-4.49; 8.5-26; ch. 18; 35.1-8; Deut.12.12,19; 14.27-29; 18.1-8; Josh.21.1-42; Judg.17.7-13; 19.1-20.11; 1 Chr. chs. 15-16; 23; 2 Chr.5.2-14; 11.13-16; 13.5-12; 35.1-19; Ezra 8.7-20; Neh.7.73b-8.12; 13.10; Jer.33. 18-22; Ezek.44.10; 48.11; 1 Esd.9.48; Lk.10.32; Jn.1.19; Heb.7.11
Life: See Breath
Life, Book of: See Living, Roll of the Life, Tree of: Gen.2.9; 3.22; Prov.3.18; 11.30; Rev.2.2,14,19
Living, Roll of the: Exod.32.32-33; Pss.56.8; 69.28; Dan.12.1; Mal.3.16; Lk.10.20; Phil.4.3; Rev.3.5; 13.8; 17.8; 20.12,15; 21.27
Loaves: Mt.14.17
Locust/Grasshopper: Exod.10.12-20; Lev.11.22; Num.13.30-33; Deut.28.38; Judg.6.5; 1 Kgs.8.37; 2 Chr.7.13; Pss.78.46; 105.34; 109.23; Isa.33.2-4; 40.22; Joel 1.2-4; 2.25-27; Amos 7.1-3; Nahum 3.15-17; Mt.3.4; Mk.1.6; Rev.9.3-11
Lord's Prayer: Mt.6.9-13
Lord's Supper: Mt.26.26-28; 1 Cor.10.16-21; 11.17-34
Lot: Gen.11.27-13.14; ch. 19; Deut.2.9,19; Ps.83.8; Lk.17.28-32; 2 Pet.2.7
Lots: Exod.28.15; Lev.16.7-10; Num.26.55-56; Josh.7.14; 14.2; 18.6-11; 1 Sam.10.20-21; 14.41-42; 1 Chr.25.8; Neh.10.34; Ps.22.18; Prov.16.33; 18.18; Job.3.3; Jonah 1.7; Nahum 3.10; Mt. 27.35; Lk.1.9; Jn.19.24; Acts 1.26; 8.21
Love, Christ's: Jn.13.34; 15.9; Gal.2.20; Eph.5.25
God's for Christ: Jn.3.35; 15.9; 17.23
God's for the Church: 1 Jn.3.1
God's for Israel: Deut.7.6-8; Isa.5.1-7; 54.8; Jer.31.3; Hos.11.1; Mal.1.2-3
God's for Man: Jn.3.16; 17.23; Rom.5.8; 1 Jn. 4.7-12,16
Man's for God: Exod.20.6; Deut.6.5; 7.9; 10.12-13; Mt.6.24; 22.37; Mk.12.30; Lk.10.27; 16.13; 1 Jn.4.19-21; 5.1-3
Man's for Man: Lev.19.17-18; Mt.5.43-46; 22.39; Mk.12.31; Lk.6.27-35; Jn.13.34-35; 15.17; Heb.13.1; 1 Jn.4.7-12,19-21; 5.1-3
Luke: Col.4.14; 2 Tim.4.11; Philem.24
Luz: Gen.28.19
Lycia: Acts 14.6
Lycia: Acts 27.5
Lydia: Acts 16.14-40
Lysias: Acts 23.26; 24.7
Lystra: Acts 14.6-19; 16.1-2
Maacah: 2 Sam.3.3; 1 Kgs.15.13; 2 Chr.15.16
Macedonia: Acts 16.9-40; ch. 20
Machir: Gen.50.23; Num.32.39-40; Deut.3.15; Josh.13.31; 17.1; Judg.5.14
Machpelah: Gen. ch. 23; 25.9; 49.30; 50.13
Magi: Mt.2.7-12
Magic: Gen.41.8; Exod.22.18; Lev.19.26,31; 20.6,27; Deut.18.10-14; 1 Sam.28.3-14; 2 Kgs.9.22; 21.9; Isa.3.2-3; Ezek.13.18-20; Dan.1.20; Mic. 3.5-11; 5.12
Maher-shalal-hash-baz: Isa.8.1-3
Mammon (money): Mt.6.24; Lk.16.9
Mamre: Gen.13.18; 18.1
Man (kind), Nature of: Gen.1.26-29,31; 2.7-8,18-23; 6.5; 8.21; Job 7.1-6; 10.8-12; 14.1-2; Pss. 8.3-8; 90.3-10; 103.13-16; Isa.40.6-8; 2 Esd. 3.20; 4.30; Ecclus.11.19-25; 40.1-11; 1 Cor. 15.44b-49
Manasseh (king): 2 Kgs.21.1-18; 2 Chr.33.1-20
Manasseh (tribe): Gen.41.51; ch. 48; Num.1.34-35; 32.33; 34.14; Josh. ch. 22; 1 Chr.7.14; 12.19
Manna: Exod.16.14-36; Num.8.3; Josh.5.12; Neh. 9.20; Ps.78.24; Jn.6.31; 1 Cor.10.3; 2 Bar.29.8 (noncanonical); Rev.2.17
Manoah: Judg.13.2; 16.31
Maon: Josh.15.55; 1 Sam.23.24; 25.2; 1 Chr.2.45
Marana-tha: 1 Cor.16.22; Rev.22.20
Mark: Acts 12.12,25; 13.5; 15.37; Col.4.10; Philem. 24; 1 Pet.5.13
Marriage: Gen.1.27-28; 2.24-25; Lev.18.6-18; Deut. 22.13-30; Isa.62.5; Mt.19.3-12; 1 Cor.7.1-16; Eph.5.21-33; 1 Th.4.4-5; Heb.13.4; see also Levirate Marriage
Marriage, Mixed: Num.36.1-12; Ezra 9.1-10.17; 1 Esd.8.68-9.36; 1 Cor.7.12-16
Mars Hill: See Areopagus
Martha and Mary: Lk.10.38-42; Jn.11.5-46; 12.1-8
Mary mother of Jesus: Mt.1.16-20; 2.11; 13.55; Mk.6.3; Lk.1.27-2.34; Jn.19.25-27; Acts 1.14
Mary Magdalene/Mary of Magdala: Mt.27.55-56; 28.1; Mk.15.40; 16.1,9-10; Lk.8.2; 24.10; Jn. 19.25; 20.1,11-18
Massah/Meribah: Exod.17.7; Deut.9.22; 33.8; Ps.95.8
Matthew: Mt.9.9

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Matthias: Acts 1.23,26
Media: 2 Kgs.17.6; 18.11; Ezra 6.2; Esther 1.19; Dan.5.28-31; 9.1; Acts 2.9
Megiddo: Josh.12.21; 17.11-12; 1 Kgs.9.15; 2 Kgs. 9.27; 23.29; Zech.12.11; Rev.16.16
Melchizedek: Gen.14.18-24; Ps.110.4; Heb.5.6; 7.1-28
Memucan: Esther 1.14,16,21
Mene Mene Tekel U-pharsin: Dan.5.25
Mephiboseth: 2 Sam.4.4; 9.1-13; 16.1-4; 19.24-30
Merab: 1 Sam.14.49; 18.17-19
Mercy: Deut.4.13; 2 Sam.24.14; 1 Chr.21.13; Pss.6.2; 51.1; 59.5; 77.9; Prov.28.13; Isa.9.17; 27.11; 47.6; Dan.2.17-18; 9.18; Hab.3.2; Wis.12.3-11; Ecclus.5.4-7; 35.12-20; Bar.2.27; 3.2; Pr. M. 6-8; Mt.5.7; 9.13; 12.7; 23.23; Lk.1.50,55,72; 18.13; Rom.9.15-16,18,23; 11.30-32; 15.9; 2 Cor.1.3; Gal.6.16; Eph.2.4; Phil.2.27; 1 Tim. 1.2,13,16; 2 Tim.1.2,16,18; Ti.3.5; Heb.2.17; 4.16; 8.12; Jas.2.13; 3.17; 1 Pet.1.3; 2.10; 2 Jn.3; Jude 2.21
Meribah: See Massah
Meshach: See Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego
Messiah: Isa.9.2-7; 11.1-9; 45.1; Dan.7.13-14; 9.25-26; 2 Esd.7.28-29; 12.31-34; 13.3-4,25-26; Mt.2.4-6; 16.13-17; 26.63-64; Jn.1.41; 4.25-26; 7.25-31; 10.24-26; Acts 2.36; 3.2; 4.25-29; 5.42; 8.5; 9.22; 18.5,28; see also Anointed
Methuselah: Gen.5.21-27
Micah (the Ephraimite): Judg. chs. 17-18
Micah (the prophet): Jer.26.16-19
Michael: Dan.10.13,21; 12.1; Jude 9; Rev.12.7
Michal: 1 Sam.14.49; 18.27; 25.44; 2 Sam.3.13; 6.16,20
Midian/Midianites: Gen.37.28,36; Exod.2.15-22; 3.1-4,23; 18.1; Num.22.1-8; 25.6-18; 31.1-18; Judg.6.2-8,25; Ps.83.10; Isa.9.4; 10.26; Hab.3.7
Milcom: 1 Kgs.11.5,33; 2 Kgs.23.10-13
Miletus: Acts 20.15-38; 2 Tim.4.20
Millennium: Rev.20.4-6
Miriam: Exod.15.20-21; Num. ch. 12; 20.1; Deut. 24.9; Mic.6.4
Mizpah: Gen.31.45-49; Josh.18.26; Judg.10.17; 11.11,29; 1 Sam. 7.5-16; 1 Kgs. 15.16-22; 2 Kgs. 25.23; Neh.3.7,15,19; Jer. chs. 40-41; 1 Macc. 3.46
Moab/Moabites: Gen.19.37; Deut.1.5; 23.3; Judg. 3.28-30; Ruth 1.1; 2 Sam.8.2; 2 Kgs.3.4-27; 13.21; Isa. chs. 15-16; Zeph.2.9-11
Molech/Moloch: Lev.18.21; 1 Kgs.11.7; 2 Kgs.23.10; Jer.32.35; Acts 7.43
Mordecai/Mardocheus: Ezra 2.2; Esther 2.5 ff.; Rest of Est.
Moriah: Gen.22.2; 2 Chr.3.1
Moses: Exod. 2.1-10; 2.23-4.18; chs. 5-11; Num. 11.29-22.1; 27.12-14; Deut.34.1-8; 1 Chr.23.15; Ezra 3.2; Neh.10.29; Ps. 99.6; Isa.63.11-12; Mic.6.4; 2 Esd.7.59[129]; Wis.18.5; Ecclus. 45.1-4; Mal.17.3-4; 23.2; Lk.16.29,31; 20.37; Jn.9.28-29; Acts 9.20-43; 2 Cor.3.7-18; Heb. 3.5-6; 11.23-28; Rev.15.3
Most Holy Place: See Holy of Holies
Murder: Exod.20.13; Num.35.9-34; Deut.5.17; Ps. 10.8; Isa.1.21; Jer.7.9; Hos.6.9; Mt.15.19; 19.18; 22.7; Mk.7.21; 15.7; Lk.23.19-25; Jn. 8.44; Acts 3.15; 7.52; 28.4; Rom.1.29; 1 Pet. 4.15; 1 Jn.3.15; Rev.9.21; 21.8; 22.15
Mysia: Acts 16.7-8
Mystery: Mk.4.11; Rom.11.25; 16.25; 1 Cor.4.1; 13.2; 15.51; Eph.1.9; 3.3; 5.32; 6.19
Naaman: 2 Kgs. ch. 5
Nabal: 1 Sam.25.10-38
Naboth: 1 Kgs. ch. 21; 2 Kgs.9.4
Nadab: 1 Kgs.14.20; 15.25
Nadab and Abihu: Lev. ch. 10
Nain: Lk.7.11-16
Naomi: Ruth 1.2 ff.
Naphtali: Gen.30.8; 35.25; 46.24; 49.21; Deut.33.23
Naphtali, Tribe of: Num.1.42; 10.27; Judg.4.10; 5.18; 6.35; 2 Kgs. 15.29; Isa.9.1; Mt.4.13-15
Nathan: 2 Sam.7.2-17; 12.1-25; 1 Kgs.1.8-45; 1 Chr. 17.1-15; 29.29; 2 Chr.9.29; Ps.51; Ecclus.47.1
Nathanael: Jn.1.45; 21.2
Nations: Gen.17.4-20; 18.18; 26.4; Exod.34.24; Lev.18.24-28; Num.14.15; Deut.4.27; 28.1-65; 1 Sam.8.20; Neh.13.26; Pss.67.4; 96.3; 113.4; 147.20; Mic.4.3; Zech.14.2-19; Mal.3.12; Mt. 28.19; Mk.11.17; Acts 2.5; 17.26; Gal. 3.8; Rev.5.9; 15.4; 22.2
Nazareth: Mt.2.23; Mk.1.9; Lk.1.26; Jn.1.45
Nazirites: Num.6.1-21; Judg.13.5,7; 16.17; 1 Sam. 1.27-28; Lam.4.7; Amos 2.11-12
Nebo: Deut.32.49-52; 34.1
Nebuchadnezzar/Nebuchadrezzar: 2 Kgs. chs. 24-25; Jer. chs. 21; 25; 27-28; 32; 34; 37-39; 52; Ezek.26.7; Dan. chs. 1-4; 2 Esd.2.1; Jdt. 1.1
Nebuzaradan: 2 Kgs.25.8-20; Jer.52.30
Necho: See Pharaoh Necho
Necromancy: Lev.19.31; Deut.18.11; 1 Sam.28.3-20
Needle's Eye: Mt.19.24; Mk.10.25; Lk.18.25
Nehemiah: Neh.1.1; 8.9; 10.1; 12.26,47; 1 Esd. 5.40; Ecclus.49.13
Nephilim: Gen.6.1-4; Num.13.33; Deut.1.28
Nethinim: Ezra 2.36,40-43; 7.7,24; 8.17-20; Neh. 7.60; 10.28; 11.21
New Moon: Num.10.10; Col.2.16
New Year: Exod.12.1-2; Lev.23.24-25; Num.29.1-6; Neh.8.2
Nicanor, Day of: 1 Macc.7.49; 2 Macc.15.36
Nicodemus: Jn.3.1; 7.50; 19.39
Nicolaitans: Rev.2.6-15
Nile: Gen.41.1; Exod.1.22; Isa.18.2; Ezek.29.3; Zech.10.11
Nimrod: Gen.10.9
Nineveh: Jonah 1.1; 3.2-10; Nahum 1.1-2.8; Tob.1.3
Noah: Gen.5.29-9.29; Isa.54.9; Ezek.14.14,20; Ecclus. 44.17-18; Mt.24.37-38; Lk.17.26-27; Heb.11.7; 1 Pet.3.20; 2 Pet.2.5
Nob: 1 Sam.21.1; 22.9-19; Neh.11.32; Isa.10.32
Oaths: Gen.24.1,8; 26.28-31; 47.29; Exod.20.7; 22.9-11; Lev.5.4; 19.12; Num.5.19-22; 30.2-15; Deut.7.8; 29.12,14; Josh.9.18-20; Ruth 1.17; 1 Sam.14.26,39-45; 1 Kgs.8.31; 2 Chr.6.22; 15.15; Neh.10.29; Job 31.4-34,38-40; Pss.7.3-5; 15.4; 105.9; 137.5-6; Ezek.17.13-21; 23.16-22; Ecclus.23.9-11; Mt.5.33-37; 14.7-9; 23.16-4.2; Mk.6.23; Acts 2.30; 2 Cor.1.23; Gal.1.20; Heb.6.16-17; Jas.5.12; see also Vows
Obedience/Disobedience: Gen.22.18; 26.4-5; Exod. 19.5; Deut.11.13-14,27-28; 27.10; 1 Sam.15.22; Isa.1.19-20; Jer.7.22-25; 11.3-8; Zech.6.15; Mt.8.24-27; Mk.4.41; Lk.8.25; Rom.5.19; 6.17-19; Phil.2.8; Heb.5.8
Og: Num.21.31-35; Deut.3.1-13; Josh.12.4-6; 13.12, 30-31; Neh.9.22; Pss.135.10-11; 136.18-20
Oils/Ointments: Exod.27.20; 30.31; 37.29; Lev.2.1; 24.2; 1 Kgs.17.12-16; 2 Kgs.4.1-6; Ps.104.15; Mic.6.7; Mt.25.3; 26.7; Mk.14.3; Lk.23.56; Jn.12.3

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Olives, Mount of (Olivet): 2 Sam.15.20-32; 2 Kgs. 23.13; Ezek.11.23; Zech.14.4; Mt.21.1; 24.3; 26.30; Mk.11.1; 13.3; 14.26; 22.39; Acts 1.12
- Omri: 1 Kgs.16.15-28
- Onan: Gen.26.23; 38.4
- Onesimus: Col.4.9; Philem.10
- Ophir: 1 Kgs.9.28; 10.11; 22.48; 1 Chr.29.4; 2 Chr. 8.18; Job 22.24; Ps.45.9; Isa.13.12
- Paddan-aram /Aram-naharaim: Gen.24.10; 25.20; 28.26
- Pain: 2 Cor.12.7-9
- Pamphylia: Acts 2.10; 14.24; 15.38; 27.5
- Paphos: Acts 13.6-8
- Parable: Judg.9.7-15; 2 Sam.12.1-6; 14.6-11; 1 Kgs. 22.19-23; 2 Kgs.14.9; Isa.5.1-6; Ezek. ch. 37; Mt.13.1-30; Mk.4.1-20; Lk.8.4-10
- Pardon: See Forgiveness
- Paradise: 2 Esd.7.[70]; Lk.23.43; 2 Cor.12.3-4; Rev. 2.7; see also Eden
- Parousia: Mt.24.3-44; Mk.13.24-27; Lk.21.25-28; Acts 1.11; 1 Cor.1.8; 15.23; 16.22; 1 Th.4.13-5.10,23; 2 Th.1.7-2.12; Jas.5.7-8; 2 Pet.3.4; 1 Jn. 2.28; Rev.22.20; see also Day of the Lord
- Paschal Lamb: Exod.12.3-5,21,43,46-48; 13.1; Deut. 16.1-8; 2 Chr.30.1-18; 35.1-19; Ezra 6.19-20; 1 Esd.1.1-2,6-9; Mk.14.12; Lk.22.7; 1 Cor.5.7
- Passover (Feast of Unleavened Bread): Exod.12.1-27,43-49; 13.1-16; Lev.23.5-6; Num.9.2-14; 28.16; Deut.16.1-8; Josh.5.10-11; 2 Chr.30.1-20; 35.1-19; Ezra 6.19-20; Ezek.45.21; 1 Esd.1.1-22; 7.5-15; Mt.26.2,17-19; Mk.14.1,12-16; Lk. 22.7-13; Jn.18.28,39; 19.14; Acts 12.3; 1 Cor. 5.7; Heb.11.28
- Patmos: Rev.1.9
- Paul: Acts 7.58; 9.1-22; 13.14; 22.4-21; 26.4-18; 1 Cor.16.8; Gal.1.1,12-20; Phil.3.4-14; Col.1.23
- Pekah: 2 Kgs.15.27-31
- Pentecost: Tob.2.1; 2 Macc.12.31-32; Acts 2.1; 20.16; 1 Cor.16.8; see also Feasts/Festivals
- Peniel/Peniel: Gen.32.30-32; Judg.8.8-17; 1 Kgs. 12.25
- Perez: Gen.38.29; Num.26.20; 1 Chr.2.4-5; Ruth 4.12,18; Neh.11.4-6; Mt.1.3
- Pergamum (Pergamos): Rev.1.11; 2.12
- Perizzites: Gen.13.7; 15.20; Exod.3.8; 33.2; Deut. 20.17; Josh.9.1; 17.15; Judg.1.4-5; 3.5-6; 1 Kgs. 9.20-21; 2 Chr.8.7
- Persecution: Pss.31.15; 119.157,161; 142.6; Jer. 15.15; 17.18; Mt.5.44; 10.23; 13.21; Jn.15.20; Acts 8.1; 9.4; Rom.8.35; 12.14; 1 Cor.4.12; Gal. 1.13; Phil.3.6; 2 Th.1.4; 2 Tim.3.11-12
- Persia: 2 Chr.36.20; Ezra 1.1; Esther 1.3; Ezek.27.10; Dan.8.20
- Peter, Simon (Cephas): Mt.4.18-19; 8.14; 10.2; 14.29; 16.13-23; 17.1-7,24-26; 18.21; 19.27; 26.37,69-75; Mk.1.16-18,29-30; 3.16; 8.29-33; 9.2-6; 10.28; 14.33,66-72; 16.7; Lk.4.38-39; 5.1-8; 9.14,20,28-34; 18.28; 22.31-34,54-62; Jn.13.36-38; Acts 1.13; 2.14-36; 4.8-21; 5.8-10,15,29-32; 8.20-23; 10.5-48; 11.2-17; 12.3-18; 15.7-11; Gal.1.18; 2.7-9,11-21
- Pharaoh: in the days of Abraham: Gen.12.15-20 in the days of Joseph: Gen.37.36; 39.1; 40.1-42.16; 44.18; 45.2-50.7 during the Exodus: Exod.3.10-11; 4.21-15.9; 18.4-11; Deut.6.21-22; 7.8-18; 11.3; 29.2; 34.11; 2 Kgs.17.7; Neh.9.10; Pss.135.9; 136.15; Acts 7.10-21; Rom.9.17 during Moses' escape to Midian: Exod.2.15 during Moses' infancy: Exod.1.11-2.10 Pharaoh Necho: 2 Kgs.23.29-35; 2 Chr.35.20-22 Pharisees: Mt.3.7; 9.10-17; 12.1-14; 15.1-20; 22.15-22; 23.1-6; Mk.2.16-18,23-3.6; 7.1-23; 12.13-17; Lk.5.30-33; 6.1-11; 7.36-50; 13.31-33; 18.9-14; Jn.3.1-5; 7.45-52; Acts 23.6 Philip: Mt.10.3; Mk.3.18; Lk.6.14; Jn.1.43; 12.22; 14.8; Acts 6.5; 8.5,38 Philistines: Gen.10.14; 21.32; Judg. chs. 13-16; 1 Sam.4.1-7.14; 9.16; 13.1-11; ch. 17; 23.1-5, 27-28; chs. 27-29; 31.1-11; 2 Sam.5.17-25; 8.1; 21.15-22; 23.9-17; Isa.14.29-31; Jer. ch. 47; Amos 1.6-8; Zech.9.5-7 Phinehas: Num.25.10-13; 31.6; Josh.22.13,31-32; Judg.20.28; Ps.106.30; Ecclus.45.23-26 Phrygia: Acts 16.6; 18.23 Phylacteries: Exod.13.16; Deut.6.8; 11.18; Mt.23.5 Pilate, Pontius: Mt. 27.2-26,57-58; Mk.15.1-15, 42-45; Lk.3.1; 23.1-25,50-52; Jn.18.28-19.16,38 Pilgrim Festivals: Exod.3.18; 5.1-4; 23.14-17; 34.18, 22-24; Lev. ch. 23; Deut.16.1-17; see also Feasts/Festivals Pillar, Sacred: Gen.28.18-22; 31.13-52; 35.20; Exod. 24.4; 34.13; Lev.26.1; Deut.12.3; 16.22; 2 Sam. 18.18; 1 Kgs.14.23; 2 Kgs.3.2; 10.26-27; 17.10; 18.4; 23.14; Isa.19.19; Hos.3.4; 10.1-2; Mic.5.13 Pillar of Cloud/Fire: Exod.13.21-22; 14.19-20,24; 33.9-10; Num.12.5; 14.14; Deut.31.15; Neh. 9.12,19; Ps.99.7; 2 Esd.1.14; see also Fire Pillar of Salt: Gen.19.26 Pishgah: Num.21.20; Deut.3.17; Josh.12.3; 13.20 Pithom: Exod.1.11 Pity: Pss.69.20; 72.13; 102.13; 103.13; Isa.63.9; Hosea 1.6; Jonah 4.11; Mt.20.30-34; 1 Cor. 15.19; Jas.5.11 Plagues: Exod.7.14-11.10; 12.28-36; Num.14.37; 16.48-50; 25.8-26.1; Deut.28.58-61; 1 Sam. 5.9,12; 6.4-5; 2 Sam.24.21-25; Ps.106.29-30; Joel 1.2-2.17; Wis.11.5-14 ff; Rev.6.8; 9.20; 11.6; ch. 15; 16.9,21; 18.4,8; 21.9; 22.18 Poison: See Gall Pontus: Acts 2.9; 1 Pet.1.1 Poor: Exod.23.3; Lev.14.21; Deut.15.11; 1 Sam.2.7; Job 30.25; Pss.34.6; 40.17; 113.7; Prov.17.5; 22.2; 28.6,27; Eccles.9.15; Isa.3.15; 25.4; Ecclus. 4.1-10; Mt.5.3; 11.5; 26.11; Lk.16.20; 2 Cor. 6.10; 8.9; Jas.2.2; Rev.3.17 Power (strength, might, meaning God): Exod. 15.6; Num.14.17; 2 Sam.22.33; 2 Chr.25.8; Job 36.22; Pss.21.13; 29.4; 67.2; 106.8; 147.5; Jer.51.15; Mt.26.64; Mk.14.62; Lk.1.35; 5.17; 22.69; 1 Cor.1.24; Heb.1.3; Rev.7.12; 19.1-2 Prayer: Gen.25.21; Deut.3.23-25; 1 Sam.1.9-18; 12.23; 1 Kgs.8.22-54; 2 Chr.6.14-42; Pss.39.12; 65.2; 72.15; 88.2; 122.6; 141.2; Prov.15.29; Dan. 6.10; Jonah 2.7; Mt.6.5-7; 7.7-11,22; 26.36-46; Mk.14.32-42; Lk.11.2-4,9-13; 18.10-14; 19.24-25; 22.40-46; Acts 1.14; Rom.12.12; Eph.6.18; Phil.4.6; Col.4.2; 1 Th.5.17; Jas.5.16; 1 Pet. 3.12; Rev.5.8 Precipice: Lev.16.8-10.26 Priscilla/Prisca: Acts 18.2; Rom.16.3; 1 Cor.16.19; 2 Tim.4.19 Priests, Functioning of: Exod. chs. 28-29; 40.15; Lev.2.1; chs. 8-10; 21.1-22.16; Num. ch. 18; Deut.18.1-8; 24.8; 33.8; 1 Sam.2.12-17; Isa. 61.6; 66.21; Ezek. ch. 44; Hag.2.4-9; Mal.2.4-9; 1 Esd.8.54-60; Ecclus.45.6-26; 50.5-21; Heb. 7.11-24; 1 Pet. 2.5,9

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Principalities (cosmic powers): Rom.8.38; Eph.3.10; 6.12; Col.1.16; 2.15
- Promise (resolve): Exod.3.17; Pss.119.38,57; 116; 148; Lk.24.49; Acts 1.4; 2.39; Rom.4.13; 2 Cor. 1.20; Gal.3.14-29; Eph.1.13; 2.12; Ti.1.2; Heb. 9.15; 11.11; Jas.1.12; 2 Pet.3.9; see also Vows
- Prophecy/Prophets: Gen.20.7; Exod.7.1-2; Num. 11.26-30; 12.5-8; Deut.18.15-22; 1 Sam.9.9; 10.5-13; 19.18-24; 1 Kgs.18.19-40; 22.5-28; 2 Kgs.22.11-20; Ps.74.9; Jer.2.5-10; 15.15-18; Amos 3.3-8; 7.14-15; 2 Esd.1.32.35-2.1; 2.18-21; Eccles.46.13-20; 48.1-14,22-49.3; 1 Macc. 4.46; 9.27; 14.41; Jn.6.14; 7.40; Acts 3.17-26
- Prophets, False: Deut.13.1-5; 18.20-22; 1 Kgs.22.19-28; Jer.5.30-31; 14.13-16; 23.9-40; 27.13-28.9; Ezek. ch. 13; Mic.3.5-8
- Proselytes: Isa.56.1-8; Jdt.14.10; Mt.23-15; Acts 2.10; 6.5; 13.43
- Prostitution: Lev.19.29; Deut.23.17-18; 1 Kgs.14.24; Jer.3.1-8; Hos.4.14; Let. Jer.6.43; Lk.7.36-50; 1 Cor.6.15
- Proverbs: Gen.10.9; Deut.28.37; 1 Sam.10.12; 1 Kgs. 4.32; Job 17.6; Ps.44.14; Jer.24.9; Ezek.16.44; 18.3; Lk.4.23; Jn.4.37; 2 Pet.2.22
- Purification/Purity: See Cleanliness; Expiation
- Purim: Esther 9.20-32
- Putcoli: Acts 28.11-16
- Quails: Exod.16.13; Num.11.31-32; Ps.105.40
- Quake/Earthquake: Gen.19.24-29; Exod.19.18; Num. 16.31; Judg.5.5; 1 Sam.14.15; 1 Kgs.19.11; Pss.60.2; 99.1; Isa.29.6; 64.1; Ezek.38.20; Amos 1.1; Zech.14.5; Mt.24.7; 27.51; 28.2; Mk.13.8; Lk.21.11; Acts 16.26; Rev.6.12; 8.5; 11.13
- Rameses: Exod.1.11; 12.37; Num.33.3-5
- Rabbah/Rabbath-Ammon: Deut.3.11; Josh.13.25; 2 Sam.11.1; 12.26-31; Jer.49.2-3; Ezek.21.20; 25.5; Amos 1.14
- Rabbi: Mt.23.7-8; Jn.1.38; 3.2; 9.2
- Rachel: Gen.29.6-35.25; 48.7; Jer.31.15; Mt.2.18
- Raguel: Tob.3.7; 7.1-11.1
- Rahab (dragon): Job 9.13; 26.12; Pss.87.4; 89.10; Isa.30.7; 51.9-10; see also Leviathan
- Rahab (woman): Josh.2.1; 6.17; Heb.11.31; Jas.2.25
- Rain: Gen.2.5; 7.4.12; Lev.26.3-4; Deut.11.10-17; 28.12.24; 1 Sam.12.17-18; 2 Sam.1.21; 1 Kgs. 8.35-36; 17.1,14; 18.41,44-45; 2 Kgs.3.17; Ezra 10.9,13; Job 5.10; 28.26; 29.23; 37.6; Pss.68.9; 84.6; 147.8; Prov.16.15; 26.1; Isa.5.6; 30.23; Jer.3.3; 5.24; 14.22; Hos.6.3; Joel 2.23; Amos 4.7; Zech.10.1; 14.17; Mt.5.45; Jas.5.17; Rev.11.6
- Rainbow: Gen.9.12-17; Ezek.1.28; Rev.4.3; 10.1
- Ramah: Josh.18.25; 1 Kgs.15.17.21-22; Ezra 2.26; Neh.11.33; Isa.10.29; Jer.31.15; 40.1; Hos.5.8; Mt.2.18
- Ram's Horn: See Trumpet
- Ramoth-gilead: Deut.4.43; Josh.20.8; 21.38; 1 Kgs. 4.13; 22.3-4; 2 Kgs.8.28; 9.1-15
- Ransom/Ransomer: Exod.15.13; 30.11-12; Pss.49.7-8,15; 69.18; Prov.21.18; Isa.35.9-10; 41.14; 44.22-24; 47.4; 52.9; Hos.13.14; Mt.20.28; Mk. 10.45; see also Redeem/Redeemer/Redemption
- Raphael: Tob.5.1-11.7
- Raven: Gen.8.7; 1 Kgs.17.4; Job 38.41; Ps.147.9; Isa.34.11; Lk.12.24
- Rebecca/Rebekah: Gen.22.23-29.12; 49.31; Rom.9.10
- Rebel/Rebellion: Num.14.9; Deut.9.24; 21.20; Josh 22.29; Pss.66.7; 78.8,40; 107.11; Prov.17.11; Isa.30.1; 63.10; Jer.2.29; 5.23; Lam.3.42; Ezek. 2.8; 5.6; 12.3; Hos.7.14; Zeph.3.1; 2 Th.2.3; Heb.3.16
- Rechab/Rechabites: 2 Kgs.10.15,23; Jer. ch. 35
- Reconciliation: Rom.5.8-11; 11.15; 2 Cor.5.16-21; Eph.2.11-16; Col.1.20-22
- Red (Reed) Sea: Exod.10.19; 13.18; 14.2-15.22; 23.31; Num.33.8-11; Deut.1.40; 2.1; 11.4; Neh.9.9-11; Pss.66.6; 78.13.53; 106.7,9,22; 136.13-15; Jdt. 5.13-14; Heb.11.29
- Redeem/Redeemer/Redemption: Gen.4.15-16; Exod. 6.6; 21.30; Lev.25.25,47-49; Num.18.15-16; 35.16-28; Deut.7.8; 9.26; 19.6; Ruth 2.20; 4.1-12; Job 19.25; Pss.19.14; 26.11; 69.18; Isa.49.26; 59.20; 60.16; 63.16; Jer.32.6-12; see also Ransom/Ransomer
- Refuge, Cities of: Exod.21.12-13; Num.35.9-15,25-32; Deut.4.41-43; 19.1-13; Josh.20.2-3; 21.13, 21,27,32,38; 1 Chr.6.57,67
- Rehoboam: 1 Kgs.11.43-14.31
- Release, Year of: Exod.21.2-6; Jer.34.8-15
- Remnant: 1 Kgs.19.18; 2 Kgs.19.29-31; Isa.1.9; 7.3; 10.21-22; 11.10-16; 28.5; 37.31-32; Jer. ch. 24; Amos 5.15; 9.9-15; Mic.5.7-8; Zeph.2.7; 3.12-13; Rom.11.5
- Repentance: 2 Sam.12.12-13; 1 Kgs.21.27-29; 2 Kgs. 22.19; Isa.1.18-20; 55.6-7; Jer.7.5-7; Ezek. 18.21-23,30-32; Hos.6.1-3; 14.1-3; Joel 2.12-14; Amos 4.6-11; Mt.3.1-12; 4.17; Mk.1.4-5,15; Lk.5.32; 15.7,10; 24.47; Acts 2.38; 3.19; 17.30-31; 26.20
- Rephidim: Exod. ch. 17; 19.2; Num.33.14-15
- Responsibility, Collective: Gen.18.23-33; Num. 16.25-33; Deut.21.1-9; Josh.7.24-25
- Responsibility, Individual: Gen.4.8-12; Deut.24.16 2 Kgs.14.6; Ps.1; Jer.31.29-30; Ezek.3.16-21; 14.12-23; ch. 18; 33.1-20
- Responsibility, Inherited: Exod.34.7; Lev.26.39-40; Deut.5.9
- Rest: Exod.34.21; Job 3.26; Pss.55.6; 116.7; Eccles. 2.23; Isa.63.14; Mt.11.28; Mk.6.31; 2 Cor.7.5; Heb.3.11; 4.9,11; Rev.14.11,13
- Resurrection: Ezek.37.1-12; Dan.12.2; 2 Esd.7.32 [37]; 2 Macc.7.9-29; 12.43-44; 28.6; Mt.22.23-33; Mk.12.18-27; 16.6; Lk.20.27-40; 24.7,15-49; Jn.11.1-44; 20.9; Acts 23.6-8; 1 Cor.15.12-57; Phil.3.10,11; Heb.6.2; 1 Pet.1.3; Rev.20.5-6
- Reuben: Gen.29.32; 35.22; 37.21-29; 49.3-4; Deut.33.6
- Reuben, The Tribe of: Num. ch. 32; Josh.13.8-23; Judg.5.15; Rev.7.5
- Reuel: See Jethro
- Reward and Punishment: Exod.34.7; Deut. ch. 28; Josh.1.7-8; Judg.2.11-23; Job. ch. 21; Ps.1; Prov.10.27-30; Tob.4.5-11; Wis.5.15-16; 2 Macc. 7.9; Mt.5.1-12; 25.31-46; Rom.2.6-11
- Rhoda: Acts 12.13
- Rhodes/Rodanim: Gen.10.4; Chr.1.7; Acts 21.1
- Riblah: Num.34.11; 2 Kgs.23.33; 25.6,19; Jer.39.5-7
- Righteousness, Divine: 2 Chr.12.6; Ezra 9.15; Neh. 9.8; Pss.7.9; 71.2-24; 98.2; 111.3; 116.5; 119.137, 142; 129.4; 145.17; Isa.5.16; Jer.12.1; 23.6; 31.23; 33.16; Lam.1.18; Dan.9.7; Mic.7.9; Mt.6.33; Jn.17.25; Rom.1.17; 3.22; 10.1-4; Phil.3.9; Rev.16.5,7
- Righteousness, Human: Gen.15.6; 18.26; Deut.9.5; 1 Sam.24.17; 2 Sam.22.25; Job 25.4; Pss.1.6; 11.3; 33.5; 52.6; 97.11; 112.6; 132.9; 143.2;

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Prov.10.25; 11.6,8; 12.5; 15.29; 21.3; Isa.32.1; Jer.23.6; 33.15; Ezek.18.24; Mt.5.6,20;13.43; Lk.5.32; Rom.4.5-6; Eph.6.14; Jas.5.16; 1 Pet. 2.24; 3.12-13
- Risen Christ, The: Mt.28.9-10,16-20; Mk.16.9,12, 14-16; Lk.24.13-51; Jn.20.11-29; 21.1-14; Acts 1.3-9; 9.3-8; 22.6-11; 26.12-18; 1 Cor.15.5-8; see also Jesus, Resurrection Appearances of
- Rome: Acts 2.10; 18.2; 28.14-31
- Rufus: Mk.15.21; Rom.16.13
- Ruth: Mt.1.5
- Sabaeans/Seba/Sheba: Gen.10.7,28; 1 Kgs.10.1,4,10, 13; 2 Chr.9.1; Job 1.15; 6.19; Ps.72.10; Isa.45.14; Jer.6.20; Ezek.23.42; 27.22; Joel 3.8; Mt.12.42
- Sabbath: Gen.2.2-3; Exod.16.22-30; 20.8-11; 23.12; 31.12-17; 34.21; Lev.19.3,30; 23.3; Num.15.32-36; 28.9-10; Deut.5.12-15; Neh.10.31; 13.15-22; Isa.1.13; 56.2-4; 58.13; Jer.17.19-27; Ezek.20. 12-24; 22.8,26; 46.1-2; 1 Macc.2.32-38; Mt. 12.1-14; Mk.2.23-3.6; Lk.6.1-11; Acts 13.27, 42,44
- Sabbatical and Jubilee Years: Exod.23.10-11; Lev. 25.1-7,10-54; 26.2,34-35,43; 27.17-24; Deut. ch. 15; 31.10-11; 1 Macc.6.49,53-54
- Sackcloth: Gen.37.34; Neh.9.1; Esther 4.1; Job 16.15; Pss.30.11; 35.13; Isa.15.3; 58.5; Jer.49.3; Dan. 9.3; Jonah 3.5; Mt.11.21; Rev.6.12
- Sacrifice, Human, to Molech: Gen.22.2; Exod.13.13; Lev.18.21; 20.2-5; Deut.12.31; 1 Kgs.16.34; 2 Kgs.3.27; 16.3; 23.10; Ps.106.37-38; Jer.7.31; 19.5; 32.35; Ezek.16.20-21; Wis.12.3-6
- Sacrifice/Offering: Gen.31.54; Exod.3.18; 5.17; 20. 24-25; 23.18; 29.10-28; 34.15; Lev. chs. 1-38; 8.11-12,22-35; 9.5-6; Num. chs. 28-29; Deut. 12.13-28; 1 Sam.2.29; 15.22; Ezra 4.2; Neh.4.2; Pss.4.5; 40.6; 51.16-17; 54.6; 107.22; 116.17; 118.27; Prov.15.8; 21.3; Eccles.5.1; 9.2; Isa.1.11; Jer.6.20; 33.11; Ezek.39.17; Dan.8.11; Hos.6.6; 8.13; Amos 5.25; Hab.1.16; Zeph.1.7; Eccles. 34.18-35.11; Mt.9.13; 12.7; Mk.9.49; 12.33; Acts 7.42; 14.13; Rom.12.1; 1 Cor.5.7; 8.4; 10.20; Eph.5.2; Phil.2.17; 4.18; Heb.9.26; 10.26; 13.15; 1 Pet.2.5; Rev.2.14,20
- Sadducees: Mt.3.7; 22.23-33; Acts 4.1-2; 23.6-8
- Salamis: Acts 13.5
- Salathiel: See Shealtiel
- Salem: Gen.14.17-19; Heb.7.1-4; see also Jerusalem
- Salome (daughter of Herodias): Mt.14.3-11
- Salome (wife of Zebedee): Mt.27.56; Mk.16.1
- Salt, Covenant of: Lev.2.13; Num.18.19; 2 Chr.13.5
- Salvation/Save: Exod.14.30; Pss.34.6; 68.19-20; 95.1; Isa.45.18-25; Jer.3.22-23; Mt.1.21; 19.25-26; Lk.1.68-79; 7.50; 19.9-10; Jn.3.17; Acts 4.12; Rom.1.16; 5.9-10; 10.9; 1 Cor.1.18,21; Eph. 2.5,8; 1 Th.5.8-9; 1 Tim.1.15; 2 Tim.2.10
- Samarita/Samaritans: 1 Kgs.16.23-28; 2 Kgs.17.1-6, 24-41; Ps.78.67-72; Isa.7.9; 8.4; Jer.23.13-14; Hos.7.1; 8.5-6; Amos 3.9; 4.1; 6.8; 8.14; Mic. 1.1-7; Mt.10.5; Lk.9.51-56; 10.33; 17.11-19; Jn.4.1-42; 8.48; Acts 1.8; 8.1-8; 9.31; 28.14
- Samos: Acts 20.15
- Samson: Judg.13.24; 14.1-16.30; Heb.11.32
- Samuel: 1 Sam. ch. 1; 2.18-26; 3.1-4.1; 7.3-12.25; 13.8-15; 15.1-16.13; 19.18-24; 25.1; 28.3-20; Ps.99.6; Jer.15.1; 2 Esd.7.38[108]; Eccles.46.13-20; Acts 3.24; 13.20; Heb.11.32
- Sanballat: Neh.2.10; 4.1-2.7-8; 6.1-14; 13.28
- Sanhedrin (Council): 2 Chr.19.5-11; Ezra 10.14-16; Jdt.11.14; Mt.26.59; Jn.3.1; 7.50-52; 11.47; Acts 4.5-21; 5.17-41; 6.12; 22.30; 23.15; 24.20
- Sapphira: Acts 5.1-12
- Sarah/Sarai: Gen.11.29-12.17; ch. 16; 17.15-18.15; 20.2-21.12; 23.1-25.12; 49.31; Isa.51.2; Rom. 4.19; 9.9; 1 Pet.3.6
- Sardis: Rev.1.11; 3.1,4
- Sargon II: Isa.20.1
- Satan: 1 Chr.21.1; Job 1.1-6; 2.1-7; Zech.3.1-2; Mt. 4.10; 12.26; 16.23; Mk.4.15; Lk.10.18; 13.16; 22.3,31; Jn.13.27; Acts 5.3; 26.18; Rom.16.20; 1 Cor.5.5; 7.5; 2 Cor.2.11; 11.14; 12.7; 2 Th.2.9; 1 Tim.1.20; Rev.2.13,24; ch. 20
- Saul: 1 Sam. chs. 9-11; chs. 13-22; 26.1-15; 28.3-25; ch. 31; 2 Sam.1.5-10; 2 Esd.7.38[108]; Eccles. 46.19-20; Acts 13.21
- Saul of Tarsus: See Paul
- Save/Saviour: See Salvation
- Sayings: See Proverbs
- Sceptre: Gen.49.10; Num.24.17; Esther 4.11; Ps.45.6; Mt.27.29
- Scava: Acts 19.14
- Scorpion: Deut.8.15; Lk.10.19; 11.12; Rev.9.5
- Scourge: See Flog
- Scribes (doctors of the Law): 1 Chr.27.32; Ezra 4.8; Neh.8.4; Jer.36.32; Eccles.38.24-39.11; Mt.8.19; 13.52; Mk.12.38; Acts 4.5; 6.12; 23.9
- Secundus: Acts 20.4
- Second Coming: See Parousia
- Seed: Gen.1.11; 3.15; 47.19; Deut.14.22; 28.38; Ps. 126.6; Eccles.11.6; Isa.30.23; 55.10; Mt.13.3-23; 13.24-39; 17.20; Mk.4.26-29; 1 Cor.15.20-23, 35-38
- Seir: Gen.36.8-9; Deut.2.1-12; Josh.24.4; Ezek. ch. 35; Eccles.50.26; see also Edom
- Sennacherib: 2 Kgs.18.13; 2 Chr.32.1; Isa.36.1; 37.37; 2 Esd.7.40[110]
- Seraphim: See Serpent
- Sergius Paulus: Acts 13.6-13
- Sermon on the Mount: Mt.5.3-7.27
- Serpent: Gen.3.1-15; Exod.4.3; 7.9-15; Num.21.6-9; 2 Kgs.18.4; Isa.6.2-6; 14.29; 30.6; Wis.16.5-6; Dan. & Bel; Mk.16.18; Lk.10.19; Jn.3.14; 2 Cor. 11.3; Rev.12.9
- Servant Songs: Isa.42.1-4; 49.1-6; 50.4-11; 52.13-53.12
- Seth: Gen.4.25-8
- Seven Evangelists: Acts 6.1-6
- Seven Churches: Rev.1.4,11,20; chs. 2-3
- Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego: Dan.1.6-7; 2.49; 3.12-30; S. of Three 66; 1 Macc.2.59
- Shallum (king of Israel): 2 Kgs.15.8-15
- Shalmaneser V: 2 Kgs.17.3; 18.9; Tob.1.2,15
- Shamgar: Judg.3.31; 5.6
- Shaphan: 2 Kgs.22.3-14; Jer.26.24; 39.14
- Sharon: 1 Chr.27.29; S. of S.2.1; Isa.35.2
- Shealtiel: 1 Chr.3.18; Ezra 3.2,8; 5.2; Neh.12.1; Hag.1.1,12,14; 2.2; 2 Esd.3.1; Mt.1.12; Lk.3.27
- Shear-jashub: Isa.7.3
- Sheba: See Sabaeans/Seba/Sheba
- Sheba (son of Bichri): 2 Sam.20.1-22
- Sheba, Queen of: 1 Kgs.10.1-13
- Shechem: Gen.12.6-7; 33.18-20; Josh.24.1,25.32; Judg. ch. 9; 1 Kgs.12.1,25; Ps.60.6; Eccles.50.26
- Sheep: Gen.4.3; 1 Sam.25.2; Job 1.3; Mt.18.12; Jn.2.14
- Sheep (figurative): Pss.44.22; 100.3; Isa.53.6; Jer.50.6; Mt.10.6; Jn.10.3,15-16; 21.17; Heb.13.20
- Shem, Ham, and Japheth: Gen.5.32; 9.18-27; 10.1-32; see also Ham; Japheth

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Shema: Deut.6.4-9
- Sheol: Num.16.30,33; Deut.32.22; 1 Sam.2.6; 2 Sam.22.6; Job 7.9; 11.8; 14.13; 24.19; Pss.6.5; 9.17; 16.10; 30.3; 49.14-15; 89.48; 139.8; Prov.5.5; 7.27; 9.18; Eccles.9.10; Isa.5.14; 14.9,11,15; 28.15,18; 57.9; Ezek.31.15-18; 32.21; Hos.13.14; Amos 9.2; Jonah 2.2; Mt.5.22,29-30; 10.28; 18.9; 23.15,33; Mk.9.43-45; Lk.12.5; Jas.3.6; see also Ben-hinnom, Valley of; Hades; Hell
- Shepherd: Pss.23.1; 80.1; Isa.40.10-11; Jer.23.3-4; Ezek.34.2-23; Jn.10.1-30
- Sheshbazzar: Ezra 1.8,11; 5.14-16
- Shibboleth: Judg.12.6
- Shiloh: Josh.18.1-10; 19.51; 21.2; 22.9,12; Judg. 18.31; 21.12,19-21; 1 Sam.1.3,9,24; 2.14; 3.21; 4.3,4,12; 1 Kgs.2.27; 14.2-4; Ps.78.60; Jer. 7.12-14; 26.6-9; 41.5
- Shimei: 2 Sam.16.5-13; 19.16-23
- Shine/Shining: Exod.34.29-35; Num.6.25; Job 22.28; Ps.31.16; Isa.60.1; Dan.12.3; Mt.13.43; 17.2; Jn.1.5; 2 Cor.4.6; Phil.2.15; Rev.21.23
- Ships: Pss.104.26; 107.23; Prov.30.19; Jonah 1.3; Acts 27.44; Jas.3.4
- Shishak: 1 Kgs.11.40; 14.25
- Shittim/Abel-shittim: Num.25.1-16; 33.49; Josh.2.1; 3.1; Mic.6.5
- Shofar: See Trumpet
- Showbread: See Bread of the Presence
- Shunammite/Shulammite: 1 Kgs.1.3-4,15; 2.13-25; S. of S.6.13
- Siddim: Gen.14.3,8,10
- Sidon: Gen.10.15; Josh.11.8; 2 Sam.24.6-7; Isa. 23.2-3; Jer.25.22; Mt.11.21; Acts.12.20
- Signs: Gen.1.14; 9.12-17; 17.11; Exod.12.13; 13.9,16; 31.17; Num.14.11; Deut.13.1-3; Ps.65.8; Isa. 7.10-17; 8.18; Ezek.4.3; 2 Esd.5.1-13; 6.11; 14.8; Rest of Est.10.9; Mt.12.38-39; 16.1-4; 24.24; Mk.8.11-13; 13.22; Lk.11.29-32; 16.29-31; 17.20-21; Jn.2.11; 4.48,54; 6.14; Acts 2.22; 1 Cor.14.22
- Sihon: Num.21.21-31; Deut.2.24-37; Josh.12.2-5; 13.10,21,27; Judg.11.19-21; Neh.9.22; Pss. 135.11; 136.19
- Silas/Silvanus: Acts 15.22; 16.19; 18.5; 2 Cor.1.19; 1 Th.1.1; 2 Th.1.1; 1 Pet.5.12
- Siloam, Pool of: 1 Kgs.20.20; Isa.22.9-11; Jn.9.7,11
- Silvanus: See Silas/Silvanus
- Simeon: Gen.29.33; 34.25; 42.24; 46.10; 49.5; Exod.6.15; Num.1.22; 26.12; 1 Chr.4.24; 12.25
- Simeon the Prophet: Lk.2.25-32
- Simon Brother of Jesus: Mt.13.55
- Simon of Cyrene: Mk.15.21
- Simon the Leper: Mt.26.6; Mk.14.3
- Simon Magus: Acts 8.9-24
- Simon Peter: See Peter
- Simon the Zealot: Mt.10.4; Lk.6.15; Acts 1.13
- Sin: Gen.4.7; Num.32.23; 2 Sam.12.13-14; Neh. 9.1-2; Pss.4.4; 32.1-5; 41.4; ch. 51; Isa.40.2; Dan.9.20,24; Mic.7.19; 1 Esd.8.75-77; 2 Esd. 3.21; Wis.15.1-2; Eccles.5.4-6; 21.2-3; Bar. 1.15-3.8; Pr. M.8.10,12; Mt.9.2-8; 12.31-32; Mk.2.1-12; 3.28-29; Lk.5.17-26; 12.10; Jn.1.29; Rom.3.9-20,23-26; 5.12-6.23; 7.7-8.4; Heb.4.15; 1 Pet.4.1,8
- Sinai: Exod.16.1; 19.1-23; 24.16; 31.18; 34.2-32; Lev.7.38; 25.1; 26.46; 27.34; Num.1.1,19; 3.1,4, 14; 9.1,5; 10.12; 26.64; 28.6; 33.15-16; Deut. 33.2; Judg.5.5; Neh.9.13; Ps.68.8,17; Acts 7.30, 38; Gal.4.24-25; see also Horeb
- Sin-offering: Exod.29.14,36; 30.10; Lev.4.1-5.13; 6.17,25,30; 7.7,37; 8.2,14; 9.2-22; 10.16-19; 12.6,8; 14.13-31; 15.15,30; 16.3-27; 23.19; Num. 6.11-8.12; 15.24-27; 18.9; 28.15,22; 29.5-38; 2 Chr.29.21-24; Ezra 8.35; Neh.10.33; Ezek. 40.39; 42.13; 43.19-25; 44.27-29; 45.17-25; 46.20
- Sisera: Judg.4.2; 5.20; 1 Sam.12.9; Ps.83.9
- Slander: Mk.7.22; Rom.1.30; 1 Tim.3.11; 2 Tim.3.3; Ti.2.3
- Slaughter, Ritual: Gen.9.2-6; 37.31; Lev.1.1-13; 3.1-17; 4.4-35; 7.1-7; 8.15,18,23; 14.10-53; 16.11,15; 17.1-17; 22.28-29; Ezra 6.20; Isa.66.3; Mt.22.4; Lk.15.23,27,30; Jn.10.10; Acts 10.13
- Slavery: Exod.21.2-11,26-27,32; Lev.25.39-46; Deut. 15.12-18; Eccles.33.24-31; 1 Cor.7.21-22; Eph. 6.5-8; Col.3.22-24; Ti.2.9-10; Philem.9-16; 1 Pet.2.18-25
- Sodom and Gomorrah: Gen.10.19; 13.10-13; 14.2-22; 18.16-19.28; Deut.29.23; 32.32; Isa.1.9-10; 3.9; 13.19; Jer.23.14; 49.18; 50.40; Lam.4.6; Ezek.16.46-56; Amos 4.11; Zeph.2.9; Wis. 10.6-9; Mt.10.15; 11.23-24; Lk.5.12; 17.29; Rom.9.29; 2 Pet.2.6; Jude 7; Rev.11.8
- Solomon: 1 Kgs.1.10-11.43; Lev.25.39-46; Prov.1.1; 25.1; S. of S.1.1; 3.7-11; 8.11-12; 2 Esd.7.38 [108]; Wis.9.8; 47.12-23
- Sojourners: See Aliens
- Son of God: Mt.3.17; 11.27; 27.54; Mk.1.11; 15.39; Lk.3.22; 10.22; Jn.1.14; 3.16; Gal.2.20
- Son of Man: Num.23.18; Ezek.2.1; Dan.7.13; 8.17; Mt.9.6; 10.23; 11.19; 12.8,32,40; 16.13; 17.22-23; 19.28; 20.18-19; 24.27,30,37,44; 26.24,45,64; Mk.2.10,28; 9.31; 10.33; 13.26; 14.21,41; Lk. 7.34; 9.44; 11.30; 12.8,10,40; 17.24,27; 18.31; 19.10; 21.27; 22.22; Jn.1.51; 3.13-15; 5.27; 6.27,53; 12.34; Acts 7.56; Rev.1.13; 14.14
- Sorrow: See Pity
- Sosthenes: Acts 18.17
- Soul: Judg.5.21; Job 30.16; Pss.19.7; 23.3; 42.2; 43.5; 57.8; 84.2; 103.1; Prov.21.10; Isa.26.9; 53.12; 2 Esd.8.4-5; Wis.8.19; Mt.10.28; Mk.14.34; Lk.1.46; 12.19; Jn.12.27; 1 Th.5.23; Jas.1.21; 1 Pet.2.25; 3 Jn.2; Rev.20.4; see also Spirit
- Spies: Gen.42.9-34; Num. chs. 13-14; 21.1; Deut. 1.19-25; 2.1-21; Josh.6.23; 1 Sam.26.4; 2 Sam. 15.10; Lk.20.20; Heb.11.31
- Spirit: 1 Sam.16.14-16,23; 2 Sam.24.1; 1 Kgs.22.21-23; 1 Chr.21.1; Isa.31.3; Jn.3.8; 4.24; 6.63; Rom.2.29; 7.6; 8.9-17; 1 Cor.2.10-16; 2 Cor. 3.6,18; Gal.5.16-24; see also Soul, Holy Spirit, Spirit of God
- Spirit of God: Gen.1.2; 2.7; 6.3; Exod.31.3; 35.31; Num.11.17-29; 24.2; Judg.3.10; 1 Sam.10.6-10; 11.6; 19.20-23; 2 Sam.23.2; 1 Kgs.22.24; 2 Kgs. 2.9,16; Job 33.4; Ps.139.7; Isa.11.2; 42.1; Ezek. 36.26-27; 37.1; Joel 2.28-29; Mic.3.8
- Stephen: Acts 6.8-8.2
- Stoning: Exod.21.28-32; Lev.20.2,27; 24.14,16; Num.15.35-36; Deut.13.10; 17.5; 21.21; 22.21, 24; Josh.7.25; 1 Kgs.21.10,13-14; Mt.23.37; Lk.13.34; Jn.8.5,7; Acts 7.58-59; 2 Cor.11.25
- Stranger: See Alien
- Stupid: See Folly/Fool
- Succoth: See Tabernacles, Feast of
- Succoth (place): Gen.33.17; Num.33.5; Judg.8.5; Pss.60.6; 108.7
- Sychem: See Shechem
- Synagogue: Mk.1.21; 5.22; Lk.4.16; Jn.9.22; Acts 6.9; 9.2; 18.4,17; 22.19

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Syria: Mt.4.24; Lk.4.27; Gal.1.21; see also Aram/Aramaean
- Taanach: Josh.12.21; 17.11; 21.25; Judg.5.19; 1 Kgs.
4.12; 1 Chr.7.29
- Tabernacle (Tent of the Presence): Exod. ch. 26;
33.7-11; 35.4-40.38; Lev.8.10; 26.11; Num.
1.50,53; 2.17; 4.21-49; ch. 7; 9.15,18; 17.7;
18.2; Deut.31.15; Josh.18.1; 1 Chr.21.29; 2 Chr.
1.3; Wis.9.8; Acts 7.44; Heb.8.2; 9.2
- Tabernacles (booths), Feast of: Exod.23.16; 34.22;
Lev.23.33-36,39-43; Num.29.12-38; Deut.16.
13-15; 31.10-11; 1 Kgs.8.2,65; Ezra 3.4; Neh.
8.13-18; Zech.14.16,18-19; 2 Macc.1.18; 10.6;
Jn.7.2
- Tablets of the Law: Exod.24.12; 31.18; 32.15-16,19;
34.1-10,28-29; 40.22; Deut.4.13; 5.22; 9.9-17;
10.1-5; 1 Kgs.8.9; 2 Cor.3.3; Heb.9.4
- Tabor: Josh.19.22; Judg.4.6; 1 Chr.6.77; Ps.89.12; Hos.5.1
- Tamar (a Canaanite woman): Gen. ch. 38; Ruth 4.12
Tamar (David's daughter): 2 Sam.13.1-32; 1 Chr.3.9
Tammuz: Ezek.8.14
- Tares: See Darnel
- Tarshish: Gen.10.4; 2 Chr.9.21; 20.36; Ps.48.7; Isa.
2.16; Jer.10.9; Jonah 1.3
- Tarsus: Acts 9.11; 21.39; 22.3
- Tattenai: Ezra 5.3,6; 6.6,13
- Tekoa: 2 Sam.14.2; 23.26; 2 Chr.11.6; Neh.3.5,27; Jer.6.1; Amos 1.1
- Temai: Gen.36.34; Jer.49.7,20; Ezek.25.13; Amos
1.12; Obad.9; Hab.3.3
- Temple (Body of Christ): Mt.12.6; 26.61; Mk.14.58;
Jn.2.12-22; 1 Cor.3.16-17; 2 Cor.6.14-7.1
- Temple, Jerusalem: Exod.20.22-26; 23.19; 28.42-43;
Lev.15.16-18; Deut. ch. 12; 27.5; Josh.18.1; 24.1,26; 1 Sam.1.3; 10.8; Ezra chs. 3-6; 1 Esd.
chs. 5-7; Acts 21.26-30
- Second: Ezra 2.68-69; 3.1-4.4; 5.1-6.15; Ezek. chs.
40-48; Hag.1.2-2.8-9; Zech.4.6-10; 1 Macc.
4.36-61; 2 Macc.10.1-9; Mt.21.12-13; Mk.11.11, 15-19; Lk.1.8-24; 2.22-52; 19.45-48; Jn.2.13-22
- Solomon's: 1 Kgs. chs. 6-8; 2 Kgs.23.4-25; 25.8-17; 2 Chr.3.1-8.16; Ezra 3.8-13; 4.23-5.5; 9.5-9; Jer.7.1-15; ch. 26; Hag.1.7-11,13-15; 2.4-9,18-19; Zech.4.6-10; 1 Esd.5.47-7.9; 1 Macc.4.36-61;
2 Macc.10.1-8
- Ten Commandments: Exod.20.2-17; Lev.19.2-4; Deut.5.6-21
- Ten Towns: Mt.4.25; Mk.7.31
- Tent of the Presence: See Tabernacle of the Testimony: See Tabernacle of the Tokens: See Tabernacle
- Teraphim: Gen.31.19,34-35; Judg.17.5; 18.14,17-18, 20; 2 Kgs.23.24; Ezek.21.21; Hos.3.4; Zech.10.2
- Tertullus: Acts 24.2-8
- Thaddaeus/Labbaeus: Mt.10.3; Mk.3.18
- Thanksgiving: 1 Chr.16.34; Neh.11.17; Pss.50.14;
75.1; 95.2; 100.4; 106.47; 145.10; 147.7; Dan.
2.23; Mt.15.36; Mk.8.6; Lk.2.38; Jn.6.11; 1 Cor.
14.16; Phil.4.6; 1 Th.1.2; 2 Th.2.13; 1 Tim.2.1;
Rev.4.9; 7.12
- Theophany: Exod.3.1-6; 19.3-25; 24.9-11; 1 Kgs.
19.11-13; Job 38.1; Ps.18.7-15; Isa. ch. 6; Ezek.
1.4-28a; 10.1-19,22; Dan.7.9-10
- Theophilus: Lk.1.1-3; Acts 1.1
- Thessalonica: Acts 17.1; 27.2; Phil.4.16; 2 Tim.4.10
- Thomas: Mt.10.3; Jn.11.16; 14.5; 20.24; 21.2; Acts
1.13
- Thorn: See Pain
- Throne, Divine: Pss.11.4; 47.8; 93.2; 103.19; Isa.6.1; 66.1; Jer.3.17; Heb.1.8; 12.2; Rev.4.4; 7.15; 20.11; 22.1
- Thunder: Exod.9.23; 19.16; 20.18; 1 Sam.7.10; Job
26.14; 37.2; Pss.77.18; 93.4; 104.7; Isa.29.6;
Mk.3.17; Rev.6.1; 14.2
- Tiberias: Jn.6.1,23; 21.1
- Tiberius: Mt.22.17; Mk.12.14; Lk.3.1; 20.22; Jn.19.12
- Tiglath-Pileser III: 2 Kgs.15.19; 16.8; 2 Chr.28.20
- Timothy: Acts 16.1-3; 17.14-15; Rom.16.21; 1 Cor.
16.10; 2 Cor.1.1,19; Phil.2.19
- Tirzah: Josh.12.24; 1 Kgs.14.17; 16.17; 2 Kgs.15.14, 16; S. of S.6.4
- Tithe: Gen.14.20; 28.22; Lev.27.30-33; Num.18.21-32; Deut.14.22-29; 26.12-14; Neh.10.37-38;
Amos 4.4; Mal.3.8-10; Mt.23.23; Lk.18.12;
Heb.7.1-10
- Titus: 2 Cor.2.13; 7.6,13; 8.23; Gal.2.3
- Tobiah: Neh.2.10; 4.3,7; ch. 6; 13.6-9
- Tongues, Speaking in: Acts 2.4-11; 10.46; 19.6; 1 Cor.12.10,28,30; 13.1,8; ch. 14
- Trachonitis: Lk.3.1
- Transfiguration: Mt.17.1-8; 2 Pet.1.16-18
- Transgression: See Sin
- Tree of Life and Tree of Knowledge: Gen.2.9; ch. 3; Prov.3.18; 11.30; 13.12; 15.4; Ezek.47.1-12;
2 Esd.2.12; Rev.2.7; 22.2,14
- Trespass: See Sin
- Tribes, The Twelve: Gen.35.23; 46.8-25; 49.2-27;
Exod.6.14-25; Num.1.5-15,20-47; 13.3-15; 26.
1-62; 34.19-29; Deut.27.11-13; 33.6-29; Acts
26.7; Rev.21.12
- Triumphal Entry (Palm Sunday): Mt.21.1-9; Mk.
11.1-10; Lk.19.35-38; Jn.12.12-19
- Troas: Acts 16.8-11; 20.6-7
- Trophimus: Acts 20.4; 2 Tim.4.20
- Trumpet: Exod.19.16,19; Num.10.1-10; Josh.6.4-20;
Judg.7.8-22; 1 Sam.13.3; 1 Kgs.1.34-39; 2 Chr.
29.26-28; Neh.4.18-20; Job 39.24-25; Pss.47.5;
81.3; 150.3; Isa.58.1; Jer.6.17; Joel 2.15; Mt.6.2; 24.31; 1 Cor.15.52; Heb.12.19; Rev.1.10; 8.2; 11.15
- Truth: Gen.24.27; 42.16; Exod.34.6; Josh.24.14;
1 Kgs.17.24; Pss.43.3; 51.6; 108.4; 119.42; Prov.
8.7; 23.23; Isa.38.18,19; 59.14-15; Jer.4.2; 9.5;
Zech.8.3,8,16,19; 1 Esd.4.33-41; Jn.1.14,17; 4.23-24; 8.32,40,44-46; 14.6,17; 16.13; 18.38;
Rom.1.18; 1 Cor.13.6; 2 Cor.6.7; 13.8; Gal.5.7;
Eph.4.15,21,25; 6.14; 1 Tim.3.15; 2 Tim.2.15;
1 Jn.5.7; 3 Jn.8
- Tubal-cain: Gen.4.22
- Tychicus: Acts 20.4; Eph.6.21; Col.4.7; 2 Tim.4.12; Ti.3.12
- Tyre: Josh.19.29; 1 Kgs.5.1; 16.31; Ps.45.12; Jer.
25.22; Ezek. chs. 26-28; Amos 1.9; Mk.7.24-31;
Acts 21.3-7
- Uncleanness: Lev. chs. 11-15; 17.15; 22.1-8; Num.
5.1-4; 6.7; ch. 19; Ps.106.39; Isa.6.5; 52.11; Mt.
10.1; Acts 10.28; Rom.14.14; 2 Cor.6.17; Rev.2.1;
21.27; See also Cleanliness; Defilement
- Unleavened Bread, Feast of: See Passover
- Ur: Gen.11.28; 15.7; 1 Chr.11.35; Neh.9.7
- Uriah: 2 Sam.11.3,17; 12.10; 1 Kgs.15.5; Mt.1.6
- Uriel: 2 Esd.4.1-11
- Urim and Thummim: Exod.28.30; Lev.8.8; Num.
27.21; Deut.33.8; 1 Sam.14.41; 28.6; Ezra 2.63;
Neh.7.65; 1 Esd.5.40

Select Index to People, Places, and Themes in the Bible

- Usury: See Interest
 Uz: Gen.10.23; 36.28; Job 1.1; Jer.25.20; Lam.4.21
 Uzziah: See Azariah
- Vanity (emptiness): Eccles.1.2; 9.1-2; 11.8; 12.8; Isa.40.17,23; 44.9; 2 Pet.2.18
- Vashti: Esther 1.9; 2.1,17
- Vengeance: Gen.4.15; Deut.32.35; Ps.94.1; Isa.35.4; 61.2; Jer.51.6; Ecclus.27.30-28.7; Lk.21.22; Rom.12.19
- Vinegar: See Gall
- Virgin Birth: Mt.1.18-25; Lk.1.26-38
- Vows: Gen.28.20-22; Lev.7.16-17; 22.17-25; 27.1-29; Num.21.2; ch. 30; Deut.23.21-23; Judg. 11.30-31; 1 Sam.1.11; Pss.66.13-15; 132.2-5; Acts 18.18; 21.23; see also Oaths
- Watch/Watchman: Gen.31.49; Judg.7.19; Job 14.16; Pss.71.10; 90.4; 127.1; 141.3; Isa.21.11; 56.10; Jer.31.28; Ezek.33.6; Hab.2.1; Lk.2.8; 6.7; 14.1
- Water: Gen.1.2,6,9; 6.17; 7.6; 21.19; 26.18-32; Exod. 15.23-25; 17.1-8; 23.25; Num.20.2-13; 21.16-18; Deut.11.11; 1 Sam.26.11; 2 Sam.14.14; 1 Kgs. 18.30-46; 2 Kgs.3.20; 2 Chr.18.26; Job 22.7; Pss. 36.8-9; 46.3-4; 63.1; 65.9; 124.4; Prov.30.4; Eccles.11.1; Isa.1.22; 33.16; 35.6; 41.17-18; 55.1; Jer.2.13; 3.3; Ezek. ch. 47; Joel 3.18; Zech.13.1; 14.5-9; Wis.10.18; Mt.3.11; Mk.1.8; Jn.4.10-15; 7.38; Acts 8.36; Rev.7.17; 21.6; 22.1
- Way, The: Acts 9.2; 18.26; 19.9; 22.4; Heb.10.20
- Wealth: Deut.8.17-18; 2 Kgs.15.20; Job 15.29; 31.25; Pss.49.10-11; 112.3; Prov.10.15; 13.11; 19.4; Eccles.5.19; Isa.60.5; Ezek.28.4; Rev.18.19
- Weeks, Feast of: Exod.23.16; 34.22; Lev.23.15-21; Num.28.26-31; Deut.16.9-12; 2 Macc.12.31; see also Feasts/Festivals
- Weary: Gen.27.46; 2 Sam.23.10; Job 16.7; Pss.6.6; 69.3; Isa.7.13; 40.30; 43.23-24; Jer.15.6; Mic. 6.3; Hab.2.13; Mal.2.17; Lk.18.5
- Whoredom: See Prostitution
- Widow: Exod.22.22-24; Deut.24.17-21; Ruth 1.21; Acts 6.1; 1 Cor.7.8; 1 Tim.5.3-16; see also Levirate Marriage
- Wilderness: Gen.16.7; Exod.13.18; 15.22-17.16; Num.9.15-14.45; 20.1-13; 33.8-48; Deut.1.19-20; 2.1-3; 8.2-4; 32.10; 1 Kgs.19.4; Neh.9.19-21; Pss.29.8; 78.40; 95.8; 107.4; Isa.35.1; 40.3; 2 Esd. 1.17-20; Mt.3.3; 4.1-11; Mk.1.3-5,12-13; Lk. 3.3; 4.1-13; Acts 7.30-44; 1 Cor.10.5
- Wine: Exod.29.40; Lev.23.13; Num.6.3; 15.5; Deut. 29.6; Judg.9.13; 13.14; 19.19; Ps.104.15; Prov. 20.1; 21.17; 23.20,30-31; 31.6; Eccles.10.19; Isa. 5.11; 25.6; 28.7; 55.1; Jer. ch. 35; Hos.3.1-3; Zech.9.15; 10.7; Mt.9.17; 26.27-29; Mk.2.22; 14.23-25; Lk.5.37-39; 22.17-18; Jn.2.1-12; 1 Cor.11.25; Eph.5.18; 1 Tim.3.3; 5.23; 1 Pet.4.3
- Wisdom: Deut.4.6; 1 Kgs.3.4-28; 4.29-34; 10.4-24; Job 12.2-13; ch. 28; Ps.111.10; Prov.8.1-9,18; Eccles.2.3-26; 9.10-18; Jer.10.12; Wis.7.24-8.21; Ecclus.19.20-30; ch. 24; 38.24-39.11; Bar.3.9-4.3; Jas.3.17
- Wise Men: See Magi
- Woman, Creation of: Gen.1.27-28; 2.18-25
- Women, Laws Respecting: Lev.12.1-8; 15.19-33; Num.5.11-31; 27.1-11; Deut.15.12-18; 20.14; 21.10-14; 22.13-21; 23.17-18
- Women in the Church: Lk.10.38-42; 1 Cor.11.3-15; 14.34-35; 1 Tim.2.9-14
- Word, The: Gen.1.3; 27.34; Deut.33.9; Pss.33.6; 68.11; Isa.40.6-8; 55.10-11; Amos 3.8; Wis. 9.1-2; 18.15; Jn.1.1-14; Rev.19.13
- Works: Jn.14.12; Rom.3.28; 13.12; Gal.6.4; Phil.1.6; Jas.2.20,26
- Wormwood: See Gall
- Worship: Gen.22.5; Exod.8.1; 20.5; Deut.8.19; 29.26; 2 Kgs.17.16; Pss.97.7; 132.7; Isa.19.23; Jer.7.2; Dan.3.10; Zech.14.16-17; Mk.7.7; Jn. 4.20-24; Acts 17.23; Heb.11.23; Rev.13.8-15; 14.7; 15.4; 19.4; 22.8,9
- Yahweh (the Name): Gen.4.26; Exod.3.12-17; 6.2-3; 20.7; 33.19; 34.5-7; Lev.24.10-23; Num.6.22-27; see also God, Names for
- Year: Exod.23.17; 30.10; Lev.25.10,53; Esther 9.27; Job 3.6; Pss.65.11; 90.4,10; Eccles.12.1; Isa. 61.2; 63.4; Zech.14.6; Lk.4.19; Heb.9.7; 10.1; 2 Pet.3.8; Rev.20.2
- Zacchaeus: Lk.19.2-8
- Zadok: 2 Sam.8.17; 15.24-36; 20.25; 1 Kgs.1.8-45; 1 Chr.16.39; 29.22; Ezek.40.46; 43.19; 44.15; 48.11
- Zeal: Num.25.13; 2 Sam.21.2; 2 Kgs.10.16; 19.31; Ps.69.9; Isa.9.7; 63.15; Jn.2.17; Rom.10.2; Phil.3.6
- Zebulun: Gen.30.20; 35.23; 49.13; Judg.1.27-30; 4.10-16; 5.18; Ezek.48.33
- Zechariah: 2 Kgs.14.29; 15.8,11
- Zechariah (father of John): Lk.1.5,13,21,64
- Zerubbabel: Ezra 2.2; 3.2,8; 4.2-3; 5.2; Neh.7.7; 12.1; Hag.1.1,12,14-15; 2.2-4,21-23; Zech.4.4-10; 1 Esd.4.58-60; 5.56; 6.29; Ecclus.49.11; Mt.1.12; Lk.3.27
- Zion: 2 Sam.5.7; 1 Kgs.8.1; 1 Chr.11.5; Pss.2.6; 9.11; 48.1-2,11-12; 50.2; 53.6; 78.68; 87.1-2.5; 102.13, 16,21; 128.5; 132.13-14; 133.3; Isa.2.3; 14.32; 18.7; 28.16; 59.20; 60.14; Joel 3.16-17,21; Amos 1.2; Mic.4.2; Zech.8.3; 2 Esd.13.36; Bar.4.5-26; 1 Macc.4.36-38; 5.54
- Zipporah: Exod.2.16-22; 4.24-26; 18.1-8
- Zoan: Ps.78.12,43; Isa.19.11,13; 30.4; Ezek.30.14
- Zobah/Zobah-hamath: 2 Sam.8.3; 1 Chr.18.3,5,7,9; 19.6
- Zophar: Job 2.11; 11.1; 20.1; 42.9

INDEX TO MAPS

- Abana R. 4, Z1
 Abarim, Mts. of 1, Y5
 Abdon 3, X2
 Abel 1, Y2
 Abel-beth-maacah 4, Y2
 Abel-keramim 3, Y5
 Abel-maim 4, Y2
 Abel-meholah 3,4, X4
 Abel-shittim 1, Y5
 Abila 7,9, Y3
 Abilene 8, G4
 Abydos 6, F5
 Acchabare 9, X3
 Acco 1,3,4,7, X3; 6, G4
 Achaia 8, D3
 Achmetha (Ecbatana) 6, J4
 Achor, Valley of 3,4, X5
 Achshaph 1,3, X3
 Achzib: Phoenicia 1,3,7,9, X2
 Acrabbein 9, X4
 Actium 8, D3
 Adadah (Aroer) 3, W6
 Adam 3, Y4
 Adasa 7,9, X5
 Adhaim, R. 5, H4
 Adiabene 8, H3
 Adida 9, W5
 Admah 1, X6
 Adoraim 4,7, X5
 Adramyttium 8, E3
 Adria, Sea of 8, C2
 Adullam 1,3,4,7, X5
 Aduru 1, Y3
 Aegean Sea 6,8, D3
 Aelana 8, F5
 Aenon 9, Y4
 Africa 8, C4
 Agrippina 9, Y3
 Ahlab 3, X2
 Ai 1,3,4, X5, 7, inset
 Aialon 9, X5
 Aiath 7, inset
 Aijalon: Dan 1,3,4, X5
 Aila 8, F5
 'Ain Feshka 7, X5
 Akrabatta (Akrabattene) 7, X4
 Akraabim, Ascent of 1,3, X7
 Alema 7, Z3
 Aleppo 5,6, G3
 Alexandria: Egypt 8, E4
 Alexandria Troas 8, E3
 Alexandrium 7,9, X4
 Amalek 4, W6
 Amanus Mts. 5, G3
 Amasea 8, G2
 Amastris 8, F2
 Amathus: Cyprus 6, F4
 Amathus: Palestine 9, Y4
 Amisus 8, G2
 Ammathus 9, Y3
 Ammon 1,3,4,7, Z4; 5,6, G4
 Amorites 1, Y5
 Anab 3, W6
 Anaharath 1, X3
 Ananiah 7, inset, X5
 Anathoth 3,4,7,9, X5; 7, inset
 Anathu Borcaeus 9, X4
 Ancona 8, B2
 Ancyra 8, F3
 Anthedon 7, V5
 Antioch: Galatia 8, F3
 Antioch: Syria 8, G3
 Antioch on the Chrysorhoas
 (Gerasa) 7, Y4
 Antipatris 9, W4
 Antium 8, B2
 Apamea 8, G3
 Apennine Mts. 8, B2
 Aphairema 7, X5
 Aphek: Bashan 4, Y3
 Aphek (Pegai): Ephraim 1,3,7, W4
 Aphik 3, X3
 Apollonia 8, C2
 Apollonia Sozusa 7,9, W4
 Appian Way 8, C2
 Appii Forum 8, B2
 Aqaba, Gulf of 2, T3
 Ar 1, Y6
 Arabah, The 1,3,4, Y4; 2, U2
 Arabah, Sea of the 1,3,4, X5
 Arabia 5,6, H5
 Arabian Desert 8, H4
 Arad 1,3,4, X6; 2, U1
 Arad of Beth-yeroham 4, X6
 Aram (Syria) 4, Z2
 Araq el-Emir 7, Y5
 Ararat (Urartu) 5, H3
 Araxes, R. 6,8, J3
 Arbatta 7, X3
 Arbela: Assyria 5,6,8, H3
 Arbela: Galilee 7,9, X3
 Arbela: Transjordan 7,9, Y3
 Arca 8, G4
 Archelais: Cappadocia 8, F3
 Archelais: Palestine 9, X5
 Argob 1,4, Z3
 Arimathea (Rathamin) 9, X4
 Ariminum 8, B2
 Armenia 6,8, H3
 Arnon, R. 1,3,4,7, Y6; 2, U1
 Aroer: Moab 1,3,4, Y6
 Aroer (Adadah): Negeb 1,3, W6
 Arpad 5,6, G3
 Arrapkha 5,6, H3
 Artaxata 8, H3
 Arubboth 1,4, X4
 Arumah 3, X4
 Aruna 1, X4
 Arus 9, X4
 Arvad 5,6, G4
 Ascalon 7, W5
 Ashan 3, W6
 Ashdod (Azotus) 1,3,4,7, W5;
 2, T1; 6, F4
 Asher: tribe 3,4,5, X2
 Ashkelon (Ascalon) 1,3,4,7, W5
 Ashtaroth 1,3,4, Z3
 Asia 8, E3
 Asochis 7,9, X3
 Asor 3, W4
 Asphaltitis, Lake (Dead Sea) 7, X5
 Asshur 5,6, H3
 Assos 8, E3
 Assyria 5,6, H3
 Astrabad 6, K3
 Ataroth: Ephraim 3, X4
 Ataroth: Moab 1,4, Y5
 Athens 6,8, D3
 Athribis 2, Q2; 5, F4
 Attalia 8, F3
 Avaris 2, Q2
 Azekah 2, T1; 3,4, W5
 Azmaveth 7, inset
 Azmon 2, T2
 Azotus 7, W5
 Baalah 3, X5
 Baalath 3,4, W5
 Baal-gad 3, Y2
 Baal-hazor 4, X5
 Baal-meon (Beth-meon) 1,4, Y5
 Baal-peor 4, Y5
 Baal-shalishah 3,4, X4
 Baal-zephon 2, R2
 Babylon: Egypt 8, F5
 Babylon: Mesopotamia 5,6,8,
 H4
 Babylonia 5,6, J4
 Baca 9, X3
 Balikh, R. 5, G3
 Bashan 1,3,4, Y3
 Baskama 7, Y3
 Beer 3, X3

Index to Maps

- Beeroth (Bene-jaakan) 2, T2
 Beeroth (Berea): Benjamin 3,4,7, X5; 7,inset
 Beer-sheba 1,3,4,7, W6; 2, T1
 Beerzeth (Berzetho) 7, X5
 Behistun 6, J4
 Belus, R. 9, W5
 Bemesis 9, X4
 Bene-jaakan 2, T2
 Beneventum 8, B2
 Benjamin 3, X5
 Beon 1, Y5
 Berea 7,9, X5; 7,inset
 Beroea 8, D2
 Bersabe: Galilee 9, X3
 Berytus 5,8, G4
 Berzetho 7,9, X5
 Besara 9, X3
 Besor, Brook 3,4, V6
 Beth-anath 1,3, X3
 Bethany 9, X5
 Betharamphtha 9, Y5
 Beth-arbel 4, Y3
 Beth-baal-meon 3, Y5
 Beth-basi 7, X5
 Beth-dagon 1,3, W5
 Beth-diblatthaim 4, Y5
 Beth-eden 5, G3
 Beth-eglaim 1, V6
 Bethel 1,3,4,7,9, X5; 7,inset
 Beth-gilgal (Gilgal) 7, X5
 Beth-haccherem 7, X5
 Beth-haggan 1,3,4, X4
 Beth-horon, Upper & Lower 1,4,7, X5
 Beth-jeshimoth 1,3, Y5
 Bethlehem: Galilee 3, X3
 Bethlehem: Judah 1,3,4,7, X5
 Bethmaus 9, X3
 Beth-meon 4, Y5
 Beth-nimrah 1,3, Y5
 Beth-peor 3, Y5
 Bethphage 9, X5
 Beth-rehob: region 4, Y2
 Beth-rehob: town 3, Y2
 Bethsaida-Julias 9, Y3
 Beth-shean (Beth-shan, Scythopolis) 1,3,4,7, Y4
 Beth-shemesh: Judah 1,3,4, W5
 Bethul (Bethuel) 3, W6
 Beth-yerah (Philoteria) 1,7,9, Y3
 Beth-zachariah 7, X5
 Beth-zaith 7, X5
 Bethzatha, Pool of 9
 Beth-zur 3,4,7, X5
 Betonim 3, Y5
 Beyond the River 6, G4
 Bezek 3, X4
 Bezer 1,3,4, Y5
 Bitun 6, J4
 Bit-adini 5, G3
 Bithynia & Pontus 8, F2
 Black Sea 5,6, F2
 Borim 4, X4
 Borsippa 5,6, H4
 Bosor 7, Z3
 Bosora 7, Z3
 Bosphorus 8, E2
 Bosporan Kingdom 8, G1
 Bozrah (Bosora) 7, Z3
 Bozrah: Edom 2, U2
 Bozrah: Moab 4, Y5
 Brundisium 8, C2
 Bubastis 2, Q2
 Bucolon Polis 9, W3
 Busiris 2,6, Q2
 Byblos 5, G4
 Byzantium 6,8, E2
 Cabul 3,4, X3
 Cadasa 9, Y2
 Caesarea (Mazaca) 8, G3
 Caesarea: Palestine 9, W3; 8, F4
 Caesarea Philippi 8, G4
 Calah 5, H3
 Calno 5, G3
 Cana 9, X3
 Canaan 1-; 2, T1
 Canopus 8, F4
 Canusium 8, C2
 Capar Ganaeoi 9, Y2
 Capernaum 9, Y3
 Capharsaba 9, W4
 Capharsalama 7,inset; 9, X5
 Caphtor (Crete) 5, D3
 Capitolas 9, Y3
 Cappadocia 6,8, G3
 Capparetaea 9, W4
 Capreae (Capri) 8, B2
 Capua 8, B2
 Carchemish 5,8, G3
 Caria 6, E3
 Cariathiareim 9, W5
 Carmel, Mt. 1,3,4,7,9, X3
 Carmel: town 4, X6
 Carnaim (Carnion) 7, Z3
 Carrhae (Haran) 8, G3
 Casphor 7, Y3
 Caspian Sea 5,6, K3
 Caspin 7, Y3
 Caucasus Mts. 6, J2
 Cauda 8, D4
 Cenchræe 8, D3
 Chabulon 9, X3
 Chaspho (Casphor, Caspin) 7, Y3
 Chephirah 3, X5; 7,inset
 Cherith, Brook 4,5, 9, Y4
 Chersonesus 8, F2
 Chezib 1, W5
 Chinnereth 1,3, Y3
 Chinnereth, Sea of 1,3,4, Y3
 Chios 8, E3
 Chorazin 9, Y3
 Cilicia 5,6, F3
 Cilicia & Syria 8, G3
 Cilicia Trachea 8, F3
 Cimmerians 6, F3
 Citium 6, F4
 City of Moab 1, Y6
 City of Salt 4, X5
 Cnidus 8, E3
 Colchi 6, H2
 Colchis 8, H2
 Colonia Amasa 9, X5
 Colossæe 8, E3
 Comana 8, G2
 Commagene 5,6,8, G3
 Coptos 6, F5
 Corcyra 8, C3
 Coreae 9, X4
 Corinth 6,8, D3
 Cos 8, E3
 Crete 5,6,8, D3
 Crocodilon Polis 9, W3
 Croton 8, C3
 Ctesiphon 8, H4
 Cush (Ethiopia) 6, F6
 Cuthah 5, H4
 Cyprus: island 5,6,8, F3
 Cyprus: Palestine 9, X5
 Cyrenaica 8, D4
 Cyrene 6,8, D4
 Cyrus, R. 6, J2
 Cyzicus 8, E2
 Dabaloth 7, Y5
 Dabaritta 9, X3
 Dabira 9, X3
 Dacia 8, D1
 Dalmanutha 9, Y3
 Dalmatia 8, C2
 Damascus 1,3,4,7, Z1; 5,6,8, G4
 Damghan 6, K3
 Dan: town 1,3,4, Y2
 Dan: tribe 3, Y2; W5
 Danube, R. 8, D2
 Daphne 9, Y2
 Dascylium 6, F2
 Dathema (DiatHEMA) 7, Z3
 Dead Sea 7, X6
 Debir: Judah 1,3,4, W6; 2, T1
 Decapolis 9, Y3
 Dedan 5,6, G5
 Delphi 6, D3
 Der 6, J4
 Derbe 8, F3
 Diathema 7, Z3
 Dibun 1,3,4, Y6; 2, U1
 Diyala, R. 5, H4
 Dok 7, X5
 Dophkah 2, S3
 Dor 1,3,4,7,9, W3
 Dora 9, W3
 Doriscus 6, E2
 Dorylaeum 8, F3
 Dothan 1,4,7, X4

Index to Maps

- Dumah 5,6,8, G5
 Dura-Europus 8, H4
 Dur-sharrukin 5, H3
 Dyrhachium 8, C2
- Eastern Sea 5, K5
 Ebal, Mt. 1,3,4,7,9, X4
 Ecbatana 5,6, J4
 Ecdippa 9, X2
 Edessa 8, G3
 Edfu 6, F5
 Edom 1,3,4, Y7; 2, U2; 5, G4
 Edomites 6, G4
 Edrei 1,3,4, Z3
 Eglaim 1, V6
 Eglon 1,3,7, W5
 Egnatian Way 8, D2
 Egypt 2, Q2; 5,6,8, F5
 Egyptian Port 2, S3
 Egypt, Brook of 2, S1
 Ekron 1,3,4,7, W5
 Elah, V. of 3, W5
 Elam 7, W5
 Elam (Susiana) 5,6,8, J4
 Elasa 7, inset
 Elath 5, F5
 Elealeh 1, Y5
 Elephantine 6, F6
 Elon 4, X5
 Emesa 8, G4
 Emmatha 9, Y3
 Emmaus (Colonia Amasa) 9, X5
 Emmaus (Nicopolis) 7,9, W5
 En-dor 3, X3
 En-gannim 1,3, X4
 En-gedi 3,4,7, X6
 En-haddah 8, X3
 En-rimmon 7, W6
 En-rogel 9
 Ephesus 6,8, E3
 Ephraim: town 9, X5
 Ephraim: tribe 3, X4
 Ephrath 1, X5
 Ephron 3,4, X5
 Ephron (Transjordan) 7, Y3
 Epiphania 8, G3
 Erech (Uruk) 5,6, J4
 Esbus 9, Y5
 Esdraelon 9, X3
 Eshnunna 6, H4
 Eshtemoa 3, X6
 Etam 3,4, X5
 Ethiopia 5,6, F6
 Euphrates, R. 5,6,8, H3
 Europus 8, G3
 Euxine Sea 8, F2
 Exaloth 9, X3
 Ezion-geber 2, T3; 5, F5
- Fair Havens 8, D4
 Farah, Wadi 9, X4
 Forum of Appius 8, B2
- Gabae (Hippeum) 9, X3
 Gabae (Isfahan) 6, K4
 Gabaon 9, X5
 Gabata 9, W3
 Gabbath Saul 9, X5
 Gad: tribe 1,3, Y4
 Gadara: Decapolis 7,9, Y3
 Gadara: Perea 7,9, Y4
 Galatia 8, F3
 Galilee 4,7, X3
 Galilee, Sea of 9, Y3
 Galilee & Perea 9
 Gamala 7,9, Y3
 Gangra 8, F2
 Garis 9, X3
 Gath (Gittaim): Benjamin 4,7, W5
 Gath: Philistia 1,3,4, W6
 Gath of Sharon 1,8, X4
 Gath-hepher 4, X3
 Gath-rimmon 3,4, W4
 Gaulanitis 7,9, Y3
 Gaza 1,3,4,7, V5; 5,6,8, F4; 2, T1
 Gazara 7,9, W5
 Geba 4,7, X5; 7, inset
 Gebal 5,6, G4
 Gedor 8, X5
 Gennath Gate 9
 Gennesaret 10,11, Y3
 Gennesaret, Lake 7, Y3
 Gerar 1,3,4,7, W6; 2, T1
 Gerasa 7,9, Y4
 Gergesa 9, Y3
 Gerizim, Mt. 1,3,4,7,9, X4
 Geshur 1,4, Y3
 Gezer 1,3,4, W5
 Gibbethon 3,4, W5
 Gibeah 3,4, X5
 Gibeon 1,3,4,7, X5; 7, inset
 Gilboa, Mt. 3,4,9, X3
 Gilead 1,3,4,7, Y4
 Gilgal (nr. Jericho) 1,3,4,7, X5
 Giloh 3,4, X5
 Gimarraï 5, F3
 Gimzo 4, W5
 Ginae 9, X4
 Ginnesar 9, Y3
 Gischala 9, X2
 Gitta 9, X4
 Gittaim (Gath) 7, W5
 Golan 1,3, Y3
 Gomer 5, F3
 Gomorrah 1, X6
 Gophna 7,9, X5
 Gordion 5,6, F3
 Gordium 8, F3
 Gordyene 8, H3
 Gorgan 6, K3
 Goshen: Egypt 2, Q2
 Goshen: Palestine 3, W6
 Gozan 5, G3
 Granicus, R. 6, E2
 Great Arad 4, X6
- Great Bitter Lake 2, R2
 Greater Syrtis 8, C4
 Great Plain, The 7,9, X3
 Great Sea, The 1,3,4,7, W3;
 2, R1; 5, E4
 Gurbaal 4, W6
- Habor, R. 5, H3
 Hadid 7, W5
 Halys, R. 5,6,8, G3
 Ham 1, Y3
 Hamath 5,6, G3
 Hamath, Entrance to 4, Y1
 Hammath 3, Y3
 Hannathon 1,3, X3
 Haran 5,6,8, G3
 Harim 7, W5
 Harosheth-hagoiim 3, X3
 Hattina 5, G3
 Hauran 4, Z3; 5, G4
 Havvoth-jair 1,3,4, Y3
 Hazar-addar 2, T2
 Hazar-shual 3,7, W6
 Hazazon-tamar 1, X7
 Hazor: Galilee 1,3,4,7, Y2
 Hazor: near Jerusalem 7, inset
 Hebron 1,3,4,7, X5; 2, U1
 Helam 4, Z3
 Helbon 5, G4
 Heliopolis 2, Q2; 5,6,8, F4
 Hellespont 6, E2
 Hephher 3,4, W4
 Heraclea 8, F2
 Heracleopolis 2, P3
 Hermon, Mt. 1,3,4,7, Y2
 Hermopolis 5,6, F5
 Hermus, R. 5, E3
 Herod Antipas, Tetrarchy of 9
 Heshbon 1,3,4,7, Y5; 2, U1
 Hill Country of Israel 1,3, X4
 Hill Country of Judah 1,3, X5
 Hippeum (Gabae) 9, X3
 Hippos 7,9, Y3
 Horeb, Mt. 2, S4
 Hormah 1,3,7, W6; 2, T1
 Huleh, Lake 9, Y2
 Hyrcania: Asia 6, K3
 Hyrcanian Sea 6, K2
- Iadanna (Cyprus) 5, F3
 Ibleam 1,3,4, X4
 Iconium 8, F3
 Ida, Mt. 6, E3
 Idumea 7, W6
 Ijon 1, Y2
 Illyricum 8, C2
 Ilon 9, X5
 Ionia 6, E3
 Isfahan (Gabae) 6, K4
 Israel 4, X4; 5, G4
 Issachar: tribe 3,4, X3
 Issus 6, G3
 Istros 8, E2

Index to Maps

- Itabyrium 9, X3
 Italy 8, B2
- Jabbok, R. 1,3,4,7,9, Y4
 Jabesh-gilead 3,4, Y4
 Jabneel (Jamneh, Jamnia):
   Judah 3,4,7, W5
 Jahaz 4, Y5
 Jamneith 9, Y3
 Jamnia 7, W5
 Janoah: Naphtali 1,4, X3
 Japha 9, X3
 Japhia 1, X3
 Jarmuth: Judah 3,7, W5
 Jattir 3, X6
 Javan 5, E3
 Jazer 1,4,7, Y4
 Jebel Helal 2, S2
 Jebus (Jerusalem) 3, X5
 Jekabzeel 7, W6
 Jericho 1,3,4,7,9, X5; 2, U1
 Jerusalem 1,3,4,7,9, X5; 7, inset;
   5,6,8, G4; 2, U1
 Jeshanah 4, X4
 Jeshua 7, W6
 Jezreel: Judah 3, X6
 Jezreel, V. of 3,4, X3
 Jezreel: V. of Jezreel 3,4, X3
 Jogbehah 1,3, Y4
 Jokneam (Jokmeam) 1,3,4, X3
 Joppa 1,3,4,7,9, W4; 8, F4
 Jordan, R. 1,3,4,7,9, Y4
 Jotapata 9, X3
 Judah: Kingdom & region
   4,7, X5; 5,6, F4
 Judah: tribe 3, X5
 Judah, Wilderness of 4, X5
 Judea: region 9, X5; 8, G4
 Judea: Roman Empire 9
 Julius 9, Y5
 Juttah 2, U1
- Kabzeel 3, W6
 Kadesh 5, G4
 Kadesh-barnea 2, T2
 Kamon 3, Y3
 Kanah 1, X2
 Kanah, Brook of 9, W4
 Karkor 3, Z6
 Karnaim 1,4, Z3
 Kedar 5,6, G4
 Kedemoth 1,3, Y5
 Kedesh 1,3,4,7, Y2
 Kedron 7, W5
 Kedron, R. 9, W5
 Keilah 1,3,7, W5
 Khilakku 5, F3
 Khirbet Qumran 7,9, X5
 Kidron, Brook 4, X5
 King's Highway, The 2, U3
 Kir-hareseth 2, U1; 4, Y6
 Kiriathaim 1,3,4, Y5
 Kiriath-arba 1,7, X5
- Kiriath-jearim 3,4,7, W5;
   7, inset
 Kishon, R. 3,4,9, X3
 Kue 5, G3
 Kumukhu 5, G3
- Lacedaemon 8, D3
 Lachish 1,3,4,7, W5; 2, T1
 Ladder of Tyre 7, X2
 Laish (Dan) 1,3, Y2
 Lakkum 3, Y3
 Laodicea 8, E3
 Larissa 8, D3
 Larsa 5,6, J4
 Lasea 8, D3
 Lebanon, Mt. 1,3,4,7, Y1
 Lebanon: region 5, G4
 Lebanon, V. of 3, Y1
 Lebonah 3, X4
 Lehi 3, X5
 Lepcis Magna 8, B4
 Lesbos 6,8, E3
 Lesser Armenia 8, G3
 Libba 7, Y5
 Libnah 3,4, W5; 2, T1
 Libya 5,6,8, E4
 Little Bitter Lake 2, R2
 Livias 9, Y5
 Lod 1,7, W5
 Lo-debar 4, Y3
 Lower Beth-horon 3,4,9, X5
 Lower Sea, 5,6, K5
 Lower Zab: riv. 5, H3
 Luz 1, X5
 Lycia 6,8, E3
 Lycopolis 5, F5
 Lydda 7,9, W5
 Lydia 5,6, E3
 Lystra 8, F3
- Maacah 1,4, Y2
 Macedonia 6,8, D2
 Machaerus 7, Y5
 Madai (Medes) 5, K3
 Madmannah 3, W6
 Madon 1,3, X3
 Maeander, R. 5, E3
 Magadan 9, Y3
 Magnesia 6, E3
 Magnesia-on-Maeander 6, E3
 Mahanaim 1,4, Y4
 Mahnayim 9, X4
 Makaz 4, W5
 Maked 7, Z3
 Makkedah 3, W5
 Malta 8, B3
 Mamre 1, X5
 Manasseh: tribe 1,3, Y3; 3, X4
 Mannai 5, J3
 Maon 3, X6
 Marathon 6, D3
 Mare Internum 8, D4
 Mare Nostrum 8, D4
- Mareshah 3,4, W5
 Marisa 7, W5
 Masada 7, X6
 Mattanah 1, Y5
 Mazaca 8, G3
 Medeba 1,3,4,7, Y5; 2, U1
 Medes 5, K3
 Media 6,8, J3
 Media Atropatene 8, J3
 Mediterranean Sea 7,8
 Megiddo 1,3,4, X3
 Melita (Malta) 8, B3
 Melitene 5,6,8, G3
 Memphis 2, Q3; 5,6,8, F5
 Menzaleh, Lake 2, Q1
 Meribah 2, T2
 Merom 1,3,4, X3
 Merom, Waters of 3, X3
 Meronoth 7, inset
 Meroth 9, X3
 Mesembria 8, E2
 Melitene (Moschi) 6, G2
 Meshech (Mushki) 5, F3
 Mesopotamia 8, H3
 Messana 8, C3
 Michmash 3,9, X5; 7, inset
 Middin 3,4, X5
 Midian 2, U3
 Migdal 1, W4
 Migdol 5, F4
 Miletus 6,8, E3
 Milid (Melitene) 5, G3
 Minni 5, J3
 Misrephoth-maim 3, X2
 Mitylene 6,8, E3
 Mizpah 3,4,7, X5; 7, inset
 Moab 1,3,4,7, Y6; 2, U1; 5,6, G4
 Moab, Plains of 1, Y5
 Modein 7,9, X5
 Moesia 8, D2
 Moladah 1,7, W6
 Mons Casius 2, S1
 Moreh, Hill of 3, X3
 Moschi 6, G2
 Mount Baalah 3,4, W5
 Mushki 5, F3
 Musri 5, G3
 Myra 8, F3
 Mitylene see Mitylene
- Naarah 3, X5
 Nabataean Kingdom 7, Y6;
   8, G4
 Nahaliel, R. 1,4, Y5
 Nahalol 3, X3
 Nain 9, X3
 Nairi 5, H3
 Naissus 8, D2
 Naphath-Dor 3, W3
 Naphtali: tribe 3,4, X3
 Narbata 7, X4
 Naucratis 8, F4
 Nazareth 9, X3

Index to Maps

- Neapolis: Italy 8, B2
 Neapolis: Macedonia 8, D2
 Neapolis: Palestine 9, X4
 Neballat 7, W5
 Nebo: Moab 4,7, Y5
 Nebo, Mt. 1,3, Y5; 2, U1
 Negeb. The 1,3,4, W6; 2, T1
 Netophah 4,7, X5
 Nibshan 3,4, X5
 Nicaea 8, E2
 Nicephorium 8, G3
 Nicomedia 8, E2
 Nicopolis: Greece 8, D3
 Nicopolis: Palestine 9, W5
 Nile. R. 2, Q3; 5,6,8, F5
 Nimrim, Waters of 4, Y6
 Nineveh 5,6, H3
 Ninus 8, H3
 Nippur 5,6, J4
 Nisibis 8, H3
 Noph 2, Q3; 5, F5
 Novae 8, E2
- Oboth 2, U2
 Odessus 8, E2
 Oescus 8, D2
 On (Heliopolis) 2, Q2; 5, F4
 Ono 1,7, W4
 Ophrah 3, X5
 Orontes, R. 5,8, G3
 Osroëne 8, G3
 Ostia 8, B2
 Oxyrhynchus 8, F5
- Paestum 8, B2
 Palmyra 8, G4
 Pamphylia 6,8, F3
 Paneas 9, Y2
 Pannonia 8, C1
 Panormus 8, B3
 Paphlagonians 6, F2
 Paphos 8, F4
 Paran. Wilderness of 2, T3
 Parsagarda (Pasargadae) 6, K4
 Parthia 6, L3
 Parthian Empire 8, H3
 Patara 8, E3
 Pegai 7,9, W4
 Pehel 1, Y4
 Pekod 5, J4
 Pella 1,7,9, Y4
 Peloponnesus 6, D3
 Pelusium 2, R1; 5,6,8, F4
 Penuel 1,3,4, Y4
 Perea, Galilee & 9, Y5
 Perga 8, F3
 Pergamum 8, E3
 Persepolis 6, K5
 Persia (Persis) 6, K5
 Persian Gulf 6, K5
 Persus 8, B2
 Pessinus 8, F3
 Petra 8, G4
- Pharaton 7,9, X4
 Pharpar, R. 4, Z2
 Phasaelis 9, X4
 Philadelphia: Asia 8, E3
 Philadelphia (Rabbah):
     E. of R. Jordan 7,9, Y5
 Philip, Tetrarchy of 9, Y2
 Philippi 8, D2
 Philippopolis 8, D2
 Philistia 4, W5
 Philistia, Plain of 2, T1
 Philistines 3,7, W5
 Philoteria 1,7,9, Y3
 Phoenicia 7, G4; 7,9, X2
 Phoenix 8, D3
 Phrygia 5, F3
 Pi-beseth 2, Q2
 Pirathon 3,4,7, X4
 Pisgah, Mt. 1,3, Y5
 Pisidia 8, F3
 Pithom 2, Q2
 Po, R. 8, B2
 Pola 8, B2
 Pompeii 8, B2
 Pontus Euxinus 8, F2
 Prusa 8, E2
 Pteria 6, F3
 Ptolemais 7,9, X3; 12, G4
 Punon 2, U2
 Puqudu 5, J4
 Puteoli 8, B2
- Qantir 2, Q2
 Qarqar 5, G4
 Qidri 5, G4
- Raamses 2, Q2
 Rabbah (Rabbath-ammon):
     Ammon 1,3,4,7,9, Y5;
     2, U1
 Ramah: Benjamin 3, X5;
     7, inset
 Ramathaim-zophim 3,7, X4
 Ramoth-gilead 1,3,4, Z3
 Raphia 2, T1; 4,7, V6; 5, F4
 Raphon 7, Z3
 Rathamin 7,9, X4
 Ravenna 8, B2
 Red Sea 5,6,8, G5
 Red Sea (G. of Aqaba) 2, T4
 Rehob 3, X3
 Rehoboth 1, W6
 Reuben: tribe 1,3, Y5
 Rezeph 5, G3
 Rhagae 6, K3
 Rhegium 8, C3
 Rhodes 5,6,8, E3
 Rimmon: Benjamin 3, X5
 Rimmon: Galilee 3, X3
 Rogelim 4, Y3
 Roman Empire 8
 Rome 8, B2
 Rumah 4,9, X3
- Saab 9, X3
 Saba (Sheba) 5, G6
 Sagartia 6, K4
 Sais 5,6,8, F4
 Salamis: Cyprus 6,8, F3
 Salamis: island Greece 6, D3
 Salecah 5, G4
 Salem (Jerusalem) 1, X5
 Salim 9, Y4
 Salmone 8, E3
 Salonae 8, C2
 Salt, City of 4, X5
 Salt, V. of 4, W6
 Salt Sea 1,3,4, X5; 2, U1
 Samaga 7, Y5
 Samal 5, G3
 Samaria: region 7,9, X4
 Samaria: town 4,7,9, X4;
     5,6,8, G4
 Samos 6,8, E3
 Samosata 8, G3
 Samothrace 8, E2
 Sangarius, R. 5,6, F2
 Sappho 9, X5
 Saqqarah 2, Q3
 Sardica 8, D2
 Sardis 5,6,8, E3
 Scodra 8, C2
 Scopus, Mt. 9, X5
 Scupi 8, D2
 Scythians 8, F1
 Scythopolis 7,9, Y4
 Sebaste 9, X4
 Secacah 3,4, X5
 Sela 2, U2; 5,6, G4
 Selame 9, X3
 Seleucia: Asia Minor 8, F3
 Seleucia: E. of R. Jordan 7,9, Y2
 Seleucia: Mesopotamia 8, H4
 Selo (Shiloh) 9, X4
 Semechonitis. L. 9, Y2
 Senaah 7, X5
 Senir (Mt. Hermon) 1, Y2
 Sennabris 9, Y3
 Sepharad 5, E3
 Sepph 9, X3
 Sepphoris 9, X3
 Serabit el-Khadim 2, S3
 Shaalbm 3,4, W5
 Sharon, Plain of 1,4,9, W4
 Sharuhin 1,4, V6
 Sheba (Saba) 5, G6
 Shechem 1,3,4,7, X4
 Shephelah, The 1,3,4, W6
 Shihin (Asochis) 7, X3
 Shikkeron 3,4, W5
 Shiloh 3,4,7,9, X4
 Shimron 1,3, X3
 Shittim 1,3, Y5; 2, U1
 Shunem 1,3,4, X3
 Shur, Wilderness of 2, S2
 Shushan 5,6, J4
 Sicily 8, B3

Index to Maps

- Siddim, V. of I, X6
 Side 8, G2
 Sidon 1,3,4,7, X1; 5,6,8, G4
 Sidonians 4, X2
 Sigoph 9, X3
 Simeon: tribe 3, W6
 Simonias 9, X3
 Sin (Pelusium) 2, R1
 Sin, Wilderness of 2, S3
 Sinai, Mt. (Jebel Helak) 2, S2
 Sinai, Mt. (Mt. Horeb) 2, S4;
8, F5
 Sinai: region 2, S3; 5,6, F5
 Singidunum 8, D2
 Sinope 6,8, G2
 Siptan 4, X4
 Sippar 5, H4
 Sirbonis, Lake 2, S1
 Sirion (Mt. Hermon) 1, Y2
 Sirmium 8, C2
 Siscia 8, C1
 Siut 5, F5
 Skudra 6, E2
 Smyrna 8, E3
 Socoh: Israel 1,3,4, X4
 Socoh (Soco): Judah 1,3,4, W5
 Sodom 1, X6
 Sogane: E. of R. Jordan 9, Y3
 Sogane: Galilee 9, X3
 Soli 6, F3
 Sorek 3,4, W5
 Sparta 6,8, D3
 Strato's Tower 7, W3
 Succoth: Egypt 2, R2
 Succoth: Palestine 1,3,4, Y4
 Suez Gulf of 2, R3
 Susa (Shushan) 5,6, J4
 Susiana (Elam) 6, J4
 Susithah 7,9, Y3
 Sycaminum 9, W3
 Sychar 9, X4
 Syene 5,6, F6
 Syracuse 8, C3
 Syria 1,4, Z2; 5, G4
 Syria, Province of 9, X2
- Taanach 1,3,4, X3
 Tabbath 3, Y4
 Tabal (Tubal) 5, G3
 Tabor 9, X3
 Tabor, Mt. 3,4, X3
 Tadmor (Tadmar) 5,6, G4
 Tahpanhes 5,6, F4
 Tamar 4, X7
 Tanis 2, Q2; 5, F4
 Tappuah 3,4,7, X4
- Tarentum 8, C2
 Taricheae 7,9, Y3
 Tarracina 8, B2
 Tarsus 6,8, F3
 Taurus 9, X5
 Tavium 8, F3
 Tekoa 4,7, X5
 Tell el-Yahudiyeh 2, Q2
 Tema 5,6,8, G5
 Teman 2, U2
 Tephon 7,9, X4
 Thamna (Timnath) 9, X4
 Thapsacus 6, G3
 Thebes: Egypt 5,6, F5
 Thebes: Greece 6, D3
 Thebez 3,4, X4
 Thella 9, Y2
 Thermopylae 6, D3
 Thessalonica 8, D2
 Thessaly 6, D3
 Thrace 6,8, E2
 Three Taverns 8, B2
 Thyatira 8, E3
 Tiber, R. 8, B2
 Tiberias 9, Y3; 8, G4
 Tigranocerta 8, H3
 Tigris, R. 5,6,8, H4
 Til-garimmu 5, G3
 Timnah: Hill Country of Judah
1,3, X5
 Timnah: Dan 3,4, W5
 Timnath (Thamna) 9, X4
 Timnath-serah (Timnath) 3,7,
X5
 Timsah, Lake 2, R2
 Tiphseh 5, G3
 Tirathana 9, X4
 Tirzah 1,3,4, X4
 Tjaru (Zilu) 2, R2
 Tob 3,4, Z3
 Togarmah 5, G3
 Tomi 8, E2
 Tower of Aphek 9, W4
 Trapezus 6,8, G2
 Tripolis 8, G4
 Troas (Alexandria Troas) 8, E3
 Tubal (Tabal) 5, G3
 Turang Tepe 6, K3
 Turushpa (Tuspar) 5, H3
 Tyre 1,3,4,7,9, X2; 5,6,8, G4
 Tyre, Ladder of 9, X2
 Tyrrhenian Sea 8, B3
- Ulatha 9, Y2
 Upper Beth-horon 3,4,9, X5
 Upper Sea 5,6, E4
- Upper Zab: riv. 5, H3
 Ur 5,6, J4
 Urartu (Ararat) 5,6, H3
 Urmia, Lake 5,6,8, J3
 Uruk (Erech) 5,6, J4
 Ushu 5, G4
 Usiana 5, F3
 Uzu 1, X2
- Van, Lake 5,6,8, H3
 Viminacium 8, D2
- Waters of Nimrim 4, Y6
 Western Sea, The 1, W4; 5, E4
- Xanthus 6, E3
- Yanoam 1, Y3
 Yarmuk, Wadi 9, Y3
 Yazith 4, X4
 Yeb 6, F6
 Yehem 1, X4
 Yiron 3, X2
 Yishub 9, X4
 Yurza 1, V6
- Zadrakarta 6, K3
 Zair 4, X5
 Zanoah 7, W5
 Zaphon 3, Y4
 Zarephath 4, X2
 Zarethan 3,4, Y4
 Zeboiim 1, X6
 Zebulun: tribe 3, X3
 Zela 3, X5
 Zemaraim 4, X5
 Zephathah, V. of 4, W5
 Zered, Brook 1,3,4, Y7
 Zeredah: Ephraim 4, X4
 Zeredah (Zarethan): Jordan Valley 3, Y4
 Zererah: Jordan Valley 3, Y4
 Zereth-shahar 3, Y5
 Zeugma 8, G3
 Zia 9, Y4
 Ziklag 3,4,7, W6
 Zilu (Tjaru) 2, R2
 Zin, Wilderness of 2, T2
 Ziph: Hill Country of Judah
3,4, X6
 Ziph: Negev 1,3, W7
 Ziz, Ascent of 4, X5
 Zoan 2, Q2; 5,6, F4
 Zoar 1,4, X6
 Zobah 4, Z1
 Zorah 3,4,7, W5

The Land of Canaan Abraham to Moses

- GAD, etc. Tribes of Israel
- EDOM, etc. Kingdoms encountered by the Israelites in the 13th century, B.C.
- Cities mentioned in Numbers and Deuteronomy, but not in Genesis.

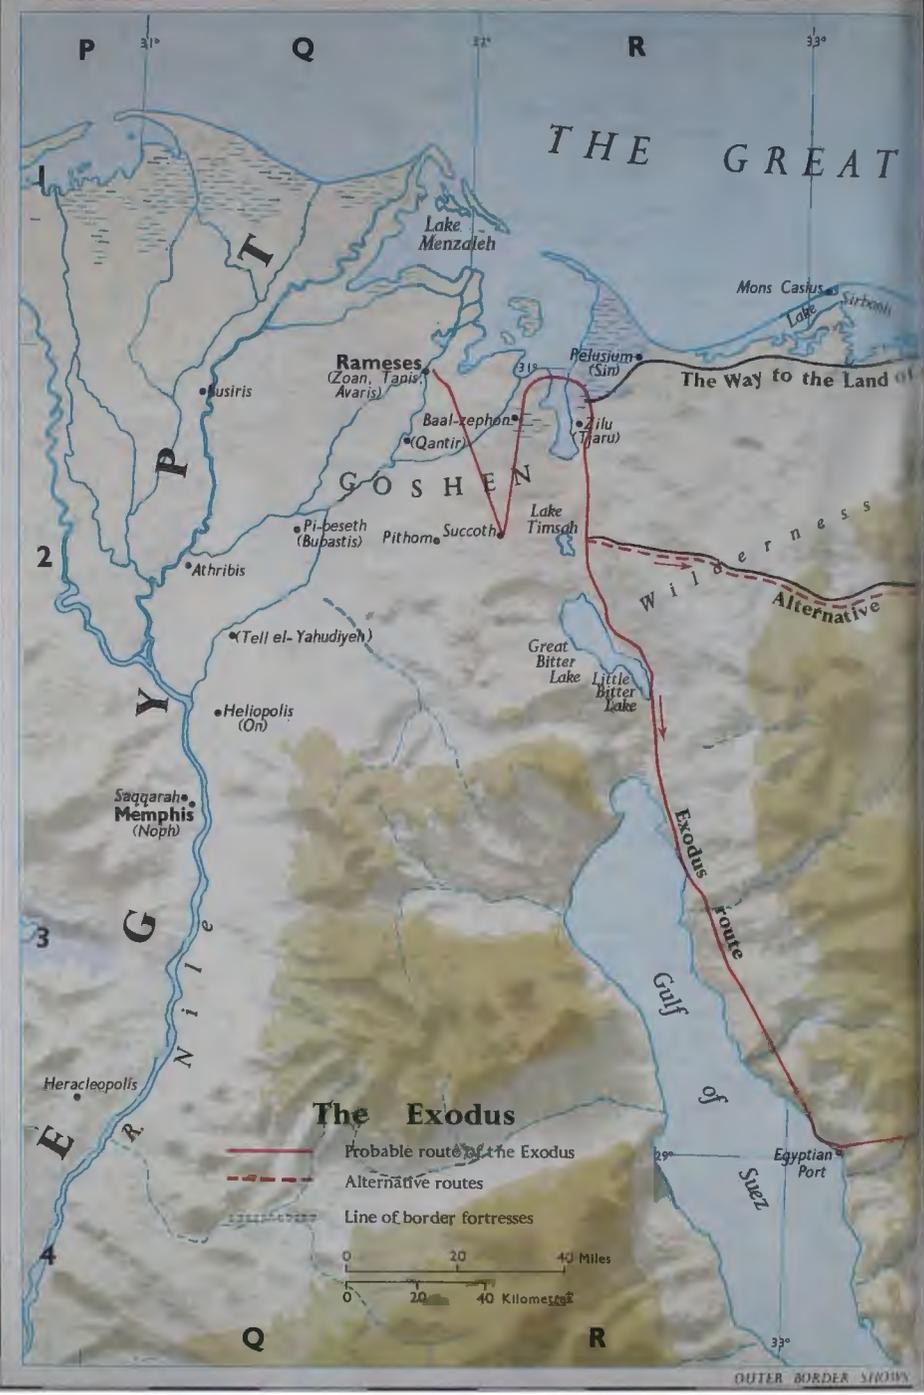

THE
G R E A T
S E A

(The Western Sea)

MAP 1

Possible location of Valley of Siddim, and the cities of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, Zebolim, now covered by shallow waters.

E G Y P T

G O S H E N

W I L D E R N E S S

THE GULF OF SUZ

THE WAY TO THE LAND OF

EXODUS ROUTE

Alternative

Line of border fortresses

Probable route of the Exodus

Alternative routes

Line of border fortresses

0 20 40 Miles

0 20 40 Kilometers

OUTER BORDER SHOWN

- Busiris
- Athribis
- (Tell el- Yahudiyeh)
- Heliopolis (On)
- Saqqarah
- Memphis (Nopri)
- Heracleopolis
- Ramses (Zoan, Tapis, Avaris)
- Baal-zephon (Qantir)
- Pi-beseth (Bubastis)
- Pithom
- Succoth
- Lake Menzaleh
- Pelusium (Sin)
- Zilu (Tjaru)
- Lake Timsah
- Great Bitter Lake
- Little Bitter Lake
- Egyptian Port
- Suez
- Mons Casius
- Lake Sirbonis

P 31° Q 32° R 33°

Q R 33°

20 MILE SUBDIVISIONS

OUTER BORDER SHOWS 10 MILE SUBDIVISIONS

The Near East
 in the time of the Assyrian Empire

Approximate extent of Assyrian domination
 in the latter part of the 8th century.
 (Later, under Esarhadon (681-669), Assyria conquered Egypt.)

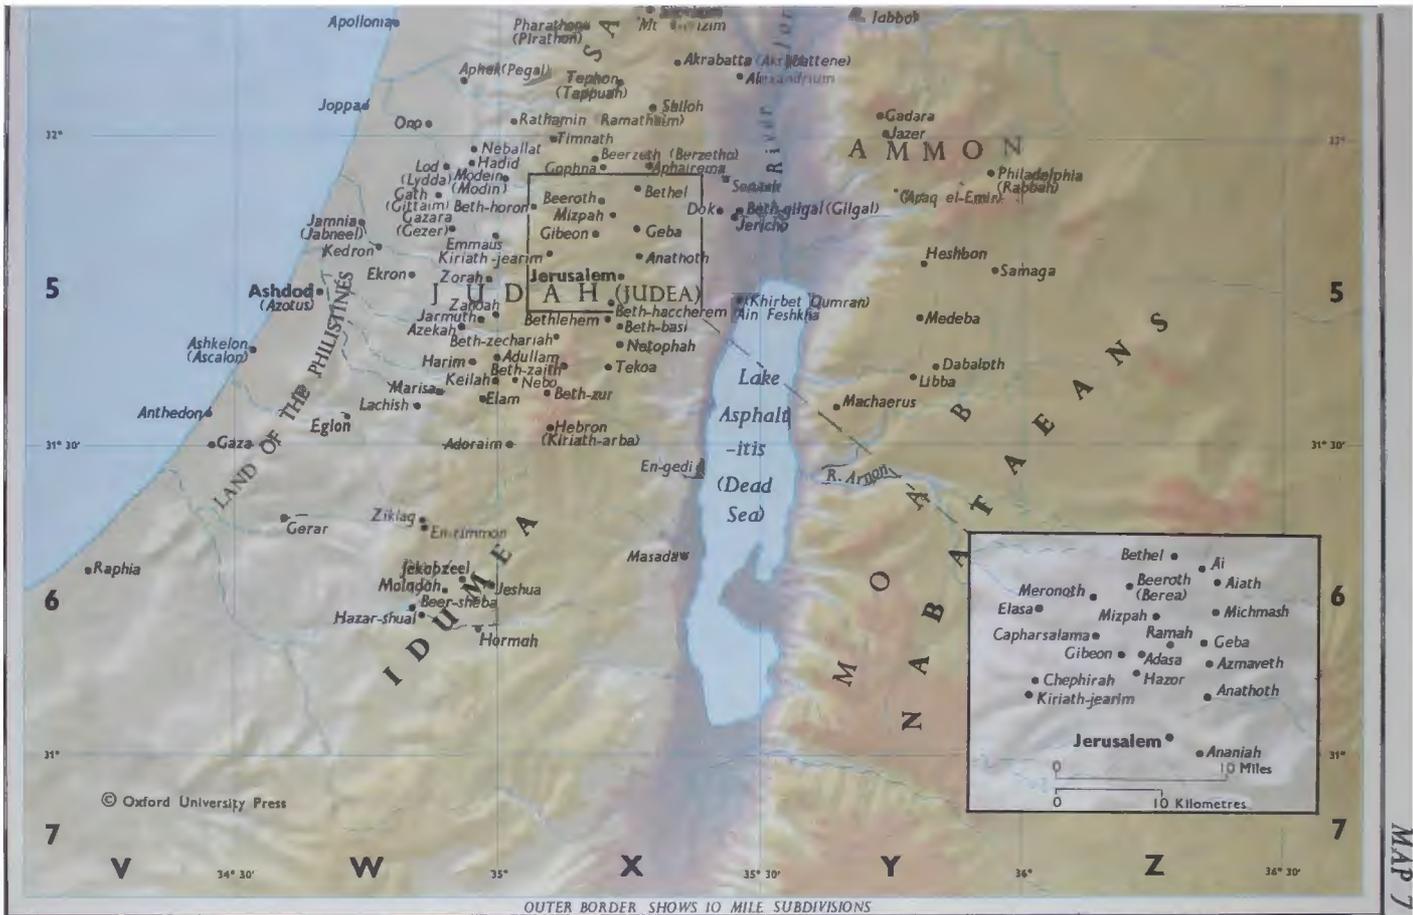

The Near East in the time of the Persian Empire

OUTER BORDER SHOWS

The Background of the New Testament Rome and the East (including Paul's Journeys)

© Oxford University Press

W

35°

Tyre

X

35° 30'

Daphné

Caesarea Philippi
(Panaeus)

MAP 9

North & Central Palestine in the Time of Jesus

--- Political boundaries

JUDEA Political units

- Places mentioned in the New Testament
- ▲ Cities of the Decapolis
- ▲ " " mentioned in the New Testament
- Fortresses

3

Dora (Dor)

Caesarea

4

Joppa

Lydda

5

Accaron (Ekron)